year, there will be 88 days in the first semester and 87 days in the second semester, according to school superintendent Ted Dockery.

"The Texas Legislature has revised the laws concerning attendance requirements for public schools," Bandera's school policy says. "There is no longer a 5-day limit on unexcused absences.

"A student must be in attendance for at least 80 days of a semester in order to be given credit for a class. If a student is not in attendance for at least 80 days of a semester, he or she will not receive credit unless there were extenuating circumstances for the absences.

"Even though this law is effective now, Bandera ISD's policies regarding the law have not been established because the law has not been interpreted by the state board of education.

"When Bandera ISD receives more information from the State Board of Education, a policy regarding attendance will be adopted and all parents and students will be notified.

"In Texas, children under 16-depending when the child's birthday falls-are required to attend school unless exempted by law. School employees investigate and report violations of the state compulsory attendance law."

Beloved Hope Academy starts 3rd year in LH

The Beloved Hope Academy, Bandera County's only private Christian school, will be starting its third year in Bandera County and its 19th year when classes begin Friday, Sept. 1.

The school will celebrate the new school year with an open house Sunday, Sept. 3, from 1 to 4:30 p.m.

The school, which uses specialized Christian curriculum from the Alpha Omega publishing company, will have classes for kindergarten through 12th grade and offer all basic courses and electives, says principal Don Asherafi.

Currently, the student teacher ratio at the school is one teacher for every four students. "We offer personal attention," says Ashcraft.

The school uses workbooks, primarily from Alpha-Omega Publications in Tempe, Ariz. "Students go through the workbooks and get as much help as they need," he says.

Students are not forced to go faster than they are able, however. "Teachers see to it that they progress to the best of their ability," says Asherafi.

The purpose of the school is to offer quality education, to provide Christian leadership, and develop the total child: spirit, mind, and body.

Beloved Hope Academy is an inter-denominational Christian school, founded in 1975 in San Antonio. After continual growth in San Antonio, the school moved to Boerne in 1981, says Ashcraft. The school moved to Lakehills in 1987.

The facility is on a hill overlooking Medina Lake, past the Medina Lake Volunteer Fire Department on Park Road 37. There is a sign on the road to direct people to the school.

Call 751-2012 in the evenings for more information.

Hermann Sons pinto bean blowout scheduled Sept. 30

The annual Hermann Sons pinto bean cookoff will be held Saturday, Sept. 30, with music, an auction, food, and lots of beans.

Events for the public will begin at the Hermann Son's park beginning at 11 a.m., says spokeswoman Frances Garren.

The Hermann Sons mixed chorus from the Grand Lodge in San Antonio will perform between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m.

Bob Macon will provide music starting at 11 a.m. from his stereo system and an auction will be held during the afternoon during pauses between the music. The auction will be held one-half hour on, one-half hour off, says Garren.

Food available during the day includes hot dogs, carne guisada, egg, and egg and meat tacos. Also available will be barbecue sandwiches made by Grady Mann.

Other activities will be horseshoe pitching and cow chip throwing, says Garren.

The judging of entries will begin at 2 p.m. with prize-winning bean sale afterward.

Awards will be presented for first, second, and third places as well as showmanship.

Entry forms are available at Lakehills businesses such as the Lakehills Variety Store, Adolph's, Shirley's, Fiddlin' Around, D&H Automotive, and Viking Liquor Store. All entries must be received by Sept. 28. Entry fee is $10.

All beans must be cooked on site with a minimum of three pounds of beans. Cooking must be started by 10 a.m. and cooks must provide all their own non-electric cooking equipment. Cooks will also need tables, chairs and cover, as the Hermann Sons provide the space only.

The Hermann Sons park is located next to Millie's Pavilion in Lakehills on Park Road 37, west of Heisler's Square.

For more information, call Garren at 751-2348 or Bea Borchers at 751-2469.

There are three board members that are not up for election that have one more year to serve.

The meeting will be held at the Lakehills EMS barn on Park Road 37.

His House

Just a reminder that His House, the community effort to provide support for people in need, is doing fine and encourages area people who know of people in need to get in touch with them.

The center, located in the old Faith Chapel parsonage, has been getting lots of donations and has been able to assist some people already.

Hours are Tuesday and Thursday, 6-7:30 p.m. and Saturday, 7-8:30 a.m.

Gumbo meeting

A Great Gumbo Festival and Cookoff planning meeting will be held Thursday, Aug. 31, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the Lakehills Civic Center.

"Anyone who would like to help with this year's festivities please come," says Peggy Ashmore, president of the Medina Lake Betterment Association.

CPR class

Some 23 people took the cardio-pulmonary resuscitation class Saturday, Aug. 19, offered by the Lakehills EMS Support team at the Lakehills Civic Center.

The Medina Lake Betterment Association donated the use of the civic center building, the Lakehills EMS Support Team paid for renting of the mannikins, and the instructors donate their time, says spokeswoman Brenda Reich.

The new mannikin, donated by Thoroughbred Chevrolet to the Lakehills EMS, was also used in the class, says Reich.

Lakehills paramedic Mark Burke demonstrates the proper cardio-pulmonary resuscitation techniques to some of the 23 people who took the CPR course Saturday, Aug. 19, at the Lakehills Civic Center. His elbows are straight and he uses pressure from his back and shoulder, the only thing that moves is his hips. Once a person's heart has stopped, CPR must be started before four to six minutes has elapsed, or there will be damage to a person's brain and vital organs, says instructor Conrad Gonzales. "That's why it's important to be able to do something before EMS gets there," he says.

'Pump Boys, Dinettes' in Ingram

"Pump Boys and Dinettes," the Point Theatre's high octane musical, is entering the second week of its three-week run and features 20 songs and a heaping helping of fun.

A country music revue, "Pump Boys and Dinettes" takes place in the South on Highway 57 — somewhere between Frog Level and Smyrna — at a service station and next-door diner. Its wide variety of musical numbers are tied together by friendly banter between the performers who are gas station attendants (pump-boys) and waitresses (dinettes). Between musical numbers they drink beer, cook and even make occasional auto repairs.

Starring in the production are: James Harris as Jim, rhythm guitar; Terry Penney as Jackson, lead guitar; Greg Bitkower as L.M., bass; Susan Ward as Betty Lee, piano; Mike Jones as Eddie, drums; Vicki Allen as Prudie Cupp and Caren Kensing as Rhetta Cupp.

"Pump Boys and Dinettes" was conceived, written, arranged and choreographed by the original performers: John Foley, Mark Hardwick, Debra Monk, Cass Morgan, John Schimmel and Jim Wann. They began "Pump Boys and Dinettes" in the summer of 1981 with late night performances around Manhattan. Soon the group joined with long-time friends at Dodger Productions to mount the show off-Broadway. After four months of capacity business, "Pump Boys and Dinettes" moved to Broadway where the show received a Tony award nomination as Best Musical of 1982, and four Drama Desk nominations including Outstanding Musical of 1981-82.

Ah, it's good to be back in this most wonderful of spots, Ol' Bandera.

For the past three weeks I've been working at the California Mid-State Fair in Paso Robles, which is real cowboy country. That's right, folks, California does have real cowboys, and this fair included "ranchers' rodeos" each day of its run until the final weekend when Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association performers took over.

4-H livestock exhibits were terrific. All the kids wear white jeans and shirts and green ties with 4-H logos, and there are a lot of them. They exhibited everything, including cows, calves, pigs, sheep, goats, and ... oh, you know, everything.

The fair had a frontier town with Universal Studios gunfight-stunt show. Good, but in my opinion, Rudy Robbins' wild west show at the Flying L Ranch on Thursday nights makes much better family entertainment.

The fair's entertainment list was mind boggling: George Strait, Johnny Cash, Bob Hope, John Denver, Mickey Gilley, Randy Travis, and on and on.

But, oh ecstasy, my favorites were playing right next to where I was dishing out millions of barbecued sandwiches. I got to dash over for a front-row seat when the Sons of the Pioneers performed.

It seemed like history in the making as they played all my favorites that are also played by the Bandera group called Lightning R Wranglers.

It was a super experience.

I found out they were staying in rooms next to ours at the motel, so I got to talking to them. Naturally, I brought up the subject of their being grand marshals of one of our parades, and they said, "Why don't you get us there for the PRCA rodeo next Labor Day weekend and we could be part of the rodeo entertainment and be in the parade too."

I don't know about you all, but I know that if that ever happened, I could just "hit the trail" afterwards.

• Ballan played and sang every day of the fair, and each morning the whole fair's sound system played her tape, loudly and clearly. The Voice of the Fair (the announcer) must have liked it.

• Only a few years ago this fair was broke, but this year over one-half million people came from all over to attend. The moral of that story: We all have to pull together and make our county fair the very best in the whole world.

And folks, fair time is fun time.

Smith-Dorn reunion draws 135

The 11th annual reunion of the descendants of Robert Mays Smith and Rebecca Ruth Dorn Saturday, Aug. 13, at Mansfield Park drew 135 guests from as far away as Lake Charles, La., and San Diego, Calif., and from as many as 42 Texas communities.

Elmer Smith, 95, of Beaumont was the oldest "Smith cousin" present. He's a grandson of W.D. "Seco" Smith.

His son, Bill Smith of San Benito, gave a brief history of his father's life, who had been married 72 years until the recent death of his wife, Eloise.

The youngest "Smith cousin" present was 3-month-old Christopher Jenkins, son of Curtis and Jan Jenkins of Shertz. He is the great-great-grandson of Joseph Smith.

Bob Week of Dallas gave a report on a celebrated court case in Los Angeles in 1856 in which Robert Mays Smith's 11 slaves won their freedom when Smith wanted to leave California, a free state, for Texas, a slave state.

Plans are being made for a mini-reunion in the fall of 1990 at San Bernadino, Calif., where the Robert Mays Smith family lived for several years with a Mormon Colony before coming to Texas. The next regular reunion will be Aug. 11, 1990, at Bandera.

Government scholars recognized

Trip to state capitol, debate on house, senate floors highlight trip

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Boys' and Girls' State scholars from Bandera and Medina and their parents were guests for a dinner sponsored by the America Legion Post 157 in Bandera Aug. 17.

Jeff Hensley, 17, and Amie Nightingale, 17, of Bandera and Mellisa Hodge, 18, and Nate Sims, 17, of Medina, were selected by their high school principals and counselors to participate in the Boys' and Girls' State programs sponsored by the national American Legion organization, reports spokesman Howard Strange.

"This program is non-partisan, and its purpose is to educate our youth in the duties, privileges, rights and responsibilities of American citizenship," says Strange. It is a "learn by doing" experience in the practical aspects of government, he says.

Nightingale, the daughter of Conrad and Nancy Nightingale, and Hodge attended Girls' State June 13-23 at Texas Lutheran College in Seguin with about 580 other girls.

"When we first got to Girls' State, we felt like a whole bunch of sisters," Nightingale says of the gathering.

While there, they learned about city, county, and state government in the college's lecture halls.

As part of the learning process, some of the girls ran for different offices in mock-city, county, and state governments that were set up.

Nightingale was elected fire chief and as part of her duties she planned exits and fire escapes."

Participants played the rolls of senators or representatives going through the state legislative process of submitting bills, debating them, and voting on them, she says.

Nightingale, who was a senator, says they worked on mock bills allowing children with AIDS to come to school and allowing the option of children going with their father in divorce cases.

Whether to legalize abortion or not was a big topic that turned emotional. "We couldn't get emotional on the floor, so that limited the action we could take (on the issue)," she says.

For one day, they used the actual chambers of the Texas House of Representatives and Senate. "We debated bills we developed in Seguin," she says.

While at Seguin, Texas state treasurer and gubernatorial candidate Ann Richards addressed the girls and encouraged them to consider running for public office. Richards is a former Girls' Stater, Nightingale adds.

"The Girls' State session changed my view on government. I want to get involved," says Nightingale.

Hodge says she worked on a committee for investigating oil spills as if an oil spill had actually occurred.

Sims, the son of John and Freda Sims, and Hensley, the son of Sam and Karen Hensley, attended Boys' State June 3-9 at the University of Texas in Austin with 950 boys.

Sims says they ran their own mock state and city governments and ran for positions in office. "We had our own primaries, party conventions, and had to make speeches," he says. He was elected to the equivalent of a county bailiff position.

On June 9 they toured the capitol and met the people whose equivalent office they held in Boys' State. "Our governor got to meet the Texas governor (Bill Clements)," says Sims.

The Boys' Staters were also on both floors of the Texas House and Senate and debated and passed mock bills.

One of the bills they considered was a modification to the "No pass, no play" law which proposed reducing from six weeks to three weeks the time failing grades would disqualify a student from participating in extra-curricular activities. Their bill would allow a test or review to determine eligibility after three weeks.

"It was exciting and interesting. I learned about things I wouldn't have cared about unless I had been there," says Sims.

"American Legion Post 157 and Auxiliary is proud and honored to have sponsored these fine young men and women to represent Bandera County, and we thank their parents and school officials for their cooperation in making it a successful community project," says Strange.

Brian Adame, the son of June and Kaylon Adams of Tyler, is visiting his grandparents, Lurlene and Irby Cole, for a few days. Brian has a few days off from the Tyler Junior College.

Irby's shadow, grandson Wesley, was picked up by his parents and returned home to the Houston area. Wesley says he is not happy about leaving grandpa.

• Dr. George Huff and wife Millie arrived at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Marion Birch on Sunday, Aug. 20.

In the 1940s the Huffs served as pioneer missionaries to the Wara Wara Lima natives living in Northern Sierra Leone, West Africa, and were responsible for the translation and production of the Limba New Testament.

After many years of service in leadership positions in the Wesleyan church (Michigan District) and at Houghton College in New York, they retired to live in Cape Coral, Fla. The Huffs and the Birches are reviewing memories about past association in various phases of missionary service plus those relating to hunting and fishing in West Africa.

• On Monday, Aug. 21, Juanita "Sister" Shaeffer gave a birthday party for Tom Andreas, 62. Tom and Sister have a thing about pan cakes, so Sister fixed four pan cakes and put "Happy Birthday" and candles with "62" on top. A regular birthday cake followed the pan cakes.

Attending the party were, Clyde and Debbie Dugi and their son C.A. and nephew Buddy Walker from Houston; Okie and Doris Treaster; Charlie and Betty Highnote; Joe and Joyce Sowell; T.R. and Mary K. Andreas; Doug, Kathey and Donna Smith; Lee and Edell Estenson; Ed and Bee Bee Rainey; Deanie Newman; Harry Warkentin; Buddy Pinson; Allen Haley; Oscar Koehler; Dick Newman and others too numerous to mention.

• The Lakeshore Volunteer Fire Department has changed the format for their weekly bingo in the hope it will entice more people to attend. Bingo is one of the main ways the department has to make money for the department.

• The Walker Memorial Chapel has been invited to attend a fellowship meeting of the First Baptist Church of Bandera on Saturday, Aug. 26, at 7 p.m. With the fellowship, homemade ice cream will be served. All members of churches supported by First Baptist Church are welcome to enjoy the evening of fellowship.

Musicians recall their beginnings and keep on picking

Bulletin Staff Writer

The 16th annual musicians' reunion that runs through Aug. 27 at Pop's Place in Pipe Creek is gathering more musicians each day and the Country and Western guitar picking and singing goes into each night.

The campground at Pop's is beginning to fill up and most of the musicians are expected on the weekend, says Buck Sloane of Houston, one of the organizers. "There will be wall to wall people here on the weekend," says Sloane.

The musicians come from all over the U.S., and this year several country and western musicians from England are expected, says Sloane.

Also expected to appear among the many musicians is the Martin Boyer Band of Lymon, Wyo.

Other bands to be featured are from Baytown, Dallas, Lufkin, Kerrville, Wyoming, Montana, New Mexico, Arkansas, and Louisiana.

Organizer Chester Pike "Buck" Sloane, the dean of the musicians, has been playing for 50 years since his time as a teenager in Lufkin.

The last 14 years, he and his band, the Buckshots, have been playing at the Hitchin' Rail in Houston three to four nights a week, says Sloane.

Sloane began playing guitar when he was 15. He teamed up with James Calvin "Tack" Carroll, then 8, who was later to become his band's lead man, and a third person playing fiddle. They would play different places in their home county, being driven to the sites by Carroll's father.

During their young days in the late 1930s, they won a talent show at a "Medicine Man Show," says Sloane, which as a much loved memory, gave them the added confidence to continue in music.

The purveyor of "Snake Oil" would sell a blood tonic guaranteed to cure most anything, called "Walcona." During these depression years, people would trade eggs or chickens for the cure, says Sloane.

As part of the entertainment to keep people at the road-side merchandizing site, the purveyor money, he adds.

Sloane and Carroll continued hosted a talent show, which Sloane and Carroll entered. Sloane played guitar and Carroll played a eight-string mandolin and they won top prize in the contest, $4.50.

"The $4 went to groceries and we got to keep the 50 cents," says Sloane. People were poor back then, and 50 cents was a lot of playing and soon appeared weekly on Lufkin's KRVA for 30 minutes playing with P.J. Crawford and fiddle player Harlon Neil in the band, the East Texas Hayrakers.

After their radio appearance, they would go to the courthouse lawn and play some more. With a fiddle case open, people would throw in nickels and dimes to keep them playing. "We'd go home with a handful of nickels and dimes," says Sloane.

People were hungry for entertainment back then, says Sloane. People would gather round and provide what every musician is looking for, a good audience.

This is the second year the event has been held at Pop's Place. "We really appreciate being out at Pop's," says Sloane. There will be food available on the grounds from L.C. Kelley and Jim Buck's Chuck Wagon Express.

Chuck Strange of Lakehills will also be on hand for custom designed t-shirts.

There is no admission charge and the public is invited, says a spokeswoman for Pop's.

A Thought For The Week
By John M. Grimes

Of all the blessings we receive in our lifetime, the gift of patience is one of the greatest...

PATIENCE is love at work. Patience is a mother who loves her small child even after he has spilled a glass of milk on himself and the clean tablecloth.

PATIENCE is a father teaching his teenage son how to drive an automobile without getting angry at him for his every wrong move.

PATIENCE is the man in his wheelchair and the woman in her walker thanking God for their blessings and bearing their hardships with a smile.

PATIENCE keeps our tongues from uttering unkind words, keeps our hands from doing angry deeds, keeps our feet from hasty acts.

PATIENCE is God's restraining hand. Surely it is what God must have in dealing with us every day.

Senior Citizens

Silver Sage Corral

By Manuel Flores

Zeke's Cafe was busy Sunday Afternoon, Aug. 20, when 50 plus senior citizens enjoyed cake, ice cream, pie, cookies, lemonade and other goodies. The Crossroads Band played a variety of music, but not much dancing was done in the afternoon heat. You could see a lot of toe tapping on the sidelines, however. A big Texas thank you and a tip of our hat to Don and Fred Mehaffey, owners of Zeke's and to the Crossroads Band.

• Collins of Texas from Medina donated a variety of items to be used in our arts and crafts projects. These will come in handy with our holiday items being made now. It is through generous donations such as these that allow us to continue our work in the community.

• Conversational and grammar classes in Spanish are being formed and will start Thursday, Sept. 7 at 9:30 a.m. Please sign up early as there is a lot of interest being shown in these classes.

• It is still not too late to sign up for the Dream Study Group that will be conducted by Mrs. Dolores Heeg. The first class will meet Tuesday, Sept. 5 at 1:00 p.m.

This class is limited to 8 persons. Call the center at 796-4969 for more information.

• It will soon be time for the Cowboy Capital PRCA Rodeo. This event will be held on Sept. 1-3, Labor Day week-end. Tickets for this event are offered to the senior citizens at a small discount and may be purchased at the Silver Sage Corral.

• Mary Mc Closkey, Senior Texans Employment Program enrollee for the Silver Sage Corral, is our "Care Manager". Mrs. Mc Closkey has been assigned to work under the Options for Independent Living program in Bandera County.

Mary will be an aggressive new component of the present outreach system. GERICO is the corporate name adopted for the grant program and symbolizes the "breaking down of walls and barriers" to the successful independent living of older persons. For more information contact McCloskey's office at 796-7431. She is in her office Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m.

• Persons with artistic skills are needed to help with projects for items for the boutique to sell during the holiday season. If you crochet, quilt, paint, make flower arrangements, or have any other skills please call Marie Holland at the center and offer your help.

Jockey Jesse Sauceda aims Ima Mystic Oak, No. 8, to an $11,652 win in Sunday's Silver Bullet Sprint final at Bandera Downs. Sauceda is the leading Bandera Downs jockey with 380 points through Aug. 13.

Racing extended until Sept. 10

Non-pari-mutuel racing extended to include meetings on Sept. 3 and 10, officials announce.

With demolition and other disruptive construction activities still a month off and no other racing available in South Texas at least, Bandera Downs officials have scheduled two more days of non-pari-mutuel racing for Sept. 3 and 10.

The track had planned to close after Sunday's racing, but track officials changed their minds and Friday announced conditions for 30 races on Sept. 3 and 28 for Sept. 10. Pari-mutuel racing will begin March 2 after completion of a $6 million renovation project.

Included in the races planned will be a $5,000-added Labor Day Allowance for 2-year-olds and a $2,500-added County Fair Allowance for 3-year-olds. Trials for both feature events will be on Sunday, Sept. 3, during Bandera's traditional Labor Day weekend celebration, and finals will be on Sept. 10.

The $7,500 added-money in the two featured events will be added to the purses made up of entry fees, which are $600 for these events. Thirty-five percent of the purse goes to the winner, 17 percent to the second-place horse, and lesser percentages for the owners of the eight other horses in the fields.

Grey mare wins Sunday in Triple Crown Futurity

Halfway High, a 2-year-old grey mare, had a relatively easy time Sunday defeating Smashed Crisis and winning $12,368 and the Triple Crown Futurity title at Bandera Downs.

The colt, owned by J.C. and R.W. Amos and trained by Benny Pennington, had Tram Telg in the irons as she flashed down the 400-yard straightaway in 20.14 seconds.

Smashed Crisis, the Blane Wood trained gelding who turned in the fastest qualifying time, was second in 20.26 seconds and took home $6,007 for his owners, the Macy Ranch. Third place went to Lil Hurrah, a mare trained by Albert de los Santos, who won $4,240.

Repro Man, a 3-year-old sorrel gelding owned by R.H. Clarke and trained by Perry Clarke, won Sunday's second feature, the Triple Crown Derby, in a close race with Johnny le Toro, a Darrell Hill trained gelding.

Repro Man, only the sixth fastest qualifier in the nine-horse field, zipped across the finish line in 20.32 seconds to beat Johnny le Toro by .05 seconds and Honey's Avenger, the fastest qualifier, by .17 seconds.

In other featured races Sunday Ima Mystic Oak, with Bandera Downs' leading jockey, Jesse Saucedo, aboard, won $11,652 and the Silver Bullet Sprint; Racin' Vike won the Rocky Mountain Sprint and $5,438; Carolyn Chamberlain's Huni Moon Lark won the OST Restaurant Sprint; Jim Brock's Easy Progress won Arkey Blue's Silver Dollar Sprint; Mel Karr's Goodtime Spirit won the Bandera Feed and Garden Supply Juvenile Sprint; Jody's All won Bill Castle's Grand Finale Sprint; and Allen Moehrig's First Rank won the Longhorn Saloon Last Day Allowance.

Yawl's Chick won the Triple Crown Futurity consolation in 20.24.

Cliff Bronson 'dependable,' Frogs say

Offensive tackle Clint Bronson, a member of Bandera Bulldog playoff teams of 1985 and 1986, is listed as a "dependable backup" in the media guide of the 1989 Texas Christian University Horned Frogs.

Bronson lettered last year and was red shirted as a freshman.

"Bronson is being counted on to provide relief in the Horned Frogs' offensive trenches at one of the tackle spots," the media guide reported. "A tireless worker, Bronson logged action in five contests a year ago, mostly on Frog specialty units.

"Solid footwork is among Bronson's primary assets," the guide says. "Intelligence is another for the junior, a crack student majoring in history at Texas Christian."

Few waterfowl changes expected for 1989-90

Waterfowl regulations proposed for the 1989-90 hunting seasons in Texas will be almost the same as last year, including a three-duck-per-day bag limit.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials said, however, that the regulations framework set by the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service will allow a return to the traditional 30-minutes-before-sunrise to sunset shooting hour this season.

Last year the federal agency mandated sunrise-to-sunset shooting hours along with more restrictive bag limits in an effort to reduce the duck harvest. Aimed at cutting the harvest by 25 percent, they actually reduced it by 50 percent nationally and about 60 percent in Texas.

A wildlife department spokesman said the federal framework also offers the option of an extended, 100-day snow goose season for the Texas Gulf Coast.

The staff proposal for duck bag limits and other waterfowl regulations will be acted upon by the Parks and Wildlife Commission on Aug. 31.

trictive bag limits in an effort to reduce the duck harvest. Aimed at cutting the harvest by 25 percent, they actually reduced it by 50 percent nationally and about 60 percent in Texas.

A wildlife department spokesman said the federal framework also offers the option of an extended, 100-day snow goose season for the Texas Gulf Coast.

The staff proposal for duck bag limits and other waterfowl regulations will be acted upon by the Parks and Wildlife Commission on Aug. 31.

Cliff Bronson 'dependable,' Frogs say

Offensive tackle Cliff Bronson, a member of Bandera Bulldog playoff teams of 1985 and 1986, is listed as a "dependable backup" in the media guide of the 1989 Texas Christian University Horned Frogs.

Bronson lettered last year and was red shirted as a freshman.

"Bronson is being counted on to provide relief in the Horned Frogs' offensive trenches at one of the tackle spots," the media guide reported. "A tireless worker, Bronson logged action in five contests a year ago, mostly on Frog specialty units.

"Solid footwork is among Bronson's primary assets," the guide says. "Intelligence is another for the junior, a crack student majoring in history at Texas Christian."

World champions due at PRCA rodeo here

Cowboys who have between them won 11 world Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association championships are entered in the sixth annual Cowboy Capital PRCA Rodeo that runs here Friday through Sunday.

Heading the list of champions entered here are Phil Lyne of Cotulla, two-time world all-around champion, and three ropers who have won five steer roping world titles who will face off against each other here.

Performances are scheduled at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Mansfield Park Arena. Tickets at the gate will be $6 for adults and $3 for children. Discounts are available for advanced sales and for senior citizens and tickets are available at a few Bandera businesses.

Friday night is family night when children 12 years of age or under will be admitted free when accompanied by a parent, and Sunday night is hat night when the first 250 children to visit the Hormel Chili Tasting Booth at the arena will receive a free cowboy hat, said CCRA secretary Doris Marshall.

The rodeo is being produced by Bradford Ivy and the Ivy Rodeo Company of Fairfield.

The spotlight will be on the steer roping event when three cowboys who have won five world championships come together in head-to-head competition. Two-time champion Jim Davis of Bandera will challenge another two-time winner, Shawn Burchett of Pryor, Okla., the reigning champion, and 1981 champion Arnold Felts in that event.

But it won't be a sure bet that either of the former world champions will reach the winner's circle here because five of the top seven steer ropers of 1988 will be here also, including Guy Allen of Lovington, N.M., who is ranked first through Aug. 22 of this year.

Davis was second last year behind Burchett, Lyne was sixth, Allen was fifth, Lyne was sixth, and Rod Hartness of Pawhuska, Okla., was seventh. Felts was 14th last year.

Tee Woolman of Llano, a two-time world champion in team roping, is currently ranked second to Allen in steer roping and Lyne is third.

Other former world champions expected in Bandera this weekend include Richard "Tuff" Hedeman, 1986 world bull riding champion, and Butch Meyers of Athens, 1980 steer wrestling champion.

Also entered is Bobby DelVecchio of Fort Worth, world bull riding runner-up in 1981, 1982 and 1983, and Tyler Magnus of College Station, Texas circuit team roping champion of 1988, and young Neal Felton of Mountain Home, a National Finals Rodeo finalist in calf roping last year.

Exactly 250 professional cowboys entered the Cowboy Capital PRCA Rodeo via the PRCA's central entry system, a PRCA spokesman told The Bulletin. The number of local entries was not immediately available. Last year there were 283 entries, including locals and those via the central entry system. A total of 310 entered in 1987.

Saturday morning at 9 a.m. cowboys will compete in calf roping, team roping, steer roping and steer wrestling during a slacktime performance, or performance for those who because of the draw are unable to compete during the evening performances. Slacktime had originally been scheduled for Thursday evening.

Slacktime times count for final placings, Marshall said.

Cyclists to drag Main Street before taking to the hills Saturday

More than 100 cyclists are expected Saturday for the Bandera Rodeo Ride, a recreational ride offering cyclists a choice of 25-, 50- and 75-mile routes.

Cyclists will ride through downdown Bandera at 8:30 a.m. Saturday to kick off the ride, then scatter through the hills to ride at their own pace.

Cyclists as young as 9 years old and as old as 63 years have pre-registered for the event, organizers said. They will gather and start at Mansfield Park.

Riders on all three routes will begin their ride on State Highway 16 westward toward Medina.

The shorter route one organizers suggest for family groups and novice cyclists, will return to Bandera via FM Road 2828 and Ridge Route Road (FM Rd 3240).

The medium distance route continues northward on Highway 16 over Medina Mountain to Lower Turtle Creek Road near Kerrville and returns to Bandera via State Highway 173.

The long route goes to Vanderpool via FM Rd. 337 and returns to Mansfield Park via Tarpley and FM Rd. 470.

Civil Defense radio gets courthouse hookup

An $8,000 civil defense radio communications system went on line Thursday, Aug. 24, with the completed installation of an antenna atop the County Courthouse. Work on the system has taken over a year to finish.

Wednesday, Hoyt Foster of Vanderpool could be seen dangling out of the lantern of the courthouse tower as he attached the antenna to a bracket and snaked a lead-in wire down to the base unit located in the commissioner's court room. An unseen Anton Haner secured Foster from inside the structure.

The system consists of the 60 watt base unit, five hand-held two-way units, and seven mobile (vehicle installed) units along with a 110-foot tower off of FM Road 337 and a solar powered repeater unit.

An acre of land, which is near the highest point in Bandera County, was furnished for the tower by Leslie Duke of Vanderpool. Duke leased the property to the county for 99 years at a total price of $1. He also provided a climb-proof fence around the tower site.

The system is to be used in conjunction with the civil defense and emergency disaster control to monitor flood waters or any other civil defense emergency, says Haner.

According to County Judge Ray Mauer, "The new antenna will ensure that we reach most of the county to get early reports of rainfall that may indicate floodings."

Firefighters schedule pair of fund-raising barbecues

The Medina Lake Volunteer Fire Department will serve barbecue beef brisket at its annual fall fundraiser this weekend, Sept. 2-3 and the Tarpley Volunteer Fire Department will hold its barbecue Sunday, Sept. 3, and will include a parade, live music and the biennial school reunion of the Tarpley and Rothe schools.

Medina Wolf Club barbecue Saturday. Please see Page 4B.

Serving at the Medina Lake firehouse will begin at 11 a.m. both days with potato salad, beans, and all the trimmings. Serving will continue until they run out of food for the day, usually about 6 or 7 p.m., though the food will probably run out at 6 p.m. Sunday.

Tickets are $4.50 adults and $2.50 for children under 12 years old.

The fire department auxiliary will be selling cakes, pies, and other baked items.

An unexpected treat will be the auctioning of department vice president Randy Potts' foot-long pigtail. Potts has been growing his usually braided strands of hair down his back for the last two years.

"There is nothing that would make my mother happier than to auction off my pigtail," Potts has been reported to have said.

The main firehouse is located on Park Road 37 across from Turk's Store in Lakehills.

This will be the last barbecue at the old firehouse. The spring barbecue will be held at the new central firehouse across from the Lakehills EMS barn.

The annual Tarpley fundraising festival starts at 11:30 a.m. Sunday with a fun parade through Tarpley to the barbecue site at the old Tarpley school grounds below Tarpley General Store by Williams Creek.

The Shriner Clowns are also expected to be part of the parade and the day's activities.

The barbecue will be served beginning at noon with adult plates at $4 and a child's at $2.50. The department expects to be sold out by 2 or 3 p.m. Each plate includes the usual accessories: potato salad, "picnic style" beans, pickles, onions, and peppers.

Music will be provided by Dusty Britches and band for dancing and general entertainment.

There will also be an auction starting about 2 p.m.

The fire department sponsors a school reunion for the schoolmates of Tarpley and Rothe Schools at the Tarpley School campus every two years.

School numbers up slightly as 1,850 return to campuses

By Janna Sandidge

Numbers were up slightly at Bandera and Utopia schools and down slightly in Medina compared to last year's first day totals, according to officials from those schools.

Some 1,418 students showed up at Bandera Schools Monday, Aug. 28, when doors opened. Some 1,424 had registered before the first day of classes, but school officials say that attendance may increase again after the Labor Day holiday.

Monday, Medina had 265 students in attendance for the first day of classes. Tuesday, when Utopia students began school, there 168 present.

Last year, Medina had 286 and Utopia had 157 students recorded the first day of classes.

In 1987, Medina began the year with 270 students, and Utopia began with 172.

Bandera began the 1988 school year with 1,343 students. In 1987, the total was 1,349; in 1986, 1,217; in 1985, 1,241; in 1984, 1,207; in 1983, 1,173; in 1982, 1,104; and in 1981, 1,039.

This year, first-day enrollment figures for Bandera schools were 683 in grades K-5; 330 in grades 6-8; and 405 for grades 9-12.

Monday, 124 kindergarten students represented a dramatic increase over 106 that attended last year and 85 the year before. The number has grown from 67 in 1981.

There were 116 first graders this year, four more than last year and significantly more than the 56 counted in 1981.

Only 103 second graders were counted this year. Last year there were 104, the year before there were 106, and in 1981 there were 68.

Only 115 third graders attended the first day at Bandera school, compared to 100 last year, 116 in 1987, 102 in 1986 and 103 in 1985. There were 72 third graders in 1981. Fourth grade attendance was only 105 this year, but it had jumped to 113 last year, from 106 the year before, 115 in 1986 and 79 in 1981.

Some 120 fifth graders attended this year, up from 110 last year. In 1981, the number of fifth graders was 78.

Some 116 sixth graders were down slightly from 119 last year, but still up from 92 the year before. There were 115 sixth graders in 1986, 120 in 1985, 97 in 1984, and 95 in 1981. Some 121 seventh graders, up sharply from 90 last year, compared to 112 in 1987 and 89 in 1981. Eighth grade

Albert B. Alkek announces gifts

Ambulance, athletic facilities to benefit

By Nick Johnson
Editor

Oilman/philanthropist Albert B. Alkek paid a visit to Bandera County courthouse Monday and didn't leave before he made a lot of people happy doing what he does a lot these days — giving away money.

The purpose of his visit was to bring County Judge Ray F. Mauer proceeds from an oil lease of what used to be Bandera County school land in Maverick County, but he stayed long enough to announce he was moved to donate up to $134,000 for athletic facilities at Bandera High School and to offer to give the county $27,000 to enable it to purchase a $62,000 ambulance.

The oil lease money was the Bandera County Permanent School Fund's one-half of the proceeds of a leasing bonus paid to lease 1,000 acres of the 18,800-acre tract of school land that Alkek purchased from the county in 1975. The county retained one-half of the mineral rights when it sold its school land.

That payment amounted to $22,140 and goes into the permanent fund. Interest from the permanent fund goes each year to Bandera and Medina school districts.

In addition, Alkek gave the county $2,214, which is 10 percent of the remaining one-half of the mineral rights and which is part of the purchase agreement he made when he acquired the land 14 years ago. That money will be divided between the two school districts based on the schools' average daily attendance, says county treasurer Elisabeth James. The ADA ratio is roughly a 3 to 1 in favor of Bandera.

Alkek told Judge Mauer he had also offered to donate $1.50 for [illegible] zens of Bandera donate to the current campaign to raise funds to [illegible] ing an all-weather running track and practice football field.

Philanthropist says he'll match each $1 gift to athletic facility fund with $1.50.

