in about an hour after parting with the Indians, we came to the edge of the timber, where the road widened. Then it was we noticed that the Indians had been joined by a band of wild cattle, probably the cause of it about a mile from the Uncle Seth's camp. The cattle were very wild, and their own under cover of the timber, a shot at the cattle. The cattle were not hurt, but they were frightened and ran off in all directions as fast as they could go. Some of them ran right through the camp, and one of them, a large bull, came very near running over me. Some horses were frightened and ran off in the woods, but the Indians soon caught them and brought them back. Uncle Seth's horses were right into the thick of the stampede, but he managed to secure them without much trouble. When the boys found that there was nothing wrong about the camp, they came back, and we all had a good laugh at the fright we had received from the cattle. Uncle Seth said that he had been in many a worse fright than that, and that he had come out all right, and he guessed we would. He said that the cattle were probably frightened by the Indians, who had been trying to get a shot at them. We then went on our way, and about noon we came to a small creek, where we halted for dinner. Uncle Seth killed a fine fat deer, and we had venison for dinner. We had been on the road about two hours after dinner when we came to a large creek, which we had to cross. Uncle Seth said that we would have to swim our horses across, and that we would have to look out for alligators. We had not gone far in the water when we saw a large alligator coming toward us. Uncle Seth told us to keep still, and he would kill the alligator. He rode up to within a few feet of the alligator, and shot him in the head with his rifle. The alligator sank to the bottom, and we saw no more of him. We soon reached the other side of the creek, and went on our way. We had been on the road about an hour when we came to a large prairie, which we had to cross. We had not gone far when we saw a large herd of buffalo coming toward us. Uncle Seth said that we would have to look out for them, as they were very dangerous. We soon came up with the herd, and Uncle Seth rode up to within a few feet of a large bull, and shot him in the head with his rifle. The bull fell to the ground, and we all rode up to him. Uncle Seth said that we would have some fresh meat for supper

Early Days of Football

About 75 years ago a group of Cornell university students asked their famous president, Andrew Dickson White, if they might be excused from classes to journey from Ithaca, N. Y. to Cleveland, O., to play football against a team from the University of Michigan. After due deliberation, President White replied, "I will not permit 30 men to travel 400 miles merely to agitate a bag of wind."

Baked Apples With Honey

Wash and core the apples and arrange in baking dish. Lemon juice, honey and water may be added to the apples required. Top with one-fourth teaspoon butter. Add enough water to cover bottom of baking dish. Bake in moderate oven until apples are tender.

Hear a Pin Drop

The expression, "hear a pin drop," is derived from the method used in 17th century coffee houses, according to Kenner insurance historians. A pin was inserted an inch or so below the top of a lighted candle. The theory held that when the pin fell, scarred a ship or other goods for sale.

Salt and Boiling Water

Did you know that salt will raise the boiling point of water? The next time you are cooking in a double boiler, add one-half tsp. to the water-container section of the boiler. This lessens the time necessary to cook the food in the more economical manner.

New Dust Mop

A new aid in the kitchen is in a cotton cover using a mop frame for its bottom. The cover fits over the bottom of a broom to form a dusting mop for walls and ceilings. The fag-like cover can be moved into place very easily, or removed for washing.

DODGE THE SHADOWS—SEEK THE LIGHT

I used to fear I'd never know the sweet of sunny sailing, but be where keenest winds would blow and windiest waves went wailing. I used to think my troubles were more I had pitched me tent forever; that there I'd camp, with grief and moan, despite my best endeavor. But now I've found that man's a nut who takes of Jim and Jack and Jones, who gets into a dismal rut and blames it all on voodoo. Nay, if you want, with all your heart to dwell where sunshine's shining, try dodging shadows, learn the art of finding the silver lining. You may have cried, "Tis a joy when troubles like to light on, and till the coming of the day, I'll always have a fight on." You may have prated of your grief, your sorrow-woven lot, Hector, and thought a flock of musical things while in the careless state. But it's a pipin to it, I tell that. 'Tis the part of folly to live in daily misery when you might well be jolly, too, dodge the shadows as they come and seek the sunlight ever, though in all else your wits are dumb, this act will never, make you clever. I used to think we had to take our life as chance would give it, but happy as we dare to make, it's all in how we live it. You'll have your station in the sun, you'll get your share of gladness, for here's the way the trick is done. Dodge shadows, strife and sadness.

The Corner Drug Store can supply you with pure drugs, druggists' sundries, toilet articles, stationery, fountain drinks, etc. Physicians' prescriptions carefully and accurately compounded.

Homemaker's Eyes Turn to Style Show

The eyes of the Bandera Homemakers are turned these days toward the District FHA meeting and especially to the style show to be held in that connection in Junction on Saturday, March 18.

Bandera models in the style show will be Rose Jean Tuttle, Maxine Carolyn Price, Wilma Francis, Glen Kountz, Mary Fay and Betty Kothera. All are members of the homemaking courses in Bandera High School.

Bandera will be represented in the style show by the Homemaker chapter of the FHA. They were chosen by popular vote by the girls in the FHA.

Garments to be modeled are to be shown through the courtesy of local stores some of which are the Frontier Shop, Woody's Toggery, Jan Olmsted, and Modern Dress and Beauty Shop.

In addition to the girls who will take part from Bandera there will be a number of girls from the Medina chapter who will also take part in the banner of the district meeting which is to be presented through the combined efforts of the Bandera and Medina chapters of FHA.

About fourteen girls from the Bandera chapter will attend the function meeting. At that time new officers for the district will be elected. At this time we feel certain that there will be no officers to be elected from Bandera since to become a district officer a girl needs to have previous training as an officer in the local chapter before being elected to a district office, and also the girl should be below the rank of junior so that they will be able to serve in FHA work next year. Since this is the first year that Bandera has had Homemaking in several years, all girls are taking Homemaking I this year. The only girls in school who have had previous training in FHA are sophomore girls who are not taking homemaking this year and girls who will graduate this year and so are not eligible to office of the chapter.

The girls are looking forward to a very successful and also busy year in Bandera on Saturday, the 18th of March.

Sweetheart Jackets Are Awarded

On Monday, March 13, assembly was called for a most important reason. Presenting jackets to the sweethearts of F. F. A. and F. H. A. As previously announced they are Mary Lou Lynch, F. F. A. Sweetheart, and Willard D'Spain, F. H. A. Sweetheart. Bandera High School is so very proud to have two such grand sweethearts. We think they are tops. Oh, you know you read about this last week, but they really didn't get the jackets until Monday. There was a slight delay after the news went to the paper.

The program was held at 2 p. m. It was very short.

The F. H. A. girls had their part first followed by the F. F. A. boys part of the program.

Mrs. Casey read the purpose of teaching homemaking in High School. The F. H. A. project work was sung by the entire chapter. Treasurer Clark presented the purpose of homemaking. The F. H. A. Creed was in unison. The Lord's Prayer followed. Then the sweetheart jacket for the F. H. A. girl was presented to Mary Lou Lynch by the two new sweethearts, Wilma Francis and Glen Kountz. The F. F. A. sweetheart jacket was presented to Willard D'Spain by the two new sweethearts, Mary Lou Lynch and Wilma Francis.

Mary Lou and Willard then presented the jackets to their boy friends.

The program was very good and very well presented.

He was pretty peart I knowed on a short stretch, only he couldn't keep it up, and I punished him powerfully with the spurs, tell I got him to lift his feet like a reglar racing nag, and jest as he was 'bout to take it I got in the rear, and in a minute or so I was out'n sight of the Injuns. I then jumped on'n my pony, and tying him with the rope to a bush, (if not, my feet would go as fast as a boat generally travels in the water,) I commenced reconnoitering. My fust was that when I was in the country and needed my rifle ready to help myself, it and that it would be loaded. Now, I had been mighty keerless in this matter, and I'll be bound there they wouldn't have been much powder in the horn, when I come to look, but as luck would have made a dead Indian of it. The moccasin tracks were thick all 'round the chapparal, but there wasn't one nigher than fifty yards of that pony. The Injins thought I was lying chief by, and they was afeared to ventur' up.

"Well, you fooled 'Mr. John,' pretty badly that time, I tell Seth," said Willie, "but no more complete than Mr. Pitt did last winter on the Lavaca." "How was that?" said Uncle Seth. "I want to know all the facts as nigh connection'ther the red devils. For there is no fun to me when a fellow has a dead Indian on it.

Sen. LeBlanc Continues Rationing of Hadacol

The continued increasing demand for HADACOL, one of the finest general tonics ever given to the world by Senator Dudley J. LeBlanc, necessitates the rationing of HADACOL from six bottles to two bottles.

"I'm tired of the limit at two bottles to a customer only after hearing of every other alternative," said Senator LeBlanc. "The demand for HADACOL has increased 1,000 per cent in the past year, as more and more realize the benefits of its wonderful tonic action.

the spot we had selected for our camp, there was a huge flat rock covering from the bluff, under which we concluded we could take shelter if any chance of weather should render it necessary to do so. The little valley was covered with a rich growth of wild rye and sweet-pea vines, on which we noticed the bumble bees busily at work. Uncle Sudy, or Sudy Boy's Uncle Sudy, as he was usually called, had come a short distance in advance of us, and we expected that there would be a bear in it until a rain had driven him out, but we knew he is in the habit of leaving his den in the early spring and wandering about for a few days before settling down for the summer. Uncle Sudy, while Sudy Boy's Uncle Sudy, is also Sudy Boy's father. I believe I have told you all about these folks before, but I suppose you have forgotten, so I will say that Uncle Sudy is Mr. Wilson's brother-in-law, and that he has come to make a short visit with the family. I suppose you remember that there was a bear in it until quite a long time ago, but you know

A WISE MAN KNOWS WHEN TO QUIT TALKING

Mr. Christopher Cole was a friendly old soul, and his interest in folks was so hearty that he'd stop on the street half the people he'd meet and ask how he would at a party. Fellows got so they'd fear to see him driving near, for they knew there was no use to hoss him, for no matter how much were the speeches they'd pull they were certain to rouse and amuse him. He considered it duty to converse by the day on topics of politics or prayers, and with never a pause he'd talk hunting or taxes quite regardless of what he was saying. Speech certainly failed him, and a flock of folks shine when they're slinging the words here and ponder Mr. Webster, no doubt, knew what he was about, but the plain men are taking should ponder. They don't teach it in school, but there's one splendid rule that applies in the world, in the country, this is it. Talk all day if you've something to say, but if not, be as dumb as an oyster! It did Christopher Cole placed the silent man's role folks might think he was awfully clever, but he chatters so much that he's always "in Dutch," and his brains? No one thinks of them, ever. Far too often it appears we keep talking for years, giving voice to the rankest flapdoodle. Brown talks this, Smith talks that, tall folks long to be very "erudite" Nother one has a thought in his noodle. A good talker must know how long he may go and how much now can hear at one sitting; he should have right of way when there's something to say, but he should not forget about spotting.

eastern base of the sugar loaf hill in the lower end of the cut you?

We got back to camp just as Cudjo had dished up dinner, and as our walk of five or six miles, in any nothing of our scramble up and down "Sugar Loaf," had whetted our appetites, we seated ourselves around the platters, and did ample justice to his cookery. The dinner consisted of beef steaks, fried potatoes, and hot corn pones, the latter made from genuine Indian corn, which he had ground in a coffee mill, and baked in a skillet. After we had finished our repast, we lighted our pipes, and sat around the camp fire, discussing the events of the day, and the prospects for the future. The night was clear and beautiful, and the moon, which was in her first quarter, shed a soft mellow light over the scene. Our camp was pitched on the edge of a small prairie, which was dotted here and there with clumps of trees, and skirted on the opposite side by a dense forest of live oak, post oak, and hickory. Not a breath of air was stirring, and the only sounds that broke the stillness of the night were the distant howling of wolves, and the occasional hoot of an owl, which seemed to be perched in the tree directly over our heads. Cudjo, who was a great hunter and trapper, and had passed the greater part of his life in the woods, was full of anecdotes of his adventures with bears, panthers, wolves, and Indians, and as we had heard many of them before, we were glad when he proposed to tell us a story of a hunting adventure that he had had with a panther, which he said was the most singular one that he had ever met with in the course of his life. As we had never heard this story, we were all attention, and Cudjo, after filling his pipe and lighting it with a coal from the fire, began as follows:

"You all know dat I'se been a hunter all my life, and dat I'se killed a heap of varmints in my time, but dat I never had such a fight with any of dem as I had with a panther dat I killed on de Nueces, about ten years ago. I was den living on de Nueces, about twenty miles above Uvalde, and had a small farm on de river, where I raised corn enough to support my family, and a few cattle and hogs. I had a wife and two children, a boy and a girl, de boy about twelve years old, and de gal about eight. I had a good cabin, and a small field fenced in, and was getting along very well, when one day I went out to look after my cattle, and found that a great many years ago the Spaniards had worked silver mines in this country, but he did not know that any traces of them had ever been found unless the shaft we saw indicated the locality of one. "There am't no doubt at all," continued Cudjo, Seth, "that the Spaniards, who were terribly fellers for gittin' gold and silver, did work a great many mines in this section, and dat some of dem will yet be found, or I'm much mistaken. I'se been rich in de Mexican mines myself, and I know de signs when I sees 'em. I'se found a pot of money, too, and dat's more dan any of you white fellers can say, for I'se de only one of de party dat has ever struck it rich. Dat pot of money, however, was only a small one, and I'se been hoping ever since dat I would find a big one, but I'se never had de luck. Dat pot of money was found in de Mexican mines, and it was dat which started me off on my present hunting expedition. I had been married about two years, and had a little family growing up around me, when I found dat I was getting too poor to live, and dat I must do something to make more money. I had always been fond of hunting, and had killed a heap of game, and had trapped a good many furs, but I had never made much by it, for I had to sell my game and furs to the traders for what they would give me, and dey always managed to get de best of de bargain. I had heard a great deal about de game and furs dat were to be found on de Rio Grande, and I made up my mind dat I would go down dere and try my luck. I had a good horse and a mule, and I had a little money, which I had made by selling my crop, and I thought dat I could make enough more to support my family for a year or two, and dat I could den return home with enough to make me comfortable for de rest of my days. I had no trouble in getting my wife to consent to my plan, for she was always willing dat I should do what I thought best, and she promised to take care of de children and de farm while I was away. I had a good rifle, and plenty of ammunition, and I knew dat I could kill enough game to support me on de way down and back, and I had no fear about de result of my trip. I had a little trouble in getting my boy to consent to stay at home, for he wanted to go with me, and he was very much disappointed when I told him dat he must stay and help his mother. I promised him dat he should go with me de next time I went, and dat satisfied him. I had no trouble in getting my gal to consent to stay at home, for she was a little too young to go, and she knew it. I had a good deal of trouble in getting my wife to consent to my going, for she was afraid dat I would get into a fight with de Mexicans, and be killed, but I finally succeeded in convincing her dat I would be perfectly safe, and dat I would be back in a few months with enough money to make us all rich for de rest of our days. I had no trouble in getting my neighbors to look after my family and my property while I was away, for dey were all willing to do anything for me, and I knew dat I could depend on dem

Mrs. Kight Honored With Lovely Shower

Mrs. William F. Kight bride of last week, was honored with a lovely miscellaneous bridal shower at the home of Mrs. Hubert Hormiss last Monday evening. The rooms were beautifully decorated with pinch blossoms, carnations and snapdragons and the basket filled arrangements completed the decorations in the dining room. Hostesses were Mrs. Hormiss, Mrs. M. D. Cottingham, Mrs. Ted Hillman, Mrs. Jo Covey, Mrs. Otto Lowe, Miss Vivian Keese and Mrs. John Saul.

Mrs. Otto Lowe was in charge of games and Mrs. Ley Short won the "Hello" prize. Miss Oneda Fee was winner in the word game. Following these two delightful games a burlesque bridal shower wedding was presented with Mrs. Jo Covey acting as the minister. This very amusing skit was followed by the presentation of the gifts to Mrs. Kight.

Refreshments were served in the gaily decorated dining room. The table was laid with a lovely hand drawn cloth with an arrangement of pearly blossoms and carnations in a pink satin glass container, flanked on either end by tall tapers in crystal holders. Mrs. Hormiss served the cake and Mrs. John Saul served the punch from a crystal bowl. Those who registered were Mesdames William F. Kight, W. S. Kight, Jo Cover, Harvey Fishman, Erle Mansfield, O. O. BILL NEVER TURNED BACK

Bill was a homely boy: indeed, folks meeting him would think: "There goes a chap without much speed, a common kind of man." In truth he was. Bill was plain in any line; he isn't built mean size, his teeth will never shine." As Bill went plodding on his way, it seemed that folks were right; not even Bill's best friends could say he was extremely bright. Bill did a lot of homely things, flung spuds and milked the kine, but none of Bill's pigs were runts, and all his cows were fine. However hard the life he led, he uttered no complaint, for Bill had notions in his head which many thoughts were quaint. Whenever he had work to do, his methods were not slack, he always saw the whole job through and never once turned back. If Bill took the job to hoe and weed and went to do a chore, right there upon the job he stayed until the job was o'er. If Bill said: "I'll weed the beets," those weeds were due to go, for sure and Bill did shekelid feats when hoeing with his hoe. "He'll set no records on, first," Bill said, "A stupid guy," said Black, but Bill went doing straight ahead and never once turned back. It must be great when one can rise to lofty heights of fame, when one can capture any prize and win in any game. But there's much honor due the man who digs for all he gains, brave member of the plodding clan, whose aims are never vanes. Bill never took the world by storm, but slowly, day by day, he paid the mortworld by storm, but slowly, day by day, he paid the mortgage of brilliant traits that some like Bills lack, but they go no fancy suits, they never once turn back.

BILL NEVER TURNED BACK

Bill was a homely boy indeed, folks meeting him would think: "There goes a chap without much appeal, a contrast kind of guide." But Bill will rise to heights in any line, he isn't built to one size, his steels will never shrink." As Bill went plodding on his way, it seemed that folks were right, not even Bill's best friends could say he was extremely bright. Bill did a lot of homely things, Boyd spoils and talked the kine, but none of Bill's pigs were runts, and all his cows were fine. However hard the life he led, he uttered no complaint, for Bill had notions in his head which many thought were quaint. Whenever he had work to do, his methods were not slack; he always saw the whole job through and never once turned back. If Bill took his hoe and plodded and went to do a chore, right there upon the job he stayed until the job was o'er. If Bill said: "I'll work the heels," those words were due to me, for slow and fill did splendid feats when toying with his hoe. "He'll set no stakes on me, first," White said. "A stupid guy," said Black; but Bill kept going straight ahead and never once turned back. It must be great when one can rise to lofty heights of fame, when one can capture any prize and win in any game. But there's much honor due the man who digs for all he gains, brave slender of the plodding clan whose ardor never wanes. Bill never took the world by storm, but slowly, day by day, he paid the merchant world by storm, but slowly, day by day, he paid the merchant of brilliant traits that bore like filthy luck, but they go no fancy gaits, they never once turn back.

Commencement exercises for the Bandera High School graduating class will be held on the night of May 1st, with Rev. Thomas, pastor of the Methodist church, delivering the address. Miss Gladys Fairchild, Miss Mae Mansfield, Frank Hudee, Miss Mary Lee Hunter and Miss Isabel Coe Kneupper will be graduated from the high school this year.

Wool passed up this week and is now being put on the ranch. We forget to tell Mr. Harwood and his excellent wife their son Wilford, and they are fine people, but we wish them success in their new home, and hope in the course of time they will return to visit Bandera.

Mr. and Mrs. Orange Clark spent several days with friends and relatives in San Antonio last week.

W. F. Rigsby and children returned Monday from a visit to Lake Shert last week end.

36,000 Telephone People Will Get Raises This Year

Under existing contracts, which the company has offered to continue, 36,000, or three out of every four telephone people, will get raises this year. Averaged over all employees, these raises will amount to $2 a week per employee.

Unlike most industries where an employee must wait for a vacancy to get a higher-paid job, telephone people receive regular, scheduled raises from the day they start until they reach the top rate for their jobs.

Basic wage rate increases have more than kept pace with increased costs of living. Since January, 1941, telephone wages have gone up 94 per cent, while the cost of living has increased only 66 per cent in the same period.

The company's Benefit and Pension Plan, long recognized as one of the best, was improved in November to provide for at least $100 a month, including social security, at age 65 after 20 years' service. Actually many employees will get substantially more.

The Plan also includes liberal sickness benefits—up to a year's full pay depending on length of service—plus disability, accident, and death benefits of as much as a year's pay. The plan doesn't cost employees a dime.

Telephone people enjoy one to three weeks' paid vacation. Also, they get seven holidays a year with pay.

Chapter XV

Continuing our route southward through the valley, which was now very populous, and apparently the garden spot of the world, we traveled on until about sunset, when we halted at the house of Mr. Seth Smith, who had settled on the banks of the Navidad, and had built a little grist mill, which he had just put in operation. Here we stopped the night. Our host was a clever, hospitable man, and soon ascertained from us that we were from Texas, and were traveling leisurely to the United States. He then informed us that he had settled here only a few years before, and had been induced to do so by the representations of Stephen F. Austin, who had visited this country in the year 1821, and had induced many families to settle here. He had found it a very fine country, and had no reason to regret the change he had made. He had been very successful in his farming operations, and had raised a large crop of corn, which he had ground into meal at his mill, and had also a large stock of cattle, hogs, and horses. He had suffered but little from the Indians, and had not lost a single animal by them. He had been obliged to keep a strong force of men about his premises, and to be constantly on the alert, but had succeeded in keeping them off. He had a large family of children, and a number of negroes, and altogether was in very comfortable circumstances. He was very much pleased to see us, and treated us with the greatest hospitality. We remained with him all night, and the next morning, after breakfast, we resumed our journey. We traveled on for several days, passing through a very fine country, and crossing a number of streams, which were all bridged, and had a good ford by the side of the bridge. We passed through the town of Matagorda, which was situated on the bay of the same name, and which was a place of considerable importance, as it was the principal port of entry for the whole country. We did not stop in the town, but passed on to the house of Mr. Phelps, which was situated on the bank of the river, about two miles above the town. Here we found a very large establishment, and were received with the greatest hospitality by Mr. Phelps and his family. We remained with him for several days, and were entertained in the most agreeable manner. Mr. Phelps was a wealthy planter, and had a large number of negroes, and a very fine plantation. He had a large sugar mill on the premises, and was engaged in the manufacture of sugar. He had a large crop of corn growing, and was also engaged in raising cotton. He had a large number of cattle, hogs, and horses, and was altogether in very comfortable circumstances. He was very much pleased to see us, and treated us with the greatest hospitality. I don't care if I do founder," said Willie. "I've got a reputation to save. Founder that never fails—have heard it on a dozen horses."

After an early breakfast the next morning, we mounted our horses and bid the convoy by for pass through which we had entered it. When we had left the outpost a few paces, we turned to take a last look at the beautiful valley. The sight afforded us great excitement to the view," said Mr. Seth, who had come out with us to see us on our way, and stood on the top of the high bank, waving off his long hat. "Why, I have been here for years, and I have never seen an object that I admired more than I do that valley. Look at the luxuriant herbage in the foreground, and the rich forest beyond, and the fine prairies and romantic scenery in the distance. It is the finest resort for the lovers of picturesque and romantic scenery in the world. Why, I have been acquainted with the country for years, and I have never seen a spot

Bill was a homely boy indeed, folks meeting him would think: "There goes a right homely fellow, mean spered, a consistent kind of gink. It isn't likely he will rise to heights in any line; he isn't built for that size. His deeds will never shine." As Bill went plodding on his way, it seemed that folks were right, not even Bill's best friends could say he was extremely bright. Bill did a lot of homely stunts, hoed spuds and milked the kine, but none of Bill's pigs ever won ruins, and all his cows were fine. However hard the life he led, he uttered no complaint, for Bill had notions of his own and many thoughts were quaint. Whenever he had work to do, his methods were not slack; he always saw the whole job through and never knew turned back. If Bill said: "I'll send the boats," those words were due to go, for show sid Bill did splendid feats when toiling with his hoe. "He'll not renounce on me," White said. "A stupid guy," said Black, but Bill kept going straight ahead and never once turned back. It must be great when one can rise to lofty heights of fame, when one can capture any game and win in any game. But there's much honor due the man who digs for all he gains, brave member of the plodding clan whose order never wanes. Bill never took the world by storm, but slowly, day by day, he paid the mortgage off the farm and chased the wolf away. There are a host of brilliant traits that boys like Bills lack, but they go no fancy gaits, they never once turn back.

(A Continuation of "Early Times in Texas")

As soon as we were ourselves, Jack and I began to ask questions. We had hardly been conscious of the passage of time, but it must have been several hours since the Indians had attacked the wagon train. We had been unconscious for most of that time, and we were both very hungry. Jack's father explained that the Indians had left after they had looted the wagons and set them afire. Before we could do anything, we had to bury the dead. Jack's father and the other men dug graves for their wives and children, and they were soon finished. Then they turned to us. Jack's father explained that we would have to go with them to Austin, as there was no way we could travel back to Bandera. We would be welcome to stay with them until we could find a way to get back home. Jack's father also told us that he had been a ranger himself, and that he would be glad to help us find our families. We thanked him and the other men for their kindness, and we began to make plans for the journey to Austin.

The next few days were filled with activity. We had to repair the wagons that had been damaged in the attack, and we had to gather food and supplies for the journey. The men hunted game along the way, and we boys helped by gathering wood and water. We also had to keep a lookout for more Indians, as we were still in their territory. We saw a few small groups of Indians, but they did not bother us. We were glad when we finally reached Austin. The city was much larger than I had expected, and it was full of people and activity. We were welcomed by the governor, who had heard of our plight and had sent soldiers to help us. He also promised to help us find our families.

We stayed in Austin for several weeks, while the governor's men searched for our families. We were overjoyed when they found them all safe and sound. They had been taken to a nearby Indian village, but they had been treated well and had not been harmed. We were reunited with our families, and we all returned to Bandera together. It was a long journey, but we were glad to be home. We had been through a lot, but we had also learned a lot about ourselves and about the world around us. We knew that we would never forget our adventure.

DELIANE SHEEP

With better demand for fine wool, Deliane breeding sheep are getting their share of attention. Trend toward better quality is manifesting. This preference is being studied by the interest shown in the selection and selection demonstrations held in this county recently. Growers everywhere are looking for Deliane rams—and they want them to be big and smooth. The type of rams they like is the type of ewes they like.

The selection work is was advised by Mr. Richard Hervey, Deliane breeder in the county. But there are some who want to breed Deliane sheep that are not so smooth. We still think that the Deliane should be bred on the best that can be had, and that the best ram for fairly market lambs. We took time the other day to look over a flock of registered Deliane that William Hervey has on his farm near Hot Lake. The flock is made up of the old Wittenberg flock and some good rams have been added. They are smooth and have plenty of body. Mr. Hervey has been feeding some of the yearling rams from Mr. Hervey's flock and they look good.

We have another registered Deliane breeder in the county, Bud Evans, who purchased one of Mr. Hervey's rams. Mr. Evans has a registered flock of Deliane and is also interested in the selection of good rams. He has been feeding some of the yearling rams from Mr. Hervey's flock and they look good.

GREENBUGS IN THE OATS

We have all learned a lot about greenbugs in oat patches this year. Now that the greenbugs have hastened all of their damage and stop, we know more about the little devils.

One thing that has been noticed is that there has been no natural control of greenbugs from their parasite enemies. They just have not been controlled by the other bugs as they should have been. Another thing that has been noticed by many growers is that oats that have been pretty heavily fertilized have not been bothered by bugs. Why this is true, no one seems to know, other than the fertilized oats seem to outgrow the greenbugs.

At the Commercial ranch, a few acres patch of oats was sprayed for control of the bugs with fetrachlorophosphate, better known as TEPP, at the rate of one pint per acre. About a 75 per cent kill was obtained, which is about the same as expected from experiment with the same chemical. Ordinarily this much kill of the bugs would allow the ladybeetles and other parasitic insect to kill out the rest of the greenbugs. Well see A good four-inch rain would help.

The oat patch was also sprayed with 2-4D to kill out the weeds and thistles. Well wait a few days to report on this.

4H CLUB WORK

Club members are figuring way ahead on next year's shows. They are busy getting calves on feed and it now looks like there will be about the same number of calves as there were this year. Jimmie and Alfred Kidder have a Shorthorn and Angus on feed, Billy Long has the Shorthorn from Thomas Bauserfeld at Medina Harris and Lewis Eric Moseley have two calves on feed and so has Barbara Whitehead. Ed Hicks and Bob Wood have a heifer calf and Bob Wood has a low calf in the pen. Harold Clayton has two registered Hereford calves and one from the Kennedy ranch at Pleasanton. I will be a pen there from now on, which can be counted on to be well fed. It was added to this club after the others had started and they have been feeding a week ahead of the others. A record should be kept of the feed consumed by each calf and the gain made. Also a record of the cost of the feed. It will be a good thing to keep a record of the cost of the feed. It will be a good thing to keep a record of the cost of the feed. It will be a good thing to keep a record of the cost of the feed. It will be a good thing to keep a record of the cost of the feed.

MOMENTUM DOES THE TRICK

Jim Johnson owned a motor car of cheap unrated breed, yet daily Jimmy traveled far, and always at imposed speed. It was not that an old tin can, though it was in its prime, but never failed to lead the van and make all trains on time. No highbred damsel would have cared to journey to Jim's side, nor would that brainy boy have dared to offer one a ride. Yet on the hills where others stuck and stared to wail and cry, Jim heard them as they ran assist while he went speeding by. Folks often asked him, "Jimmy, how can you maintain your pace, and with that ancient creaking crate be leader in the race?" Then Jim would smile on the gas, oft Jimmy, tell us why you always can so easily pass, stay traveling in high?" "High-powered cars," young Jimmy said, "have been the rage for years, and yet a chap must use his head, whatever wheel he steers. When in the offing I espy a hill that must be made, I drive my little tub in high, so I can take the grade. When some get stuck and there remain, I take that hill with zing, because I've learned to use my brain. momentum works for me!" Not only for the chaps who drive in Jimmy's system fine, momentum helps folks to arrive in almost any line. Momentum gained by keeping on, by sticking to one's place, by sitting tight though hope seems gone, that wins in every race. The boss who lets the grasses grow beneath his lagard step, momentum aid can never know, nor feel its bountiful pep. Remember, in a motor car or in a business deal, momentum's path will take you far, so store it up with zeal.

Chipman-Rugh Wedding Solemnized at the Methodist Church on Wednesday Evening

Mrs. Bertha Louise Rugh and a fitted bodice parted sleeves and [illegible] Hamilton Chipman were [illegible] Methodist Church on Wednesday evening, April 19, at 8 o'clock with the Rev. Ernest B. Dexter officiating. The double ring ceremony was performed before an altar decorated with [illegible] and greenery.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Chipman of Bandera. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Bertha Louise Rugh and the late Mr. Rugh of Bandera.

Preceding the ceremony Miss [illegible] sang "I Love You Truly" and "The Lord's Prayer." At the close of the service the choir sang the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin."

The bride entered with her father, Boyd Huffmeyer Rugh, who gave her in marriage. She was lovely in a floor length gown of white satin fashioned with a fitted bodice, parted sleeves and [illegible] neckline. Her only jewelry was a pearl necklace, a gift of the groom, and pearls which were worn by her mother on her wedding day.

The bride's bouquet was a shower of white orchids and stephanotis.

Leaving the sanctuary when the ceremony was concluded, the bridal party proceeded to the church parlors, where a reception was held for the members of the wedding party and relatives.

At the first door, the guests were received by Mrs. Edward F. Frankstone of San Antonio and Mrs. George Howland of Bandera. The newlyweds and members of the wedding party were received at the second door, facing the decorated bridal table. Receiving in the gift room were Mrs. Ashley Rugh of Bandera, Mrs. Charlie Rugh of Utopia, aunts of the bride. Mrs. John Steven Langston of Eagle Pass, Colorado, and Mrs. Bill Ragsdale of Houston.

The cake was served by Mrs. R. L. Martin of Bandera, aunt of the bride; Mrs. A. S. Welch of San Antonio, aunt of the groom; Miss Bonnie Maxwell of Austin; and Mrs. Virgil Maxwell of Houston, cousin of the bride. The punch was served by Mrs. Bernie Hugh Bills of Houston, and Mrs. Odell O. Brigman of San Antonio.

The bridesmaids entered single-file, preceded by the maid of honor, Mrs. Jake C. Webb of San Antonio. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Richard W. Boone of Waco, Miss Dorothy Gleason of Houston, Miss Katy Martin of Bandera, and Mrs. John Love of Houston.

All were gowns of pink tulle shades with shirred bodices and [illegible] peplums over full skirts. The honor attendant and bridesmaids wore pink lace veils and carried bouquets of pink catalia orchids.

Linda Gail Drain, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James C. Drain of San Antonio, was the flower girl. She wore pink tulle, with headdress to match and carried a basket of rose petals.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mrs. Stella Mobley Hubbard of Bandera, attended the University of Texas, where she was an active member of Delta Zeta Sorority.

She entered the church with her father, Boyd Huffmeyer Rugh. She wore a blush pink gown of French Chantilly lace over imported net. The bouffant skirt was floor length, accentuated by

TWO TEXAS TOTS COP SHOW IN EASTER PARADE

Mrs. Christabel Walker sends in the following story taken from the Los Angeles, California Times in regard to her daughter being awarded first place in the Easter Parade as the best dressed girl the second time in two years:

Actress June Hover helped the judges choose the best-dressed children. She looked pretty good herself. Over her lovely blond hair she was wearing a hat and she intermittently fed her sparrow and blue eyes behind some pink glasses. She wore a dress, blue perhaps and that, unfortunately for us, made the rosebuds look like another drink of water. And pale.

In the children The Shenandoah Walker, 17849 Silver Lake Blvd., a 7-year-old brother Lad Walker, 4, daughter of Mrs. Christabel Walker, 17849 Silver Lake Blvd., was awarded a first prize for the best dressed girl in the parade. Shirley Glenn Walker, 7, was awarded a second prize for the prettiest baby in the parade. Shirley Glenn Walker is the granddaughter of Mrs. Christabel Walker, 17849 Silver Lake Blvd.

Shirley Glenn was dressed in a lovely white lace dress, white shoes and socks and a white bonnet. Her little baby was dressed similarly. Last Walker, 4, daughter of Mrs. Christabel Walker, 17849 Silver Lake Blvd., was awarded a first prize for the best dressed girl in the parade. Shirley Glenn Walker, 7, was awarded a second prize for the prettiest baby in the parade. Shirley Glenn Walker is the granddaughter of Mrs. Christabel Walker, 17849 Silver Lake Blvd.

"Why," he said, "I thought you two would never get up. I've been awake for hours."

Willie continued: Cody, don't you ever sleep? Well, anyway, Dee and I got to serve breakfast in bed, so you'll want to kill a pullet, or two or three, and cook a whole bufferlo for us."

A shower of pebbles from Cody's slingshot answered Willie's request.

Cody continued: "Come on, you two, get up. We've got to get started. We don't want to kill a pullet, but we do want to kill a whole bufferlo for breakfast, and we're going to get one."

A quick and copious flood of water from the canteens of Willie and Dee answered Cody's challenge.

WHEN SPRINGTIME CALLS YOU

When the fleecy clouds are sailing in a sky of tender blue, scent of cherry blossoms waft in through halls that once I knew, seems there's something new and tender in the springtime's call of quiet spots, dreaming homes, nodding flowers, daffodils, distant solitude. In the wind I hear a whispee telling tales of quiet spots, dreaming homes, nodding flowers, daffodils, forget-me-nots. Like an old song one keeps humming, comes the wind's voice, low and sweet to the ear comes the dirty, laughing down the grimy street. It is saying: "Listen, brother, here is news to charm your ear: Spring discloses budding roses—dew and sun are working overtime. And in the smiling meadow, down within a leafy nook, swiftly flowing, seaward going, runs the life a laughing brook." Then the wind goes, passing fleetly, but alert a swallow calls, and his ringing notes are bringing messages of hidden wales. "Come again," he sings, "to visit fields where sun and shadow play; breezes straying, cypress swaying, wild birds singing all the day." Next a hum against my window from a vagrant honey bee, splendid fellow, black and yellow, with a greeting all for me: "Far I've come from fields of fragrance through the sunlit air to you; I'm a rover from the rover, I'm a bundle of the blue. Don't you hear the grasses growing and the pulse of waking things? Some fresh flower every hour, don't you feel the stir of wings?" So they call, the springtime voices: urge of wind and honey bee. I must follow where the swallow and the Medina's calling me.

Will Progress Be Halted?

On October May 16 an election will be held to determine whether or not the county shall issue the necessary bonds to be voted upon only for the purpose of $150,000 in bonds, to mature serially over a period of not more than thirty years from their date, and bearing a rate not to exceed 3½ per cent for the purpose of constructing a county sewerage system in the Bandera County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1, which is coterminous with the boundaries of the City of Bandera, Texas.

Necessary for the Bulletin again to remind the property owners here of the necessity for an early sewer system. Not only would it be a great help to the health of the citizens of Bandera, but it would also be a great help to the growth of the town. Without a sewer system, it is impossible for any industry to locate here. Without industry, the population of the country remains the same, or grows less. From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

His Punch is His Signature

Was on the train up to Central City the other day and when the conductor came around, I asked him why their ticket punches make such odd-shaped holes in the ticket.

"Every conductor in the country has a different design for his punch," he tells me. "Some even show up a fellow's preference. Now take mine. The hole it makes looks like a beer-goblet."

Sure enough! Then he went on to say that the punch is just like the conductor's signature. Makes it easy to trace tickets ... to check up if something happens.

From where I sit, even though your ticket is punched differently from mine, it will get you where you're going. Just like people with their opinions. You might like coffee, another person, tea—and I'll settle for a temperate glass of beer. But what does it matter, so long as we respect the right of the other to have tastes and opinions? We're all trying to go in the same direction — towards a friendlier, more pleasant world for all of us.

The Young Explorers

BY JOHN C. DUVAL

After we had packed the beds and stacked the horses, Lawrence and I took our guns and strolled up the canyon to see what the country looked like. We had no four of Seattle Indians at our heels, but were always on the lookout for game. We had not gone very far when there was a shot from the direction of the camp. We turned and ran back as fast as we could go. When we got there we found Uncle Seth standing over a big buck deer that had just fallen in his tracks. He had shot it through the head as it was coming down the trail to the creek. Uncle Seth was very much pleased with himself, and he had a right to be, for it was a fine shot. He had killed the deer at a distance of about two hundred yards. Uncle Seth was a good shot with a rifle, and he was very proud of it. He had a right to be, for it was a fine gun. It was a Winchester repeating rifle, and it could shoot as fast as a man could pull the trigger. Uncle Seth had killed a deer with it before

Mason Creek H. D. Club News

The members of the Mason Creek Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Mrs. Chas. Sloan on Thursday April 28, at 2 P. M. The meeting was called to order and everyone answered by naming a parent in order which they lived in their home. The secretary read the minutes of the last meeting after which Mrs. Ray Kuther gave a report of the recent beautiful flower show at the Woman's Club in San Antonio. After which business meeting Mrs. Wynn Herring gave a lesson on "Flowers and Their Arrangement" which took place at the home of Mrs. E. A. Johnson. Visitors present were Mrs. E. E. Wyatt, Mrs. Lois Shipstrine, and Mrs. Carson. Delicious refreshments of tea, cookies, cheese fabulettes, pickles, potato chips, cake, and coffee were served—Mrs. E. A. Johnson, reporter.

REGARDING AN REA LOAN TO MEDINA RURAL TELEPHONE COMPANY, INC.

It is the desire of the Board of Directors of the Medina Rural Telephone Company, Inc., that the Stockholders and Members be informed as to the present status of the application for a loan from the Rural Electrification Administration.

The Board of Directors did not proceed as authorized by the Shareholders at the time of incorporation for the following reasons:

It is now right to attempt to install an elaborate system at a cost of $35.00 per member, plus rate charge approximately five times as high as before the incorporation, when such course will inevitably result in depriving a considerable number of Shareholders of all telephone service?

Fear of this very thing was the reason I did not vote to try for the REA loan.

Sincerely yours,
CARL F. WHEELER

MEDINA FIRST GARDEN SHOW HUGE SUCCESS

Mrs. Guy Stroup, past president of the Rose Garden Club, and Mrs. Paul Garrison and Mrs. Tex Andrews had the delightful duty of entertaining the Judges who were Mrs. L. L. Mrs. Wylie Dallas was chairman of the recent beautiful flower show at the Woman's Club in San Antonio and whose every touch this show was one of real enthusiasm and interests in the recent Garden Pilgrimage of San Antonio with which they were so closely identified. The Young Explorers

BY JOHN C. DUVAL

The boss dances the way I show the factory dance, etc. In the latter which I suppose they would dance at the Indian social, I'm afraid I'm not much help. I've seen it done, but I don't know the steps. I would be embarrassed to try it myself. My impression is that it is a kind of courtship dance, with the girl doing the pursuing, even when highly encouraged. Anyway, after Cadjo got us all his fancy touches such as the silent war hoop, which sounded more like many a silent movie Indian than a real one, he finished with a demonstration of how the Indians used to sneak up on their enemies, and of how they had fully developed the present Sit Now Stand Later method. Finally, he gave us the permission himself had had to make the entire tribe dance for him, and he and Jeffers left us to dance and went to the trading post to see what they could find in the way of trade goods.

astonished at this "finale" of Cadjo's national dance, but even I finally I think they came to the conclusion that his sudden exit was merely the unusual wrestling up. I am rather inclined to believe, however, that Big Trunk (who was a pretty strong fellow) had some suspicions of the true state of the case, for I heard him say to Mr. Pitt when Cadjo abandoned the field that Cadjo "ain't got no more good night, and re-turned to our own camp. We found Cadjo curled up in his blanket and fast asleep before the fire. Taffy and Big Trunk left shortly when we told him of Cadjo's performances, but Cadjo remained in his sudden retreat from the field. "Kinapsy," said Cadjo, as he opened his eyes to the unconcerned Cadjo. "Kinapsy always put me in mind of a good night's sleep. Kinapsy always put me in mind of a good night's sleep. It's to break their hearts, and I'm going to do it. I'm going to do it. I'm going to do it.

THE QUESTION WAS NOT WHAT SHE EXPECTED

A Bandera woman, who has for some time been receiving the newest selections of a local florist, recently received the following:

"Dear sweetheart—Sitting in my office during lunch hour, and thinking of you, as I usually do, I thought I would drop you a line. I know the time has come when I should tell you how much I love you, but I am perfectly helpless and perplexing mass of anxiety. It is a subject that I have never discussed with you, or anybody else, and I am sure you will understand my position. I am not a bashful boy, and yet I never know the words. Please put me out of my misery and tell me whether you love me or not. I implore you not to keep me in suspense, and on my distress I appeal to you. If you cannot love me, please tell me so, for in such an important matter, but I feel that you can understand. I am sick at present, I know, but I beg of you to lay aside everything for a few moments and consider the question which I am about to ask, but I don't want you to the point. Do you think it is time to take off winter underwear?

Yours,
JIM"

How to Park

A survey of high school driving instructors by the Chevrolet Motor Division discloses parking as the hardest maneuver for students to master. The above photo-diagram illustrates correct procedure. First, stop close and approximately even with the car ahead. Next, cut your wheels sharply right, and back up until your front right bumper just clears the rear left bumper of the car ahead. Then, cut your wheels sharply left, backing slowly until alongside of curb.

The Young Explorers

We arrived at camp a little after sunset, completely drained and spent with our journey of twenty miles. A cold supper consisting of a smoked meat would not have satisfied Uncle Sebe's appetite, but he ate it without a word, and was soon sleeping as peacefully as a child. He did not even awaken when we ...

The canyon grew more and more narrow and fortress-like, and our trail more obstructed by rocks and debris from the cliffs. F. H. A. News

The Bandera Chapter of Future Homemakers of America held a Mother-Daughter Banquet on Tuesday, May 9. This public occasion was an event which the F. H. A. girls had looked forward to all year. It was enjoyed by all who attended. The girls feel it a great privilege to be able to invite their mothers out for an evening of fun with some of the show-de-peek appreciation for all they have done for us. We wish to extend our thanks to all who helped prepare the delicious meal. Also keeping with the FHA motto, "Future Red Rose," the flowers were used in decoration for the tables and center.

The theme "Flower Garden," which blended the girls to flowers and the Keepers of the garden, was effectively carried out. Chapter work exemplified by the FHA girls.

This occasion had been looked forward to with much enthusiasm. A special guest was Mr. Bob Hayes.

FHA girls are looking forward to the Chapter Picnic at Medina Lake on May 20. A full day of fun is planned. Everyone is invited to attend. A covered dish lunch will be served at noon.

ALL PRAISE TO OUR BANDERA FIRE DEPARTMENT

No matter how cold the weather, or what hour of the night, when the fire siren screams its dreaded voice the Bandera Volunteer Fire Department jerks instantly into activity and responds without a moment's delay, it seems, to the call to fight the fire. The fire boss, all volunteers, are well trained and know exactly what to do. They are not paid for this service, but willingly and efficiently perform their duty. Since the organization of the local fire department there has not been a total fire in this town, although there have been times when there would have been great destruction of property if they had not been right on the job. If you are a property owner in Bandera you should donate liberally to this fire department to keep it supplied with the necessary fire-fighting equipment, and in every way you can show the fire boys that you appreciate the good work they are doing.

The Corner Drug Store can supply you with pure drugs, druggists' sundries, toilet articles, stationery, fountain drinks, etc. Physicians' prescriptions carefully and accurately compounded.

The Young Explorers

Before sunrise the next morning we were rounded up off again on the trail. Several times during the day we saw signal smoke rise up in the distance, and once when at a trail intersected the one we were traveling we observed that it had been recently traveled by a considerable number of unshod horses and mules. We pushed on rapidly to the southeast, and about three o'clock in the afternoon we struck a well-defined road. "Reckoned from the number of tracks, it's a small valley if it might be," said Uncle Seth, "but it might be within striking distance of the Comanche village. Anyhow, we'll follow this road and see what we can find out."

Uncle Seth, "and I'll step over and larn the news." In a little while Uncle Seth came back and told us Big Drunk's spies had reported that they had seen from the top of a high ridge a large Comanche camp in a fertile valley similar to the one in which we were, and from the size and bustle of the camp they were satisfied the Comanches were preparing to leave it. The spies believed they were getting ready to attack us that night or early the next morning. "And," added Uncle Seth, "that's my notion too, and the sooner we fix for 'em, the better. They seem much too happy and free. We couldn't have a safer place for camp than we had the first night in the whole country. We've got the water hole on three sides, and the other is protected by a strip of thorny chaparral bushes. There were six or three small open places in this chaparral by which the little prairie where we were encamped could be entered, and those, with the exception of the largest, we filled up completely with thorny bushes and shrubs which we cut down with our sharp knives and tomahawks. That's all right," said Uncle Seth, when we had completed the work to his satisfaction "and if the Comanches get through that chaparral they won't have much in the way of breeches, or ruth to set on 'em when they do get through. Besides," he added, "though they can't get at us on the sides or the water hole, they kin jump on us from the rear, and if we must be surprised I'd rather be surprised from the bushes and arrow than from the open prairie. I'm afraid of those fellers rather more, and I'm afraid of their guns rather less, than I am of the Comanches. Besides, I'm afraid that if we don't attack them they'll attack us, and I'm willin' to do the fightin' myself. I'm willin' to do the fightin' myself. I'm willin' to do the fightin' myself.

BANDERA
BANDERA'S FIRST INDUSTRY WAS MAKING SHINGLES

The first industry which brought forth the town of Bandera was the making of shingles. The cypress timber which grows along our water courses. In 1852 a half dozen families, encamped in tents along the Medina river were engaged in making shingles. The giant cypress trees were felled, then sawed into blocks, the blocks quartered, and boasted a half inch thick. Then with water power these quartered blocks, then the board was placed in the vice on a "shaving horse" and with a drawing knife were shaved to the proper thickness. For many years shingle-making was quite an industry here. A saw mill, operated by horse power, was put in and the making of cypress lumber was begun. Hundreds of thousands of feet of lumber were turned out and used in the building of many frontier forts, at Fort McKavett, Fort Concho, Fort Chadbourne, and other military installations. It cannot be computed just how many thousands of shingles were shipped out of Bandera. In 1855 Lyman Wight's colony of Mormons delivered 100,000 shingles on one order, and a few weeks later delivered another 500 to 1,000 hand-made shingles a day. The average wage he received for his labor was fifty cents per day.

GOOD ADVERTISING

Bandera is getting a lot of good advertising these days through magazine articles, over the radio and television, and through the prospect of a reunion here and there keeps the name of Bandera before the public. The popular song and musical hit, "The Bandera Waltz," often heard on the radio and in the juke box selection, has gained much fame, and only last week this "plug" was given Bandera in the advertisement of the First National Bank in San Antonio. There is a question as to whether Bandera county was named after a General Bandera or because, in an Indian battle there, the Spanish carried a flag, bandera in Spanish. Situated in the beauty hill country, Bandera is a dude ranch and tourist center. Pecan production is heavy. Livestock and various crops complete the agricultural picture. In the county seat, also Bandera, established in the 1850s, is an interesting 'Old West' museum with more than 15,000 items."

BANDERA COUNTY LIVESTOCK ASSOCIATION FORMED FOR BETTER RANCHING INDUSTRY

For the betterment of livestock in the county the Bandera County Livestock Association has been organized and plans are being completed. The primary aim of the organization is to help the agricultural industry in every way possible and the welfare of the backbone of the county. During the past years fabulous fortunes have been made in the livestock industry and the present prosperity of the county is largely due to the livestock industry. Many ranchers have made their fortunes in livestock and have been leaders in the industry. Some of the greatest bulls and horses in the state have been owned by Bandera county ranchers. Some of the greatest bulls and horses in the state today are

The Bandera Bulletin

BANDERA SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

The regular monthly meeting of the Bandera Soil Conservation Supervisors was held on May 31. At this meeting, Lee Mansfield, winner in the recent Tarpley election, took the oath of office. Lee replaces Russell Koontz as supervisor for sub-division 2. Russell became ineligible for this office when he sold his ranch, and submitted his resignation. Mr. Koontz took a very active interest in the affairs of this District during his term of office, and we will miss him. Allie C. Allsup, of sub-division 4 was elected secretary. Further business included the payment of bills, approval of five agreements, D. W. Hicks, 1000 acres, W. S. Kiehl, 320 acres, A. W. Nichols, 508 acres, Lee Mansfield, 407 acres, E. F. (Cap) Reed, 424 acres; and the approval of 15 applications for assistance totalling 8,765 acres.

The recent showers have been very beneficial to the better pastures. There has been practically no run-off and the better grasses are vigorous indicating green grazing well into the summer. The poor pastures are still poor, and offer very little in the way of green grazing through the hot, dry months.

John Saul, of the Privilege Creek Conservation Group reports a good stand of Sideoats grama from a trial planting made the last week of April. Jack Focke also of the Privilege Creek group seems proud of his weed clip he says that it graded higher than any he's had in a long time. Oddly it was made out of these old "Sing Grasses" that some folks don't like. Jack has been seeding a 7-acre pasture since March. He has lots of grass with more of the better grazers showing up daily.

Willie Schmidt of the "S" Connection group reports a good stand of Slender grama and a thick Kleberg bluestem. Mrs. Ella Andrews of the Kings Creek Group reports good growth of the grasses. Her yield of 6 lb. per plot is considered very good.

"GARDEN CONVERSATION Summer Care for Your House Plants

You can give many kinds of house plants a lift by putting them outdoors for the summer, shade loving house plants such as African violets and ivies in their containers may be planted outside if they are in a protected place where there is no direct sunlight. Put sun loving plants like coleus and geraniums in a sunny border. Begonias do best in shade or partial shade.

Leave house plants in their containers if you want to bring them inside next winter. Plunge pot and all in the border so you can lift the plants quickly in the summer without disturbing the roots. Before setting pots of plants check the roots. If roots have crowded brown, dry and seem to a little harder pot. Prepare plants that are for the next size pot. Be sure to take precautions and keep house plants out of drafts. Water thoroughly when you water house plants. Don't water a little bit every day. Water deeply and then let the soil dry out before watering again. Feed plants every two weeks with liquid plant food. Don't feed plants that are sick or resting. Wash the leaves of plants occasionally with a soft cloth or sponge. Turn plants frequently so they will grow evenly. Remember that plants need light, air, water and food to grow. Don't forget to give them all of these things.

Transplant your iris now. Pinch back chrysanthemums as soon as they are eight inches high; feed and water regularly to insure the beauty you want in the fall.

Start watering your azaleas with a fine water sink from a soaker hose, and soak roots once a week with water to carry them through the summer.—Mrs. Al Plummer.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wyatt had as their guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Watson and son, Donald, and Mr. Williams and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Watson of San Antonio.

Announcing STUDEBAKER AUTOMATIC DRIVE

Newest and most advanced of all automatic transmissions!

IT'S here today! America's first fully performed, car-checked, guarantee-backed automatic drive! The culmination of years of research and development by Studebaker and Borg-Warner engineers who developed the only Studebaker Automatic Drive!

Technicians will tell you that this Studebaker Automatic Drive is the ideal combination of a torque converter and direct mechanical drive.

But the way this amazing transmission works isn't half so important to most car owners as the certainty that it does work—superbly, smoothly and reliably!

Come in and try out this far advanced Studebaker Automatic Drive—without obligation—right away. It's extra cost—but it's the finest investment that anybody ever made in real motoring enjoyment!

No clutch pedal, of course—and you're safe right from the start! No creeping, no jerking—in Studebaker Automatic Drive. As car moves forward, you just feed the gas, step and brake. Your Studebaker "shifts for itself", makes gear changes automatically, quietly and smoothly. You keep the pointer on the driving part in "drive" position most of the time. But when you switch on the ignition, the engine will start only if you have first set the selector lever at "park" or "neutral."

proved to be one of great interest to participants and spectators alike, as three sailplanes were towed into the air, the tow rope unhitched from the glider, and the gliders in turn soaring, diving, looping, flying upside down, and in other formations, putting on one of the finest shows of its kind.

The exhibition was favored with many persons of prominence including Jim Simmons, Dallas Cotton Oil Mill executive and President of the Dallas Chapter of the Texas Private Flyers; Mrs. C. F. Kolp of Electra, Texas, most famous Texas woman pilot, who was here with J. O. Womack of the Mustang Aviation Company in Dallas and Mrs. Womack, Fred P. Week, of College Station, designer of the Elsenpe 2-control sailplane, and distinguished professor, Texas A & M College Dept. of Aeronautical Engineering; Holland Page, Austin, President of the Texas Private Flyers Association; Mary Hunter, Austin, representing the Texas Aeronautics Commission; Dr. E. O. Rushing, Dallas Heart Surgeon; Verne Burns, Ft. Worth, Chapter O. Murphy, Amarillo, eye specialist and enthusiastic private flyer; Dr. W. Southern Flight Magazine, Dallas; and Barbara Ward, associate editor of American Aviation Magazine, Washington, D. C.

Among the journalists of note here to cover the exhibition were George Haddaway, editor, Tom Ashley, managing editor, and E. H. Pickering, associate editor, of the Southern Flight Magazine, Dallas; and Barbara Ward, associate editor of American Aviation Magazine, Washington, D. C.

Also Chapter of Texas Private Flyers Association; John Brownlee, San Antonio, J. W. Marshall, Dallas, and Bob Ingalsbe, Austin airplane distributor, Jon Carsey, Dallas aerialist and one of the soaring pilots; Wm. M. Berry, Civil Aeronautics Administration Fort Worth; Harold Fried, Stinson Field, San Antonio; and M. E. Gage, of San Antonio.

When Lyman Wight and His Colony Came to Bandera

By J. MARVIN HUNTER, SR.

About March 1, 1851, Elder Lyman Wight and his colony of about 250 Mormons arrived on the Medina River. Elder Wight named the new town Zion. He called it Zion in Honor of the newly established Mormon Temple, New Zion, in Hancock county, Illinois. Zion, Texas, was the first town of Bandera County. It was on the Medina River, in Hackberry Valley, about 2 miles above the present town of Bandera. Hackberry Valley was named by Lieut. Jefferson Davis, who served in the War of 1812. He was the father of Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederate States of America. Lieut. Davis was in command of the United States troops stationed at Fort Inge, near Uvalde, Texas, in 1849. He arrived in the Medina River Valley on a scouting expedition. He found a large band of Lipan Indians camped on the river. He had a talk with the Indians and found they were friendly. He returned to Fort Inge and reported his findings. Soon after this report was made, the Indians were moved to the Fort Inge reservation. Lieut. Davis was a graduate of West Point Military Academy. He was a classmate of Robert E. Lee, who was also stationed at Fort Inge. Lieut. Davis was a native of Kentucky. He was born in Todd county, Kentucky, June 3, 1808. He died in Todd county, Kentucky, December 16, 1879. He was buried in the family cemetery on the old Davis homestead in Todd county. Just how much land they cultivated is not known, but it certainly amounted to several acres. Elder Wight was in charge of the Mormon colony. He served as chief justice (county judge) of Gillespie county from September, 1850, to June 2, 1851. It appears from the old records that Wight was defeated at the election by J. J. Klingelhoefer, but Wight contested, and in Klingelhoefer had not been naturalized, the contest was decided in Wight's favor. At this time there were several other contests, the new county being between the Germans, Mexicans and the element existing between Captain Martin Scott. To decide most of the contests a special election was held, the polls being kept open for a week. This election was held in April, 1851. Wight served in the War of 1812. He was at the battle of New Orleans. He was also in the Indian wars. He arrived in the Republic of Texas in 1837. He was a member of the Congress of the Republic of Texas. He was a member of the Constitutional Convention which framed the Constitution of the State of Texas. He was a member of the Senate of the Republic of Texas. He was a member of the Senate of the State of Texas. He was a member of the Senate of the State of Texas. He was a member of the Senate of the State

RURAL POPULATION MOVING TO TOWNS

According to the 1950 census, now being compiled, there seems to be a trend toward the towns from the country. It is predicted that by 1960 the American farm population will shrink to 18 per cent of the total population. The population of the United States is rapidly growing, and will probably exceed one hundred and forty million. This shows an increase of more than ten million since 1940. All towns and cities, particularly the larger cities, are rapidly growing, Bandera along with the rest. We venture to prediction that within another ten years the population of Bandera will be doubled. And in the future, as in the past, people will need drugs and physicians, even in the healthiest spots. We will be right here to serve them with the best.

The Corner Drug Store can supply you with pure drugs, druggists' sundries, toilet articles, stationery, fountain drinks, etc. Physicians' prescriptions carefully and accurately compounded.

WASHINGTON NEWS LETTER

TEXAS LOSES ITS TIDELANDS

A solemn contract made between the Republic of Texas and the United States defining conditions under which Texas would enter the Union, was scrapped and repudiated last week when the Supreme Court by a 6-to-3 decision held that the confines of Texas as set out in the annexation agreement is no longer binding on the Federal government.

It was the Tidelands case—a billion dollar lawsuit—whereby the ownership of and all income from minerals under submerged coastal lands will go to Uncle Sam following June 23, 1947, and not to the school children of Texas as has been the case since Texas agreed to enter the Union.

Let's remember the names of the three men on the Supreme Court who affirmed the principle of sanctity of contract in making their decision. They were Justices Reed, Minton and Frankfurter.

And while we're at it—not that it will make any difference, I suppose—let's remember the names of the four who held otherwise. They were Chief Justice Vinson and Justices Douglas, Black and Burton.

A reading of the opinions by Justice Douglas for the majority and Justices Reed and Frankfurter for the minority, is both interesting and revealing.

"The Republic of Texas" wrote Douglas, on December 19, 1836, entered on an existence among the family of the Republic. The south seas boundary was described as following the course of the mouth of the Sabine River, and running west along the third of Mexico three leagues from land, to the mouth of the Rio Grande."

The Justice, in reciting the Sabine facts, conceded that the 1850 annexation agreement contained this provision: "All the vacant and unappropriated lands lying within its limits . . ."

Douglas then states that "Texas retained all the vacant and unappropriated lands lying within its limits."

Douglas then states that "Texas retained all the vacant and unappropriated lands lying within its limits."

Allan Shivers Asks 'Term of My Own' As Texas Governor

Gov. Allan Shivers, in formally announcing his candidacy for a first elective term as Governor, said he has done his best to carry out a program for Texas in a manner acceptable to the people of Texas, adding:

"If I have succeeded, I will appreciate their votes for a term of my own."

Shivers, who assumed the Governorship last July, had not held a full-time governmental job before becoming Governor. He was elected to the State Senate in 1934 and twice re-elected. In 1938 he was elected Lieutenant Governor and re-elected to that office in 1942. Born in Lufkin, he spent his boyhood in Tyler county and later moved with his family to Port Arthur.

Prior to his public career Shivers has given particular attention to public welfare, rural roads and improved educational facilities. He was co-author of Texas' original old age pension law and helped to write the tax bill which, with some changes, is the present law. Under his leadership, the Texas Legislature has appropriated more than $200,000,000 for public schools, the largest sum ever appropriated by any legislature in Texas history. Shivers has also been active in the fight to lower the farmer's cost of production.

Heimsath to Hold Services Here This Summer

Announcement was made Sunday at Morning Prayer services of St. Christopher's Episcopal Mission in Bandera that Dr. Charles H. Heimsath of Christ Church and Trinity University in San Antonio will take over St. Christopher's on June 25th and continue here throughout the summer. Dr. and Mrs. Heimsath and daughter, Vergie, are presently in New York and plan to attend graduation exercises at Yale, where their son, Charles, will receive his degree. Dr. Heimsath plans to begin confirmation classes on the afternoon of June 25 and continue these until July 16th, when Bishop E. H. Jones will come to Bandera for a special confirmation service. St. Christopher's guild and auxiliary will sponsor a garden party and book review by Dr. Heimsath during the second week in July and further details of this interesting event will be given later. A games party sponsored by the guild is also planned for the latter part of this month at Pillows Courts.

When Lyman Wight and His Colony Came to Bandera

By J. MARVIN HUNTER, SR.

The Latter Day Saints adopted in Kirtland, Ohio, a financial plan, still adhere to by them in theory, called the "stewardship plan." This is the economic basis of the religion and by its terms each man upon obeying the principles of converting his property to the church should be given a stewardship over certain properties, usually the same which he had consecrated, and this he kept sufficient only for his "just wants and needs," and turns the "surplus" into a general fund of the church, administered by its chief financial agents, called the bishop. It will be noticed that this is not the "communistic stock" proposition of the Higbee settlement, although some of the principles contained therein do find principle, and the financial plan of the Lyman Wight colony in Texas was upon the "common stock" basis.

Difficulties in Kirtland soon arose, and the Latter Day Saints started their attempt to establish a "Zion" in Jackson county, Missouri, which was reported westward in June, 1831. A revelation appointed Independence, Missouri, as a place for the gathering of the Saints. In fact, it was considered the center place of the new dispensation, so believed.

The Mormons were a wealthy element of Missouri before they arrived, and the bishop of the church became very influential. Some were envious of their success and prosperity, and Col. Thomas Pitt Fitzpatrick, a Zion hater, wrote and published a letter in the Missouri Republican, stating that the Mormons were buying up the county, and that they were receiving large numbers of converts from the Eastern States and Europe. Third, they had established a printing establishment in Independence, and were publishing a paper called the Evening and Morning Star. Fourth, they were erecting a large brick store house. Some desperadoes settled upon the Mormons, and whipped, tarred and feathered Bishop Edward Partridge and Charles Allen, and ordered them to leave the county. Some of the Mormons left, but many remained. The Saints, desperately settled upon their settlement, refused to leave.

Governor Dunklin, of Missouri, was petitioned to protect the Mormons in their rights, but refused to do so. Governor Boggs, who succeeded Governor Dunklin, was petitioned, and he ordered the Mormons to leave the county, and they moved over the river into Clay county.

The Mormons were driven from Jackson county, Missouri, in the winter of 1833, and settled in Clay county, Missouri, where they remained until 1838. Many of the official members of the church were scattered over the State of Missouri, and the Prophet Joseph Smith, Jr., and his counselors, were in Kirtland, Ohio. The Saints in Clay county were prosperous, and were rapidly increasing in numbers. Their enemies were jealous of their success, and began to stir up strife. Finally, in the summer of 1838, the Saints were driven from Clay county, and they settled in Caldwell county, Missouri, where they founded the town of Far West, which became the county seat of Caldwell county. Here the Saints

TALL FOLKS COME TO BANDERA

Bandera people had to look up to a group of tall people several days the past week. That crowd of tall women and tall men which enjoyed the hospitality of our town came from several states to hold their convention here. And there was not a "scrub" in the lot. They were all good looking, but ambitious—not a longitudinal individual in the crowd. The "shortest" gal in the bunch was five feet eleven inches in height, and the tallest was almost seven feet. There's many advantages in being tall, particularly when you are in a big crowd and can see over the heads of others. And there's a disadvantage, too, especially when a long one has to sleep in a short bed. Anyway, it was a great sight to see all those tall folks perambulating about the streets and "looking down" upon the average citizen.

Ranch Hands Beat by St. Cecilia

Sunday's game at Cowboy Park saw a surprisingly powered St. Cecilia ball club humiliating the Ranch Hands to a final score of 21-2. The Parish League pitchers batted out a total of 16 hits, including seven for extra bases. The ball was hit indiscriminately, however, by a total of 7 outfielders for the Ranchers.

Bailie Heckman pulled a bone setting hitting in the fifth when he got hurt trying to field a ball batted by Jack Fox. Jack batted in two runs for the Catholics. The locals found Jack Smith's offering to their liking as they collected 11 hits off his delivery.

Bill Brient Weds at Dilley

Friends in this section will be interested to learn of the marriage of Miss Virginia Dennedy in Dilley, on Saturday, June 10. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Kelly of Dilley, formerly of Bandera, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Bonnie Brient of this city. Both are popular with the younger set here and are receiving congratulations and best wishes in which the Bulletin joins. The happy pair will reside at 704 Halliday Avenue, San Antonio.

TOM B. WHITSWORTH DIES AT BOERNE

Many Bandera county friends regretted the death of the above set Tom B. Whitsworth, which occurred in the Boerne Hospital on Friday after an illness of six or seven months. He was 81 years old.

Funeral services were held at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ella Mae Hall, in Boerne, Monday afternoon, June 19, with Rev. Walter Parker, Texas, officiating.

Mr. Whitsworth was born in Bandera county and lived here most of his life. He was a member of the Methodist church and was highly respected by his many friends.

He is survived by his wife, who is confined to her bed with a broken hip suffered in a fall a few months ago, and by the following children: Mrs. Ella Mae Hall, Boerne; Mrs. Ruth Hall, Boerne; Mrs. Ethel Wilson, Boerne; Mrs. Lillie Mae Hall, Boerne; Mrs. Dorothy Setliff, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Callahan of San Antonio.

This was the theme of the first Annual Field Day of the Hill Country Association of Soil Conservation Districts, which was held Thursday, June 15.

Mr. Burke demonstrated how to make a pond, and showed the results of poor conservation methods, and how it ever could be different. The practices applied to that lake in the last five years were described by the group. About 300 acres of land are involved in the watershed of the lake.

Mr. Whitsworth often came to Bandera to attend revivals, and was a member of the Methodist church here for almost 50 years. He was a kind, loving husband and father, and a true friend to all who knew him.

Funeral services were held at the Methodist church in Boerne, Tuesday afternoon, June 20, with Rev. Walter Parker officiating. Interment was in the Boerne cemetery.

Race Meet Set For July 1 - 4 At Fredericksburg

Four days of racing events will be featured at the annual Race Meet in Fredericksburg on July 1, 2, 3, and 4. Seven purse races plus scheduled daily and match races will probably be added to the program, which starts at 2 each afternoon. The four-day meet will be climaxed by a Mile Handicap Derby on July 4th. Baseball games have been scheduled for Sunday and Tuesday.

This year's Race Meet promises to be the biggest ever as most stall reservations have been taken by race owners from Central and Southwest Texas, according to Fred Mathison, Chairman of the Race Meet Committee.

The Meet will be held in the Fair Park which offers the best one half mile track in this area, a mechanical starting gate, a photo finish, a large modern grandstand, ample car parking space, and plenty of cold beer and soft drinks. Reasonable admission charges during race days have been set for all the events.

Lots or directions to take a Horse Race or Exhibit in the Horse Show will be sent on request. Contact Fred Mathison, Chairman of the Race Meet Committee.

POPULAR BANDERA GIRL IS WED IN AN IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY

Miss Ottie Stubbe became the bride of Eugene Nettzke in a simple and lovely marriage service performed at the Trinity Lutheran Church in San Antonio Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, May 27. Rev. H. A. Heineke officiated. The only attendants were Miss Marlene Nettzke, sister of the bridegroom, and Hunt and Reginal Trammell. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Ted Luyke of San Antonio. The traditional wedding march from Lohengrin and the fashionable Mendelssohn number was played by Bonnie C. Mach, Jr.

The bride was lovely in pastel organza lace and carried a white prayer book. Her flowers were white carnations. Her daughter Joseph M. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Nettzke, was flanked to a corner of Nettzke, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Grande, Texas.

Miss Stubbe, the bride's mother, was dressed in black lace and her flowers were pink carnations.

Mrs. Nettzke graduated from high school in Bandera and has been employed at the Bandera Electric Co-op. Mr. Nettzke is employed by the Pearl Brewery in San Antonio.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Patterson

By J. MARVIN HUNTER, SR.

During the summer of 1845 Miller again became dissatisfied and began to have doubts with regard to another statement by Joseph Smith. He became convinced through pamphlets and letters sent to him by the claims of those who had published in the prophet's name. He advised Smith to have nothing more to do with him and several letters to that effect to Nauvoo. In one of these letters he wrote to Smith telling him that Parvin C. Miller would be sent to Nauvoo to take with him the spiritual Manifesto. Smith replied to the letter, telling Miller that Wight would be sent to Nauvoo. Miller replied that he would not receive Wight. Smith then sent the following letter to Miller:

"Dear Brother Miller: I have received your letter of the 15th inst., and am pained to learn that you have not received Lyman Wight, and that you have not received the counsel which I have sent you. I have appointed Lyman Wight, and I now appoint him, to be a counselor to Parvin C. Miller, and I command you to receive him as such, and to give heed to his counsel, and to walk in all things according to the pattern given to you by the Lord, and then you shall prosper in the land and flourish like a green bay tree. Let no dissension be among you, but study counsel with all your might. Be wise as serpents and harmless as doves. Let my servant Lyman Wight have a home with you, and he will counsel you for your good, and I will visit you in person before long. Be faithful in all things, for I have appointed you to be a counselor unto my servant Lyman Wight, and he unto you, and I have appointed George Miller to be a counselor unto my servant Lyman Wight, and he unto him, and I have appointed Hyrum Redfield a counselor unto my servant William, and my servant Isaac Green over you, and he unto him, and I will be with you and bless you and your families, if you are faithful before me. Let my servant William and Isaac Green have a home with you, and counsel with them, for they are my servants, and I have sent them unto you for your good. And even I am with you. Behold I am Jesus Christ. I come quickly. Even so. Amen."

Miller left Nauvoo in the spring of 1845 and settled on Rock Creek, Illinois, where he remained until the spring of 1846. He then moved to Iowa and settled on the Des Moines River, where he remained until the spring of 1847. He then moved to Council Bluffs, Iowa, where he died on the 25th day of November, 1847. He was buried in the Mormon cemetery at that place. Miller was a man of strong character and was highly respected by his neighbors. He was a man of means and was very liberal in his donations to the church. He was a man of strong faith and was very zealous in the cause of his religion. He was a man of great energy and was very active in the affairs of the church. He was a man of great wisdom and was very careful in the management of his affairs. "June, A. D. 1850.—This month Lyman, having been studying the revelation to Joseph Smith, came to the conclusion that he would go into the order of the kingdom more fully, and let those who would follow him. On the 18th of June I was employed at this until July and on the 3rd and 4th I copied a letter from Bro. Bailey, one of the newcomers, which he wrote to W. Smith concerning F. Sheen, who had apostatized from W. Smith, etc."

The W. Smith referred to above was William Smith, a younger brother of Joseph Smith, and one of the three twelve apostles who, in 1844, refused to follow Brigham Young, the other two being Lyman Wight and John E. Page. William Smith attempted first an ordination of his own, but later joined the reorganized church, in which he died in Iowa in 1891. The two sisters of the William Leyland, quoted in above paragraphs, married two of the sons of Lyman Wight, Lyman Levi and Lamoni respectively. William Leyland's journal is broken here, but Levi Lamoni's autobiography records that both water on the Colorados waited away their mail and ... it was thought best by the community to seek other fields of labor and adventure, consequently we removed about fifty miles and located in Burnett county, Texas, and built another mill on the same privileges. We now experienced frequent visits by the Indians of the western wilds of Texas. As their visits became more frequent they began to give some trouble, which increased to a rapid rate until several times they took all our horses, killed our milch cows, and drove our oxen to such a distance that it took us sometimes several days to recover them. They finally took and drove our horses away from us their ... [illegible] ... of our neighbors the men were often killed, women and children carried off to suffer torture worse than death or worse. I could recite many instances of horror about the cruelties of these savages.

Noah Smithwick, in his book, "Evolution of a State," gives a description of these same Indians.

After the Mexicans were driven out with their arms and ammunition, many would steer over the Colorado, and, in the vicinity of the present Austin, would trade with the Indians for horses, mules, buffalo robes, and such articles of Indian manufacture as were in demand. They would then recross the river

CITY OF CHURCHES

Bandera is becoming a city of churches. Already there are six nice church buildings in the town: Methodist, Church of Christ, Baptist, Latter Day Saints, Catholic and Christian; and it is said the Pentecost Church is soon to erect a building. Each of these churches have regular services and good congregations, which speaks well for the religious life of the community. Good churches and good schools go hand in hand in the building of any town, and attract homeseekers and visitors, for what individual would want to invest in a home in a town without churches or schools?

The Corner Drug Store can supply you with pure drugs, druggists' sundries, toilet articles, stationery, fountain drinks, etc. Physicians' prescriptions carefully and accurately compounded.

PLANS ARE SET FOR BIG JULY 4th CELEBRATION AT MANSFIELD PARK

Some of you may have overlook- ed reading the Bulletin last week, so we want to again call your attention to the big annual July 4 celebration at Mansfield Park. We know this is a big undertaking & that many will be coming to Bandera in commemoration of Independence Day, the greatest of our national holidays. The fact is we must celebrate & that is why and where can you have a better opportunity in great good and friends and meet new ones. Mansfield Park now has the outstanding memorial of the untiring efforts of your friend, Alfred M. Mansfield, one of whose many noble deeds it was to donate the park to the county for the use and benefit of the people. Here is where we can all meet and have a long day, when time means less and nothing else matters. Here is the real celebration of the 4th of July, as it was in the days gone by when Liberty was a blessing and not a privilege to be fought for. Here is where we can all meet our friends and neighbors and forget our troubles and cares for a day and enjoy ourselves. Here is where we can all get together and have a big picnic dinner with plenty of food and drink and ice cream for the children. Here is where we can all get together and have a big picnic dinner with plenty of food and drink and ice cream for the children. Here is where we can all get together and have a big picnic dinner with plenty of food and drink and ice cream for the children.

Due to the improvements in Mansfield Park, it is going to be necessary to make an admission charge, the balance of the combination ball park and picnic ground, including baseball diamond, barbecue dinner with all the trimmings, dancing, cold drinks, bread and coffee can be purchased at the barbecue pit, free of charge, and the price of admission and cold meat sandwiches and drinks at the stands will be the same as the lunch stand near the park.

At 4 p. m. the BBA baseball game will be played. Admission will be 25 cents for adults and under 12 years free. The proceeds from the baseball game will be used for the benefit of the baseball diamond, Butler court of Honor, and Ralph Mitchell of Houston, who has been confined to a hospital for some time, and is unable to make it himself to be with the best.

It is impossible to give a detailed description of this celebration, but we can assure you that it will be a big day and one long remembered by all. The Park is only a short distance from the center of town, so it will be easy to visit the many booths and exhibits which will be on display. Also the dancing at the pavilion will be open to persons and the Bandera Texas Top Hands will furnish the music for the pleasure of those who desire to dance.

Ben Jurecski is general chairman of the celebration and has appointed the following committees to assist him:

By J. MARVIN HUNTER, SR.

The machinery was mostly of the rudest, clumsiest kind, manufactured by the Mormons of such material as was obtainable from natural sources. Great, rattling wooden cog wheels and drum and fly-wheel filled up the lower stories, the upper one containing a small corn cracker mill and an up and down sash saw, which, after all, had the advantage over the circular one in that it could handle large timber. This was clearly demonstrated when a little later Shepherd put in a circular saw over on Cypress Creek. Uncle saw being unable to cope with the largest and best timber, some of which was hauled to the Mormon mill at a distance of fifteen miles."

Colonel Wight lived on Hamilton Creek somewhat between February 20 and July 23, 1851. At this place they built dwellings, tubs and shops. In the mills they ground their corn and wheat into meal and flour, which they sold to the people living in that section and also to those who came to Austin to settle on the colonial claims. Of this period Mr. Noah Smith, the nephew of the founder of the colony, says as follows:

"A wagon road was cut from north to south, to reveal the harvests to pass through, and a branch road from east to west, a portion of which was afterwards used by the Austin and Bandera stage line. Between these roads at the point of intersection was built the store, a two-story rock building, the second story and attic of which was for a long time occupied by the Masonic lodge, being on a visit with the brick which was manufactured at the mill, and the timbers and sawed lumber from the upper story, including sashes, doors, etc., were also manufactured at the mill. Twenty-six log houses were erected, which furnished the power for the mill.

Colonel Wight built all of the colony's possessions on Hamilton Creek in 1852. A few Mormon families remained there to work for him, but most of them with Lyman Wight were again on the move to the south of new homes. The first stop thereafter was in Comal County, immediately to the westward. The exact time of this settlement is not known, but they were again on the march in December of 1853. A diary kept by Spencer Smith, son-in-law of Lyman Wight, has been quoted:

ANOTHER STRIKE

AGAINST THE PUBLIC AND INDUSTRY AND AGRICULTURE SERVED BY FIVE WESTERN RAILROADS

President Truman's EMERGENCY BOARD recommends a 40-hour week and a pay increase of 18 cents an hour, or $1.44 a day for switchmen represented by the Switchmen's Union of North America.

• Notwithstanding the tremendous increase in their expenses involved, the Railroads' answer to Board is... YES! NO!

Union leaders' answer to Board is..

In face of Board findings to the contrary, union leaders insist on 48 hours pay for 40 hours work. This would be an average increase of 31 cents an hour, or $2.48 a day. So Union leaders have called a completely unjustified strike on 5 Western railroads, effective June 25.

On June 19, as Emergency Board appointed by President Truman under the terms of the Railway Labor Act, recommended the railroads grant switchmen a 40-hour week and a wage increase of 18 cents an hour, or $1.44 per on 8-hour day.

Despite the added financial burden involved, the railroads are ready to accept these recommendations, as they have always accepted Emergency Board recommendations on national issues.

But the leaders of the Switchmen's Union refuse to accept! They demand an average increase of 31 CENTS AN HOUR, OR $2.48 A DAY—although their present earnings are substantially higher than those of workers in other industries!

Board Says Demands Unjustified

In its report, the Board declared this demand unjustified by all the evidence presented. It also pointed out that it would give the switchmen an unfair pay advantage over other groups of railroad employes, and would add too great a burden to railroad costs.

Here is another case of a railroad union flouting the findings of an Emergency Board—another case of calling a crippling strike in its outrageous and unfair effects on the American people, which the Board clearly labels as unjustified!

Leaders of the Switchmen's Union are calling this strike in defiance of the Board and in defiance of the public—at the expense of the public!

In its report on this case, the Board made this all-important statement:

"The railroad industry, the Board believes, needs above all else a period of relative stability to adjust and adapt itself to present competitive post-war conditions."

Despite this warning, the leaders of the Switchmen's Union are upsetting the applecart—forcing a completely unjustified strike against every body who uses the railroads.

It is time to put an end to such un-American tactics!

The Answer to a Raw Attempt At Dictatorship is "No!"

In the interest of the public who depend on the railroads every day, there can be only one answer to this outrageous and dictatorial action by the leaders of the Switchmen's Union. And that answer is—"NO!"

MEDINA

N. V. BRALEY, Editor
"There's a chile among ye taking notes, an' faith he'll prent 'em."

There was quite a bit of excitement in Medina last Friday morning when the fire alarm sounded and the report came over the phone that Louie Norwood's house was on fire. The fire truck responded to the scene with about two-thirds of Medina's population only to find it to be a false alarm. Some one thought they saw smoke coming out from the roof, from under the shingles, but on investigation is was found to be only smoke from the chimney.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lane have purchased two acres of land from Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Zumwalt. The land is situated across the river from Medina on the West Front and was sold at a very reasonable price. Mr. and Mrs. Lane will build a new home on there.

It was good to report that, W. O. Arnold who has been ill for the past couple of weeks is up and around again. He is reported to be much improved in health.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyce Jackson who underwent an operation for appendicitis last week in a Kerrville hospital is now at home doing very nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Golberg and Mrs. Minnie Goldberg, brother, sister-in-law and mother respectively of our popular druggist, H. J. Goldberg arrived in Medina Thursday from Texas City, Texas. Mr. Golberg accompanied them from Galveston Mr. and Mrs. Bert Golberg returned to their home in Austin Friday and Mrs. Minnie Goldberg and Lehmie remained for a longer visit in the H. C. Be Sure You Know How to Mark the Ballot

With the primary elections only two weeks away voters should begin now to inform themselves what how to mark the ballots they will cast. The new law requires that a cross (X) be placed in the square in the front right corner, which is perforated to tear off after marking up the ballot. The voter must write his or her name across the back of this corner ticket or it will not be counted. If it is one ballot box, two of the ballots should be deposited in another box. Do not write your name on the main ballot anywhere, for to do so will void the ballot. After marking your ballot be sure to make sure that you understand it, and then mark out the names of the candidates you do not wish to vote for. Election judges are not permitted to help voters mark their ballots, except where the voter is blind or otherwise physically disabled. In such cases of infirmity or physical handicap the voter is allowed a vote, you must have paid a poll tax if required to do so, and your name must appear on the poll list. It is a crime to vote your poll tax receipt number or to show how it is being voted upon.

Judge M. F. Griffin For Justice of the Supreme Court

A veteran of World War I and World War II, who was appointed to the Supreme Court by the late Governor Beauford Jester, is running for an first elective term to the state's highest judicial office. He is Judge Wade F. Griffin of Hale County.

Judge Griffin was born at Coffeyville in Callahan County on March 17, 1894. He moved to Tulia in 1914.

Young Griffin worked his way through the University of Texas, obtaining a law degree in 1917. That same year he enlisted and was in the First Officers' Training Camp in Leon Springs as a captain in the Infantry. He was assigned to Camp Travis where he served until October 1, 1918, after being made a Major. From Camp Travis he went to Camp Sherman in Chillicothe, Ohio, and was there until he received his discharge on December 8, 1918.

Following World War I, at age 24, Griffin returned to Tulia, serving as county attorney and elected Mayor of the city.

In 1926, Judge Griffin moved to Plainview and practiced law there until 1932. He served as District Judge of Hale and Floyd Counties from 1932 to 1936.

Judge Griffin returned to private practice with the firm of Griffin and Morehead, in Plainview. He was associated with that firm until his appointment as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court on April 1, 1938, except for the time spent in service in World War II.

The call to colors found Griffin, then in uniform on July 27, 1942. He became a Lt. Col. in the Infantry, serving as Chief of the Training Division at Camp Shanks, N. Y. In May 1945, Griffin was detailed to the Judge Advocate General's Department. He helped establish the Trial Section of War Crimes Branch of the U. S. Army, and became Chief of the Prosecution Subsection at Wiesbaden, Germany. He was discharged as a Colonel of the Infantry, December 9, 1945 and holds a reserve commission in the Judge Advocate General's Department.

Judge Griffin served as a member of the board of directors of the Texas Bar Association from 1939 to 1942, was a member of the American Bar Association and of the State of Texas from July 1941 to 1942.

Griffin's life can best be described as one which has earned for him the reputation of a hard-working, hard-driving lawyer with a broad field of experience. This necessary for the supreme court bench. He has been a resident of the state for more than 30 years.

Last Rites Held For Mother of Mrs. Fred Maass, Jr.

Funeral services were held at the Champion funeral home in Osage, Iowa, Tuesday, June 20, for Mrs. James Nolen, 62, wife of Rev. James R. Nolen, of Medina. Burial was made in the Nolen family lot at the Greenwood cemetery Grace E. Nolen, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. James Nolen, was born in Chelsea, Iowa, January 29, 1888.

Mrs. Nolen was born at Nora Springs, Floyd county, Iowa, where she got married to Charles City where Grace graduated from high school.

She taught in the rural schools until her marriage September 16, 1908, at Charles City, to James R. Nolen. The couple moved to a farm near Orchard where they lived three years, moving then to Osage where they lived in the city, or in its edge for 39 years.

To this union were born two children, Verne L. Nolen, who died on the home place, June 6, 1916, and Mrs. Fred Maass of Medina, Texas. There is one grandchild, Marsha Louise Maass. A brother, Melville D. Hof, of Fort Dodge, Iowa, survives and is a member of her family.

In addition to her parents, the daughter was also preceded in death by a brother and two sisters, Esther Lilac, preceding her in death.

Additional taxes are not the answer to the rising cost of state government, he believes. He is definitely opposed to any kind of general sales tax, income tax or property tax.

Be Sure You Know How to Mark the Ballot

With the primary elections only one week away voters should begin now to inform themselves about how to mark the ballots they will cast. The new form of the so-called secret ballot has a number placed in the upper right hand corner, which is perforated to tear off after marking up the ballot. The voter must write his or her name across the back of this perforated corner, tear it off and deposit it in one box, while the ballot is deposited in another box.

Do not write your name on the main ballot anywhere, for to do so will void the ballot. After marking your ballot be sure to fold it before depositing it, study your ballot well to make sure that you understand it, and then mark out squares of the candidates you do not wish to vote for. Election judges are not permitted to help any one unless they are physically disabled, and even voters over 65 years are being incapacitated by reason of blindness or physical infirmities. To be allowed to vote you must have been a resident of the State one year, and of the county six months. And be sure to present your poll tax receipt when you go to vote. This is a most important item.

The Wide-Open Town Myth

One of the world's most deceptive examples of gangsters and graft existed recently in Phenix City, Alabama, across the river from Columbus, Ga., which Virgil Peterson is the director.

Peterson says that no myth has ever swallowed more ridiculous statements and more nonsense than the one about wide-open towns. He says that there is no good in them.

"There is nothing to be said for them," he declares. "Boss Tweed of Tammany Hall, Richard Croker and Jimmy Hines in their day ruled the city of New York, and political dictator Nicholas Johnson of Atlantic City, of Big Bill Thompson of Chicago and of that famous Pendergast machine of Kansas City.

"As I remember the early Chicago days, the reputation of its Capone gangs was known around the world. Murder, Incorporated, Kansas City, Big Frame Business.

"The Capone gang was developed in Chicago during the days of Big Bill Thompson, who championed the cause of the wide-open town. Chicago got open gang war on every street corner, and in St. Valentine's Day massacre.

"Chicago was the first city to have the machine gun. New York developed the racketeer, Philadelphia Germans, and Miami Beach, especially, has become a meeting place for big-time thieves and gangsters from all parts of the country.

"Citizens," he says, "can have a wide-open town or they can have good government. They cannot have a wide-open town and good government. The greatest need in municipal government today is a development of a sense of citizen responsibility. Widespread lawlessness in any city is a mark of prevalent failure, but the failure also is one of the people."—San Antonio Express.

Pledges Himself to Save the State

The other night we heard a candidate for lieutenant governor making an eloquent speech over the radio. He threshed out in no uncertain, ringing voice, and in terms to make promises was a reminder of the days when Fourth of July political orators used to hold their audiences spellbound by their eloquence. This candidate made his solemn pledge that he would stop the extravagant spending by our State officials and reduce the public debt. In fact, to hear him talk, one would think he would do all these things all by himself. It sounded mighty good to us, as we sat listening to his wonderful promises, but when we reflected over the condition of things and how powerless he would be to do one or all of those things he promised to do, without the aid of the legislature or of the governor himself, we decided that that candidate was making rash promises that he knew he could not keep. And to top it all off, at the close of his mighty speech, he had a quartet to sing a religious hymn, "In the Garden." So we just decided to cast our vote in the July primary for some other candidate for lieutenant governor—there's plenty more candidates to select from.

A Third World War Seems Inevitable

The tocsin of war has been sounded. American troops and war machinery is being poured into Korea, and our army reserves are being called rapidly into service, to help South Korea save herself from the Communist invaders from North Korea. The movement has the barking and sanction of the United Nations organization, but it may result in a general Third World War, with Russia backing up the Communist forces in other countries. Russia has been preparing for this movement ever since World War II ended, working behind the Iron Curtain, while here in America the press and the radio has kept the world informed about our movements and our unpreparedness to meet the mighty conflict when it comes. The situation looks extremely grave, and no matter what promises our politicians make, we must meet the situation bravely and be ready to back up our government in its efforts to combat the threat of Communism.

GARDEN CONVERSATION

By MRS. AL PLUMMER

So many times I have been asked: "Will you please tell me how in Bandera like they do in the San Antonio area?"