Banker Sully Woodland, who heads the group trying to raise the money for the athletic facilities, says he already has the funds to complete phase 1 of the project, the construction and equipping of a high school weight room, and that project is expected to go out on bids within 180 days.

About one-half of that is a commitment by Kittie and Rugeley Ferguson, owners of San Geronimo Ranch off State Highway 16 in Bexar County, who told Woodland they would donate the $27,152 for construction of the weight room itself. Other funds raised by Woodland's group would be used to equip the facility.

The weight room, which will adjoin the gymnasium at the high school, will be named in honor of the Fergusons, Woodland said.

Alkek said he agreed to pay $1.50 for each $1 raised toward completion of phase 2 of the project, an all-weather track and irrigated practice football field with seating, and subsequent phases which include a junior high school weight room and lighting the baseball field.

Completion of all the projects will cost $223,000, says Woodland, and 40 percent of that, or $89,200, must come from Bandera [illegible] $133,800 from Alkek.

The track is expected to cost up to $160,000, but could be scaled

Congressional oversight of federal programs and agencies is often thankless, rarely drawing attention or plaudits.

Occassionally, though, the watchdog role pays big dividends to American taxpayers.

Investigations of the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board have uncovered a great deal of waste fraud. More recently, congressional investigations have centered on possible wrongdoing in certain regional divisions of the Internal Revenue Service.

Under our system of checks and balances, Congress has oversight responsibility for these federal agencies. Obviously, it is important that we intensify efforts to prevent such abuses from occurring in the future.

As chairman of the Senate Finance Committee — which has jurisdiction over tax matters — I want to see Congress beef up its role as watchdog of the IRS.

From what we can tell, the IRS does a good job collecting hundreds of billions of dollars in taxes each year. And while questions have been raised about some IRS agents, most of the 120,000 employees are conscientious, hardworking people.

But the need for keeping close tabs of such a huge organization that handles so much money is self evident. Yet, Congress has no agency with full-time responsibility for investigating possible fraud, corruption or misconduct at the IRS.

In addition, we need to monitor how the IRS is complying with the Taxpayers' Bill of Rights that Congress approved last year. This important legislation makes sure that Americans get a fair deal when they have a dispute with the IRS. We need to be sure that the Taxpayers' Bill of Rights is being followed by all agency personnel.

That's why I am proposing a small unit of trained investigators be established within the Congressional Joint Tax Committee. The unit will perform only one function: keeping tabs on the operations of the IRS and pursuing evidence of corruption or misconduct.

Creating a watchdog unit to oversee the Internal Revenue Service will help insure that the Internal Revenue Service keeps faith with taxpayers.

Appreciates the corral

Dear editor:

Being one of the many people in the city (of Bandera) who does not drive, I wish to thank the Silver Sage Corral for the many services that they offer.

With their bus service, I don't have to depend on a friend or neighbor to take me to the post office, bank, grocery store and doctor or dentist. I also enjoy the noon lunch. If you call in before 9 a.m., the center will order your lunch and the bus is available to bring you to the center.

Some of us stay after lunch and play card games or dominoes. We enjoy the air-conditioned building on these 100-degree days.

Many thanks to the staff at the Silver Sage Corral.

Lawmakers will try again on workers' compensation issue

Gov. Bill Clements told lawmakers to convene on Nov. 14 for a second special session on workers' compensation insurance which may well set the tone for the 1990 political campaigns.

In other Capitol events last week:

- The head of Public Finance Authority said Texas is deeper in debt because state agencies are borrowing money they don't need and can't use.
- Attorney General Jim Mattox warned former Govs. Mark White and Dolph Briscoe not to enter the Democrat gubernatorial primary.
- Several current and former state legislators signaled they may enter the Nov. 7 special election of a successor to the late Congressman Mickey Leland.

Session Showdown

The special session may well produce a showdown between the state's two most porerful officials, Clements and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Or maybe a compromise hammered out in the interim will sail through quickly, allowing lawmakers to return home before Thanksgiving.

Up to now, the workers' compensation issue has been largely an issue pitting probusiness forces against trial lawyers and labor unions.

But if the confrontation scenario prevails, the issue could well be Republican vs. Democrat come November.

Although both Clements and Hobby are "lame ducks," the results of the session, which concludes just weeks before spring primary elections, will doubtless signal momentum for those campaings.

Clements staunchly defends the probusiness position, and will probably veto any bill he thinks a shortfall.

In previous considerations, Hobby, a Democrat, championed keeping jury trials, favored by trial lawyers and unions.

Last week, Hobby wrapped his arms tightly around the ball, promising to introduce legislation he called his solution to the workers' comp issue.

It could be the compromise or the confrontation, but if Hobby is carrying the ball, no power short of a veto can stop him in the Texas Legislature.

"Al Capone Law"

Starting Sept. 1, a new state tax on illegal durgs — marijuana, cocaine, heroin, etc. — will become the latest law enforcement weapon against drug dealers.

Under the law, a new tax stamp must be placed on marijuana and other drugs. The stamp depicts drugs as poisonous.

Naturally, drug dealers are expected to avoid paying this expensive tax, because it would blow their cover. But by such avoidance, they set themselves up for tax evasion prosecution.

Legislators call it the "Al Capone law," because the law's sponsor, Rep. Billy Clements, persuaded fellow lawmakers that Al Capone was convicted, not for bootlegging, but for tax evasion.

Drug dealers and users arrested with illegal drugs will be liable for taxes, late penalties and interest, as well as prosecution for tax fraud.

The taxes are high: about $1,694 per pound of marijuana and $50,720 per pound for other controlled substances.

Enforcement of this tax collection will [illegible] be an issue in next year's campaign for comptroller.

Leland's Successor

In the special election to succeed Congressman Mickey Leland, some leaders of Houston's black community have hoped to avoid a blood bath.

But with several current and former state legislators eyeing the race, the collision may not be avoidable. The Houston district, which contains the rough Fifth Ward, is 40 percent black, 30 percent Hispanic. The seat has been passed to Leland from Barbara Jordan.

But some fear that if too many black candidates split their bloc, the inevitable run-off could pit a white Republican against an Hispanic Democrat.

Mattox, White, Briscoe

Mattox, an unannounced candidate for governor, reminded Briscoe that voters decided in 1978 that he should not be in office, and warned White there is no "great demand" for his comeback.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Treasurer Ann Richards said she welcomes all comers, but lumps Briscoe, White and Mattox into "the kind of people who got us in the mess we are in now."

Bonded Debt

Harry Whittington, chairman of the Public Finance Authority, said state agencies are seeking too many bond issues to borrow money they don't need.

"We went from no-deficit spending in this state, to a lot of deficit spending, to borrowing money they don't need," he said.

He particularly cited state agencies for failing to monitor and carry out construction projects.

Bandera's Polish roots, of course, go back to its very origins, and because this is true we might take a special interest in the great experiment that's taking place in the mother country.

The success or failure of Eastern Europe's first non-communist government since World War II may turn on its ability to deal with economic problems, not the restoration of [illegible].

Whatever happens, it makes me feel a little proud that I live in a community founded by the scions of freedom-loving people that can make such an event possible.

My roots go back to northern Europe — Norway, to be more specific.

That's why I wandered last week to Helotes for a meeting of the San Antonio chapter of the Norwegian Society of Texas.

I had the pleasure of eating lefse (pronounced: LEF-SA. It's a potato tortilla, sort of) and listening to the Norwegian tongue for the first time in maybe 20 years.

Now, Texas was not a favorite destination among Norwegians during the great emigration of the late 1800s. It must have been the heat. So the NST is not the largest ethnic or national organization around.

There were almost as many people from Bandera as there were from San Antonio at Sunday's gathering. The Rev. and Mrs. Sheldon Hermanson pastored Grace Lutheran Church here for about three years, though they never actually lived here. Mr. and Mrs. Larry Branick do actually live here.

Norwegians have never been militant about their nationality, and that's a pity. Almost everyone I talked to Sunday, for example, lamented the fact they were not taught the old country's language by their Norwegian-speaking parents.

It was the Norwegian experience, however, that brought home to me as a youth that the history Americans are taught in the early, formative school years is not necessarily the history that existed.

I'm referring of course to the myth that Christopher Columbus discovered America.

It's known that Lief Ericson established a colony in North America 500 years before Columbus sailed, and artifacts left by pre-1492 explorers have been found as far inland as Minnesota.

It's not critical to the future of our youth or anyone else that Ericson instead of Columbus be recognized as "first." But it is critical when history gets corrupted for any reason, because if it is true that Columbus didn't discover America, then could it also be true that Washington didn't cut down a cherry tree or that Reagan wasn't ignorant of the Iran-Contra affair?

County proposed tax rate up very slightly

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Bandera County's tax rate will rise 0.73 cents to 29.98 cents per $100 property valuation, if commissioners approve the new tax rate Friday, Sept. 8.

But because of exemptions, the taxpayer's bill may actually be less.

Bandera County Commissioners will air the county's proposed budget, still being assembled and revised in the county judge's office Tuesday, Sept. 5, at 5 p.m.

Commissioners will then hold a public hearing on the tax rate increase at 6 p.m.

The final step in the budget process will come Friday, Sept. 8, when the tax rate will be formally adopted and the budget will be finally approved starting at 6 p.m.

Under the tax rate proposal, a person with a $50,000 home and taking the $5,000 homestead exemption will pay $134.91 tax on the $45,000 taxable value of their home. This does not include other exemptions available to senior citizens or disabled persons, which will lower the tax more.

The proposed tax is less than last year, when there was no exemption for county taxes and the tax rate of 29.25 cents per $100 billed the taxpayer for $146.25 on a $50,000 home.

However, homeowners with higher appraised value of their property will most likely pay more tax this year, rather than less, because of the higher taxable value.

Following the proposed tax rate of 29.98 cents per $100 property valuation and the $509,755,876 total property valuation, commissioners will have a total budget of $1,528,248 in the general fund for the 1989-90 budget year that begins Oct. 1. In years past, the county had $1,440,255 to work with.

A large additional chunk of the county's income beyond the general fund is $641,198 for the road and bridge fund, paid by vehicle license plate and title fees, and county road taxes that will also be on the taxpayer's tax bill.

Other funds that will increase the overall income of the county include estimates of $127,536 for ambulance receipts and existing special purpose funds.

The county's total operating budget with all funds included could reach as high as $2,743,576. The 1988-89 total income was projected to be $2,483,921. Income figures are still preliminary, however, and the estimates could be revised again before the Tuesday hearing.

Many departments in the county budget crept up in fund requests, but the county judge and commissioners are still struggling with the budget, seeking to balance the outlays with the expected income, and as such there is still no "bottom line" budget.

The sheriff's department budget, the largest single expense of the general fund, is currently set at $397,946, up from $377,200 last year.

Other departments are also higher including $61,545 for the county judge's office, up from $57,175; county attorney and county court set at 45,017, up from $30,900; tax assessor-collector's office at $126,580, up from 125,110; county and district clerk's office at $163,645, up from $135,950; county treasurer's office at $80,930, up from $73,500; the sanitation inspection department at $14,680, up from $11,640; and the permits and inspection department at $18,795, up from $16,180.

Bandera County Judge Ray F. Mauer says many of the increases in the county's budget reflect changes in the county's duties brought on by legislation that passed responsibility and funding for programs from the state and federal level to the local level.

Other increases are in courthouse and law enforcement building maintenance fund, currently projected at $116,630, up from $79,230. The increase is almost totally due to increasing the courthouse repair from $16,000 to $50,000, with commissioners anticipating recoating the courthouse's leaky roof.

The county's portion of the district court cost is also higher, at $36,020, up from $29,570, due mainly to a $5,000 increase in the court appointed attorney expense. The budget for 1988-89 for court appointed attorneys in district court was $10,000, but actual expenses were at least $14,309, leading to the increase to $15,000.

Other departments also increased, such as the county library, from $36,210 to $41,815; county extension office, from $37,490 to $39,355; the county service officer, from $5,020 to $5,375; and the annual audit, from $1,000 to $4,500.

Some department budgets did decrease, such as civil defense, from $10,000 in 1988-89 to $2,500 in 1989-90, due mainly to fewer major equipment purchases anticipated in the next budget year.

Pipe Creek fire fighter Allen Meyer cools down the remains of a shed destroyed Sunday by fire.

Water heater causes RV fire at Wharton's Dock

A water heater caused a fire Saturday, that totally destroyed a recreational vehicle in the Wharton's Dock area, and an unexplained fire destroyed a small structure in Pipe Creek Sunday.

A self-contained RV parked in the Wharton's Dock area burned Saturday, Aug. 26, about 10 a.m. when the hot water heater apparently exploded, reports Lakeshore Volunteer Fire Department fire chief Charlie Highnote.

Highnote believes the fire burned the propane supply line causing the propane in the tank to feed the fire.

There was no one in the small RV at the time. It was owned by Alex Fry.

Explosions, reportedly heard by witnesses, were attributed to aerosol cans exploding, reports Highnote.

"The fire was full blown by the time we got there," reports Highnote. Rather than try to put the fire out, "we sprayed water to protect other structures and the utility poles."

Lakeshore VFD responded with two trucks, a brush truck and a pumper, and 10 volunteers.

Bandera VFD was also called out, but was turned back.

Pipe Creek VFD saved a mobile home Sunday, Aug. 27, when a small shed in the Medina River Ranch subdivision caught fire. The fire, which completely destroyed the shed, caught neighboring trees and grass on fire.

No cause was listed on the fire, but a plastic gasoline container about half filled was found near the trailer on the open ground, reports fire fighter Allen Meyer.

Bandera VFD responded to a grass fire near Flying A Ranch Tuesday, Aug. 22, that burned five to ten acres, estimates Bandera VFD fire chief Brad Cummings.

Pipe Creek VFD also responded to two false alarms over the weekend.

One false alarmed turned in about 8:45 p.m. turned out to be an outside cooking fire behind a trailer on property near Liebold's Ranch and off Bump Gate Road, thought at first to be a structure fire.

Another false alarm later that night was a controlled burn at Alamo Beach reported as a grass fire.

Horse killed when hit by pickup near Bandera

A horse was killed, and a pick up was reportedly totaled in an accident late Monday night or early Tuesday morning west of Bandera near Bandera Veterinary Clinic.

According to veterinarian Steve Sells, who was called to the scene around 2:30 a.m., the horse ran or walked about 350 yards before collapsing and dying. The horse had reportedly just died when Sells arrived.

Evidently the mare, which had recently been bred, and two other horses broke through an electrical fence and wandered onto the highway, according to Nita Jenkins, who owns the property where the horses are being kept. She was unsure of who the horses' owner is, but she said the trainer and caretaker is Frank Mendez, who works at Bandera Downs. She said the horses' water trough was dry, and she suspects that they broke loose to try and find water.

"I was angry that someone didn't give them water," she said. "I think the horses were without water for sure for two days."

Jenkins said she was unsure of the identity of the driver of the truck that struck the dark auburn-colored horse, but she said he did not stop at the time, but returned to the scene the next day and told Mendez that his truck had been totaled. Jenkins said Mendez had agreed to pay for damages to the vehicle.

Sells reported that the driver is employed by Jesse Faglie of Medina.

Last week, Arturo Medina of San Antonio reported a burglary at his place at Castle Lake. A fan, radio and soft drinks, with a total reported value of $79 was missing. Richard Cruz of San Antonio also reported a burglary at his place at Castle Lake. Numerous items, valued at almost $500 were reported stolen.

Corwin Samsel of Lakehills reported two money boxes containing cash and other items stolen in a burglary at Thousand Trails.

Tom Owens of Canyon Lake reported a burglary at his place near Wharton's Dock. Numerous items valued at almost $1,200 were reported stolen.

They're Schreiner grads

Three Bandera County residents have graduated from Schreiner College's vocational nursing program — one with the highest honors in the 27-member class.

The three, Deborah Murray and Donna Rowlands of Bandera, and Linda Merchant of Medina, received their diplomas and pins in the Aug. 21 graduation ceremony that capped 633 classroom hours and 914 clinical hours.

As part of their training, Schreiner's vocational nursing students worked in Kerrville's three hospitals — the Kerrville Veterans Administration Medical Center, Sid Peterson Memorial Hospital and Kerrville State Hospital.

Merchant graduated with top honors in both classroom and clinical work and was recognized during the graduation ceremony by Schreiner's vice president of academic affairs, Dr. Walden Freeman.

The vocational nursing graduates will take their state licensing exam in Austin Oct. 15.

Morgan Cox named to river authority

Morgan Keith Cox, 67, of Bandera has been appointed by Gov. Bill Clements to the board of directors of the Bandera County River Authority.

The Bandera rancher was named to fill the unexpired term of Connie Taylor of Bandera, who resigned. His term will end Jan. 31, 1991. He attended Texas Christian University and is a member of the National Cutting Horse Association and the American Quarter Horse Association.

The action by legislature this spring merged the BCRA with the newly-formed Springhill Water District and board members now appointed by the governor will be elected.

Cox and other board members of the BCRA will automatically be placed on the ballot for spots on the elected board of directors of the new water panel which will have responsibility for both ground water and surface water in Bandera County. The BCRA is concerned only with surface water.

New at Schreiner

Three new professors will join the Schreiner College faculty this fall, including Dr. Carl Bronowski who will teach French and Barbara Harper and Rafael Venegas, both of whom will teach Spanish.

Rent, salaries expenditures from bed tax OK, expert says

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Tax revenue from the county hotel/motel occupancy tax can be used to pay for building rent and salaries and may even be used to pay for covering the rodeo arena at Mansfield Park, as long as the convention and tourism bureau can prove that those expenditures promote tourism, says a representative from the Texas State Comptroller's Office.

Bandera County Commissioners were told Monday, Aug. 28, that to spend the occupancy tax, or bed tax, revenue legally, the expenditures have to be proportionate to the ratio that the expenditure promotes tourism.

Legal expenditures of the bed tax money include mail outs, printing of brochures, secretarial salaries, and office space expense or purchase, said Joe Newman of Bob Bullock's comptroller's office. However, those activities must be shown to promote tourism.

Newman said if a secretary's only duties were tourism and no industrial development, then that secretary's salary could be paid 100 percent from bed tax money. However, if any of the secretary's activity were non-tourist chamber of commerce work, that salary could only be paid to the extent the secretary worked on tourism. If 50 percent of the employee's time is devoted to tourism, then 50 percent of the salary may be paid from bed tax.

Resolving controversy over the reading of the new law which goes into effect Oct. 1, Newman explained that city tax money and county money could be spent essentially the same way. "Where it says municipal (in House Bill 1023), it also means county," he said.

Authorized uses of the tax include promotional programs, promotion of the arts, historical restoration and preservation within limits, and improvement, enlarging, equipping, repairing, operation, and maintenance of convention center facilities. However, the catch is, the revenue must be "expended in a manner directly enhancing and promoting tourism and the convention and hotel industry..." says the law.

County attorney Sam Darden said the bill was not designed to cover rodeo arenas, such as the one in Mansfield Park project touted by the convention and visitors bureau, but to bring in more tourists.

Newman said covering the arena, as long as it is used for tourists, may come under the bill, and he promised to seek an attorney general's opinion on the matter.

The county will begin assessing the new seven-percent county-wide hotel and motel occupancy tax Oct. 1. The tax also applies to dude ranches and tennis and hunting clubs, but not campsites and RV sites.

But commissioners may have to alter their tax, expected to bring in $150,000 a year at seven percent. Newman told commissioners that the total trap on the bed tax is 15 percent.

The county tax is seven percent of the room rate and the state charges six percent, which assesses a 13 percent tax in the county. However, the city assesses a seven percent rate on top of the state and county tax, putting the total over the 15 percent cap to 16 percent within the city limits of Bandera.

Newman said either the city or the county would have to lower their tax.

Rilla Stephens, city councilwoman, told commissioners that the city had no plans to rescind its three percent tax and recommended that the county lower its rate to lighten the burden on the two city motels, Bandera Inn and River Front Hotel. She challenged the Bandera County Chamber of Commerce to come before city council and request the change.

However, Clay Conoly, chairman of the new Bandera Convention and Visitors Bureau, said both motels in the city would like to see the city drop its tax.

County attorney Darden echoed Conoly's advice and said the city should lower its tax to two percent, because more money can be collected county-wide with a higher tax than the city can with its tax.

Newman advised commissioners that they could have a split tax and charge six percent in the city and seven percent in the unincorporated areas of the county.

Newman told Stephens, who continued to vocalize the city's ideas, that using the city's bed tax funds to repair and maintain the city park's restrooms was "stretching" the concept of promoting tourism.

Newman said the normal maintenance of a park is paid by the city or county that owns it from its regular funds. He left a way to use bed tax money for the park by saying the city could run a survey of the park users and find out how many park users were from out of town.

As an example, he said if the city found 60 percent of the people came from out of town, they could pay for 60 percent of the repairs from bed tax funds and the other 40 percent from other city revenues. If the city can justify what percentage is used by tourists, then that budget line item can be funded from the bed tax money by that percentage, he summarized.

Examples of abuse of bed tax funds included the city of El Paso building a golf course with bed tax revenue. "They were sued (by the attorney general) and lost," says Newman.

An example more close to home is historical preservation. Newman recalled a city placing a historical marker at the end of a badly maintained road, and paving the dead end road, claiming visitors could now see the marker. "They were sued for that," he says.

Bandera County is allowed to collect the bed tax because it has a licensed horse race track and has a population of 15,000 or less, but among the other three counties eligible under that provision of the new law, only Bandera has imposed the tax. The other counties are Blanco, Goliad, and McCulloch.

The law specifically prohibits using the money for general fund expenditures and road and bridge improvements. The money must be spent for the guidance or management of tourists and tourists are defined as individuals that travel from their residence to a different municipality, county, state, or country for pleasure, recreation, education, or culture.

Under the law, the county can contract with the Bandera Convention and Visitors Bureau to spend the tax money and must require a written contract and approve, in advance, the budget for spending the funds.

If the hotel or motel fails to pay the tax, the county attorney may bring suit against the firm and can stop them from operating until the tax is paid.

The tax will be collected by the Bandera County Tax Assessor-Collector's office quarterly. Tax assessor-collector Marguerite Stevens will be able to retain one percent of the total tax collected to pay for her office's expenses.

down to $140,000, Woodland said, by postponing plans to install seating, and its construction will begin as soon as money is available.

While in the courthouse, Alkek asked Judge Mauer how the county was coming on raising funds for the purchase of a new ambulance, and Mauer told him he had $26,000 in an ambulance fund and $11,000 in donations. An ambulance costs $62,000, the judge told him.

"I'll make up the difference," Alkek told Mauer.

The oil lease money for the county's schools may be only the first of a windfall that will come to the schools, Alkek said. It was for only 1,000 acres of the 18,000-acre tract, and it was only an option agreement that allows the lessor to explore on the remaining 17,000 acres. The original 1,000 acres was leased for $35 per acre.

Subsequent to the effective date of this agreement, oil was struck on the land, a development that should make leasing the remaining acreage a more expensive exercise, says Alkek.

He said the well discovered is currently being fractured to expand its yield, which could be as much as 12 barrels per hour, Alkek said.

The 18,000-acre tract was given by the state to the schools of Bandera County in the 19th century and sold to Alkek in 1975. James said only the interest from the funds received from the sale of the land should be used for current school expense, but she said some of it has been distributed by the county to school boards.

Alkek, who is listed as one of the 400 richest Americans by Forbes magazine and one of the 100 richest Texans by Texas Monthly magazine, has given money to Bandera County and its schools before. He donated funds for the first ambulance the county ever had and his generosity to the schools prompted the school board to name its new elementary school in his honor in 1986.

He has also donated generously to the University of Houston at Victoria, St. Mary's University in San Antonio, Texas Military Institute in San Antonio, Baylor College of Medicine in Houston, and to many college students in the form of scholarships.

BISD board OKs budget

Bandera school trustees unanimously approved a budget for the 1989-90 school year Tuesday night that will require either a substantial tax increase or use of fund balance in the school's maintenance and operation budget.

The maintenance and operation budget totals $4,957,421, which is a 9.5 percent increase over the 1988-89 budget, according to superintendent Ted Dockery.

Dockery estimated that BISD will receive only $1,517,856 in state funds, or 30.8 percent of the budget.

"This represents a loss of state funds of approximately $137,000," Dockery said.

"The majority of the increase in expenditures is to fund the state mandated salary increases for professional personnel and salary increases for all other district personnel," he said. "Other salary-related expenditures also increased."

Salary-related expenditures include medicare, workers' compensation, teacher retirement, and career ladder supplements.

The budget also includes the addition of one first grade teacher, one junior high math teacher, an elementary counselor, an additional maintenance/custodial position, and one additional clerical position.

Other budget increases include the cost of reading and instructional supplies in some areas; gasoline costs for buses; a slight increase in extra-curricular funding because of increased participation; appraisal district budget; electricity; and the special education cooperative.

The 1989-90 budget was cut in the areas of supplies and capital outlay in some areas, and plant maintenance and operation budget for building improvements.

"In many areas of the budget, the supply and capital outlay funds have not been increased over the past three years, but maintained at the same level," Dockery said.

A Look Back At Bandera

28 years ago... Tentative school budget figures indicated expenditures would be approximately $220,000, and Bandera High School Bulldogs were facing their first opponent of the season, Charlotte. Bandera man Ray Wyatt was chosen by the state FFA organization to be presented with the Honorary Lone Star Farmer Degree from the Hill District. The cowl-collar blouse by Ship'n Shore was on sale at Fitzgerald's store for a mere $2.98, and Stein's of Bandera offered feather pillows for 95¢. Mr. and Mrs. Judd Clark announced they had not one, but two granddaughters born, Miss Sandra Fay Schoenfeldt and Miss Penny Sue Clark. At the Bantex, you could see the classics Gone With the Wind, or Gidget Goes Hawaiian. Col. Dan Alanis was chosen to head the newly organized Lion's Club, and 4-H members John Focke, Jamie Sue Nixon, Howard Hicks, Charmen Hicks, Dickie Hicks, Shirley Pember, Frank Craddock and Preston Faris were among the honorees named at the 4-H Barbecue at Bennie's U-Bar Guest Ranch by extension agent Werner Lindig and sponsor Raymond Hicks. Ashley M. Rugh, Jr. and Virginia Clare Drewett were married Sept. 2 at First Baptist Church at Navasota, and Leeannah Roberts was chosen to represent Bandera County as Duchess at the Gillespie County Fair.

5 years ago... Jerry Lasater of Bandera Downs announced the track would open for racing after some $250,000 in renovation. The track received approval from the American Quarter Horse Association to begin racing in January. Marie Holland announced that through the efforts of the Melodiers and several other groups, and through activities including pancake breakfasts, wrestling matches and thrift sales, that the Silver Sage Corral construction funds were at the halfway mark. About $35,000 had been raised and used toward foundation and preparatory construction work. Some 50 taxpayers showed up at the BISD school budget hearing, and much of the discussion centered around a hike in school taxes, and it was decided to call for a bond election. Bandera County Commissioners voted unanimously to require massage parlors and masseurs and masseuses to be licensed. The commissioners also changed county subdivision rules to require paved streets in all subdivisions platted after Jan. 1. Cowboy star Roy Rogers appeared at Thousand Trails resort area, and about 1,000 fans turned out to greet him. Plantation Days festival set at historical park Sept. 23-24

A Plantation Days folklife festival is planned for Sept. 23-24 at Varner-Hogg State Historical Park near West Columbia.

Interpreters will demonstrate crafts and activities of daily plantation life on the Texas coast, according to Park Superintendent Jeff Hutchinson. The Varner-Hogg mansion is the only sugar cane plantation house in Texas that is still standing, he said.

The house and kitchen buildings have survived for more than 150 years, even withstanding the Galveston hurricane of 1900.

Visitors can see an array of skills that made life possible on remote plantations in early Texas, including doll making, quilting, basket making, blacksmithing, soap making and chair caning.

Lemonade and pies will be available while bluegrass music and story tellers entertain.

There is no cost for the festival activities, but a 45-minute tour through the main house and museum is $2 for adults and $1 for children, age six to 12.

Varner-Hogg Plantation is located on the Gulf Coast south of Houston. Take U.S. Highway 288 to Angleton and turn west on State Highway 35. At West Columbia go north on FM Road 2852 two miles to the park.

Call (409)345-4656 for tour information.

After being gone for nearly three weeks, I "knowed" I was in the right town when I saw Kevin Fitzpatrick doing his rope tricks right there on Main Street for the grand opening of a new kids' arcade, The Hole in the Wall.

• More than 400 musicians poured into the area from all over for the 16th annual musicians' reunion at Pop's Place in Pipe Creek, which ended this weekend.

They played continuously for seven days and seven nights, without so much as a "day of rest."

• Hair Unlimited, a beauty salon in Bandera, has added a massage machine, and if you buy a rodeo ticket you get a massage for $1.

Nancy Hopes, the chamber secretary, says the massage goes on for such a long time, one begins to wish it would stop.

They also have a tanning machine, not needed now but next winter it will keep our river city's femme fatales looking their bronzed best.

• I usually don't do gossip, but this was too juicy to pass up. Someone with the initials T.D. has a picture of himself on the front of Playgirl magazine wearing only a vest.

• Sweeping up after the California Mid-State Fair. The Sons of the Pioneers, whom I mentioned here last week as candidates for parade marshals of our Memorial Day parade, eclipsed the eclipse. One of their concerts was during the eclipse, and I looked around and noticed no one was watching the moon!

And, one of their rodeo events was team roping with gals as headers and guys as heelers.

A total of 710 4-H'ers entered projects and the auction topped $450,110. That's more than $600 per entry.

• It's nice being "back in the traces" and wondering what it would be like if Bandera Downs could add harness races to their cards and enjoying Zeke's darling french fried potatoes that look like little pig tails.

Museum's observatory to be built at state park near Houston

The Houston Museum of Natural Science has chosen Brazos Bend State Park, a full-service state park located just southwest of Houston, as the site for the George Observatory, a new stargazing facility scheduled to open Oct. 12.

The largest of the observatory's three domes houses a 12-ton research telescope with a 36-inch reflector, the rough equivalent of a 12,000 mm telephoto lens. The other two domes in the structure contain smaller telescopes.

Brazos Bend has the "...darkest, clearest, least polluted sky in the immediate Houston area," said Terrell Falk of the museum.

The George Observatory, named in honor of the its principal donor, George Foundation, will serve four groups: the general public interested in astronomy, school children on field trips, field astronomers and university researchers.

Located less than 50 miles from downtown Houston in Fort Bend County, Brazos Bend State Park offers a wide range of services for camping, fishing, hiking, bird and wildlife observation, interpretive programs and exhibits.

For additional information on park facilities and to reserve campsites, call (409)553-3243.

Stuntman now working on movie

Max Konz, a stuntman who has worked in the Bandera area as a stuntman and western performer over the last few years, is currently in Tucson, working on a movie, according to local veteran cowboy performer Rudy Robbins.

Konz is working on a several-episode show about pony express riders. His father said the show is tentatively titled "Young Riders," and the work will enable him to get his screen actors' guild card, according to the senior Konz.

Konz and another stuntman, Hagan Savage, came to Bandera to learn the stunt craft from Dean Dawson of Ft. Worth, according to Robbins.

Both have continued working in the area, and until mid-July, when Konz left for Arizona, the two were working at Flying L Ranch, in the Thursday night Wild West Show.

Konz's specialty is high falls, Robbins said. About three years ago, Robbins helped Konz get a job working as a stunt player in a film about the Alamo starring James Arness and Patrick Wayne. The film was shot on location in Brackettville.

According to Konz's father, he has recently made a deal with Fox network to work in a series of western-type shows like the one at Flying L, in different parts of the country, including Minnesota and Tennessee.

Huntsville co-ed to reign over Cowboy Capital rodeo

Melody McKinzie, 21, of Huntsville will reign as queen over the sixth annual Cowboy Capital PRCA Rodeo this weekend and Bandera's Barbara Graham, 17, is the rodeo association's teen queen.

The royalty was selected after two days of competition which included modeling and horsmanship.

The queen attends Sam Houston State University. A 5-foot, 5-inch beauty, she has light brown hair and blue eyes and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.V. McKinzie of New Waverly.

She has been active in rodeo since she was five years of age, and she enjoys barrel racing, pole bending and breakaway roping. Among her awards and titles are Miss Henderson County, PRCA Stampede Queen, and champion pole bender of the Texas Youth Rodeo Association. She was first runner up in the Miss Rodeo Texas Pageant of 1988.

Graham is a senior at Bandera High School who plans to attend Tarleton State College and Texas A&M University following graduation. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Graham of Bandera, she is active in Future Farmers of America and has been secretary of the BHS chapter, student advisor for the Hill Country District, and as a member of several livestock judging teams.

She is a member of the 4-H, Rainbow Girls and BHS track, basketball and volleyball teams.

300 musicians gather at Pop's

They plan to return for more in 1990

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Hundreds of guitar pickers, fiddle players, country and western vocalists, and other musicians from all over the U.S., Canada, and England gathered along the Medina River last week as part of the 16th annual musicians' reunion at Pop's Place in Pipe Creek.

Organized by Caesare Masse of Wharton's Dock and "Buck" Sloane of Houston, the reunion concluded Monday, but the memories continue and the reunion is scheduled for a reappearance next year.

The musicians reunion began in 1977 when Masse borrowed "Tack" Carroll of Sloane's band to play in the Bandera area. Sloane waited several weeks, but Carroll didn't return, so he came to Bandera to find him.

Sloane, his wife Shirley and son Coy and Jack and Ina Thomson and their son Mark came in a camper and found Carroll playing with Randy Thaler's band on the banks of the swimming pool at the Flying L Guest Ranch.

They camped out at the "Alligator Hole" on the Wharton's Dock side of the Medina River at Masse's suggestion, and played music. It was the first musicians reunion.

"We liked it so much, we came back the next year and invited more musicians." The second year, they camped out again and went up to the Copper Lantern to play for Tom Andreas' birthday. "The people would come down and listen when we played down at the Alligator Hole," says Sloane.

As the years went by, the number of musicians grew and they played at the Wharton's Dock lounge and at Arkey Blue's Silver Dollar.

But every night, the musicians would return to the Alligator Hole and pick guitars and play music through the night.

The music doesn't quite go on 24 hours a day any more, "more like 20 hours a day," says Sloane. Residents along the Medina River can surely testify to that.

Masse returned Aug. 23 from touring in the Wyoming and Montana area. Leaving in April and taking his drummer son, Jeff, with him, they and three other musicians also went to Idaho and twice to Canada. They played at the Calgary Stampede and at a dude ranch twice a week.

Part of the band was lead guitarist Dave Gardner and former rodeo champion Bill Smith playing bass and singing.

Masse says country and western music is popular in the northern mountain states and the dances there are much like they are in Texas. But there is no trouble telling the Texans from anyone else, with the accent telling the difference.

Masse says he took some time off in the Big Horn Mountains and realized another difference between the northern states and Texas. He had put up his tent in 40 degrees temperature June 22. "I woke up in the morning and it was cold and had snowed four inches," he says. The letter from his wife told him it was 99 degrees in Bandera.

Between play dates, Masse and son visited a sheep ranch and just for fun tried the hard work of tying wool. "The ranchers would shear it, and we'd pick it up and tie it," he says. They made $380 the first day. His son liked those wages.

After the second day, however, Jeff said, "I don't think I want to do this anymore." Two days were obviously enough, says Masse.

Other farmers they visited in the north included wheat farmers that farmed 16 sections (16 square miles) apiece with a combine that harvested a width of 40 feet at one time. Jeff got up on the combine and Masse says he, "Looked like an ant on a rock."

Others at the reunion included retired included Col. William "Wild Bill" Lyell and his wife, Stephanie, of Gatesville. They have been going to fiddle contests since "Wild Bill" retired from the Air Force in 1974.

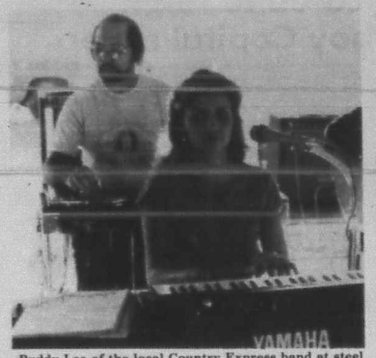
At the 40 fiddling contests they go to a year, Stephanie competes as the fiddler and Bill plays her backup on guitar.