Everyone said grow here in Bandera and you will enjoy their beauty all year round, besides improving your home with their green foliage. Your first step is to pick your plant, not too small, but be sure it is compact and bushy. Long gaithly bare areas do not make beautiful shrubs. Purchase a shrub that is at least two or three feet tall, because the time element is important. It will take two or three years to grow a small plant as large as the one you are buying for a dollar or more. Dig deep holes when planting for evergreens, using top soil to fill in. Be sure and remove the sack from around balled plants. In the lower country where moisture is abundant this is not so important, but we have found it necessary in our hot, dry climate and a sack can slow your plant growth considerably.

When buying evergreens remember to pick the tried and true varieties such as the wax leaf ligustrum, a small erect leafed shrub; the waxy leaf ligustrum, a small leafed ever green shrub; the Japonica, a broad leafed evergreen shrub; the nandina, a red berried shrub; evergreen which

W.S.C.S. to Give Election Returns

This year there is unusually great interest in the June election. The ladies of the Bandera Methodist Church have arranged with the County Democratic Chairman, W. R. Tichenor, to receive splendid results election returns by long distance phone calls from all nine election boxes in Bandera county. These returns will be posted as they come in on a large blackboard in front of the Library Auditorium in Bandera and announced over a public address system on Sunday night, July 22, beginning at 7 p. m. and continuing until all returns are in.

The ladies will serve coffee, coke, and soft drinks at reasonable prices. Everyone is invited to come and join the crowd! No admission charge!

Assisting with the affair the WSCS and the Wesleyan Service Guild in charge of all arrangements are Mrs. Melvin Hensman, chairman, Mrs. Theradine Towers, Mrs. Ashley Hogg, and Mrs. Harold Lunn.

LIBRARY HAS UNITED NATIONS MATERIAL

The Bandera Public Library has on display the United Nations flag as well as the flags of every nation belonging to it, according to Mrs. Lon D. Fisher, chairman of the library committee. The display has greatly stimulated interest in the United Nations among students of the Bandera schools.

Mrs. Laura Hillman and Miss Mildred Stevens of Medina spent Sunday with Hollie Hillman.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Meyer were visitors in San Antonio on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Keese and son, of Agua Dulce and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Keese of Corpus Christi visited Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Keese and other relatives and friends in Bandera and this city Sunday.

Bishop Jones to Speak Here Sunday

Bishop Everett H. Jones of the Diocese of West Texas will hold confirmation services for St. Mary Magdalen Church in Bandera at the W. O. W. Hall on Sunday morning, July 23 at eleven. Bishop Jones is a speaker of note and everyone in the Bandera area who would be interested in hearing him is cordially invited to the services. He will be assisted in the services by Rev. Charles Holmwood and Russell Blair, lay leaders for the local church group. Instruction classes are being held throughout the summer months. Rev. Holmwood asks that children of 11 a. m. following church school and morning prayer service at 10 a. m. at the W. O. W. Hall. Communion services will be held at the regular church hour on the first Sunday in each month and during the months of June, July with St. Christopher's Auxiliary and Auxiliary will meet for a summer luncheon meeting at 12 o'clock on Thursday, July 20 at the home of Miss Xena Crawford.

Nelson Hamilton and John L. Lee, 19th Bandera airport, left this week for a visit with friends in Dallas. Both expect to have two weeks vacation from their duties as Marines.

New Serial Will Start in Next Week's Bulletin

Next week the Bulletin will begin the publication of "The Authentic History of Sam Bass and His Gang," which will run about three months. Its surge to get the opening installment, and keep up with the whole story. This book was first published in book form by the Denton Monitor in 1878, shortly after the killing of Sam Bass at Round Rock, Texas. It was written by "A Citizen of Denton County," who was in reality Judge Alex Hogg. In 1932 we reprinted the book in a limited edition, the proceeds of which were used in building the first unit of Frontier Times Museum in Bandera. The demand for more copies has been so great that we will again reprint it, first using it as a serial in the Bulletin, and later issue it in book form.

Sam Bass was one of Texas' most noted outlaws, who operated in, 1878, and we know his story will be read with interest by Bulletin readers.

Clinton Langford, county agent of Sutton county, spent the week end here with his mother, Mrs. John Langford.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Kiehl will return to Bandera from Wichita Falls to reside in Bandera. Mr. Kiehl is employed at the Bandera Electric Co-op.

CARD OF THANKS

It is with grateful hearts that we express our deepest appreciation to our many friends who assisted in so many ways during the illness and death of our beloved husband and father. The many words of comfort and the beautiful flowers showed our hearts and lessened our sorrow.

There it Was—Right in The Middle!

Easy Roberts mowed his lawn early last Saturday. Then he sat on the porch, and watched Handy Peterson cutting his grass.

The Roberts' property and the Peterson's border each other—with no hedge or fence between them. So, when Easy notices Handy had left about a four-foot strip unmowed along the boundary, he walks over and asks why.

"That's your land," says Handy. "Mine ends here. See, it lines up with that oak tree across the road!" Easy didn't think so, so they went up and down looking for the surveyor's marker. Where do they find it? Right in the middle of their "no-man's-land!"

Well, they both grin and take turns finishing the job and then retreat to Easy's for a friendly glass of beer together. From where I sit, a little searching around for the truth of the matter often shows that the other fellow is as much right as you are—at which point the whole thing doesn't seem as important anyway.

JOHN HOPE DEAN, LIFE-long resident of Bandera county, departed this life last night, July 10, 1950, at the age of 72 years, 2 months, and 12 days. He was a faithful member of the Primitive Baptist Church. In April 1900 he was happily married to Mollie Bridges and to this union was born six children. The survivors are his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Vashti Sparks and Mrs. Mary Hixson of Kingsville, three sons, Louis Edgar Dean of Tarpley and Charles Dean of Hondo, and one brother, Will Dean of Utopia, and a host of other relatives and friends.

In his passing the community has been robbed of one of its most esteemed citizens. For the whole life of Uncle John was a life of service and love to his fellowmen. He was a kind husband and father, a loyal friend and neighbor, and a good citizen. For the whole life of Uncle John was a life of service and love to his fellowmen. When Lyman Wight and His Colony Came to Bandera

By J. MARVIN HUNTER, SR.

Following is a letter written by Lyman Wight to Governor Elisha M. Pease:

Mountain Valley, March 7th, 1856

"The Governor of the State of Texas:

"We are a small emigrating company of about twenty families have been striving for the last 3 years to make ourselves homes in the rich valles on the Rocky Mts. if this state during which time we have labored much from ill by the Indians & fear of famine and sickness which has destroyed about $4,000. but Tuesday last? the 'Herald of Salvation' taking our last remained somewhat comparatively expensive for raising a small ran of stone & about six and thirteen inches square a large amount of work finished and we have now houses enough to shelter us for winter & some corn to spare for us to subsist on. we are now about to move which will involve much additional expense to us before we will get planted & our crops growing. we are now in the state U. S. of which expense for us to follow which is a great hardship for us to bear. we are being informed of a law in force in this state that all emigrants that settle with the intention of becoming citizens of the state must be naturalized the constitution of the state of Texas requires that all emigrants that settle in the state must be naturalized before they can become citizens.

"We believe we have complied to notice the death of Mr. Lyman Wight, who for some thirteen years past, has been the leader of a small and independent American settlement. Since he came to us we have been able to learn, there is a large spread Mormonism to be most glorified in the state, and we are no doubt greatly indebted to the deceased leader for the orderly conduct, sobriety, industry & morality which has existed among us. Mr. Wight first settled in Texas in November, 1845, and has been with his colony on the extreme frontier ever since, moving still further & further westward, actuated by the desire of being removed from the influence of advancing civilization, avoiding contact with the Indians. He has been the first to settle five new counties, and the last to pay for what he has at different times entered. Since his arrival in Texas he has at different times entered nine and four miles etc."

A part of the colony continued on to the northern states, where they remained for a long period. Lyman Wight died in Texas in November, 1858

Jumping Ahead Of Time

The Bulletin was not trying to jump ahead of Bandera's town last week, when the paper carried the statement "July 25, 1950." Just supposed to insert the wrong date line under the heading, and it escaped the proof reader's watchful eye. The date should have been made to read "July 13, 1950," the deadline is of not serious importance, and will not be the same in any way.

Little Shirley Ann Dove, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Dove of the Bandera Woodville community, died suddenly after noon Sunday. The little girl had been feeling badly but various efforts failed to show any serious illness. She was taken to the office where a test of the blood was given which failed to reveal any. Dead on arrival at the hospital it was decided to bring the child out of doors and it was then that she died. Funeral services were held at the Bandera Funeral Home Chapel Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock with Rev. Ralph Swed officiating. Interment was in the Bandera cemetery. Survivors include her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Dove, a brother, Billy Ray, and a sister, Mary Ann, all of the home. Also surviving are her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Dove, Sr., and Mrs. Mary Ann Dove, all of Bandera, and Mrs. Ella Lewis of Houston.

Endorsement for Preston Wedgeworth

We endorse and believe that Preston Wedgeworth should be elected county commissioner, Precinct No. 1, for the following reasons:

1. He stands for a square deal for all.

4. Mr. Wedgeworth took office when we were in debt and has turned a magnificent job with the funds available.
5. He will work to have county roads audited.

IN MEMORY OF SHIRLEY ANN DOVE

A little chair is vacant, a loved voice is still, a home is desolate by the going away of Shirley Ann Dove, who came to gladden our lives for a little while. Her smile was like the morning sunshine, soft, gay and lovely, her voice was like the gentle breeze when all nature awakes to live again. Hearts are grieved that she has gone away, but she is not dead, just sleeping. Shirley Ann came and stayed a little while and gave a lovely flower in our hearts now she has answered the call of Jesus who said, "Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come to me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." And to now with him she gives comfort to lovely, grieved hearts and our one so long yet another day.

When the District All-Star game opens at Mission Stadium in San Antonio next Tuesday night, July 25, Bandera will probably be represented by two men from the Hams. Hands. A selection will be made from among the All-Star members by Percy Whitney who has been here several times in the past week to look the team over. Local fans are urged to attend the all-star game at Mission Stadium Tuesday night.

Authentic History of
Sam Bass and His Gang
By a Citizen of Denton County
Printed in the Monitor Book and Job Printing Establishment at Denton, Texas, 1878

Introduction

The following narrative of the notorious gang of outlaws, which for some months past infested Northern Texas is intended to be authentic. The sources from whence the facts are derived are regarded as being generally reliable—many of the incidents having transpired in Denton and adjacent counties—and are already matters of public notoriety. It is thought that a correct history of the performances of Bass and his gang—while it may not, in the abstract, subserve the cause of morals and good order—may, in some measure, tend to forestall that class of fictitious literature, which by its overdrawn and ease-colored fancies, may tend to the demoralization of the young, and consequent promotion of crime.

As regards the performances of Bass and his co-adjutors in the Black Hills, as well as the particulars of their robberies of stages and express companies in Texas, and the persons engaged in those outrages, the statements given in this work are those detailed by Bass and his men in their camp to J. W. Murphy, and are given in the language to the parties as nearly as Murphy was able to rehearse them. As to the truth or falsity of those statements of Bass & Co. to Murphy, their motives for thus detailing their adventures around the campfire or on the march, etc., the public must judge.

In narrating these statements the indulgence in some of the indecencies of slang peculiar to this class of men has been unavoidable—as much as the same may be deprecated in any publication. The particulars of the Allen, Hutchins, Eagle Ford and Mesquite robberies, and the parties engaged therein, when not extracted from newspapers, were generally given by Sam Bass himself to Murphy during his connection with the gang, from Denton county, to Round Rock; and the particulars of that trip, which ended in the death of the chief—Sam Bass—are given in Murphy's own language.

Sam Bass, His Parentage and Early Life.

This notorious character was born in Lawrence county, in the State of Indiana, on the 21st day of July, 1851, near the town of Mitchell. His father, Daniel Bass, was a poor but industrious farmer, who by continued toil and rigid economy, accumulated sufficient property to insure himself and family the ordinary comforts of life. He died on the 20th of February, 1861. Sam's mother was named Jane Sheeks. She was married to Daniel Bass in 1840, and shared with him the privations and prosperity of their marriage life up to 1861, when she died. She is said to have been a kind and dutiful wife and mother, and doubtless gave her wayward boy many a precept, such as mothers only are best prepared to give. At the death of Sam's parents, his maternal uncle, David L. Sheeks, took charge of him and the other children, six in number—two boys and four girls. It is said that Sheeks was a large farmer in Indiana, and trained the Bass family to habits of economy and industry, as their parents had endeavored to do, and gave them an equal chance at an education with his own children. But so far as regards Sam, this statement is either very apochryphal of the point of education, or the advantages in that line were very slender, for it is well known by the acquaintances of Sam after his arrival in Texas, that he was intensely ignorant and wholly illiterate. He could not read a word; nor could he write his name until taught by a school boy named Charles Brim, in the town of Denton, about the year 1871, and it was with much difficulty that he learned to do this. But be this as it may, if Sam ever had opportunities he neglected them, and we find him at an early age turning his attention in the direction of his untimely and disgraceful end. He gained a passion for cards, horse-racing and revelry, and sought the acquaintance of the most abandoned and desperate characters of both sexes. He was of a roving, restless disposition, and soon cut himself loose from all restraint, and in 1869, being then eighteen years old, he left his home on a tour of dissipation and speculation, and after considerable rambling and association with that class of humanity that comported best with his own uncultivated mind and coarse instincts, he turned up at Roseble, in the state of Mississippi, where, being driven to the wall financially he was forced from sheer necessity to engage as a laborer in a saw mill, where he remained for about a year, spending his spare moments in dissipation, card playing and handling the six-shooter, though it is stated by persons who knew him that he knew nothing about firearms when he first came to Denton. We have no evidence that he slighted his work, while under employment, on the contrary his subsequent history justifies the conclusion that he was at least industrious while engaged at his labor, which may be set to his credit for one commendable virtue at least. In the year 1872 he left Mississippi and landed in Denton county, Texas, in the later part of the year, and was shortly after engaged as a teamster and grain buyer for Mr. T. J. Evans with whom he remained for about a year, after which he was employed by W. E. Egan, Sheriff, Fo to the date of his arrival in Denton, and for a considerable period subsequent, his life seems to have been an uneventful one. Nothing is known by him to distinguish out of the dull routine of common place occurrences which character the lives of most men of his type, and as it is the design of these pages to deal in the truth, though dull it may be, it is not the writer's pleasure to fill up this history with highly colored fragments of the wonderful romance, which poison the literature at the present day, and in the author's opinion are more made to fill our jails and penitentiaries with capital felons than any other influence known. If the notorious Sam ever did anything up to this period that would form the basis of the most bizarre chapter of a dime novel, it was never discovered by his acquaintances in Denton.

Ranch Hands Bea Goldthwaite, Sunday

Unanimously acclaimed by the local following as the most thrilling game of the season was Sunday's clash between the Ranch Hands and the visiting Goldthwaite Redsox. In direct contrast to the previous week's game in which base hits and runs abounded, Sunday's struggle featured superb pitching on both sides, tight defensive play and only few runners to spoil the view of the handsome outfielders.

T. H. Sullivan, the visitors' hurler, established a brand of pitching far above par for semi-pro baseball, and was the master of every variety of stuff that frequently baffled the Cowboy batsmen. Art Nunnenmacher was equally effective for Bandera, however, displaying keen headwork in handling the pitchers of the Goldthwaite nine.

The hitting honors were divided between Bandera's eighth inning clouter, Bruce Jones, for home runs, and Goldthwaite's Bill Gilliland, who went to Cowboy Park like a seasoned, and big, veteran that he is.

MISS JANK REPORTS ON GIRLS' STATE

At a regular meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary on Wednesday of last week, Mrs. Chas. Hutcheson, first vice-president, presided. Two guests were present, Mrs. Jone, and her daughter, Mary Patricia of Pipe Creek. Miss Jank gave a wonderful full report of the work she spent at Girl's State in Austin. This year was sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary. While there she ran for the office of governor on the Federalist Party Ticket, she was defeated for that office but the Auxiliary is proud that she was elected City Treasurer and City Post Mistress.

Teddy Nesky of Fort Worth visited home folks last week-end.

LAST SATURDAY'S PRIMARY ELECTION WAXED WARM IN SEVERAL RACES

About the most exciting primary election that has ever been held in Bandera county was that held in the various precincts of the county last Saturday. Voting began at 8 o'clock Saturday morning and was lively right up to the minute the polls closed at 6 o'clock that evening. Here in town the two voting places, the school house and at the county court house, were both voted very early. Long lines were in evidence at the voting places most of the morning with three candidates opposing Sheriff Jim Sannod for re-election, Wednesday afternoon the lines were still with 305 votes, which included all except a few absentee votes, cast. In the race for county judge, Judge Ben E. L. Speight brought up the rear with 80 votes.

In the race for county attorney, Jack Hicks, present incumbent, received 111 votes and

Bandera Must Seize the Opportunity

The offer of the Long Star Gas Company to bring natural gas to Bandera should be promptly accepted. And the Bulletin believes it will be. All that is needed to secure the gas is a good meeting of the people to sign up some 275 or more customers in the immediate town area at the rate of $10.00 with each customer required to install not less than $100.00 worth of gas appliances. And this appeal will be made to each person in the town area. Of course, the more customers signed up, the lower the rate per customer will be. And the lower the rate per customer, the more will be the saving to each customer. Each person signing up will be under no obligation to buy anything. He will merely be signing a petition to the gas company to bring gas to Bandera. The more signers, the better the chance of getting gas. Peters of San Antonio, and one brother, Dr. W. L. Langford of Hamilton, Texas. There are eight grandchildren.

Mr. Langford was a member of the Methodist church, and a long-time Mason, being a past master of Bandera Lodge No. 1123. He was also a Past Worthy Patron of the local chapter of the Eastern Star. In his younger days he taught school, and later became a partner in the mercantile business of W. J. Davenport & Co. When he retired from mercantile pursuits he accepted a position as office deputy under the late lamented Sheriff Elcho Hicks, and continued in this capacity under Sheriff Billy Burns for some years. He was one of the most methodical and painstaking officials this county has ever had. Some three years ago he retired from that position to look after his livestock interests, being associated with his son, Dr. C. H. Langford in the breeding and raising of Charlais cattle, and was meeting with extraordinary success in this enterprise.

He passing is deeply mourned by hundreds of friends throughout this section of the state, who knew him as a kind-hearted, honorable and upright gentleman, and a loyal friend and neighbor.

GARDEN CONVERSATION

By MRS. AL PLUMMER

Early morning finds us busy in town after the late outbursts and preparations to welcome visitors to the fall asters and early mums, "begin blooming." Planting must be done in the spring or early autumn. They are almost free from insects and diseases, require little care, and they be plant it so nearly any part of the garden. They look come in several shades of pink, red, crown, purple and bronze.

Find a good sunny site. Your daffodils will bloom more abundantly in fine spray for most of the day. They need the moisture, esp especially. The afternoon shade may be advantageous for light yellow varieties that fade and will darken the best of the day.

The best soil for flowers is a fairly heavy clay loam. A sandy soil, not sufficient for the best growth of the plant, but be sure that water does not stand around the roots. Avoid planting in low spots where water collects.

Fertilize in the spring with a complete fertilizer which is high in phosphorus and potash. Use a fertilizer low in nitrogen. Too much nitrogen will cause the plant to grow too much foliage and too few flowers.

Dig the bulbs when the foliage has turned yellow and has started to die down. Store in a cool, dry place.

Plant bulbs in groups of three or more. Plant them deep enough so that the bulb is covered with about two inches of soil. Space the bulbs about 6 inches apart.

Mrs. Plummer is a large and free-flowering hybrid. Flowers fully double and blush of them fade badly in the sun.

LONG BABY DIES

Medina Friends will be grieved to learn of the death of little Mrs. Shaggy Kenneth Long, 19 month old son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Long in San Antonio. The child was stricken with polio at the same time as her brother and died last Friday in the Robert B. Green Memorial Hospital in San Antonio. Mr. Long will be remembered by Medina friends as he was reared in the home of Mrs. Shaggy.

RE-ELECT PRESTON WEDGWORTH FOR COMMISSIONER PRECINCT NO. 1

Thanks, folks, for your honorable support in Saturday's election. Thanks everybody that voted showing your stand in Road and state affairs. I am afraid that many of you voters have been misinformed in your Commissioners' race.

Do you want corners, home owners and ranchmen want to be dictated to by contractors that have not paid one cent of taxes on thousands of dollars worth of equipment in the past five years?

Do you want bankers that are not paying any more on their bank than you are paying on your dwelling or home to have you advised how to vote or who to vote for?

Do you want speculators to come into our county and buy up thousands of acres and close the entire? No stock to pay taxes on and a big slice "Keep Out".

The same parties object to paying more than 1.00 to 2.25 per acre for Tax Valuation. Is that right?

I come from 1926 acres up in the hills and my real and personal property taxes were $98 last year. (1949). I paid taxes and licenses on 2 trucks, a tractor and a Buick in your precinct, a total of more than $800. If it is fair for me and the rest of you tax payers to pay your contractors and bankers and speculators, come on in—we need you.

Think this over you tax payers. I am for fairness to all and favors to none.

Authentic History of
Sam Bass and His Gang
By a Citizen of Denton County

When he arrived in Texas, Bass was about 19 years old and he was quite as poor a prospect for a hero as ever blossomed into notoriety. He was about five feet, eight inches in height, dark sallow complexion, dark hair, and brown or hazel colored eyes. He had a thinly scattered black beard, which habitually appeared about a week old. He was stooped in the shoulders, and wore a downcast look, more a look of embarrassment that of villainy. He rarely spoke, except when under the influence of whiskey, and when he did, his words were drawled out with a shrill, nasal twang that was devoid of melody and exhibited a total absence of refinement. He was still in all but trickery, but he it said to his credit he was a faithful and trustworthy servant. His employer, W. F. Egan, relied implicitly on his fidelity, and he is never known to have betrayed his trust while a member of his household. He did a kind of jobbing business with Egan's stages and lent a helping hand daily for several years was he one of the agents of Denton with the reins of his hosses in hand, driving father and brother with that same imperturbable coolness and nerve characteristic of him in after years, when engaged in the more exciting pursuit of stealing other people's property. So far, his life was not a bad one, and his general conduct was such as to elicit the confidence and esteem of all who knew him. But the evil genius that presided at his birth was not to be cheated of its victim, and the fatal propensity for gambling, which was destined to be the ruling passion of his life, was already developing itself in the quiet and unobtrusive manner that characterized all his movements. Boys will be boys, and Sam was not an exception to the rule. He was fond of a game of marbles, a game of ball, a game of cards, a game of anything that was a game, and was not particular what stakes he played for. He was not a quarrelsome boy, and rarely engaged in a fight, but he was always ready to accept the challenge of any one who wished to try his muscle, and was generally victorious in the struggle. He was not quick-tempered, but when aroused to anger he was terrible in his fury, and his antagonist found it to his interest to keep out of his way. He was not a coward, but he was prudent, and never sought a difficulty, but he never backed down from a fight. He was not quarrelsome, but he was always ready to defend his rights, and he was not overbearing, but he was always ready to defend the rights of others. He was not quick-tempered, but when aroused to anger he was terrible in his fury, and his antagonist found it to his interest to keep out of his way. He was not a coward, but he was prudent, and never sought a difficulty, but he never backed down from a fight. He was not quarrelsome, but he was always ready to defend his rights, and he was not overbearing, but he was always ready to defend the rights of others.

Fry states that Bass, however daring he may have grown in after days, was badly scared from the time of the rupture of the horse until they reached Weatherford, frequently expressing his alarm lest the parties would pursue and kill them. Sam having now the possession of the horse, Marcus tried the law on him, in the way of a civil action, by writ of sequestration. Sam employed attorneys and resisted them to fight it out on that line, if it took all he had to do it. Sam went in justice court, and was continued over three or four times. When examination came on at last, Marcus failed to appear, and Sam came off victorious. Marcus lived about fifty miles away, and had to pay a few trips with his witnesses for it to grow very much expensive to him. At length Marcus got a trial and won his case. Sam at once appealed to the district court, and from that good hour he regarded himself as the winner. He knew that Marcus had already paid out more than two such horses were worth, making periodical trips to court, and Sam thought he could see something faint and despondent in his looks. Marcus wanted to compromise. Sam referred him to his lawyers, whom he had instructed to compromise under no possible circumstances. At length Marcus, having to pay more than the value of his horse, was called on by his attorneys for their fees. He failed to fit up the fee, but sought to parley about it. Pending his parley his case was called up. Marcus had not arranged with his attorneys, they refused to represent him, and he enjoyed the experience of seeing judgment go against him, and Sam trot off with the horse. Sam had executed his note for his fee to his attorneys which was signed thus: "Sam R. Ikard," which was the only signature of this notorious character the author has ever seen, and he knows full well that in signing his own name Sam used a capital R and a capital A in Bass, and separated them by full colons so as to make the R appear like an initial. The next thing on the docket with Sam, now that he had beat Milner out of his horse, was to beat his attorneys out of their fees, which he did most successfully. By dint of fair attorneys and standing them off until the statute of limitations had run, Sam succeeded in beating his attorneys out of their fees, which he did most successfully. By dint of fair attorneys and standing them off until the statute of limitations had run, Sam succeeded in beating his attorneys out of their fees, which he did most successfully.

In this connection it will be proper to remark that the report that Bass, while in Sheriff Egan's employ, was "one of his deputies, and a faithful and trusted officer," is totally untrue. This statement has been made by a newspaper reporter, as coming from Egan himself, during a personal interview with the sheriff. But Mr. Egan characterizes the pretended interview as a fabrication, and that of it personally he never wrote him as saying that Bass was one of his deputies, or was unjustly falsehood. Bass never held a position while in Egan's employ than that of a teamster. He had no qualification whatever for business, and never had the confidence of any kind whatever in Denton county. Egan's opinion, with a number of other county officials, was that Bass was a worthless fellow, and had no friends in the country. The Fuller, Foster, and Egan families detested him for his cowardly, and that of general low cunning, in which latter, and great degree Bass special orders to operate in her presence, in which Tom Gerren, a deputy sheriff, would have threatened the life of the gambler, while endeavoring to quell the disturbance. Gerren asserts that Bass, in his extremity, came to his rescue and saved his life. The lady of the house was indignant at the conduct of the participants, and ordered the party out of the house, and gave

Livestock on the Highways

Livestock wandering at large along our highways is certainly a menace to safety. One of the dangers is on Highway 16, as a road left has fairly merry driving it. There are places where a lack of curves would permit driving at 70 miles per hour. The automobile ends there. But on the east side of the road, about a mile before the road ends, there is a curve. The driver of the road and starts to negotiate the curve, he finds himself confronted by a cow or a bull. There is no time to avoid the animal. Driver and car are in the ditch.

Brooks, Ramsey Forces Gird For Run-Off Battle

TO THE VOTERS OF PRECINCT NO. 3

I want to take this means to inform the voters of my action of the county commissioners court in regard to the road from Pipe Creek to Bandera.

I am not being run by an one faction or organization of people, but I am running strictly on my own. I would like to see the road from Pipe Creek to Bandera paved, but I also would like to see the roads in the mountains made passable.

Another reason is that my wife, the former Artie Steele of Pipe Creek, is related to Mr. Jim S. Ledbetter, Commissioner of Precinct No. 3, and Sheriff Joe Steele, and some Daniel Jr., Jerry and Bobby Hackney and also Dan and Hugh Steele and Mr. and Mrs. Lon B. Fisher.

The last meeting of the Commissioners' court of said county on the 13th day of March 1950, and that such court thereafter, on the 20th day of June 1950, heard and granted the same and ordered that such election be held on the 26th day of August 1950 and that the Judge of said county issue an order thereof in proper public notice thereof to be published in the Bandera Bulletin, a newspaper published in said county, Texas, which newspaper is described by notes and bounds as follows:

Beginning at the east corner of Bandera and Medina Counties on the West bank of the Medina River, thence down said river with the meander to the lower river Cor. of said Bandera and Medina Counties, thence S. 45 W. 1444 vrs. to the line S. 45 W. 753 vrs. with the E. line of Sur. No. 254 to N. W. cor. Sur. 254 A. M. J. Jordan 1466 vrs. to Pricher Cr.; thence down said creek with its meanders to the Medina River; thence down the Medina River with its meanders to the place of beginning.

That path shall be opened for each election at the schoolhouse at Pipe Creek, Texas and the Schoolhouse at Privilege, Texas, and it appearing to the undersigned Judge of said court that such petition was filed with the commissioners' court of said county on the 13th day of March 1950, and that such court thereafter, on the 20th day of June 1950, heard and granted the same and ordered that such election be held on the 26th day of August 1950 and that the Judge of said county issue an order thereof in proper public notice thereof to be published in the Bandera Bulletin, a newspaper published in said county, Texas, which newspaper is described by notes and bounds as follows:

Beginning at the east corner of Bandera and Medina Counties on the West bank of the Medina River, thence down said river with its meander to the lower river Cor. of said Bandera and Medina Counties, thence S. 45 E. 1444 vrs. to its East Cor.; thence

To Further Develop Bandera Estates

Ralph Hammett, owner and promoter of the Bandera Estates Subdivision, was up from San Antonio several days this week making preparations to further develop and expand the 200 acre tract of land on which he is planning to locate his beautiful addition to Bandera. Mr. Hammett inherited a bulletin representative that all of the litigation over the property has been settled satisfactorily, and all titles are clear, and he is now in a position to develop and sell the remaining lots. He is endeavoring to secure an extension of the Bandera water system and also sewage to serve the entire tract, and he definitely hopes he will succeed in doing so. Bandera Estates is located on a flat on the west side, and overlooks the city. Many new homes have already been built there, among them being the new home of Charles Eckhart, Fred Pringle, Wilson Meadows, Fred Mayfield, H. W. Western, Bob Richards, Sylvester Anderson, Dr. J. C. Dean, Mrs. Greenwald, J. E. Taylor, Wesley Sneed, and a number of others. Road streets and alleys have been provided for, being a heavily wooded area.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish in this way to express our thanks and appreciation to our friends and neighbors for their sympathy and many acts of kindness extended to us during the illness and death of our beloved mother.

Authentic History of
Sam Bass and His Gang
By a Citizen of Denton County
Printed in the Monitor Book and Job Printing Establishment
at Denton, Texas, 1878

It is not the writer's purpose to defend the name of such a man as Underwood. He is and was a bad character, —a malefactor and a renegade from justice before he joined his desperate fortunes with the bandits of Bass, but Henry had some virtues as many perhaps as any other of the gang. Before his outlawry he was known as a man who paid his debts, and who appeared to earn his living honestly. He was true to his attachments and would go to any length to accommodate a friend. He was courteous and warm-hearted when sober, and idolized his wife and children with the devotion of a true and dutiful husband and parent.

After about a year from his arrival in Texas he began to form evil connections, and soon fell into gambling and dissipation. He was now most frequently found about saloons and in company with rough characters. From he would succeed for the present with a considerable amount of money, but he was now associated with men who would not be satisfied with the spoils of legitimate business, and he was soon led into many disreputable scrapes. He was frequently arrested for disorderly conduct, and was often fined for such offenses. He was by no means a coward, and was always ready to fight when occasion required it, but he was not quarrelsome, and never provoked a difficulty. He was generally able to pay his fines and being a good citizen when not under the influence of liquor, he failed to attract much attention from the law. Pay them in advance and they consider that settlement clear gain. They will seldom cause the officer to perform their sentence. For this Henry was a favorite with the authorities while he performed the role of gentleman of leisure about Denton. It mattered not with him whether the darkey debtor had the "wherewith" that the law could reach or not. Henry was better than the justice of the peace, constable and sheriff combined, to collect a bad debt from a worse negro. His mode of procedure was thus: Armed with the claim and such weapons as he thought the case demanded, he would very courteously ask his victim on the shoulder. This was generally an hour when the least excitement was likely to occur, and one that would make the deepest impression on the credulous mind of the darkey. He would take his darkey around to some dark alley, and address him about this:

"You are owing Mr. Jones ten dollars, I believe?"

"Yah, sah—I—I—I

Authentic History of
Sam Bass and His Gang
By a Citizen of Denton County

He said that while he and Goodall were out looking for the horse they came to some water and he dismounted to get a drink. While he was bending down to drink Goodall drew his pistol, with the remark that he had Jackson where he had wanted to get him, and immediately fired upon him but missed his aim, whereupon Jackson sprang up and fired upon Goodall striking him in the side. Then, mounting his horse, a running fight ensued, in which Jackson shot Goodall in the forehead and killed him. As to the barbarous act of cutting the negro's throat the writer does not know of Jackson's ever giving any account. His statement was the only evidence for or against him, and that alone was insufficient to insure conviction; hence, to the great detriment of Jackson himself, he was never indicted or prosecuted for the homicide. Many regarded his story improbable, if not unreasonable, and in the interest of law and order, and for the welfare of Jackson himself, he should have been indicted and prosecuted. Such course would have tended to check him, and perhaps would have changed his whole career of life. Still, escaping scot free from the law's execution in this he was emboldened to embark in other crimes, and soon became an easy prey to the influences of Bass and men of kindred character. Jackson engaged in a cowboy life nearly a year after this. He finally returned home and resigned to work for his brother in law at his trade, to which he applied himself with earnestness for a brief spell.

In the fall of 1877 Sam Bass and Jack Davis—one of whom was in the Union Pacific Express robbery—appeared in Denton county, bringing with them some $2,000 in gold, the fruits of that gigantic outrage, the matter of which, coupled with the cajolery of Bass, who saw in Frank the right kind of timber for his purposes, completely won the soul of the young man. In spite of the entreaties of his kindred, Frank tore himself loose from every good influence and association to accept from Bass his offer of $100 gold per month to be an outlaw and renegade. Jackson was at this time about 21 years old, six feet high, tawny or sun-burned complexion, dark hair and rather blue eyes. He wore a kind of "devil may care" expression about his face. His look was either that of an impudent stare or vacant gaze. Very little expression for real soul characterized his features. He was beardless and looked younger than he really was. There was nothing attractive about his appearance, and very little that was positive. No man could read him—none divine from his exterior what lurked beneath. In the first flush of manhood, fearless, reckless and free, panting for adventure, it was not strange that he became identified with Bass and followed him faithfully into "ways that are dark and tricks that are vain."

Arkansaw Johnson

Of the private history of this member of Bass' gang but little is known. He was an Irishman and is said to have escaped from jail in Nebraska with Henry Underwood in the spring of 1878, where he had been confined for theft of some lumber. He was a man of heavy build, about five feet, eight inches high, ruddy complexion, blue eyes and light hair. His beard was a sun-burnt brown. His face was rather dished, and pitted with scars of smallpox. He is not known to have operated in Texas prior to his arrival with Underwood, whom he accompanied to Texas after their escape from prison in the spring of 1878. He was a Connacht, and in manner, as a Connacht, and in general appearance and bearing. From the best information that can be obtained of him he was a veritable brute in all but form, ready for any deed of devilry that his chosen chief, Sam Bass, might require of his hands. But very little is known of him, as his career in Texas was very brief and pointed.

Sebe Barnes.

Of the antecedents of this member of the Bass banditti comparatively little is known by the writer. He lived for some time in Denton county, having formerly resided in Tarrant county, where some of his near relatives now live.

Authentic History of
Sam Bass and His Gang
By a Citizen of Denton County

He worked awhile at the potter's trade, at A. H. Serrene's pottery about five miles south of Denton. He was of a wandering disposition, however, and, it seems, had no fixed or permanent abode. He was about 25 years of age at the time he met his death at Round Rock. He was rather slender in build, light complexion, had a large growth of beard on his face, which was dressed a la mode, and had even overhung by rather a heavy brow. The upper portion of his face was broad, while from his cheek bones downward it receded rapidly, leaving the region of his mouth and chin disproportionately small. His neck was unusually long, and his throat marked with a large Adam's apple. With such a physiognomy his appearance could not fail to be striking, and it would be hard, without his name or nickname, to overlook him. He was, however, like all of Bass' confederates, illiterate and ignorant on his knowledge, and it was decided by him for the benefit of the gang that he should not be known by his own name, but should assume that of Jack Davis, and by that name he was known to the gang.

Davis was a native of Illinois, and had been raised on a farm. He was a good hand at farming, and was also a good hand with horses. horse, and followed them close until he came upon them and demanded the animal. Davis told him that he had swapped for the horse and had given $20 to boot, and if he did give up the horse he thought the old gentleman ought to pay at least half of his money back. The old man became convinced of the truth of this statement, and Bass stated in relating this incident, that he believed the old man would have given back the money if he had had it. They let him take the horse without resistance. At length, having all mounted themselves, they began the business of stage robbing regularly, under the leadership of Joel Collins. Their first adventure was the robbery of a stage running between Deadwood and the mines, about ten miles from Deadwood in the summer of 1877. The fruits of this was the sum of eleven dollars.

They then learned that a certain government paymaster was to pass along the road, who was supposed to have a considerable amount of money. They concealed themselves in a ravine and awaited the approach of the prize. In due time the stage approached. As it drew near Bass, Collins and Heffrige arose from their concealment and presented their winchesters at the driver and ordered him to raise his hands, which he cheerfully did, with the remark: "Boys, I've got nothing for you this time; there's a dozen peaches in the stage that you are welcome to, if acceptable." "Well sir," said Jack Davis, and on examination they found and took the dozen peaches, but found not a cent of money. The paymaster had passed before they had their position, and they got the wrong stage this time. This was harrassing, and they were disappointed, but were mollified in the thought that they would strike the right coin after awhile. After about a week they again posted themselves on the line of their first robbery. The driver seeing them, exclaimed, "Well, boys, I've got nothing for you this time—not a cent on the whole line. Jones, who was an active spirit of all these robberies, replied, "We'll see," and proceeding to the coach succeeded to secure the best of the stage and to search through the whole, but they found no money. There were no passengers, and hence this was another sore disappointment. They then kept themselves quite still for a week or two, when they conveyed that Black Hill stages were poor game. Lodge, however, that a stage left Hastings every morning for one of their second robberies, they posted themselves in a good place in a brushy gulch, and waited the approach of the stage. When it was in position for attack, Bass, Collins and Heffrige rushed out from their hiding place and ordered the driver to halt. The driver, who was a stout, resolute man, refused to halt, and plied the whip lustily, and would have succeeded in running the stage off, but Bass shot the leader, which caused the stage to halt. The driver,

CULLING HENS FOR HIGH PRODUCTION

Now is the time to sell the poor producers from your flock. Hens molting in June, July and August are usually poor layers and are not going to lay in the fall when egg prices are usually high. If you have pullets that continue to molt until October or November they should be sold at once as they are not going to be profitable layers. Culling should be done now. Poultry Extension Service.

THE LITTLE POLIO BOX STILL WORKS

Several months ago we had a very sweet little boy with infantile paralysis here and the Bandera Lions Club sponsored a drive for the little fund. Mrs. Glenn Miller kept us informed from time to time of the progress the little boy was making and the amount of money deposited. Each week it would be given to the local polio fund. Mrs. Bill Reynolds and Mrs. Bill Sweet will take care of the box. Mrs. Miller reports that the collection of coins amounted to $13.13 which was given to the polio fund.

SERVICE MEN'S PICTURES WANTED

The Bulletin would like to get a picture of every Bandera county serviceman in their uniform in the armed services. If you have a picture of your boy in service during the present crisis, please bring it by the office. Unless very clear we cannot use kodak prints, as enlargements from these are very poor. We will appreciate your courtesy.

IN ADDITION TO credit controls in an effort to curb the trend toward inflation, both bodies believed essential. A new war time tax measure is now in the making and we can all expect our income tax to be upped during the next session.

The question of whether price and wage controls and rationing will be imposed up to this time will probably depend upon the success of voluntary controls. If price controls are imposed, they will probably be applied to all commodities and services, and will be administered by the Office of Price Administration, which was in charge of controls during World War II. Rationing would be applied to commodities only when it is necessary to assure that the armed forces and essential civilian needs are met.

O. C. BILLINGS AND IRVING BILLINGS, OWNERS

Authentic History of Sam Bass and His Gang

By A Citizen of Denton County
Printed in Low Monitor Book and Job Printing Establishment at Denison, Texas, 1878

About the first of September, 1877, Collins, Heffrige, Berry and Nixon met at Collins' house and were discussing plans for future operations, when Berry suggested that inasmuch as their stage robberies proved a poorly paying investment and that they were under a heavy suspicion there, it would be better to change their location and try something else, and mentioned the Union Pacific Express as being easy and might prove lucrative. It was known by the robbers that Gunnison or some other express messenger was in charge of the express car, with assistance of Collins and Heffrige. The plan was executed exactly. Collins and Heffrige boarded the engine room and arrested the engineer and fireman. Bass and Davis walked up to the express car and Bass gave three raps on the door. The messenger pulled the door a little ajar and Bass threw his pistol in his face and told him to "throw up his props", meaning his hands. Simultaneously with this Davis presented his pistol to the messenger. The messenger, seeing just the messenger inside the car, pistol in hand, and then followed, keeping his pistol on the messenger. He then searched the messenger and took his pistol and knife. Bass at once let the messenger know that he had come to open the safe. The messenger said he could not do it, that it was a time safe set at San Francisco and could not be opened at Omaha. Davis thrust the muzzle of his pistol into the messenger's mouth, lacerating his lip, and with profane oaths told him he was a liar and that he had to open it at once. The messenger protested that he would do so if it were possible, but it was impossible to open it, he could not do it; he had not the power to do it — that he had the papers to convince them of his inability to open it, and drew them out. Davis took the papers, but could not understand them. Bass then called Collins to come in and look at the papers. Collins came and looked at them. "Pshaw!" said he, "I can't read them in such dim light, but we can; let him alone." Bass then pressed up an ax and attacked the safe, but it resisted like a solid piece of iron, and he gave it up. The safe according to Sam's report, contained $40,000. In the train that the car there was a large safe or silver station in $1,000 boxes. This was too heavy, and the express agent refused it from their capacity.

From this they began to search about for what they had to be found. Bass attention was presently attracted to six small wooden boxes sitting stacked up by the side of the safe with sealing wax on them, bearing the impress of some one else. Bass said to the messenger, in his usual terse twang, "What's in here?" The messenger replied that he did not know. Bass raised one of them and gave it a slam against the floor, when out of it rolled $20 gold pieces in greater profusion than had ever before greeted Sam's hungry eyes. "Boys, this is good enough for me," said Bass, and immediately they seized the boxes, containing $10,000 each in $20 gold pieces of the San Francisco mintage of 1877, and bore them out of the car. Collins, Heffrige, Nixon and Berry stood guard over the boxes, holding the engineer and fireman with them, while Bass and Davis proceeded to plunder the passengers, from whom they obtained $400 in money and several gold watches. There were quite a number of passengers aboard, but they were so completely overwhelmed and terror-stricken that they made no show of resistance. So Bass and Davis took them by detail and went through the pockets of each in his turn. Bass, during his tour, came to an elderly man and proceeded to rob him; told him to "throw up his props". The victim threw up one hand. Bass did not notice it, but went into his pocket and drew out his purse, which contained about $20. Seeing that the man had put one hand up, he stormed out, "Hold up your other prop or I'll blow your brains out." At this the man threw up a stub, and said, "Sho, I have but one arm." Bass looked at him a moment, and then handed him back his money and said, "Here, I don't want a one-armed man's money."

After this, the train was permitted to pass on. They conveyed the boxes of money some two or three miles and buried it in the sand on the bank of the South Platte River. They then returned to Ogallala, where they remained two days. Finding no excitement or suspicion against them, they returned and divided the money, each receiving $10,000, which they placed in sacking sacks prepared for the purpose. They then again returned to Ogallala, where they had their horses shod, and set out in pairs. Bass and Davis and Collins and Heffrige struck out for Texas, while Berry and Nixon set out for Missouri. Bass and Davis traveled over the plains in a southward course. It was a dreary, desolate region. At night they camped on the open prairie, and used their bags of gold as anchors for their horses and they proved very effective for this purpose. Arriving in the settlements of Kansas they traded one of their horses for an old buggy and swapped the other for a horse that would work, and in this vehicle, with their bags of gold in the bottom of it, they drove leisurely along through Kansas and the Indian Nation, entering Texas at Red River Station, and reaching Denton county, the former home of Bass, on the first of November, 1877.

While passing through Kansas they encountered a squad of soldiers who were pursuing them. The squad encamped late in the evening on a small creek. Bass and Davis drove up and halted. The soldiers asked them if they had seen anything of two men on horseback, armed with winchester rifles, and sixshooters, driving a pack-pony. They said they had not; that they were farmers from Western Kansas; that their crops had failed and they were going to the eastern portion of the state, and probably to Missouri, the hunt unpleasant; and that they had seen different persons along the way but paid no attention to them. The chief of the squad said he was after some express robbers named Bass and Davis and furnished them with a description of them, with his address, so that if they should see such men they might communicate with him at once. They promised him to do so, and driving off a few rods, pitched their camp, and borrowed the soldiers' utensils to prepare their supper and breakfast. Next morning, after reassuring the officer that they would keep a sharp lookout for the robbers, they parted the best of friends.