They play the Poteet Strawberry Festival and fiddling contests in Athens, Ala., and Athens, Tex. "The most famous musicians in the U.S. play at Athens," says Lyell.

Fiddlers at Athens include Cliff Bruner, Johnny Gimble, Buddy Brady, "Red" Hayes, "Sleepy" Tompkins, who attended this year's reunion, and of course Caesare Masse. "They don't come no better," says Lyell.

They play at the Nashville Grande Ole Opry once a year, but also play at nursing homes. Recently they played at three Indian hospitals.

His wife places in the indies competition at some of the contests. "Even a blind, wild hog can find an acorn sometimes," he jokes.



Buddy Lee of the local Country Express band at steel guitar and keyboardist Billie Walker from Wyoming are concentrating on their music as the impromtu gathering of musicians play "a sad one" during an afternoon session at Pop's Place at last week's 16th annual musicians' reunion.

Pipe Creek

Robert Paniagua — 535-6172

The musicians reunion at Pop's Place dominated Pipe Creek this week, with visitors coming in from all over to play, visit, or just listen.

• Roger and Brenda Cudd of Houston were up to play for the reunion. Roger is the nephew of Lakehills musician and celebrity Grady Mann. Grady gave Roger his first guitar and Roger has been picking since he was four.

Roger goes by "Roger Mann" on the stage.

• Terry Sanford and Rosemary Brown of Kerrville stayed with Sammy and Benita Lane of Pipe Creek while at the musicians' reunion. Not all of them camped out at Pop's.

• Buddy Lee of the Country Express that plays around Bandera County a lot got to press his steel guitar into service with the likes of keyboard tickler and vocalist Billie Walker from Wyoming and guitar picker Marty Boyer from Urie, Wyo.

• Treasa and Tom Wade of Stanwell, England made the reunion again.

• Food for the reunion was furnished by the Chuckwagon Express owned and operated by L.C. Kelley and Jim Buck. Their van was parked at Pop's for the entire week. Buck states, "Even though things started out slow, we were able to sell out by the end of the reunion and look forward to next year."

Breast cancer detection unit to be in Bandera on Sept. 14

The mobile breast cancer detection unit from the Regional Breast Care Center at Women's and Children's Hospital in Odessa will be in Bandera Thursday, Sept. 14, according to Bandera physician James Womack. The mobile unit will be parked at Dr. Womack's office.

For more information, or to make an appointment, call 796-7713.

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of every 10 American women will develop breast cancer sometime during her lifetime. The American Cancer Society predicts that about 37,000 women will die of breast cancer this year. As there is no way to prevent the disease, early detection and treatment offer the greatest hope for survival.

"The death rate from breast cancer could be drastically reduced if women would have mammograms done before a problem exists," according to a spokesman for the Odessa hospital.

The American Cancer Society recommends that women do monthly breast self-exams and have regular physical breast exams by a doctor. It further recommends a baseline mammogram (for reference between age 35 and 39; a mammogram every one or two years between age 40 and 49; and an annual mammogram from age 50.

By using modern state of the art x-ray equipment breast cancers can be found when they are about the size of a grain of rice and well before the cancer can be felt, the spokesman says. A woman who is diagnosed with breast cancer at this early stage has a 90-97 percent chance of survival. A woman who is not diagnosed until a lump can be felt has approximately a 50 percent survival rate in five years.

The Odessa cancer detection unit has recently received the certification of the American College of Radiology Mammography Accreditation Program.

Mammography is an x-ray examination of the breast, which the American Cancer Society and other medical experts see as the best means for the early detection of breast cancer.

The program is voluntary and is designed to insure that women receive optimum quality mammographic examinations. The process is done through peer review evaluation of the facility's staff qualifications, equipment, quality control and quality assurance programs, image quality, and breast dose. The accreditation must be renewed every three years.

The accreditation program was instituted because of the concerns of radiologists, other national medical organizations, and the public that qualified personnel perform and interpret mammograms and that dedicated mammographic equipment be used.

The American College of Radiology received an American Cancer Society control grant which was used to pilot test the accreditation program.

Medina, or Madinat-an-Nabi, is a city in Saudi Arabia historically significant as the seventh-century base from which the prophet Mohammed launched the military and religious forays to conquer the world of the Middle East for his new religion of Islam.

So what in the world is the name Medina doing as the appellation for a bill country river, a lake, two towns, and a county in Texas?

There is no doubt a body of genealogical research tracing the original place name in Arabia through its transfer during Moorish occupation to place-names in Spain and thence, when surnames came into use, into a last name for persons. One of the principal ways to create surnames in all European languages was to refer to the home towns of given family groups.

So Medina became a fairly common Spanish surname. It was borne by one of Spain's most influential engineers, Pedro Medina, who wrote an authoritave work on navigation and mapping, "Arte de Navegar," published in Valladolid in 1545.

We here now arrived at the point of contact with Texas. When Alonso De Leon crossed the Rio Bravo from Coahuila in 1689, his assignment was to locate La Bahia del Espiritu Santo on the Gulf Coast. Spanish hopes were to find a port to serve as a key point on a short cut for trade between Havana and Santa Fe. De Leon was also ordered to find the threatening French colony of Robert Cavalier Sieur de la Salle somewhere along the same coast.

Heading slowly east, the De Leon expedition made field notes and a crude map showing the successive streams encountered. Navigating with an astrolabe, De Leon employed the tables of engineer Andrea Argoli, who said that he in turn had taken them from the work of "Maestro Medina."

Giving simple descriptive names to most of the rivers crossed, De Leon and his men came upon yet another river. History scholar Dr. Herbert E. Bolton has quoted verbatim from De Leon's diary:

"Monday after Easter we set out to the east....We came to a great wood of pecan and oak trees more than five leagues, all fertile and pleasant land....We came that day upon a river which was very large although it had not much water and which had a good ford. We named it Rio de Medina, after Maestro Medina."

There are other names on old Spanish maps for our river like Rio de San Jose and Rio Mariano. The one we like best is Rio de Bagres — or Catfish River. But the name honoring Pedro Medina stuck, and is with us today even if we don't know why.

Development continuing at the lake

Water an attraction to prospective property owners

By Carol Smith
Special Correspondent

In the past six years land development around the Medina Lake area has dramatically increased, with new subdivisions popping up like spring flowers.

Developers are "cashing in" on San Antonio's obvious growth pattern to the west and northwest. Sea World Marina Park, the Biotechnological Complex and the West Loop Expressway (State Highway 211) are all contributors to growth towards the lake area.

Developers view Medina Lake as an added attraction to this growth and even the names of their subdivisions echo this fact.

Lakeview, located off FM Road 1283, just southeast of Mico in Medina County is Realinvest Corporation's newest development in the area.

In Bandera County, Realinvest owns Lake Country, 1½ miles west of the intersection of Park Road 37 and FM 1283; Mountain View off Park Road 37; and Willow Springs off Bump Gate Road.

These numerous subdivisions make Realinvest one of the largest developers of land near the southern end of Medina Lake.

Bill Lehr, a commercial investment broker for the corporation, discloses that all their subdivisions, except Lakeview, were basically sold out in 1986. Realinvest started developing in the lake area approximately seven years ago and had tremendous success in sales at that time. Many tracts have since been repossessed by the corporation and are now being resold, due partially to the economic distress of the entire state.

New development started in the Medina Lake area in the last five or six years, Lehr says. "Land prices have increased by a factor of at least three since 1980. I think what is needed to kick things into a 'boom' situation is a major lakefront subdivision to come in that includes condominiums. I've heard three developers talk about it, but nobody has really jumped into it yet," he says.

Realinvest finances most of the individual land sales itself, at an interest rate of 10 percent, with a down payment of 15 to 10 percent. Most mortgages run for 10 years, with semi-annual payments.

Lehr sees the fluctuating lake level as the major factor in slowing sales at Medina Lake Canyon Lake's level is more constant, making development there more constant, he says. "If there is ever any way in the world that all those irrigation contracts were terminated (and the lake level would remain constant), this area would really, really go," Lehr says, "but that is the problem. Every time the lake gets full, you see activity up here, but you no sooner have that happen then you have a dry summer and the lake drops 20 to 30 feet. With that you are back to a disinterested situation. The people who are buying out here are coming here for recreation, a lot of them."

Randall Courtney lives in the Pebble Beach 1 subdivision on Medina Lake and is another major developer for the area. His subdivisions, all in Bandera County, include Big Valley and Medina Lake Shores (Unit I), both off Park Road 37 and Cedar Ridge, and Elm Creek Cove and Medina Lake Center, which are off FM 1283.

Here again, these subdivisions were basically sold out in 1986 and repossessions are now being made. Courtney also does his own financing and believes that it has contributed greatly to his success with land sales in the region. "There are no financial institutions loaning money on a 30-year note," says Courtney. "These packages are easier to take advantage of, with lower monthly payments.

"I would already consider the lake area a suburb of San Antonio, on a Texas-sized scale. Some people drive 25 miles across town and we are only 17 miles from Loop 1604," he says.

Courtney doesn't see the low lake level as a hindrance to progress in the area. He believes that being so close to San Antonio is bringing people to this area anyway and having the lake so close by is simply an added advantage.

Mark Van Overburg of Van's Development is also a major developer in the region. His developments include Country View Estates off Park Road 37 close to State Highway 16; Lakewood Park and Lakewood Estates off FM 1283 due north of Park Road 37; and Country Brook, off FM 1283 and south of Mico in Medina County.

Overburg has placed restrictions in all of his subdivisions requiring that homes must be built and contain 30 percent masonry construction except in Lakewood Park. "We've had a lot of repossessions in the past year or two," said Overburg. "I'm offering a lenders' liquidation starting at $5,900 per acre and believe me, I'm not making any money at this rate." Van's Development offers a 15-year fixed-rate mortgage at 9.9 percent.

Sam Braeswell of First State Bank branch in Lakehills, says, "We have always lent money for land purchases in this area, since the inception of our bank. Of course, we can't compete with an individual who is doing his own financing. We require larger down payments and usually charge a higher interest rate," he said.

Pioneer Realty of Lakehills and Edwards Ranch Realty of Pipe Creek develop large tracts of land around the lake and also handle the sales of individuals' properties in the Mico area and ranch sales in the Mico and Rio Medina areas.

In an informal survey, area developers agree that up to 75 percent of the tract buyers in the area are San Antonio commuters, just trying to avoid living in the city. While this tremendous population growth increases the tax revenue base for both Medina and Bandera counties, it also places demands for more county services, such as schools, public utilities and emergency medical facilities.

The Bandera County Appraisal District reported a slight drop of 1.5 percent in property values in 1989 over 1988, resulting in a county-wide assessable valuation of $509,755,876.

Medina County produced a 0.53 percent increase in its tax base despite a $230 million dollar decrease in overall land values. Medina County Appraisal District added about 1,000 new accounts this year, most of them are new taxpayers who have just moved into the county.

Most developers agree that the bulk of the land sales are due to the availability of owner or developer financing. Most of the tracts in these subdivisions are from ½ to ¾ of an acre to 15 acres, keeping the cost for the buyer minimal. While the cost per acre varies widely with the size of the tract, location, improvements done and individual developers' costs, a general estimate would place an average price per acre at $4,000 to $6,500 per acre. Waterfront listings are much higher at about $40,000 to $50,000 per acre.

Agreement is also evident on the time frame in which the lake area will become densely populated. Developers are estimating that within five to eight years a majority of the larger ranches in the region will be subdivided and the properties they are selling now will become housing subdivisions.

A lot of the older, family-owned ranches are still evident, especially on the southern end of the lake near Mico. Most of these ranches are quite large, encompassing several hundred and even thousands of acres. The increased land values are prompting many to finally let these ranches be sold, at least in part.

One thing is for certain, the face of Medina Lake is definitely changing. While in times past the lake area was known for it's rough and rowdy nature, the newer residents are younger, financially mobile families from San Antonio seeking a country home. With this population increase will also come more business to serve them, stores, restaurants, banks and shopping centers. Barring some unforeseen economic upheaval land prices, interest rates and population will all continue to rise, bringing more growth and prosperity to all concerned with the Medina Lake region.

The bride, Kenneth Chestnut, and groom, "Dutch" Kreusel attended the fitting and then rehearsed the Womanless Wedding scheduled Oct. 14, 7 p.m., at the Lakehills American Legion Hall. Admission $2 to the skit.

American Legion post notes high attendance at meeting

A record attendance of 65 members and guests were present for the initial 1989-90 meeting of the Lakehills American Legion Post 410 and American Legion Auxiliary Unit 410, Thursday evening, Aug. 24.

Colter Wallace and Eric Grenet spoke to the group, relating their experience at Boys State last June at The University of Texas at Austin.

The mythical 51st state government provided an opportunity for 942 candidates from all over Texas the hands-on experience of conducting local and state government, a useful tool in assuming their responsibilities as future voting citizens, says Jerry Mauer, publicity chairwoman.

Jennifer Craven, the 1989 Girls State candidate sponsored by Unit 410, was unable to attend. She will give her report in September, says Mauer.

Patricia Godkin introduced a tentative proposal on behalf of the young people of the community to start a scholarship fund in memory of the late Glenn "Stuffy" Stufflebean, a Lakehills veteran of World War I and II. The gathering applauded the idea, remembering Stuffy's devotion to children and to the American Legion, and pledged support to Godkin in her efforts to establish the memorial fund.

Newly-elected Unit President Gwen Akin announced her committee appointments and gained approval of her calendar of events for the year.

Sue Kruse, Barbara George, and Mauer were elected members-at-large to serve with the unit's previously elected officers on the executive board.

Special recognition was given to charter members and original founders of Unit 410, which was organized in 1976. The roll call included Dorothy Walker Weber, Edith Edwards, Helen Edwards, Blanche Lloyd, Ruby Stafford, Margarita De la Guerra, Panchita Thomson, Gwen Akin, Mimi Lavarre, Dorothy Mortola, Dorothy Wilke and Mae Bachelor (1967 charter), says Mauer.

Maintaining continuous membership since 1967 were Weber, Ruth Tschirhart, Thomson, Lloyd and Akin.

Maintaining continuous membership since 1968 were Ruth Cowley, Lola Long and Ruby Tschirhart. Continuous membership since 1969 were Bertha Godkin, Ruth Elaine Howard, Wauneta Taylor and Temple.

Flea market set at LH Civic Center

County Judge Ray Mauer and commissioner Bennie Barker were among the notables present when Bandera County Helping Hand celebrated their "first birthday" at their present location Tuesday, Aug. 29.

Director Mildred Treaster and Helping hand founder Comadlia Rue were also among the celebrants.

Treaster said that the organization has helped many people obtain school supplies for their children already this year, including at least 10 families from the Medina ISD.

"I feel like we're doing an effective job of covering the entire county," she said.

Helping hand will have their once a year "Big Bash" thrift sale Saturday, Sept. 2 from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

A Thought For The Week
By John M. Grimes

Labor Day is a typically American holiday. It is an important day ... not only for those in the ranks of labor, but for every citizen in this land. It is a day when the nation as a whole does honor to those who labor — whether it be with hands or head.

In Europe, the great day of labor is May 1 — May Day. It has often been rocked with demonstrations, and many times it has been marked by riots. Not so in America. We celebrate by simply enjoying the fruits of our labors. This country was founded on the theory that a nation could be welded out of peoples from all sorts of backgrounds — provided they were willing and ready to work together.

It took labor of all kinds to carve this nation out of a wilderness ... to cross treacherous rivers ... to carve roads through trackless forests ... to clear lands and build towns...

Labor Day is not a day set apart for any one group, but a day which all of us may celebrate. With this in mind, let us on this Labor Day rededicate ourselves to work to the best of our abilities — so laboring that we may pass on to the next generation a nation better and stronger for our having lived and toiled.

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of ten women will develop breast cancer sometime in her lifetime. It is currently estimated that over 37,000 women die each year as a result of breast cancer.

Ninety percent of breast cancers are diagnosed by women or their physicians finding a lump in the breast. Women who are diagnosed with a lump large enough to [illegible] breast cancer by mammography, before a lump can be felt, has a 97% five year survival rate and a 90% 10 year survival rate. The cost is only $60.00

A mammogram can detect a cancer this small, • even before it can be felt.

Immunizations, required by schools, save lives

Children are not born immune to infectious diseases; they must be immunized against them. More than any other preventive health-care practice, immunizations begun in childhood and kept up to date save money, misery, and lives.

In Texas, [illegible] for children against polio, tetanus, measles, rubella, (German measles,), mumps and diphtheria — is required by law for all children registering for day-care or public school. In addition, pertussis, or whooping cough, vaccine is required for children less than 5 years old in day-care and public school. The Texas Medical Association recommends the pertussis vaccine be extended for children through age 6.

Because of vaccinations, only two cases of diptheria and one fatal case of polio have been reported in Texas in the past 10 years.

Parents should follow their physician's advice in scheduling the necessary vaccinations and boosters and in keeping accurate records for each child. Parents who are not sure if their children's vaccinations are current should update their records now, to be ready for the upcoming school year.

Parents play an important part in education process, leader of secondary school principals group says

This week, as millions of students return to schools, parents ask themselves how they might help their youngsters take best advantage of their educational opportunities, according to Lew Armisted, director of public relations for the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

"It has been said that the child's first teacher is the parent, and that philosophy is valid throughout any student's first 13 years of schooling.

Principals and teachers can provide a certain amount of education during the five or six hours students spend in the classroom, but what happens at home will determine the extent of success to a great degree.

If parents stress the importance of education, encourage their youngsters not to work an excessive number of hours during the school year, and provide other forms of support, students will have a higher chance for success.

"It's been said that the child's first teacher is the parent," expert says.

Here, according to Armisted, are some ideas on how parents can support students' education this year:

Compliment your youngsters when they achieve successes in school. Recognition and moral support pay dividends.

Discuss the value schooling will have to future employment. If your youngster understands that you place a high priority on learning, he or she is more likely to do the same.

Ensure that interruptions to your youngster's class/school time are kept to a minimum.

Limit the viewing of television on school nights.

Make sure that your youngsters have an appropriate place to study and that they complete homework assignments.

Offer to speak to students about your job, or any unusual skill you possess.

Attend and support such school meetings as parent-teacher conferences, back to school nights, and open houses.

Attend school programs: plays, sporting events, musicals.

Determine ways you can enhance your child's education (e.g., museum visits, operas, political debates, travel).

Know the principal and teachers where your children attend school. Check with them in an unthreatening manner regarding problems or rumors.

The press: full court

and one-on-one.

Charging. Dodging. Challenging. Guarding. One side on the offensive. One side on the defensive.
When the press faces off against public figures, it sometimes seems like a sporting event. But it's more serious than that. Because often, at the heart of the issue is the First Amendment. And its guarantee of a free press.
Some say the rights of the press should be taken away. They say the press goes too far. Sometimes even the press questions how far is too far.
Others say the rights of the press protect the rights of the people. Your right to be informed about things that affect your life and your right to decide.
The debate will continue.
But one thing is for sure. You won't always agree with what the press has to say.
And it's your right not to.

Welder's gifts become business

Story and photos by Larry T. Williams

Bunny and Artie display one of their scenic signs.

Artie cuts a fine 1/16" line.

When Artie Erfurt opened his welding business on State Highway 173 eight years ago he did not consider himself an artist. He did, however, enjoy fabricating small items such as door stops and dinner bells as Christmas gifts for family members and friends.

Word got around and Erfurt found he was receiving an increasing number of requests for custom work that could only be described as "art." So, in 1988 he and his wife Bunny seriously began to market his welding art objects and at the same time, to expand their line.

"We started with the door stops and dinner bells and quickly added boot scrapers and scenics as demand increased," said Bunny. "We kept getting ideas for new uses of old items," she said.

Erfurt agreed. "Our customers are our best source of inspiration," he said. He cited as an example a boot scraper which consists of a steel strip welded between two vertical rods which are driven into the ground as supports. "Someone suggested that it would make a perfect yard sign for a family's name. It was really a simple thing but it took thinking of it," he said. "We've had several items that have developed this way."

From those simple objects, the Erfurts have expanded into elaborate wildlife scenes that combine silhouetted wildlife and customers names into large compositions to adorn entrances and gates.

The Erfurts work as a team on most of the items. Bunny draws the shapes on the steel and Artie does the torch work. They both come up with ideas and sometimes combine the best of each other's thoughts.

Erfurt's skill with an acetylene cutting torch contributes to the spontaneous quality of his work. It also helps keep production time to a minimum which helps the profit margin of a piece and also allows a better price.

"I quickly learned that the cleaner I could cut an item and the less time I had to spend grinding slag, the better the work was and the less I had to charge for it," said Erfurt. "Grinding not only is slow, it is impossible in certain areas and it takes away something from the finished piece," he said.

"Each piece is an individual creation ... it's special.

Erfurt got his start in welding at an early age from his father. "Dad had heavy machinery so he had welding equipment. One day when I was about 12 he was working on a bulldozer and I told him I wanted to learn how (to weld). He just stood up and handed me the stinger and said, 'go to it'."

Erfurt continued welding in vocational classes in high school and then as a career after he graduated. He says that a three year period working for one man taught him more than any other experience.

"I worked for RECO in San Antonio with a man named Nacho Falfurrias," said Erfurt. "He was the best I've ever seen. Nacho was a man who would come to work (welding) clean and go home still clean...and get more work done than anybody there. He taught me how to control the torch...and myself," he said.

Bunny's drawing and design talents are self-developed and she has used them before in sewing and garment design and in hand painted T-shirts.

Caring for quality has carried over to the present for the Erfurts. It is reflected in their business name and in their refusal to mass produce most of their work.

"We could get an optic eye torch machine," said Erfurt. "All you do is put a pattern on the scanner and it cuts as many copies as you want. It might be good for stock items like door knockers or boot scrapers but not for our scenes or our custom work."

"We want to keep the hand-crafted quality that has pleased our customers so much," says Bunny. "Each piece is an individual creation...it's special. That's what we want to continue."

In spite of a growing demand for his art work, Erfurt still maintains a standard welding shop where a person can get a gate constructed or a machine repaired. And with every bead he lays down and every line he cuts Erfurt says he tries to reflect his company name, Quality Welding.

Bunny draws the shapes while Artie's torch creates a shower of sparks as he cuts a design.

Retired officers due in Kerrville

Members of the Retired Officers Association from across Texas will gather in Kerrville this fall for a state convention, organizers have announced.

It is expected 400 or more retired military officers and their spouses will attend the TROA Convention hosted by the Texas Hill Country Chapter and head quartered at the Inn of the Hills Oct. 19-22, said retired Col. Verne Philips, president of the state Council of Chapters. Col. Philips is an Austin attorney.

"We believe Kerrville's reputation as a popular tourist attraction will be an added inducement for many retirees," Philips said.

"We consider this a challenge to make it the best convention ever," said Don Backer, one of the organizers.

The Texas convention, a biennial affair, is open to all members of the Retired Officers Association.

TROA is a nationwide organization of more than 360,000 members, mostly reatiree, from all branches of the military services. In Texas there are 29,000 members of whom 8,000 are affiliated with one of the 25 chapters. Although the majority are retirees, the membership includes active duty officers as well as former officers and widowed spouses.

1990 Farm Bill is subject of program planned by extension service at Texas A&M

A statewide beef cattle policy symposium will present "Potential Impacts of the 1990 Farm Bill" Oct. 9 at the College Station Hilton.

Dr. Ernest E. Davis, economist in livestock marketing with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said the symposium will feature a wide array of speakers who will present policy viewpoints and express opinions on how the 1990 Farm Bill will impact cattlemen and consumers.

"The program is designed for beef cattle producers, consumers, agricultural lenders and other associated agribusiness groups," Davis said.

U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm of Stamford, chairman of the Agriculture Subcommittee for Livestock, Dairy and Poultry, will present a politician's view on the direction the 1990 Farm Bill is taking.

JoAnn Smith, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, Marketing and Inspection Service with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, will discuss an administrator's viewpoint on proposed policies.

Other subjects to be addressed by key speakers will include mandatory meat price reporting, animal welfare and patents, food safety and feed grain and dairy policy.

For more information, contact Davis at Room 5, Agriculture Building, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843.

Rev. Laura Smith Adam

Utopia Methodists welcome new minister

The Rev. Laura Smith Adam was recently appointed minister at Utopia United Methodist Church, replacing the Rev. Gordon Miller, who retired and still lives in Utopia.

Rev. Adam came to Utopia in mid-June, and the post is her first appointment since she completed seminary at Chandler School of Theology at Emory University in Atlanta, Ga.

She has two children, Jenie, 16, and Jeff, 13.

"I lived in Austin, and Texas has always been a part of me," Adam said. "I didn't hesitate to come here. I especially like the Hill Country, and the people."

Her educational background includes a degree from Southwestern University at Georgetown, with a double major in psychology and Christian Education. She considers programming one of her strengths.

Adam said she considers preaching and pastoral care her focus, and "counseling with folks and being with them in times of crisis and providing leadership in spiritual growth.

"I like people, and I care about people," she explained. She said she became a minister because she experienced a call from God, and she believes that caring about people is the best way she could serve God.

"My call experience has been a slow process," she said.

Utopia's United Methodist Church has been in existence for over 120 years, and Adam said the congregation has remained and church members who are very devoted." She called them faithful, with church playing a central role in their lives.

"Church is not an afterthought to them," she said.

The church is 165 members strong, with an average attendance of about 85-90, Adam said. It was established in 1866 as a part of the Uvalde-Kerrville Mission, then later it became a part of the Uvalde Circuit.

According to a historical marker on the site, the pecan grove behind the present church was the site of many camp meetings, and the first was reportedly held in 1868 by the Rev. A.J. Potter, noted Civil War chaplain and circuit rider.

The gothic sanctuary was built in the 1890's with church members doing much of the work, on a site donated by the Rev. Irving Jones and R.H. Kinchloe.

Seminar on women

A seminar on "Today's Woman: Becoming Whole" will be held Saturday, Sept. 23, at the Holiday Inn-Airport in Corpus Christi, says the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

New law may mean more drug money due

Bandera County has received a total of $42,000 as its share of property seized in drug related cases, but after Sept. 1, it may receive more money from more sources and the state will be in for its own additional cut as "drug stamps" issued by the state comptroller's office will be required on illegal drugs.

Two new state laws go into effect Sept. 1 that will allow local law enforcement officials to seize the assets, properties and businesses of drug dealers and another that places a hefty state tax on illegal drugs requiring them to have individually numbered, easily seen "drug stamps."

The Asset Forfeiture law, House Bill 65 passed by the Texas 71st Legislature, will crack down on drug dealers who hide behind legitimate business ventures by investing in them. "This new law says if you choose to make your money selling drugs, you will pay not only time in jail time but with your car, your bank account and your property," says state Rep. Dan Morales, the author and sponsor of the bill.

It is estimated seizures from the first year will net over $200 million.

The district attorney or county attorney will take the arrested drug dealer before a judicial hearing that is much like a civil proceeding. If the prosecutor can convince the judge that the drug dealer's business is bought or operated with tainted money, the judge can order seizure of the business assets and turn that money over to local law enforcement officials, reports a spokeswoman for Morales' office.

The seizure can be done before the accused is convicted and applies to all criminal activity, not just drug dealing.

"This is money local law enforcement agencies can use to fight drug trafficking in their community," Morales says.

Under the new law, the accused criminals will still be prosecuted for criminal activity.

Morales says the state would be in step with the new federal efforts to fight the importation and use of drugs and his Assets Forfeiture Bill will focus the state's efforts to play a major role in the anti-drug war.

Morales, Democratic candidate for Texas Attorney General, is chairman of the House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee and was the sponsor of the House Anti-Crime Package.

Morales has promised to create a division of narcotics enforcement within the attorney general's office. "It will be the primary responsibility of the division to actively organize and coordinate state, local and federal efforts to prevent drugs from entering our state and prosecute those involved in narcotics trafficking" he says.

But the state is also expected to profit directly from the drug trade by taxing them and seizing property if the new state tax on illegal drugs is not paid. "If you deal untaxed drugs in Texas, Bullock's raiders are coming after your property, your bank account, your car or anything else that can be seized to collect the tax," said Texas State Comptroller Bob Bullock Thursday, Aug. 24.

Bullock vowed to aggressively collect the drug tax that starts Sept. 1, which requires drug dealers to pay heavy taxes on marijuana and controlled substances.

Failure to pay the tax can lead to stiff penalties, fines and seizures of property, according to Bullock.

The law requires drug dealers to purchase tax stamps from the comptroller's office and place them on any packages of marijuana or controlled substances. The tax rate for marijuana is $3.50 per gram or $1,624 per pound. The tax rate on controlled substances, which is virtually any other illegal drug, is $200 per gram or $90,720 per pound.

As if the assessed taxes aren't enough, dealers arrested with untaxed drugs owe not only the tax, but also late penalty and interest.

Additionally, Bullock will tack on a tax fraud penalty of 50 percent of the amount of tax due for failure to purchase tax stamps on top of what the dealers owe. A dealer convicted for not paying the tax will be fined an amount equal to the tax and could be sentenced to two to 10 years in prison for tax fraud in addition to other charges for possession and dealing in illegal drugs.

"Drug dealing has flourished because tremendous profits can be made. I hope the tax will break the financial incentive to deal illegal drugs," Bullock said.

The two-inch square drug stamps are individually numbered and emblazoned with images of a skull and crossbones or the grim reaper and the words "drugs," "death," and "taxes."

Stamps for marijuana are sold in four denominations ranging from one gram for $3.50 to one kilogram for $3,500. Stamps for controlled substances are available in five denominations from one gram for $200 to 500 grams for $100,000.

Stamps must be purchased by money order or certified check from the comptroller's office in Austin or by mail. The law requires that all information about drug tax stamp purchases remain confidential.

Bullock said that when his office is notified by a local prosecutor of a drug tax violation, the dealer will be sent a tax notice for the amount of tax due. The comptroller can file a lien against the dealer's assets, such as real estate, bank accounts, cars, boats, and other property, for collection of the tax.

Drought hurting prong-horn antelope populations

Two consecutive years of dry weather in the Trans-Pecos region of West Texas have caused significant declines in pronghorn antelope populations, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Ted Clark, antelope program leader, said Trans-Pecos herds dropped by 24 percent in 1988 from 1987 levels, then fell another 37 percent this year. "This simply means there are less than half the number of pronghorn in that region as there were in 1987," Clark said.

Clark said he is not overly alarmed at the declining antelope numbers, because improved range conditions could bring them back in a relatively short time. "The statewide population in 1987 of approximately 27,000 animals was really more antelope than the range could be expected to support for a long period of time," he said.

Notice of Public Hearing on Tax Increase

The Bandera County will hold a public hearing on a proposal to increase total tax revenues from properties on the tax roll in 1988 by 8 percent. Your individual taxes may increase at a greater or lesser rate, or even decrease, depending on the change in the taxable value of your property in relation to the change in taxable value of all other property.

The public hearing will be held on September 5th at 6:00 p.m. at Bandera County Court House..

FOR the proposal: Roger Raser, Bennie Barker, N.P. (Bud) Thompson, and Dan C. Alanis III
AGAINST the proposal: NONE
PRESENT and not voting: NONE
ABSENT: NONE

The statement above shows the percentage increase the proposed rate represents over the effective tax rate that the unit published on August 29th, 1989. The following table compares taxes on an average home in this taxing unit last year to taxes proposed on the average home this year. Again, your individual taxes may be higher or lower, depending on the taxable value of your property.

	Last Year	This Year
Average home value	50,000	50,000
General exemptions available (amount available on the average home, not including senior citizen's or disabled person's exemptions)	-0-	5,000
Average taxable value	50,000	45,000
TAX rate	.2925	.3084 (proposed)
TAX	146.25	138.78 (proposed)

Under this proposal taxes on the average home would decrease by $7.47 or .05107% decrease compared with last year's taxes.

Comparing tax rates without adjusting for changes in property value, the tax rate would increase by $.0159 per $100 of taxable value or .05435% increase compared to last year's tax rate. These tax rate figures are not adjusted for changes in the taxable value of property.

Sabinal Canyon Museum opens

Recalls the changes from ox carts to automobiles

Harvey Hilderbran who represents Uvalde County, and Bandera County Judge Ray Mauer at the grand opening of the Sabinal Canyon Museum in Utopia Saturday, Aug. 26. Also pictured at the far left is E.J. Bulletin Staff Writer

The Sabinal Canyon Museum in Utopia, the dream of the community and promoted by residents Douglas and E.J. Bacon, brought many of the long-time residents of the area together to recall the change from ox carts to the automobile at the museum's grandopening Aug. 26.

Henry Fisher, one of the long-time residents of the canyon, recalled the canyon's beginnings starting with the arrival of Captain William Ware in 1852 through the time when automobiles first arrived in the 1910s.

The museum has many displays and artifacts from the times Fisher recalled Saturday, including a picture of the first store and post office in Wareseville, the town that proceeded Utopia, and the old rock store, the first business built in Utopia.

Other items on display include a communion set used by the Utopia First Christian Church, which disbanded in 1930 and a Haliburton third reader used by J.H. Hicks in the 1930s.

Other items include irons, egg beaters, carbide porch lamps, glass milk bottles and an old McClelland cavalry saddle used in the 1940s.

Fisher, said that when Ware moved into the canyon, he and the Thompsons and Davenports who followed, lacked any of the modern conveniences of today. "They had just what they had in their wagon."

Fisher also recalled that they came without protection, a fact that didn't go unnoticed when the Civil War broke out. Some 17 families had to build and move into a stockade for protection from the Indians.

Fisher, who came to the canyon in 1902, said after the Civil War, people starting moving into the canyon at a rapid rate. Many were well educated veterans, who just wanted to get as far away as possible and the hills offered that protection.

The railroad that came to Sabinal in the 1880s changed life in Utopia. When people needed to get supplies, they would have to take a wagon to San Antonio, a seven-day round trip. But with Sabinal as a supply depot, it was a two day trip, says Fisher.

Henry Fisher

With the railroad, cotton gins were built and the Golden Age of the Sabinal Canyon was established and lasted to WW I, says Fisher.

During this time, creative residents would build devices such as a windmill that ground corn to meal and pumped water at the same time. People were happy, there was plenty of corn meal and deer, and farmers had cotton crops for spending money.

The automobile arrived in the 1910s, but just wasn't dependable enough for the residents, says Fisher. It wasn't until the 1920s that cars were good enough for the area.

but then, the 1918 drought and the boll weevil arrived and many people moved out, says Fisher. After that, the canyon, like much of the rest of the United States, was affected by the same events that shaped the country.

The museum, located in Utopia, will be open each day through Labor Day, after which a fall-winter schedule will be devised.

Lost Maples campsites re-open

Campsites have been reopened at the Lost Maples State Natural Area north of Vanderpool after completion of upgrading work, but don't plan to reserve one for this fall, because even the new sites are already booked.

The sites, closed since June 1, were reopened Aug. 18 and there are now 30 general campsites with water, electricity, and a shade shelter over the wood and metal-frame picnic table sitting on a concrete slab.

The sites were closed for installation of electrical outlets and shade shelters, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials.

But those wishing to reserve the general campsites for the fall color show that nature puts on yearly are out of luck. The general campsites for the last two weeks in October and the first two weeks in November, the prime fall color season, are already reserved, says park ranger Marion Wise.

People need to make their reservations for the fall 90 days in advance, advises Wise.

Assuming conditions are right this year, the maple trees in the park will be at their peak Nov. 7-11, but there are no guarantees, says Wise. Warm days, cool nights, and little moisture are needed during the fall to bring out the best colors, he says.

If there is too much moisture, the leaves will get a fungus, and the leaves will simply turn brown, says Wise. "Some moisture is okay, but not a whole lot," he says.

Besides the general campsites, there are primitive back pack sites which are simply clearings designated for camping. Campers must hike to the sites, the closest of which is one mile from the road and the farthest is three miles, says Wise.

Some primitive back pack sites are still available for reservations, he says.

There are eight primitive camping areas that accommodate a maximum of 45 people, with eight being the most at one site.

The general campsites rent for $9 a night and a $2 a day vehicle entrance fee is assessed. The backpack sites are $4 a night and the same $2 a day vehicle entrance fee applies.

The state natural area is a combination of steep, rugged limestone canyons, springs, plateau grasslands, wooded slopes and clear streams.

Lost Maples is located in northwest Bandera County north of the intersection of FM Road 337 and FM Road 187. Take FM 187 to the park entrance.

Call 966-3413 for camping information or reservations.

NOTICE OF EFFECTIVE TAX RATE

1989 PROPERTY TAX RATES IN FLYING L PUBLIC UTILITY DISTRICT

This notice concerns 1989 property tax rates for FLYING L PUBLIC UTILITY DIST. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

LAST YEAR'S TAX RATE:
Last year's operating taxes	$	32,909.53
+ Last year's debt taxes	$	84,624.50
= Last year's total taxes	$	117,534.03
÷ Last year's tax base	$	1.25
= Last year's total tax rate	$	9,402,722/$100
THIS YEAR'S EFFECTIVE TAX RATE:
Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$	117,264
÷ This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting taxes on new property)	$	9,658,210
= This year's effective tax rate	$	1.214/$100

A city that adopted the additional sales tax in a 1989 election must include the following lines:

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Bandera Electric Cooperative, Inc. has found it necessary to accelerate activities associated with its policy of retiring power lines and other electrical equipment not in use (i.e. idle services). The Cooperative's records indicate that there are over 1,700 such "idle services" within its system which need to be retired, or in certain instances at a property owner's request, reactivated. Elimination of these idle facilities will reduce the Cooperative's maintenance costs and provide needed materials for construction of new service lines.

If you feel you may have an idle service line on your property which you wish to reactivate in order to avoid removal, please contact the Cooperative's Engineering Department 512-796-3741, providing if possible, the old service meter and /or account number. Once a line is removed, installation will only be in accordance with the Cooperative's Line Extension Policy as filed with the Public Utility Commission of Texas.

The Cooperative will be removing these "idle services" without further notification as scheduling permits. When the services are dismantled, meter loops and other non-Cooperative owned fixtures located on service poles will be removed and left on location. The Cooperative will not be responsible for subsequent loss of, or damage to such items.

Golfers to salute Scotland

"Texas Rules, Scotland" will be the theme of a benefit golf tournament Sunday, Oct. 15 at the Flying L Golf Course.

Tee off time is 8:30 a.m., and the men's and women's tournament format will be four person scramble.

"The American Cancer Society and the Flying L Golf Course will join forces to present a golf outing at the 18-hole resort course," said tournament chairman Bob Neuser.

"Over five centuries ago, golf was developed in Scotland," he said. "It's high time that we honored the Scots for giving us the wonderful world of golf."

According to Neuser, the earliest date recorded in Scotland's golf history is 1457, when King James II issued an edict against citizens playing golf.

"Instead, citizens were encouraged to take up archery since it was more pertinent to national defense," he said.

A number of players have indicated that to honor Scotland, they will play wearing Scottish kilts, Neuser said.

"The San Antonio Scottish Society will participate with players as well as bagpipers and drummers to urge golfers on to greater achievements," he said. "Scottish American golfers are particularly urged to participate in this tournament."

The contest is limited to 120 golfers, or 30 teams of four, Neuser explained.

"An awards dinner will follow the tourney. Winners and guests will be serenaded by kilted players and drummers as prizes are awarded and the first Texas golfers' salute to Scotland is written into Bandera County history."

June sales down, comptroller announces

By William Wall
Bulletin Austin Bureau

June retail sales in the city of Bandera declined more than 11 percent, compared to June 1988, according to figures released last week by the State Comptroller's office.

The monthly City Sales and Use Tax Summary also showed that retail sales in Bandera for the second quarter have increased 4.88 percent in 1989, compared to the same period in last year.

Checks totaling $121.9 million have been sent to 1,046 cities that impose local sales tax at either one or one-half percent, according to Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Bandera's 1989 share of this month's checks was $15,441.31, an 11.34 percent decline from $17,417.07 last August.

Bandera's 1989 year-to-date total is $91,066.02. Sales tax rebates to Bandera through the second quarter of 1988 were $86,826.55.

"There were several non-filers in Bandera County this period and, once those accounts are brought up to date, the numbers will even out," said Sharon Hogan, a public information officer with the comptroller's office. "June sales were actually pretty steady in the county.

"There were also five filing status changes in Bandera County, compared to last year," she said. "Those merchants have switched from being quarterly filers to monthly filers."

Texas law requires retailers that collect less than $1,000 in state sales taxes in a calendar year to file an annual return. Retailers who collect more than $1,000 but less than $1,500 are required to file quarterly, and those that collect more than $1,500 must file monthly, Hogan said.

The August checks are for taxes collected by monthly filers in June and by quarterly filers in April, May and June and reported to the comptroller's office by June 20, according to Bullock.

Cities in neighboring Kerr County reported a 20.81 percent increase in June retail sales, and have been sent checks totaling $221,279.50, compared to $174,891.11 for the same month in 1988.

The 1989 second quarter total for Kerr County cities was $1,113,684.43, a 5.44 percent increase from the $1,075,213.35 for the same period in 1988.

Boerne, in Kendall County, reported a 15.77 percent increase in June retail sales, and has been sent $38,444.20, compared to $33,206.29 last June. Second quarter totals for Boerne were $255,183.91, a 5.86 percent increase, compared to $241,049.16 for the second quarter of 1988.

Boerne is the only city in its county that collects a city sales tax.

Five cities in Medina County reported a combined decrease of 12.58 percent in June. Checks totaling $76,678.70 have been sent to those cities, compared with $87,721.23 for June 1988.

Medina County's 1989 second quarter total was $481,847.89, and 11.03 percent increase from $433,985.23 last year.

June retail sales in Real County cities were down 4.9 percent, compared to June 1988, according to the summary. They will receive $5,084.64, compared to $5,346.57 last June.

Second quarter figures for Real County cities totaled $24,496.30, a 2.86 percent decline from last year's $25,218.51.

June retail sales for two cities in Uvalde County were down a combined 5.29 percent. Checks totaling $89,398.69 have been sent, compared with $94,387.11 last June.

Second quarter totals for Uvalde County cities were $546,074.42, a .81 percent increase compared to the 1988 total of $541,691.24.

Wyman wins in AAU event

Bill Wyman

Bill Wyman, a 12-year-old swimmer from Bandera, brought home an eighth-place medal from the 23rd annual AAU/USA Junior Olympics swimming championships in San Antonio Aug. 8-12. He was one of over 400 swimmers from across the country to compete at the national event.

Wyman got his medal in the 50-meter free-style event Friday evening, Aug. 11, when he swam a 34.05-second race. He had a 33.61 in a preliminary qualifying event earlier in the day.

Thursday, Wyman swam to a 1:17.31 in the 100-meter freestyle prelim and placed ninth, one spot out of the medal race. However, that night he won his heat with a 1:14.27, his personal best, in a consolation race.

Wyman says he likes the tougher competition in the AAU meet. "I like the challenge," he says. "It's more fun. That's one reason I swim the 'fly' (butterfly stroke). No one else on the team can do it." Wyman says he had planned to enter the butterfly at San Antonio, but the event was not offered.

Wyman will concentrate on football and basketball now that the swimming season is over, but he plans to be back in the water again in the spring, reaching for more medals.

Dove season looks good, says warden

Although Bandera County never has been among the premier dove hunting areas in Texas, hunters can look forward to a relatively good opportunity to bag some of the so-called birds of peace when the season opens here Friday, Sept. 1.

"It looks real good in Bandera County," says veteran game warden Carl Becker. "I've seen quite a lot of birds and they look good (health-wise) and mature."

He said the birds are especially plentiful in the more traditional dove hunting areas near Hondo and D'Hanis where they feed on the remnants of harvested grain fields in the area.

Dove hunting season continues in Bandera County through Oct. 30, and hunters will encounter a few new state regulations governing it.

However, Becker emphasized one important change designed to catch hunters who may be cheating on the bag limit. "If you give another person any of the birds you killed, you are (now) required to give him a legal hunters document attesting to the fact you killed the birds," Becker said.

"It's similar to the document required when you give someone deer meat," he said. It can be an informal note listing the names and addresses of the both the killer and the recipient, the number and description of the birds, the location of the kill, Becker said.

He said the new law was designed to combat the cheat who gets his bag limit in the morning, sends them to the house via a companion, for example, and then proceeds to exceed the bag limit. "Some (hunters) killed as many as 20 or 30 birds a day," Becker said.

Unchanged from last year is the bag limit of 12 doves, not to include more than two white-winged doves, and shooting hours that extend from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset.

"A person hunting dove is required to have a valid hunting license," Becker reminds, "and if they hunt whitewing, they must have a whitewing stamp."

There will be another season for dove, what Becker calls "the early winter season" that will be Jan. 6-15. Traditionally, hunting in Bandera County is better in the early winter season than in the fall season, Becker says.

Northern birds move down (in January)," the game warden says. "They're bigger and healthier, and they hang around the area for quite a while."

Whitewing season prospects 'fair'

White-winged dove hunters can expect reasonably good shooting during the whitewing season Sept. 2-3 and 9-10 in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, says Ron George of the Parks and Wildlife Department.

Reserved Bulldog ducats still available

Season tickets for reserved football seats will again be on sale at Bandera football stadium Friday, Sept. 1 during the varsity football team's scrimmage with Three Rivers.

The scrimmage will begin at 6 p.m., and there is no charge to enter the stadium and watch the two teams practice, and the ticket booth is scheduled to open at 5:30.

There are still plenty of good season ticket seats available, according to assistant superintendent Gus Pfeiffer. "At only $20 per seat, the cost is no greater than a general admission ticket to all home games," he said.

"One good thing about the season tickets is that you can get to the games at any time and still be assured of having your seat," Pfeiffer said.

"We are hoping to sell out the reserved section, but if we don't, we will sell reserved seats on a one-game basis on the night of the game."

Pfeiffer said the tickets will also be sold through the school business office.

Dash for Speed wins in New Mexico

Dash for Speed, the 4-year-old mare trained by Bandera's Larry Keiter, made a strong bid for the title of World Champion Running Quarter Horse Sunday, Aug. 20, when she won the Grade 1 $158,443 All-American Gold Cup for her 13th consecutive win at Ruidoso Downs, N.M.

The Gold Cup field was the toughest Dash for Speed has faced this year, and she won going away. Cash Legacy was second, 1¼ lengths behind the winner, and Such an Easy Effort was third.

Jockey Steve Fuller, who has been aboard Dash for Speed for all of her six Grade 1 wins at Ruidoso Downs, said the race was easy. "I never did push her," he said. "I just let her run. I think she's world champion material. She deserves it, but I'm kind of partial."

Dash for Speed's 440-yard time of 21:32 seconds was a stakes record.

Dash for Speed had a half-length lead at the halfway mark, and then drew away from the field.

The mare is owned by Bob Blakeman of Fort Worth and Thomas Bradbury of Byers, Colo.

Keiter was not surprised by her easy victory. "She's a true champion," he remarked. "She comes through every time we ask her."

He thinks the horse should have been named world champion last year. "It was a disappointment to myself last year, and I think after what she's accomplished this year, she deserves it."

This was the mare's seventh win in seven starts at Ruidoso in 1989. She had previously won the Go Together Handicap, Rainbow Silver Cup, and the World's Championship Quarter Horse Classic.

Cash Legacy was undefeated in three 1989 starts, including a win in the West Texas Maturity at Sunland Park in January.

Ruidoso Downs plans major expansion

Ruidoso Downs co-owner R.D. Hubbard, who has a horse training facility east of Bandera, says he may build an 18-hole golf course, 200-room luxury resort hotel with suites, a convention center and a performing arts center in Ruidoso, N.M.

The major resort development comes on the heels of a $2.4 million renovation project at the race track. "The change in appearance (of the track) plus an increase in marketing efforts, has drawn many new visitors to the (Ruidoso) area," a race track publication says.

Hubbard's resort development is said to contain plans for $20 million in development and facilities. It will be at the site of Ruidoso's now-defunct municipal airport.

"With the addition of these new facilities, Ruidoso will now be able to accommodate conventions which were previously not possible," the track said.

A final decision on whether to proceed with the resort development is due any day, and actual work will begin by early next year.

Soccer registration set Aug. 31, Sept. 1

Soccer registration will be Thursday and Friday, Aug. 31 and Sept. 1, from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. at Alkek Elementary School and Saturday, Sept. 2, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the First State Bank.

Boys and girls between the ages of 5 and 11 years are eligible and the cost of registration is $20, with a $50 family maximum. Youths registering after Sept. 2 will be penalized an additional $5, organizers said.

New players must provide proof of age, such as a birth certificate.

Five and six-year-old players will compete in Division F, seven- and eight-year-olds in Division E, and nine- to 11-year-olds in Division D.

Teams practice on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday and games are played Saturday mornings. Practices start the week of Sept. 11 and the first game will be Sept. 23. Both practices and games are at the Bandera Electric Co-op Soccer Fields two miles west of Bandera.

At the close of registration Saturday, the league's player agent will direct a drawing to place players on team rosters. Coaches are invited to attend and may begin contacting their players after the drawing.

A meeting for coaches and a coaching clinic will be held at dates to be determined.

There will still a need for additional coaches and assistants in all divisions and referees. Persons interested may contact Debbie Hutcheson at 796-3014 or Dr. Louis DuBose at 796-4608.

Golf tourney bags $2,900 for BACIT building fund

Gene Mikulik, Bobby Clark, Jim Womack and Kenneth Mazurek teamed up to win the fund-raising golf tournament of the Bandera Athletic Capital Improvements Team Sunday at the Flying L Ranch course.

Each team member won a set of golfing woods.

Thirty-one four-person teams entered the tournament which earned more than $2,900 for construction of an all-weather running track and practice football field in Bandera. Philanthropist Albert Alkek said he would donate $1.50 for each $1 raised, so the tournament will add $7,750 to the facilities fund.

The team of Willard D'Spain, Bill Taylor, Ron Mercier and Barbara D'Spain was second, and each member won a golf bag.

Trip dePerier was closest to the pin on hole No. 2 and won a pair of barbecue dinners, Gary Quarles was closest on hole No. 7 and won a set of woods, and Louis DeBose was closest on hole No. 17 to win a dinner for two. Coach Sam Swierc made the longest drive on the first hole to win 12 golf balls.

The tournament which organizers hope to make an annual event, was jointly sponsored by the Medina Lake and Flying L golf associations and the Flying L Golf Course.

City pleads for water conservation

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

Bandera continues to be in the "yellow stage" of the city's water conservation plan, and this week mayor Raymond Adamietz and city public works director Melvin King urged residents to exercise voluntary water conservation measures and to curtail their use of water whenever possible.

If drought conditions continue, and the well level and pumping rate drops, the city could face "red stage" condition, which involves full scale water restriction, and even beyond.

"When we reach the point when we cannot supply enough for household use, then we go beyond the red stage," King said.

Under red stage conditions, water consumption would be limited to 300 gallons per day for each metered connection to the city water supply, and commercial use would be limited to no more than 10 percent of the normal water usage, with the exception of cafes, restaurants, sanitary facilities, commercial nurseries, florists and agricultural usage.

Bandera's pumping rate averages 347,000 gallons per day, according to King, and the city's well level was measured at about 80 feet nearly two weeks ago.

The most the city pumped on a single day last month was 476,600 gallons, King said.

The tape used to measure the city wells' water level has been broken, and for a time officials had been unable to locate a source to replace the piece of equipment, King said, but he said a steel measuring tape has been located, and should be in by this Thursday.

The steel tape slides down into the well, and allows an accurate reading to be taken on the actual level.

According to the city ordinance, limited restrictions apply when yellow stage is in effect. Use of ornamental fountains and waterfalls is restricted, and outdoor water use for non-commercial or non-agricultural use should be curtailed, the ordinance says.

Any person found in violation of the ordinance can be fined up to $100, it says.

"One of the biggest things that will help is to not water during the daytime," King said. "During the heat of the day you're losing between 1/4 and 1/3 of your water to evaporation, depending on the type of sprinkler you use," he said.

King said the type of sprinkler that produces bigger droplets is best, and that sprinklers that produce a fine mist cause much of the water to evaporate.

He recommended irrigating lawns after the supper hour, between 6 and 8 p.m., and before the breakfast hour, between 6 and 7 a.m. Any watering done after that time decreases efficiency, and causes more stress on the water table, King said.

Because the water table is dropping, some wells in the county have been going dry, and two weeks ago the Bandera River Ranch subdivision even had to go so far as to impose mandatory water rationing.

"Most wells in the county aren't as deep as the city well," King said. "Most of them are around 400 feet, and the city well is 800 feet deep."

He said the deeper well would continue to have water after the shallower wells would not produce any.

"Other cities are having the same problems, and some are worse," he said. "Kerrville is having to use surface water from the river to meet the demand."

Llano roper nips Bandera's Davis

Victory makes Woolman leading money-winner

Tee Woolman of Llano beat two-time world champion steer roper Jim Davis of Bandera by a scant one-tenth of a second to become the leading money winner of the sixth annual Cowboy Capital PRCA Rodeo in Bandera this weekend.

Woolman is also a two-time world champion, but in team roping, not steer roping.

The Llano cowboy won $1,391, including $795 for winning the steer roping event and $596 for finishing second in the first go-round. Davis won $398 on the first go-round, $199 in the second, and $596 for his second-place finish in average, a total of $1,193.

Two-time and reigning world champion, Shaun Burchett of Pryor, Okla., recorded the best time of 9.9 seconds in the first go-round but failed to place in the second.

Woolman's aggregate time of 23.0 seconds was only a tick faster than Davis' 23.1. Arnold Felts of Houston, also a world champion (1981), won third place overall in 23.6 seconds.

A fourth world champion in the field, Guy Allen of Lovington, N.M., who won world titles in 1977, 1980, 1982 and 1984 and is the leading money winner in 1989, won the second go-round in 10.0 but failed to place in the first set or in the average.

Other winners in the weekend rodeo included Day Lackey, who won $791 in bull riding; Johnnie Phillipp and Jacky Stephenson, who did their team roping in 5 seconds flat to win $673 each; Johnny Powell, who roped a calf in 9.9 seconds and won $912; Legs Stevenson, who won $465 in bareback bronc riding; Nonnie Cornett, who wrestled a steer to the ground in 4.3 seconds and won $958; Kevin Browning, who won $396 in saddle bronc riding; and Corley Cox, who won the barrel race and $454 in 17.48 seconds.

July jobless rate here down slightly

By William Wall
Bulletin Austin Bureau

Austin — The July employment rate in Bandera County declined by three-tenths of one percent from June, according to figures released last week by the Texas Employment Commission.

The monthly Texas Labor Market Analysis reported Bandera County's jobless rate for July to be 6.7 percent, down from June's 7 percent. The rate in July 1988 was [illegible] percent.

"The July numbers for Bandera County showed a slight improvement in the local labor market, compared to June," said Diane Dobie, employment commission labor market analyst. "There was also some improvement compared to July 1988, so there is some positive news."

The statewide unemployment rate for July was 7.3 percent, a two-tenths of one percent monthly increase. Texas' jobless rate in [illegible] percent.

The latest report showed that [illegible] reported increases in the July [illegible] rate.

Kerr County's rate increased by 1.4 percent, to 4.3 percent, and Uvalde County reported a 1.1 percent hike to 10.1 percent.

Kendall County (Boerne) recorded a seven-tenth of one percent decrease to 1.8 percent. Real County had a two-tenths of one percent hike to 4.9 percent, and Medina County recorded a two-tenths of one percent increase to 6.5 percent.

Commission statistics indicate that 3,203 persons in the Bandera County civilian labor force were 4,031. The county's total work [illegible] July 1988 figures showed the county's total work force to be 4,190, with 3,985 employed.

The statewide statistics for July showed 7.8 million persons employed out of a total civilian work force of 8.4 million. In June, 7.7 million persons were employed in Texas out of 8.3 million.

Figures from last July showed 7.9 million persons employed out of [illegible] million.

"[illegible] sluggishness in the state economy [illegible] enough to keep up with the demand."

No tax-rate increase needed for budget

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Bandera County Commissioners will review and adopt the county's 1989-90 $2.85 million budget Friday, Sept. 8, at 5 p.m. and will adopt a 28.84 cents per $100 valuation tax rate at 6 p.m. the same day.

County citizens will see a property tax rate of 28.84 cents per $100 property valuation on their tax bills due out Oct. 1 if commissioners vote the tax rate Friday, says Bandera County Tax Assessor-Collector Marguerite Stevens.

On taxpayers' bills, there will be a 24.28 cent county ad valorem tax, 3.78 cent county special ad valorem road tax, 1.64 cent road district tax, and 1.14 cent road bond tax, resulting in an overall county tax rate of 28.84 cents, she says.

The county ad valorem tax is expected to generate $1,164,644, some 9.3 percent more than last year's $1,065,891 revenue, when the tax rate was a higher 29.95 cents per $100 valuation.

More revenue is generated on a lower tax rate because the taxable value in the county is $521,333,263 this year, up from $509,756,000 last year.

The county special tax pays for road bonds that were used to acquire the right of ways on state highways, farm-to-market roads, and Park Road 37 and will generate $183,887 in revenue.

The road bond tax is used to pay off bonds that were used to make repairs to roads. This amount will be $55,358.

The road district tax goes directly into the road and bridge fund which is used by commissioners to pay for county road

River Authority to promote reorganized water district

The Bandera County River Authority board of directors Tuesday, Sept. 5, ordered a confirmation election for the newly-legislated Springhills Water Management District and will promote its passage at a public meeting Thursday, Sept. 14.

The river authority board members, who are automatically candidates for the new underground and surface water district board of directors, ordered the election for county voters to affirm the creation of the district to appear on the Nov. 7 general election ballot pending final approval from the U.S. Justice Department.

The board will make its first presentation for creation of the underground and surface water district Thursday, Sept. 14, beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the old Bandera County jail building.

Also at the Sept. 14 meeting, board members will explain how interested citizens can have their names placed on the ballot for the election of initial directors, also on the Nov. 7 ballot.

Other river authority business may also be conducted at the meeting.

By Charlie Reese

The following was found in the Northwest Florida Daily News (yes, I was down there). This Charlie Reese makes more sense pertaining to guns than anyone I've heard about since the subject came up. — Louis F. Postert, Bandera.

Let's get down to basics. The primary function of government is to protect citizens from assault and pillaging by criminals. How well do our expensive governments perform this function?

In 1987, the latest year for which statistics are available, 20,096 Americans were murdered; 91,111 women were raped; 517,704 people or businesses were robbed; 3,236,184 homes and businesses were burglarized; and 855,088 Americans were victims of aggravated assault — assault serious enough to inflict grave bodily injury and to threaten death.

One way to look at these crimes is to understand that as they were being committed, no police officers were present to prevent them. Theory notwithstanding, when these thousands of citizens needed the protection of their government, it was not there....

This is the proper context in which to view the issue of people's right to bear arms. People are purchasing firearms for the same reason they have created a new and growing industry of private security and alarms systems.

Government is not doing its job of protecting the people and their property. We don't have a gun problem. We have a government problem....

The reason I get so angry at gun-control proposals is because they reveal their proponents to be liars and demagogues. If they would address the problems of a failed criminal justice system, no one would feel a need to buy a gun except for hunting or recreation. Nor would people have to invest their money in locks and electronic security devices. Government ain't cheap. But we are not getting our money's worth.

We have reached a point where the court system is operated for the convenience of lawyers; the prisons for the convenience of the administrators. Neither the bureaucracies nor the elected officials show much concern for real flesh and blood people. It's only the people no one gives a damn about in our society.

If government is going to perpetuate its failures, not only in the criminal justice system but in public education and public welfare, then at least don't interfere with people who try to look out for themselves....

The difference between these demagogic politicians and the criminals they refuse to deal with is small indeed measured in morality.

Illegal use of contributions may doom proposed pay hike

Even veteran Capitol operatives were shocked last week by reports that some lawmakers have used political donations to pay mortgages, buy cars and planes, and support their private businesses.

This revelation, at the end of a summer marked by weekly reports of questionable financial dealings by several state officials, may well doom passage of a constitutional amendment which would increase salaries for lawmakers.

More than that, as the public's image of a "legislature for sale" grows, it's only natural for politicos to wonder if a clean house sentiment is brewing among voters.

The law says political funds are not to be commingled with or laundered for personal or private use.

The House promptly convened a committee to study whether a new law is needed to limit lobbyists' gifts and other political contributions.

Political gifts from persons wanting to do business with state officials has always been a part of Texas politics. Most frown on it, many excuse it, some abuse it.

The public perception is that such funds were always used in election campaigns.

Not so today. Some of the reported uses of political contributions include:

- State Sen. Bill Haley illegally loaned his nursing home business $15,000 from his campaign fund, and also lived in a lobbyists's Capitol-view condo for seven months before paying rent.
- Speaker Pro Tem Hugo Berlanga and state Sens. John Montford, Hugh Parmer and Eddie Bernice Johnson all used political funds to pay mortgages on Austin homes and condos.
- State Rep. Stan Schlueter has regularly drawn $9,000 monthly from political funds for what he says is legislative business expenses — an apartment, two private club memberships, plus more than $53,000 spent on his private plane.
- Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's political fund draws $98,000 interest; Speaker Gib Lewis paid $176,850 income tax on his. The amounts of those balances were not reported.
- State Sen. Chet Brooks paid his one-man advertising agency $30,000 from political donations to pay for his work for the '88 Dukakis-Bentsen campaign, though he admitted the campaign did not hire the Brooks Agency.

So far, Haley is the only one to admit to an illegality, one he said was made mistakenly, not deliberately, and he repaid the loan with interest. As to whether these and other revelations offend the public sense of propriety, only time will tell.

Campaign Heating Up

Democrat Ann Richards sailed her gubernatorial campaign up the Intracoastal Canal on a 60-ft. yacht, calling it a first-hand look at the needs and problems of the Gulf Coast.

She also became the first Democratic hopeful to address the tax issue, saying the sales tax will have to be broadened to keep Texas afloat, but opposing a state income tax.

Along the way:

- Richards said the state was ill-prepared to contain and clean up massive oil spills.
- The Coast Guard charged that the Asian-made yacht was chartered without a license, was the subject of a license hearing last year and faces another this year.
- Republican opponent Kent Hance sent Richards a life preserver and a message that her liberal tax-hike philosophy will sink the state. Hance's campaign sent back a snorkel and mask, saying Hance "is in over his head with Democrat taxes."

Candidate List Grows

The general: State Sen. Buster Brown of Lake Jackson and state Rep. Pat Hill of Dallas.

State Capitol

Highlights

By Lyndell Williams

Both blasted incumbent Jim Mattox for politicizing the AG's office.

Brown vowed a war on drugs, but Hill said that since Brown voted for an AG retirement increase, he may be ineligible.

Steel Imports Questioned

Congressman John Bryant, D—Dallas, a candidate for attorney general, asked feds to investigate whether two U.S. companies can import South African steel for use in a 4,100 foot bridge over the Houston Ship Channel.

The bridge is a state highway project and may be partially funded by federal dollars. Bryant wants to know if the importation violates the Anti-Apartheid Act of 1988.

Other Highlights

- The highway commission approved widespread, random drug and alcohol testing for probably 75 percent of its 11,000 employees.
- A state district judge refused to dismiss a lawsuit filed by several counties against the state for failing to transfer convicted felons from county jails to state prison.
- The state prison system is under federal court order not to overcrowd prisons, but the bottleneck has proven expensive to county governments, which must pay for additional local jail costs.

He'll be missed, too

Dear editor:

I want to thank my co-workers and friends for the party given to me upon my retirement from the (Bandera County) Sheriff's Department, and I want to especially thank those who were responsible for putting it all together. It was great.

I also want to thank Nick Johnson and The Bulletin staff for the professional working relationship we have had while I was employed at the Sheriff's Department.

I will miss the association I have had with my co-workers, The Bulletin staff, and the multitude of Bandera County citizens with whom I have become friends. I will miss every on of you.

Rock house of words

Dear editor:

Hurrah! As a library "bum," I would like to congratulate The Bulletin for featuring a column concerning the literary efforts of the Bandera County Library (The Bookshelf).

As a former teacher for the Medina Independent School District, I felt it was important for my students to know the local library as well as they might know the grocery or video store and to know that the library was a fun place to visit. From my experience, the library staff has worked diligently to provide a fine children's section, the latest national best sellers, and, if they do not have the book you want, they will do their best to get it for you.

You really have a gem in that wonderful "rock house of words" on Main Street, so go on down and get a library card. Hey, it doesn't cost a penny.

Bandera County

potpourri

By Nick Johnson

Bungy Grant passed me a book review from the Christian Science Monitor that assessed the social value of a variety of books with titles that each started out like the other. There was "The Letters of T.S. Eliot" and "The Letters of Max Beerbohm." And "The Correspondence of Stephen Crane" and "Selected Correspondence of...," but you get the picture.

The review was memorable not so much for the author's erudite view on these lofty titles, but for a thought he expressed that struck a responsive note with me.

"Like so many other spoiled children of technology, I don't seem to have the time to write letters," the reviewer wrote. "Heaven knows what we're all so busy doing: churning our own butter? building log cabins? working 60-hour weeks in sweatshops?"

- I didn't have the chance to get out much over the weekend, but from the few opportunities I had to observe the crowds in local shops, I think Bandera needs the Texas Hospitality training program for the tourism and service industry that is being conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The program offers separate, one-day training sessions for managers and for employees, teaching them, in short, to be "Texas friendly."

Among the items the program emphasizes is knowing your own community, says spokeswoman Susanna Coppernoll. "Many service providers are unfamiliar with historical attractions or amenities available in their own city," she says.

Tell me about it.

- That uneasy feeling you have may be traced to the fact that hundreds of new state laws went into effect on Sept. 1, and for all you know you may be violating half of them.

For example, it is now illegal to sell tobacco products, including the chewing kind, to persons under the age of 18. For 90 years, purchase of tobacco has been legal for customers as young as 16 years of age.

- None of the 38 regional criminal justice grants funded by the governor for 1990 are for projects in Bandera County.

Among those that made the list, however, were salaries for police officers in Converse, Leon Valley, Live Oak, New Braunfels, Boerne and Hondo.

Medina man injured in PC accident

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

A Medina resident was injured Saturday, Sept. 2, when the van he was driving flipped over after he sped around a curve south of Pipe Creek.

John McGillis Frechette, 50, was apparently thrown from his 1981 white Chevrolet van after it skidded across State Highway 16, just missing at least one car in the opposite lane of traffic, and crashed through a fence on the opposite side of the highway.

Frechette apparently had been drinking and was not wearing a seat belt, reports investigating Department of Public Safety trooper Nolan Metz.

Frechette, the sole occupant of the van, was proceeding west on State Highway 16 south of Pipe Creek when witnesses say he came around the curve in front of Freedom Springs Ranch "at an unsafe speed," reports Metz.

From the marks in the gravel, Frechette's vehicle drove just inches from the guardrail in the westbound curve, possibly scraping the guardrail, and after the guardrail ended, ran off the right side of the road.

Frechette overcompensated to the left and lost control of his vehicle and skidded completely across the roadway, says Metz. There were vehicles coming from both directions and one witness said Frechette just missed his vehicle.

Frechette hit the embankment on the eastbound side of the road, flipped, and crashed through a fence. The van landed sideways against oak trees on the property of Raymond and LB Smith, after apparently sliding on its side.

Frechette was taken to Wilford Hall Medical Center in San Antonio by Pipe Creek EMS.

Frechette is a double amputee and retired military.

Charles Newcomer, who owns the property next to Smith's, said this is the third accident at this curve in recent memory, citing two other accidents in the last two years that had westbound vehicles coming through his fence or Smith's.

Newcomer also recalls a recent early morning incident when a westbound vehicle cut across the eastbound lane, ran off onto the left side of the road, like the previous two accidents, but this time stopped just feet from two large oak trees located outside of the fence that surely would have spelled disaster for whoever was driving the car.

There is no sign on the highway indicating there is a curve or at what speed to take the curve.

Frechette, a retired Air Force sergeant, was admitted to Wilford Hall Medical Center and is in good condition as of Tuesday, Sept. 5, reports spokesman George Kelly. No other details were provided.

The address of Medina was taken from the driver's license, reports Metz.

In other automobile accidents, one vehicle rear-ended another stopped at a stop sign at the intersection of State Highway 16 and State Highway 46. No injuries were reported and damage was estimated below $250 in the Sunday afternoon incident.

Trauma course planned for EMTs Sept. 8-10

A basic trauma life support course will be taught to Bandera County EMTs Sept. 8-10, telling them how to make the most of the "Golden Hour" to get accident and other trauma victims to the care they need in time.

Most of the skills taught to EMTs are included in the course, so new skills will not necessarily be learned. Rather, the course puts all the techniques together so an EMT can execute them faster in order to help save a traumatized victim's life. "When EMTs are trained, they receive training in different fields. This course gets you (EMTs) organized and thinking in a pattern of life-saving in a trauma situation," says Bandera EMT Linda Cook.

Trauma victims need to be in surgery within one hour, the "Golden Hour," says Pipe Creek paramedic Jon Story. "There is a 45 percent reduction in mortality when the system works," he emphasizes.

It is difficult to get patients to the hospital in one hour, as EMTs must be summoned, get to the scene, get the patient stabilized, and take the patient to the hospital.

It takes anywhere from two to six minutes for EMTs to get to the ambulance, a varying time to get to the scene, time to get the patient out of the vehicle or situation, 10 minutes to stabilize the patient, and 30 to 35 minutes to drive to the hospital, consuming almost all 60 minutes in the hour.

While in the ambulance, EMTs can determine the patient's condition and call ahead.

maintenance in the precincts. This will be $80,139.

However, commissioners will have up to a total of $639,576 to maintain county roads and bridges in the budget year that begins Oct. 1.

The other funds come from motor vehicle license fees expected to generate $332,900, some 52 percent of the precinct budgets.

Motor vehicle licenses fees will generate $85,000, thanks to an increase passed by commissioners from a county charge of $5 per new or renewed license to $10 charge, in addition to the $30-plus the state gets per license.

Approximately two-thirds of the county special ad valorem road tax, $183,887, not used to pay for bonds is also used in the precinct budgets.

Other funds from for the precinct budgets come from lateral road funds from the state, $17,272.

Other income, not specific to the precinct budget includes the county sales tax, paid when anyone buys a sales taxable item in the county, which will generate $104,538, estimates the state comptroller's office.

Other income is from fees of offices, $246,360; fines, forfeitures, and restitution, $79,000; ambulance fees, $80,000; license and permit fees $15,500; and interest earned on funds invested, $40,808; along with other income sources, bringing the total county income level to $2,573,930.

Some other $204,897 comes from funds budgeted for 1988-89, but not spent and are carried over into 1989-90. This includes $150,000 in the general fund, $70,000 in the indigent health care fund, and $13,840 in the juvenile probation fund.

This results in a total county income of $2,841,230, still $12,545 short of the proposed budget of $2,853,775, which will require some adjusting of the budget before Friday to compensate for the difference.

The $2,853,775 proposed budget is a 14.9 percent increase over the 1988-89 $2,483,921 budget.

After the $639,576 precinct budgets that take 22 percent of the county budget, comes the sheriff's department in budget size, with a $397,946 chunk, or 14 percent of the county budget.

Other large expenditures are the ambulance services, which has a $127,855, of which $80,000 is expected to come from patients who pay their bills, leaving $47,855 to be picked up by the taxpayers.

Co-op to accelerate its line-removal program

Electric lines and meters at 1,700 residential and business sites that have not been used in over a year will be removed by the Bandera Electric Cooperative in an accelerated program to return co-op-owned items to their inventory.

Some of the sites that will be disconnected have been idle for years, but any that are disconnected will have been idle for at least one year, says member service coordinator Dennis Winwright.