BANDERA

SATURDAY IS BIG ELECTION DAY IN BANDERA

Saturday, August 26th, should be a big day in Bandera, for on that day the people generally will be busy at the stock law election, the State day law election, and the democratic run-off primary election. This is the first time in the history of Bandera that so many elections have been held on the same day. The voters will not be confused, for there are candidates on the tickets in only one of the elections—the run-off primary. In the other elections you cast vote, if you are a freeholder, for the does or for the cattle, sheep and goats, or against them, while in the run-off you can decide who you want to be your county commissioner, be sure to go and vote.

DISQUALIFICATION IS ONLY BASIS FOR EXEMPTION FOR RESERVE MEMBERS

Austin, Tex., Aug. 30—Physical disqualification is the only basis for exemption from active military service of members of the Army Organized Reserve Corps when called to active duty in case of national emergency, Brig. Gen. Oscar B. Abbott, Chief of the Texas Military District, stated here today.

However, delays may be authorized for compassionate or occupational reasons when applied for by the individual or, in case of occupational reasons, by the employer of the reservist.

Deferments, or delays for compassionate reasons, may be requested by the Texas Military District headquarters on up to a maximum of three months. Requests for deferment for a longer period must be forwarded on to higher authorities for final decision, Colonel Abbott explained.

When requested in writing by his employer, a reservist will receive consideration or deferment for occupational reasons or delay in order to complete a particular job. However, resort to such deferment or delay for occupational reasons will not be made if it is possible to obtain a replacement with equal training and experience.

It is the policy of the Texas Military District to defer or delay only in cases of extreme necessity, Colonel Abbott explained.

CHAPTER III

Death of Joel Collins, Bill Heffrige and Jim Berry.

Collins and Heffrige, after the dispersion of the band at Ogallala, set out in a southerly direction, across the plains of Kansas and Nebraska. The following account of their subsequent capture and tragic death, which appeared in the columns of the Denton Monitor, October 12th, 1877, is considered to be a correct statement, and as such we insert it:

The state authorities of Nebraska and the railroad company, for some reasons known only to themselves learned that the leader of the robbers was named Joel Collins, and large rewards were offered for both the state and the railroad company for the arrest of the robbers, which caused a vigorous hunt to be at once instituted. It was learned that the robbers after leaving the railroad at Ogallala, Kansas, struck out in a northwesterly direction for Custer City, in the Black Hills country, and from there to Deadwood, in Dakota, passing through Rapid City on the Kansas Pacific railroad, but not remaining in any of these towns for any length of time. This is a very rough country, and but little settled, being occupied principally by hunters and trappers, and is the favorite resort of Buffalo Bill, Wild Bill, and other noted characters. This is a very rough country, and but little settled, being occupied principally by hunters and trappers, and is the favorite resort of Buffalo Bill, Wild Bill, and other noted characters.

Nearby is a large ravine in which the sheriff and his posse camped. While there about 9 o'clok last Wednesday, the 26th. ultimo, Joel Collins, the chief of the train robbers, and a single adherant rode up to the lonely station."

The following account of the capture and subsequent death of Joel Collins and his companions we take from the Kansas City Times of September 28, 1877.

"They rode in from the North, coming in boldly over a high ridge of open prairie. They led between them a pony loaded down with a load of something which, while not bulky, seemed to tax the strength of the pony to carry it. The men were dusty and travel stained. They appeared to be and might have been taken for Texas cowboys out on a hunt for cattle or on their way to join a herd. Had they rode straight across the track and continued their journey without stopping, no suspicion would have been aroused; but they were led instinctively to their death. They rode their jaded horses to the shady side of the principal building of the station and one of the two dismounted, leaving his partner in charge of the horses and the pack pony. The man left in charge of the horses said they were Texas cattlemen on their way home and inspired the way to Fort Larned. The dismounted man walked up to the station agent and inquired the way to Thompson's store. The building was pointed out to him, but as he stood conversing he took out his handkerchief, which revealed a letter in his pocket upon which was plainly visible the superscription, 'Joel Collins.' This was the name of the leader of the Union Pacific train robbers, and the brands on the horses assured the station agent that those were the men tracked by the sheriff and his soldiers, encamped a few hundred yards away. Sheriff Bardsley was notified at once and he came to the station, examined the horses and made other observations. He conversed with the station agent for some time and asked many questions, which were freely answered.

The sheriff together with the station agent took a drink, and conversed upon various diversified topics. Collins made no effort to conceal his real name. He had no suspicion whatever that the telegraph had given his name and description at that little station in the middle of the prairie telephone. Bardsley then left his post and started back to his posse of soldiers, who were under the command of Lieutenant Wilkinson, and told them to saddle up and follow him, as he would bring some of the Texans in the morning. The soldiers, who were under the command of Lieutenant Wilkinson, with the exception of seven, had dismounted on the open plain south of the station. Bardsley and his party started out in the direction of the station, with the sheriff in advance. His suspicions were aroused when the sheriff and his detached posse of cavalry appeared on the scene, but he soon found out to his satisfaction that his men were not to be molested or interfered with. They did not seem disposed to run. On the contrary, the rode on leisurely as the Texas train until sheriff Bardsley rode up and halted them. Even then they gave no sign of trepidation for excitement. Collins looked at Bradsley with the coolest effrontery and demanded his business. Said Sheriff Bardsley:

"I have a description of some train robbers which answers well to your appearance. I want you and your partner to return with me to the station. You need fear nothing if you are innocent, but if you are the men I want, then I am $10,000 better off. Please come back to the station gentlemen."

"You are mistaken in your men, gentlemen," replied Collins, laughingly, "but of course there is no use to object. We will go back and have the mistake explained. We are Texas boys going home, that's all."

They then turned their tired horses back toward the station. As they turned they exchanged a few brief words which were unintelligeable even by the nearest trooper. They rode a few hundred yards over the level plain toward the solitary station, when suddenly the leader, Joel Collins, broke the silence. Turning to his companion, he said:

"Pard, if we are to die, we might as well die game."

Then he drew his revolver. His partner followed his example, but before either could fire the troopers had fired a volley into them, and they fell from their horses riddled with bullets. The robbers died instantly and were taken to the station for burial, but afterward taken to Ellis Station, where an inquest was held and where the bodies were buried. About $25,000 in $20 gold pieces were found upon the pony. The coins were of the date of 1877. The wealth weighed nearly 100 pounds, and was tied up in a pair of old trousers with the lower ends tied together and thrown over the pony's back, with blankets spread over all. A small piece of paper was found on Collins' body, upon which was written a poetical effusion by a lady, and dedicated to Joel Collins."

"Collins' companion was a young man named Heffrige, who is supposed to have formerly resided in Texas. We learn today that the brothers of Joel Collins will start from here today to take charge of his remains and probably bring them to Dallas."—Dallas Herald.

It seems that Nixon and Berry separated after they left Ogallala, the former making his way to Florida, and the latter to the neighborhood of Mexico, Anderson County, Missouri, where he had lived. He seems to have been a very unwary caracter, and doubtless thought himself safe at this great distance from the theater of his crime. He made no secret of his possession of $10,000 gold, which he claimed to have acquired by making speculations in the Black Hills. This tale was regarded as very doubtful if not unreasonable by those who had known him for he was notoriously wild, and thrifless, hence it was not long before he began to be suspected strongly as being one of the U. P. express robbers. Shortly after his arrival he exchanged with the Bank of Mexico $9,000 of his gold for currency. On the same day he ordered, at a tailor's an elegant suit of clothing and left town.

Washington Newsletter
By Congressman O. C. Fisher

Last week the House worked more valuable for our domestic defense reports, passed a supplemental bill that was passed in the to authorize the spending of House with but 20 dissenting secretary and defense appropriations. It was much stronger bill. Before passing it, however, the House struck out a section that would have given the President authority to allocate scarce materials and controlled materials and facilities. This section was stricken out on a point of order. The House then passed the bill by voice vote.

The defense draft will enable the armed services to obtain the men they need. Selective service officials have indicated that the draft will be used only as a last resort. The measure is in addition to the voluntary enlistments now being made in the armed services. Under the draft bill, men between the ages of 18½ and 26 may be drafted for a period of 21 months' service. The draft bill will not affect men who are now in the armed services. Men who are now in the armed services will be required to serve only the time remaining on their enlistments.

The House also passed a bill to increase the pay of members of the armed services. The bill provides for a 10 per cent increase in the pay of all members of the armed services. The officers being informed of these facts kept a sharp lookout for his return for his mail, but instead of coming himself he sent another partner for the outfit. The partner was followed by the officers to where Henry Underwood lived. Part of the outfit was found in his house. Underwood was arrested by the officers in the house, after a struggle, in which he fought desperately, and was finally overpowered by numbers. He was taken to Dallas, and lodged in jail. Subsequently he was released on bail, and went home. Attempts were made to arrest him at his home, but he escaped. He was afterwards arrested, when he was taken to Dallas, and lodged in jail. He

IN MEMORY OF ERNEST ADAMS

THE VALLEY OF SORROW

I came to the valley of sorrow,
But there was no walking beside me,
And when I look back to the valley,
The shadows have fallen between.

For I passed then the door of my father,
And stood in the room of my mother,
There was the moonbeam's foot mother,
And there was the mark of his mother.

Yes, as I look back to the valley,
Before the regular meeting
I pass by my Valley of Blessing,
To properly be called to mind.

And consider the room to my mother,
And there was the mark of his mother.

I came to the valley of sorrow!
And my troubled spirit was there,
And there was the mark of his mother,
And there was the mark of his mother.

Then I bowed down in prayer,
And there was the mark of his mother,
And there was the mark of his mother.

They began to grow weary of this lame pace of existence, and concluded to try another stage robbery. They started for Fort Worth about the middle of February, for the purpose of tapping the stage running between Fort Worth and Weatherford. Passing the former place they marched to look for a suitable spot for their operations, which they found at a gulch near Mary's Creek, about midway between Mansfield and Fort Worth. They tied their horses, and making themselves busy they laid in wait for the roadside. In due time the stage came up. Sashington reached out from the bushes and presented his guns on the driver, saying that they wanted some money. Bass called for the passengers to step out, which was promptly obeyed. No resistance was offered, and Bass went through them in small, getting about $70 in money and two gold watches.

[illegible] He proceeded to the stage, and ordered the driver to throw out the express box. The driver replied that he had no express box. Bass replied that he knew he had, and that he must throw it out. The driver still refused, when Bass presented his gun at his head, and told him that if he did not throw out the express box he would blow his brains out. At this the driver threw out the express box, which was broken open, and the contents appropriated by the robbers. The amount of the express matter was not known, but is believed to have been about $2,000.

A few days after the robbery of the express car, Arkansas Johnson, a resident of Denton county, left his home, and has not been heard of since. The general impression is that he was murdered by his companions, but this is not believed by his friends. From the evidence before the writer, he is inclined to the belief that he was murdered by his companions. POSTED NOTICE

OUR
By Congressman O. C. Fisher

"The action of the Senate Agriculture Committee the other day added more and more to what was already a full million acres of cotton acreage to be allotted to those who have been growing cotton. Under the present law, the Secretary of Agriculture is required to allot cotton acreage based on a 10-year average of the past. Congress authorized this method of allotment because it was felt that it would be fair to all concerned. Each year Congress authorized the Secretary of Agriculture to add to the acreage allotments to meet the needs of the country. Congress stepped up with the Korean fighting and put out an order to increase cotton acreage 15 per cent. Then the Senate Agriculture Committee added a million acres to the 15 per cent increase. The House bill contains no such provision. The Senate bill now goes to conference committee where the House and Senate will try to work out their differences. Then the bill will be voted on by both Houses and sent to the President for his signature. It is hoped that this can be done before Congress adjourns.

Among recent visitors here were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Barnett of Beaumont. Mr. Barnett is a brother of Mrs. Ralph Sweet, Methodist minister here. Mr. Barnett is the former Texas manager of the Dodd Popular Music Department of Howard Dodd, Inc.

Authentic History of
Sam Bass and His Gang
As a Citizen of Denton County
Printed in the Monitor Book and Job Printing Establishment

Sydwood was subsequently tracked convicted of Mexican crimes and punishment assessed at 99 years in the penitentiary. He, however, obtained a new trial, which he is now awaiting in jail at McKinney. The foregoing account is not intended to palliate his case. He protests his innocence of the crime for which he was convicted, and says he has requested the facts stated herein to be carefully investigated, and the paper extracts on page 54 [illegible] [illegible]

CHAPTER VII

Bass and His Gang Rob the Express Car on the Texas Central

Bass and his gang, consisting now of "Buckey" Jack Sorrels and Frank Jackson, left Dallas on Saturday evening, and in their retreat in Hickory Ridge for the purpose of dividing the booty. Here they met Joe Sydwood, Bill Heffington and Tom Nixon, who had been left behind to watch the horses. Here they took breakfast on Sunday morning, and after feeding their horses, started on their journey. They took the road leading to Hackberry Creek, in Denton county, and on reaching that point, about 10 o'clock, they halted and divided the money. Each man received $4,900. They stated that they could have taken a lot of booty, but didn't wish to be encumbered with it. Having thus added one more infamous outrage to the catalogue of their crimes, this trio of villains escaped over the Arkansas to their retreat among the pine hills and thickets of Hopkins County.

In leaving the currently reported for this time that Sam Bass, one of the perpetrators of the Big Springs robbery, and three long, heavy, pounds edited for him, by Hunt, sheriff of Denton county, began to devise plans to bring him. No one in Denton county suspected that Bass was in that section of Texas, and the officers of the county had no conception of the fact that he had secreted their plans with such ingenuity and artfulness that it did not seem possible that these men had answered to the uniformly peculiar description of the robbers. Bass and Jackson, it was known, had been seen frequently, but, almost daily, in different persons passing the Denton and Dallas road, could be the perpetrators. Nevertheless, Sheriff Egan, before stated, being satisfied that they meant no good to society, engaged Wm. Mayes as a spy, and sent him into their camp to ferret out their designs, and thus [illegible] Mayes, as will be seen, was to serve all purposes, Hardly seems well possible that these men

MR. & MRS. HAROLD BROOKS

WHEN BIG FAMILIES WERE THE RULE

A half century ago large families were the rule—not the exception. A family of husband and wife and ten or twelve children were not unusual things; in fact, the pioneers expected to "multiply and replenish the earth," and such a thing as "birth control" was not thought of by the hardy, virginal first settlers. Old Amasa Clark, who died here at the age of 102 years, was the father of nineteen children, seventeen of whom grew to manhood and womanhood, and some lived to ripe old age. Mr. Clark became the father of twins when he was past seventy. And there was Uncle Phillip Maunsell, who died some years ago; he was the father of seventeen children. Families of fifteen children in a family in those days was little thought of. But those good old days of large families are gone forever. Now the modern parent with as many as six or eight children would expect a liberal pension from the government.

SCHMIDTKE WEDS

Schmidtke, Jr., of Bandera, were married Saturday morning, September 23, at 10 o'clock in the Holy Family Catholic Church in Bandera. Rev. E. L. Owens of Austin officiated at the double ring ceremony before an altar banked with white gladioli and ferns.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a white satin gown fashioned with a fitted bodice and full skirt ending in a long train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was held in place by a crown of seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

Miss Mary Ann Schmidtke, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a pink satin gown and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

In the cage he had a wood-pecker, which he demonstrated "Old Rosicut Dick," (Bass' sobriquet) Jackson himself, and Bass' self. He then called the Denton jailor, Hall Hales. He would step around the cage and tell the wood-pecker with a sharp stick, who imitated the jailor to the letter, to "become enraged and some remarkable developments would be made." Bass would then step up to the cage and tell the wood-pecker to "keep cool, Dick, keep cool." The wood-pecker would then imitate Bass to the letter. He would then

WHEN BIG FAMILIES WERE THE RULE

A half century ago, large families were the rule—not the exception. A family of husband and wife and ten or twelve children was no uncommon thing; in fact, the pioneers expected to "multiply and replenish the earth," and each "is living on earth content" was not thought of by the lusty, vigorous first settlers. Old Amasa Clark, who died here at the age of 102 years, was the father of nineteen children, seventeen of whom grew to manhood and womanhood, and some lived to ripe old age. Mr. Clark became the father of twins when he was past seventy. And there was Uncle Phillip Maurick, who died some years ago; he was the father of seventeen children. Twelve to fifteen children in a family in those days was little thought of. But those good old days of large families are gone forever. Now the modern parents with as many as six or eight children would expect a liberal pension from the government.

LET THERE BE PEACE" — This year's theme for United Nations Day — "Let there be peace" — was chosen as a prayer on the lips of people everywhere.

Five years have passed since the day San Francisco, where the charter was signed — five difficult years when nothing came easy for us, in the enthusiasm of the days when we were first free to borrow and harden of the task, thought that it would. And looking back on those years it is a matter of choosing United Nations effectiveness in the affairs of the world. We five million children whom have been saved by the United Nations. We see a medical assistance program personally by fifty cents a year. We see the world's food and agricultural situation improved by appreciable sums to some the pledges that we made at San Francisco and, for the most part, resolutely we place our faith and work on the side of the United Nations and pray to be matched.

United Nations Day remains the symbol of dedication to peace and progress which is believed throughout the world in countries of widely different heritage and habit. Its observance has become an international tradition. Last year it was brought to a new high in forty-four countries.

This year, too, it will be observed. Let us pray not only to strengthen the purpose of peace but to speed the day when peace may come. Perhaps in some corner of every heart and every home will be found a special call [illegible] It will come when Christian men and women and children of every background work hard enough and sacrifice self enough to spread the love of Jesus Christ in the hearts of mankind everywhere. Authentic History of
By a Citizen of Denton County
Printed in Law Monitor Book and Job Printing Establishment at Denton, Texas, 1878

On the Saturday preceding the Mesquite robbery, mentioned hereafter, certain parties from Eagle Ford, as they started, ran across Henry Underwood and Frank Johnson in the woods some distance below Denton.—We give below an extract from a letter from Denton to one of the Dallas papers containing one version of this encounter:

"The parties mentioned above as meeting the desperadoes in the woods, were private detectives from Dallas. The history of the adventures of this squad, in Denton county, is as follows:

"The next morning after the Eagle Ford robbery, Samuel Fenley, Jane Peak, James Curry and one other from Dallas, struck a hot trail leading northward from the railroad and followed it to the cross-timbers in Denton county. They continued through the timbers toward Denton, and when within about three miles of that place, near the farm of Capt. R. H. Hopkins, they suddenly came upon two men asleep in the woods. They had ridden past them when someone discovered the men and their horses which were picketed near by. The men soon decided upon their course. Half of the squad remained with the horses, while the rest, as Jones and Peak say, "crawled on all fours." A word or two then passed. The detectives still not feet sure of their men and were afraid to shoot for fear of killing innocent parties. While they were lying concealed and with a view of ascertaining the identity of the men, they heard a third party approaching from the direction of Denton, and soon saw them through the woods. The fellow rapidly approached their position, and when he got near enough, did not parley—then, but fired at Underwood, one of the detectives. Several persons of the party now fired, but the first shot was the only one that took effect. They walked and shot at each other, and the detectives charged toward the fellow, who broke and ran. In the meantime the other two men had mounted their horses and fled Approximately [illegible] of the Medina football fans and rooters came back from Hondo[illegible] last Friday night after the Medina Indians had defeated the Hondo Bulldogs by a score of 20 to 0. The game was played on the Hondo field and was the first game of the season for both teams. The Indians scored in the first quarter when Quarterback George Ed Bandy passed to Halfback Jack Graham for a touchdown. The addition to Jack Graham's team has greatly bolstered and is now filled with material that could easily be developed into championship caliber. Graham is a transfer student from Hondo where he starred in football for two years. He is a graduate of Hondo High School and has attended Junior College. He is married and has a baby girl. He is employed by the Medina Telephone Company and is a member of the Medina Volunteer Fire Department. Graham is a fine addition to the Medina team and to the community.

Mrs. Ruth Bandy, mother of George Ed Bandy, Medina quarterback, received a letter from her son Wednesday stating that he had been elected captain of the Medina team for the remainder of the season. George Ed is a junior in high school and is a fine leader for the team. He is a good passer and a fine ball handler. He is also a good defensive player and is a hard tackler. He is a member of the Methodist Church and is a fine boy in every respect

And also the following letter from the correspondence of another eye witness which is clipped from the Monitor of the same date:

"W. D. Lacy, a leading dry goods merchant of Ozark, Ark., is in the city, having arrived Saturday evening last. He is the son of Mrs. S. E. Lacy of this city, and is well known to all of our old citizens. He was on the train that was robbed by fifteen armed men at Mesquite at 10 p. m. on the night of the 11th inst. He did not know any of the robbers, but believed by the remarks made by some of them that they were from Dallas. For instance, when the peanut vender on the train appeared with a pistol in his hand one of the robbers cried out, 'We don't want any peanuts—you get back.' This indicated that the robbers were not rank strangers to the employees of the train. He says the peanut boy, the messenger and the conductor displayed a great deal of pluck. Conductor Alford emptied his pistol and during the time was the recipient of a running shot-gun fire from the robber that was firing at him. Said the robber: 'You are a brave fellow, but you are a fool.' The conductor made no reply, but seemed to be in no hurry to get from the robber. The messenger also acted with commendable coolness. He says he was trying to hold on to the money, but finding that the robbers would be hard to fool in the matter, he thought it best to let them have it. The express car was robbed of $150 in cash, and one package containing $1,000 in gold. The $1,000 was not taken. Mr. Lacy says the whole affair was conducted by the robbers in a quiet manner. The object of the party seems to be to get the money and avoid bloodshed and disorder. At no time was he excited with apprehension from remarks overheard. One man said for a precaution which seemed considerable, that the robbery was to be a bloody affair. Mr. Lacy says he was not disturbed in the least, and that he was treated with the utmost politeness by the robbers. He says he was warned them of that it was dangerous to resist, but they had better stay at home but they desired to have nothing to do with the passengers or their property. He says the robbers were evidently from Dallas, as they were acquainted with many of the citizens of that place. They were dressed in good clothes, and presented a fine appearance. They were not rough looking men, and that is why he was surprised at the robbery.

The robbery at Mesquite, the officers of the express company and the passengers on the train were all more or less excited with Sam Bass, having received a fresh impetus in their minds from the late robbery, and the citizens of Dallas, particularly those who had been robbed, were thoroughly aroused. LOOKING BACKWARD

Twenty-Five Years Ago
(From the Bandera New Era, Oct. 18, 1925. Published by J. Marvin Hunter.)

It took a Bandera man to show the assembled thousands in San Antonio just how the man of the frontier appeared in 1836, as he drove the herds on the long trip to the northern markets. J. A. Miller appeared in the parade in a outfit that attracted attention everywhere. He wore an old slouch hat, the front pinned back with a mesquite thorn; his jacket was of buckskin, worn and fringed; his trousers were old ducking, and patched. Bright shoes encased his feet and they were tied with buckskin strings; old scratched and faded leather leggins encased his lower limbs; a dirty looking jacket hung from the saddle horn; a blanket was tied behind the saddle, and all full of ancient vintage, a wallet was across the saddle, filled with a trail driver's outfit. Through a hole in the crown of his hat protruded tufts of hair. He had his mustache blacked, and very few people recognized him as he passed down Houston Street amid the cheering throngs. Mr. Miller was awarded the first prize for the most typical get-up in the parade.

Bob, Dunlap and sisters, Misses Mina and Elmira Dunlap, of Pipe Creek, left this week for Toleta, Texas, where Mr. Dunlap will take charge of an irrigation farm.

Commissioners court was in session Monday, all commissioners being present, John L. Edwards, R. L. Mervis, J. V. Porter and Anton Pyka.

Dr. and Mrs. J. O. Butler visited relatives at Fredericksburg last Sunday, returning Monday. They were accompanied home by little Billie Guffy, who will spend awhile with them.

Elton Nesbitt and Virgil Mc Cuistry, the Bandera Fiddlers, entertained the old trail drivers with some selections at the reunion at San Antonio last week, and furnished the music for some dancing.

The addition of "Bye Whacky" made a decided hit with the crowd last night. This feature has been in vogue for the past several weeks and is proving very popular with the audiences. It is a novel entertainment by the partners who entertain the crowd between dances.

INCREASE IN SCHOOL CHILDREN TRANSPORTED DURING PRESENT TERM

The increase in school children transported to consolidated schools during the present term is shown by an increase over last year's enrollment of 1,000 pupils, according to a statement issued by Dr. L. A. Woods, state superintendent of public instruction.

Dr. Woods said that the increase in pupils transported to consolidated schools is the largest increase ever recorded in any one year in the history of the Texas State Department of Education.

The increase in pupils transported during the present term has made necessary the purchase of 1,000 additional school buses, Dr. Woods said. Texas now has 7,000 buses in operation, he said.

Approaching Carter's he found Carter at his house, and while in conversation about them, was discovered by Bass and his gang, who saddled their horses immediately and struck off in a full run on the way they had come, Bass exclaiming "To Clear Creek bottom, boys." Wetsel fired a signal shot, and taking a stand near their path dismounted and opened fire on them. Capt. Whitehead, Jack Yates, and Finley Ferguson dismounted and opened fire on them as they ran. The forces of Egan closed in and a rapid running fight ensued for the distance of a quarter of a mile, in which all of Egan's men who could get in gunshot range took part. The robbers yelling and firing back as they went. Sheriff Egan, Alex Cockrell, Tom Yates, McIntire, Hart and Dode Pain pressed them closely until they entered the woods near Etter's, when the robbers dodged them and made a detour around, falling in on the south of their pursuers and pressing southwestward toward the swamps of Elm. The result of the fight was several buckskin colored horses and trinkets dropped by the robbers on their retreat. No one was hurt on either side. Egan for something but their trail, but soon struck it again and pursued them with the utmost speed. The news flew like lightning over the country, and before 10 o'clock there were a dozen men from all the surrounding country were all going with excitement. Parties from the city, armed with their guns and ready for the fray, as soon as he had on the premises, mounted and set out to reinforce Egan, and by night another force of about 30 men had joined the party. This night the entire party camped on the road, to intercept Denton that night, as the movements of the rapidly accumulating posse indicated. Before night the squad divided and worked in different directions, but all going south eventually

Medina PTA carnival activities will begin with the crowning of the king and queen at the school auditorium beginning at 8 p. m. Tickets purchased for the coronation will also entitle holders to a dance at the Circle R Ranch, which will begin immediately after the royal event. On the following day, the gay activities will continue along Medina's main street, with the booths opening at 12 noon and closing at 6 p. m.

Highlights of the afternoon will be the parade, led by the school band, and the football game between D'Hanis and the hometown team.

Medina's famous cakes, sandwiches and coffee will be sold during the game.

MEETING NOTICE

The next regular meeting of the Bandera Tourist Association will be held on Monday, October 30. Two major subjects will be on the agenda: 1. Election of officers, and 2. election of the ninety arrangements for Hospitality Week. The meeting will be held at the office in the Judge Roy Bean building. All are urged to attend.

CORPUS OFFICIALS MAY HONOR ROUNDUP DANCE

A letter from Mayor Leslie Wasserman of Corpus Christi to the Bandera Tourist Association states "Thank you very much for your invitation to attend the Bandera Roundup Dance at Rob's Place in Robstown Wednesday night, October 25. I will try my best to be there. . . ."

Sheriff John Harney of Corpus Christi has also been invited to attend the Bandera event, but as we go to press, no word has been received from him.

Both Mayor Wasserman and Sheriff Harney are most gracious in the cowbelles and delegates who visited Corpus Christi during Buccaneer Days to advertise our Stampede. It is hoped Banderans will have an opportunity to entertain them at the Roundup in their neighboring town of Robstown. Sheriff Harney has numerous friends in Bandera and being a ten-gallon-hat and boots-wearing sheriff, it is believed he will make an effort to attend the Roundup Dance.

CARD OF THANKS

The Band Sponsors Club would like to express our thanks to everyone who helped with the Lion's Club Show. Special mention is due to Bill Smith in putting on the Movie.

JAMES KERR LAID OUT GONZALES

James Kerr was born in Danville, Kentucky, September 21, 1796, and when he was thirty-five years old he became manager for Green DeWitt's Colony. In 1825 he surveyed and laid out the town of Gonzales. Among his assistants in surveying the site was Deaf Smith, later to become a famous scout. Major Kerr, who had been a close friend of Daniel Boone, received the first grant of land within DeWitt's territory. Despite wrangles with another empresario, Martin de Leon, DeWitt's colony was successfully planted in Texas. Kerr county, and the county seat, Kerrville, were named for the Kentuckian, when they were created in 1856. One hundred and sixty-six land titles were issued by Major Kerr as DeWitt's manager.

You Can't Build A Better Mousetrap!

"They're not the best-looking boarders a man ever had," Hub Turner said one day, "and they put a real dent in the Joe Bond pay-check every week. But—"

From where I sit, when someone shows a genuine, upright way of getting ahead, it usually just heaps on misery when folks can't or won't do likewise. For instance, some folks envy us because we're always getting ahead of them in the race for success. But those of us who enjoy an occasional spirit stimulant here and there know we aren't quite able to feed more pretty good birds at dad.

Authentic History of
Sam Bass and His Gang
By a Citizen of Denton County
Printed in the Monitor Book and Job Printing Establishment

"Deputy Sheriff Freeman was informed last week by a woman of the neighborhood, near Caddo Creek, that parties answering to the description of the train robbers were there. He, with one ranger, and Messrs. Arnis and Paschall of this town, went into that section to ascertain something more definite and learned that Ross, Underwood, Jackson, Barnes and two others, supposed to be Welch and Collins, (Henry Collins had joined the band sometime previous to this) had been camped in the mountains for upward of two weeks. A brother-in-law of Jackson and several other kin and friends are living near Caddo Creek and had furnished them with supplies. They are reported to be flush with twenty dollar gold pieces, and from events developed more recently they are found to have many friends in this vicinity. Having obtained the desired information, the ranger reported to his company at Decatur county, and the balance reported to Parker county, where sheriff Meadows and Deputy Freeman (Hankerson), were sheriff Meadows and Deputy Freeman (Hankerson), were also collected several picked men, and on Sunday started to the scene of action. At midnight they met many for reinforcements, and twenty-odd shot guns were collected together, the number of volunteers in force all of them determined to capture or kill the robbers. On the afternoon of the 4th they struck the Pilot Point and Denton road, at a point where they learned from citizens that the robbers had passed but a few hours before. Here the party was reinforced by some three of the party who had escaped from camp, and the balance reported to be encamped on Hickory creek, about 15 miles from Denton. It was thought by some that the robbers would attempt to pass around Denton, and others that they would go through the town. As the gang of robbers neared town the sheriff's party had been joined by the boys from the mountain district, the whole force numbering about 75 men. On Monday night they camped among the Hickory creek timber, and the sheriff's party were glad to learn that the robbers were encamped on the opposite side of the creek

Authentic History of
Sam Bass and His Gang
By a Citizen of Denton County.
Printed in the Monitor Book and Job Printing Establishment at Denton, Texas, 1878

Here his forces separated into squads to hunt provisions for themselves and horses, neither man nor horse having eaten a morsel during that long, hot day of excitement. Many of the men had eaten only one meal in two days. After the dispersion, John Carroll, deputy sheriff, Jim Carter, city marshal of Fort Worth, Bill Weeks and Jack Wynn accidentally ran across the robbers about sundown and chased them into Elm Swamp, where they disappeared. They were seen no more until next morning at the town of Bolivar about daylight. The wily Bass had remounted his gang during the night and rode out of the trap his pursuers had laid for him. At Bolivar they laid in some $50 worth of supplies and five hundred rounds of ammunition. The news came to Egan and his forces who required at once to Bolivar to find the gang gone. Everheart, sheriff of Grayson county, Parish, deputy sheriff of Cooke county, and Deputy U. S. Marshal Walter Johnson, with a posse of ten or twelve, left Bolivar on Pond Creek, in Cooke county, near the line, about 12 o'clock on Monday. The robbers were in camp and just preparing to satiate their hunger with the supplies they had purchased in Bolivar. They had just got sugar in their coffee when they discovered Everheart dashing on them at full speed. Up their sprang, leaving everything behind but guns and horses, and in a wild stampede dashed across the prairie toward Clear Creek. Everheart and his men pursued in full run, shooting every time. It was a pull for dear life with Bass and his wearied and hungry freebooters. Over one beautiful stretch of twelve miles, that they reached the bluffs of Clear Creek at last at a point where nothing but a mountain goat or terrified train robber would think of descending. They had no time to look out a convenient place, it was "all business," with him now, as Bass urged on. Everheart, Parish and Johnson were right at their heels, and down they dashed over the bluffs, and escaped into the swamps of Clear Creek. Everheart and posse arrived on the point where they went over, but their lives not being at stake, and not caring to stake them in a wild leap down a precipice after Bass they sought a better point of crossing, during which delay Bass escaped and pushed on to the prairie beyond.

John Carroll, son of Egan's deputies, Stoker, deputy sheriff of Tarrant county, and W. P. Withers, having become separated from the sheriff's posse, struck the trail of the fugitive west of Clear Creek and pursued it westward. Mr. Wise stands where they crossed Clear Creek and his description of the ground about the crossing, and the direction they took is correct. Stoker, Stephens & Co. struck the trail on the 12th of June, about 2 miles on the prairie west of Clear Creek, and about 15 miles south of Denton. Here they found the tracks of the robbers' horses, and the ground showed how they had scattered in their flight. Following the trail of which they were sure, they crossed them so many times that they concluded that the robbers had scattered, and the whole party had taken from Martin, the trail they had taken from Martin, the course the thieves followed was about behind one of the robbers. Pushed to Elizabethtown, where they found a horse that had been stolen from Mr. Bowles, who lives near Pilot Point. Here they found the horse tied to the fence, belonging to John Peath, a boy who lived in Denton. Underwood seized from his coat behind him, rode and rode. John's mare, seeing nothing to John as he left, had begun to become the poor animal.

Passing back of the Hick's field, they suddenly diverged to the left and resumed their course, and continued in a northerly direction, passing about five miles east of Denton, making for Clear Creek. The sheriff and his posse lost the trail at Hicks' field, having been misled by the tracks of some other passing party of citizens and it was not until some hours that they struck the trail again. The men, who were following the trail of Underwood, Carroll, Stephens & Co. were also following the same trail from Johnson's dead body and also fired on Underwood. Underwood ran back to his horses but did not stop to secure them. He passed them as fast as his horse could run. Peak and his men seeing these horses and supposing the men mounted upon them, fired and killed two of them. This was done by order of Peak. The three remaining horses were captured and conveyed to the battlefield, where lay the body of Johnson. The rest of the robbers were close by in a thicket, all afoot. June Peak ordered his men to go into camp. Withers, Stoker, Buffalo Bill and others insisted that the thicket be surrounded and the robbers could be captured without the firing of a gun. Peak replied that "he thought it not best to surround the thicket and go in, as there was danger of getting some of his men killed." The above information we obtain from an eye-witness. It is remarkable that the robbers so situated should have been permitted to escape. It looks that the white feather was shown at the most critical moment of the affair. Mr. Withers says that the reason the citizens present did not go in the thicket alone was that Stephens had gone in quest of a coroner, and that all present had submitted themselves to the command of Peak. The robbers stole fresh horses that night and made good their escape. After the inquest Johnson was buried on the spot.

"In justice to Capt. Peak it is proper to state that he denies giving orders not to surround the thicket after the fight. He also states that Sergeant Floyd killed Johnson. John Carroll and Stoker both claim to have sent the deadly missive at the life of that unsouth outlaw. It is probable that no one knows definitely who fired the fatal shot, as there were several shooting at him.

"After this engagement the robbers for a time disappeared. Underwood was never with the gang again, having fled to parts unknown. Henry Collins deserted them, and Charley Carter returned to his father's house, wearied, torn, sore and bleeding, without a whole garment on his person, a wiser, if not better boy from his eight days' terrible experience with Bass and his pals. He concealed himself in the neighborhood of his father's mother for the storm to blow over, earnestly protesting to his father that if he could escape this time he would never again depart into "ways that were dark and tricks that were vain."

VANDERPOOL RIFLE AND PISTOL CLUB MEETS

A large crowd of canyoneers gathered at the W. F. Stelzer ranch for the first annual bar-b-q and shoot parties by the Rifle and Pistol Club. About 25 men participated in the shooting. Families of the members were also present for the affair.

Interest in the morning was centered on the Big Bore range, with the men shooting for qualification. After the bar-b-q dinner was served shooting was divided between the Big Bore and the small bore, or 22 caliber, range. Excellent scores were made, considering that many of the men had never fired a gun right at first the M-1 army rifle.

Possible score was 105 points, with all firing done at 200 yards. Top ten places went to the following:

1st—Sid Maudlin	168
2nd—Kenneth Leighton	165
3rd—Walter Thornberry	157
4th—Henry Barnes and Billy Reed	155
5th—Paul Robbins	153
6th—Ed Hoffman	152
7th—Bill Short	150
8th—Jack Hall	148
9th—Jack Hall	146

All members of the club are urged to be present for the meeting next Tuesday night.

TEXAS WATER CODE REPORT READY SOON

The Texas Water Code Committee, which has spent almost a year, working on a revision of the water laws of this State, will have its Preliminary Report ready for distribution to the public about the middle of November.

Senator Rogers Kelley, Chairman of this Legislative Committee, announced in Edinburg today that the Committee will hold a state-wide public hearing in the Senate Chamber of the Capitol in Austin on December 11, 12, and 13, in order to give all citizens an opportunity to present their views concerning this proposed revision of the water laws.

"The Committee has received recommendations as to the revision from sub-committees appointed to draft the new legislation, but will not take final action thereon until after the public hearings," Senator Kelley stated.

"The Committee feels that the importance of the subject matter of these reports requires a full public hearing before we make final recommendations to the Legislature," he continued.

"We want to have about four days of hearings, so that all interested parties will have ample opportunity to present their views. Hearings will be held in the Senate Chamber and will be open to the public," he concluded.

WHOLE BLOOD IS PROVING WORTH IN KOREAN WAR

Speedy and massive blood transfusions have already proved extremely valuable in Korea. Often they are made under enemy fire. Sometimes as many as 20 pints of whole blood and plasma have been administered to one man.

In July, the Secretary of Defense designated the Red Cross as official procurement agency for blood and blood derivatives for the armed services.

On August 21 the military made its first call for whole blood and five days later blood from the 34 Red Cross regional centers was flown to Japan for redistribution to Korea. Shipments are now being flown regularly by Military Air Transport Service.

Working in close cooperation with the Red Cross are the American Hospital Association, the American Medical Association, and the American Association of Blood Banks. Through the network of blood collection facilities offered by these organizations and the Red Cross it is hoped that every able-bodied American eventually will be offered an opportunity that General Mac-Arthur has termed "the greatest privilege of those who cannot themselves render military service."

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Skinner are the proud parents of a fine little baby son born in a San Antonio hospital on October 24. The young man has been named Sidney Prentis Jr. Mother and baby are doing fine.

The Bandera Roundup dance was held in Robstown Wednesday night at which time Bandera friends from Robstown, Corpus Christi, Riviera, Kingsville, and surrounding towns gathered. Adolph Hafner furnished the music and Bandera was represented by Lost Valley Ranch, Flying L Ranch, Twin Elm Ranch, Dixie Dude Ranch and Bevins's U-Bar.

Jim Murphy with the Robbers—A Peep into the Inside & Life of Bass and His Brigands— Observations

We shall give in this chapter the recitals of Murphy, in his own language, subject only to such corrections in othography and syntax as we deem necessary for perspicuity. He says:

On the 1st of May, 1878, I was arrested and carried to Tyler. After staying there a few days I jumped my bond in order to have a little fun; but I had some trouble as I went along. I left Tyler on the 22nd of May, reaching Denton that night, when I hired a horse from Wes Bross and started home. When I had gone about three miles from Denton my horse ran into a barbed wire fence and threw me, nearly knocking my neck. The horse ran off, kicking and pitching terribly. I was so unlucky that I had to lie there until night and then walk on home. When I got started for home I met some of my old friends on the way. I got into the hands of Marshal Jackson, who went to Billy Jackson's camp and had me arrested for father's murder. I was in the hotel of Hickory Creek, where I was kept under guard. Soon after staying there I was returned to Denton and put in jail. I was kept there about two months, when I was released on bail. I then went to Fort Worth, where I remained about two months, when I went to Dallas and remained there about two months. I then went to Hillsboro, where I remained about two months, when I went to Corsicana, where I remained about two months. I then went to Waco, where I remained about two months. I then went to Austin, where I remained about two months. I then went to Georgetown, where I remained about two months. I then went to Round Rock

Hunting Season Opened Yesterday

The deer and turkey shooting season opened one half hour before sunrise Thursday morning with more than 100,000 Texas hunters in the field.

About 90 per cent of the hunting army was in the counties of Edwards Plateau Hill Country, which has an estimated population of 500,000 deer.

BE CAREFUL THAT YOU DO NOT KILL A MAN.

The hunting season is upon us, full blast. There's danger in the hills now, so let everybody be warned. Nearly every hunting season human lives are sacrificed because of someone's carelessness or through seemingly "unavoidable" accidents. Many of the hunters who come into the Hill Country from the cities to kill deer or turkey never hunted before in their lives and are quick to shoot at any moving object or a slight noise in the brush before making sure that the object is not a human being. Some years ago a good friend of the writer was "mistaken for a deer" and killed by an excited hunter, while riding horseback through a small thicket of bushes which were not as high as the horse he was riding. Another victim was a man perched high in a tree looking over the country to see if he could locate a deer. Hunting tragedies are too frequent. People who do not know anything about hunting game should be kept off the ranges. If you go out to kill your two bucks or two gobblers, be sure you know what you are shooting at; be sure that you see a deer and that that deer has the legal number of points before you pull the trigger. It is better to fail to kill a deer than it is to kill a man—perhaps your best friend. Don't get excited, but take your time and make sure that you know what you are shooting at.

The meeting began at 2 o'clock and each member answered the roll call with "A thing I Love Most". The secretary read the minutes and the council delegate gave the council report. The club members discussed Farmers' meeting and planned to have a community party at the school house on Friday night, December 15. Refreshments were also made for the annual Christmas party. BRITISH DOCTOR BLASTS SOCIALISM FOR MEDICINE

(Austin, Nov. 14.—A British doctor who find the Labor government could save Tuesday that England could not afford socialized medicine through which "the state is the master and the people are slaves who need the roll call with "A thing Things I Love Most". The secretary read the minutes and the council delegate gave the council report. The club members discussed Farmers' meeting and planned to have a community party at the school house on Friday night, December 15. Refreshments were also made for the annual Christmas party. Mrs. Alvin Rehmet was hostess and assisted with the refreshments and games on "guessing the title to the song." The first prize was won by Mrs. Lee Bailey.

Mrs. Doss will be hostess to the next meeting which will be held December 7 at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Rugh Appointed Deputy Grand Matron

At the regular meeting of the Bandera Chapter Order of Eastern Star Tuesday evening Mrs. Mildred Rugh, who received the appointment of Deputy Grand Matron at the Grand Chapter of Texas held in Galveston in October, was installed. Mrs. Rugh has been a faithful member of the Eastern Star for many years and has served in many offices. A banquet was served at 7:30 o'clock, after which the business session was held.

Those attending from out of town were also made welcome by the group. Mrs. Rugh's Christmas party, however, was not mentioned. Mrs. Rugh's appointment will be announced at the Grand Chapter session in Houston in December.

JANUARY DRAFT TO TAKE 10,000

Washington, Nov. 14 — The Army called Tuesday for 40,000 draftees in January, and said it would have announced more if training facilities were available.

Altogether, the Army has called for 250,000 men since the Defense Act of 1948 went into effect June 24. Of these, 40,000 were drafted in October, and about 40,000 more will come in January.

Reserve and training facilities are being used to the limit, the Army said, and the size of the December draft was limited by that fact. The next draft call, for January, will be for 40,000 men, it was said, and January drafts will be held at that level.

Only the Army, at present, is using the draft to get men.

The Army announcement of its January draft call was made by Secretary of Defense Marshall. A few minutes later, Truman announced that his new draft board system would have practically the same effect as a draft system. Truman said that they were doing away with the "inequities" of the present system.

The Selective Service System, he said, is going to eliminate occupational deferments for all except those in essential activities. Local boards will be required to follow strictly the standards of deferment established by Congress.

Truman said that reserves of manpower would be exhausted if the present system were continued.

The Army announcement said that the January draft would be the last one for the present fiscal year. The next draft call, for February, will be for 50,000 men, it was said.