The co-op has been removing idle services as a matter of standard operating procedures, but now it is accelerating the removal because of a need to return the electrical items to inventory. "Elimination of these idle facilities will reduce the cooperative's maintenance costs and provide needed materials for construction of new service lines," says Winwright.

Reinstallation of service after the equipment is removed varies from $200 to several thousand dollars. "Once a line is removed, reinstallation will only be in accordance with the cooperative's line extension policy as filed with the Public Utility Commission of Texas," says Winwright.

To keep the electric service at the idle site before the equipment is removed, the customer will have to have the power restored.

The cooperative started the accelerated policy during the middle of August and it will continue on an "as time permits basis," says Winwright.

"When the services are dismantled, meter loops and other non-cooperative owned fixtures located on service poles will be removed and left on location," says Winwright.

The cooperative covers all of Bandera county, and parts of Kerr, Kendall, Medina, Uvalde, Bexar and Real counties.

Medina-area cypress tree declared largest in county

A bald cypress tree, taxodium distichum, growing on the ranch of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Watkins on the Medina River off Highway 16 north of Medina is the biggest tree on the list of six submitted from Bandera County to the Texas Forest Extension Service big tree contest to meet the Aug. 1 deadline.

Measurements of five other county trees were sent to Dr. Michael A. Walterscheid of Texas A&M University by Peggy Tobin of the Bandera County Historical Commission. County commission chairmen around the state had been asked to receive and forward local nominations in the contest.

Carleton Keller's giant live-oak tree on the old Blakeney Ranch on Privilege Creek proved to be the largest of its species submitted in the contest and placed second over all.

Other trees listed were Doris Stuehm's century-old bois d'arc at Pipe Creek, Karen and Jay Hoskelis's escarpment black cherry on Mason Creek, Charles Goodenough's cedar elm in Lawson Creek Valley above Medina, and Robin Shaw's native pecan growing on the river on the Shaw Ranch near Ranger Crossing.

"We're sure there are other trees in all the categories which could be bigger than those named, but we had to be dependent on the owners or admirers of given trees taking responsibility of obtaining and filling out the necessary forms by the date set by the Forest Service," Tobin said.

Thanking the Bandera Bulletin for giving the contest excellent publicity, Tobin also mentioned the cooperation and interest shown by members of Bandera Chapter Native Plant Society of Texas, in seeking out and documenting noteworthy trees, especially Larry Williams and Jay Edwards.

With the society interested in making an inventory of outstanding or rare botanical specimens in the area, anyone with such specimens should report them to Tobin or NPSOT president, Jimmie Maxwell of Pipe Creek.

Official recognition of trees in the current contest will be given in connection with Arbor Day in 1990. Award certificates are to be issued by the Tree Awareness Committee of the Texas Forest Extension Service, according to information received from that office.

Adult classes set

GED, adult basic education, and English as a second language classes will resume Tuesday, Sept. 12, at the Bandera County Library.

GED and basic education classes will be on Tuesday and Thursday from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. and English classes are on four nights a week, Monday through Thursday from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Students in GED and basic education classes advance at their own pace and have the support not only of the instructor, but also of other students, and they have available materials, including learn-to-read video cassettes for individual study, says library director Dr. Jimmie Hughey.

There are no fees for any of the classes and materials are provided free by the library.

Lawmen report average week

Bandera County Sheriff's office reported 43 calls last week, including three major accidents, two burglaries, five thefts and three fires, an about-average week for lawmen.

A search by a department of public safety trooper and Bandera County sheriff's deputies and reserves failed to find an injured person reported four miles north of Utopia on State Highway 470 late Saturday night.

Several patrol cars searched along the highways in the southwestern part of the county for an injured person Utopia EMS was sent to aid, but the reportedly injured person was never found. The search was hampered in part by a confusing location description, deputies said.

A 1985 Chevrolet Camaro, reportedly stolen in San Antonio April 10, was found in the early morning hours Monday totally destroyed by fire off FM Road 1283 by Red Bluff Creek.

A sheriff's deputy noticed the car at 7:30 a.m. Sept. 3 and found the car still smoldering around the steering column after apparently having been burned earlier that morning at the site.

The vehicle was found up on cinder blocks and was declared a total loss. The tires were gone, but the radio and battery were still in the car, according to a report from the sheriff's office. The seats may have also been missing.

The sheriff's department recovered a tire changing tool for fingerprinting.

There was no report of the fire during the night, but a neighbor reports his dogs were barking at 3 a.m.

Two cars were reported doing "donuts" in front of Pipe Creek Junction Cafe and the drivers reportedly came into the cafe harassing customers Sunday evening.

The vehicles took off down FM Road 1283, according to eyewitnesses.

Three suspects were detained in an early morning burglary Monday in Lakehills.

Constable Ernest Reich apprehended three male suspects after 5:30 a.m. Monday, Sept. 4, who were driving a car along Park Road 37. After receiving the report of the just-completed burglary, Reich reportedly noticed an vehicle unknown to the area and stopped it because of damage to the suspect's car.

A witness reported hearing suspicious activity about 5:30 a.m. at the Viking Liquor Store in Heisler Square in Lakehills. The woman said she saw a person break the front plate-glass window of the store, according to a report from the sheriff's office.

Reich found whiskey, apparently from the store, and beer of unknown origin in the car.

"We need more people (like the woman Monday morning) to report suspicious activity so the system will work," says Bandera County Sheriff R.S. "Steve" Forest.

Arrested were Anthony Martinez, 18; Chris Perez, 18; and a 16-year-old, all of San Antonio.

Todd Ricks, 23, of Blessing, was arrested Sept. 2 and charged with burglary of a habitation.

Patrick McKenney, 41, of Medina, was arrested Sept. 2 and charged with injury to his spouse.

Ruben Garza, 32, of Bandera, and James Miller, 36, of Santa Fe, were both arrested Sept. 3 and charged with assault.

Karen Bailey and Janice Saunders, both of Medina, reported burglaries Aug. 30.

Bailey reported a VCR, valued at $300 stolen, and Saunders reported gold earrings, valued at $150, stolen.

Mike Hess reported his residence was broken into Aug. 30, and a clock radio and a bottle of whiskey stolen.

Setting it straight

In the Aug. 3 issue of the Bandera Bulletin, a meeting planned for Aug. 9 to discuss incorporation issues for Lakehills East had actually been held Aug. 2 as part of the Pebble Beach Property Owners Association meeting.

In the same article, the Bulletin quoted Richard Osgood as saying the waterfront in the Pebble Beach subdivision is worth $100,000 per 50 feet, when he meant that the land is only worth that much if there is a house on the property.

Local stunt man in TV western

Max Konz was in Flying L Ranch show

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

Feeling somewhat like "a grown-up playing cowboys and [illegible] local stunt man and aspiring actor Max Konz may well be on his way to stardom, with a little help from a few friends.

Konz, who spent part of the summer working in a wild west show at a local dude ranch, was back in the area Tuesday after about six weeks in Arizona working as a stunt man.

The show, which played at the Flying L Ranch this summer, featured Rudy Robbins, Dusty Britches and his band, Konz and stunt man Hagan Savage.

Konz and Savage came to Bandera to study stunts under Dean Dawson of Ft. Worth and Robbins. Konz first came to Bandera in 1984.

"I liked it so much that I moved here," he said. "I'd like to stay in Bandera. Here, people know you, and say, 'hi' to you on the street."

Production on the movie he originally traveled to Arizona to work in has been postponed, but while he was there he did some work on a series called "Young Riders," a western series about pony express riders, which he said will start on the Fox network (locally channel 35) in late September.

The movie he traveled to work on, tentatively called "Body Parts," is a "modern day cop movie, about good cops and bad cops," according to Konz.

"I think he is going to be a star," said director Ben Navarro Tuesday. "He's talented."

Konz was scheduled to do some stunts in the movie, and had also hoped to have a small speaking role, which would help him attain a coveted Screen Actors Guild card.

"That's been the big hold up. It's a kind of Catch 22," Konz said. "They can't hire you to do a stunt unless you have (the card), and you have to do a stunt to get it."

This week, he leaves to join Lenny Dee's Wild West Show, part of a children's festival sponsored by Fox network and USA Expos. The show's tour will include St. Paul, Cleveland and Phoenix. At this point he is unsure how the show will be marketed on television.

Konz said he liked to do "stunt" type activities with motorcycles and cars in his high school days in San Antonio, and when he saw a show about stunts, he decided that he would like to pursue it as a career.

He said he likes stunt work because it's "something different all the time."

"It's great to get paid for doing stuff you'd normally get in trouble for doing," he said, with a laugh.

"Sheriff" Dusty Britches urges "deputy" Max Konz to perform his duty as a lawman in the Flying L Wild West Show.

Utopia school eyes 60.9-cent tax rate

Utopia ISD board of trustees unanimously approved the school budget for 1989-90 following a public hearing Monday, Aug. 28.

There were no visitors present for the hearing, and the board reviewed the long range plan for school improvement along with the budget proposal.

Line items specifically studied included the proposed revenues from state and local sources, instructional repair and an updated computer laboratory.

Proposed revenue figures revealed a slight increase in state per capita and foundation funds for the year. As well, tax revenue collection will be up about 7.3 percent, according to superintendent John McFadin.

Expenditure increases were apparent in instructional salaries and the computer lab capital improvement project. There was a slight decrease in federal vocational and special population funds.

The debt service fund revealed that revenues on invested public land funds would be sufficient to continue the payment of bonds without a debt service tax levy.

The board will vote on a tax rate increase Sept. 11. The proposal under consideration will increase tax levy collections by $31,000, and taxes will rise 6.9 cents per $100 value to a 60.9 cent rate.

Promoted

Marine Jerry L. Self, son-in-law of Larenzo Ybarra of Bandera, has been promoted to corporal while serving at the Marine Corps Air Station, Yuma, Ariz.

Cpl. Self's wife is the former Leticia Ybarra of Bandera.

Bob Wegner of Houston ropes his mechanical steer, "Skamper" from his mechanical horse, "Mr. Higley," in downtown Bandera Saturday, Sept. 2. The horse is powered by a small gasoline engine which also generates electricity to run the steer. The horse does about five MPH and with the 30-foot extension cord on the steer, this mechanical duo can be used to practice roping as well as to entertain.

Mechanical calf roping debuts

A prototype full-size mechanical horse, powered by a go-cart engine, and a mechanical electric steer suitable for roping, was demonstrated for the first time Labor Day weekend at the Bandera Forge.

Bob Wegner of Houston brought his invention, patent pending, to Bandera during the Cowboy Capital PRCA rodeo to show it to his friends at the Bandera Forge, drive it down Main Street, and to get some local opinion on what looks like an overgrown kiddie-ride the first time you see it.

The full-size model horse, call "Mr. Higley," is mounted on a wood-covered metal frame, complete with wheels, gasoline engine, and electric generator. The saddled horse runs about five mph and bobs up and down. "Feels just like a live horse," says Wegner.

A metal steer compliments the non-hayburning mechanical contrivance by providing a practice target for roping. The metal steer has an electric engine and is powered from the horse's engine through a 30 foot extension cord so the steer can put some distance between itself and the horse. The steer goes about four mph and is remote controlled by the horse rider.

The steer, named "Skamper," kicks when it's operating, and when a thrown rope is pulled taut around its head, its head rears back. Wegner says this makes it an ideal tool for teaching steer roping because, "It does the things a steer does."

Other uses beyond rodeo-beginners practice and the obvious entertainment value, is to direct traffic at event parking, especially at rodeos and stock shows. The riders will easily be able to see over cars and will be easily seen, he says.

Another use is golf carts. He plans to build a model that will have a place to keep the clubs. "You're up higher and you'll be able to find your ball faster," he comments.

But back to cowboys. Wegner says he could also build a bucking bronc on the same principal as his horse and steer as another cowboy practice device.

In the next model, he plans to put in a bigger engine, such as a motorcycle, and make it quieter. Then the rest, well it could be a new era of the iron horse.

Lake Area

Medina Lake VFD barbecue feeds 1200

Medina Lake Volunteer Fire Department firefighters and auxiliary members put on the feed this weekend, serving almost 1,200 friends, neighbors, and lake-area visitors for their fall benefit, but the big event of the day was the cutting of department vice-president Randy Pott's pigtail.

Some $205.02 was raised when Potts was challenged to cut the foot-long, braided pony-tail he's been growing for the past two years.

Department president Marion Heisler got the honors with the scissors as the big donor in what he jokingly called an effort to "improve the image of the fire department."

But before Heisler got to snip the young man's coiffure, fire fighters blindfolded him and brought out a tin-snips, metal snips and chain saw.

"I regret I have one (pigtail to donate for my county," Pots told the crowd.

But fun and games weren't all that was going on in Lakehills. Firefighters cooked up some 1,640 pounds of beef brisket and 100 pounds of beans, reports fire chief Ralph Dresser.

Some 1,197 plates of barbecue and the trimmings were sold, of which 109 plates were for children, reports department treasurer Bill Mooney.

The auxiliary and friends from the community prepared some 400 pounds of potatoes for salad and sliced 115 pounds of onions along with beets and other trimmings.

"We had about 25 ladies from the auxiliary and the community on both work days to prepare for the barbecue," reports auxiliary president Dolly Dresser. "We really appreciated all the women from the community that assisted on the workdays," she says.

The heat proved to be too much for one barbecue attendee at the barbecue, however. A woman with a known medical condition fainted while attending the barbecue Sunday.

Dresser said, "Talk about response time. There were eight EMTs, two paramedics, one registered nurse, numerous firefighters with oxygen available, and an ambulance," all on the scene.

Heisler told the crowd that gathered for the raffle at the end of the day Sunday, that this would be the last barbecue in the old main firehouse and the spring barbecue will be held in the new central firehouse located closer to the Park Road 37 and FM Road 1283.

Guy Pickett, right, holds up a foot-long ponytail just cut by Medina Lake Volunteer Fire Department president Marion Heisler from department vice president Randy Potts' length of hair as part of a fundraising effort. The Medina Lake Volunteer Fire Department got $200 in donations to get Potts to sacrifice his growth of hair at their fall barbecue.

Cleo Taylor was one of many volunteers who served cake, pie, homemade bread and other baked items to barbecue goers, such as Alice Rettko and son, Henry, 3, at the Medina Lake Volunteer Fire Department fall barbecue Sept. 2-3.

Medina Lake VFD responds, assists

Medina Lake Volunteer Fire Department responded to four fires and assisted other departments three times in the past month.

The lake-area firefighters put out an afternoon grass fire at the Pebble Beach Unit II subdivision Aug. 9 and a brush fire about 1 p.m. Aug. 21 off Blue Bell Cove.

The Aug. 21 fire was very inaccessible and fire chief Ralph Dresser said firefighters had to drive extra distance to get to the fire.

The department also responded to two early morning vehicle fires. On Aug. 15, firefighters put out an engine fire in a 1988 Chevy pickup on FM Road 1283 at 1:20 a.m., and Sept. 1 they doused a fuel fire in a truck on Park Road 37 about 6:55 a.m.

Medina Lake VFD assisted the Pipe Creek VFD Aug. 10 by sending five trucks to a Medina River Ranch structure fire while some of Pipe Creek a truck were battling a brush fire.

The lake-area volunteers also assisted Pipe Creek with a grass fire in Medina River Ranch Aug. 27 and were headed to a grass fire on State Highway 173 North, but were turned back.

The lodge has several pounds ordered to make sandwiches for the Sept. 30 event.

Taco breakfast

A taco breakfast will be served Sunday, Sept. 10, and again Sept. 24 at the Hermann Sons Lodge No. 81 in Lakehills.

The breakfast will start at 8 a.m. and egg tacos, egg and bacon or sausage, and carne guisada tacos will be served ranging in price from $1 to $1.50, says spokeswoman Frances Garren.

Pickett elected

Marie Pickett was elected president of the Lakehills EMS Support Team Thursday, Aug. 31.

Mary Biederman was re-elected secretary-treasurer. Both will serve two-year terms.

Nancy Oehler, previous president, chose not to run.

Nancy MacMillan was elected to the organization's board of directors, filling the one year still remaining on Pickett's term on the board.

Auxiliary to elect

The Medina Lake Volunteer Fire Department Auxiliary will elect officers at its regular meeting Sept. 11.

The 10 a.m. meeting will be held at Eleanor Laue's home on George's Road, announces organization president Dolly Dresser.

Up for election and re-election are Dresser, president; Dorothy Altorre, vice president; Gwen Aue, secretary; and June Stellemeyer, treasurer.

Nominations will be received from the floor, as long as the nominator has prior consent from the nominee, says Dresser.

WE'D LIKE YOU TO RESERVE THE WEEK OF SEPTEMBER 17th FOR A MIRACLE.
George Washington said its creation was "little short of a miracle." James Madison said, "It is impossible for the man of pious reflection not to perceive in it a finger of that Almighty hand," when describing the process that created it.
Washington and Madison were commenting on nothing less than the document that created our government: The Constitution of the United States. The Constitution is the foundation of our country and the means by which we achieve the rule of law and protect our freedom.
The week of September 17th is Constitution Week. Many libraries will have displays and information on this incredible document.
Why not take a look at it. After all, it isn't often you can hold a miracle in your hands.

Day, Mayfield wed in Bandera

Joley Suzanne Day and Mark Howard Mayfield were married Saturday, Aug. 5, at St. Stanislaus Catholic Church in Bandera with the Rev. John Matocha officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred O. Day and the groom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Mayfield of Pipe Creek.

Maid of honor was Shanon Spaulding and best man of David Erfurt. Matron of honor was Freda Keuten, sister of the bride, and bridesmaids were Brenda Newcomer and Trish Zaborski. Groomsmen were Wade Mayfield, brother of the groom, and Charles Newcomer and Steven Langner.

Following the ceremony, the entire wedding party went on a hayride to Mansfield Park, where a reception was held.

The couple will reside in Pipe Creek.

Basic self-defense course to be offered Sept. 23

A "hands on" self-defense seminar featuring a Kerrville tae kwon do instructor will be offered to both men and women in the Bandera area Saturday, Sept. 23,at 9:30 a.m. at the Bandera High School gymnasium.

Gary Ploch, who has his own tae kwon do academy in Kerrville, will teach the course, which is a shortened version of a more comprehensive course offered by the academy.

"We wanted to keep the course brief, but at the same time insure that those attending the seminar walk away with basic skills that could be put to immediate use, if necessary," says Gail Stone, spokeswoman for the Bandera County Board of Realtors, which is sponsoring the course.

"Although physical assault is considered a rarity in a small community such as Bandera, it only takes one incident to personalize the threat of physical or emotional injury," said Stone.

"Our goal is to provide a service to the community by making this course available at a minimal expense of both time and money," Stone said.

The 2½-hour course, offered as one of the Realtor board's community service projects, costs $15. Pre-registration begins Monday, Sept. 11, at any real estate agent displaying the "R" logo of the Association of Realtors, Stone said.

Class size is limited, Stone said.

"We encourage high school juniors and seniors, 16 years of age and older, to attend and become proficient in these lifetime skills," said Stone. She said those attending the seminar should be in good physical condition and wear loose, comfortable clothing.

Stone may be contacted in Bandera at 796-3517.

There was a parade in the morning to kick things off, then almost 1,000 folks, including Bandera County Judge Ray Mauer, were served mouth-watering barbecued brisket with all the trimmings. Dusty Britches and the Rhythm Ranchhands were on hand to entertain during the afternoon. Lots of visiting took place, and other activities included dancing, a drawing, and an auction.

Nevermind the people population. I wonder what the horse population of Bandera was this past weekend?

Everywhere you looked, hauled horses were crossing paths—some going to the race track, some to the rodeo arena, some on trail rides, and others to the parade.

Pat Halpen and Jack Lawrence did it again, bringing over 200 trail riders to town to add flavor to the parade. They camped down on the river, and as usual, it offered Cowboy Capital flavor for the other tourists in town for the big weekend.

• Ann Ruthven pulled onto Main Street Friday only to find a policeman following her, a puzzling circumstance since she hadn't done anything wrong. She pulled over to the road side and got out of her car. The policeman also got out of his car, and said in a calm voice, "Excuse me, but did you know you have a cat on your roof?"

• Dick Peterson reports that someone asked the "good ol' boys" having coffee at the OST why the chicken went to the middle of the road—and stayed.

"She wanted to 'lay it on the line'," was the explanation.

Top Hands Styling Salon is going all out for the western feel with old barn wood walls and cowboy decor. Sue Sides and Cookie Standard are in charge of the business that's in the former site of the Wagon Wheel package store.

A new carpet store has opened on one side of True Value Hardware.

And Leal's Mexican Restaurant and Cantina opened over the weekend, jumping in with both feet to get its share of attention from the big crowd in town.

If you take the "grand tour," you'll be amazed at what they've done with the old First National Bank Building. The entire family worked hard putting it together, and they plan a grand opening in a few weeks.

• Some open and others close.

Sam the Barber has moved to Rockport to be able to be near his parents.

We'll miss his "awful" sense of humor and his terrific cowboy-decorated barber shop.

And this was the last weekend for Stella and Frank Ramirez' Trails End Cafe. The owners complained, less tongue-in-cheek than you might expect, that the restaurant's duties made it impossible for them to go out and dance on weekends.

Frank in real life is an electronics wizard who has devised a computerized navigational system that even the King of Saudi Arabia is considering installing in his yachts.

We'll miss Charles Robbins and Sam Brown, who worked really hard at the cafe, but I bet they won't miss it. Why? Because, at last, they're done with dishpan hands.

And I heard the Bandera Emporium is also moving from 11th Street, to a yet undiscovered (by me) site.

These events may mean the end, for now at least, of my dream of a walking tour throughout the block bounded by 11th, Main, Cypress and Cedar Streets.

• The Wrangler Steak House branched out Saturday and Sunday with the Cross Roads Band.

The boys in the band have been coming from Houston to have a good time in Bandera for several years, and they drew a good crowd on their first official appearance here.

• I don't know why economists have to spend so much time and money compiling graphs and doing other research to determine that the Houston economy is on its way back.

All they'd have to do is go down to the Silver Dollar Saloon on any Saturday night and ask people where they're from. They could tell instantly that the Houston economy has bottomed out and is on the upswing.

I noticed a lot of "regular" Houstonites back in town this weekend. All of Bandera must have felt the difference.

• Late Monday afternoon the Snowbirds started coming back. I must have seen 20 of their rigs pass by in the space of a single hour. Maybe our tourist economy won't be so bad this winter.

• Winter? What's that?

MLBA gumbo cookoff set in Lakehills Oct. 7

Cookoff entries for the 9th annual Oct. 7 Great Gumbo Festival are due by Oct. 2, the Medina Lake Betterment Association announced last week.

Gumbo cookers must cook or bring a minimum of three gallons of gumbo to the Lakehills Civic Center on Park Road 37, of which one quart will go for judging and auction.

Cookers must be self-sufficient as far as cooking and heating of their gumbo. Entrants are encouraged to bring tents or other shelter to protect from the sun. Entrants will also want to use signs and displays to attract cookoff goers. Places for entrants will be assigned on a first-come, first-served basis.

Seafood gumbo is recommended, but chicken, turkey, sausage, game or other meat is acceptable.

"The gumbo will be judged primarily on its taste, but also on the type of roux, ingredients, aroma, thickness, creativity, appearance, texture, flavor, complexity and originality," says general chairman Bob Caswell.

There will be a first place winner from the professional division and a first and second place from the amateur division, says Caswell. A showmanship trophy will also be awarded for whichever entrant in either division demonstrates the most flair, public appeal, entertainment, decorations, crentivity or outrageous presentation of their gumbo.

A "People's Choice" trophy will be awarded to the contestant who receives the most votes from the cookoff goers for their choice as best gumbo, says Caswell.

The gumbo judging will be held from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. by three professional judges from the New Orleans area whose names will remain anonymous until the final week before the cookoff, says Caswell.

The gate opens for the general public with a $1 admission charge.

Gumbo samples will be available for the public for $1 a cup, with the sponsor, MLBA, furnishing the rice, bowls, and spoons.

The public will buy tickets to purchase gumbo from the cookers and cookers are encouraged to donate part or all of their profits back to the MLBA.

The presentation of awards and the auctioning of the winning entries will be held from 4 p.m. until 5 p.m.

Entry fee for gumbo cooks is $20.

Rules and further information can be received by calling Bob Caswell in San Antonio at 736-2017, Lakehills at 751-3401 or 751-2727 or by calling Peggy Ashmore in Bandera at 796-8302.

Your basic

Bandera

By Peggy Tobin

Driving through town after time away, one's awareness of the unique qualities of the Bandera Hill Country heightened by exposure to bleak freeways and dismal urban clutter, is truly a pleasure.

We didn't even get a Dairy Queen until the company had abandoned that awful flat-topped nifty-fifties drive-in design still blighting many townscapes. Our DQ is really pretty!

Going on up the hill toward Main Street, the restored Schmidtke-Callahan house being utilized by San Antonio Savings stands out as a beautiful example of the happy marriage of historic preservation and up-to-date business operation. We'll always be grateful to the old Gill Savings group who saw the potential of one of Bandera's prime examples of early Texas architecture.

We always smile at the two figures which have decorated the entrance of Eckhart Flower Shop for so many years. The little man napping in his sombrero and the patient cement donkey are getting old in their jobs, but they are still there.

Not so incidentally, the Eckhart House looking up the highway on what use to be the edge of town is a good example of the prairie-style bungalow of the early 20th century just now coming to be appreciated by architectural historians. We like the lone star motifs on the front porch.

Closer in to Main Street, the long low stone building rehabilitated not so long ago by Clint Dowell and recently vacated by an art gallery is one of Bandera County's earliest buildings. While most old-timers remember the place as the residence of the redoubtable Stella and Tom Robison as well as dear Ben Fyks in his last years, the place goes even farther back in history. As the George Hay residence, the house was the site of the first store and post office to be operated in Bandera as well as the first court house of the county. County business was conducted in a room rented in the building from 1856 until 1868 when the stone building next to the Old Jail was purchased.

Main Street looks like a Western movie set, and new arrivals cannot believe that the buildings are little changed from their original appearance. Some new porches or "portales" have been added, but for the most part, the street is its natural country self. We aren't trying to look like the Old West. We are the Old West.

Have you notice the new crape myrtle planted at the corner of Main and Cedar at the top of Arkey Blue's slope? It should be a colorful accent to the scene.

Mike and Johnny Boyle have made a conscious effort to achieve the Western look with the re-do of the building housing Star Video and the Wagon Wheel.

We've passed without comment many new and old landmarks including the classic nineteenth century Bandera County Court House, the interesting WPA-built county library, and the plantings in front of First State Bank. Look at our town. It really looks pretty darn good.

Health check set Sept. 18

A free health check for senior citizens will be offered Monday, Sept. 18, at the American Legion Hall on 26th Street in Lakehills.

The check, conducted by South Texas Health Check of San Antonio, is designed for persons over 50 years and will test for blood pressure, cataract, glaucoma, and cholesterol.

The check is sponsored by Medina Lake Chapter #3638 of the AARP as a community project. "One does not need to belong to the chapter to be eligible for the health check," says Dorothy Webber, chapter president.

The testing will be conducted from 10 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

"It is recommended that people come early to register for the check. All who wish may bring a covered dish and stay for dinner, and play games while they wait and after dinner," says Webber.

"The free health check Aug. 21 was such a huge success with 87 people registering," says Webber. Not all who signed up were processed that day, so another date has been set for those who were not serviced and those who could not be present that day, she says.

All persons who belong to the national AARP are eligible to join the Medina Lake chapter, says Webber. "We have a 'fun day' on the third Monday of each month, meet at noon for covered dish dinner, and play cards or dominoes, or just chat."

The fourth Monday the members meet at 1 p.m. for the regular meeting complete with a program, she says.

border" will provide a festive atmosphere to the facilities. Thursday night's theme party will feature a "Fiesta".

Silver Sage Corral

By Manuel Flores

A new law went into effect Sept. 1 that may nable thousands of seniors and disabled Texans to qualify for community care and Medicaid.

"The Texas Legislature raised the income limits for people to be eligible for two of our biggest programs, Medicaid and community care for the aging and disabled," said James Calderon of the Texas Department of Human Services.

The ceiling, which was $735 a month for an individual and $1,450 for a couple, has been increased to $1,104 for an individual and $2,208 for a couple.

Raising the eligibility cap for community based care also means more people can receive services at home, avoiding, or at least delaying, institutionalized care.

The community-care program includes services ranging from housekeeping, personal care and home-delivered meals to day activities outside the home, adult foster care and residential supervised living.

For information on eligibility, call TDHS atm 512-337-3550.

• The Eager Beaver Exercise Class met on Labor Day for their usual exercise routine but will not meet next Friday. Most of them will be taking the defensive driving course that morning and that will be their exercise for the day.

• The Melodiers presented a program at Purple Hills Manor Tuesday, Sept. 5. This is always a lot of fun for the Melodiers to see some of their friends and to make new friends.

• The Silver Sage Corral was recently given an assortment of fine Persian and tapestry wool yarns. We need someone to head up a needlepoint class. We also have 12, 14, and 16 point canvas. If you have talent in this direction, please come and share it with our senior citizens.

We direct our sincere appreciation to Dorothy Mattiza for donating her outstanding stock of yarns to the center.

• The time to start our fall planting is at hand. The first week in September we are going to start killing the grass along the west side of the building. This is in preparation to planting a xeriscape landscape with native plants. As time develops, we will post a plot plan at the center with the plants listed. We encourage citizens to "adopt a plant". We also encourage people to donate money or materials such as gravel, mulch or landscape timbers. This job will be completed entirely with donations. It would be a nice gesture for some local businesses or clubs to sponsor this project for the center.

• Arts & Crafts activities are in full swing and if you have artificial flowers that would make nice Fall arrangements or Christmas arrangements and you would like to donate them to the center, please bring them by or call 796-4969 and arrangements will be made to pick them up.

Driving class dates change

The September dates for the driving improvement class sponsored by Medina Lake Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons have been moved up one day.

The course, for those 50 years of age or older, will be taught Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 20-21, from 8:30-12:30 a.m., rather than Sept. 21-22 as originally announced, reports instructor, June Settlemeyer.

"Please note the change of date and call for reservations. There are still openings," says Settlemeyer. Those interested may call, Settlemeyer at 751-2297.

The course will be taught at the Lakehills United Methodist Church.

A Thought For The Week
By John M. Grimes

No one welcomes adversity. Nor should they. But in one way or another, at one time or another, it can come to all of us. When it happens, it is easy to fold up, to give up perhaps with bitterness and anger.
If and when adversity comes it is an excellent time to remember all the water in the world can NEVER sink a ship — unless it gets on the inside! ... When Robert Louis Stevenson was desperately ill and almost dead from a hemorrage, he wrote: "I refuse to let the medicine bottles on my mantlepiece be the limit of my horizon, or the blood on my handkerchief be the chief fact of my life."
It should never be forgotten that through the ages, many, many thousands of people discovered superhuman strength and resources through the supernatural help from God ... It is well to remember the promise — "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee." Many people through the ages have profited from that promise ...

Ninety percent of breast cancers are diagnosed by women or their physicians finding a lump in the breast. Women who are diagnosed with a lump large enough to [illegible] breast cancer by mammography, before a lump can be felt, has a 97% five year survival rate and a 90% 10 year survival rate. 1989 Property Tax Rates in Bandera Independent School District

This notice concerns 1989 property tax rates for Bandera Independent School District. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:
Last year's operating taxes	$ 2,218,544
Last year's debt taxes	$ 474,806
Last year's total taxes	$ 2,693,350
Last year's tax base	$ 388,359,442
Last year's total tax rate	$ .69352	/$100
This year's effective tax rate:

Rate to recoup lost state funds	$ .00998226	/$100
A. Rollback rate	$ .74210723	/$100
B. Rate that would result in maximum state funds	$ .48547286	/$100
Rollback Rate (greater of A or B)	$ .74210723	/$100

The following balances will probably be left in the unit's property tax accounts at the end of the fiscal year. These balances are not encumbered by a corresponding debt obligation.

Type of Property Tax Fund	Balance
Maintenance & Operations	$301,278
Interest & Sinking	7,207

SCHEDULE B: 1989 Debt Service

The unit plans to pay the following amounts for long-term debts that are secured by property taxes. These amounts will be paid from property tax revenues (or additional sales tax revenues, if applicable).

Description of Debt	Principal or Contract Payment to be Paid	Interest to be Paid	Other Amounts to be Paid	Total Payment
1985 General Obligation	$150,000	$281,540	$400	$431,940

- Amount (if any) paid from funds listed in Schedule A	-0-
- Excess collections last year	58,480
= Total to be paid from taxes in 1989	393,310

= Total Debt Service Levy	437,011

NOTICE OF VOTE ON TAX RATE

Bandera County Commissioners Court conducted a public hearing on a proposal to increase your property taxes by eight percent on Sept. 5, 1989, at 6 p.m.

Bandera County Commissioners Court is scheduled to vote on the tax rate at a public meeting to be held on Sept. 8 at 6 p.m. at the Bandera County Courthouse.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON TAX INCREASE

The CITY OF BANDERA will hold a public hearing on a proposal to increase total tax revenues from properties on the tax roll in 1988 by 8 percent. Your individual taxes may increase at a greater or lesser rate, or even decrease, depending on the change in the taxable value of your property in relation to the change in taxable value of all other property.

The public hearing will be held on SEPTEMBER 14TH AT 6:00 P.M. at MUNICIPAL BUILDING

FOR the proposal: CHARLIE ECKHART AND RILLA STEPHENS

AGAINST the proposal: GENEVA DOWELL

PRESENT and not voting: NONE

ABSENT: ROSS BAILEY AND ROBERT SKINNER

The statement above shows the percentage increase the proposed rate represents over the EFFECTIVE tax rate that the unit published on AUGUST 30TH,1989. The following table compares taxes on an average home in this taxing unit last year to taxes proposed on the average home this year. Again, your individual taxes may be higher or lower, depending on the taxable value of your property.

	LAST YEAR	THIS YEAR
Average home value	35,000	35,000
General exemptions available (amount available on the average home, not including senior citizen's or disabled person's exemptions)	-0-	-0-
Average taxable value	35,000	35,000
TAX rate	.1883	.1891 (proposed)
TAX	65.91	66.19 (proposed)

Under this proposal taxes on the average home would increase by $.28 cents or .0042482174 increase compared with last year's taxes.

Comparing tax rates without adjusting for changes in property value, the tax rate would increase by $ .0008 per $100 of taxable value or .0042485394 increase compared to last year's tax rate. These tax rate figures are not adjusted for changes in the taxable value of property.

Medina Lake purchase details explained by water district at Aug. 29 meeting

By Carol L. Smith
Special Correspondent

The Edwards Underground Water District (EUWD) told a standing-room-only crowd gathered at Mico fire hall in Mico Tuesday, Aug. 29, that the district may have a purchase price for the 66,000 acre-feet owned by the BMA as soon as December.

That plan, which would have irrigators in Bexar-Medina-Atascosa water district turn their water rights over to EUWD for a price, will take water from Medina Lake and inject it into wells to bring up the water level in the Edwards Aquifer.

The Edwards Aquifer, San Antonio's sole source of drinking water, is nearing its record low level and water from Medina Lake is seen as a supplemental source to maintain higher levels.

Also addressed was recently created Springhills Water Management District in Bandera County and the underground water district in Medina County, both awaiting voter confirmation in November.

"We are still working on Medina Lake," says Russell "Rusty" Masters, assistant general manager for the EUWD told the gathering. "We are still trying to put together the deal and still trying to buy the lake."

Phase I of the EUWD's Medina Lake project has been completed and included four separate studies concerning the structural, economic, environmental and hydrological aspects of the purchase.

Phase II is concentrating on the legal implications and it is possible that price negotiations may begin as early as this December, according to Masters.

Currently, the BMA takes water from the lake and runs it into canals that are used by farmers in the three counties the BMA serves. The plan first put forth by EUWD was to keep the lake as full as possible and have the lake recharge the Edwards Aquifer, which starts just below the dam. "The original plan was to cease diversions from the lake," elaborates Greg Rothe, Medina Lake project manager for the EUWD, "to keep all the water in the lake, to force as much natural recharge as we could."

To better study the hydrological aspects, a computer generated model of Medina Lake was created by the EUWD using data gathered from the lake operation over the past 40 years. This data included in-flows, evaporation rates and natural leakage. In testing their "forced natural recharge" theory, it was determined that an increase in the natural recharge would be only 10 percent, or an average of 4,000 to 5,000 acre-feet per year.

"That is not really enough to justify pursuit of the program," says Rothe. "Forget that we were originally pursuing the idea of keeping all the water in the lake. Maintaining the higher level of the lake didn't work for us. We now have a plan that would have us diverting water from the lake in a similar fashion to what the BMA is doing, but using the water for artificial recharge."

A series of "artificial recharge wells" will divert water from the lake and recharge the water directly into the artesian zone of the Edwards Aquifer. The Medina and Medina Diversion lakes will continue to operate as usual. The 10 or 11 injection wells will be spaced apart over a two mile length in the main irrigation canal that runs southwest of Rio Medina.

Using the computer model, a dozen different "operating criteria" and rates of release were studied. The proposed plan will provide an average artificial recharge of 40,000 acre-feet per year, over and above the natural recharge rate of 40,000 acre-feet per year. The proposed rate of release will be 100 cubic feet per second (cfs) from the spillway level of 1,072 feet to the 1,062 feet level.

After Medina Lake drops under the 1,062 foot level, the rate of release will be slowed to 35 cfs. It is estimated that the BMA uses a rate of release of 200 cfs while irrigating during dry periods.

Medina Lake's level is currently lower than 1,038 feet.

According to the computer model testing, this will keep the Medina Lake level an average of nine feet higher during dry periods. The EUWD also tested the theory of not diverting any water from Medina Lake during a drought period like the one which lasted from 1949 to 1957 and concluded that the lake would have still gone dry due to natural recharge and evaporation.

"This is just one (theory) that we have used," says Rothe, "I'm not saying it's adopted but it's one that seems to fit fairly well with our intention of not impacting the level of the lake more severely than the BMA's operations do now — particularly during dry times. We hope to acquire the permit that BMA has now, that allows the diversion of up to 66,000 acre-feet per year. The diversion rate is about 300 cfs. We hope to acquire that permit and we would like for it to read the same way."

Some concern was expressed over the water quality aspects of natural recharge over artificial recharge. Natural recharge allows the surface water to be purified by seepage through the porous limestone as opposed to injecting untreated "artificial recharge" directly into the aquifer. Possible chemical contamination could be curtailed if discovered quickly enough to allow the injection wells to be shut off before the contaminants reached them.

"We do sample regularly the water quality of the Medina River, Hondo Creek, Seco Creek and the Sabinal River," says Ray Buck of the Bandera County River Authority, "as well as Medina Lake."

Legislation has been created to provide for the formation of a joint surface and groundwater district in Bandera County, authorizing control over both types of water. "Bandera County has been declared a critical area by the Texas Water Commission (TWC) and as such if we don't do something about the problem the state is going to move in and take control."

"Liken what we are doing to a domino game," reflects Buck, "say there are four chairs around a domino table. If you don't sit down in one of those chairs, you're going to be a bystander. As we move into the next few years and water issues become more critical, more controversial, if we don't get a chair, we're not going to be able to play."

On Nov. 7, voters in Bandera County may confirm the underground water district, named the Springhills Water Management District. If they do, the river authority will become part of it, creating the first joint surface and underground water district in Texas.

Using the domino scenario, Oliver Martin of the newly formed Medina County Underground Water Conservation District is trying to get a chair, but someone keeps pulling it out from under him. During the initial formation of the new water district, representatives met with the chairman of the Texas House Water Resources Committee and the Senate and got tentative approval for the MCUWCD.

"At the second scheduling of the senate committee, the senate chairman, H. Tati Santiesteban of El Paso, told us that the Greater San Antonio chamber of Commerce had stopped us and that until we could agree with them, we would not get a water district. This proves to be very true," said Martin.

"We met with the Edwards district, the river authorities and San Antonio city officials and worked on agreements. If they could get a bill for a future study of the use of the aquifer, we would accept the drought management plan, and we would get a water district out of it," Martin said.

"We would reach an agreement and a day or two later they would call back and say that they couldn't go along with it. The Greater San Antonio Chamber of Commerce said they would stop us and they did," said Martin.

Then the MCUWCD representatives approached the TWC and were again given tentative approval. According to Martin, the Greater San Antonio Chamber of Commerce said they would continue to fight the water district's formation at every turn. When asked why, they said, "It's just another hurdle we'll have to go through to get your water."

"We're not out to fight anybody," said Martin, "we are just trying to protect Medina County and the aquifers that run underneath it." A Medina County election will be held Nov. 7 to approve or deny the formation of the MCUWCD.

The meeting was sponsored by the Medina Lake Preservation Society.

Hubert and Anita Booher were visited by niece and nephew Celeste and Bill Denton of Houston, who landed their small plane at the Medina River Ranch airstrip.

While in Pipe Creek, the Dentons took Anita for a flight around the area. "I was amazed at how low the water was, especially around English Crossing, and at how some places were completely dry," stated Anita.

"It was also exciting to see how the river winds through the hills and into the lake," she said.

After a pass over the Medina Dam, they returned and landed, with the Dentons returning home shortly afterward.

Card of Thanks and Public Notices

PUBLIC NOTICE
The Bandera Electric Cooperative, Inc. has found it necessary to accelerate activities associated with its policy of retiring power lines and other electrical equipment not in use (i.e. idle services). The Cooperative's records indicate that there are over 1,700 such "idle services" within its system which need to be retired, or in certain instances at a property owner's request, reactivated. Elimination of these idle facilities will reduce the Cooperative's maintenance costs and provide needed materials for construction of new service lines.

If you feel you may have an idle service line on your property which you wish to reactivate in order to avoid removal, please contact the Cooperative's Engineering Department 512-796-3741; providing if possible, the old service meter and /or account number. Once a line is removed, installation will only be in accordance with the Cooperative's Line Extension Policy as filed with the Public Utility Commission of Texas.

The Cooperative will be removing these "idle services" without further notification as scheduling permits. When the services are dismantled, meter loops and, other non-Cooperative owned fixtures located on service poles will be removed and left on location. The Cooperative will not be responsible for subsequent loss of, or damage to such items.

Pizza popular in steak loving state

Everybody loves a pizza

"Everybody loves pizza," says Irene Elizondo with the Texas Department of Agriculture. "The Italian import has become as popular as tacos in this great state of steak lovers."

With a little imagination many delicious pizza varieties can be created, and for those who enjoy the homemade taste in foods, making pizza is just as easy as tacos, according to Elizondo.

"The crust is the hard part, but it can be simplified by using bisquit mix," she says. "The rest is easy."

Pizza ingredients can range from garden-fresh vegetables to Hill Country peaches or East Texas blueberries, Elizondo says. If you don't plant your own, garden-fresh vegetables and sweet juicy fruits are now available at farmers' markets.

"Everybody loves a pizza," she says. "Could it be the cheese? You can't make pizza without cheese. Cheese combines very well with a myriad of other foods; whatever ingredients are used to suit tastes and likes."

Mozzarella, ricotta, mascarpone, caciotta and goat cheeses, as well as cheeses with southwestern flavor made with various herbs and chilies can be used as toppings, while cream cheese can be used as a base for dessert pizza made with fruit, Elizondo explains.

Pizza Crust

2 T. olive oil
1/3 C. warm water
3/4 C. multi-grain bisquit mix
1/2 C. regular bisquit mix
1 T. stone-ground cornmeal

Preheat oven to 500 degrees F. Place oil and water in mixing bowl and stir in bisquit mixes. Scrape the dough onto a pastry board or other flat surface that has been sprinkled with additional bisquit mix. Knead for about 2 minutes, gradually adding the cornmeal, until dough is smooth and elastic. If dough seems dry, add a few drops of olive oil.

Place dough on 12-inch pizza pan that has been rubbed with olive oil. Roll out dough to desired shape; press to edge of pan and up 1/2 inch to form crust. Lightly brush crust with olive oil. Bake for 5-10 minutes or until lightly browned. Add desired topping and return to oven. Makes 6-8 servings.

Variation: Regular Crust (not whole wheat). Use 1 1/2 C. regular bisquit mix, deleting the multi-grain bisquit mix.

Goat Cheese Pizza

1 C. tomato sauce
Fresh tomatoes, sliced and quartered
Sliced fresh mushrooms
1 1/4 C. shredded goat cheese

Spread crust with tomato sauce. Top with tomatoes, mushrooms, and cheese. Bake 5-10 minutes or until cheese is melted.

Regular Pizza

1 C. spaghetti sauce
1/2 tsp. oregano
1 T. chopped fresh basil or 1 tsp. dried
1 garlic clove, finely minced
1 C. shredded mozzarella cheese
1/4 C. grated Parmesan cheese

In a bowl, mix together spaghetti sauce, oregano, basil, and garlic. Spread crust with sauce mixture. Top with cheeses. Bake 5-10 minutes or until cheese is melted.

Mexican Pizza

8 oz. sour cream
1 (16 oz.) can refried beans
Taco seasoning, to taste
Chopped onions
1/2 C. Monterrey Jack cheese
1/2 C. cheddar cheese

In a bowl mix refried beans with taco seasoning to desired taste. Spread crust with sour cream and seasoned refried beans. Top with chopped onion and cheeses. Bake 5-10 minutes or until cheese is melted.

Veggie Pizza

1 C. tomato sauce
1 lb. fresh spinach, steamed
Sliced fresh mushrooms
Sliced onion rings
Sliced bell pepper rings
1 1/4 C. Mozzarella cheese

Spread crust with tomato sauce. Top with spinach, mushrooms, onions and bell pepper. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake 5-10 minutes or until cheese is melted.

Breakfast Pizza

1 lb. pork sausage, cooked and drained
1 C. frozen loose pack hash browns, thawed
5 eggs
1/4 C. milk
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
1 C. shredded cheddar cheese
2 T. grated parmesan cheese

Preheat oven to 375 degrees F. Spoon sausage over unbaked crust. Sprinkle with potatoes. In a bowl, beat together eggs, milk, salt, and pepper; pour over crust. Sprinkle cheese over all. Bake for 20-25 minutes or until egg mixture is set.

Dessert Pizza

8 oz. soft cream cheese
1 (10 oz.) jar peach preserves
Sliced peaches
Whole blueberries, washed and drained
Chopped pecans
Shredded coconut

Spread full-baked crust with cream cheese and peach preserves. Top with sliced peaches, blueberries, pecans and coconut.

Use regular crust recipe; bake for 15 minutes or until browned. If using fresh peaches, toss with lemon juice to avoid discoloring.

Dick Dowling day observance set at Sabine Pass

The annual Dick Dowling Day Celebration is set for 10 a.m. Sept. 9 at the Sabine Pass Battleground State Historical Park.

A memorial service and wreath-laying ceremony will be conducted at the Dick Dowling Monument by the United Daughters of the Confederacy. Reenactors in Civil War uniforms will include a recounting of Dowling's defense of Sabine Pass in the face of superior forces.

Lt. Richard W. Dowling led a band of 47 Confederates who occupied the ground fortification, Ft. Griffin, to protect Texas from attack by sea. At daylight on Sept. 5, 1893, with little more than an unfinished earthwork and only six cannon, he and his men repelled a Union force of 22 ships and 5,000 men.

Sabine Pass Battleground commemorates the historic events of the Battle of Sabine Pass. The park is equipped with picnic tables, grills, restrooms, a boat ramp and fish-cleaning station. The park, located south of Port Arthur, one and a half miles south of Sabine Pass on FM 332. Call 409-971-2559 for more information.

Cool cat in a cooking pot? With temperatures hitting the 100s and the heat index higher, this kitten thinks the place to be is in a metal pot left out in a shaded car port. Does this part-time mouser known about physics and thermal conductivity?

Bobcat gridders to show new look

By Larry T. Williams
Bulletin Staff Writer

Medina athletics will have a new look for the 1989 season. Not only will there be the usual fresh faces in the lineup, but also a trio of new coaches on the sidelines.

The head coach and athletic director's slot is now occupied by Joe Winchell, formally of Flatonia. Winchell will be in charge of varsity football and both boy's and girl's varsity basketball.

He is assisted by Steve Chrisman, who comes to the Hill Country from New Mexico. In addition to his football duties, Chrisman will head up the varsity girl's track team.

Greg Harbour will round out the Bobcat coaching staff and will handle football special teams as well as steering the varsity boy's track efforts.

Medina has not set the gridiron on fire the last few seasons, but the new director is optimistic. "The potential is here," said Winchell, "and so is the support. People here are really behind the team."

"We're going to work on conditioning and the fundamentals of the game...the basic techniques," he said. "If you work hard and have a good attitude, anyone can play football. Medina can be as good as anybody. In football and in all sports," he said.

The trio has laid out a back-to-basics training program supplemented by an aggressive weight and exercise plan for both boys and girls. As Chrisman remarked to a girl's PE class, "You're going to be sore at first but you will begin to feel good about yourselves soon."

"One thing we're going to do is work at a tried and true system," continued Winchell. "If something doesn't work at first, we won't panic and start off in a different direction. We know our ways will work."

Winchell helped take Flatonia to the state finals last year and Chrisman says that he's helped guide nine of his last ten teams to playoff slots.

In addition to the immediate glories gained by a successful team, Coach Harbour sees the athletic field as a step toward a higher education for many of his students. "I want kids to experience winning in regional and state levels. It's a good thing to experience Austin," he says.

"I like football and basketball, but I'm really going to push track. It's easier to get scholarships in track than other sports and that's what is important. My main goal is to get kids into further education through scholarships."

Medina will get a chance to try its new philosophy at Natalia Friday, Sept. 8.

Shooters score in Waco

The senior skeet shooting team of Troy Adamietz and Joseph Kalka of Bandera placed sixth in the skeet division of the Texas State 4-H Trap, Skeet and Sporting Clays Shoot Aug. 2-5 in Waco.

Seven Bandera youths were among the 300 youths in the state meet, including Adamietz, Kalka, Teich, Jody Hubble, Fred Sides, Branden Culver and Scot Dunn.

Adamietz hit 82 of 100 targets in trap shooting, 81 of 100 in skeet, and 27 of 50 in sporting clays. Kalka hit 71, 80 and 24.

Hubble, in the junior division, hit 57 of 75 in trap, 61 of 75 in skeet, and 25 of 50 in sporting clays. Sides hit 39, 55 and 24.

Teich, in the subjunior division, hit 34 of 50 in trap, 42 of 50 in skeet, and 23 of 50 in sporting clays. Dunn hit 34, 18 and 11 and Culver hit 29, 32 and 14.

Kalka, Culver, Dunn, Teich and John Bloxham competed in the Texas 4-H Silhouette and Light Rifle Matches Aug. 26 at Brownwood, with Bloxham hitting 9 of 20 silhouettes. Light rifle scores were not immediately available.

The Bandera 4-H Shooting Sports Club will have a practice shoot Saturday, Sept. 9, at 2 p.m., a regular meeting Monday, Sept. 11, at 7 p.m., and light rifle postal league matches on Saturday, Sept. 16, and Oct. 14 at 1:30 p.m.

All meetings and practices are at the Bandera Gun Club on Dixie Dude Road, and prospective members are invited. New members must pay $20 for National Rifle Association membership and NRA insurance.

Bandera Downs one of six in Texas drug hotline

Bandera Downs is one of six racetracks in Texas selected to kick off a "drug hotline" designed to target specific illegal equine drug use.

The program is sponsored by the Association of Racing Commissioners International. Posters and fliers displaying a toll-free number and a provision that anyone providing information to the "drug hotline" need not supply their name have been distributed for display at the local track. The number is 1-800-782-1128.

Other Texas tracks participating in the program are Ross Downs in Colleyville, La Bahia Downs in Goliad, Trinity Meadows in Weatherford, Pineywood Downs in Nacogdoches, and the Gillespie County Fair in Fredericksburg.

AQHA racing seminar set Sept. 17-19

A seminar for American Quarter Horse Association racing officials and stewards will be conducted by the Quarter Horse Racing Council Sept. 17-19 at the DFW Hyatt-Regency Hotel near Dallas.

Fred Collins, right, and Robin Shaw ease a restored 16-foot tall totem pole into a hole in front of the Frontier Times Museum Thursday, Sept. 7. The pole was originally placed at the museum in 1943 by Charles Eckhart, says Collins. "It fell in a storm around 1983, or so," he said. Eighteen inches was gone off both ends and the entire back and center was eaten away due to rot when Collins got the pole for restoration two months ago. Collins said the whole inside was filled with a mix of catalyzed epoxy and sawdust and wood chips and then a new back of Western red cedar was bonded on, along with a steel mount that is screwed to the wood. Collins and his crew spent "about 90 man-hours" restoring the carved pole using only a single, black and white photograph as a guide.

Medina ISD to eye BCAD spending plan

The fate of the Bandera County Appraisal District's $248,000 budget hangs on a vote of the trustees of the Medina Independent School District Thursday, Sept. 14, after two bodies rejected it this week and two others approved it.

Bandera County and the city of Bandera each rejected the district's spending plans in separate action Monday, both citing a $52,000 surplus and what they viewed as excessive salary increases.

The Utopia and Bandera independent school districts approved the appraisal district budget in separate actions earlier.

Utopia ISD approved the budget at their Monday, Sept. 11 meeting.

The Bandera ISD school board did not take any formal action to disapprove the appraisal district budget, so in effect they approved the district's 1990 budget when it approved the school district's 1989-90 budget Aug. 29, reports superintendent Ted Dockery.

Chief appraiser Larry Reagan Aug. 18 said that the taxing entities did not have to approve the budget, but had to reject the budget by Sept. 18. "If the majority doesn't do it within 30 days, the budget is approved," he said at the meeting when the appraisal directors approved the budget.

The last player is Medina ISD, which will consider the appraisal district budget Thursday, Sept. 14, at their monthly meeting that begins at 7:30 p.m.

Appraisal district director Fabian Mazurek told the Bandera City Council Monday that he and other appraisal district directors were not aware of the $52,000 surplus "until the last couple of meetings."

He explained, "It was just not among the items that are reported to directors" monthly by Reagan. Mazurek acknowledged the surplus did appear in the annual audit report. "Either we didn't pay attention to it or it just slipped by," he said.

While Mayor Raymond Adamietz read a letter from Reagan in which the chief appraiser said he had been advised by auditors to keep an amount similar to the $52,000 now on hand as an emergency fund, Mazurek told the council the appraisal board planned to spend at least part of it on equipment related to mapping.

He said the board would probably amend its budget at a later date to authorize such an expenditure.

Council member Rilla Stephens, only half in jest, asked members of the city staff present if there was any money in the city's coffers that council members could get their hands on.

Hugo Bausch sits with one dead sheep and one sheep near death after the second attack in two weeks by rampaging dogs at his ranch north of Bandera.

Dogs wreak havoc among sheep, goats

Some 16 sheep were wounded or killed in a recent dog attack at a Bandera ranch, but this is just one of several such attacks in the last two weeks ranchers report.

Hugo and Mildred Bausch of Bandera lost nine sheep and two goats two weeks ago to an attack by dogs and Thursday, Sept. 7, at least eight sheep were found dead or dying and eight other sheep required treatment by a veterinarian.

Green estimates 90 percent of the dogs that attack livestock have owners that care for them.

At the Garcia Ranch, just across from the Bausch's 325-acre spread, 12 sheep and three goats were lost in two separate occurrences in the last two weeks, reports county inspector Mac Green.

Green places a value of $50 each on the livestock lost at the Bausch ranch, bringing the total loss to $400, supposing that no more are killed or die.

The Bauschs have 174 sheep, 73 goats, and a few other livestock, and that is their entire livelihood. "We raise lambs (for sale) and shear for wool," says Mildred Bausch.

In the recent attack, the Bausche lost one of their top breeding sheep, compounding the problem by removing future revenue from the lambs it may have.

The dogs chase the sheep or goats into a creek or a creek bottom, where the sheep lose their balance in the water or on the rocks, and the pack of dogs pounce on the helpless prey. "The dogs will chase them and drag them down," says Bausch.

Once down and dying, the buzzards start eating the wounded animal while it is still alive, says Green.

Livestock attacked by the dogs in these instances had punctures into the lungs and had punctures deep into the jugular vein area. "These dogs know where to bite livestock," says Green.

Green says the county is faced with the dilemma of determining whose dog is doing the damage, because the attacks are usually at night and seldom witnessed. "It is almost impossible to tell who owns the dogs that killed," specific livestock, says Green.

"Dog owners (whose dogs kill animals) need to pay for the damage done," says Green.

Green estimates that 90 percent of the dogs that attack livestock have owners that regularly feed and care for them, but are not tied up or kept in a fence by the owner. "The dog is there in the evening when the owner goes to sleep and then when the owner wakes up in the morning, it's [illegible] don't know where the dog has been all night," says Green.

What makes matters worse, the dogs kill for sport, not because they are hungry. "They just kill

City of Bandera

Bandera City Council Monday approved a 1989-90 budget that is only one-half of one percent higher than its last 12-month budget and which can be financed with only a slight tax rate increase.

The balanced $612,000 budget will require a tax rate of 19.91 cents per $100 valuation, up also about one-half of one percent over last year's rate of 18.83 cents. The 1989 tax on an average $35,000 home in the city will be $66.19, up 28 cents over last year.

The council added $12,300 in its budget for grants and grant applications and park development, but reduced expenditures in other areas so that this budget is only $3,090 higher than the city's last 12-month spending plan.

The city has been operating the last three months on a 3-month budget enacted in June to get the city on an October-through-September fiscal year that most other public agencies utilize.

There was no increase in funds reserved for salaries, compared to the last year-long budget. A 5-[illegible] police department expense[illegible] to $30,000 and a 6[illegible] percent increase in garbage expenses to $35,000 were offset by cuts in other areas, including municipal court and fire department expenses, insurance, vehi-

River Authority

Directors of the Bandera County River Authority Tuesday, Sept. 5, set Thursday, Sept. 14, as the first of several informational meetings to bring attention to the upcoming Nov. 7 election to establish a county-wide underground and surface water district in Bandera County for.

The board also adopted a budget of $60,039 to operate in the 1989-90 fiscal year, beginning Oct. 1, and set a tax rate of 1.15 cents per $100 property valuation.

In other action, directors rejected both bids for a truck for executive director Ray Buck to use, rather than his personal vehicle.

The board ordered an election Nov. 7 for Bandera County voters to decide whether to establish an underground water district for Bandera County or not.

The election would confirm or reject legislation passed by the Texas 71st Legislature creating the first combined underground and surface water district in the state.

If voters confirm the underground district, the new district will take over all the water [illegible] responsibilities of the present river authority.

Also on the Nov. 7 ballot will be the election of initial directors for the new board which will serve

Bandera County

Bandera County Commissioners set the county tax rate at 30.84 cents per $100 property valuation to support the county's 1989-90 $2.85 million budget Friday, Sept. 8.

The rate did not go unopposed however, as newly-appointed commissioner Bennie Barker of Wharton's Dock went on record against the increased tax rate and the increased budget, saying that the budget should be pared back to exclude the tax increase.

The 1988-89 county tax rate was 29.25 cents per $100 valuation and last year's county budget was $2.48 million.

The 30.84 cents is divided into 23.42 cent county ad valorem tax, 0.66 indigent health care tax, 3.78 cent county special ad valorem road tax, 1.64 cent road district tax, and 1.14 cent road bond tax.

However, the 30.84 cents rate is reduced by 2.00 cents to an effective 28.84 cents per $100 valuation because of the county sales tax revenue.

The county judge's and commissioners salaries were raised five percent for the first time in seven years in the new budget.

[illegible] salaries were also raised five percent, though they have not had as long to wait for a raise.

Bandera Independent School District trustees Monday evening approved a 9.73 percent tax increase, after first voting down suggested increases of first 25 percent then 23 percent.

The 1989-90 budget will call for a maintenance and operating tax rate of 63.088 cents per $100 valuation and a debt service rate of 11.122 cents, for a total tax rate of 74.210 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, said superintendent Ted Dockery.

The school district's tax rate was only slightly under the rollback figure, which is 74.210723 cents per $100, according to the school's published rate information.

The board voted to take additional funds needed to balance the budget from the 1988-89 fund balance, and they figure on a 96 percent tax collection rate.

According to the superintendent, the school district's maintenance and operating budget is 9.5 percent greater than last year's.

"The total taxable value of all property for 1989 is $410,407,861 and the adjusted taxable value after exemptions is $385,895,954," [illegible] said. "We believe the budget the district will use $764,301 in fund balance from the 1988-89 budget, which represents the total estimated fund balance, and increase the maintenance [illegible]

Dedicated deputy

Dear editor:

On the first of this month the people of Bandera County lost a deputy sheriff who not only was the most experienced and best trained officer in the sheriff's department, but also was a deputy who really cared for the people he served. To those with problems, whether they were domestic or otherwise, this man let them know he would enforce the law, but with compassion and understanding. He did not set himself up to judge those with problems.

He has done his job over the years with dignity, respect, honesty, integrity, understanding, compassion, courage and dedication, and no community can ask more than that from any officer.

It would be a shame to let this man fade into the sunset without the community showing its appreciation to this officer and the service he has rendered to this community over the years.

From two people you have helped in the past, thank you very much, Ken Mingo. Enjoy your retirement; you've more than earned it. But don't fall out of touch, we value you as a friend.

Dedicated Dawn

Dear editor:

It's not often we get a chance to praise one of our own youth in Bandera County, but we could not let the summer end without thanking Miss Dawn Macon. From the beginning of the summer Dawn has spent endless hours with our daughters, teaching them how to care for, respect and enjoy their horses.

Only three times during the summer months did Dawn take time off — once to complete in the district 4-H horse show, next to attend 4-H Congress, and then again in late July to compete at the state 4-H horse show in Abilene.

We have been nothing short of impressed by all she has done, as well as by her love for her animals, her dedication to 4-H, and her patience with our children. Thanks Dawn!

Hometown athletes

Dear editor:

Saturday (Sept. 9) I turned on ABC's college football game to cheer on Texas A&M against Washington. What a nice surprise to hear "James Compton from Bandera, Texas" not once, or twice, but three times, and I napped during the game. That's free publicity for Bandera.

If you don't know, James plays football for Washington, and they did win Saturday.

I wish the Bulletin would run articles about hometown athletes and their collegiate and professional accomplishments. It would be a good example for the younger students in our area. Articles about James Compton or pro baseball player Danny Heep (of Lakehills) will help show our children you can make it even if you're from a small town. Not all top players come from Class AAAAA schools.

During these hard economic times many consumers have fallen behind on some of their bills. While creditors have an indisputable right to seek payment, the law prohibits the use of fraudulent and abusive collection tactics.

Debt collectors don't have the right to abuse. It is illegal for any debt collector to:

- Threaten violence or other criminal acts;
- Use profane or obscene language;
- Falsely accuse the consumer of fraud or other crimes;
- Use the telephone to harass debtors by calling anonymously or making repeated or continuous calls;
- Make collect calls without disclosing the true name of the caller before the charges are accepted;
- Use a false name;
- Misrepresent the amount of the debt;
- Send documents to a debtor which falsely appear to be from a court or other official agency;
- Attempt to collect any interest or fee that is not due.

Some collectors will threaten to foreclose on homesteads or garnish wages. In Texas, a homestead cannot be taken to pay a debt except for purchase of a home, home improvements or certain taxes.

Wages can only be garnished to pay court-ordered child support.

It is unlawful for a debt collector to attempt to collect more than the amount originally agreed upon — whether the agreement was in writing or not.

AG rules real estate agents need not reveal AIDS info

Texas Legislators scurried behind the scenes last week to save their proposed salary increase on the Nov. 7 ballot and to prepare for the special session on workers' compensation the following week.

In other Capitol-related events:

- Texas realtors and gay political groups breathed a sigh of relief when Attorney General Jim Mattox ruled real estate agents do not have to tell potential buyers if a home's seller has AIDS.
- A high-ranking official quit the state agriculture agency and may try to unseat the boss, AG Commissioner Jim Hightower.
- A GOP candidate for governor anders corred the President's new anti-drug proposals by going with cops on a cocaine bust.
- The State Board of Education tentatively voted to reinstate a controversial vocational education program for junior high schools.
- The field grew crowded for the unexpired term of the late Congressman Mickey Leland of Houston.

Mattox AIDS Ruling

Mattox said in his legal opinion that a new AIDS disclosure law violates the 1988 Federal Fair Housing Act which prevents discrimination against the handicapped.

The state law required real estate agents, when asked, to reveal if previous occupants suffered from AIDS.

Realtors feared lawsuits from the issue. The law's sponsor, state Rep. Debra Danburg, whose district includes Houston's Montrose area, sought the law to stop realtors from making AIDS disclosures, based either on fact or hearsay.

Advocates from AIDS health and awareness groups praised Mattox' ruling. One said the law "was mean spirited" against AIDS sufferers.

Possible Candidacy

A Veteran program director of the Agriculture Department said he is stepping down because he no longer supports the agency's efforts.

Ken Boatright, who Sept. 20 ends 16 years with the agency, said he has been approached to run in 1990 against Democrat Hightower, but has not yet made a decision.

Hance Fights Drugs

While President Bush was outlining his war on drugs, Kent Hance, candidate for governor, rode with a Houston police undercover team that arrested three cocaine dealers in an hour.

Hance said as governor he would appoint a state crime commissioner, eliminate bail for drug dealers, establish 24-hour drug courts in urban areas, and deny state benefits to drug felons.

Crowded Field

The race for the Leland congressional seat, which includes Houston's inner city Fifth Ward, will be a showdown between perhaps the two most powerful blacks in the Texas Legislature.

The styles of state Sen. Craig Washington and state Rep. Ron Wilson are quite different.

Washington sports a bow tie, is a friendly and persuasive orator who can sway votes with his eloquence.

Wilson is aloof, arrogant, a power-player who prefers to stay behind the scenes and in the speaker's chambers.

Washington has picked up the banner for welfare mothers and kids, AIDS victims, the hungry and the homeless. He is an unabashed, unapologetic liberal of the old mold.

Wilson supports casino gambling, lotteries, and sponsored a bill allowing private [illegible] share of the state funds.

In any case, Wilson and Washington are locked in a political battle now in a field that includes six others.

Vo-Tech Program Defended

Defying the legislative leadership, the State Board of Education tentatively voted to reinstate a controversial vocational education program for junior high schools that some have labeled "a dumping ground" for under-achievers.

Board member Bob Akin, a former state representative from Commerce, called the action a possible "exercise in futility" because it could so anger lawmakers that they might cut off funding for all vo-tech programs.

But Board Chairman Monte Hasie of Lubbock said board members were simply responding to the wishes of their constituents when they voted 8-7 to restore funding to Coordinated Vocational Academic Education in grades seven and eight this fall.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Gib Lewis blasted the plan in July and asked the board to drop its plan to reinstate the program.

Other Highlights

- The superconducting supercollider cleared its last major hurdle when House and Senate conferees approved $225 million for the Texas atom smasher.
- Comptroller Bob Bullock's office sold $2,000 worth of drug tax stamps the first week of a new law requiring drug dealers to put silver stickers on their illicit goods.
- The U.S. government must pay nearly $2.3 million to the family of a Fort Hood woman who died after Army doctors failed to treat a thyroid ailment, U.S. District Judge James Nowlin has ruled.

It was a reunion of sorts right there in your livingroom and mine. James Compton of Bandera, Tex., and Percy Waddle of Columbus, Tex., meeting on the field of football play in far-away Seattle. Far-away, yes, but yet so near; as near as our own Saturday afternoon television screen.

The paths of these two young men crossed on an earlier occasion. It was a rainy night in another unlikely venue — Lulling, Tex. Each in their own way, these student-athletes were questing for their highest athletic achievement to date: A spot in the regional championship round of the Texas high school football playoffs.

Percy Waddle got the best of it on that 1984 evening, catching a 77-yard touchdown pass that gave his Columbus Cardinals a playoff victory. He went on to all-state stardom, blue chip status, and to become an Aggie.

While Compton gained 100 yards to break his own school rushing record in that game, his team's season was completed. He went on to attract the attention of many major college coaches, and chose to continue his football career and education at the University of Washington in Seattle.

Saturday the Texas boys from Columbus and Bandera met again. For the record, Waddle got the best of it again, catching three passes for 34 yards while Compton gained two yards on two carries. But Compton's laugh was last and best: The Huskies downed the Aggies, 19-6.

City cancels chamber contract, reduces bed tax to 1 percent

Bandera City Council Monday reduced its hotel-motel occupancy tax to 1 percent and canceled its advertising contract with the Bandera County Chamber of Commerce's Visitor's Bureau.

The action allows Bandera County to retain its recently-passed 7-percent tax which, taken with the state's 6 percent and the city's 3 percent, exceeded the legal limit of 15 percent.

The chamber asked the city to abandon the tax completely so that motels and hotels inside the city limit would charge the same tax as those outside the city, but the council voted 3-1 to retain a 1-percent levy.

One motel owner, Henry Moeller of the River Front Motel, suggested keeping 1 percent, and the council went along with him, after the vocal insistence of council members Rilla Stephens and Geneva Dowell.

Robert Skinner voted with Stephens and Dowell to keep a 1-percent levy and Eckhart voted against that idea, saying "I'm sick of hearing about the bed tax."

The tax has been subject of considerable controversy in recent months as the city tried to divide proceeds among various groups that applied for them. Most controversial was a $1,000 grant to the Bandera County Library for what library director Jimmie Hughey said was "for the circulation department." The law authorizing the tax restricts its use to the promotion of tourism.

In other action Monday the city council authorized the use of Main Street for a longhorn cattle drive benefitting the March of Dimes, voted to commit $6,000 over the next two years as its share of a planning grant, and appointed a board to hear appeals for relief from the city's junk car ordinance.

Grantswoman Linda Stein told the council the city would have only a marginal chance of getting approval of a $30,000 planning grant if it would provide 10 percent of the money, a good chance if it would provide 15 percent, and an excellent chance if it would pay for 20 percent.

The grant would pay for a variety of studies of the city's needs in streets, water, wastewater, parks, zoning, economic development, annexation and subdivisions.

"If we get this grant and do this planning," Stein told the council, "when we apply for grants for other purposes we have the basis for the application, the documentation of our need."

"In other words," council member Geneva Dowell asked, "this ($30,000) doesn't really get us anything except a study."

Still, the vote to pay for 20 percent of cost of the studies, or $6,000, was unanimous, though council member Ross Bailey was not present Monday.

The council formally appointed police chief Walter Welch, city attorney Kerry Schneider and physician James Womack to the motor vehicle board. They can choose to appoint a representative or serve themselves to hear appeals from persons ordered to remove so-called junk cars within the city limits.

Tom Lakson of the city's planning and zoning commission recommended "looking at and overhauling" the city's drought contingency plan, including some kind of escalating water rate to encourage water conservation.

New public works director Rey Garcia reported the city had access to ample water supplies, explaining that the city's pump at 500 feet is still 332 feet above the Trinity sand formation. "You've got plenty of water," he said, though he said it didn't warrant going off the yellow water conservation condition in which voluntary conservation is urged.

The city council approved the use of Main Street for a cattle drive Oct. 20 and 21. Cattle will be driven from Helotes into Bandera, down Main Street to the Cabaret Dance Hall, where they will be penned until Sunday morning, Oct. 21, when they will be driven out of town.

Female prisoners 'fill' cells, make transfers necessary

Two Bandera county prisoners were sent to another county last week, and in the Tarpley area a group of 15-20 javelinas reportedly surrounded a residence.

Vickie Maxey, 24, and Diana Householder, 23, both of Lakehills, were arrested last week, and both were sent to a jail facility in Atascosa County. Maxey was arrested Sept. 7 and charged with delivery of marijuana. Her probation was reportedly revoked, according to sheriff's office reports. Householder was arrested Sept. 4, and charged with parole violation and possession of marijuana paraphernalia.