TRUMAN URGES 4 BILLIONS TAG

By International News Service

Washington, Nov. 14.—President Truman Tuesday asked that congress enact a $4,000,000,000 excess profits tax which would be retroactive to last July 1.

The president made his recommendation in a letter to Chairman Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, of the house ways and means committee.

Mr. Truman asked urgent action on his request and said it should be the first order of business on the returning congress.

He said the funds are needed to meet the grave dangers that confront our country," the president added.

"It is never pleasant to increase taxes, but in such times as these it is necessary to do so.

The president said that corporation profits "should obviously be taxed as part of a sound program of defense taxation."

He declared:

"An excess profits tax recognizes the convenient wisdom of proportion to taxation. The need for additional revenue is urgent.

"I believe the bulk of the revenue should be designed to produce additional annual revenue of $4,000,000,000 at current income levels.

"Although the total amount of the excess profits which will arise from defense activities cannot be accurately estimated, it is certain that it will certainly exceed the yield which can be reasonably expected from a profits tax."

SIMPLE RULES WITH FIREARMS WILL HELP PREVENT ACCIDENTS

By Game, Fish and Oyster Commission

Every year hunting accidents take their toll of human life and limb. Most of these accidents could be prevented if hunters would observe a few simple rules of safety in handling guns.

Rule Number One: Never point a gun at anything you do not intend to shoot.

Rule Number Two: Always unload your gun when you are not using it.

Rule Number Three: Never climb a tree or fence with a loaded gun.

Rule Number Four: Never shoot at a flat, hard surface, or at objects on the surface of water, may ricochet and glance off in unexpected directions, the line of fire. Last but very important, he says gunpowder and shotgun shells should be tested for the results can be disastrous.

The intelligent hunter will be careful to avoid the danger of destroying the wildlife of the land so that he and other hunters will have access to it in the future. Texas has an ever-growing list of American greatest sports in the year-ahead. Waterfowl and shorebirds, bobwhite quail, wild turkey, band, and Callender, can destroy the protective vegetation and even the habitats of migratory birds at will. Unintelligent law prevents the wise hunter, he concludes, to see that this situation does not exist in the areas where he hunts.

MRS. C. H. MANSFIELD ENTERTAINS QUILTING PARTY

OLD MAIL ORDER CATALOGUE IS QUITE A CURIOSITY

An old mail order catalogue, issued by Montgomery Ward & Co., Dallas, Texas, in 1914, has been sent to Frontier Times Museum in Bandera, and is now on display here. The catalogue, which is 4 inches wide by 6 inches long, contains 786 pages of boxed merchandise, including everything from needles to anchors. Many of the articles listed are still in use today, such as hammers, saws, planes at 14 cents each; 3-drawer ready-made sideboards at $29.00. Many fine articles are listed at very low prices, such as 3-piece parlor suites, upholstered in silk velour, at $19.00 per suit, and overstuffed, $5.95 per suite. Phone 156-R. dresses ranged from the skirts dropped in the shop-tops of wool serge, silk taffeta, and other dress-up materials, up to $4.98. Men's $2.98 suits, low and high shoes were from $1.19 to $2.69 per pair, while men's overcoats ranged from $7.49 to $12.98. Ladies' fine and fine velvet coats in the dress shoes at $3.75; dressy $2.98, while a three-piece suit of underwear could be purchased for only $14.95 and a full-length chenille bedspread could be had at $1.75; iron beds with springs and mattress were offered at $5.15. And in those horse-and-buggy days you could buy from the Ward's Fort Worth, Texas, branch Auto Seat Buggy for only $63.00, or a beautiful Rotated Range, with high closet and reservoir, for $74.25. Other farm implements were for sale, such as a Jumbo cream separator for $74.98, and a John Deere disc for $49.95. The influence of horse-drawn travel is also reflected in the fact that a set of harness could be had for $19.98, while a buggy whip could be had for 49 cents. The mail order catalogue was issued at a time when the Panama Canal was being built, when the Model T Ford was the car to own, when the First World War was going on, and when the second World War, and the New Deal and others are taboo and government spending, and today prices for the same articles have soared to dizzy heights. And groceries are not included.

30 YEAR OLDS TO GET CALL FROM UNCLE SAM

Calling up of men in the 26 through 30 age group for preinduction examinations was announced by the Selective Service system today, but how quickly and in what numbers was not disclosed.

This means that the number of men registered for the draft who will be subject of the 19 year old group who are now eligible for Army service is fast dwindling.

Latest reclassification shows that of 2,221 men who have been ordered to report for the preinduction examinations, 1,342 have reported for service, 404 have been rejected with the remainder having been found acceptable for Army service.

The local draft boards have been informed by their headquarters in Austin that until Nov. 1 there has been 8,307 inducted voluntarily for Army service and that between the date and that 8,307 call there will be no induction procedures.

A new schedule was started Monday in the Army and Air Force Induction Center in San Antonio, stated Col. Lahney, and is designed to give a period of preinduction physical exams and Thursday and Friday to actual induction procedures.

Authentic History of
Sam Bass and His Gang
By a Citizen of Denton County
Printed in the Monitor Book and Job Printing Establishment at Denton, Texas, 1878

"Yes, and I wouldn't blame him either," said Jackson, "it's too bad to take these old farmers' horses; it bothers them so bad!"

"H—l, h—l, h—l!" exclaimed Bass, "What need I to care for their botheration? No skin off my back. That dried old rawal is able to lease a good horse now and then. Let them kick, it don't amount to anything." Sam then said we had better be riding, and we saddled and went on our way rejoicing. When we had gone a short distance Bass said, "Boys, you go ahead. I will turn off here and meet you again about two miles from here." He rode off, and after awhile he overtook us with Henry Collins and two men I did not know. As they came up I heard some of the two strangers say, "Bust that Murphy! Sam, you ought to go and kill him right now." I did not hear any reply from Bass. I remarked to Jackson, "Frank, do you hear that?" Jackson replied, "Yes, Jim, h—ll is just the race; I won't let them hurt you." By this time they had reached us. "This all seems hard to me," said Bass, "but I'll stand all again you will have h—l around you." By then rode away. Henry Collins and the other party rode with us to where Sebe Barnes was. On the way Sam I saw that there was something wrong, and I bore to Jackson, "What is the matter with all the boys?" He replied that he did not know, but guessed Ed Trail out there was causing it. That scared me up, but I did not let on. Presently we came to a church in the edge of a bottom. I heard a mule whistle, and asked what it was, and they said it was Sebe Barnes' mule. Sebe replied, and we all went to a log house close by. Sebe Barnes, Sam Bass and his band,

E. B. EARNEST FOUND DEAD ON THE SWEENEY RANCH

Funeral services were held Wednesday for Battalion Fire Chief Edwin B. Earnest, 61, who died, apparently of a heart attack, while on a week-end hunting trip 26 miles northwest of San Antonio, just off Highway 16.

Earnest's body was found in a thickly wooded area in a corner of Medina County at 11:30 a.m. Monday, 21 hours after he was last seen by fellow hunters Sunday afternoon. The discovery ended a search in which approximately 200 persons participated, including fellow firemen, members of the Bexar County Sheriff's Department and mounted posse as well as an airplane dispatched from Kelly by the State Department of Public Safety.

The veteran fireman's son, E. Ro Earnest, Jr., and his father left home early Sunday for the hunting trip to a 20-acre tract near San Geronimo. After a morning of hunting, Earnest left several fellow hunters and started off on an airplane dispatched from Kelly by the State Department of Public Safety.

When he failed to return by 6 p.m. Sunday, a search for him was started.

Every member of the School Board was present at the dinner meeting and a large number of the teachers and their husbands were present to hear Johnny Langford have charge of the program. Johnny, a Bandera School Ex-student, was a member of the Bandera High School.

ALWAYS A BOOSTER FOR BANDERA

Almost thirty years ago this editor came to Bandera and purchased the Bandera New Era. From that date to the present he has been a booster for Bandera and Bandera county. The two items below appeared in the New Era back in 1925, and they are reproduced as a sample of the kind of boosting indulged in by that paper twenty-five years ago:

Bandera needs some more modern, substantial business houses. Some of the structures that adorn our business section could well be torn down and remodeled and make a better appearance. Those that have a dilapidated look should be removed all together and replaced with a modern building. Good substantial business houses and local residences make a good impression on visitors, and encourage people to locate in our town.

If you owned a rare painting, a beautiful picture of some landscape scene with which you were thoroughly familiar, and with which you had been associated all your life, would you hang that picture on the wall without a suitable frame and let people who come into your home see it simply as it on the rough canvas? You certainly would not. You would purchase a frame for that picture to show it off to the best advantage. Bandera has a beautiful court house, but what about its surroundings? Shucks, you know what we want to say.

It is indeed gratifying now to look back to the spirit of real estate men that resulted in the improvements we claimed for them would come to pass. Many modern business structures have replaced the old dilapidated buildings and hundreds of neat, modern cottages have been built not only in Bandera, but throughout Bandera county. And our court house has been greatly improved, too. We're still boosting for Bandera.

"ALL THINGS COME TO HIM WHO WAITS."

The old saying that "all things come to him who waits" does not mean that he has to just sit down and wait for things to happen. If that were true world probably had to wait a lifetime and then not get the desired items. By putting forth concrete efforts and pulling hard for certain improvements in the town we can be assured that these improvements will come in due time, and we should patiently wait for our efforts to bring results. Thirty years ago kerosene furnished light for our homes, and gasoline engines furnished power to operate our machinery. Then came the Central Power and Light Company with the electricity that we needed, and today the Bandera Electric Cooperative is supplying lights and power all over the county. As a result there has been a great era of development. For many years the town's water supply was drawn from wells and cisterns; now we have a splendid waterworks system. The good thing follows another. Bandera now has the assurance of securing natural gas, a much needed utility, which will greatly aid in further progress. The Lone Star Gas Co. proposes to bring its line into Bandera from Kerrville and Center Point. Only a few more signers to the agreement with the company are needed to meet the number of 275 connections. If you are a property owner and have not yet signed up for gas connection, do not wait any longer, for the system is assured and if your connections are made while the installing crew is here you will find it less expensive than to wait until the laterals are laid and it will have to be done later. Do it now.

A DAY OF THANKSGIVING

Yesterday was Thanksgiving Day, and next Thursday is Thanksgiving Day again. We just can't grasp the idea of two Thanksgiving Days officially proclaimed, but many people will observe both of them. But what is "Thanksgiving"? Some scholars tell us that it is a custom derived from the Englishmen; some school students cite the first harvest-time of the Pilgrims; others frankly admit that they do not know. It is true that Governor Bradford of the Pilgrim Colony called for a general observance of thankfulness for a bountiful harvest in 1621. But it remained for Abraham Lincoln, in 1863, to issue the first proclamation setting aside a day when the nation could unite in acknowledging God's blessings. And it was only as recent as 1941 that, by Act of Congress, the holiday was made legal. The turkey had become the symbol of the Thanksgiving season, but not until the early 1800's. It is said that at the Pilgrims' first Thanksgiving, boiled beef and mustard sauce was the choice dish. It is only right and proper that America should have a day of Thanksgiving Day. This country has much to be thankful for, and the population should pause often to give thanks to our Creator for the countless blessings He has bestowed on us. In fact, every day should be a Thanksgiving Day.

SAFETY FIRST—DON'T TAKE CHANCES

While hunting be sure you know it's a deer before you shoot. A Kimble county man hung signs on his cows painted in big letters: "THIS IS A GENTLE COW." One of the cows came home with these words written underneath: "You're a darned liar. I tried to milk her and she kicked harder than a mule."

OUR Washington Newsletter

By Congressman O. C. Fisher

Turkey takes pride in two significant accomplishments this year—one, the first really free election ever held in the country and, two, the beginning of a return of most industries from state ownership back to private enterprise. The party demanding a denationalizing of industry won 255 out of 417 seats in the unicameral legislative body. It rarely ever happens—turning away from socialism once a country gets stuck with it.

Turkey sent 250,000 tons of tobacco to the United States last year—38 per cent of the U. S. supply. Through ECA and technical help, the annual tobacco production should reach 500,000 tons by 1953. The Turks have some of the largest deposits of Meerschaum cheese in the world, and we are heavily dependent upon imports.

Tehran, the capital of Iran, is a rather thriving Middle Eastern city of a million people, yet has no water system, no sewer system, and has only 5,000 telephones in the city. There is no public transportation. Hotels are the former Nottie Alexander of San Angelo. She is a sister of Mrs. Charles Harper and Bobby Wolfe, who reside in Bandera.

Other Texans include Mr. James R. Parker of El Paso, Texas Highway Department, Austin, Texas; Mr. Tom Evans of Houston, Texas, Petroleum Advisory Committee.

Speaking of Texans, the personal belongings found on the floor of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's residence when he left there for Formosa consisted of two pairs of Texas boots, a Texas hat, and a Texas saddle. The conference just was held in the Russian Embassy.

Denmark holds 4th of July celebrations each year, events recalling our independence, to which Americans are invited. In addition, about two boat loads of Danish Americans go across to attend each year as honored guests. On last July 4th the affair was attended by 15,000 people, and was addressed in Danish, and quoted by Mrs. Eugenia Anderson, the American Ambassador.

Speaking of Mrs. Anderson, she has been Ambassador for less than a year, yet has just about mastered the native language in that time. She has already delivered three speeches in Danish and is quite a favorite with the Danish people. One of those talks was on Mothers' Day, and it was triumphant.

In Denmark is not Admiral Quistgaard, Danish Defense Chief, who until recently was Naval Attache for four years at the Danish Embassy in Washington. He was recently named the American Marshall and is presently stationed at Camp Pendleton, Oceanside, California. One of the Danish dairy herds in Denmark, near Copenhagen, has been called the Ford Dairy. From the new famous herd 1 bottle of cream, during its 40 years 2000 registered breeding bulls have been sold.

A striking personality in the Middle East is diminutive General Ali Razmara, new Prime Minister of Iran. His brother, who lives in Boston, is an American citizen and his son is attending Syracuse University. Needless to say, America has a friend in the new Prime Minister.

In Belgrade it's the law that when a car approaches an intersection it must honk once to go straight, twice for a right turn and three times for a left turn.

The most inspiring spot in the world is from the Parthenon in Athens, atop the Acropolis, from which one may look down to nearby Mars Hill where St. Paul stood and delivered an immortal sermon to the Athenians.

It was "Oxi" (No) Day in Greece on October 30, as it is every year on that date. Its origin goes back to October 30, 1940, when at 3 o'clock in the morning the Italian Ambassador telephoned Metaxas, Greek Government head, to tell him that unless there was complete capitulation by 6 o'clock A.M., Mussolini's legions would march in. The sharp answer was "No". And in the war that followed, the Greeks gave the invaders a sound licking. Finally Adolph had to go to Benito's relief. So—for heritage centuries, every October 30, will be "No" day in Greece.

Next morning we set out for Ennis and camped that night between Chambers Creek and Italy Prairie. The following morning we came to Trinidad Crossing and found the ferry was up and the cable of the ferry boat broke. We crossed our horses, and Bass and Barnes crossed in a skiff, while Jackson and I put the horses in to swim. Then they would not cross—they swam out part of the way and turned back to the ferry and came back. Barnes and Barnes returned down the river and came back to Farmer's house nearby and spent the 4th of July eating watermelons. Next morning we returned to the crossing and helped them stretch the rope. The ferry-man charged us only half price, but we paid him the whole and went to the edge of the bottom and spent the night with a very clever farmer. Bass and he had quite a talk about were wanting to locate some cattle. He said he was looking for Bass to make another stake in that country. He said if that it would not surprise him any to hear of it that but that he couldn't care for after Bass robbed the rail-road. He also said he thought Bass and you, he didn't care much, he said that was he had heard of Bass he did not believe that Bass would ever molest anyone who was not connected with the railroad company toward he knew. He said he had no doubt but the money was hid by some of the men that got out of the country, and that Bass would never get it. Bass said he thought the same thing. Both said they would like to get it if they could find it. Bass said he would not like to be in the business of hiding out and hunting money for a living. He said he would rather work for it. run yourselves into danger and get killed. So we will go down to Round Rock and pull the Williamson County Bank." So after dinner we saddled up and rode back to Waco. Jackson and Barnes went to our old camp, south of the city, while Bass and I stopped at the Ranch Saloon and got some beer. Sam got his last $20 gold piece (the fruits of the U. P. robbery) changed there. As we started off Sam remarked, "Jim, there goes the last piece of 77 gold I had. It hasn't done me the least bit of good, but that is all right. I will get some more in a few days. So let it grish! It all goes in a life-time." We went to camp and stayed there part of the night and left. Barnes went back to Waco and stole himself a fine buy mare and overtook us. He said, "Boys, I have got a thoroughbred that is all right." Barnes went on, and the rest of us stopped for the night. Barnes left his old pony with us and told me to sell her at Belton for what we could get. When we reached Belton I sold her for $25. We then bought some canned fruit and jelly, and went south of Belton on a high hill, and ate dinner. We could see all over the town. Sam said, "Boys, if the old sheriff knew where we are he would give us fits, you bet! I would hate for them Belton fellows to get after us for they are bad medicine." Jackson added, "H—l. Eph. they ain't any worse than old Dad Egan, and we gave him the grand slip." "Yes, but we don't know that country," replied Bass, "like we do Denton." "I don't give a cuss for that," said Jackson. "We know our old winchesters as well as we ever did, and I tell you, Eph, whenever we throw red-hot balls in them old Belton fellers, you will see them pull on the trails some until their horses can't get out of a walk. Just look out, brother, he is a brag fighter, and I tell you when I begin to throw red hot lead at him you could see his old bone's mouth fly open and stop. That is the way with all those long fighters. They blow like hell, but when the pinch comes face the music they pull up on the bridle reins and their horses gives out." "That is all so, Bass," said Sam, "but I think these Bell county fellows are different material. I can take a wooden gun and stand Overbort off. He hasn't got as much nerve as Clay Williams, and he hasn't got as much as the law allows him, when I kill their horses they will be afraid to get treated. If Clay had crowded us right then, he would have caught every one of us, for we were scared, but after we had the horses Clay's men did not know but what we might kill some of them next, and they went kind of slow. After that it was no trouble to get off. Well let's be riding, for I want to get to Round Rock."

At Belton I wrote a letter to Johnson and Everheart, telling them for God's sake to come at once, that we were hemmed in Round Rock to rob the bank there. I signed this letter in the post office.

After we had traveled some distance Sam spoke to me and said, "Jim, what do you think of Riley Wetsel for a posse man?" "Why, I know him well," said I. "I guess he is pretty good." "Well," said Sam, "Frank and I met him last spring and talked him for all the tax money he had with him at that time. I reckon it was tax money. He said he was out on that kind of business—that he was deputy sheriff. I said, 'Well, I guess you would be like to collect Bass, wouldn't you?' He said he didn't have any papers for us boys, but I just believe my part of that. You bet I kept a skinned eye on him all the time, for I looked on him just like I was Cotton. I think all Riley wanted was a down bill pull and running on my crowd, and I think he would have made a good deputy like the tax money. But might have gained me off before he got to Uncle Hub's hotel, I don't know; though, he might have thought more of me than he did cowtracks, as I am more valuable property, Jim. I would be like be like one of those 640 gold interest bearing bonds. If a man could take me alive he would make a thunder. He would get money out of my capture, but that is the point. I never expect to give up to any man alive, for I know it is death anyhow. So I will die a fighting."

We rode into Georgetown and camped near, rested one day. While here we saw Sheriff Tucker. Sam said: "Darn his old long legged soul, wouldn't he like to know who we are? I expect he'd give us a little fight, but if would cost him more in a few days. So let it grish! It all goes in a life-time." We went to camp and stayed there part of the night and left. Barnes went back to Waco and stole himself a fine buy mare and overtook us. He said, "Boys, I have got a thoroughbred that is all right." Barnes went on, and the rest of us stopped for the night. Sam said, "Boys, if the old sheriff knew where we are he would give us fits, you bet! I would hate for them Belton fellows to get after us for they are bad medicine." Jackson added, "H—l, Eph,

'FIRE OF FREEDOM' TO BURN DEC. 7

A "Fire of Freedom" will be burning brightly at 7 p.m. as the climax of "Operation Democracy Day" on Thursday, December 7, Commander John Buchanan of the local American Legion Post has announced. The fire-lighting ceremony, one of more than 600 across the state, will be held at the bandstand park.

Governor Allan Shivers will touch a match to a bonfire on the Capitol grounds in Austin that will be the signal for a chain of fires from coast to spring on which the flames will be carried from state to state Legion Commanders to Pearl Harbor.

The freedom fires will symbolize the purpose of keeping free the burning freedom forever in the hearts and minds of America's hope to penetrate the darkness behind the iron curtain.

In an official statement from the state Legion Commander Buchanan urged all Texans to join with the 377 American Legion Posts to demonstrate Democracy's strength to the world and to remind it that freedom is worth living for, and dying for.

School Tax Election To Be Held Saturday

From all indications, the voting on Saturday's election relative to school tax and bond assumption will be on the heavy side. However, to attempt to predict a turnout of an election is as difficult as predicting Texas weather.

In all probability everyone realizes that Saturday's election is important as it involves the question of whether or not taxes should be annually and fairly distributed over all property in the district alike or a part of the district should carry the major portion of the burden.

The election will be held at the Bandera High School building and the polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Only property tax paying qualified voters will be entitled to vote.

Trustees of the two farms are specially invited to witness the election, check the ballots, count the votes and record the results.

EXPOSITION SHOW HERE MONDAY

Bandera and Medina City will be visited by the KARC Texas Top Hands, who will give a free rodeo and barn dance, Monday, December 4.

The rodeo performances will start promptly at 2:15 p.m. and are to be staged at 14:15 p.m. for the benefit of the members of the Bandera Riding Club. Admission prices for the rodeo performances are 50c and $1.00.

Prizes of the two farms are specially invited to witness the election, check the ballots, count the votes and record the results.

The grounds will section in a section of the February 10-25 clock this year. Each of the "Class A Team" girls will entertain.

Mrs. Pierce Jake Rowe, Jr., Mrs. Hyman Edwards and Mrs. Darrell Brown have been appointed hostesses.

Rivers, equine queen to appear at the rodeo, will be announced by the Texas Top Hands.

Mrs. Edwards will serve a four-course luncheon to the visiting queens at a formal reception at the Bandera Hotel.

Mrs. Beard's School for Little Folks

Learning is an atmosphere of happy companionship and constructive thinking is the goal of the Little School, the pre-school for children from four to six, which Mrs. H. E. Beard has been conducting in Bandera since September.

Making a each-needed contribution to the community, Mrs. Beard offers Bandera such a fine opportunity for her own children and for those of the neighborhood that it is hoped the school can be continued in the years to come.

Women Voters Plan Poll Tax Drive

The Bandera County Women Voters held plans Tuesday, November 28th at the Youth Center in Medina to carry out a drive at every eligible voter in Bandera County to pay his or her poll tax for 1951 in order to be able to vote in elections next year. Poll taxes may be paid now for next year and many voters pay their tax at the same time that they pay their property taxes, which is January 31, 1951. Although this is known as a "poll tax" for citizens, it is considered a state tax and the Bandera County Women Voters hope to get a large annual revenue from the state's voters and the Bandera County treasury for the county's share of the poll tax for the first time in many years. Plans for the drive were discussed by the group.

Mrs. Ralph Bandy, president of the Bandera County Women Voters, urged all members to pay their poll taxes at the Courthouse in January 22nd at Smith Foster Motor Company. $.75 extra will be charged for the tax if paid after January 31st. Mrs. Bandy also invited to join this newest of Bandera's women's organizations.

Col. L. J. Starkey, Senior editor of the Kerrville Times, who is Post Commander of the Post, spoke to the group briefly on the work of the Post and urged all members to attend the meeting at the Post Hall on Friday night, December 1st. Col. Starkey is the outstanding historian of the Hill Country, and has written and presented many of the romantic history of this area, which, for the early-comers, have been fascinating.

Mrs. Bandy presided over the meeting and Mrs. Fred Thalmann was secretary.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q — My uncle, a World War II vet, died in 1947, leaving no will but a $10,000 GI insurance policy paid in a lump sum. The policy also listed two contingent beneficiaries. My aunt died in 1949, before receiving the special NSLI dividend. To whom will the dividend be paid?

A — The dividend will be paid to your aunt's estate, and not to the contingent beneficiaries. When your uncle died, your aunt was vested with the right to all benefits of the policy, including the dividend—this dividend the power to modify if the dividend going to the contingent beneficiaries.

Q — I was in the Army for only two months, when I was discharged for a service-connected disability. Am I eligible for VA hospital care?

A — Yes. Apply at the nearest VA regional office.

Q — I am an ex-WAVE, in need of hospitalization for a nonservice connected ailment. There are no beds available for me at the VA hospital I am now using, and my physician says I am in no condition to travel long distance to another VA hospital. What can I do?

A — Contact your VA regional office. VA may authorize treatment for women war veterans in a private hospital without regard to service-connection, if beds are not available in a VA hospital.

Q — Should a claim for disability compensation ever be filed by a veteran with a dishonorable discharge?

A — A veteran always has the privilege of filing a claim. In this case, to show entitlement, he would have to prove he was insane at the time he committed the act for which he was discharged dishonorably.

Women Voters Plan Poll Tax Drive

The Bandera County Women Voters had plans Tuesday, November 28th at the Youth Center in Medina to carry out a drive to get every eligible voter in Bandera County to pay his or her poll tax for 1951 in order to be able to vote in elections next year. Poll taxes may be paid now for next year and senior voters may have their poll taxes at the same time that property taxes are paid. Deadline for poll tax payment is August 31, 1951. Although it is a drive for "off year" for elections, many important issues face the people and the Bandera County Women Voters have as their goal to some or exceed the total vote cast in the 1950 election. Plans for the poll tax drive were discussed and other reports the first meeting of the month. Mrs. Ben Fisher gave a report from Page 1 of all parts of Bandera County returned the necessary. Mrs. Fisher were present. All members are invited to join this second of Bandera's women's organizations.

Col. J. J. Starkey, Senior editor of the Kerrville Times, was in Bandera a short while on Nov. 17. Starkey is the outstanding historian of the Hill Country, and has written an interesting book on the complete history of this section which, but for his efforts, would have been lost.

CHAPTER XV

Jim Murphy Bargains to Buy Bass for the Consideration of the Reward of Himself and Father from the Tyler Jail.

As before stated Jim Murphy, together with his father, Henderson Murphy, and a number of other citizens were lodged in jail at Tyler under indictments and informations in the Federal District Court, charging them as accessories against whose honor and integrity no man could bring a just imputation. Jim felt that he also was innocent of any guilty complicity with the robbers, for though he had perhaps fed them, it was nothing more than a matority of men situated as he was would have done. Those bandits were personal friends of his, and he knew of no personal enmity against them. He did not feel like denying them food, for those when they come for shelter or bread, or anything to do a good trade with them because they were good friend.

He soon was his mind further responding in a fatal manner to his friend Bass and his gang had escaped all of them, and Jim felt that he would be doing no crime against any man or society to accept any plea that would set Bass and his pals on the road to liberty so that they could leave the country of Murphy and neighborhood. Jim was acquainted with Major Jones and others who had had his father in prison. The following is his own statement:

"I, W. Murphy, was arrested May 1st, 1878, by Sheriff Sweet upon a charge of aiding and abetting in the escape of the charge and told Everheart as I rushed out of the room, 'I will not escape now that he wanted Sam Bass. He gave me encouragement and satisfaction but pushed me off from my friends and put me in jail at Sherman. Major Jones and Sheriff Sweet then came and got me and Walter Johnson and put me in the jail at Tyler. I found there Sam Bass, Jackson, Underwood, Jackson, Murphy, Herndon, Barnes, Berry, Sims, Bob Jones, Jim Jones, Jim Murphy, Jr., Henderson Murphy, Sr., and Murphy, Jr. Bass and Jackson were in the same cell with me. Bass told me that he had been betrayed by Jones and Sweet, and that he would get even with them. He said that he would not be taken back to Sherman alive. He said that he would kill Jones and Sweet if he ever got a chance. He said that he would kill Jones and Sweet if he ever got a chance. CHAPTER XV

Jim Murphy Barnides to Bag Bass for the Consideration of the Release of Himself and Father from the Tyler Jail.

As before stated Jim Murphy, together with his father, Henderson Murphy, and a number of other citizens were lodged in jail at Tyler under indictments and informations in the Federal District Court, charging them as accessories to the escape of Sam Henderson Murphy was an old man against whose honor and integrity no man could bring a just imputation. Jim felt that he also was innocent of any guilty complicity with the robbers. Had he been a party to the plan of the bandits and of the measures he had on foot to arrest them. The arrangements of Major Jones was seen in the last chapter, did not mature, but a collision was precipitated by the mistake of Deputy Sheriff Maurice Moore of Travis, and Grimes of Williamson county, the particulars of which as detailed by Moore, who was severely wounded in the left lung, are here given. He says:

"About 4 p. m., I was standing in front of Smith's livery stable and three men passed up the street. Smith remarked to me, 'There go three strangers.' I noticed them particularly and thought one of them had a six-shooter under his coat. The others were carrying saddle bags. They looked at me rather hard and went across the street into a store. I walked up the street to where Grimes, the deputy sheriff of Williamson county, was standing and remarked to him, I think one of those men has a six-shooter on.' Grimes remarked that he would go and see. We walked across the street and went into the store. Not wishing to let them know I was watching them, I stood up inside the store door with my hands in my pockets. Moore and Grimes approached them carelessly and asked one if he had not a six-shooter. They all three replied, yes, and at the same time two of them shot Grimes and ran out.

After I had fired my second shot I could not see anything for the smoke, as they retreated. Major Jones received the pistols in time to engage in the fight with the bandits. Moore was thrown into a bunch of cockleburs, and the citizens who could procure arms joined in the fight, the residents taking cover behind houses and fences, and firing back at every opportunity. Moore fired on after toward their horses, but in the excitement he only succeeded in shot through the hand and he then retreated down the alley a piece. George Hamilton shot him in the back, inflicting a mortal wound. He however reached and secured his horse. Herron was shot from his horse, a corpse. Through the bush just as he mounted his horse, and fell dead on the spot. Jackson and Bass rode off together. Major Jones, Ware and Tubbs fired at them as they left. T. L. Jordan and Albert Highsmith, citizens of Round Rock joined in the fight and did their best to hit the robbers out of their saddles. Major Jones, Capt. Lee Hall and three rangers gave chase on horseback, but the bandits had the start on them too far, and they lost the trail and returned to town. That evening Lieut. Reynolds with ten rangers from Salt Lake, and Capt. Brown from Austin with a squad, arrived at Round Rock. After Bass and Jackson had gone several miles from the scene Bass' wounds began to grow so sore that he found he would have to stop. Jackson wanted to stop and remain with him, but Bass told him no; that he was badly wounded and must stop, and that Frank must take care of himself. He gave Jackson all the money he had, his horse, arms and ammunition, and exhorted him to leave him. Jackson took his departure from Bass and left him there alone. After Jackson left Bass went to a house to get some water. He was bloody and looked very feeble; this attracted the attention of the lady of the house who gave him water. After he got the water he left afoot and the lady saw the direction he went. Next morning she informed his pursuers of the incident and by this means he was found. We give below an extract from a letter from Travis county, written to the Galveston News and clipped from the Denton Monitor of August 2nd, as follows:

"Later in the evening Lieut. Armstrong's party from Austin arrived. Next morning Sergt. Neville of Lieut. Reynold's company with eight men and Deputy Sheriff Tucker of this county, took the trail of Bass and Jackson where it had been lost the evening before, but soon found that the two had separated.

After hunting around awhile they found Bass lying under a large tree in the edge of the prairie. As the sergeant approached he held up his hand and said, "Don't shoot; I am unarmed and helpless; I am the man you are looking for; I am Sam Bass."

He had lain in the brush all night, but crawled out to the tree in the prairie about daylight, and hailed a negro who passed him, and tried to bribe him to haul him off and secrete him. Information of the capture was brought to Major Jones, who went out accompanied by Pr. Cochran, and brought the prisoner in.

Of the seven men who were engaged in the train robbery at Mesquite, on the Texas & Pacific railroad on the 10th of April last, some of whom were in all the robberies which took place on the Texas Central and T. P. Railroads previous to that time, five have been disposed of. Sam Bass and Albert Herndon, arrested by Major Jones and Capt. Peak in Dallas county soon after the robbery occurred, have just been convicted in the federal court at Austin, Johnson, called "Arkansaw," was killed by Sergeant Flood of Capt. Peak's company, in the fight with the robbers on Salt Creek in Wise county, on the 12th of June. Sam Bass and Seaborn Barnes were killed by R. C. Ware and Henry Harrell, (as per verdict coroner's jurors of Lieut. Reynold's company at Round Rock on the 10th of July, 1878. Two of the band are still at large. Frank Jackson, who made his escape at Round Rock and Henry Underwood, who left the band at the time of the Salt Creek fight, and has been with them since and of whom nothing is especially known since that time.

Every confidence was made by Major Jones to secure Herndon's pardon. Bass was made aware that him

Authentic History of Sam Bass and His Gang

By a Citizen of Denton County
Printed in the Monitor Book and Job Printing Establishment

"Joel Collins, Jim Heffrige, Tom Nixon, Jack Davis, Jim Berry and myself were in the Union Pacific robbery. Tom Nixon is in Canada; haven't seen him since that robbery. Jack Davis was in New Orleans from the time of the Union Pacific robbery till he went to Denton. He got here [illegible] with Sam and Frank. He left Fort Worth in April, 1877, unless asked me if I had a pistol. Said I had; and then all three of us drew and shot him. If I killed him he was the first man I ever killed. Am 23 years old; am a married man; have a wife and one child. Have two brothers, John and Dennis, have one sister, Mrs. Mitchell. Brother-in-law Henry Underwood was in the Salt Creek fight. Saw the two Collinses at Old Man Peters' since I left Denton, Gardner, Berry in Mexico, country is no friend. Was at the Salt Creek fight. First saw Sam at Hog Eye. Billy Scott was at Belknap. Jim Berry was at Green Hills. Sam, Frank, William Collins, Berry and I were the only ones present. Arkansas Johnson was not there. Never saw him but three times. I left and went to Mexico. Ford robbery. Was not present. Was in Mexico. Was not present when Sam was killed. Was not present when Sam was buried. Was not present when Jim Murphy was killed. Was not present when Arkansas Johnson was killed. I do not know. Should not be surprised if Arkansas Johnson is not killed. Should not be surprised if another Murphy was killed. Was not present when Frank was killed. Was not present when Sam was killed in that fight. Do not know positively that Johnson was wounded in the Salt Creek fight. Berry, Bruner, Peacock, Jackson and Charley Carter were there. We separated set afoot in that fight, but glad to say not to remain so long. Was in three fights, and for as soon as don't remember which we went back to Mexico before we crossed till we came to Round Rock."

Question—"Where is Jackson now?"

Answer—"I do not know."

Q—"How did you usually get together after being scattered?"

A—"Generally told by friends." (Declined to tell who those friends were.)

Q—"How came you to commence this kind of life?"

A—"Started out on stealing horses."

Q—"Why did you get worse than horse-racing?"

A—"Because they robbed me of my first $3,000."

Q—"After they robbed you what did you do next?"

A—"Went to robbing stages in Black Hills—robbed seven. Got little money. Jack Davis, Nixon and myself were all that were in the Black Hills stage robberies."

Q—"Speaking of Bass' not compromising himself or his friends, Major Jones, who had him in charge, says: 'I tried every conceivable plan to obtain some information from him, but to no purpose. About noon on Sunday, he [illegible] the youth and sent for me to know if I would not go to see him. I did everything I could for him. This is the first favorable opportunity I said to him, 'Bass, you have done much money in this world, you now have an opportunity to do some good before you die by giving some information which will lead to the vindication of that justice which you have so often defied and the law which you have constantly violated.' He replied, 'No, I won't tell.' 'Why won't you?' said I. 'Because it is against my profession to blow on my pals. If a man knows anything he ought to do with it to him? He positively refused to compromise himself, and in reply to some remark made, he said, 'I am going to hell anyhow.' I made a particular effort to obtain some information from him in regard to William Collins. I asked him if he was ever at Collins' house. He said no. I then put the question in a different form, saying, 'Where did you and Will Scott?' He replied at Bob Murphy's. I then said, 'You saw him at Green Hill's too, didn't you?' He replied yes. These answers were not of any consequence, but I then said, 'When did you see him at William Collins?' He said, 'I don't remember, as I never paid attention to dates, being a man of the scout. I only saw him these three times.' This answer was important, as it fixed the fact that Bass was at Collins' house. But this was the only statement of any importance which he made. All of his other statements were of facts well known or concerning individuals beyond the reach of further justice."

Bass clung to the hope of life to the last extremity. While suffering the most excruciating anguish from his wounds he hugged the delusion of recovery. At last when his physician told him that death was fast approaching, and that he would soon be gone to eternity he said, "Let me go." Then closing his eyes for a few moments, he opened them and exclaimed to his nurse, as if startled, "The world is fadding around me."

These were the last words of Sam Bass—an ignorant vicious ruffian, who did more harm and less good, caused more sorrow and less happiness, ruined more young men and benefitted fewer than any one character who has ever disgraced the State of Texas. The word 'Hell' was the favorite expletive with Bass while living, and it stuck to his lips in the dark valley of the shadow of death. When eternity was before and a mis-spent life behind—when most men are calm, or callous, Sam declared, "I am going to hell!"

Whatever doubts some may entertain as to that place I woe—whether it is taken in literal of figurative sense—whether it be a seething, yawning lake of liquid fire, or a dark, dismal abode of the damned, afar from the presence of God, where the scorpion-lash of conscience whips the guilty soul through an eternity—whatever it may be, the world has the testimony of Sam Bass that there was a place prepared for him, and that was—HELL.

CHAPTER XVII

Reflections

In the outset we said that a review of the lives and characters of Sam Bass and His Gang would demonstrate the verity of that old, old proverb, "The way of the transgressor is hard." Let us recapitulate: Sam Bass began his career by horse racing. He went from that to cheating, thence to robbing stages, thence to robbing express companies, thence to murder and paid the penalty for his crimes on the field of battle, all before he was 27 years old. He acquired his thousands of ill-gotten gold. By his own confession they did him no good. He lived a life of waking, aching and unrest. He brought in the meantime sorrow and more distress to many a home. He brought ruin to friends, and fell by means of one he had himself brought to grief.

Joel Collins, Heffrige and Berry lost their lives in less than six months from the U. P. robbery. Nixon and Jack Davis, the only two living, are renegades from justice, and will yet pay the penalty for their monstrous outrages. Arkansas Johnson was killed by his pursuers at Salt Creek. Henry Collins was recently shot and captured in Grayson county, and has died of his wounds in the last few days. Charley Carter, who had less to do with Bass than any one of his pals, is now in jail at Austin, under indictment. Pipes and Herndon are convicts for life within the walls of the penitentiary. Spotswood, who was charged with being with Bass at Allen, was convicted at McKinney, and his punishment fixed at ten years' confinement in the penitentiary. Sol. has been granted a new trial. Billy Collins, Henry Underwood and Frank Jackson are the only ones of Bass' Texas gang left alive and unfettered, and they are renegades and outlaws, who will doubtless be pursued wherever they go, and be at last overtaken by the officers of the law.

Besides these, who principally owe their troubles to the intrigues and influence of Bass, scores of good people have had to suffer innocently. The whole county of Denton has had to drain the cup of calamity to its dregs. Officers and citizens have had to bear untold wrongs, dangers and privations, because this vile bandit and his gang made his timbered swamps and ravines of that county his hiding places.

That the officers and citizens of Denton county did all they could to apprehend him, and put a quietus to his wild career of crime there is no doubt, yet they were jeered on all hands and accused of complicity with the robbers. All this has been wrought by Bass, the ignorant, [illegible] and for these reasons, he and his gang should be held up to the gaze of an outraged state and nation, that all may see and that the young may learn [illegible] "The way of the Transgressor is hard; the wages of Sin is Death."

MEDINA GRANTED LOAN OF $136,000 FOR EXPANSION OF TELEPHONE SYSTEM

Congressmen O. C. Fisher sent the Bulletin a telegram Monday announcing that the R. E. A. had just informed him that the Medina Electric Telephone Company has been granted a loan of $136,000 to improve, expand and rehabilitate 140 miles of its lines in Bandera county.

This is indeed pleasing information, and the people of the Medina community are rejoicing over the news, for it means that the telephone company, which is composed of ranchmen, farmers and business men of Medina, can now go ahead with much needed improvements and extend their service over that part of the county. The system has been congested along for several years at great disadvantage for lack of funds to buy equipment and material and rebuild and extend lines. Now, with the loan granted, Johnny Bandera can get a telephone.

MAGICIANS APPEAR IN BANDERA TODAY

This afternoon, December 15, and tonight at 8 p.m. there will be a program in the Library Auditorium by Faust, the Modern Magician. Here are just a few of the many illusions to be presented by Faust in his two hour show. The Enchanted Princess, Cutting a Girl in Half, Gravity Defied, and a host of others. A beautiful young lady will be placed upon the points of three carpet swords, and then she will rest in that position. Faust will take a young lady from the audience and cut her in half. Who will that young lady be? And you won't believe your eyes when you see a girl suspended in midair. We don't know whether the others received the test of cruelty or fast ability to...

The afternoon show will be one full hour. The night show will be two hours long. Prices on the afternoon show will be 40c and 80c, but the night show will be approximately two hours in length. Everyone who attends the show will be amazed at lots of thrills and laughs.

Today will determine Bandera's title as the show which has been featured by national magazines such as Variety Magazine. If you have not seen the show, be sure to be there at 4 o'clock if you have to be excused from some to the office, and other loosely to be away.

Faust and staff will be entertained at lunch and dinner at the Bandera Hotel by the Bandera Lions Club.

DILLEY WINS OVER BANDERA 19 - 18

A hard fighting Bulldog team went to Hondo Friday night and all but won the bi-district championship.

In the first quarter the Bulldogs fought hard and held Dilley but in the second quarter Dilley made their first TD. From then on the Bulldogs held Dilley 6-0 until the half.

At the half the Band and Pep Squad marched proudly on the field and went into formation. The lights were turned off with the band and pep squad turning on its flights of different, bright colors. While in formation and darkness, the band played "Silver Nights" and "Jingle Bells". As the band played "Jingle Bells" the band girls jumped their flashlights to the rythem of the tune. Then the lights were turned on and the band and pep squad marched off the field and the game was resumed.

Coming back on the field Bandera received the kick-off and coming on down the field, a TD was scored by Bandera on a pass from Dan Taylor to Billy Bob Burns. Billy Bar 34 yards for the TD.

On Pelham's drive down the field Bandera received a 15 yard penalty. It took the Bulldogs three plays to make the first down. Dan Taylor then drove to Bandera's 40 yard line where he passed to Jimmy Mock on Dilley's team to make a first down. Then Dan Taylor passed to Mock for a TD. The score stood 19-0 in Bandera's favor.

The entertained Bandera team kicked off and the ball was downed on the Dilley's 20 yard line. Dilley then drove to Bandera's 40 yard line where they were forced to punt. Dilley then drove to Bandera's 20 yard line where they were forced to punt

GET PERMISSION FROM BANDERA TOURIST ASSOCIATION

There can't be too many reminders for all of us to pay our poll tax and do our civic duty at each election time.

Old "Zeke" is as interested as he can be in seeing that our citizens of the Free State of Bandera votes according to his beliefs. To those who have not paid their tax remember signing Zeke's image. However, the Bandera Tourist Association would like to be the reminder that you have the right and privilege to vote in the coming election.

WHEN BANDERA GETS NATURAL GAS

Announcement was made last week that the required 25% customers in Bandera had signed up contracts to install natural gas in their homes and businesses, and that the Lone Star Gas Company will immediately extend their system to Bandera. The main line is to be brought up-dated to Center Point, and within a very short time from Kerrville via Center Point, and within a very short time Bandera will be supplied with natural gas. We have been told by the officials of the company that it would not be financially able to run the service the long distance it is now if it were not for the fact that the line is already in operation to Kerrville and is steadily growing. The Lone Star Gas Company will be here in the near future to begin the construction of the service for Bandera. Lone Star Gas Company has been serving Kerrville for many years and has been very successful in their operations. Bandera is fortunate in having this service brought to it.

WAKEFIELD ADVISES CIVILIAN DEFERMENT

San Antonio, Texas, Dec. 16—Emphasizing the need for early action in cases of deferment for essential civilian workers, Brig. Gen. Paul L. Wakefield, state Selective Service director, advised today that employers take inventory of employees who are liable for induction under the Selective Service law. The state director pointed out that employers should submit any information regarding their employees that they are classified as essential to the national interest to the local board having jurisdiction over the area in which the employee is employed. He also emphasized that it is necessary for classification in a deferred status that the employer send a request to the local board and the employee fill out a questionnaire.

Gen. Wakefield made it plain that employers should not request deferment for employees who are not essential to the national interest. He also emphasized that deferment is not automatic and that each case must be considered on its own merits.

The state director pointed out that the number of men who can be deferred is limited by the number of men who are liable for induction in each area. Therefore, he said, employers should not request deferment for employees who are not essential to the national interest.

Considerable area has burned off in the Floyd Prue pasture, the pasture of Mrs. Ben Clark, at the Smith Wright place, and others. During this dry weather, when the grass is rank and dead, the danger is great and extra precaution should be taken to prevent fires.

It is rather hard to get the spirit of Christmas when we have all of July weather! But the following Seniors went Christmas shopping Saturday: Mary Patricia Jank, Dorothy and Jerry Zoumaras, and Mary Lou Lynch went to San Antonio Monday.

Buddy Rountree, Luther James and Ivet Taylor, Jr., played in the basketball game Saturday night in Sisterz. The boys played Hondo girls with the following scores: 30-21, 33-25, 27-33, making two out of three.

BIG ENOUGH For the Job ?

It takes speed, strength and deception for a championship football team. And when the ball is on the one-yard line, it takes real power ... size becomes mighty important.

That's true at home, too, when it comes to the hot water supply. Whether you're bathing, shaving, washing dishes, or taking care of the family laundry, you want—and need—almost any hot water.

For example, the average automatic washer needs about 50 gallons of 140 degree water within a period of 60 minutes.

Automatic Electric Water Heating helps to get things done—because there's always plenty of really hot water.

So, when you buy, be sure—and have your new home wired for electricity.

At 9:30 there will be an open house, with games and refreshments for all ages. The 11:30 service will close with Holy Communion, ushering in the second half of the twentieth century. The public is invited to attend and to participate in all the activities of the evening.

A lovely Christmas luncheon meeting of St. Christopher's Episcopal Guild and Auxiliary was held Wednesday, December 20th, in the home of Mrs. W. T. Estes, hostess. Following the luncheon a business meeting was held with Mrs. Wm. Abring, outgoing president, presiding. A yearly gift gross was presented to Miss Xena Crawford for her work with the church school of Mr. Christopher. Mrs. J. M. Carnahan and Mrs. E. T. Hoover were elected delegates to the Annual Episcopal Diocesan Guild convention to be held in San Antonio on January 9, 10, and 11th. Alternates elected were Mrs. Guy Stone and Mrs. Harris Bryant. After the business meeting was adjourned the ladies exchanged gifts surrounding a tree in the living room of the Estes home.

Funeral Services for Ned Harris

One of the sad events of the Yuletide was the passing of Ned Harris, a citizen of Bandera for fifty-two years. Mr. Harris had been confined to his bed for the past two or three years. In his helpless condition he was tenderly nursed and cared for by his sister, Miss Estelle Harris, at whose home he died at 10 o'clock Monday night. Funeral services were conducted at the Plummer Funeral Home Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock by J. Marion Hooper. Pallbearers were Sam Hooper, Tom Bellamy, Arthur Hooper, Jr., Jack Smith, George Fee, and Jeff Hooper.

Ned Harris was born in Moore county, Tennessee, December 25, 1872, and at the time of his death was 78 years, 11 months and 4 days old. He came to Bandera in 1898 and has lived here continuously since.

Survivors are one sister, Miss Estelle Harris, and a brother, Mr. Bob Harris, of Bandera.

193 TEXANS DIE VIOLENT DEATHS DURING HOLIDAYS

The gaiety of the holiday period was smashed for many families throughout Texas as violence on the highways, in homes and other places took 193 lives from just before Christmas through New Year's Day.

The totals, compiled by the Department of Public Safety, showed 102 traffic deaths, compared with the agency's prediction of 105.

The Associated Press total for the New Year's holiday season alone showed at least 69 persons suffered violent death, 37 of them in traffic accidents.

This was a far better record than for the same period during 1949. The latter holiday, when close to 100 persons lost their lives, was the worst 1949 toll of any 24-hour period since Dec. 1, 1941.

Accidents killed 421 persons in the first 24 days of December.

NEW CAR SHORTAGE SEEN

Washington's not only behind in its public debt—it's behind on its public improvements, too. Even the nation's highway system, universally admired as the best in the world, is in need of repair and improvement.

Last August public roads were officially declared inadequate for the nation's defense needs. Since then, however, little has been done to improve them. Why? Because there's no money.

1. Universal Military Training

2. Wire-Free Freeze

More than a year ago the Federal Communications Commission froze the construction of new radio and television broadcasting stations.

The reason: Defense needs. The FCC wanted to make sure that the nation's defense agencies would have all the radio and television facilities they needed.

3. Total Mobilization

Washington has been swamped with proposals for ways to mobilize the nation's manpower.

Last August public opinion polls showed that 75 per cent of the people favored universal military training.

4. Conversion of Industry

5. Rearm Germany

6. Korea

7. Spain

The pressure is now on Congress to get a settlement of the Spanish question. Spain is the only country in Western Europe which has not been admitted to membership in the United Nations.

8. Fear of War

There is one thing on which all agree—that the middle of today's world is a time of fear. Fear that the world is on the brink of another war. Fear that the United States is not strong enough militarily and economically to meet the challenge of Communism.

Fear that the Truman administration's proposed program of defense is inadequate to meet the challenge of Stalinism. Griffin, an archaeologist at the University of Texas.

SHAPE OF THINGS TO COME

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 2.—With Congress convening this week in one of the most important sessions in American history, political observers everywhere are wondering how far the U.S. public is willing to go to meet the pressing issues facing this country.

Clear evidence is furnished by public opinion surveys that the American people are far ahead of their leaders—and have been for months and even years—on matters of economic and defense measures which have been or are being put into effect in Washington.

Public interest has been very high in the issues which will be facing Congress and the administration in the months ahead.

Washington is not only behind in its public improvements, but in its public information, too. Even the nation's highway system, universally admired as the best in the world, is in need of repair and improvement.

Last August public roads were officially declared inadequate for the nation's defense needs. Since then, however, little has been done to improve them. Why? Because there's no money.

THE NEW YEAR IS UPON US.

The New Years, 1951, is upon us, bringing dark foreboding signs of grizzled times ahead. Yet, with the prospect of a terrible Third World War staring us in the face, we are still hopeful that the catastrophe may be averted and that the nations may come to their senses in regard to its front in our Far East and Allied domination of the main power of the country is being put into armament and munitions factories are being built, and our armed forces augmented for conflict. Better we should be prepared for conflict than to be caught unawares. Nothing is being made to meet the threat of the Communist world into carnage. The Communist world is being built up to a point that has a history-making power in and out of harmony. To those who would have peace, the only way to avoid conflict is to be prepared. What happens in the party dispatch and in the halls of congress is nothing. Everything depends on the attitude of the people. Are we willing to pay the price of preparedness? Are we willing to sacrifice for the sake of peace? Are we willing to pay the price of preparedness? Are we willing to sacrifice for the sake of peace? Are we willing to pay the price of preparedness? Are we willing to sacrifice for the sake of peace?

LEGISLATURE WILL FACE BIG TASKS

When the legislature at Austin on January 9 convenes it will have many things before it that will require much more money than that of more recent years. Not only will the government need to raise more revenue to carry on the many activities of the state, but it will have to raise much more money to carry on the many activities of the state. No sensible person will object to the Legislature will have to raise, because the government needs more money every year, but the Legislature definitely shows its mind, both in the matter of economy. Whatever taxes may be levied by the State should be levied on the ability to pay principle. If the Legislature will have to make up with new tax dollars. We hope every member of the 52nd Legislature will remember and that he will vote only to spend what is worth spending his own funds. Every dollar of extravagance in our State's spending and taxation should be sternly rotted.

AUCTION TO BE FEATURE OF THE LIVESTOCK SHOW

Last minute details are being worked out for the Junior Livestock Show which will take place at Mansfield Park Saturday, January 13, when 4-H Club and FFA members show some of the finest and fattest livestock ever shown in this county. Much work, time and interest has been expended on this show and the boys and girls are to be commended on the fine showing they have made.

One of the outstanding features of the show will be the auction sale which will be held at 1:30 p. m. Saturday afternoon. Many fine animals will be sold and many buyers will be present. Those who have not attended a livestock auction sale should not miss this one. It will be interesting and many bargains will be offered.

Final entries will be made at the Bandera Livestock Commission Co. Monday morning, January 15, at 10 o'clock. Any boy or girl who has not entered an animal in the show may enter one at that time. Entries will be made by weight classes.

CHAS. MEADOWS, 74, PASSED AWAY WEDNESDAY

The community was saddened Wednesday afternoon when the news came in of the death of Charles B. Meadows, who passed away at his home about 2:30 p. m.

Uncle Charlie, as he was affectionately known by many, had been in failing health for some time. But all efforts had been unavailing.

Mr. Meadows was born in Texas, was one of the four children born to the late Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Meadows. He came to Texas and settled in the Red Bluff community on March 31, 1880.

JANUARY 15 IMPORTANT INCOME TAX DATE

Washington, Jan. 6.—For many income taxpayers, Jan. 15 is an usually important date this year. It's the last day, as usual, for filing estimates of 1950 federal income tax for those who must file them and for completing payments of estimated tax if any remains unpaid.

The date is especially important, however, for those taxpayers who have to change estimates made early in 1950 to get them in line with the tax increase effective last October 1.

Farmers who are going to file their final tax returns by Jan. 31 and make full tax payment then need not file a tax estimate.

Farmers who do not plan to file their final returns by Jan. 31 must file tax estimates by Jan. 15 and file their final returns by March 15.

Storekeepers, doctors and others who have to file estimates must file a regular return by Jan. 15 if they wish to avoid filing the estimate due on that date.

Most wage earners don't have to worry about Jan. 15 because they are not required to file estimates.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue has revised the forms for declaration of estimated tax (Form 1040-ES) to make it easier for taxpayers to figure their tax liability. The tax table, which appears on the back of the 1950 declaration form, has been extended to cover incomes up to $5,000 for single persons and $10,000 for married persons filing jointly. In the case of married persons filing jointly, the table is based on the assumption that husband and wife have equal incomes. Thus, a married couple with a joint income of $10,000 would enter the table at $5,000 and double the tax shown.

As the Years Go Gliding Down the River of Time

"Oh! a wonderful stream is the River Time,
As it runs through the realm of tears,
With a faultless rhyme, a musical rhyme,
And a broader sweep and a surge sublime,
As it blends with the ocean of years."

The senior editor of the Bulletin, and his wife, received many beautiful Christmas and New Year's greetings from friends throughout the country, messages of love and good wishes, some the usual brief greetings, some more expressive in beautiful sentiment. But back of each greeting there lurked the spirit of remembrance, the recollection of a friend. Some of these greetings came from friends of more than half a century standing, bringing encouragement and hope, and reminding us that the ties of love and friendship are still binding as we journey down the River of Time.

Our childhood was spent at Mason, Texas. The boys and girls of the old home town of our day, those who are yet living, are in the autumn of life, but to us they are still the boys and girls of Yesterday, and we cherish them as among our greatest treasures. We would like to name them, one by one, but space forbids. Two of them, Maud Moody Wingfield of Fort Worth, and Myrtle Butler Schow of Austin, sent their greetings for the New Year. We are giving below the letter from Maud:

"Uphill and down, across America, the country roads stretch out. Climbing the summits of rolling hills, angling down steep ravines, wandering between old rail fences, through gentle valleys, they lure us on with promises of new interest ahead.

"Sometimes we might liken our New Year to a journey down a country road. Occasionally, there's heavy going through muddy stretches or snow-drifted turns, but always ahead there are pleasant prospects. And every contact with true and tried friends is like a visit at some snug farm house.

"As we reach back a remembering hand, out comes the opportunities given us to be of service to others. low pays. It has been said that the greatest source of comfort and happiness has come to us through the many friends, treasured friends.

"Then, there is always that pleasant journey down Memory's Lane to the place of our birth—and it has a sad tinge and brings back the memories of childhood and all the sweetness of home and school; but now we face responsibilities and duties, and take our places in home, school and church, and thus our lives are full of sunshine and shadows. We would not change if we could. We want to fill our niche in life full, and be of service to our friends and loved ones.

"No one is old, who still has a purpose in life . . . to love completely and with understanding . . . to work hard and be able to gather the dust of one's shattered dreams, and build again! To have friends and faith in human kind . . . to be able to face the future with high hopes, and see in each rising sun a new incentive, and another challenge, is to make the years but milestones on a joyous journey into the abundant life.

"With our New Year greetings we send the sincere wish that Year road through the coming year will bring to all you hope for in health, prosperity and happiness. Sincerely, MAUD WINGFIELD."

Another friend of our youth, Sterling Price Hart of Commerce, Texas, with whom we worked as a printer Angela in 1888, writes this cheering greeting of the m San Angelo in 1888, writes this cheering greeting of the New Years:

"Dear Old Friend:—Here we are at the beginning of the second half of the Twentieth Century. You and I probably will not live through it, as we did the first half. We have seen a lot of things happen, and have done some things ourselves during the past fifty years. Whenever I happen to let my mind run back over the past it always comes to you and San Angelo. Marvin, the Lord has blessed us. Certainly we are prayerfully thankful for long life, health, fine families, and many other blessings. I am having a little trouble with my health for the first time in my 77 years. Anyway, let's take care of ourselves and stay here as long as we can. Best wishes for you and yours. Yours as of yore,

STERLING HART."

IT JUST CAN'T BE DONE, JUDGE

Last week Judge N. V. Bradley, our Medina editor, lamented that a newspaper editor, reporter, or a justice of the peace could not please everybody no matter how much he tries to do so. The old Judge is right—it just can't be done. We offer a wish that we might be able to run the Bulletin in a manner that would conform to the ideas of everybody, or of all the diversified elements which make up this newspaper clientele. What a happy condition of mind and body it would be to know and realize that nobody in all the confines of the earth body is finding fault with the policy of the Bulletin. We try to treat everybody fairly to print those things we think to be the best path and service for a fellow to follow in life, yet we receive knockings as many times as possible to any one person. It is impossible to please all the people all the time. There will be those who disagree with the things we say, and there will be those who will say that we should have said more about this or that. There will be those who will say that we should have said less about this or that. There will be those who will say that we should have said nothing about this or that. There will be those who will say that we should have said something about this or that. There will be those who will say that they could read the paper as well if it were printed backwards. It is a well known fact that the best newspaper men and the topmost Architect of the Universe who ever lived have been criticized to the fullest extent during the breath of life and the lessening hours that they could be numbered. It is not true that including the writer of this editorial that we have not about a lifetime at the editorial desk brought forth criticisms, are justifiable, and have mistaken the real facts. Who knows?

HEROISM PENETRATES MOST UNLIKELY PLACES

Vachel Lindsay, in part, once wrote a poem about Lucifer the fallen angel. In his book he represented Lucifer as singing a song of praise to God. A beautiful and uplifting tune it became. But as the song progressed, and for a moment, imagining that they were once again the shining wards of light, fighting mad battles for right in the limitless kingdom of heaven, they began to say something that Lucifer decided to brought to earth occasionally, so to speak, to be constantly intermingled for the benefit of the fallen angels. This fallen personage did not give up in despair, but could make no decision for the selfish things he then contemplated.

It is a strange thing. And yet, perhaps, there is not so much strangeness in the act at times that makes us realize that we are human beings, and that we are subject to impulses. It seems to be the impulse of the moment that governs the actions of many people. Many times we have heard it said that a man was overcome by the following:

More than twenty years ago Hugh S. Fullerton, famous sports writer, was sitting in the press box at the Polo Grounds in New York City when a ball was batted into the stands. Fullerton, who was then 50 years old, leaped over the railing and caught the ball. He was immediately surrounded by a group of people who congratulated him on his feat. Fullerton was conducted in strict custody at the Bandit farm. Fullerton was in charge of the Dallas Police Force. At the end of the six months period half of the force left the employment because of the conditions. And for whom did the bell toll? Nobody knows.

It is heartening to read of such things. The short stories that appear in our daily lives in which there was a crowning act could be of services to his fellowmen. That in spite of what critics may say, there is a very strange, indefinable influence at work that helps even the meanest of us to rise to undreamed of heights of self-denial and sacrifice. Lucifer's work maybe?

An East Texas editor recently wrote a "puff" for the belle of the ball saying: "Her dainty feet were encased in shoes that might have been taken for fairy boots." The blundering compositor made it read: "Her dainty feet were encased in shoes that might have been taken for Ferry boats." And the innocent editor has been in hiding ever since.

WASHINGTON NEWS LETTER
by O. C. Fisher

In a completely renovated chamber, the House of Representatives met last week to begin a grim new session, beset with rumblings of war and ominous developments around the world.

The 82d Congress had extended its business session into the evening before. For the first time in history the Congress met and voted not only on New Year's Day, supposing of bills that had been rushed ready for the final hurdles before the stroke of midnight.

The 1950 session voted a $48 billion, piece, preparedness legislation, unanimously during the session. In the House President Truman, in his Address to the Congress last week, asked for $71 billion more, asking authority for wage and price control and rationing and promised with an unprecedented peacetime order for a powerful army, navy and air force with no limit. A tax bill was passed to raise $10 billion more in taxes before the session ends, a $13 billion defense support bill being considered.

Immediate efforts to make effective the controls on inflation and on the commitments in their power have been made by the President and his cabinet. Wage and price controls are provided

WAGE AND PRICE CONTROLS TO BE INAUGURATED

Washington, Jan. 17.—A general wage-price "freeze" was reported in the cards Wednesday, while President Truman warned that sweeping manpower controls will be sought if necessary.

A key government official said a blanket "freeze" on prices and wages would be ordered within the next few days. Other officials said it might take longer.

The president in a message to congress asked for standby powers of typical voluntary wage and price controls, plus rationing powers and other essential measures they need.

He said individuals controls should be used only as a last resort.

Controls, he explained, would be applied to "those areas of the economy where they are necessary to prevent disastrous inflation."

For example, he said, a Gem which did not produce defense goods would be frozen at a very reasonable level.

The government, for example, would not freeze a Gem which did not produce defense goods would be frozen at a very reasonable level.

Labor leaders appeared to take a dim view of the proposals. Labor spokesmen said they would be willing to accept controls if they were applied to all segments of the economy.

Sad to say, we were a few grains of time short a short, waiting for the pall bearers to carry out the casket. There were a few middle aged men and old men in the group. One of the members had come from the working house of life, and he was being carried to the house of the dead, to be placed in a grave.

Dad was a man who was born and raised in a short, and he had been a man who had been a man who had been a man who

POST GRADUATE TRAINING FACILITIES FOR DENTISTS NEEDED

Mr. J. M. Hunter,
Publisher Bandera Bulletin,
Bandera, Texas.

Dear Mr. Hunter,

Quite recently I had occasion to visit my son at The University of Texas School of Dentistry which he headed in Houston. Until he became interested in this profession I believe I was very much like the average citizen on this subject; that is, I figured once a man in my mind was the busy thought that Texas had a Dental College somewhere, where it was located I had not the least idea, which all goes to show how little interest we sometimes give to institutions that are vital to each and everyone of us.

While there I had the pleasure and privilege to be introduced to Doctor F. C. Elliott, Vice-President and Dean, Doctor H. Actors professors in Dental Materials and Prosthodontia, Doctor Tofford, professor in Anatomy, and several others, all of whom each and everyone extended to me the most courteous treatment possible, and as we will see, educational, and of course I was very much impressed with the fine showing made at the time of my visit, and I was told that the enrollment would be around 175 full time students for the session.

When the School of Dentistry was erected it was built to accomodate thirty students in each class or a total of 120. Today, there are 220 students which only lacks one of being double, attending this school, and the building cannot possibly allow further expansion. There is a critical shortage of practicing dentists in Texas. The ratio in Texas is one dentist to 3,200 people, while the national ratio is one to 1,800. And remember, we are going to have a huge number of dentists as Uncle Sam reaches out for them. We are now losing one that was from Bandera P. H. is estimated that 1,500,000 school children of Texas have first or some decayed teeth. Mouth diseases, other than carious teeth, are second most pertinent example is cancer, since approximately three per cent of cancer deaths are caused by cancer of the mouth. There is a critical shortage of instructional dentists in the state as well as a shortage of dental assistants. There is no school for dental assistants training and dentists in Texas who want a well trained assistant in their field, must go to other states for their training.

Now, then, how may we, what can we do about the problem? Just this: Our Legislature have been promised the Dental College for Years but they have stood unconcerned to the need for a new building but so far have failed to fulfill their promise. It is to be remembered that this is a biennial Business session and it will be exciting but while the Legislature is in session, let us remember the building seats, have more than doubled since the days for this, you and me, our pockets, but also by not having adequate dental attention. If this new building is not provided for, it is expected that some fifty members will get elsewhere because of lack of research facilities. There will also be a probable reduction in the Class A rating by the Council on Dental Education. The proposed building will permit the enrollment of 400 more students and dentists each year. Twenty five young women can be enrolled each year for training in dental nurse and secretary duties in dental offices. Between 200 and 300 dentists, our dentists can be employed each year for refresher courses in each of the dental specialties. Also there will be provided space for graduate dentists who desire to practice in the dental clinics and facilities for additional training.

The cost of the new building has been carefully investigated and is extremely low. It is estimated at $2,500,000 or $11,000 per student. This new unit will be self liquidating. The new unit will be self liquidating. The new unit will be self liquidating. The

A SURE CURE FOR HOODLUMISM.

In these modern days the "juvenile problem" is worrying law enforcement authorities in our larger cities, and in the smaller towns parents are having the fining and doling pursuits—not direct seem to be able to control the youngsters. The good old-fashioned lickin' of our forefathers seems to have entirely died out in the land of the brave and home of the enslaved. Going man may perhaps still be observed pursuing recalcitrants from the woodshed, gate or barn, and if he is a sympathetic friend of the family, during the meeting effect on complexions wrought by a little switch is not long. Nevertheless it does seem to be more effective than the present-day method of trying to reason with the young American home as a fighting policy is a failure. The average American home as a fighting policy is a failure. The average American home as a fighting policy is a failure. The average American home as a fighting policy is a failure.

THE PRICES ARE STILL RISING.

The other day we ordered a book from a well known publishing house. Last February we ordered this same book and it cost us the sum of $2.50. The book we ordered last month cost us $4.00—a rise in price of $1.50. We did not complain, because we know that the paper and material used in the book had risen in price more than 50 per cent, and the publishers have to pay wages twice as much as it did a few years ago. Which fact was driven home to us that the material we use in printing the Bulletin, and the cost of labor, has gone up so much that we are compelled to make increased prices for all of the printing we do. There's nothing radically wrong somewhere. We just cannot figure it out. But we do know that if inflation is not curbed we are all going to be considered a bunch of robbers.

ON REALITIES.

"If the present trend continues," said a Houston printing executive last week, "I am going to apply for a defense subcontract to print United States currency." He was joking, of course. The hi-speed presses the government owns can turn out money even faster than the other branches of the government can spend it. It is inevitable that the harsh necessities of defense and war will require the government to spend money at a rate hitherto unparalleled in world history. But on the otherhand the world has never before been in as bad a fix as now. Thoughtful Americans have to be reconciled through necessary military expenditures which must be made. We have no other choice. Yet when we are called upon to pay the price of freedom, we have a right to scrutinize the items for which the money is going. The advertising nurse of national defense the President's budget message promises to draw one of those vouchers in favor of what is popularly known as the Russian plow and another in favor of what is popularly known as the Russian medicine. Are these really necessary? Or are we just kidding ourselves when we believe every bit of the foreign scheme to sell the world to Communism and dictatorship? Is the final decision before communism and democracy? The soldiers in Korea have been come to the grips with the realities of their participation. The people at home have come to grips with the realities of taxes and the fining that is to come to grips with the realities of them. There is no real, in left-handed politics when the fate of the world hangs in the balance. There is only disaster.

If you invest your savings in government bonds no matter how cheap the dollar gets, you are still ahead of the game best they can. Discipline, as one of the rising generation says is a natural physical cure for tense nervous cause and relation of misbehavior." Too many mental instructions are a refined form of cruelty, often resulting in lasting resentment. But children who are taught to accept a spanking naturally are more ready to resume good relations with their parents. And as they grow older, with the knowledge that the rod will not be spared they will develop more character and high regard for their parents' instructions. It seems that parents today are more lenient than they were a generation or two ago. They do not seem to consider that the children they are raising are to be the parents of tomorrow and will no doubt be more lenient and indifferent with the rearing of children in the generations to come.

"Spank 'em in moderation," is the advice of Rudolph M Illner, who was professor of sociology in New York University, on the proper raising of children. He said: "Spanking is a natural physical cure for tense nervous cause and re-

Bill Longley and His Wild Career

The Capture of Bill Longley.

The killing of Wilson Anderson, George Thomas, and Rowland Lay caused a reward to be offered for the capture of Longley. Governor Coke on August 24, 1870, offered a $250 reward for the capture of Longley, but on June 23, 1876, after the news reached Governor Coke that Longley had killed Roland Lay in Delta county, he cancelled the reward of $250 offered for the killing of Wilson Anderson and offered one of $500 for the Lay murderer. Many sheriffs had his description and among them was Captain Milt Hast of Nacogdoches. He obtained from W. A. Knox, district clerk of Lee county, the following description of Longley: "He is about six feet high; weighs 150 pounds, tolerably well built; black hair, eyes, and whiskers; slightly stooped in shoulders. Those who know him say that he can be recognized in a crowd of 100 by the keenness and blackness of his eyes. There are several large rewards offered for his capture, one of $250 offered in Lee county."

Captain Milt Hast got on Longley's trail with the result that he and William Harrison, of Nacogdoches county, captured Longley near Kirbyville, Desoto Parish, Louisiana, on Wednesday, May 13, 1877. Captain Hast took no chances either for Longley to draw his gun or with extradition papers. He was not over ten miles from the Texas border and he made tracks with his prisoner for the Texas line at once. He reached Shreveport the morning in a hurry from Kirbyville to Henderson, Texas, a distance of about fifty miles. He arrived in Henderson, Texas, on Friday afternoon, stayed all night with his prisoner in Henderson, and took the train the next day for Giddings, Texas. They took the I. & G. N train from Henderson to Palestine, and then to Houston where they changed for the train in search of game. While lying in the sheriff's house, Longley fell in love with the sheriff's daughter and they became engaged. Finally Longley told her that he would not marry her under false pretenses, and told her that his real name was Longley. The girl informed her father, and the father with a deputy sheriff planned for the arrest of Longley. The sheriff on some pretense induced Longley to visit the farm one morning, and while he was there the sheriff secreted himself in the house. On return of the sheriff and Longley to the house, the deputy suddenly appeared at the door with a double barrel shot gun drawn on Longley and he ordered him to "put 'em up." Longley drew up his hands, sat down on the porch and handcuffed the sheriff and deputy. Telling them he was just stringing the young lady and telling her lots of stories. He almost convinced her that he was not guilty, finally he confessed that he was Longley. He told them that they had better be easy and be light hard and fast.

Hanging of Bill Longley.

Bill Longley was executed on October 11, 1878, in the south part of Giddings. This area was purchased for the location of the county jail and jail yard and is about the exact spot on the corner of the Taylor and Bastrop roads. Colonel Sherrod was the first sheriff of Lee county, 1874-1877. Colonel Sherrod died in Giddings on September 11, 1877, and Colonel Jesse Burleson succeeded him as sheriff on September 11, 1877. The execution took place on October 11, 1878, one year and one month after the death of Colonel Sherrod.

The day of the execution was a quiet one in Giddings and there was no advertising, but this did not deter the crowd from coming in from the highways and byways and horseback. Towards middle of the forenoon wagons and on horseback. Towards middle of the forenoon wagons and the little town of Giddings was thronged with a crowd of 5000 people. Negroes were plentiful. Bill had been their most relentless foe, and they were rejoicing in his conviction and the near approach of his execution. While in Galveston in jail Longley professed religion and united with the Catholic church. Reverend Father Spillard of Austin was with Longley the night before he was hanged and on the morning of the hanging. While Longley was in jail in Galveston Father Chambodut was his spiritual adviser. He baptised Longley and Longley joined the Catholic church.

Some weeks before the execution there was some excitement that Longley's friends would attempt big rescue, but Governor Hubbard sent Captain Jim Lacy, of Austin to Giddings to investigate the matter. Captain Jim Lacy, with one week in Giddings, returned and reported to the Governor that there was no probability of an attempt being made to rescue Longley. However, it is believed by some that Longley expected being rescued up to a few days before the execution.

About 1:30 p.m. on October 11, 1878, Sheriff Jim Brown and his special guards took Longley out of jail and the melancholy march began. Inside the ambulance with Longley were Sheriff Jim Brown, two deputies, Reverend Father Spillard of Austin and Reverend Father Quenet of Houston. The gallows was erected of framing timber and was thought to be sufficiently strong. Longley ascended the stairs with a cigar in his mouth and with a rather jaunty tread. The stair steps vibrated as he ascended about a quarter post two, and Longley exclaimed:

"Look out, the steps are falling," and laughingly added, "I don't want to get crippled." On the way from the jail to the gallows an exceedingly strong guard escorted the ambulance with forty men under Captain W. G. McLennon, the whole being directed by Chief Deputy Brown, all arranged in columns of fours.

On the scaffold Sheriff Jim Brown spoke to the crowd that was surrounding the jail, stating that this was the first judicial hanging in Lee county and that he trusted there would never be another. He evidently did not relish the position in which he was placed. It is recalled that before this, Jim Brown on April 11, 1870, bought the old Longley farm one mile south of Evergreen and was residing in the house formerly occupied by Bill Longley.

Longley spoke from the gallows as follows:

"Well, I haven't much to say. I have got to die. I see a good many enemies around me, and only a mighty few friends. I hope to God you will forgive me; I will you. I hate to die, of course; any man hates to die, but I have learned this by taking the lives of men who loved life as well as I do. If I have any friends here I hope they will do nothing to avenge my death; let them pray for me. I deserve this fate. It is a debt I owe for my wild, reckless life. When it is paid, it will all be over. I hope you will forgive me; I will forgive you; whether you do or not, may God forgive me. I have nothing more to say."

Prayer was offered by Father Quenet, after which Longley had a very spectacular and unlooked for thing. He kissed sheriff Jim Brown and the priest, shook hands with everybody on the scaffold, raised his hand, and in a clear, ringing voice exclaimed, "Goodbye, everybody." Several from the crowd responded with a last farewell. The hangman's cap was drawn, the rope adjusted and the fatal signal given. The drop was about 12 feet. The rope slipped on the beam and stretched to such an extent that Longley's feet touched the ground and his knees were bent so that they were nearly on the ground. Sheriff Jim Brown and aid soon raised the body and adjusted it so that the body would swing clear of the floor. Longley jerked twice and his feet raised three inches. After hanging slightly over eleven minutes, Doctors Fields, and Johnson pronounced him dead. After the body was cut down Brown took the head in his hands and turned it completely through 180 degrees, thus the death test. Both the guards and county made the same test, sheriff Brown placed the body in a covered hack and conveyed it to the cemetery. In the western part of the town and buried it outside the fence that enclosed the cemetery.

Trial of Bill Longley.

Bill Longley was tried before Judge E. B. Turner in Gilmer. The trial opened in the morning of September 3, 1877, and the jury was selected about noon. The court then took a recess until 2 o'clock. Court convened promptly at the hour. The main witness for the state was Wash Harris, who was said to be known as a man of nerve, and of nothing; but Longley was afraid. In cross-examination Longley accused Harris that he had no grudge against him and would not hurt a hair on his head, and he (Longley) would not kill Harris. Anderson then said: "My son Cale, I did it to avenge his death for Uncle Cale." After Harris left the witness stand he passed near Longley, who upbraided him for his testimony. The court met on the morning of September 5, and the jury was empaneled. The testimony was presented and the case was argued and given to the jury at 4 o'clock p.m. The jury retired and after one and a half hours deliberation reported their verdict as guilty and sentenced Longley to hang. Judge E. B. Turner seemed more affected at the verdict than Longley himself, who heard the verdict with the composure of a statue.

While in the Giddings jail on July 7, 1877, Longley gave an exhibition of his wonderful strength. He was in good health, and a confident air, and seemed absolutely convinced that he would get out of jail and escape. He said, in my dreams, "I have got out of your places than this."

After killing the whole family of Anderson's, Longley said that I had no more compunction about it than I would have had about killing a rattlesnake. He had escaped from jail in every way that he could conceive of, and was confident that he could escape from the Giddings jail. He had escaped from the jail at Comanche, Texas, by digging a hole through the wall with a case knife. He had escaped from the jail at Gonzales, Texas, by digging a hole through the wall with a case knife. He had escaped from the jail at Austin, Texas, by digging a hole through the wall with a case knife. He had escaped from the jail at Galveston, Texas, by digging a hole through the wall with a case knife. He had escaped from the jail at Houston, Texas, by digging a hole through the wall with a case knife. He had escaped from the jail at Dallas, Texas, by digging a hole through the wall with a case knife. He had escaped from the jail at Fort Worth, Texas, by digging a hole through the wall with a case knife. He had escaped from the jail at Waco, Texas, by digging a hole through the wall with a case knife. He had escaped from the jail at Temple, Texas, by digging a hole through the wall with a case knife. He had escaped from the jail at Belton, Texas, by digging a hole through the wall with a case knife. He had escaped from the jail at Georgetown, Texas, by digging a hole through the wall with a case knife. He had escaped from the jail at Round Rock, Texas, by digging a hole through the wall with a case knife. He had escaped from the jail at Austin, Texas, by digging a hole through the wall with a case knife. He had escaped from the jail at Austin, Texas, by digging a hole through the wall with a case knife.

It is believed that he gave up hope of a rescue or jail delivery only a few days before his execution. At one time he told his trial on being escorted by the court house while Longley handcuffed, he attempted to break away the guards with the handcuffs. A tremendous scuffle took place in the streets of Giddings. Sheriff Jim Brown was walking near, heavily handcuffed, he attempted to brain one of his guards shoot him. Whether Jim Brown's forbearance was caused by his anxiety to carry out the law or personal friendship for Bill Longley or for Bill Longley's father, is not known. The kiss that Bill Longley gave Jim Brown a few seconds before he swung into eternity is significant. What did this kiss mean? Was it the kiss of friendship or forgiveness?

BASKETBALL SCORES

Bandera boys and girls are playing basketball this year with a good heart. Last Friday night both teams went to Medina to play in Medina's big new Gym. The boys came out the winners, and in spite of the fact that the girls lost to Medina they did have a good game. Medina was just faster, and also a little more accurate on the shots. This is the first year in many years that Bandera girls have played basketball, and a lot of people are predicting that with a little more practice they will really make a team. Girls on the team to take part in actual play Friday were, Barbara Nell Dora Wright, Barbara Mansfield, Ann Holden, Jo Ann Wertz, Gail Anderson, Peggy Boyle, and Nancy Prue. Let's really support these girls at their next game. They deserve our support.

The boys won over Medina for a score of 32-30 on Bandera's favor, but the game had some crowd-pleasing moments. During the second quarter the Medina boys were leading Bandera by eight points, and the score, and then, reckless like, the clock took over and seconds the clock showed at 12:01 with one minute before Bandera was to receive the ball. Bandera scored a basket in another minute and a half of play. Luther James showed on well with the basket and he was well supported by Dent Taylor, Buddy Brown, Jackie Kelka, Alfred Kiesla, and Barney Boeck as well. Coach Hamilton praised the boys when they went to get this basketball fever into good working order.

BITTER COLD HITS THE HILL COUNTRY

The extreme cold weather of this week has greatly handicapped all industry. Ice-covered roads, with drizzle and sleet, made travel by highway hazardous. It is not known how much damage to livestock has resulted. As we go to press watertpipes are still frozen, and it is expected when the thaw comes many will be bursted. Very little snow has fallen in Bandera, but there are reports of some snow in different parts of the county. Old timers say Monday and Tuesday were the coldest they have known in years. Wednesday the mercury dropped to 15 degrees. But we may be fortunate, but cold still frozen, for to some parts of the United States many will be buried. DON'T MISS YOUR OPPORTUNITY TO DO GOOD.

The opportunity to do good comes to most men and women every day. Many of them let the muffled knock at the door of opportunity, nor perform the great or small deeds that come in their way. Others do, however, and live to see the fruits of a virtuous life ripen. Almost all of us, in our youth, had a secretly girl a bunch of American beauties. The little girl was nine years old, and an old shawl covered her head and shoulders. She was so scrupulously clean in appearance that it "I want some cloth to take to my mamma." said the child, holding out a thin dime. "I think some thing clean would suit her." "No sir," said the lot. "I need much more than a dime to get cloth for them." My heart ached. And that dime enough to pay for them? My purse was in sight, and my roots ached. Mamma she was whiter than the snow, and the last couche awful. This warm, soft, fuzzy wool I made a thought she would die, but she said if she could only live until warm spring time she should get better, and I had this dime, and I—" But the child was further over a glass vase marked "Buy a dozen," and there was moisture in his eyes as he spoke in his thoat. In a little while he had a big bunch of three hundred separate bills. He gravely took the dime, and walked out and down the street. If she were some grand lady she could not have been more courteous to the little boy. Then she went home and made a present of the whole bunch to her mother. Watch for your opportunity.

WHY THE HIGH COST OF EVERYTHING?

There's a lot of confusion over the Government's wage and price control steps, and we're not guessing as to what the ultimate results will be. Further inflation, probably. The cost of living will go higher. Supplies, it is to be feared, will be more difficult to get.

But the basic reason for the high cost of everything is the fact that we have had a war economy for five years. Billions upon billions of dollars have been poured into the economy, but the goods and services to match those billions have not been produced. Instead, we have been producing guns, tanks, planes, ships and munitions of war.

Now, we are producing more than ever before, but we are still producing guns, tanks, planes, ships and munitions of war. Consumer goods are scarce because we are not producing them.

Until we get back to a peacetime economy, we will have high prices, shortages and rationing.

VANDAL-LOOSED CARS CRASH HOMES, TREES

A band of vandals who early Tuesday looted twenty-five dozen automobiles to smash homes, trees and parked cars in the York Creek-Cliff-Trinity Heights area are believed to have struck again Wednesday night.

The gang released hand brakes and set loose several automobiles on a number of streets. Police Chief Jesse Ross said he was unable to estimate the damage to the cars, but that it would run into the thousands of dollars.

As soon as the gang cleared a block, police officers would shift the cars to the opposite side of the street to prevent damage from parking meters. The vandals left no evidence as to their identity.

Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Tinsley, 1115 Cliff Drive, had loaded their car with furniture preparatory to moving to Austin when they discovered the vandals had released the brakes on their automobile and it was rolling down the street. Mr. and Mrs. Tinsley pushed the car back to the curb and left it there.

Mrs. Walter Rowland, 1118 Cliff Drive, said she was awakened by the noise of the vandals at work. She said she heard a car coming down the street and looked out the window to see a car coming down the street with no driver. She said she then saw a man running behind the car and pushing it.

Mrs. Rowland said she then saw the man get in the car and steer it to the curb

Children of Pioneers Now Pioneers Themselves

This is primarily the story of a Bandera county family, of which one of the surviving members is Mrs. Charles Fehr, part, a beloved housewife and neighbor now living in the town of Bandera.

Among the early settlers of Bandera was Leibreicht Thallmann, who came from Germany to Goliad in 1852. Later they moved to Castroville, and then to Bandera in 1854. Orlando Thallman was born the following year and was probably the first American child born in this county. Mrs. Sam Adalbertz, a midwife and member of the early Polish colony that came here in 1855, stated that it was her "first case" after coming from Poland. Then as now, the country was scenic, but was a wilderness. Game was plentiful, as the country was new. Modern homes on well cultivated farms, and ranches on which great herds of blooded cattle graze, had not been developed. The great sheep and goat industry had hardly started. There were no churches, no schools. Here Orlando Thallman grew up and knew all the best swimming holes and fishing places on the Medina river and hunted game in the woods. When Professor Koenigheim, a noted pioneer teacher, opened the school in Bandera, Orlando Thallman attended it and learned his A B C's and how to read and write and figure. During his boyhood days the Indians made frequent raids into Bandera county, stealing horses and anything they could be never accustomed them. One morning Orlando Thallman, Sr., was in the corral, which was on the Privilege Creek. After locating the herd, he returned to the house and then ran. He was gone about half an hour and as he returned he found one of the oxen had been killed by Indians. He removed the bell from the neck of the animal and proceeded hurriedly but cautiously toward home. Upon reaching the house he found cause that the Indians had stolen seven of his horses and mules.

While Mr. Thallmann's father Leibreicht, applied the name "Thallmann," Orlando for reasons of his own, changed the spelling to "Thallman" which accounts for the fact that today we have descendants of Leibreicht Thallmann, still referred to as both methods of spelling the family name.

Orlando Thallman had married Miss Josephine Engle Mrs. Charles Eckhart) had to get out of school early enough to help finish dinner and to wash the dishes. The latter took "turn about" drying the dishes. The other boy had to go to the well and bring in water. And every day the boys helped with the chores, feeding the stock, milking and carrying in wood and water. All the water used at the house had to be carried from a spring across the creek and up a hill. The children did everything that was to be done on the ranch. A Mexican herder lived in a Mexican herder's house at a ripe old age. When Josephine Thallman and Charlie Eckhart married they went to housekeeping on the old Maass ranch, where the Dixie Dude ranch is now located. Later they went to Arizona and spent a year or so, then returned to Bandera and purchased land not far from where Josephine was raised. Here they built a home and engaged in stock farming and fruit growing very successfully. Five years ago their two fine sons, Howard and Lee Eckhart, began their own and established homes of their own, and in the years were growing up on them. Mr. and Mrs. Eckhart decided to sell their ranch holdings and retire from the ranch business. They sold their one hundred and fifty acre, at a good figure, invested most of the proceeds in government savings bonds, and built a substantial home in Bandera Estates, where they reside today, surrounded by all the comforts of life and are really "taking life easy." They celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary last June 25th, a full account of which appeared in the Bandera Bulletin. Both Josephine and Charlie Eckhart are Bandera county products, descendants of Bandera county pioneers, and have the confidence and esteem of all their acquaintances. They are of that courageous sturdy stock that has made Bandera county the best county in Texas and the finest all around place in which to live.

Later brass lamps were added. Those little brass kerosene burning lamps were really a boon to the early settlers. They were small, and had a round wick, but no chimney, and "smoked" considerably, and often exploded, but they gave more light than the tallow-dip. Some of these little brass lamps can be seen in Frontier Times Museum in Bandera.

While Mr. Thallman directed his attention to his steadily increasing cattle and sheep industry and farming operations, Mrs. Thallman was busy at home. Regardless of all the work to be done, Mr. and Mrs. Thallman were determined the children must have the educational advantages that opportunities afforded. The two oldest children were sent to school one year in a one-room one-teacher school taught by Miss Sue Jenkins. Dave, Josephine and Jim rode horse back to Bandera and attended a private school taught by Mrs. Ellen Maudsley and daughters, Misses Alice, Amy, Louise and Ada. They had been well educated in England. Miss Louise was an accomplished musician and taught music.

During those days it was usually impossible to secure the necessary help on the ranch. Later, Miss Amy Maudsley came to live on the ranch during the school term to teach the Thallman children. In time they continued their studies under Mr. Nagle, also an Englishman and who lived on the ranch. By this arrangement the children's education was not neglected and at the same time they could assist with the work.

Mrs. Thallman had no hired help. Josephine (now Mrs. Charles Eckhart) had to get out of school early enough to help finish dinner and to wash the dishes. The latter took "turn about" drying the dishes. The other boy had to go to the well and bring in water. And every day the boys helped with the chores, feeding the stock, milking and carrying in wood and water. All the water used at the house had to be carried from a spring across the creek and up a hill. The children did everything that was to be done on the ranch. A Mexican herder lived in a Mexican herder's house at a ripe old age. MADRONA GARDEN CLUB HAS TWO GUEST SPEAKERS

On Friday afternoon when the Madrona Garden Club held their regular meeting in the Library auditorium the members were privileged to hear two very interesting speakers.

Mr. Ruth Engel spoke on the possibilities of a redbud trail through Texas, giving many suggestions for planting the redbud, between Austin and Brownsville and also the small shrubs of the Texas countryside. He suggested a program for the year and a worthwhile program for the use of redbud in the state. Mrs. Engel is a member of the committee appointed on the redbud trail and is very much interested in the project. She told the group that Bandera county would be a very good place for the redbud trail.

LIBRARY BOOKS ARE IN GREATER USE

More books are being checked out of the Bandera Public Library. This fact is partly accounted for in the policy of allowing responsible group organizations in the outlying parts of the county to check out 15 or 20 books for up to three months now to be distributed in their community. Pipe Creek and Tarpley have enjoyed books under this program and the Home Demonstration clubs have checked out the books and been responsible for them. Volunteer librarians who have kept the library open each Saturday under the Bandera County Home Demonstration Club have done this year have been Mrs. Rex Kinzer, Mrs. E. A. Jokisch, Mrs. B. T. LOUIS MAZUREK WRITES FRFOM JAPAN

We were handed the following letter by Joe Mazurek, father of Louis Mazurek who writes from Japan.