The prisoners were sent to Atascosa County, according to sheriff Steve Forest, because the Bandera jail was full. There are 16 cells, but according to jail regulations, male and female prisoners must be kept completely separate. When female prisoners are brought in, seven cells are tied up, he said.

According to Forest, Tuesday the facility contained 12 prisoners.

Ann Radley of the Rio Hondo subdivision near Tarpley reported to the sheriff's office Friday, Sept. 8, a herd of 15 or 20 javelinas surrounded her residence, and had her dog trapped under the house. The dog reportedly suffered injuries, but survived the attack.

Stephen Paul Lewis, 30, of Elgin was arrested Sept. 9 and charged with driving while intoxicated.

James LeMeilleur, 45, of Kerrville, was arrested Sept. and also charged with DWI.

Sept. 4, a stolen vehicle from San Antonio was recovered by the Bandera County Sheriff's department. The vehicle, a 1985 Chevrolet Camaro, had been stripped and set on fire. It was recovered in the area of FM 1283 and Red Bluff Creek.

Seatbelt saved life, trooper says

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

The 1984 Mazda John Martin of San Antonio was driving Saturday, Sept. 9, won't be around any more after it flipped three times south of Pipe Creek. However, Martin, who is being loaded into the Pipe Creek EMS ambulance will drive again, as he was wearing his seat belt and wasn't seriously injured. He was released from the hospital Monday.

A San Antonio man heading towards Bandera can be thankful that he was wearing his seat belt when his truck flipped over three times, but he may face charges for driving while intoxicated.

John Martin, 37, of San Antonio was injured Saturday, Sept. 9, when he took a corner on State Highway 16 too fast, overcompensated, and flipped over three times, with his secured seat belt being the difference between his life and death, police said.

Investigating Department of Safety Trooper Mike Gorrell said if he hadn't had his seat belt on, Martin would he dead. "It (seat belt) was the only thing that kept him in the vehicle," said Gorrell. Martin, the sole occupant of the vehicle may be charged with DWI by the Medina County Attorney, if his blood test comes back positive. Gorrell says there were signs that Martin had consumed alcohol.

Martin was proceeding north on Highway 16, nine miles south of Pipe Creek in Medina County, at well over the speed limit, says Gorrell.

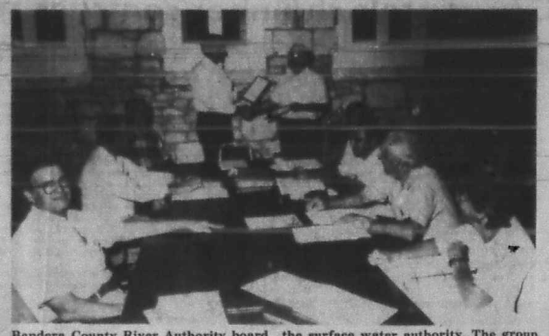
Near a curve, he left the roadon the northbound side. He came back onto the roadway, overcorrected, crossed the center stripe, and left the roadway on the southbound side, and rolled his 1984 Mazda pickup over three times, says Gorrell.

Martin apparently rolled his truck over twice side-over-side and the third time, end-over-end, after hitting something on the front end, theorizes DPS Trooper Dan Butts, who assisted in the investigation.

Martin's truck was found facing the southbound side and he was still in his truck. Passersby cut him loose from the seat belt, which was around his neck.

Martin was taken to Methodist Hospital in San Antonio by Pipe Creek EMS. Bandera and Lakehills EMTs as well as instructors from the Basic Trauma Life Support course being taught to county EMTs in Lakehills also assisted.

Martin was released Monday, Sept. 11, by the hospital, says a hospital spokeswoman. No other details were furnished.



Bandera County River Authority board president Phil Becker, of Bandera, left, presents retiring board member Don E. Karr of Tarpley, with a certificate of appreciation for his service and input to the surface water authority. The group met Tuesday, Sept.5 at the old jail building. Pictured in the foreground are members of the board and the authority's executive director, Ray Buck.

face water regulation.

Current river authority board members are eligible to serve on the new board and are automatically placed on the ballot. Present river authority board members are Phil Becker, Mary Jane Cave, and Craig Tips of Bandera, Joe Cantu and J.B. Edwards of Pipe Creek, J.K. Leighton of Vanderpool, and Morgan Cox and Paul Garrison Jr. of Medina.

Board president Becker pledged to hold opening meetings to educate the people of the county about the new district. He also pledged to educate those citizens who might want to serve on the board.

The board will hold its first educational meeting Thursday, Sept. 14, beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the old Bandera County Jail building. On the agenda posted in the courthouse, the directors say they may also discuss other river authority business.

In other action, the board increased the authority's tax rate by three percent, from 1.12 cents to 1.15 cents per $100 valuation.

The tax rate will generate an income of $55,945, if all the taxes are collected, or a more likely income of $52,029 using the 93 percent historical collection rate.

Guest Linda Stein pointed out to the directors that the authority does not tax people within the city limits of Bandera and the Pebble Beach water district and recommended that they do so.

Becker says the river authority was originally set up to exempt those water districts.

Also questioned was whether these same people would be able to run for the new board of directors.

The budget approved by the board, $60,039, puts the authority in a deficit situation, some $8,010 short of a balanced budget, assuming a $52,029 tax revenue income.

However, the authority has a $37,104 surplus and will use part of the surplus to support the 1989-90 fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1. "The board (in years past) voted to operate on the surplus rather than raise taxes enough for a balanced budget," said Becker.

As with most budgets, the largest expense is personnel and the budget includes $22,500 salary for the executive director.

Other expenses include $3,000 for vehicle operating expenses, $3,600 that will be used towards purchasing a vehicle for the authority's use, and $2,500 for travel and conference expenses.

Other items include $2,000 for equipment, $2,800 for environmental sampling, $1,300 for county tax collection fee, $2,400 for appraisal district fee, and $2,000 for election expenses.

The budget also includes worker's compensation insurance at $353 and liability insurance $2,570.

Professional services budgeted by the authority include $2,000 for an attorney, $1,500 for a consultant and $1,000 as an accounting fee for the financial audit.

In another matter, Throughbred Chevrolet of Bandera and Jennings Anderson Ford of Boerne submitted separate bids for a late model, extended-cab, five-speed manual transmission truck. However, Thoroughbred failed to submit a specification sheet describing exactly what truck they will deliver.

The board opted to advertise for bids again and will open the new or resubmitted bids at its October meeting.

The opened bids were not read at the meeting, and were resealed, and placed in the authority's safe.

The resignation of Tom Denyer, who has moved out of the county, was accepted by the board. A replacement for Denyer must come through Texas Gov. Bill Clements.

Officers for the board were reelected and remain Becker president, Garrison vice-president, and Tips secretary-treasurer.

The accounting firm of Ede and Company of Knippa was awarded the annual financial audit contract for the authority. Ede will perform the audit for $1,000.

Ede will provide an organization-wide financial audit and assist in the preparation of financial statements. The firm will also review the internal control of structure of the authority.

The former firm, Preeler and Thompson of Kerrville, performed the previous audits for $2175 a year. Tips said the new firm would do the same job or better for less money.

Other guests at the meeting were Jud Ashmore, Norman Mansfield and Louise Karr.

4-Hers to speak at bank Sept. 14

Marika Cook and Bradley Floyd will be the project leaders when Bandera County 4-H public speaking project has its first meeting Thursday, Sept. 14 at 7:30 p.m. at Bandera Bank meeting room.

4-H public speaking is open to youths age 8 through 19.

$500 offered for fire info

Bandera County Sheriff Steve Forest announced this week he has offered a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and indictment of suspects in a local burglary and arson investigation.

The sheriff said Tuesday that arson is suspected, and that the July 29 burglary and fire at the Lakehills residence of James C. Reilly Jr. is currently under investigation.

Persons with information "do not have to give their name," the sheriff said. "Information will be accepted either by telephone or mail."

Found at the site of the blaze were a window screen that had been cut and a pillowcase full of property that had been removed from the house. When the sheriff had the items found tested for fingerprints, he said it appeared the suspect or suspects were wearing gloves.

"They're getting smarter," Forest said. "There were no fingerprints found.

Items recovered included a Stevens 12-gauge pump shotgun and an Astra 25-calibre automatic pistol, Forest said.

To report information to the sheriff's office, call 796-3771, or write P.O. Box 607, Bandera Tex., 78003.

Latest PC accident victim raises death record to six

The number of highway-related deaths in Bandera County rose to a decade-high six this week when the Bexar County Medical Examiner's office ruled the Aug. 7 death of Bruce Lee Fore, 37, of Pipe Creek, was due to a fracture of the neck, rather than a heart attack, as first suspected.

Fore died after his Ford Mustang slammed into a two-foot high slab in front of Texas Custom Coach in Pipe Creek last month.

The investigating Department of Public Safety Trooper Joe Cerney speculated that the accident may have been caused when Fore suffered a heart attack, lost control of his vehicle, came across the highway and hit the slab, destroying his vehicle and pinning him inside.

Volunteer Dee Leavitt and Pipe Creek EMT's worked diligently on Fore for apparent cardiac failure, but despite their efforts, Fore was pronounced dead upon arrival at the hospital.

A spokesman for the medical examiners office said the cause of death has been ruled as a fracture of neck. "A heart attack was ruled out," says the spokesman.

Fore's death brings the number of people killed to a decade-high six in automobile accidents in Bandera County, all in the Pipe Creek area. One youth died May 10 from accident-related injuries from a one-car rollover on FM Road 1283 May 8 south of Pipe Creek. Four people were killed Feb. 3 on State Highway 16 in a three-car collision west of Pipe Creek.

Since 1982, there have been 36 highway-related accidents in Bandera County, including five in 1982, 1984, and 1985.

Duck group will flock to The Farm Sept. 27

The Bandera chapter of Ducks Unlimited will hold its annual banquet Wednesday, Sept. 27, at The Farm on FM Road 2828 west of Bandera.

Tickets are $30 each or $50 a couple and include hors d'oeuvres, an open bar, and a buffet supper.

Items such as paintings, guns, a Labrador retriever puppy, and other waterfowl-related items will be sold at an auction and offered as prizes, says chairman Joe McMullan.

Shooters will be able to test their skills at a fun shoot that starts at 4 p.m. Supper will be served at 6:30 p.m. with the auction to follow.

Ducks Unlimited claims to be the world's largest waterfowl conservation organization. Organized more than a half-century ago, the group works to make certain that water and habitat are available for waterfowl when they need it most, McMullan said.

City

While the city plans to spend $612,000 during the 12 months that begin on Oct. 1, it also expects to take in $612,000 from its various sources.

Largest source of income is the sales tax, which figures to produce $135,000, up $5,000 or 3.8 percent more than was budgeted last year.

The city also expects to receive $65,000 from ad valorem (property) taxes, $35,000 from municipal court fines, and $38,000 from gross receipts taxes, including the hotel occupancy tax.

Dogs

for fun," says Green.

Coyotes, on the other hand, usually eat some of the meat, but not always, says Green.

The dogs in the recent attacks know how to kill sheep and goats, says Green, whereas most roaming dogs "just pull off slabs of meat and bite in the (animal's) butt."

Part of Green's job as county inspector is to assess livestock kills, determine if dogs killed the animals, and then place a value on the livestock.

The county doesn't pay for coyote damage, so Green must examine the tracks in the area to determine what predator killed the livestock. "I know the difference between dog tracks and coyote tracks," he says.

Green says he is in favor of a dog catcher for the county. "The dog catcher should be authorized to pick up dogs running loose in the county and then destroy them if not claimed within a specified time," says Green.

Additionally, the dog catcher should be authorized to put up snares and set out poison.

The county reimburses farmers and ranchers from a $1 fee for dog license tags. Each October the county pays up to half of the fund to ranchers submitting claims. Many ranchers are not paid their full request, because there is usually not enough money in the fund to pay all the requests.

Many ranchers don't use the county dog fund for reimbursement because they don't always get full value. "At least 1/2 to 2/3 of the people don't go through this because they figure they get little out of it anyway," says Green.

The number of dogs registered has dropped every year since 1980, thus dropping the fund each year.

In the 1980-81 county fiscal year, some 982 dogs were registered bringing the balance in the dog fund to $1,834, reports the Bandera County treasurer's office.

During the next five years, the fund continued to accumulate as commissioners did not pay much money out of the fund, saving it for a dog holding facility. By Sept. 30, 1985, there was $5,896 in the fund, but that fiscal year only 525 dogs were registered.

In 1986, commissioners dropped the plan to build a dog pound-type facility and paid out $2,948 for slain livestock, but the continued registration of dogs by county citizens and the interest earned on the balance, brought the fund balance to $3,474 by Sept. 30, 1986.

But in the next two years, the dogs registered and hence the income to the fund dropped to $400 and then $377, while payments from the fund were $1,700 and $1,150.

Budget

bers didn't know about. She was assured there was none.

Mazurek pointed out, however, that some taxing entities do keep large contingency funds. "It's come to light that the county has a contingency fund larger than we do," the appraisal board director said. "I think it's over $100,000."

Bandera County has a projected $267,300 in surplus funds from its 1988-89 budget that it will carry over into its 1989-90 budget, but those funds are allocated to specific funds and are printed in the published budget document. These include $150,000 in the general fund, $70,000 in the indigent health care fund, and $13,840 in the juvenile probation fund.

While Mazurek insisted that the unbudgeted $52,000 was not being concealed, council members Stephens and Geneva Dowell openly disagreed. Mazurek told them the money was invested in an interest-bearing account, but it was not included in the district's budget. "To me, that's hiding it," remarked Dowell.

The city rejected the budget by a 2 to 1 vote, with council member Charlie Eckhart abstaining. Dowell and Stephens voted to reject it, and Robert Skinner voted not to.

Bandera County Commissioners Monday, Aug. 11; also turned thumbs-down to the appraisal district's $247,800 budget, citing the same surplus and the almost 13 percent increase in salary for two employees.

Commissioner Dan Alanis recommended rejecting the budget because he said it was not complete because it didn't show the $52,000 surplus. The board should budget the money for the maps rather than increasing their budget or return the money to the taxing entities, Alanis said.

Alanis also said the board reported an overall eight-percent increase in salaries, but some employees raises were excessive.

The appraisal district budget has proposed a five-percent raise for Reagan and the administrator of appraisal services, giving them a $31,500 and $21,180 salary, respectively.

These raises did not draw the ire of commissioners. "Five percent is fine and I won't argue with eight percent," said commissioner Roger Raser.

Raises that helped compel commissioners to reject the budget were the 11.6 percent increase to $15,000 for the data processor and the 12.7 percent increase to $14,400 for the abstractor and field appraiser III.

Five percent should be considered a good raise considering the current economic conditions, commented commissioner N.P. "Bud" Thompson.

Commissioners recommended to the district that they hold their salary increases to five percent and credit the $52,000 surplus to the budget, Bandera County Judge Ray F. Mauer told Reagan in a letter.

A new law, also cited in Mauer's letter, requires that appraisal districts credit any budget year surplus to each taxing unit in proportion to the amount each unit paid. "If the total amount of the payments made or due to be made by the taxing units participating in an appraisal district exceeds the amount actually spent or obligated to be spent during the fiscal year for which the payments were made, the chief appraiser shall credit the excess amount against each taxing unit's amount of each unit's budget allocation for the fiscal year for which the payments were made," states the law that took effect Sept. 1.

Reagan, in a Sept. 5 letter to Mauer, said the new law does not apply to the surplus currently held by the appraisal district, which is a carry-over from past years.

Bandera County Attorney Sam Darden refutes Reagan's interpretation however, by saying, "The law is clear that any surplus must be credited to the appraisal district budget."

The appraisal district's budget document does not show the surplus in any way, which should keep the district from spending the surplus.

Rainfall in Bandera County varies up to eight inches

Scattered rains came to Bandera County this week, but according to reports from various points, the amounts of rainfall varied from none to reports of almost eight inches between Sunday night and early Tuesday morning.

With the welcomed rain came reports Monday from public works director Melvin King that the city well level measured 91 feet, up more than 10 feet from when it was last measured.

Most of this week's rain so far seems to have centered in the Pipe Creek and Bandera areas. Jimmie Ruth Saathoff reported that 4.5 inches fell Sunday night, and 1.5 inches of rain fell Monday night at her home in Pipe Creek. Other reports in the Pipe Creek area ranged upwards to eight inches or more in the two-day period. Becky Densford reported 3.8 inches of rain Sunday night in the Madrona Ranch subdivision near Pipe Creek.

King reported .2 inches of rain in Bandera Sunday night, and 3 inches Monday night. Billy Griffin with the Bandera Soil Conservation Service reported .76 inches of rain Sunday night.

Lakehills was not quite so lucky. Ernest Reich ill reported that he got .33 inches Sunday night, and no rain at all Monday night.

In Tarpley, Anton Haner reported no rain Sunday night, and other reports from that community said no rain at all fell during the two day period.

On the north prong in Medina, no rain was reported Sunday night, but .11 inches fell Monday night. About .6 inches were reported on Stringtown Road in Medina.

A Look Back At Bandera

6 years ago... Mr. and Mrs. Lane Langford were preparing to celebrate their Golden Wedding Anniversary, and a baby boy, Brandon Michael Mangold was born to Mr. and Mrs. Michael Mangold. The newly-formed Bandera County Helping Hand was busily adopting a charter, and BHS senior Lisa Vokey had returned from the National Leadership Training Center at Camp Cheley, Estes Park, Colorado. Bud Cox was the winner of the Great Gumbo Cookoff, and was interviewed on KBUC radio by Judd Ashmore. Bandera Independent School District was negotiating for a site to build their new elementary school, and Bandera County abandoned a proposed landfill site off Bumpgate Road between Pipe Creek and Lakehills. Utopia school district raised taxes to get an 18.45 increase in revenues, and a crowd of more than 800 came to the annual Labor Day Tarpley barbecue. Tarpley School alums that attended included Edith Edwards, Etta Simpson Billings and Willie and Olga Mesch Schmidt, who were also celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary at the time. And Larry and Jerry Upton cut the ribbon on their brand new Captain's Corner Car Wash.

Heisler voted to 2nd term as lake VFD president

Marion Heisler was reelected to a second year as president in a closely contested election to lead the Medina Lake Volunteer fire department.

The Rev. B.J. Rogers of the Lakehills United Methodist Church was elected vice-president by the approximately 38 members who came to the Tuesday, Sept. 12, meeting.

Bill Mooney was reelected as treasurer and Smokey Settlemeyer took the secretary's position. Gary Cook was voted to serve as sergeant-at-arms.

Current fire chief Ralph Dresser retained his position and his assistants are Charlie Blair, first assistant; Bill Kelley, second assistant; and former vice-president Randy Potts, third assistant chief.

Elected or reelected to the board of directors were Weldon Halsey, Ray Heisler, Lee Malia, and Skip Willis.

VFD driveway progresses

The first phase of the new Medina Lake Volunteer Fire Department central firehouse's driveway has been completed.

The base material has been hauled, spread, and rolled for the front and back driveways, reports department president Marion Heisler.

Paul Wilson, who donated the material and labor, also spread base material for the firehouse's barbecue room on the south end of the building, reports Heisler.

In the next phase of work on the driveway, the department will have a six-foot concrete apron poured to be used as an approach to the firehouse. The driveway will be paved from the concrete apron to Park Road 37 in front and a concrete approach to the county road in back of the firehouse will also be poured, says Heisler.

Other work complete at the firehouse includes most of the outside plumbing, and framing of the inside storeroom, rest rooms, and radio room.

Work left to be completed includes other framing in the building, paneling, and plumbing and electrical work.

Lakehills

The Basic Trauma Life Support class held for 11 Bandera County EMTs at the Lakehills Civic Center brought out the best in community support over Sept. 8-10.

The Lakehills EMS Support Team paid for supplies for the class including juice, coffee, donuts, sodas, ice tea, snacks, and lunch served two days.

People from the Pipe Creek and Lakehills community helped by bringing cakes, cookies and desserts.

Area community members helped set up and take down the tables and chairs for the class at the Lakehills Civic Center. The Medina Lake Betterment Association waived the charge for the building rental.

The Medina Lake Volunteer Fire Department brought in some of their equipment for the class.

Boy Scouts from Boy Scout Troop #144 were the "patients" the EMTs tested their skill on Sunday.

Thousand Trails furnished 10 RVs for instructors' two-night accommodations.

Area businesses also donated many ice chest loads of ice.

Member drive

The annual membership drive dinner for the American Legion Post 410 and Auxiliary Unit 410 will be held at 6 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 16 at the Legion's post in Lakehills.

Barbecue beef with trimmings and beer will be served free to members presenting their paid-up 1990 cards on admission, reports spokeswoman Jerry Mauer.

"Officers of the two organizations have authorized cash door prizes to be awarded at a drawing to be held during the evening," she says. Members must be present to win.

Mike Griffin of Lakehills tries his new profession out on his son at the Lakehills Barber Shop in Heisler Square. Griffin, a disabled Viet Nam veteran, learned his new skill through the Veterans Administration and he says he has been cutting hair for a year now. He offers the standard hair cut and shave as well as flat top, the layered and tapered hair cuts. He also does shampoos. "I plan on being here in Lakehills for the rest of my life," he says. Senior citizen health check Monday at Lakehills Legion

A free health check for senior citizens will be offered Monday, Sept. 18, at the American Legion Hall on 26th Street in Lakehills.

The check, conducted by South Texas Health Check of San Antonio, is designed for persons over 50 years and will test for blood pressure, cataract, glaucoma, cholesterol and glucose levels.

The check is sponsored by Medina Lake Chapter #3638 of the AARP as a community project.

The testing will be conducted from 10 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

It is an awareness program, telling people what could be wrong, says a spokeswoman for the clinic.

Gumbo offered at grand opening

Free gumbo will be featured Saturday, Sept. 16, at the grand opening of Hanky Panky's Gift Shop at the Barrel House Center in Pipe Creek.

The gumbo will be served starting at 3 p.m. and the shop will first open at 8 a.m.

The shop will be located in the old Robert's Liquor store and will also house Robert's Lock and Key shop.

Henrietta "Hank" White has moved her shop from her previous Wharton's Dock location and expects lots of traffic in Pipe Creek.

Two flea markets coming to Lakehills

Two flea markets will be held in Lakehills this month, one at the Lakehills Civic Center Saturday, Sept. 16, and another at St. Victor's Chapel in Lakehills, Saturday, Sept. 30.

The flea market at the civic center on Park Road 37 will open at 9 a.m.

Breakfast tacos and chicken fajitas will be available beginning at 9 a.m. Gumbo cookoff competitor Wilbur Busby will be making the chicken fajitas. Cold drinks will also be available.

Tables inside the center are $7.50 and outside spaces are $5. Marketeers can start setting up as early as 8 a.m.

Table or space reservations can be made by calling 751-3306 or 751-8302.

The Sept. 30 flea market at St. Victor's Chapel will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and as of Sunday, Sept. 10, the church had 12 spaces reserved.

The church's altar society will have the food concession and will be selling hot dogs, tamales, cookies, cakes, soda water, coffee and ice tea.

Table spaces are available for $3 and $4, depending on the size of the table. If a vendor would like just a space for their own table or back of a pickup, the price is $3, says Cecelia Hartmann.

There will be no electricity available to the tables or spaces, and space under the pavilion for marketeers will be on a first-come, first-served basis, says Hartmann.

Reservations can be made by calling 535-6247, 751-2904, or 751-2264.

Proceeds from the market will benefit the church.

Driving class still has openings

There are still spaces left for the driving improvement class sponsored by Medina Lake Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons.

The "55-Alive Mature Driving Course" for those 50 years of age or older, will be taught Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 20-21, from 8:30-12:30 a.m., reports instructor June Settlemeyer.

Those interested in reservations may call Settlemeyer at 751-2297, or if no answer, may call 751-2767.

The course will be taught at the Lakehills United Methodist Church from 8:30-12:30 a.m.

Improved EMS techniques improve victim's chances

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Some 11 Bandera County EMTs were certified in Basic Trauma Life Support (BTLS), a life saving skill that well could save the lives of county trauma victims by getting them to the hospital within the critical first hour.

The course, which was designed for basic skill-level EMTs, was taught to 19 students, of which 11 were from Bandera County, on a government-agency cost-sharing basis.

Eight EMTs were from Lakehills, one from Pipe Creek, and two from Bandera over a three-day period, reports spokeswoman Dot McCracken.

BTLS for basic EMTs focuses on pre-hospital care, the time before the patient gets to the emergency room, in order to lessen the time on the scene and get the patient to the hospital or trauma center that can handle the patient's particular problem the best. "We teach them to examine the patient from the top of the head to bottom of their feet as quickly as possible," says principal instructor Diane Fisher, a Cibolo paramedic for the Schertz Area Facility Emergency Services (SAFES) and EMS regional coordinator and affiliate facility for the Texas Department of Health Region VI.

Basic EMTs were taught to recognize critical injuries quickly and to realize if the patient needs an operating room, says Fisher. "The more time EMTs waste on the scene, the less chance the patient has," she says.

Time is as critical as the injuries and EMTs must keep in mind how long it takes to find a patient once they get the call, assess the injuries, extricate a patient from a wreck, and assess the road conditions they'll have to drive on. "A critically injured patient doesn't have time to waste," says Fisher.

In order to keep the chances of survival as high as possible, critical trauma patients need to receive the proper field care quickly and generally have 60 minutes from the time of the injury to get to a hospital emergency room.

Critical trauma patients are those with cardio-pulmonary arrest due to an accident, with multiple fractures, with chest injuries so bad the patient can't breathe, and with head injuries such as a fractured or open skull, says Fisher.

EMTs are taught to treat what needs to be done at the scene and what needs to be done in the ambulance. "Don't do treatment on the street, such as bandaging wounds and splinting fractures, rather get the patient into the ambulance and do the treatment in the ambulance," says Fisher.

Much of the care depends on assessment, so the proper scene and ambulance treatment can be carried out and the hospital can be notified what emergency services need to be provided. It is as important for the right doctors, nurses, and operating room to be at the hospital as the EMT to know how to do their job.

EMTs do not make diagnoses, she adds, but they have to treat signs and symptoms. While in the ambulance and on the radio to the emergency care facility, the EMTs are the "Eyes, hands, ears, and brain of the physician," says Fisher.

EMTs in critical trauma instances have to keep one step ahead of the patient. "The EMT has to think, 'I know what the patient is doing now, but how will the patient begin doing in the next couple of minutes?'" says Fisher.

EMTs are taught when not to use certain techniques, such as using equipment that introduces oxygen via pressure to a patient with a chest or head injury, because rupture can result, says Fisher.

The course taught the EMTs different techniques to keep the patient breathing, use of pressure pants known as medical anti-shock trousers (MAST) to improve the patient's blood pressure, how to use back boards and other tools to keep a patient's spine immovable, and how to take a patient quickly and safely out of a vehicle.

Bandera County commissioners paid the $75 fee per county EMT and the fee for the five EMTs from Helotes and three from Schertz were paid by their respective agencies.

The course involved lecture, skills practice, and written and skills testing.

Since March 1988, Fisher has trained over 600 EMTs, paramedics, RNs and doctors in BTLS in two different types of courses.

$24,956. Even at the higher level, Mauer's salary is still $5,296 less than Bandera County chief appraiser Larry Reagan's $31,500 salary.

Commissioners also received a five percent raise, bringing their long-time $8,961 a year salary up to $9,605.

At a previous budget workshop, Barker opposed the raise, saying, "If I can't pave my (precinct's) roads and do the improvements I need to do, I don't need a raise."

Commissioner N.P. "Bud" Thompson of Vanderpool initially also opposed the raise, saying he had supplemental income, but made no final statement when the budget was approved.

Commissioner Dan Alanis of Lakehills said after seven years without a raise, the commissioners had to start compensating for inflation somewhere.

Commissioner Roger Raser said he has had to supplement his income from his business. "I'm not interested in the income itself, but that income gives me more time to spend on the job of commissioner," he said.

Another increase in the commissioners' budget is a change from a $316 per month travel allowance to a $400 per month travel allowance.

Conference expense was also increased from $500 per year to $6,000 to be spread among all four commissioners. Alanis said a new state requirement that commissioners received 20 hours per year training made the increase necessary.

percent over the 1989 effective maintenance and operating tax rate.

The operating fund revenues will include $1,517,856, or 30.62 percent in state funds, and [illegible] local sources.

The majority of the increase in expenditures is to fund state mandated salary increases. The state legislature passed a bill at the last minute before ending their session that increased expenditures, but they made no provisions for funding, leaving the burden on local districts, according to Dockery.

Additional personnel, including two teachers, a counselor, a clerk and a custodian have hiked the school district's budget. An increase in the appraisal district budget also contributed to the tax hike, according to officials.

Several board members expressed concern that a large tax increase could have a negative effect on a future bond election in the district.

The first vote taken, for a 25-percent tax increase, failed by a vote of five to two, with Katie Ruede and James Wagner voting for it.

Cindy Woodland joined Ruede and Wagner in voting for a 22-percent hike was voted down four to three.

Ruede and Wagner voted against the 9.7 percent increase.

The board also voted at Monday's meeting to change its regular meeting time to the second Monday of each month starting Oct. 9.

When the board met Tuesday, Sept. 12, it voted unanimously to adopt an updated discipline management plan to conform with recent legislation; to adopt a new student attendance policy; to adopt more strict performance criteria for the teacher career ladder; and to approve local policy updates.

Administrative assistant Ken Kling gave the board an overview of the student testing program for 1989-90, and told the board this is the last year the state will use the TEAMS testing system.

Pony Express riders due here Saturday

Pony Express riders carrying real mail will race into Bandera and out again Saturday, Sept. 16, in the midst of a Kerrville-to-Bandera-to-Kerrville ride promoting Kerrville's 100th birthday.

Riders carrying real letters dispatched for $5 each will depart from the Shelton Ranch at 7:30 a.m. after a public send-off breakfast on the ranch grounds.

Thirty-four riders stationed with their mounts at three-mile intervals will carry the mail to Bandera, Center Point, Comfort, Fredericksburg, Harper and back to Kerrville, a 109-mile trip.

At the turnaround point at the intersection of state Highways 16 and 173 (The Wrangler Steak House), the rider will pick up more letters and leave any that senders wish delivered in Bandera, says ride organizer Hazelle Calcote.

Letters will carry a Kerrville Centennial postmark and will be accepted at the starting point on the day of the ride or prior to the ride at the Century 21 office at 500 Main St. in Kerrville, Calcote said.

Riders will be escorted by Centennial volunteers as well as DPS troopers and local law enforcement officers, the organizer said.

The last rider, Connie Reeves, 88, is expected to reach Louise Hays Park south of Kerrville at about 6:30 p.m. Saturday. "I've done just about every kind of riding there is," says Reeves, "but this is the first time I've ever carried mail!"

The ride is designed to call attention to Kerrville's Centennial activities which will wind up Sept. 22-24 with the River City Fair, Calcote said. "Although there wasn't a real Pony Express route through this part of Texas," says Calcote, "the ride will show participants and spectators the way everything — not just mail — traveled 100 years ago. The Pony Express operated between St. Joseph, Mo., and Sacramento, Calif. from April 1860 to October 1861.

The organizer is still looking for a few more riders and alternates, and anyone interested in participating may call Calcote in Kerrville at 896-3200 or 257-7964.

Anyone still having hunting leases available may call Nancy at the Bandera County Chamber of Commerce. She says she gets calls all the time about that sort of thing.

• Next week is Constitution Week. It's another excuse to party, but more than that, according to an ad in this newspaper, you can send away for a free copy of the U.S. Constitution. I did.

• Several mistakes were discovered in last week's What's Rustlin', and I want to correct them here.

It is Carol Noble who is the noble owner of that Cowboy Capital-looking beauty salon, Bandera Top Hands, and one of the gals working there is not Cookie Standard. She's Cookie Day, and by the way, she does great nails.

Cookie Standard is a nurse, of course, and was the head nurse at Purple Hills when my little boy was there 10 years ago. She was so darling to him that she remains in my mind, so I'm sure it was a "Freudian slip."

And the chicken joke in last week's column was changed all around before it went to print. It originated with A.P., who says he's getting it copyrighted the right way. Still, Dick Peterson said it was better than my jokes.

• The New Purple Cow not only has a buffet and piano player, Miss Kitty, on Sunday and Wednesday, but it also has a shoeshine gal.

• Twin Elm Guest Ranch is still holding bull riding competition each week, only they've changed from Thursday to Saturday at 7 p.m. with a fun calf scramble for kiddies.

It's something great to tell the tourists about.

Visitors also will love the upcoming Ranchers' Rodeo and Bailey O'Neil's dry sense of humor. We're glad he's back to punchin' plain ol' cattle after his travels on exotic game ranches.

• I've been told I talk too much and too loudly, but that's how I got this job. I guess I've got to change songs, however, because Debby at the OST said she'd take my order when I called her only if I'd lower my voice.

Hey, aren't we still on a tin can and string?

And shutterbug Larry Williams told me I'm Bandera's answer to the Pratt and Whitney wind tunnel.

• Have you seen the Bandera County Republican Party's poster for its upcoming salad feast on Sept. 22? "Lettuce have a 24 carrot fundraiser," it says. I love it!

Fall Book Fair planned at Kerrville public library

"Fall Book Fair" is planned by the Friends of the Butt-Holdsworth Memorial Library in Kerrville Sept. 16-17.

The book fair will have a county fair theme tied to Kerrville's centennial celebration, according to publicity director Bonnie Arnold. The library is located at 505 Water Street in Kerrville, and the phone number is 257-8422.

Proceeds from the sale will benefit special projects in the Kerrville library, Arnold says.

Among the books donated so far are biographies, literature, self-help, business and finance, math, travel, science, gardening, music, history, medical, law, religion, reference, children's and young adult books, fiction and magazines, she says.

The friends have reportedly collected 20,000 so far, including hardbacks, paperbacks and magazines.

For more information, call the library between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m.; or book fair chairman Tricia Mathews at 895-1010 or Kay Wilson at 896-2182.

River City Fair set

Arts and crafts, food and beverages will be plentiful at the Kerrville Centennial River City Fair, Sept. 22-24 at Louise Hays Park and Tranquility Island.

For more information, call the Centennial Store and Headquarters in Kerrville at 792-3500.

Piano recital slated

A piano recital will be held Sept. 17 beginning at 3 p.m. in the Treadaway Auditorium at St. Mary's University in San Antonio.

Chilympiad set

"Hot, hotter and hotter-than-heck" describes the bowls of "Texas red" that will be served up at the 20th annual Republic of Texas Chilympiad Sept. 15-17 in San Marcos.

More than 600 contestants are expected, and cookoff categories will include collegiate, commercial, media and junior.

Counterpoint plays

"Counterpoint," a national juried photography, graphic and crafts exhibition began Sept. 3 and will continue through Sept. 23 at the Hill Country Arts Foundation in Ingram.

The exhibit includes entries from nine states.

Your basic

Bandera

By Peggy Tobin

Somebody recently mentioned that, under the terms of the new law permitting proceeds from the hotel-motel occupancy tax to be collected county-wide come October 1, money could be allocated to support "The Arts."

In some communities, the possibility of public funding would bring requests immediately from theatre groups, music ensembles, ballet troupes, art museums. Needless to say that, except for a few organizations of what have to be called Sunday painters, Bandera County has no active groups working in The Arts. We will be spared the controversy always surrounding the allocation for funds for The Arts elsewhere.

Thinking about all this, we began to try to take a mental inventory of The Arts around here as evidenced by art work on outdoor public display. Some courthouse squares have abronze statue honoring soldiers of the Confederacy. In Ireland, almost every town has a grotto featuring a chaste marble Virgin Mary. On the high point of the mountain overlooking both Dunmanus and Bantry Bays in our own Irish neighborhood is a monumental copy of Michelangelo's Pieta. The spectacular piece was donated by members of the Burke family, who went to Wyoming with some of our own uncles and cousins about the turn of the century. Bandera has no such major monument.

Every bank in Houston has out front the kind of abstract construction of rusting or painted metal which passes these days for a Significant Statement on the part of the welder who made it. A piece like that, when Hemisfair was being dismantled, was taken off to the San Antonio dump a few years ago. Everyone was amused except the donor, who couldn't understand the lack of awareness on the part of the clean-up crew that the thing was True Art. We're glad Sully doesn't want anything like this.