Somewhere in Japan,
February 5, 1951

Dear Folks:

I would like very much if you would take this letter to the newspaper office and ask them to print it.

I'm just a lonely GI here in Japan and ready for shipment and I would like for to ask a question before shipment, "Why are we here?" Yes, everyone knows but what is the use, if our own government back home betrays them. Such things I can't figure to that, "why" should lives of your own flesh and blood be taken over here, when action is taken back home to prevent communism?" Maybe if everyone would write to their Congressman or called war would come to an end that some day, that these innocent people would live.

Your son,
Louis

VEEP GETS CASH, YOU FOOT THE BILL

The Vice-President of the United States visited Mineral Wells Friday night and his hosts talked frankly that he was paid for his bright words. There is nothing wrong about that. If Comrade Barkley is unfilled set so worth cash money to anybody, why, more power to him in these days when it is pretty difficult for anybody to lay up a cent. That dear Alben has had some part in making it difficult can be waived. Nor is the amount paid to Comrade Barkley pertinent beyond the point of gossip.

But the matter of the Veep's transportation is highly pertinent. Mr. Barkley went to Mineral Wells in an ordinary businessman trying to turn a more or less honest dollar. He was not representing the people of the United States. He was representing Alben Barkley on the make. But he went in a plane furnished and paid for by the people of the United States. He had with him official personnel of like calibre, and time, now paid for by the public. That bill, Washington to Mineral Wells and return, in aviation gas, wear and tear on the machine, nuts and bolts and time outlay on crew and ordnance, all run into a pretty good figure.

It is submitted that Comrade Barkley, out to earn a dollar, owes that bill and ought to pay it. That principle should apply to every man and woman in the employ of the United States from the little fellow in the White House to the big fellow who mops janitors a federal building. The public ought not to pay for the private entertainment or business of its hired hands. When the public does pay for it by the collusion of federal colleagues who look the other way, public money is being embezzled.

Our money is not Vice President Barkley's money. But, frankly, it is doubtful if Comrade Barkley or his colleagues, referred to by Sister Eleanor Roosevelt as "our rulers," understand that.—Dallas News.

Bumpin' Over the Cattle Guard

By Peggy Tobin

The Bandera hills are always beautiful, varying shadows and colors giving them a different look every day, with the appearance of greens in the spring and summer gives way to many hues, reds and yellows in the fall. But when the eternal deep green of the cedars is washed over with snow then the hills are the most beautiful looking on a man's waiting sense and solemnity.

GLAMORIZE POT ROAST WITH SPICY FLAVOR

Always welcome 1st dinner is pot roast served juicy, tender and well-browned. Rich gravy is ladle generously over the slices, and glasses of beer make a festive, inexpensive meal. Long, slow simmering is needed to give this 'less-tender' beef its succulent texture and skillful cooks know that soaking the meat before cooking in a spiced vinaigrette mixture aids both tenderness and flavor.

Called Sauerbraten, this delicious pot roast is tasty and full-bodied with rich gravy. Here is an excellent version of the famous Bavarian-originated pot roast specialty.

Sauerbraten

4 lbs beef rump or round
2 cups water
4 cups water
2 onions, sliced
1 small lemon, sliced
4 bay leaves
2 whole cloves
2 tablespoons salt
12 whole allspice
6 whole cloves
2 bay leaves
6 peppercorns
2 tablespoons salt
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup flour
¼ cup fat

Place meat in large bowl. Heat water, vinegar, onions, lemon, spices and salt to boiling point. Cover and cool. Pour over meat and refrigerate 24 to 48 hours, turning meat occasionally. Remove meat from marinade; wipe dry. Brown meat in fat in Dutch oven. Add marinade mixture; cover and simmer 2½ hours or until tender, adding a little water if necessary. Remove meat. Thicken juice in pot with flour for gravy. Serves 6.

THE ALBUM OF GUNFIGHTERS SOON TO BE READY.

After many unavoidable delays, the new book, "An Album of Gunfighters Emeritus," is now in the hands of the printer for its publication. The contents of the book, as announced by the author, Mr. C. L. Sonnichsen, of El Paso, will be a collection of the most remarkable, the most interesting and the most picturesque characters in the history of the Southwest. Each one will be presented in a biographical sketch, and each one is supplied with a photograph. Mr. Sonnichsen is a Border authority, and his previous publications have been received with favor by the reading public. He announces that the present book will be the most interesting of those he has written. Those who have had the pleasure of reading the proof of the new book declare that it is a fascinating collection of stories about men who were real characters, and who played their parts in the making of the Southwest. Mr. Sonnichsen has had a lifelong interest in the history of Texas. He will be remembered by many Bandera people as a former resident of Medina county, where he was engaged in the ranching business for a number of years. He is now a professor of English at the Texas College of Mines at El Paso, Texas. It will be published by the Naylor Company of San Antonio.

NEED VAST QUANITIES OF BLOOD

On a high Korean ridge, Capt. John Tobin, commander of Company B, 5th Marine Regiment, was struck by light machine gun bullets. One plowed into his side, ripping a hole the size of a man's fist. Two other struck his left arm, severing an artery.

Tobin was rescued, but lost great quantities of blood. Three pints of plasma were administered almost immediately at a front line medical station. Later he received 12 units of whole blood. Some of the donations were given prior to major operations; other to build his strength during convalescence.

Today Tobin says he owes his life to the whole blood and plasma provided by the folks back home through the American Red Cross.

His case is typical of thousands reported to the Defense Department and to Red Cross national headquarters. Some wounded have received only one pint of blood; others have needed as many as 78. In every case the blood needed was available.

When the Armed Services first requested blood to be flown overseas last August, the Red Cross responded immediately. Within 5 days the first shipment was on its way and from then on blood was flown on regular schedules.

Shortly after the military request for blood, the National Security Resources Board also asked the Red Cross to coordinate all activities connected with collecting, processing and storing of whole blood and blood derivatives for Civil Defense. Added to these requirements were the day-by-day needs of 2,500 military hospitals converted to the Red Cross.

Within four months after the call, only two months' supply of blood had been collected and processed, were available to the military hospitals, civilian hospitals and to 36 other countries receiving shipments of plasma for military needs through the Red Cross.

Meanwhile, in Philadelphia, Chicago and Long Beach, Calif., the Red Cross is now flying blood to Korea in specially designed containers.

SPELLING NEGLECTED IN SCHOOLS TODAY

Austin,—Today's high school students can't spell as well as their parents, a University of Texas survey shows.

Dr. Fred C. Ayer, who conducted the study, sent back to 1915 and 1925 answers and included the same six familiar words in a renovated 1950 model test.

Take the word "trouble", for example, in 1915, 100 per cent of students spelled it correctly. Ten years later, the figure was 98 per cent and in 1950 only 91 per cent could spell "trouble" without trouble.

Dr. Ayer blames it all on elementary school trend de-emphasizing spelling as a specific subject.

And, in tribute to the old blue-back speller, he advocates new and better methods of teaching high school spelling, including a specialized textbook on the subject.

SURVIVAL UNDER ATOMIC ATTACK

How Should a House Be Prepared?

Starting right now you should go in for "fireproof house keeping." Don't let trash pile up around your house and always keep it in covered containers.

If you have time when an alert sounds, be sure to shut the doors and windows and pull down the shades. This will help keep out fire sparks. If you have shutters or venetian blinds, or heavy drapes, they will also provide some protection against harm from flying glass.

Several other household precautions should be taken promptly. Atomic bombs set off high above ground seldom cause breaks in underground gas or water mains. However, shaking and twisting of the buildings by the blast wave sometimes snap off household inlets at the point where they enter the basement. This may allow gas or oil to flow into your cellar.

To lessen the danger of fires and explosions that could result from this leakage you should throw the electric switch that shuts off your oil burner. Your local utility companies can give you detailed instructions about you gas shut-off valve and so on.

If you have a coal-burning furnace or wood stove, be sure to close its fuel and draft doors. In other words, do all you can to prevent sparks and to put out or cover open flames.

Should attack come without warning, take these same precautions right after the raid. Keep at least one flashlight handy and don't strike a match to light your way down into a darkened basement. Gas or oil fumes may be present and an explosion could result.

What About Lingering Radioactivity?

Knowing how to protect yourself from blast, heat, and explosive radioactivity, you do what you can to keep from being showered by radioactive waste materials. Here, you must remember, is a danger from which you cannot run for shelter. But it caught out-of-doors by bursts food or something to cover yourself with when you fall to the ground. A board or some sheets of newspaper might help, but a raincoat would be better. The object is, of course, to keep radioactive dust and raindrops off your body and clothes. When it's safe to get up, brush them off.

Always do what you can to help other people. There is no chance of your being harmed by radioactivity from the bodies of others, even if they have radiation injuries. Don't worry about people where they may be blamed. Direct rescue workers to persons trapped in the wreckage. If wounded, bandage severe cuts and wounds and use standard first aid procedures for shock, burns, and broken bones. Don't try to do anything. But tear them from the rubble and the ashes and flames. Undertakers are far less likely to be contaminated by radioactivity.

If you have walked through fallout from a ground burst or water from an underwater burst, be sure to change at least your outer garments and shoes before entering a shelter. Remove as a rule for most of the radioactive dust that accidentally picks up. By taking them off you will remove most of the contamination. If the clothing is heavily contaminated it is best to bury it.

You also should manage to take a bath or shower, if you have the necessary facilities, to remove any radioactive dust that might be on your body. It is important that all surfaces possible from your body, and bathing is the only practical means of getting rid of them. You won't need special cleaning compounds. Warm water and soap are ideal. In washing, pay particular attention to your hair, for that is one place where the wastes are apt to collect. After you dry your hands and face, you should get all dirt and dust from under your nails. If there is a radiological defense unit in your community, it could be find your body still radioactive, again scrub your self from head to foot. Then do it a third time if necessary. You can remove practically all of the radioactivity if you do it by these methods. But this is necessary only for persons who have come in contact with radioactive materials or become contaminated.

What About Radioactivity in the House?

A few simple steps will go a long way toward keeping your house free from being contaminated by lingering radioactive wastes scattered about in some homings. As a rule it is far easier to prevent radioactive pollution of a house bad than it is to remove it. Keep all windows and doors closed for at least several hours after an atomic bombing. In fact, better leave them shut until official bodies pass the word that there is no lingering radioactivity in your neighborhood. Should you get an official report that there is serious contamination in the vicinity, better cover all broken windows with blankets or cardboard.

Whenever there is widespread neighborhood pollution it will be impossible to keep your house absolutely free of it. A little dust is sure to sift through cracks or down the chimney. (By all means close the dampers in fireplaces flues and shut off air conditioners and ventilating fans not equipped with special filters.) Unless you are careful, some radioactivity is likely to be tracked in by people or pets. Keep your cat or dog indoors. And when you come in from outside, brush your shoes at the door, for their soles are likely to be covered with radioactive dusts. Better still, wear rubbers, galoshes or other disposable foot coverings over your shoes. Take these precautions, but don't worry. There isn't much chance really dangerous amounts will pile up in the house. Should you be likely to clean up a contaminated area, you might get some radioactive materials on both your body and clothing. So don't go home and sit around in your work clothes. Take off your outer garments outdoors or in the basement. Then wash, if you can, using warm water and plenty of soap. Never fail to launder your working clothes, but don't use the family washing machine. Scrub off contaminated objects in buckets or tubs used for that purpose only.

What About Food and Water?

To prevent harm from accidentally eating or drinking radioactivity, throw out all unpackaged foods that were lying around where dust from ground bursts or mist from underwater bursts might have settled on them. And before opening canned or bottled goods, wash the outside of the containers thoroughly. That will remove most of the pollution that may have gotten on them. Also be sure that all cooking utensils and tableware are scrubbed clean in order to remove any invisible, radioactive dusts. Food and utensils that were in closed drawers or tight cupboards will be all right. If it was an air burst, don't worry about the food in the house. It will be safe to use.

Be careful of drinking water after atomic explosions. There is little or no chance that water actually inside household pipes at the time of attack will be made radioactive. If a little is drawn off after the burst and placed in clean containers with covers, it should tide you over the immediate post raid period. But even if the water continues running, don't keep on using tap water for drinking purposes unless you have received official information that the city system is safe. This is not only because of radioactivity, but because of other dangers like typhoid that can come from damaged water systems. If you have to get city water before you get official information, boil it. Boiling won't remove radioactivity but it does destroy disease germs. Besides, boiling will make it safer to drink. Boiling will kill most germs that may get into damaged water mains.

What About Radios and Telephones?

Neither expensive nor lingering radioactivity has any effect on the operation of most electrical or electrical devices. Unless there are fires or there is a power failure, both your lights and telephone should continue to work. But don't rush to the phone just to find out how Aunt Susie may have weathered the attack. Leave the line open for real emergency traffic.

The horrible radioactivity will not interfere with the operation of your radio. In the event of attack, be sure to tune it in. It may be your main source of emergency instructions. And don't forget battery-operated portable sets, including those installed in automobiles, will continue to work even if the electric power has been knocked out. Your car will not be contaminated by radioactivity.

What About Automobiles?

[illegible] should be kept in closed garages or sheds. Don't park in the open streets. Leave the doors closed. Leave the keys where you can get them easily. Keep the gasoline tank filled. Then you can get away from the area of heavy radioactivity or ground bursts and don't worry whether or not it will rain. Radioactivity won't interfere with operation of the fuel or ignition system.

What About Children?

Everything in your household holds true for all members of the family, including children and people of any age. It should be your job to tell over the facts to all members of your family. Be sure each understands. Explain to the school children what they should do if caught outdoors when the attack comes. Tell them to follow the directions of their teachers and civilian defense officials. You may be required to take them to a designated shelter. Your children will have to depend on their parents.

To Sum Up

To sum up, always remember that there need be only two very practical dangers you face. The things that you do to protect yourself from these dangers usually will go a long way toward providing protection from the others. So start activities aimed at survival. Remember that the greatest radiation danger is that unwanted substances from close-in ground bursts may be carried by the wind. But it is more to be feared than fallout from air or other distances that are many times farther away. The main difference is that we can't see, smell or feel it with a shot in the arm, you must simply take the known steps to avoid it. If you follow the procedures in this little booklet, you will greatly increase your chances of surviving an atomic blast. Don't just act naturally. Work at it. Make it a habit to do the right things. Then you will be doing all that is necessary to avoid the dangers you may have to face.

The End.

BIG ENOUGH For the Job?

It takes speed, accuracy and dexterity for a championship football team. And when the ball is on the one-yard line, it takes real power ... sure economy might be important.

That's true at home, too; when it comes to the hot water supply. Whether you're bathing, shaving, washing dishes, or taking care of the laundry (swirly, you want—and have—abundant hot water.

For example, the average automatic washer needs about 40 gallons of 140-degree water within a period of 60 minutes.

Automatic Electric Water Heating helps to get things done — because there's always plenty of ready hot water.

FORMER JAY-BIRDING SCOTTISH LAD SENDING OBSCENE MAIL

Houston, Feb. 28.—Dale Roberts, former Jay-Bird employee of the register in Travis who received a package of obscene mail, was sentenced to nine months today on order of Federal District Judge Allen B. Hannay.

The sentencement was entered late Tuesday by a federal grand jury and Judge Allen B. Hannay ordered a bench warrant issued for his arrest and fixed a bond of $1,000. Richardson has not been arrested to date.

The obscene matter, which Richardson admitted mailing to himself on Sept. 14, 1950, was addressed to Mrs. Ernest Traweek, manager of the Houstonian, a weekly which has been publishing the Jay-Bird column about the executables.

The officer carries a maximum penalty of five years' imprisonment and a $2,000 fine, or both, on conviction and declared Richardson's mailing is a transgression of postal laws.

Richardson's attorney said he will appeal the case.

Mrs. A. B. Langford accompanied Mrs. Holdsworth, visited their daughter Mrs. Jack Hall and family in Victoria last week. On the return trip they visited Mr. and Mrs. Ben Davis in Goliad. Mr. Davis is a brother of Mrs. Holdsworth and will be remembered by many here as Leota Keenan.

EARLY AREA DAYS RECALLED BY UTOPIA WOMAN

Utopia—In the peaceful little town of Utopia, one of the most beloved pioneers celebrated 80th birthday March 1. She is Mrs. Ada Odle Crane, a quiet, dignified lady whose mind seems as keen as that of one half her age. Her white, steamed shoulders are the only visible signs of her advancing years.

Born Ollie Knowlton in 1871, Utopia's oldest resident was born here, she is one of ten children of Sarah Bess Dunn Knowlton and Kinds, with respective ceiling prices. He exclaimed that the O. P. S. office has no forms for this purpose. Hess replied that the businessmen can use their own type of personal forms for this purpose.

"These commodity statements will be required to be as essential to the sellers to refer to the ceiling price they charged in the future and for possible later investigation by the Price Stabilization authorities," he said.

Hess said that sellers covered by the order who are not required to file reports with the O. P. S. office will not be required to file these statements.

Arthur E. Bess, district price executive, said the price regulation would require sellers in each category, listing each model, type, size and grade of the services, delivered or offered for delivery, and stating the base period for their ceiling price list also must give a description of the commodity or service with your ceiling price for each item. Sellers will be required to refer to an attached price list, and must prepare your ceiling price list according to the instructions provided in the regulation.

Persons preparing ceiling price lists pertaining to the prices charged for services should confer immediately with the Sec. 2, Price Stabilization Office, Bess said

NEWSPRINT IS GETTING SCARCE.

The newsprint situation is getting serious again, and publishers of weekly newspapers have much to worry about; in fact, a real headache for them is developing. If conditions get worse it will likely result in smaller papers and limited editions. We understand that some of the big publishers in the North and East are already paying more than $200 per ton for paper stock—nearly double the present price of $100 per ton. This unusual price will probably demand upon the publishers of country weeklies like the Bulletin. Such a price is almost prohibitive and the little country newspapers are going to suffer from it. They can only resell for their actual cost in advancing their subscription rates. Under present conditions, we are forced to increase all our local advertising rates from our list. So we usually urge our readers to watch the date which is printed on the mailing [illegible] of their paper, and if your time is out we mostly [illegible] you to remit in order to keep the old home paper [illegible]

WATCH FOR PHONIES.

In the United States, more than ten million dollars is given to worthy charitable organizations. In addition to this amount, a billion dollars is collected from the tax payers by the government each year. Yet year after year the Community Chest campaigns collect only enough to take care of a small part of the services that have been established. Bill was tried once, has difficulty in meeting its quota.

We're a great people for helping those who need assistance, but we're getting to the point where we're getting disgusted with the "phonies" who are using the name of charity to get by. Through the Chamber of Commerce, various committees, [illegible] Of course, there's a lot of that going on in the smaller towns, but it's not often that we are approached by solicitors from out-of-town organizations.

Maybe the time has come when we should "organize" against these "phonies" who are using the name of charity to get by. If we could get a list of the names of all solicitors and worthless organizations, we could put that list in the hands of every merchant. Then if we were approached by one of these "phonies" we could tell him to see the merchants on the list. We could even [illegible] for an unknown outfit, we could put that [illegible] on the list and investigate. Then if we found it to be a worthless outfit, we could add it to the list.

We thought of the hardy boys, some of them our neighbors, who were battling through the cold night with broken poles and wires pulled down by the sleet that we might have light or a phone. It takes a lot of courage to climb poles in the dark and handle high tension wires carrying a load of electricity that may [illegible] oring death if some workman makes a mistake. Soon we heard the long and heavy whistle of a incoming train, roaring through the station, bringing us mail and goods from far away places. And we marveled at how dependent we are and how well we are served. It is the same throughout America. King Solomon had hundreds of servants, some keeping flies off him with fans, and chariots drawn by steeds at ten miles an hour, but in a big glory, the old fellow was a poor man in comparison with the common people of today. Now, ten thousand years after Solomon, the humblest citizen in this blessed land has millions of servants on duty day and night, bringing him necessities and pleasures and messages from far away places, the like of which Solomon never dreamed, and at speeds that virtually annihilate time and distance. We are all servants—servants of our fellow man, and of God. Our service is better when rendered with love and a Christian spirit."

Peace-time Atomic Energy Uses Developed in America

As the great tree of atomic energy continues to mature, it will bear rich peace time benefits for America's welfare, security, agriculture, and industry—for the overall national welfare and strength."

These are the words of Dr. Paul C. Aebersold, chief of the Isotopes Division of the Atomic Energy Commission. They are the words of a man who has come into a rear and speaks with more than a word of authority. Dr. Aebersold is behind and is being helped by all-out government research.

In fact, government research is the key to Atomic Energy progress as well as to medical, agriculture, and industry. Those scientists range from detecting the presence of brain tumors and treating over-active thyroid glands to determining the effectiveness of fertilizers and measuring the thickness of materials such as paper and glass.

[illegible] thousands of those radioisotopes have been supplied to all parts of the United States and to a number of nations abroad. By the end of 1950 radioisotopes supplied by the Atomic Energy Commission were in use in 809 departments of some 485 institutions in 47 states and territories of the United States and in 175 institutions in 29 foreign nations around the globe.

Here are some of the ways in which these isotopes have been employed in medicine:

Radioactive penicillin has been traced in the body with a Geiger counter to show how and where the drug acts.

Radioactive sulphur is used to treat both cancer and diabetes.

Radioactive iodine, injected into the throat, will disclose the presence of a tumor in the brain. Most of the iodine will travel to the tumor, and physicians can then use a Geiger counter in determining the location of the growth and almost its exact size.

A small amount of radioactive iodine swallowed in water will determine the activity of the thyroid gland. It also will cut down activity of the gland and thus aid victims of the heart ailment, angina pectoris, who have over-active thyroid glands.

Doctors also have discovered that radioactive phosphorus is highly helpful in the treatment of leukemia, while radioactive cobalt placed in lead and used similar to an X-ray also has been found valuable in the treatment of deep-seated tumors.

Many of these discoveries have been made by Atomic Energy Commission scientists in a cancer hospital which has been established at the atomic plant at Oak Ridge, Tennessee. Large hospitals in most big American cities also are using the isotopes. Among them are three in Philadelphia—Temple University Medical School, the University of Pennsylvania Hospital, and Jefferson Medical School.

In industry, especially in the field of Geiger counters, [illegible] of metal, and to fill [illegible] cigarette.

Radioactive powder mixed in an automobile have permitted wear-and-friction studies that led to the development of [illegible] now lubricant.

In agriculture, radioactive seed killers are being developed and a number of other studies involving plant growth and fertilizer effectiveness are being carried out.

What about atomic energy as the source of developing power?

It is now technically possible to turn atomic heat into electric power, but the expense is terrific. Atomic Energy Commission scientists have dispelled a popular illusion that a cup of water some day will drive the Queen Mary across the Atlantic Ocean that there will be a pill form of atomic energy.

However, since study of the atom is a military experiment, atomic reactors may be placed in battleships, submarines and airplanes to provide power.

That is the picture of the present peace-time use of atomic energy. Virtually all of the work of the Atomic Energy Commission is now along military lines—in other words, the production of fissionable materials to be used in A-bombs.

Some peace-time uses of the atom, though, turn up as a by-product of the military experiments, and some money—$23,000,000—was used last year to finance biological and medical research.

When, and if, peace ever covers the world, scientists see a future in which the atom will be part of everyday life.

BANDERA SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

The Bandera Soil Conservation District reports that it has received 163 applications for District assistance in soil and water conservation. Plans of these 163 farmers and ranchers have been completed on 163 farms. In connection with their conservation plans these farmers and ranchers have completed the following practices: 263 acres of contour farming; 800 acres of brush spraying crops; 1327 acres of stubble mulching; 10 soil tests; 2 range improvements; seeded 85 acres of cultural areas; to protect 4 ranch ponds and developed 2 ranch wells for better livestock distribution; built 1.5 miles of terrace outlets, and 0.5 miles of diversions.

Other supplementary practices to promote conservation, such as contouring, brush shaving, gully plugs and brush dams are not kept on record by the District.

Soil improving crops are showing up well after the recent sleet and rain. Bob Mansfield reports a good stand of Hubam Clover on both sandstone and newly planted areas. Wilford Jeffcoat reports that he has collected late last fall 3 bushels of Hubam seed from the standing stalks and that he has had excellent results from the seed that he planted at that time are coming back to partial stands. The folks along the Lower Turkey Road have been the most interested in the soil conservation work in cooperation with the District. Although planting has not been completed in this area, several ranchers have started soil saving conservation practices.

Hubert Risinger reports that a pasture he rested last summer and fall has carried 20 cows this winter and are without supplemental feed, and the cows stayed in good condition. Mr. Risinger rested pasture as part of his conservation plan.

The Passing of the Texas Longhorns

To mention the word "longhorn" at once suggests Texas. Here the Longhorn cattle were most numerous, where the range was open and free. But now they have gone "up the trail" for the last time, along with the covered wagon and the redskin. Many middle-aged people living here in Bandera remember never saw a real Texas longhorn steer, for with the coming of railroads into Texas the longhorns faded out. Improved methods of shipping cattle in boxcars to market without herding them, so stockmen began raising better breeds, and in just a few years the native longhorn was practically gone. A DELIGHTFUL WELL REGULATED CONVENTION

Hundreds more greatness lost in the directors of the Texas Press Association, but this writer, in their quarterly meeting last Friday and Saturday, a full report of which appears elsewhere in the Bulletin. Every planned detail of the convention was carried out like clockwork and the visitors were entertained in under the circumstance. I refer to the wonderful look which is shortly to be released to the public — The "Album of Gunfighters." Books are being published all over the United States every day, books of every size and kind, the editions of some of them running into the millions. But this "Album of Gunfighters" is an entirely different kind of book. There has never been another like it, and probably never will be unless my Dad writes it. Bandera people know my old Dad; they know his energy, his resourcefulness, his love of Texas history, and his untiring efforts through the years to put Bandera on the map. His interest along historical lines has elevated him to a place in the category of Texas historians—his writings are known from New York to California. He has written a number of books, and printed some of them himself, that are today valuable collector's items. A copy of this "Trail Drivers of Texas" is worth $40 out of print and rare, recently brought $75.00 at a book auction sale in New York, just because it carried Dad's autograph. Many book collectors throughout the country are making a specialty of collecting his writings, and the science never wanes, whose cheering word has encouraged many a young writer to strive on to success. Dad is not a college man—nor even a high school graduate. He is just a plain humble country newspaper man, content to build men in Bandera a moral edifice that will glisten and shine with glory long after the present generation has passed away. Now, if Dad should happen to see this before it gets to the printer, our readers will not get to read it. Dad will celebrate his 71st birthday next Sunday, but despite the fact that he realizes the infirmities of age are steadily creeping on him, he says he has two more books to write before he leaves to publish as an author-compiler under the title of "The Presentation of a Pioneer Printer" and the other the story of Captain Jack Hayes, the intrepid Texas Ranger and United States marshall. Mr. Ross now in his 72th year, and Dad is still collecting photographs of noted characters he has known and loved for 50 years. He has a collection of Old time Photographs of the United States and his pictures as used in Life, Saturday Evening Post, and other magazines. South Texas has never aspired to be the cultural center of Texas, but it has produced men who have left an indelible impression on the history of the state. Dad's writings will be found as a reference for future generations brought to this era.

MY DAD'S CROWNING ACHIEVEMENT

By Mrs. John Saul

The senior editor of the Bulletin, who is my Dad, has been very ill with flu this week, and through the persuasive outools of mother and the positive orders of good Dr. Butler, he languishes in bed, fretting and worring about who is going to fill up this page with editorials. Well, there are times when we have to abolish the editorial page altogether, but while Dad is off duty, and is not here to do what I may write, I am going to tell the Bulletin readers about a tremendous undertaking he has been engaged in during the past years—an undertaking that nobody but my Dad would have energized in under the circumstance. I refer to the wonderful look which is shortly to be released to the public — The "Album of Gunfighters." Books are being published all over the United States every day, books of every size and kind, the editions of some of them running into the millions. But this "Album of Gunfighters" is an entirely different kind of book. There has never been another like it, and probably never will be unless my Dad writes it. BIG ENOUGH For the Job ?

It takes speed, strength and deception for a champion bull rider. And what the bull is on the one yard line, it takes real power . . . true horsepower to get across.
That's true at home, too, when it comes to the hot water supply. Whether you're bathing, shaving, washing dishes, or taking care of the family laundry, you want—and need—abundant hot water.
For example, the average automatic washer needs about 40 gallons of 140-degree water within a period of 80 minutes.
Automatic Electric Water Heating helps us get things done—because there's always plenty of really hot water.
Be happy. Be modern. Be economical. Have low-cost automatic electric water heating service and enjoy the difference.

Crop insurance is proving successful as a result of an experimental program begun three years ago. Before then an insurance program applied to cotton and wheat turned out to be too expensive and Congress ordered it dropped.

The experimental plan, which followed has been closely watched by backers of such a program, careful supervision and appraisal, found it actually sound.

Last year the reports of the previous year's experiment looked so promising that it was decided to further test the plan. The Federal Crop Insurance Corporation has recently announced that a profit was made during the past year, as was true the year before.

Today, the insurance experts are unafraid to cotton, wheat and corn. Cotton is insured at 75 per cent average of all crops produced on each farm, wheat at 15 bushels per acre and corn at 10 bushels per acre.

Under the plan a lot ought to be better for the farmer who desires protection against the hazards of drought, floods, hail, insect pests and other disasters that plague the average producer.

In charge of accounting in the Kansas City, Missouri, office is Wilbur Brown of Rich Springs, Texas, while Ralph Mechlenburg last week is attending a school in Kansas City to make it the top men in the field.

The representative will be sent to Bandera to handle the business in this area.

SOCIAL SECURITY MAN SCHEDULES ITINERANT VISIT MARCH 27

Social Security representative will be in the Bandera County Courthouse on March 27, it was announced this week by Mrs. Ruth Hall, manager of the Social Security office in San Antonio.

Persons who have not received social security numbers and who are employed in jobs covered by the social security law should apply for them at this time, Mrs. Hall said.

Persons who have received social security numbers but have not received cards showing their numbers should also see the representative, she said.

Persons who have received social security numbers but have not received cards showing their numbers should also see the representative, she said.

SUPPLIERS OF MEAT MUST HOLD LINE ON PRICES

Suppliers of meat must hold the line on prices, Jack P. Allison, San Antonio district director, Office of Price Stabilization, warned this week.

He referred particularly to suppliers of beef.

"OPS well knows that packers have not faced with a dire profit squeeze," Allison commented, "but they still must conform to ceiling price regulations."

He said a number of packers in the district have complained that high prices and limited supplies of farm animals for slaughter and feeding have brought a "squeeze" on some Extra Reference there," he said.

"We expect something to be done about it," Allison added. "Means have been provided for relief in such cases, which Congress included in the Defense Production Act."

Allison is director of the district office has been instructed to give priority to said.

Persons violating the ceiling price regulations are subject to criminal penalties of $10,000 fine or one year in prison, or both, and to civil penalties of $5,000 fine or one year in prison, or both, and to civil penalties of $5,000 fine or one year in prison, or both, and to civil penalties of $5

IRVING LINDNER REPORTS FOR PHYSICAL

Irving Lindner reported for his pre-induction physical on March 8 and is now awaiting orders to report. Irving is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Lindner. He has a brother in service in the Far East.

A. V. Poe, County Judge of Bandera County, Texas

THE STATE OF TEXAS
COUNTY OF BANDERA

On this the 12th day of March, 1951, The Commissioners' Court of Bandera County, Texas, being in regular session, at regular term of said Court, all members being present, there came to be considered the advisability of calling an election for the purpose of raising additional ad valorem tax for county purposes the tax therefor to be levied by the present general revenue purposes; and

Commissioner Potter moved that a Tax Election be called. The motion was seconded by Commissioner Pingleton. The question being called for a vote, the motion carried unanimously, and the Court therefore found by the majority vote of said Commissioners' Court that an election should be held for the purpose of raising additional ad valorem tax for the maintenance of the County Government and Courts, and for the payment of the principal of and interest on all outstanding road bonds of Bandera County, Texas, and that said election should be held on the 7th day of April, 1951, at the regular voting places in the several voting precincts in Bandera County, Texas, as the same are established by the Commissioners' Court of said County, and that the Justices of the Peace and Constables of said precincts shall be the judges of said election, and the Sheriff of Bandera County shall be the clerk thereof, and that the following shall be the proposition to be submitted at said election:

PLEASE SEND IN ITEMS EARLY.

The Bulletin urges its friends to send in news items for the paper early in the week. We want reports of parties, gatherings, visitors, etc., and we want them while they have news value—not two or three weeks or a month after they happen. Last week we published accounts of "showers" which were reported a month or more after they took place. Sorry, but sending in history doesn't appeal to our readers. Must be fresh and up-to-date or it may have to be left out.

OUR STREETS MUST BE REPAIRED.

In the hauling of rock and of gas trucks some of our paved streets have been seriously damaged. Such damage was to some extent unavoidable, but the question that arises in the mind of citizens is, "Who will repair this damage?" It seems to us that the contractor should be required to put the damaged streets in good condition. Much of the damage was done by heavy machinery used in ditch digging, and this should be done without delay or else our paved streets will soon be full of chuck-holes. Some of these streets in particular, Thirteenth Street and others in the northern part of the city, were paved by individual property owners and these citizens are going to insist that the damage done to their streets be repaired soon.

"A SWEET TASTE IN THE MOUTH."

This story has to do with trail driving days, and real cowboys of those old days. It was told to the writer by one who was there on that long drive when Old Jimmy Palmtree was in his prime, back in the 1870's and 1880's, when the wide sands of Texas lay open to settle, over the arid in the parlance of the day called "free grass" country. There drives from Texas to Kansas and the Middle West, along the summer and early fall, and turned over or sold to feeders who fattened them and in the late winter and spring sold them on the market; fine fat cattle that would bring top prices. Sometimes there would be a bunch of "frames" that he wished to move to Kansas to be turned over to feeders. Such drives were in charge of a boss or foreman, and under him a bunch of cowboys who were well versed in handling wild cattle, for most of them were born and raised on the range. The boss and his men knew every hard, tricky trait of the cattle they drove, and all had their own string of horses, and saddle blankets and equipment, lariat and shaps (or chaps, as that word is now usually spelled). Shaps were so called because they were made of heavy leather to shed water and so "fall them." Usually they were far from being gentle horses, and as soon as the cattle they drove and a bunch of remuda (spare saddle stock) were rounded up, hero stood this and still will, the wildest critter on the plains.

When the drive got under way among the cowboys was the reliable of this name. He says:

We had a cook—we had to, we had to eat. We had a chuck wagon, or as it happens, quite a train when moving. The cook was Old Jimmy Palmtree, the only person I ever met by that name. We never knew whether it was Jimmy's name or a name he just picked up for reasons of his own into which none had business to inquire; it wasn't considered polite in such circles to make investigating inquiries. Old Jimmy knew our mothers. Took travel away off into the starlit could neither read nor write, but he knew a lot. You know it. He would talk long and learnedly on any subject. Whether he had ever heard of it or not made no difference to Jimmy. He could talk and he had opinions. A sack of flour, or another marked horse feed or one with baking soda or sugar—the inscription was unknown to him. He went by the look and the feel. From then things get a little mixed occasionally, in the way of food. But Jimmy was never so badly mixed himself but he could not give a perfectly clear explanation as to how it was, and nothing ever troubled Jimmy. With all Old Jimmy's faults he was a pretty good cook. We always had enough—and he was usually good natured. Thoroughly good at heart, he did try, when things were so that he could, to give us something to top-off the dinner that would leave a sweet taste in our mouths. Occasionally he'd say to us: "I want you boys to remember that I try to give you something that will leave a sweet taste in your mouth. When you get home, you remember that. Now, git out." Home was back in our saddles, the only home most of us had, and where we spent from sixteen to eighteen hours each day.

We were moving along the great Llano Estacado—staked plains—of Texas. Not a tree, not a bush in sight; not a human habitation—one boundless sea of gently rolling prairie and with mighty few waterholes. A desolate country—just grass—sometimes not much of even that. One day Old Jimmy became sick, next day worse, next day couldn't get up, and someone had to do the cooking. Hot winds blew and it was very dry and hotter than that. Old Jimmy suffered. A kind of lied was made for him in the supply wagon, a hard jolting wagon drawn by four mules. Jimmy was alone in the wagon, as the driver sat aside and drove with a "jerk-line." No one knew what Jimmy's trouble was. We must carry him until we reached some sign of civilization where we could turn him over to better care.

That night Jimmy died—groaned, rolled over, and died—alone in that wagon. Coming off the night watch we looked into the wagon and spoke to him—no answer. Again we called him—no response. We climbed in. Old Jimmy made a move. He was still—dead—he had gone—only the old body was left. Jimmy had died in the wagon—alone. We, and some off the watch at 2 o'clock in the morning. The boss was called. We took the body and his blanket out and laid him on the ground; wound his blanket around him, tied him about the head and neck, across the chest and body and across the legs; got his hat, carried him about two miles in the trail ahead of the drive. There we dug a grave direct in the trail, and just as the sun was coming up, fall red and scorching hot, we placed Jimmy in that grave, his hat over the face we were never again to see, pushed in the dirt. All stood uncovered, hats in hand and heads bowed. Then the boss said, "Jimmy, old boy, we bid you a long farewell. We'll remember you for the sweet taste you left in our mouths." For many long years to come you will be a sweet remembrance to the men of this drive. Good-bye, old boy." Good luck to you, Jimmy!"

We swung into our saddles, rode back and started the drive, and when the cattle of that bunch and the whole outfit had passed over that spot, no human being could ever find it. We planted Jimmy somewhere in that Llano Estacado and "that was all we ever knew about it—the spot could not be located.

Occasionally in other years I've heard men who had "gone up" spoken of unfavorably—heard men blamed for what they did, or for what they did not do. Then at times I've felt the pressure of a hand on my shoulder and turning around to look into near me—there was no one seen. Then there has come to me a voice, a voice that I knew—it came to me from the hearing—it said, "He didn't leave a sweet taste in the mouth, some as I used to, did he, Bill? It pays to leave a sweet taste, you see you have cows." That was all. I had again heard the voice of Old Jimmy Palmtree. Many and many a time have I turned over in my mind his "Say, Bill! It pays to leave a sweet taste."

Time passed along. Twenty-five years or so after I spent a delightful day or two with the only man of that old bunch that I've ever seen since the day we were paid off at Dodge City. We visited deeply together—we were no longer cowboys, we were business men, settled, solidly, fairly prosperous men. We sat that evening on Tom's ample porch in the warm, delightful moonlight, and looked across the Rio Grande into the dark mountains of Old Mexico—Texas beautiful. We spoke over again tales of the long ago; rather we retold to ourselves those tales of the years long past. We mentioned Old Jimmy Palmtree, and that sweet taste he ever wanted to remain in our mouths. Tom looked away off into the starlit right and said, "Bill, that idea of Old Jimmy's about leaving a sweet taste has stuck to me during all these years. Once in a while I see and hear Old Jimmy—he talks to me—always about that sweet taste he left in our mouths. I really believe Bill, it has influenced my life. I've done many a good thing, entertained a hand here and there; done some little kindness to another, much because I heard the voice of Old Jimmy Palmtree, whom we left that morning out there on the Llano Estacado. Heard him say to me, as clearly as I hear you right here, 'Tom, leave a good taste in the fellow's mouth,' And Bill, I've done it." Tom took his pipe from his mouth, laid it carefully across the ash tray, wiped his mouth on the back of his hand, looked at the moon, slowly turned his chair toward me—we faced each other. Then very slowly and with a depth of feeling I had never known before in Tom, that tough old rough-and-ready cowboy of the early 1870's, he said: "Bill, old pard! We fellows in those days never were very strong on the church business, and in a way I've not changed very much; but I want to say this, God bless Old Jimmy Palmtree. As the boss said that early morning when we placed him in the trail and drove the outfit over his last resting place: 'We will long remember you for that sweet taste you left in our mouths.' I say again to you, Bill, God bless Old Jimmy and keep his memory green."

I simply said, "Same here, Tom." There we sat for probably fifteen minutes, then as by common accord we rose, knocked the ashes from our pipes, laid them carefully down, and without a word spoken, but with a warm handclasp, we turned and each went to his room and to his rest. Today I am an old man, and I live in memories of the past. My greatest wish today is that when I am through—when I pass down the line and out—that the memory of my latter years will leave a sweet taste to those who have intimately known me.

Forebodings of economy an nonsense characterize the Eighty-second Congress which was seen by some observers in its initial performances on Capitol Hill on last week.

The House voted against a Reorganization measure which would have put from 60 to 90 days the time during which the House or Senate could approve or disapprove Secretary reorganization plans submitted by the President under the Hoover Commission program. I voted with a majority in defeating the proposal. It was felt the Executive already has ample power in this field, except that the present emergency does not justify a change in the existing law. As one man put it: "Ah, emergency, what sins are committed in the name!"

The President's plan to reorganize the RFC along the lines of the Hoover Commission recommendations would place responsibility for the administration of RFC in one head instead of the present divided authority. In addition, it would set up a loan Policy Board to determine general policy. The Loan Policy Board would have applications for loans in excess of $100,000 I voted for the plan, although I felt that it has been a mistake to have RFC—which I favor—operate as a "bank of issue." The Reorganization was created as a determining agency and would pass on loans for a long time, but with the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation already represented on the Loan Policy Board, I thought it would be better to have the Treasury Department represented on the Board. Such changes were defeated, however, and the plan was adopted.

The third bill voted on last week was the Defense Production Act, which was rejected by the House. It was a drastic measure, and I voted for it. The bill would have permitted the President to allocate materials and might, in some instances, without sufficient notice, have worked a hardship on individuals and concerns. Our economy is now about where it was when the Korean war started. Another inflation period would be disastrous. The economy that was defeated.

If formally and timely followed, serve as a barometer of the economy, the Texas cattle trail, according to W. M. Sibley, the Texas cattle historian, will be followed on Sunday, April 29, when the Texas delegation in Washington will hold open house in the Texas delegation room in the Capitol Building. Mr. Sibley, who has been a member of the Texas delegation for 20 years, will be host to the group. Mrs. Sibley will assist as hostess.

ALL CITIZENS MUST CO-OPERATE WITH LOCAL AUTHORITIES, SAYS STATE HEALTH DEPARTMENT

Austin, Texas.—"All citizens must cooperate with their neighbors and local authorities if Texas towns and communities are to be kept free of unsightly and health menacing accumulations of garbage and rubbish," warns Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health officer.

"Since garbage, rubbish and other types of refuse are of some value in the production of flies, the same laker, they are of no value to a neighbor. Every person is responsible for the waste materials which he produces and is expected to discard, to collect, store and dispose of these materials in a sanitary manner. The officials of every municipality or other political subdivision encounter the problem of collecting and disposing of refuse materials discarded by their residents.

"Improper disposal of refuse presents definite hazards to public health from the standpoint of breeding places for rats, flies and other vectors of disease transmission. Odors, smoke and disagreeable appearance are other important considerations.

"The State Health Department and County Health Units are vitally interested in proper storage, collection and disposal of refuse and stand ready to aid towns or individuals in solving their problems. Receptacles for storage should be of water tight metal with lids that fit. Final disposal is a serious and difficult problem which individuals and communities are now getting by local conditions. Waste materials should never be allowed to be carried by garbage to another person or organization."

MEDINA GETS LOAD OF BASS

Medina Lake received a load of fish under the bass restocking plan, although the load has been as a good bass hole.

Houston Maples, from the Olmito Hatchery, at Brownsville, unloaded 125,000 of the day old fry the first crop of the 1951 spawning season in Texas.

D. C. Harper, manager of the fish-hatchery, watched Natalia Fish Hatchery, at Natalia, and Mrs. Maples, Marion Tooke, the fisheries man, assisted in the unloading of the fish. Harper says that the bass are no more smaller than the lake bass, but that they will be stronger for the lake waters.

That will give the bass plenty of growing room, Harper said. Harper is a hurry and he needs fish to stock the new Bass-Sac Reservoir, Corpus Christi.

BIG ENOUGH For the Job ?

It takes speed, strength and deception for a cheap-jumbo football team. And when the ball is on the one-yard line, it takes real power . . . that becomes mighty important.

That's true at home, too, when it comes to the hot water supply. Whether you're bathing or shaving, washing dishes, or taking care of the family laundry, you want—and need—abundant hot water.

For example, the average automatic washer needs about 40 gallons of 140-degree water within a period of 60 minutes.

Automatic Electric Water Heating helps us get things done — because there's always plenty of really hot water.

Be happy. Be modern. Be economical. Have low-cost automatic electric water heating service and enjoy the difference.

FORD WINS AGAIN!

V-8 TAKES FIRST PLACE IN CLASS "A" 1951 MOBILGAS ECONOMY RUN

Both Ford V-8 and SIX Deliver more than 23.9 miles per gallon

Gruelling 840-mile test proves Ford Economy

Again this year . . . it's high honors for Ford! In the most important economy trial for American stock model cars . . . the famous annual Mobilgas Economy Run . . . A Ford 100-h.p. V-8 equipped with Overdrive took first place in competing against all cars in its price class, making 21.96 miles per gallon! and 23.994 miles per gallon. And its companion in quality, the new Ford SIX, with Overdrive, was right up there with the winner. In fact, both cars averaged better than 23.9 miles per gallon.

Traditional Ford economy, for the second straight year, has been proved in open competition. Proved on the tough 840-mile grind from Los Angeles to the Grand Canyon . . . a course that included city traffic, below-sea-level desert heat and 7,000-foot mountain passes. Ford's Automatic Mileage Maker, standard equipment on all Ford V-8's and SIXES, contributed to this great achievement by squeezing the last mile out of every drop of gasoline.

Why not "Test Drive" the new Ford at your nearest Ford Dealer's? There's no better way to be convinced that "You can pay more but you can't buy better."

*The AAA Contest Board determines the scored by a "ton-mile per gallon" formula to make each entry's performance comparable regardless of size and weight. Ton miles per gallon equals the number of miles travelled, multiplied by the number of tons of gasoline consumed, divided by number of gallons of gasoline consumed.

The property outlook on real estate in the area looks very promising, states Bill Smith, partner of the Prue Realty Co. The recent sales should also increase this outlook, he stated. We are looking for a very good year because of the many inquiries we are getting this early in the season. There is a large demand for small ranches from two hundred to eight hundred acres in this area due to the tried grass areas and too, this is also a good area for cattle feeding and fattening climate. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB FEATURES TEXTILE PAINTING

The Pipe Creek Home Demonstration Club held their special interest meeting at the Bandera Library Auditorium last Friday afternoon and since Pipe Creek Club did not have an active steercil action, Mrs. Walter Meadows very graciously took over and the demonstration of textile painting was most interesting. She did a pink linen basket-weave for the corner design of blue and green.

We give the steps in making the lovely design. First, the pieced basket was traced out on drawing board, placed a blotter directly under the back of the fabric to be stenciled, and the paint was put in small amounts of color to be used in a palette. Then the added water was thinner and soft; then the tools used, sponge, paint brush, and the fastened stencil pattern to handle. Fourth, the dipped stencil brush was applied to the pattern and applied to pattern to avoid smearing. Fifth, the stencil brush was held perpendicular to the fabric and stippled evenly. Sixth, the stencil was removed carefully and the pattern was allowed to dry. Seventh, the color was set by pressing with a hot iron. She recommended above every thing that a piece of cloth be used to make some arrangements of these designs before actually painting the piece of handwork. Each member present painted one of these designs. Mrs. Meadows also showed a number of finished pieces of textile painting. Mrs. Meadows was assisted by Mrs. Ed Reynolds, Mrs. Ben Hall, Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. C. Kutzer and Mrs. Agnes Hodges. Mrs. Meadows and Miss Reagan will select their favorite designs for the 4-H Club. Mrs. Paul Burr will give the answers to the questions. The demonstrations will be made by the Bandera Home Demonstration Club and The Medina Garden Club receiving a demonstration. Mrs. Jones, chairman will be in charge. Mrs. J. Flowers, assisted by Mrs. John Johnson, Mrs. C. Kutzer and Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Lee Fisher, Mrs. Agnes Hodges, Mrs. Ben Hall

REPAIRING THE PAVED STREETS.

The damage done to some of Bandera's paved streets during the laying of sewers is now being repaired, by filling the cuts with asphalt and surfacing the broken places. This is commendable for much concern has been expressed over the matter of having the streets repaired in which laid the sewers has avoided as much damage as possible to the pavements, and in doing its best to make the repaired places substantial.

TWO ELECTIONS THE SAME DAY.

On April 7th two separate elections are to be held in Bandera, one of them a county-wide election for the levying of a 30cent ad valorem tax to replace the 30cent state tax which was withdrawn on January 1st. The other election is to be held in Bandera Rural High School District only and is to determine if this school district will be authorized to issue $150,000 in bonds for improvement, building and maintenance of school buildings, class rooms, gymnasium, etc. The polling places for the ad valorem taxes election here in Bandera are at the court house and at the school house, and polling places in other precincts are named in the election notice now appearing in the Bulletin. The polling place for the school bond election will be at the school house, where every property owner can vote. But to avoid confusion, let us say that you must vote in your respective precinct in the ad valorem tax election; that is, here in Bandera if you live on the north side of Highway 16 you will have to vote at the court house, and if you live on the south side of Highway 16 you will have to go to the school house to vote, while in the school bond election you will vote at the high school building whether you live on the north or the south side of Highway 16. It's a bit confusing but remember those instructions when you go to vote. We should urge every voter to read the proposition printed in the Bulletin and make up your mind to cast your vote on April 7th in both elections. Both propositions vitally affect the future of Bandera, and are worthy of your deepest consideration.

YOU ARE NO BETTER OFF.

Unless you have doubled your earnings in the past two years, you are no better off financially that you were in 1940. Concretely, figures show that the man earning $3,000 in 1940 must earn $9,567 in 1950 to live on the identical level of ten years earlier. And as for this year of 1951, it will be worse not because of still higher prices but also because of the bigger bite the Federal income tax is going to take. There's bound to be a reason for the increased cost of living, and Mr. Average Citizen wonders who is to blame. The blame can be plainly traced to the administration in Washington.

THE R.F.C. SHOULD BE ABOLISHED.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, set up by the government to furnish finances for agencies and building corporations to relieve conditions created during the depression of the 1929's, should be abolished. Within the past few weeks some startling disclosures have been made and the public is astonished. The scandals emanating from Washington—the papers have been full of them—show that something is mighty rotten, and there is now a clamor for the abolishment of the R.F.C. Ernest Jones-Jones the greatest oil financier Texas has ever produced, who headed the Reconstruction Finance Corporation when it was set up, says the agency should be abolished. Congress is expected to soon give the matter its attention, and if our guess is correct, the R.F.C. will be abolished.

IT WON'T BE LONG NOW.

Word comes from the Stock Printing Company in Austin that the printing of "The Album of Gunfighters" has been completed and the books are now being bound by the University Bookbindery in San Antonio, so it will not be long now until the book will be ready for distribution. This will be pleasing news to the 500 or more prepublication subscribers who have so patiently waited for delivery of this wonderful book, by Rose & Hunter. It is a most remarkable book, nothing like it ever undertaken before. It will contain between 300 and 400 actual photographs, with sketches, of famous outlaws and desperadoes, frontier characters, Texas Rangers and U. S. Marshals, clearly printed on heavy enamel paper, and beautifully bound in heavy boards, the cover in three colors and silk screened. The designing and illustrating is a real work of art done by Warren Hunter. The photographs are all from the Famous Rose Collection of Old Time Photographs and the sketches and other historical material was prepared and edited by J. Marvin Hunter. It is the most elaborate and expensive piece of printing we have ever undertaken, and we are exceedingly proud to offer it to the public at $10.00 per copy. We think we can announce next week the exact date when the book will be available. In order to be among the first to receive a copy you should send in your order at once to Rose & Hunter Frontier Times Museum, Bandera, Texas.

Our WASHINGTON Letter

By Congressman O. C. FISHER

Indications are a Tideland Bill will be reported by the House Judiciary Committee before long. When that is done, the measure will be acted upon by the House before the Senate, and finally by the President. If and when passed, the President has indicated he will veto it. Then will come the real test—the question of overriding the veto. It will take a two-thirds vote of each House.

The first test on Tidelands legislation was made in 1946 when the House voted 198 to 67 to refer a bill to confirm ownership of tidelands in the States, to the Judiciary Committee by a vote of 41 to 34. President Truman promptly vetoed it and that was the end of that effort.

The second test by the sponsors was a renewed effort to force a bill which, although that would be able to withstand a veto. But there came a period of rumored compromises and later the Supreme Court ended up the Texas case. By a 4-to-3 decision, the Court held that Texas did not own its Tidelands even though that ownership was confirmed by the annexation agreement, and even through the retention clause described in the annexation resolution to the Constitution of Texas.

Now, the issue is again before the House. Rep. Edwin E. Willis, La., Ed Gossett of Wichita Falls, Texas, and Judge Judiciary Committee, the fight has already begun on the floor of the House. Speaker Rayburn has announced that the bill will be considered under a closed rule, which means that no amendments will be in order. Debate will be limited to 10 hours, equally divided between proponents and opponents. Under the rule, the bill will be voted on immediately after the debate is concluded.

Those eligible to vote in any election must be citizens of the United States, 21 years of age, and have resided in the state one year and in the county six months next preceding the election. Persons who have changed their residence from one county to another within the state may vote in the county of their former residence until they have resided in the county of their residence for six months.

Those who have become of voting age since the last election, those who have become citizens since the last election, and those who have moved into the county since the last election must pay their poll taxes before they can vote. Persons who have changed their residence from one county to another within the state may vote in the county of their former residence until they have resided in the county of their residence for six months.

Those who have become of voting age since the last election, those who have become citizens since the last election, and those who have moved into the county since the last election must pay their poll taxes before they can vote.

BANDERA SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

The benefits the rancher will receive from opting deferment of a mature are many. A few of the most outstanding benefits are the following:

1. Gains in Vigor—Grasses are no different from humans or livestock. If starved, they are instantaneously they become sickly and low producers. Conversely, as root growth is proportional to the amount of top growth. Stockpiling plants also have the opportunity to establish themselves and hence not be so easily pulled up by grazing animals.

2. Seed Production—Closely associated with gains in vigor and production. Grass plants, like any other living organism, must be given the opportunity to reproduce itself. The healthier and more robust the plant the more vital and the larger number of seed it will produce.

3. Better Utilization of Rainfall—In order for rainfall to be absorbed and store the spring rains for use during the summer months there must be a good cover of vegetation on the surface. Abundant leaf growth retards "raindrop impact" and runoff while the roots keep the soil open and allow the water to soak into the soil. It is not the amount of rainfall that counts, the important thing is the amount that goes into the soil.

4. Soil Conservation—As mentioned above, abundant leaf growth acts as a mulch. It is the running of water over the soil surface that carries away the fertile and vital top soil. Enough of the soil must be maintained to support the vegetation.

5. Increase in Profit Per Acre—Although the rancher may profit by deferring a pasture, maximum increase must not be sought, but should be shared in the soil by the grass. Experience has shown that greater gains have been made from moderate stocking than from heavy stocking. Moderate stocking is important for the conservation of the soil.

The cash received last season by ranchers and farmers in the Bandera County Soil Conservation District totaled $1,000,000. Much of this money was spent for improvements that will increase the value of the land for years to come. Many ranchers have also used their cash to purchase more livestock and thereby increase their income. Bandera County ranchers have a great opportunity for growth. The future of these ranchers depends on the way they handle their land. Proper use of the land will mean a green level.

TO BANDERA COUNTY TAXPAYERS

Are we going to vote a 30c tax on ourselves April 7th? On January 1, 1948, county property valuation was $2,584,510.00. In 1949-1950 the valuation was allowed doubled, or raised to about $1,500,000.00. This year the valuation was five dollars for 1951.

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S CONFERENCE ON ORGANIZED CRIME

Two of the highest law men of organized crime will speak at the statewide conference of prosecuting attorneys called by Attorney General Price Daniel in Austin March 30-31.

They are Warren Olney III, chief counsel for the California Crime Commission, and Rudolph Sullivan, operating director of the Kefauver Crime Commission. Both have had many years of experience in the field of organized gambling rackets which invaded their states, Daniel said.

Olney served for years as deputy district attorney, and three years as chief criminal deputy attorney general of California, before being appointed Earl Warren, while he was Attorney General of California.

Sullivan, a former FBI agent in Texas, was counsel for the Kefauver Crime Commission in its success ful campaign to investigate race horse bookies, slot machines, and other criminal vices from Miami to Los Angeles.

Daniel said that he was calling the meeting after the state's attorneys had presented recommended pending legislation and means of cooperating with law enforcement officers for the purpose of better enforcement of present laws and "to serve notice to the world that Texas will not allow the entry of gambling racketeers who are now being run out of other states."

Other speakers on the two-day program will be Carl Hamilton, Garrison, director of the Department of Public Safety; Fred Meredith, of the House Committee on Organized Crime; Investigator, and District Attorneys Henry Wade, Dallas; Will Wilson, Houston; Coyle Attorney Hubert Green, Jefferson; Stewart Hellman of Fort Worth, president of the County and District Attorneys Association; Bill Decker, executive secretary of the Texas Sheriffs' Association; Carl E. Pollard, Texas Police Association, and Bill Rusch, counsel of the Texas Constable Association.

CEILING PRICE FILING DATE EXTENDED

The office of Price Stabilization this week issued to Bandera retailers a notice that the deadline for filing ceiling prices has been extended to April 20. Retailers who have not filed ceiling prices by that date will be liable to a fine of $50 for each day they are late in filing, according to Mrs. Ruth Powers, Bandera County Price Stabilization Director. The notice was issued by Price Stabilization Director Tighe E. Woods in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Powers said that the extension was granted because of the large number of retailers who have failed to file their ceiling prices by the March 20 deadline. Many retailers have been unable to file because of the large amount of information required on the forms, she said.

Mrs. E. Johnson sended seventy-five pounds of K. B. shavings to Bandera for use in the Bandera packing plant. Mr. Johnson purchased the shavings from the Bandera Lumber Company. The shavings are used in packing fragile articles for shipment. Mr. Johnson has been in the business of manufacturing and distributing the shavings for a number of years.

The cash received last season by ranchers and farmers in the Bandera County Soil Conservation District totaled $1,000,000. Much of this money was spent for improvements that will increase the value of the land for years to come. Many ranchers have also used their cash to purchase more livestock and thereby increase their income. Bandera County ranchers have a great opportunity for growth. The future of these ranchers depends on the way they handle their land. Proper use of the land will mean a green level.

WONDER DRUG SAVES EYES

PHILADELPHIA—Most eye injections "can now be treated effectively with a special liquid preparation of tetramycin," newest of the earth-mold "wonder drugs," according to the report of a team of six physicians at Jefferson Medical College here. The doctors tested the new form of tetramycin in treating 116 cases of eye infection. Only 9 of the 116 cases failed to respond to the drug.

Among the fifteen types of infection represented in the test was one case of suspected trachoma, a "cancer ailment in which the eyes become infected and overgrown, with blindness as a possible result. Prompt improvement followed treatment with tetramycin and the doctors recommend further trial of the powder drug in all cases where trachoma is widespread. Dedesignated troubles, such as ulcers that occur in parts of the eye hard to get at, also responded favorably to tetramycin. Other conditions treated successfully included conjunctivitis, infections following external eye injuries, and eyelid disease, and a form of blindness.

Terramycin has been increased not only as an eye drop solution, but as an ointment and is also designed to be used where of application and reading are a problem.

Mother of Two Praises Hadacol

HADACOL Supplies Deficient Systems With Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron

Mrs. Elmer Hisel, 2225 2nd Ave., Council Bluffs, Iowa, is a good mother, and like all good mothers she keeps a careful watch for the welfare of her two children. And when little Lucille Hisel wasn't feeling as her mother thought she should, Mrs. Hisel gave HADACOL a trial.

Lucille Hisel

Here is what Mrs. Hisel says:

"My daughter has taken two bottles of HADACOL and she has been eating more than before and added weight. I think HADACOL works both ways for the children who do not have an appetite and the daughter is four years old. Before taking HADACOL my daughter complained of her stomach hurting her, and I got her a bottle of HADACOL and she says her stomach doesn't bother her any more. I think HADACOL is wonderful. I am also giving HADACOL to my three-year-old daughter."

HADACOL Is so Effective

An important thing about HADACOL is that you get Vitamin B1, Niacin and Iron in liquid form, which means that they are quickly absorbed and circulated to the tissues, muscles and nerves to work. HADACOL helps furnish the tremendous demand of the body for calcium, iron is needed by everybody, and every part of your body.

Tire Shortage Idles Trucks

FORT WAYNE, IND.—With plenty of waiting cargo, hundreds of critically needy truck trailers sit idle at East Fort Monmouth and Fort Dix for lack of tires. Nearby Iron Bridge Steel trailers, valued at nearly $1,000,000 have been stored in Ft. Wayne for the duration of Freeland Trailer Co. for lack of tires for operators to endorse cars throughout the nation. Only a fraction of the firm's production can be delivered because of the shortage of tires, and many of those deliveries are made on tires furnished by operators for whom the trailers were built. Freeland is the nation's second largest user of truck tires, but the company's tire troubles are being relieved equally by all other U.S. trailer manufacturers. Here plant officials check serial listings.

PROPOSED "LUXURY TAX" ON MEAT DRAWS KEEBERG HIT

Corpus Christi, April 4.—Robert L. Keeberg, partner of the Keeberg Kloss Ranch in South Texas, testified today at a hearing on the House ways and means committee's proposed "luxury tax" on meat.

In a prepared statement Tuesday night Keeberg accused a staff economic committee of the House ways and means committee of not knowing "the economics of some industries" before taking steps to levy excise taxes.

The committee's economic expert, Dr. Washington Platt, proposed a "luxury tax" on meat was needed to keep prices down. Figures were given to show that 64 per cent of the nation's meat is consumed by families with an income over $3,000 annually. The committee's staff said the result was that the rich get the pick of meat beyond the level of their economic families.

ELECTIONS NEXT SATURDAY.

Next Saturday the property owners of Bandera county will go to the polls to vote on whether we will replace the 30-cent road money that the Legislature lost this year. This tax is for the building and maintenance of farm-to-market roads and federal roads in this county. It is our only chance to get more and better roads, so we should have each property owner to give the matter his or her closest attention. Other counties over the state have held elections to decide this matter, and most of them have approved it. Your tax will not be raised. It costs on the $100 valuation over 1950 but it cannot rise or fall in the same. This election will be held in both county-wide.

Then on the same day, another election is to be held in the Bandera Rural High School District to determine if this district can issue bonds in the sum of $130,000 to build classrooms and make other improvements in our present high school equipment. This election will be held at the school house in Bandera. Only property owners can vote. If Bandera is to keep pace with progress, you are urged to go to the polls and vote on this proposition, so do not neglect the matter.

And on the same day an election is to be held for school trustees in the Bandera and Medina school districts.

The fact that a new road is a splendid thing in the Bandera county, and it is expected that a big vote will be registered

WILL THE GANGSTER CONTROL OUR COUNTRY?

The revelations that have been made in the Kefauver crime investigating committee are startling and every true blooded American should take warning that unless steps are taken to check the power of the gangsters who are spreading in all states of the Union crime conditions will become more serious. Gambling, peddling of narcotics, graft in high places, bookmaking, prostitution, and other vices are organized and have already such a hold on the public that we can no longer sit complacently by and let it increase. The Texas legislature has created such a crime committee which will direct its investigations into every county, and there's going to be a "cleaning of rats" for every when it gets under way. If the officers of the law will do their duty, many of these evils can be stamped out—and the people are going to see that the officers do their duty.

WHY THE HIGH COST OF PRINTING.

Up in Oregon the other day a scale was signed wherein printers are to receive not to be paid $100 for a 50-hour week, or about $2.00 per hour. This was made necessary by the high cost of living, of course. But the cost of $4.00 per day for the operation of a printing office is not new. In 1920 it was after $4.00 per day was the wage for printers, but that was back in the days of good living at low cost and prosperity of a lingering type. The rising cost of ink, print and other paper stock as well as the cost of machinery and equipment is another headache and worry to the producers of newspapers. A new Linotype which is now space and which cost $3,000 now sells for $9,000 and a Kelly automatic press which was then considered high at $3,500 will cost from $12,000 to $20,000. So don't complain if you think our prices on printed stationery and other printing seems high. We're trying to stay in business.

FINE RAINS MEAN FINE RANGE.

The fine rains that fell over the Hill Country last week, amounting to two to four and a half inches, has started grass growing, and followed by the warm sunshine, everything is greening up fast. Which means that our ranchmen will soon have fine range and our farms will see their small grain growing. For a time the outlook was very gloomy. One West Texas sheepman said his range was so dry that he had decided to trade his sheep for a herd of camels. But he has reconsidered, and is still in the sheep business.

THIS IS MORE GOOD NEWS.

We have been wondering what had become of the plan for providing a dump ground for the growing city of Bandera. Now we hear that the Lions Club has purchased a suitable tract, not far out, and will employ a garbage truck to haul the city's refuse from the premises of the citizens. This is cheering news to most everyone. With the sewer system about ready for business, and a garbage dump ground coming up, the foul stench that used to greet our nostrils, and the mosquito breeding places will be a thing of the past, and Bandera can be called a clean town.

KERRVILLE MOUNTAIN SUN DRESSES UP.

The Kerrville Mountain Sun, owned and published by Mrs. W. A. Salter and her son, has installed a modern press and has been enlarged from a seven-column to an eight-column paper. The Sun looks mighty nice in its new dress, and we congratulate Mrs. Salter on the improvement.

SLOT MACHINE BAND ORDERED

Austin, Texas, March 31.—A cease and desist order dealing with slot machine tables in Texas was ordered issued by the Attorney General following conference on organized crime.

More than 200 prosecuting attorneys, sheriffs and district attorneys from Texas met in Austin to discuss the best means of getting to the bottom of persons in that country who have paid federal taxes on gambling devices.

The action followed a 2-day meeting of Texas law enforcement officers. They were assisted by Federal Judge Ben Rice and Assistant U. S. Attorney Daniel Hill, the prosecutor. "I believe the Federal government is in receipt of more information concerning illegal gambling in Texas than the state itself has," Daniel said during the meeting. "Regardless of what the Legislature does, I will find out which are yes, we'll smoke them out."

The attorneys recommended legislation to prohibit the sale of slot machines of the kind in numerous football games in Texas and football machines that pay off in free games.

They also threw their support behind the anti-bombing and policy bills now pending before the Legislature.

Resolutions against football game gambling was urged by John Mahaffey, District Attorney of Floridale.

Betting on football cards is the latest racket, Mahaffey said. Persons receive the cards are being used for betting on football games.

Hall, Henry Garrison Jr., Director of the Department of Public Safety, warned the prosecutors that gambling devices are being moved from one county to another to avoid detection. He said that the department is cooperating with the Federal Government in the campaign against gambling.

Hill Country farm boys and girls will be given a chance to show their wares at the Hill Country Festival to be held in Bandera on May 5, when the annual Hill Country Festival Queen contest takes place.

Those entered for the Festival Queen contest will be judged Wednesday afternoon, April 25, at the Bandera high school shearing corral, and the winner announced that night at the festival dance, a dinner honoring the festival queen and her court will be given. Others entered are Sheriff Hugh Buck, goat roping; sheep dog trials and other style show contests and crowning of the Sheepherder, to be given by visiting lodges from surrounding towns with Tivo High Band at hand to the visitors. Elaborate floats in the parade, Club floats will be featured in the Kerrville Store competition. Mrs. F. G. Best Jr., and R. I. Moore will be judges of the floats of the celebration.

Many interesting events leading the above mentioned are being planned for the Festival and the entire Hill Country is expected to turn out and make it of national interest.

SCHOOL BONDS DEFEATED; ANOTHER ELECTION MAY BE CALLED

Proposition Loses by Only Thirty Votes

In the election held last Saturday in this Bandera High School District, on the proposition of voting $150,000 bonds for the improvement of our school facilities, 308 votes were cast, 149 for the bonds and 219 against the bonds. The result was quite a surprise, as it was thought the proposition would carry, inasmuch as the improvements contemplated are badly needed. It is quite probable that another election will be called soon to make another try for the measure, when it is hoped that the people will awaken to the needs of the school. The School Board held a meeting last Wednesday night to discuss plans for further action, and will meet again tonight and may make a final decision in the matter. Full particulars will be given in next week's issue of the Bulletin.

LIONS CLUB HEARS REPORT OF TELEPHONE GROWTH

When the Bandera Lions Club met at the Cafe on the 26th, a report was made to the members of the club by C. C. Shadrach, District Manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company, and Otis Lindemann, Wire Chief of the Bandera unit.

Mr. Shadrach explained that, since 1946 when his company purchased the Bandera Exchange, that over $300,000.00 has been spent in the Bandera area, and during the next year, Dial service is planned to be installed within the next 24 months. The number of telephones in Bandera and its rural areas has increased from 450 in 1946 to over 750 today.

Mr. Shadrach also stated that the telephone company and its operators of the Bandera Exchange sustained a loss of over $20,000.00 during that period. The new rates which go into effect April 1 will be for Bandera one of the highest in the near state.

AN OLD SETTLERS' FEATURE BEING PLANNED.

Plans are being made for holding an Old Settlers' reunion on Trade, afternoon, May 19th, as a feature of the Annual Stompede. A committee, headed by Ben G. Wettmen, is being selected at once for next week to announce the details and program. It is desired that all of the old settlers of the county participate in that event, which is to be a real get together of the old timers, and we would like to hear from all who will be present, so we can be sure how many to prepare for. A list of the old settlers will be used in the annual Old Settlers' reunion to be held some time next fall, those who remain should begin consideration and honored as such. The last reunion was held about eight years ago, since which time a number of the men and women of Bandera county yesterday have passed on to rest under the shade of the trees on Eternity's shore. We all remember what a jolly time we had at the reunions at Mansfield Park and at Front-ier Times Museum. Let's finish up the old fires and try it again. With such old timers as Uncle Ed Mansfield, Joe Newcomer, O. L. Adams, John Adams, Nathan V. Brelsw, Albert Maxwell, Joe and Pat Maxwell, John Anderwald, Lee Wilkinson, Howard Hay, Dantes Hicks, Henry Dorow, and several hundred others, we can still muster a sizeable force to make the Old Settlers' Reunion at the Stompede a feature that will be worth while.

THE REMARKABLE SUCCESS OF ONE MAN.

At the outset we want to say this story is not a paid advertisement. We are printing it as a tribute to the ingenuity and determination of a poor American boy, who never got discouraged, and who finally found himself perched high on the crest of fame and fortune. He is Dudley J. LeBlanc, inventor of Hadacol, the patent medicine now sweeping the country. The 50-year-old state senator from Lafayette, Louisiana, invented the cajun kick inspired 12 per cent alcohol vitamin-mineral compound three years ago. Today the firm he founded to manufacture and distribute it is the largest makers of a household need in millions of homes in the United States and Senator LeBlanc has made his fortune in more than next to nothing to large size.

From the cane fields he graduated to shine shoes in school. In his present wealth has been a long and interesting journey for LeBlanc. After primary school he got himself a job as a waiter on a Southern Pacific Louisiana Institute as he could farther his education by selling the job the former waiter bought a receipt book for $1.00 and began grinding out at 25 cents and was back in business. How he could handle. Then he called in two cousins and the three worked their way through school with the same grinding business. After college he turned to salesmanship for the variety he used to hear you name it, he sold it. Then he sold soap and shoes then tobacco, but he lost this second job when he refused to send congratulatory telegram sent to him by his bosses. LeBlanc's answer was: "Obviously you are not competent. You say I'm the best salesman in the South yet my sales are only 317 a week." He had to look for another job.

Then came the war. The young salesman sought to become an officer, but he was turned down because he had flat feet. Instead he enlisted as a private and was discharged as a captain. "This time they did not look at my feet," he chuckles.

For a long period after the war he worked for a patent medicine company. His most centuries was an insurance business he set up with his capital. It was two months before he could scrape together enough money to pay his stenographer, but by 1935 his company had 200,000 policyholders. Mr. LeBlanc then sold the company for $220,000 and decided to retire. The mild crash of 1937 changed his mind, however, for he came out of it penniless. He then became a candidate for the Louisiana State Senate and was elected. He campaigned on a platform of soaking the rich and providing for the poor, a popular platform among the many poor people of his district. He recently admitted that his views had changed somewhat.

The senator formed the Happy Day Company, Inc., first manufacturing a bondable powder, then added a cough syrup. That sold well but not come until he invented Hadacol. The name "Hadacol" is formed from HA for Happy, DA for Day, COL for Company, and L for LeBlanc. Before he concerted his miracle elixir, Senator LeBlanc collected almost 1,000 books on ancient nutrition and medicine. He skimmed them and underscored many important paragraphs in red. We do not know just what proportion of the drainage Hadacol contains, but the alcohol content amounts to 12 per cent, and the medicine has a taste very much like a mineral powder called vitae-ore, which the writer's parents swore by some fifty years ago. They bought the powdered mineral in half-pound packages and the half-pound made a gallon when mixed with rainwater. It was not

UNIQUE RODEO AWARD TO BE DISPLAYED DURING COWBOY HOLIDAY IN BANDERA

The biggest cowboy buckle in the world—9 by 10 inches of engraved and bejeweled gold and silver—will be on display at the Bandera County Exposition for the benefit of the Bandera Volunteer Fire Department, May 4, 5, 6. Offered by Levi Strauss and Company, Baker of Mico, Bandera cowhand, Homer Lee's famous Three-Time Grand Champion Saddle Bronc. In 1940 Homer Rambo of Stockton, California, became the first cowboy to win the championship title for three consecutive years and thus the first to receive the giant buckle. Rambo repeated his victory for his second straight year in 1950.

The Levi's giant buckle required many weeks of patient craftsmanship. It was made by the Penn of Schaublin & Penn of San Francisco, descendants of a long line of Basque silversmiths and leather-workers. The result, as Bandera's rodeo fans will see, is a work of art representing the most exacting standards of both skill and taste.

The Exposition will be housed in the Bandera Auditorium on Main Street and will be open free to the public from 10:00 a.m. until 10:00 p.m. during the Stampede celebration.

BANDERA SCHOOL HAS OUTSTANDING PICTURES

The first spring of 1951 the Parent-Teachers' Association, sponsored a school attendance prize. The Bandera school was selected as a guest picture and "The Honorable Mrs. Graham" by Somerset Maugham was chosen as the school. The Freshman class won the beautiful award. The Gabe Pictures Co. presented the prize and for the pictures but Mrs. George Bradley, in the absence of the school, made the presentation to the Senior room. It seemed advisable to allow the Freshmen to keep the picture for that they star in the central room.

The Parent-Teachers' Association continued the Character and Spiritual Building program of the year and voted to give a picture for each school the first number "Mona Lisa" by Leonard Da Vinci. The Mona Lisa is a beautiful piece as their award. The class now has this picture in their room.

The Infant Sanitol by G. Joshua Reynolds was presented to the fourth grade. Mr. and Mrs. J. Walton Hicks bought "The Infant Jesus" for the Parent Teachers' Association. Mrs. Hicks is chairman of the Character and Spiritual Education program and has worked hard to make it a successful project. Because the picture was so ideal study for Christian education she wished to give it to the organization to the students.

The Parent Teachers' Association P.T.A. membership drive last October. They chose as their award "Distinguished Member of Honor Society", by Sanford Gifford.

"Dignity and Independence" by Landseer was selected for the fifth grade room. These pictures are called to study the dog.

The Assembly voted to use the money dollars set aside for the delegate to the State Convention in Galveston for pictures. With the money they bought for each to have a picture. Mrs. Hoebner selected "Shooting the Rapids" by Thomas Moran. Mrs. Hoebner's room has also received the following pictures: "Dignity and Impudence" by Landseer, "The Two Hares" by Sam Sidley, "Pride" by Thomas Gainsborough, "The Boy", by Gainsborough.

Mrs. Hoebner, Brother Mrs. Jesse Bowser, Mrs. H. D. Wilson, Mrs. W. F. Fletcher, Mrs. J. C. Akin, members of "Blue Mantle Church" in Bandera, Mrs. Karlin and Mrs. Allen Kaiser, Mrs. and Mrs. Bill Zumwalt, Mrs. Lawrence Smith, the Firefly Club, Mrs. Glenn Bradley, Mrs. W. B. Hicks and Mrs. James White.

Mrs. Vivian Knox owns her picture, "Saved" by Landseer in the third grade room.

Mrs. Melvin Fitzgerald owns two pictures by Landseer and "The Monarch of the Glen" by Landseer.

The Seventh Grade, sponsored by Mrs. Bob Hatcher, purchased two pictures for their room Christmas.

Troy Conwill gave the Sixth Grade a picture by Landseer, "Dignity and Impudence" by Landseer.

"EVER SINCE EVE"—the best in entertainment.

THE ALBUM OF GUNFIGHTERS NEARLY READY FOR DISTRIBUTION

We expect to have copies of the Album of Gunfighters ready for distribution about the end of next week. Bandera people who placed their orders for this beautiful new book will call at The Bulletin office some next week to get their copy. For more than a year the compilers have been working to publish the Album of Gunfighters at the earliest possible moment, but have met with many unlooked for delays, but now it is a reality and is a book that anyone should be proud to possess. As often announced, the book contains hundreds of photographs and sketches of famous outlaws, desperadoes, frontier characters, Texas Rangers, United States Marshals, and peace officers. There has never before been published a book like this. J. Marvin Hunter, Sr., is the editor and compiler, N. H. Rose, well known old time photographer, made the photographs, and Artist Hunter, western artist, designed and illustrated the volume. The printing was done by the Steck Company of Austin, and the beautiful de luxe binding was done by the Universal Bookbindery in San Antonio. The Album of Gunfighters contains 256 pages, each 9x12 inches in size, with a beautiful cover in three colors, silk screened and has a four-color silk screened jacket. More than 9,000 pounds of high grade, heavy enameled paper was used in printing the book. The price is $10.00 per copy. It can be obtained at Frontier Times Museum in Bandera, or by ordering from Hunter & Rose, Bandera, Texas. The edition is limited to 2,000 copies. Several hundred orders have already been received, and new orders are coming in every day.

"Life on a Texas Guest Ranch"

Ranches of the West and Southwest have entertained guests all through the years and have long been known as "dude ranches." The term is still widely used in general way to identify ranches catering to visitors, but it has not much of the former implication that all visitors were necessarily "eastern tenderfeet," inclined to affecting fancy clothes and manners, and shunning any but the most gentle of horses. Dudes of this brand visiting Texas ranches are welcome as guests, just as are those rugged individualists who don blue jeans and boots and ride, or learn to ride, fast ponies with the best of the wranglers.

And there are those who love Texas range country for what it can offer in peace and quiet when you were out on the range to watch the cowhands busy with the cattle. Then you discover that the first time what a tremendous appetite one can develop in the Texas ranch country. Of course, there may be some days when you are away from the ranch house or dining room at noon, and on those occasions when food had been planned an all-day trip to some particularly picturesque spot, a picnic lunch will be served on the trail, or a camp cook who had preceded you with pack animals or the chuck wagon will have been prepared a camp cook who had preceded you with pack animals or the chuck wagon will have been prepared to serve a delicious lunch ready to satisfy your ravenous hunger.

Perhaps you'll want to spend the morning, or you can ride all the afternoon swimming, riding or fishing in the creek, just sitting and chatting with other guests.

Evenings may be spent in fun and frolic. In the recreation room there is dancing to the lively tunes of traditional Hill Country music. There are moonlight rides in the brazing night air; rides that seem to go on forever, until you find a stop for a marshmallow toast and a song fest where guests join at the "family around the blazing campfire. You'll soon find their conviviality and many new friendships ripening. Then you'll need the sleep that awaits you, and whether your wood is a soft bed is in privacy of a sumptuous tent, or a rustic cabin, relaxation—but generally the real stillness of the Texas night soon lulls you to restful slumber."

Rules To Live By—Violators Die By!

Appalled by the death in 1950 on the nation's highways of six times as many Americans as lost their lives in five months of fighting in Korea, United States truck drivers have come up with a set of "rules drivers live by, violators die by."

They set the rules down in a highway safety essay contest sponsored by Freuhauf Trailer Co., the world's largest manufacturer of truck trailers. The drivers offer them in the hope they'll enable some of their fellow highway users to live to the end of 1951.

Don't "tailgate"—drive so close to the car ahead you can't stop if that car must, or so close that a car trying to can't get back into the right hand lane if danger suddenly appears.

Park all your property—personal, domestic or any other type—at the curb when you pull away from the curb.

Drive defensively rather than offensively—assume always that the other driver is going to do something foolish, is about to disregard all safe-driving practices and ignore traffic regulations, and has his heart bent on risking his neck AND yours.

Never delude yourself that you're GOOD AT REAL DANGER.

Never plan in advance exactly how many miles you must cover in a given time—gear your driving to the highway and to the traffic.

Don't "overdrive" your lights and brakes.

If you must stop on a highway, stop off of it.

Be ever willing to "go the second mile" in courtesy, remembering that you can LIVE by the three Cs of safe driving—care, courtesy and common sense.

Accept traffic laws and regulations in the spirit in which they are intended—as aids, not harassments.

Don't try to keep up the pace set by a "horse" larger than you are driving.

Never fight sleep at the wheel—surrender to it OFF the road.

Know the condition of your car and its equipment—A-one equipment represents a start toward A-one safety.

Remember that PATIENCE will go a long way toward keeping everyone safe and alive on the highway.

"ROUND ABOUT SPRING TIME" FLOWER SHOW THEME

Have you ever considered your local garden club and what it can mean to you and the community? Did you know that leading ladies consider the garden club movement so important that newspapers, magazines, and even commercial and industrial organizations are sponsoring them?

The garden club movement is a definite step upward in the development of this country. In evidence that the people are gaining in appreciation of the esthetic as well as the utilitarian, the garden clubs are interested in gardening in its highest and broadest sense. They not only develope the esthetic sense of its members, it is a community asset which acts to preserve and develope the natural beauty of the country.

The clubs were started by women and for a number of years were entirely feminine. Not so now! More and more men are being interested, and in some localities men's garden clubs have been formed and are enthusiastically and successfully functioning in the delight of the members, and the benefit of the community as a whole.

The movement is typically American, no other country has anything to compare with it. Not a movement that was started by the garden clubs of a few years ago. The first garden club was organized in Orange, Texas, about 1906, and since that time the movement has developed through the years, until now it is of national and international importance.

The club is sponsoring its first annual flower show, "Round About Spring Time", April 28, 1951, at the Library Auditorium. It is not a flower show just for the members, but for anyone who wishes to exhibit. The entire community is invited to attend and their artistic and all rare specimens they have grown—or some lovely new original flower arrangement they have made.

Of course there are a few general rules that must be abided by in order to exhibit. You will refer to the schedule of the flower show published in the Bulletin of March 16, you will find it isn't too hard to join in this community affair and help in making it a tremendous success. Who knows—you may win a blue ribbon!

BRUCE PAUL MONTAGUE REPORTS FOR DUTY IN THE ARMY FORCE

Last Monday's Dallas News contained the following story about Bandera's own Bruce Paul Montague and Mrs. Frank M. Montague Sr., of Bandera, a good looking young Brave on his knee, twirling a rope, and with a determination in his eye, which we give as follows:

PILOT ALSO FLIES HIS FAVORITE WAR

Aching daily orders from Uncle Sam to report to Marine Quartermaster Depot in Montgomery, Ala., Pvt. Bruce Paul Montague of Bandera and hoping since he was nine and those days of flying model planes, Marine fighter plane part of the war, always kept him out of the Marine Corps. He was ordered to report to Dallas for induction, but was able to be home D-Day (because it was born on D-Day), and drove on to a station near the air end.

Montague has entered pointer to Houston and Galveston having others. His specialty is golf especially in the Houston area. He was born in Bandera in 1942 and was an outstanding student at that school.

Member of Montague Marine Air Reserve Fighter Squadron 112 at Dallas, he was called to active duty in August 1950 and began flying that they do at his flying school at Montgomery. He was commissioned a second lieutenant after graduation.

After active duty and graduation from the Montgomery school, he was assigned to primary training where he was called to active duty in August 1950 and was commissioned a second lieutenant after graduation.

STRANGE VOICES HEARD IN THE LAND.

Many people are praying now than have prayed in a long time, for which we thank God and take courage. Some good will certainly result from Daniel Hutchins' orders from south of this year, in the pursuit of more war-fear and hysteria. It reminds us of a story from Tupelo, Mississippi. A storm was brewing and a negro servant, a physiologist named such cross-breeding could be used to give the apes a boost up the evolution ladder. The brewing, it is said, grew so deadly serious that the professor would be busy enough trying to prevent humans from sinking back into animalism without concerning himself with boosting the apes. We have noted no tendencies on the part of apes to desire any such boost to human level. We may as well stop using Sodom and Gomorrah as examples of the bestial tendencies of men. With the papers telling of hundreds of new perverts in government departments and scientists arranging co-habitation between men and apes, the handwriting on the wall should be clear enough!

THE PSALM OF WASHINGTON, D. C.

The government is my shepherd; I need not work. It allows me to lie down on good jobs; it leadeth me beside vital factories. It destroyeth mine initiative; it leadeth me in the paths of a parasite for politic's sake. Yea, though I walk through the valley of laziness and deficit spending I will fear no evil, for the government is with me. Its dobs and rob-baiters, comfort me. It prepareth an economic Utopia for me in appropriating earnings of my grandchildren. It filleth my head with false security; my inefficiency runneth over. Surely the government shall care for me all the days of my life, and I shall dwell in a fool's paradise forever.—Anonymous.

SLOT MACHINES ON THEIR WAY OUT.

Attorney General Price Daniel last week pointed new fire at the state's drive fight on slot machines. He gave county and district prosecutors a list of the persons who paid federal taxes to display 9,555 slot machines and other gambling devices. The information was furnished Daniel for use of material help to prosecutors after Texas outlaws the mere possession of slot machines. Prospects are good for putting a 2-to-1 year prison term penalty on possession of slot machine for any reason. The House last week passed 123 to 6, a bill to do that. Daniel released a map of slot machine locations in Texas counties. The list shows that Dallas leads all other counties with 1,579 tax-paid machines and Tarrant county ranks second with 1,547. Bandera county is listed as having 16 of the one-arm bandits.

Voices from the Silent City

(Dan Tacet Clamat)
By J. Marvin Hunter Sr.

Quite a number of Bandera citizens who read my article under this heading last week, have complained on the subject. I have been asked to bring some information about the people who are buried in Bandera cemetery, and the part of land which I have loved since the second grade. I visited the Silent City of the Dead again this week, and shall mention some of the graves I found there.

One of the oldest graves is marked by limestone rock at the head, the stone never squared, and the lettering so indistinct it could be read with only the greatest difficulty. Chiseled into the stone are the words "Sacred to Memory of Margaret, wife of O. H. McKay. Born March 2, 1845, died November, 1866." The tomb of a young bride, after 21 years, while eighty-five years have glided down the corridors of Time since she death. Among the stone carved

COMPLETION OF SEWER SYSTEM ANNOUNCED

The T. H. Lee Construction Company of Corpus Christi, of which Thomas H. Lee is the manager, gave a barbecue supper Saturday night at Stanfield Park for the officials of the Bandera Water Control Board, and about fifty invited guests, as climax of the completion of the Bandera sewer system. It was a most delightful affair, and everyone enjoyed the occasion. The supper was the first operation made as sewer connections have been made. Local workers are rushing the work as much as possible, and it is hoped that within a few weeks all connections will have been completed. The work of digging the ditches and laying of sewer pipes has been in progress for about four months, and though delayed by inclement weather during the winter, but under the direction of Mr. Needham, superintendent, engineer and all other affair, assistants, the work has been carried on as per schedule, and Bandera is justly proud of her new system.

Those present at the barbecue Saturday night were: T. H. Lee, R. B. Hall, Joseph Chance, Mr. and Mrs. F. Mathes, Jack Gaff, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. E. OPEN HOUSE TO BE HELD AT TOWN & COUNTRY

The Town & Country shop will feature the paintings by Olive Vandroff, Friday afternoon, May 4th at their "open house." Olive Vandroff was raised in the open spaces of the grand southwest, and grew up drawing and painting it as she saw and loved it. People have liked the way she has seen and portrayed them, and her paintings as they have been exhibited in the many portrait exhibitions in the state, are the rare and other jobs.

Mrs. Vandroff has first-rate standing as a portrait artist and has been raised in cultured and media. Her latter ranging through water color, pastel and oil. To present her work in the relatively rare and popular canvas. As to subject matter, here again she has all the beautiful hill country and most of them is one of her favorite animals. The Total Bonded Indebtedness, including the proposed $130,000, is $217,450.

THE 1950 ASSESSED VALUATION WAS $2,524,587.00.

THE BONDED INDEBTEDNESS, INCLUDING THE PROPOSED BOND ISSUE, WILL BE SLIGHTLY LESS THAN 8.3 per cent OF THE 1950 ASSESSED VALUATION. This is well within bounds of the pledge made by the School Board that the building budget will be kept sufficiently low to insure that tax payers that it will not be necessary to raise neither the tax rate nor the valuations in order to meet proposed obligations.

Plans are being made to have a Mass Meeting at the Court House on May 9. Watch for further notice relative to this meeting. You will be given an opportunity to ask any questions you desire.