So anyway — what kind of public art does Bandera have? Not much. There is the statue of St. Isadore or San Ysidro, patron of farmers, in a niche outside St. Stanislaus Church. The new stations of the cross, recently made by Mike Jureczki, in the parish cemetery surely qualify as public art. And there is the St. Christopher by the late Bob Winn of San Antonio looking out on the Kerrville highway from the front gable of the Episcopal Church.

So now we come to the row of commemorative structures in front of the courthouse. The handsome monument to Bandera's cowboy rodeo champions designed by Norma Jean Anderwald and topped with the bronze sculpture by Lloyd Woodbury sort of takes the place of our missing Confederate soldier, as does the granite boulder honoring the memory of first settler, Veteran Amasa Clark.

Soon the totem pole carved from wood years ago by the late great folk-lorist Charlie Eckhart will be back in place in front of Frontier Times Museum. Fred Collins is having to replace from scratch so many of the animal and bird faces in restoring the pole that he deserves to have his name on it also when the work is finished.

Whatever happened to the historic wooden cut-out figure of Zeke which use to greet entrants to our town from atop the old corner drug store? He should join the graceful wrought iron eagle decorating The Forge.

Sea World has new hours

Sea World of Texas in San Antonio will shift to its five-day-a-week fall schedule on Wednesday, Sept. 13.

The marine life park's lineup of more than 25 shows, exhibits and attractions, including killer whale Baby Shamu, will be joined by a program of special events kicking off in September.

Beginning Sept. 13, Sea World of Texas will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesdays through Sundays, and from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturdays. It will be closed Mondays and Tuesdays during the fall and winter. Days and hours of operation will be extended during holiday periods.

Sea World's "Fall Funfest" will pay tribute to the cultural diversity of the Lone Star State with a program of special events.

A Diez y Seis Celebration on Sept. 16 and 17 will herald the contributions of Spain and Mexico to Texan heritage; Cajun Days Sept. 23 and 24 will spotlight French Acadian influences on Texan culture; and Western Days Sept. 30 and Oct. 1 will celebrate the spirit of the Old West. Each celebration will include special entertainment, foods and exhibits throughout the park.

Medina County Fair set for Sept. 16-17

Entertainment, exhibits, food and games will be featured at the Medina County Fair Sept. 16 and 17.

Beginning Thursday, Sept. 14 a carnival will be held on the fairgrounds for four days.

Fair festivities will begin with a parade through downtown Hondo Saturday at 10 a.m.

Bandera air guard pilot flies in Amarillo air show

Texas Air National Guard Capt. Mike Braun of Bandera flew an F-16 jet fighter in an Amarillo air show Saturday, Aug. 26.

Capt. Braun, in civilian life a pilot for American Airlines, is a pilot for the Texas Air Guard's Kelly Air Force Base unit that flies the F-16, the same aircraft that are flown by the Air force's precision flying team, the Thunderbirds.

He flew the F-4 aircraft for the 182TFS unit converted to the F-16. He has over 1,000 hours in fighter aircraft.

Braun was one of the pilots that participated in a fly-by at the opening of Sea World water park last year.

The Amarillo show also featured performances by the U.S. Navy parachute team, the "Leapfrogs," New Mexico's National Guard precision flying team, Bob Hoover and the Budlight micro jet.

Braun and his wife, Diana, own and operate Braun Drug locally.

Scout night scheduled Thursday

Boys that want to participate in scouting this year can sign up at "Scout Night" Thursday, Sept. 14, at Alkek Elementary beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Boys in first through fifth grades can join cub scouts and boys 11 years through high-school age can join boy scouts, says spokeswoman Barbara Story.

The recruiting event is primarily for boys that are not currently active in scouting, says assistant scoutmaster Cliff Henry. However, current boy scouts will be in attendance so they can tell other boys of their experiences.

There are two boy scout troops, #144 based in Pipe Creek and led by Tom Beer and #146, based in Bandera and covering much of the county under the leadership of Jimmy Killinger.

There is one cub scout pack, #146.

Call Story at 535-4797 for more information.

PUBLIC NOTICE

BRIEF EXPLANATORY STATEMENTS OF PROPOSED

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS

SPECIAL ELECTION
NOVEMBER 7, 1989

PROPOSITION NO. 1
ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 102 proposes a constitutional amendment that would increase the salary of members of the legislature to one-fourth of the Governor's salary and increase the salary of the Lieutenant Governor and the Speaker of the House of Representatives to one-half of the Governor's salary. The annual salary of members of the legislature, the Lieutenant Governor, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives is currently $7,200. Under this provision, the annual salary of the Lieutenant Governor and the Speaker would be $46,716, and the annual salary of members of the legislature would be $23,358, based on the Governor's current annual salary of $93,432. The increase for the Speaker and the members of the legislature would take effect when the legislature convenes for its regular session in January 1991. The increase for the Lieutenant Governor would take effect when the term of that office begins in 1991. The salary increase for the Lieutenant Governor would not make members of the legislature ineligible to run for the office of Lieutenant Governor.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to limit the salary of the lieutenant governor and the speaker of the house of representatives to not more than one-half of the governor's salary and to limit the salary of a member of the legislature to not more than one-fourth of the governor's salary."

PROPOSITION NO. 2
ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 8 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize the Texas Water Development Board to issue an additional $500 million of Texas water development bonds. The additional bonds are to be used as follows: $250 million of the bonds are to be used for water supply loans and facilities acquisition; $200 million of the bonds are to be used for water quality enhancement projects; and $50 million of the bonds are to be used for flood control. The legislature may provide that $100 million be used for subsidized loans and grants to economically distressed areas of the state for water and wastewater facilities.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to authorize the issuance of an additional $500 million of Texas water development bonds for water supply, water quality, and flood control purposes."

PROPOSITION NO. 3
ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 81 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize the legislature to provide for the issuance of general obligation bonds to provide money to establish a Texas agricultural fund, a rural microenterprise development fund, a Texas product development fund, and a Texas small business incubator fund in the state treasury. The Texas agricultural fund would be used to provide financial assistance to develop, increase, improve, or expand the production, processing, marketing, or export of crops or products grown or produced in Texas by Texas agricultural businesses. The rural microenterprise development fund would be used to stimulate the creation and expansion of small businesses in rural areas. The Texas product development fund would be used to aid in the development and production of new or improved products in this state. The Texas small business incubator fund would be used to stimulate the development of business incubator facilities. The financial assistance offered by both funds could include loan guarantees, insurance, coinsurance, loans, and indirect loans or purchases or acceptances of assignments of loans or other obligations. To carry out the Texas product development fund, the legislature could authorize loans, loan guarantees, and equity investments, and the issuance of up to $25 million of general obligation bonds for initial funding. To carry out the Texas small business incubator fund, the legislature could authorize loans and grants of money, and the issuance of up to $20 million of general obligation bonds for initial funding.

Bonds authorized under this amendment would be paid out of the first money coming into the treasury in each fiscal year that is not otherwise appropriated by the constitution, less any amount in any interest and sinking account at the end of the preceding fiscal year that is pledged to payment of the bonds or interest.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to provide for the recovery and further development of the state's economy, with goals of increasing job opportunities and other benefits for Texas residents, through state financing of the development and production of Texas products and businesses."

PROPOSITION NO. 4
ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 13 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize the legislature, by general law, to exempt from ad valorem taxes property owned by nonprofit veterans organizations that are chartered or incorporated by the United States Congress.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to authorize the legislature to exempt property of nonprofit veterans organizations from ad valorem taxation."

PROPOSITION NO. 5
ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 11 proposes a constitutional amendment that would provide an exemption from ad valorem taxation for goods, wares, merchandise, other tangible personal property (including aircraft), and ores (other than oil, gas, and petroleum products) if the property is acquired in or imported into the state and is destined to be forwarded out of the state, regardless of whether the intention to forward the property existed when the property was acquired or imported into the state, if it remains in Texas for 175 days or less for assembly, storage, manufacture, processing, or fabrication. The proposed amendment would authorize the governing body of a county, municipality, school district, or junior college district to prevent the exemption of all tangible personal property from taxation by taking official action before April 1, 1990. A county, municipality, school district, or junior college district could rescind a decision to tax the property, in which case the exemption would become effective in the year of the rescission and the property could not thereafter be taxed.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment promoting economic growth, job creation, and fair tax treatment for Texans who export goods to other states and nations by restricting and allowing, on a local option basis, an ad valorem tax exemption for certain personal property that is in Texas only temporarily for the purpose of assembling, storing, manufacturing, processing, or fabricating and that is then exported to another state or nation; providing for the appointment of members of the governing boards of certain local taxing units; providing for the effect of the amendment on certain contracts; and providing for the effective date of the amendment."

PROPOSITION NO. 6

"Authorizing the members of a hospital district governing board to serve four-year terms."

PROPOSITION NO. 7
ON THE BALLOT

All elected and appointed officers would be required to take an oath or affirmation swearing to faithfully execute the duties of office and to preserve, protect, and defend the constitution and laws of the State and the United States. In addition, each elected and appointed officer would be required to sign a sworn statement that he or she has not paid, offered, or promised anything of value for a vote or to secure appointment to an office, as applicable. The written, sworn statement would be filed with the secretary of state. The information in the statement is currently contained in the oaths of office taken by elected and appointed officials.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to require that a member of the legislature, the secretary of state, and an elected or appointed officer, before assuming office, sign a written oath stating that the member, the secretary of state, or the officer did not engage in bribery to obtain the office."

PROPOSITION NO. 8
ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 24 proposes a constitutional amendment that would allow the legislature to authorize the issuance of up to $400 million in general obligation bonds. The proceeds of the bonds would be used to acquire, construct, or equip new corrections institutions, mental health and mental retardation institutions, youth corrections institutions, and statewide law enforcement facilities and to repair and renovate existing facilities of those institutions. The bonds would constitute a general obligation of the state. The bonds and interest on the bonds would be paid from the first money coming into the treasury that is not otherwise appropriated by the constitution, less any amount in a sinking fund at the end of the preceding fiscal year that is pledged to payment of the bonds or interest.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the issuance of general obligation bonds for projects relating to facilities of corrections institutions, youth corrections institutions, and mental health and mental retardation institutions and for the expansion of statewide law enforcement facilities."

PROPOSITION NO. 9
ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 101 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize the legislature to pass laws to organize and combine state agencies that perform criminal justice functions. The legislature could combine into one or more agencies all agencies that have authority over the confinement and supervision of convicted criminals, that set standards for or distribute state funds to political subdivisions with authority over the confinement and supervision of convicted criminals, and that gather information about criminal justice administration. Agencies that could be combined would include the Texas Department of Corrections, the Board of Pardons and Paroles, and the Texas Adult Probation Commission. The amendment would also authorize the legislature to pass laws authorizing the appointment of members of more than one department of government to serve on the governing body.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to organize and combine various state agencies that perform criminal justice functions."

PROPOSITION NO. 10
ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 4 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize the legislature to enact laws requiring or permitting judges to advise juries that a defendant convicted of a criminal offense can receive credit for good conduct that results in a shorter prison term and that eligibility for parole or mandatory supervision can also affect the length of time a convicted criminal serves in prison.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to require or permit courts to inform juries about the effect of good conduct time and eligibility for parole or mandatory supervision on the period of incarceration served by a defendant convicted of a criminal offense."

PROPOSITION NO. 11

The amount of per diem allowed during a calendar year would be equal to the maximum amount allowed for federal income tax purposes as of January 1 of that same year as a deduction for living expenses incurred by a state legislator. The per diem of $30 would increase to $81, which is the current maximum living expense deduction.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to set the amount of per diem received by a member of the legislature at the amount allowed for federal income tax purposes as a deduction for living expenses incurred by a state legislator in connection with official business."

PROPOSITION NO. 12
ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 53 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize the legislature to provide for the use of the permanent school fund and the income from the permanent school fund to guarantee bonds issued by the state for the purpose of providing loans or purchasing the bonds of school districts to acquire, construct, renovate, or improve instructional facilities. If the permanent school fund were required to make payment as a result of its guarantee of bonds issued by the state, the fund would have to be reimbursed immediately from the state treasury. The amount of bonds guaranteed by the permanent school fund could not exceed $750 million unless a higher amount was approved by a two-thirds vote of both houses of the legislature. If a school district were to become delinquent on a loan, the amount of the delinquency would be offset against other aid to which the district was entitled.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to provide for using the permanent school fund and its income to guarantee bonds issued by the state for the purpose of aiding school districts."

PROPOSITION NO. 13

The legislature would be authorized to enact laws to define the term "victim," to enforce the rights of crime victims, and to ensure victims are not liable for a failure to protect a victim's rights.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment providing a bill of rights for crime victims."

PROPOSITION NO. 14
ON THE BALLOT

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to permit and regulate raffles conducted by certain nonprofit organizations for charitable purposes."

PROPOSITION NO. 16
ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 34 proposes a constitutional amendment allowing the legislature to pass general laws authorizing the creation of hospital districts upon approval of a majority of the qualified voters of the district. The amendment would also permit the legislature to authorize the creation of hospital districts by general or special law in counties with populations of 75,000 or less and to authorize the commissioners courts of such counties to levy ad valorem taxes and issue general obligation bonds for the support and maintenance of such districts.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment granting to the people the right to decide whether to create and maintain hospital districts to protect the public well-being in a manner independent of the legislature."

Senate Joint Resolution 44 proposes a constitutional amendment to authorize the issuance of $200 million in general obligation bonds. The proceeds of the bonds would be used to acquire, construct, or equip new corrections institutions, mental health and mental retardation institutions, youth corrections institutions, and statewide law enforcement facilities and to repair and renovate existing facilities of those institutions. The bonds would constitute a general obligation of the state. The bonds and interest on the bonds would be paid from the first money coming into the treasury that is not otherwise appropriated by the constitution, less any amount in a sinking fund at the end of the preceding fiscal year that is pledged to payment of the bonds or interest.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the issuance of general obligation bonds for projects relating to facilities of corrections institutions, youth corrections institutions, and mental health and mental retardation institutions and for the expansion of statewide law enforcement facilities."

PROPOSITION NO. 19
ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 59 proposes a constitutional amendment that would allow local governments to invest their funds as authorized by the legislature. Currently, the constitutional prohibition against a grant of public money to an individual, association, or corporation or against becoming a stockholder in a corporation, association, or company prevents political subdivisions from making some kinds of investments. This proposed amendment would allow local governments to make any investments authorized by the legislature.

A majority of the voters in an affected county must vote in favor of the proposed amendment before the office is abolished in that county. If the office of county surveyor is abolished in any of these counties, the powers, duties, and functions of the office are transferred to a county officer or employee designated by the commissioners court of the county in which the office is abolished.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to abolish the office of county surveyor in Cass, Ector, Garza, Smith, Bexar, Harris, and Webb Counties."

The maximum net effective interest rate would be set by law. Proceeds from the sale of the bonds would be credited to the Texas opportunity plan fund, which is used to make loans to students to attend institutions of higher education in Texas. The bonds and interest on the bonds would be payable from the first money coming into the treasury in each fiscal year that is not already appropriated by the constitution, less the amount remaining in the sinking fund at the close of the prior fiscal year.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment providing for the issuance of general obligation bonds as college savings bonds to provide educational loans to students and to encourage the public to save for college education."

Silver Sage Corral

By Manuel Flores

The OST was the setting for a birthday breakfast celebrated by Meleese Rugh, LaVern McCloskey, Mary Portman and Grace Wootten. Each will be having a birthday during the month of September and wanted to get an early start on their celebration.

The Volunteer Services held their orientation program for new and established volunteers on Tuesday, Sept. 12 in Kerrville. This enables the volunteers to get acquainted with the program and with each other.

Monday, Sept. 25 a free health screening will be held in a mobile unit on the parking lot of the Silver Sage Corral. This screening will encompass diabetes, cataracts, blood pressure, glaucoma and cholesterol. This program is not only for Senior Citizens, but anyone in Bandera County. Everyone is urged to take advantage of this service as it may help save a life!

The thirty-first annual meeting of the Volunteer Services Council will be held in San Angelo from Sept. 28 through Sept. 30. The Silver Sage Corral will have a representative at this meeting.

Marie Holland reports that the response for people to help with arts and crafts has been very good but there is always room for more participants. Some of the volunteers have been making items at home and donating them to the Boutique. If you have artificial flowers, holiday greenery, interesting containers or other arts and crafts supplies that you wish to donate, call the Center at 796-4969 and arrangements will be made to pick them up.

The Center had had several persons as visitors who are going to spend the winter in Bandera. Welcome to all these people.

Come by the Center and see all of the activities and projects that we have to offer. Remember, you don't have to be "old" to enjoy the Center. Become a volunteer and feel good about yourself.

Lakehills former glider pilot to mark war anniversary

Former glider pilot William J. Brinkman of Lakehills is among the American military glider pilots who will mark the 45th anniversary of the landing behind enemy lines of gliders during World War II in special events scheduled between Sept. 17 and 20.

Called "Operation Market-Garden," the exercise was one in which unarmed gliders, along with airborne forces, spearheaded major invasions landing behind enemy lines in their flimsy, unarmed gliders in Normandy and other places in France, Holland, Germany, Belgium, Sicily, the Philippines and Burma.

Genealogy seminar planned in Kerrville

An eight-week "Genealogy for Beginners" seminar will be presented by members of the Kerrville Genealogical Society during the months of October and November at Butt-Holdsworth Memorial Library in Kerrville. Sessions will be held every Thursday afternoon from 1-3 p.m. beginning Oct. 5.

In addition to actual instruction in various aspects of genealogical research, participants will be given individual help with their research problems.

A Thought For The Week
By John M. Grimes

It has been said that life is similar to a piece of string. If the string is kept straight or tied properly, unwanted and bothersome knots are unlikely to occur. Handle the string in a haphazard manner and knots result. It take time to untangle the knots, if indeed the knots can be loosened at all without cutting part of the string away. And so it is with habits ... because a string of habits form a way of life. The famed Professor William James in his epoch-making "principles of psychology", said, "Remember that to indulge just once again in a weakness which you have just renounced is to risk defeating yourself altogether. Each lapse, says Professor James, is like letting fall a ball of string which one is carefully winding; a single slip undoes more than a great many turns will wind again.

Habits vary. They can be good or bad. There is no need to break a good habit but bad habits can and should be broken. The best reason to break a bad habit is for your own self preservation and safety. Frankly, is it not best to break a bad habit ... before it breaks you?

Mobile breast cancer detection unit due

Some 60 appointments had already been booked Monday for the mobile breast cancer detection unit scheduled to come to Bandera Thursday, Sept. 14.

The mobile unit from the Regional Breast Care Center at Women's and Children's Hospital in Odessa will be parked at the office of Bandera physician James Womack.

An appointment is required, and the charge is $60 for the mammogram service, according to the doctor. There were still some appointments available at press time.

For more information, or to make an appointment, call 796-7713.

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of every 10 American women will develop breast cancer sometime during her lifetime. The American Cancer Society predicts that about 37,000 women will die of breast cancer this year. As there is no way to prevent the disease, early detection and treatment offer the greatest hope for survival.

"The death rate from breast cancer could be drastically reduced if women would have mammograms done before a problem exists," according to a spokesman for the Odessa hospital.

The American Cancer Society recommends that women do monthly breast self-exams and have regular physical breast exams by a doctor. It further recommends a baseline mammogram (for reference) between age 35 and 39; a mammogram every one or two years between age 40 and 49; and an annual mammogram from age 50.

Asymptomatic women over 50 years of age should have annual physical examination and annual mammogram, and those with significant high risk factors should be examined at appropriate intervals, according to the doctor.

Risk factors include previous breast cancer and family history of breast cancer in mother, sister or daughter.

By using modern state of the art x-ray equipment, breast cancers can be found when they are about the size of a grain of rice and well before the cancer can be felt, the spokesman says. A woman who is diagnosed with breast cancer at this early stage has a 90-97 percent chance of survival. A woman who is not diagnosed until a lump can be felt has approximately a 50 percent survival rate in five years.

The Odessa cancer detection unit has recently received the certification of the American College of Radiology Mammography Accreditation Program.

Mammography is a x-ray examination of the breast, hich the American Cancer Society and other medical experts see as the best means for the early detection of breast cancer.

The program is voluntary and is designed to insure that women receive optimum quality mammographic examinations. The process is done through peer review evaluation of the facility's staff qualifications, equipment, quality control and quality assurance programs, image quality, and breast dose. The accreditation must be renewed every three years.

The accreditation program was instituted because of the concerns of radiologists, other national medical organizations, and the public that qualified personnel perform and interpret mammograms and that dedicated mammographic equipment be used.

The American College of Radiology received an American Cancer Society control grant which was used to pilot test the accreditation program.

Library campaign under way

Students who enjoy reading may be more likely to succeed in school, and beyond, than those who don't. That's the message of a new campaign to sign up sixth graders and their families for their own library cards.

The campaign, sponsored by secondary librarian Patsy Small, reading teacher Sally Hendrix, and Bandera county librarian Jimmie Hughey, begins with National Library Card Sign-Up Month in September.

Students will tour the county library Sept. 15, where they will obtain a library card and learn to use the automated card catalog. They will also complete a location map of the library similar to one they completed as part of their junior high library skills.

"Although sixth graders visit the junior high library each week to participate in library skills and check out books, we want to ensure that reading and researching continue into adulthood," said Small.

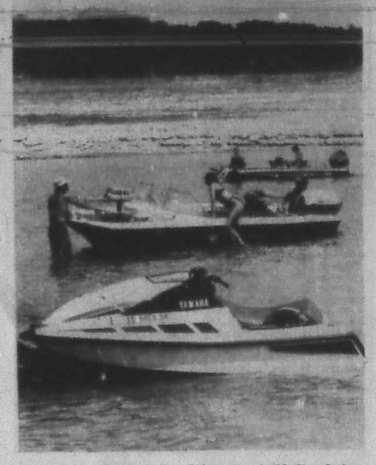
Teens for Christ

Rachel Bosworth was elected president and group outings including a trip in October to the San Antonio Zoo were planned when the Bandera High School chapter of Teens for Christ met Sept. 9 at Bandera River Ranch.

Activities included swimming, volleyball, tennis, and a hot dog meal.

Other officers include Robert Bloxham, vice president; Claudia Rivera, secretary; Christy Parker, treasurer; Marika Cook, reporter; and Alan Richardson, sergeant-at-arms.

Dues to join the club are $2 per year, and membership is open to all Bandera High School students.



Boating is still the name of the game in Medina Lake. These boaters, which ranged from fishermen, to skiers, to jet-skiers used the state boat ramp at the end of Park Road 37 to launch and retrieve their boats this past weekend.

Gary Ploch, seminar instructor

Self-defense class scheduled Sept. 23

Gary Ploch, of Ploch's Tae kwon do USA Family Center in Kerrville, will instruct a self-defense seminar Saturday, Sept. 23, from 9:30 to noon in Bandera.

The Bandera County Board of Realtors has invited Ploch to instruct the class. He will demonstrate basic defense methods, including choke defenses, hair-grab defense and full nelson defense, according to local spokeswoman Gail Stone.

"He will also demonstrate pressure point control tactics," Stone said. "These involve the application of pressure to various parts of the body that cause a brief jolt of pain to distract the attacker.

"Those who attend the seminar will actually participate in the defenses with a partner.

"Ploch is well-qualified to teach the course, and has been very accommodating to the Board of Realtors in planning the seminar to suit our needs," Stone said.

"He has modified this course in a way that will make it accessible to the most people," she said.

Ploch began martial arts training in 1975 at Texas A&M University, where he graduated with a bachelor of science degree in wildlife biology and wildlife management. He advanced to the third degree black belt designation four years ago.

He has trained in Texas, Arkansas and Korea to earn his instructor certification and to advance to the third degree black belt designation. His first commercial school opened in 1986.

Saturday's one-day course is open to both men and women and students over the age of 16. There is a $15 charge for the course. Class size will be limited to provide personalized instruction. Those interested may reserve a place in the class by pre-registering with any real estate broker who is a member of the Bandera County Board of Realtors.

For more information, call Stone at 796-3517, or Ploch at 238-4830.

TEAMS packets now available

Registration packets for the TEAMS tests are now available, according to school administrative assistant Ken Kling.

"Any individual who is no longer enrolled in a Texas public school and needs to retake either the exit level mathematics and/or English language arts TEAMS test in order to attain a high school diploma, may pick up the necessary registration packet in the counselor's office at Bandera High School," Kling said.

"During the October administration of exit level TEAMS, the mathematics test will be administered Wednesday, Oct. 25, and the English language arts test will be administered Thursday, Oct. 26 at Bandera High School."

Registration forms must be completed and returned in the pre-addressed envelope provided and are to be received in Iowa City, Iowa no later than Oct. 4, Kling said.

The high school counselor's office is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Red Ribbon week set

Red Ribbon Week, part of an ongoing anti-drug campaign by several state and local groups, has been officially designated the week of Oct. 22-29.

A proclamation declaring red ribbon week was signed by Texas governor Bill Clements June 9.

Environmental group seeks 'quality' discussion

"Water Quality Protection of the Edwards Aquifer: Policy-making and Implementation" will be addressed Wednesday, Sept. 20, in San Antonio.

The focus will be on laws and regulations to protect the quality of the water in the Edwards Aquifer, which agencies have the authority to protect groundwater from pollution and their limitations, and the possible threats to the quality of the water.

Normally, discussion of the Edwards aquifer tends to be on the amount of water which enters and exits the aquifer, and whether there will always be enough to provide for the water needs of agriculture, industry, urban citizens, and endangered species, says a spokesman for San Antonio Environmental Coalition.

Speaking will be the Clyde Bohmfalk, director of the Water Quality Division of the Texas Water Commission, and Tom Fox, former director of the Edwards Underground Water District.

Fox is currently an environmental engineer with Raba Kistner Engineers of San Antonio.

The forum begins at 7 p.m. and will be held at the Unitarian Church, 607 Beryl. Take the access road at the southeast corner of IH-10 and Loop 410, across from Crossroads.

This month's meeting is co-sponsored by Air, Water, Earth and the Bexar Audubon Society. All meetings are free and open to the public. For further information call 1-629-0584 or 1-826-4698.

The coalition is a nonpolitical, noninstitutional forum to promote the exchange of information on environmental issues

BEA meets

An upcoming conference and a major fundraiser for their local scholarship effort were among the topics covered by the Bandera Educators Association Sept. 7 when they met, according to group president Dot Larrimer.

Larrimer has been asked to be recorder for the Texas Education Agency's conference on Teacher Education in Austin Oct. 19-21.

Larrimer, vice president Rose Nelson and others from the local group plan to attend an Instructional and Professional development Conference Sept. 23.

In november, TSTA will sponsor a conference on critical issues, Larrimer said.

Other BEA officers include secretary Karen Zickler and treasurer Jackie Kieschnick.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON TAX INCREASE

The (BANDERA I.S.D.) will hold a public hearing on a proposal to increase total tax revenues from properties on the tax roll in (1988) by (.07637) percent. Your individual taxes may increase at a greater or lesser rate, or even decrease, depending on the change in the taxable value of your property in relation to the change in taxable value of all other property.

The public hearing will be held on (Sept. 25th, 1989) at (Bandera High School 7p.m.)

FOR the proposal: Emmett Dalton, Thomas H Keese, Charlotte Salzman, Ken Wakey, Cindy Woodland

AGAINST the proposal:

PRESENT and not voting: Katie Ruede , James Wagner

ABSENT: None

None

The statement above shows the percentage increase the proposed rate represents over the (effective) tax rate that the unit published on (Sept. 7th, 1989). The following table compares taxes on an average home in this taxing unit last year to taxes proposed on the average home this year. Again, your individual taxes may be higher or lower, depending on the taxable value of your property.

	Last Year	This Year
Average home value	48,500	48,500
General exemptions available (amount available on the average home, not including senior citizen's or disabled person's exemptions)	5,000	5,000
Average taxable value	43,500	43,500
Tax rate	0.69352	0.74210 (proposed)
Tax	$ 301.68	$ 322.81 (proposed)

Under this proposal taxes on the average home would (Increase) by $ (Twentyone 13/100) or (.07004) percent compared with last year's taxes.

Comparing tax rates without adjusting for changes in property value, the tax rate would (Increase) by $ (0.04858) per $100 of taxable value or (.07004) percent compared to last year's tax rate. These tax rate figures are not adjusted for changes in the taxable value of property.

Wharton's Dock

By John Ciarlo — 796-3225

Rev. Ken Allen of Walker Memorial Baptist Church and his family arrived at the church parsonage Sept. 1.

Those assisting to move their household goods were Marion Trout, John Schulze, Fran and Wayne Hildenburg, and Pat and Bennie Barker. It was hard to determine who was sweating the most, the ladies or the men, jokes a spokesman for the church.

• The turnout was very small at Lakeshore Volunteer Fire Department quarterly general membership meeting Sept. 9, but the meeting was reported to "get heated up at times."

• Phil and Nola Bledsoe attended the Cowboy Capital PRCA rodeo with their daughters, son-in-laws, and grandchildren. It was the first rodeo for some.

• Christine Kalka reports that her sister-in-law, Annie Thetford, is out of the hospital and back in a nursing home. Annie's birthday, Aug. 21, was celebrated with a small party.

• Dr. Mario Birch and wife Marg, Marion Trout, and the Rev. Ken Allen and wife Gwyn attended an after-church covered dish dinner at the Pipe Creek Presbyterian Church. Allen and the Presbyterians' Rev. Dale Hines had a getting-acquainted talk under the big trees in the church yard.

• Neland Tom King celebrated their 47th wedding anniversary this past week.

• Audrey Burge of Corpus Christi joined family Douglas and Peggy Burge and their girls Kadie and Sherri, also from Corpus Christi, starting Labor Day at Audrey's cabin.

They spent the Labor Day weekend camping at Can-Can, attended the fire department meeting, and plan to return to Corpus Christi Thursday, Sept. 14.

Guests of the Burges Sunday, Sept. 10, included Peggy's grandparents, Wolf and Madeline Kasaner of Tomkins Cove, N.Y. and Peggy's mother, Lou Ann Sheehan of Bandera. Peggy cooked up her lasagne for the meal.

Deer farming provides opportunity for ranchers

The Texas Department of Agriculture currently estimates that over a million pounds of farm raised venison are sold each year in this country, and it could be an opportunity for farmers and ranchers in Bandera County.

Becoming a deer farmer does take more than a little land and money, according to Jim Heart-bar, Deer Farms, Inc., the first fallow deer farm in the state of Texas, is holding a three day workshop and seminar on "Progressive Deer Farming" in Castroville, Sept. 19-22.

All aspects of deer farming will be covered with emphasis on fallow deer. The course will include lectures and workshops at the Alsatian Inn in Castroville, along with practical demonstrations at nearby Heart-Bar Deer Farms, Inc.

The course will feature Dr. Geoff Asher of New Zealand, a specialist in fallow and red deer production. Dr. Asher is science program leader for deer reproduction with the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries, Ruakura Agricultural Center at Hamilton, New Zealand.

He has performed extensive research in the area of farmed deer and will update participants on the latest technology from New Zealand.

The fee is $500 and covers preprinted course notes, practical demonstration using Heart-Bar's facilities and a continental breakfast and buffet lunch daily. Registration is limited to 40 participants.

SW Bell says it'll change the way we dial LD calls

Beginning in late 1990, all telephone customers in the "512" area code will have to begin dialing "1-plus 512" or "0-plus 512" on all long distance calls within the "512" area.

Doyle Bebee, area manager for Southwestern Bell Telephone, explained that traditionally customers do not have to dial the area code for long distance calls within the same area code.

"That is changing," he says. "We are having to develop a new dialing plan as we near the point where we will be running out of new phone numbers in the "512" area," Bebee said.

The area manager emphasized that the new dialing procedure will not be necessary until next year, starting in September.

"However," he said, "on a strictly optional basis, customers may start dialing the "512" area code beginning earlier in 1990. We'll announce publicly when the optional dialing arrangement will go into effect.

"We'll be putting out additional information through the news media, and with bill inserts, direct mail and even personal visits with business customers, long distance companies, terminal equipment companies and cellular telephone vendors," Bebee said. "In many cases their equipment will have to be reprogrammed to enable the new dialing arrangement."

Bebee explained that the dialing of the "512" area code will become necessary in 1990 because new local dialing prefixes that resemble area codes will be created to make new phone numbers available to meet growth in south Texas.

"The new prefixes will have an '0' or a '1' as a middle digit, as do area codes. Local number prefixes this area do not have such a configuration at this time," Bebee said. "As we create such local dialing prefixes, it will be necessary to dial the "512" code on all long distance calls in the same area to avoid confusing the telephone switching equipment."

Bebee said that beginning in 1990, it will be necessary to create a new area code in South Texas, in addition to the "512" code.

"The step we are taking next year is a temporary measure to keep up with growth without creating a new area code," Bebee said the Houston area recently had to create the "409" area code out of what had been part of the "713" area code. The Dallas area, too, will be creating a new area code to enable provision of new phone numbers, Bebee said.

Retail meat counters trimming the fat

Grocery store meat departments are cutting back on beef. Not on selection, but on fat.

"There have been great changes in the retail beef cases," said Dr. Daniel Hale, a meats specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M University.

The movement toward producer-funded research into consumer attitudes about beef and what could be done to bring the consumer back to the beef counter, Hale said. The result was the lean beef movement that has included "quarter-inch trim" programs by retail grocery chains.

"More than 40 percent of the beef cuts sold have no outside fat," the specialist said. "The National Market Basket Survey showed that most cuts have no more than one-eighth inch outside fat."

However, up to now most of the credit for the closely trimmed beef goes to the retailer. According to Hale, there is, as yet, no pressure on packers and little pressure on cattle feeders to provide leaner beef to the retail store.

"The packers are selling mostly boxed beef to retailers with up to one inch of fat," Hale said. "This is because the retailers don't want to pay the packer extra for the closely trimmed beef."

Without the pressure on the packers, they, in turn, don't pressure the cattle feeders.

"The genetics are out there to produce the 'ideal' animal," the meats specialist said. "More than 25 percent of the cattle slaughtered now are yield grade 1 or 2, choice beef."

However, this "ideal" beef animal that is both choice and lean enough to be yield grade 1 or 2 will not be the norm until the packers put pressure on the feeders.

Several technological changes may speed the movement toward leaner beef. First, packers are starting to ship some case-ready beef products that are trimmed to one-eighth inch outside fat, Hale said.

Another innovation is an energy saving idea called "hot-fat trimming." This process allows packers to remove external fat from the carcass while it is still warm, the extension specialist said. The advantages are that it takes less labor to pull the fat off the warm carcass and takes less energy to heat the already-warm fat for rendering.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture removed the remaining obstacle to this new process on April 9 when officials allowed packing plants to quality grade beef without requiring them to use yield grades too.

"Previous rulings made grading beef voluntary, but if a packer used one measurement, they had to use both," Hale said.

Although many consumers have already noticed changes in the beef case, they may see more as industry innovations make leaner beef more profitable.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON TAX INCREASE

The (Medina ISD) will hold a public hearing on a proposal to increase total tax revenues from properties on the tax roll in (1988) by (22%) percent. Your individual taxes may increase at a greater or lesser rate, or even decrease, depending on the change in the taxable value of your property in relation to the change in taxable value of all other property.

The public hearing will be held on (9/21/89 @7:30) at (Medina Board Room).

FOR the proposal: Janis E. Brown, Linda Barton, John Jr. Derry, Dolores Uribe and Andy Lautzenheiser
AGAINST the proposal: Fred Burch
PRESENT and not voting:
ABSENT: W. C. Johnson

(Names of all members of the governing body, showing how each voted on the proposal to consider the tax increase and, if one or more were absent, indicating the absences.)

The statement above shows the percentage increase the proposed rate represents over the (.491572) tax rate that the unit published on (9/7/89). The following table compares taxes on an average home in this taxing unit last year to taxes proposed on the average home this year. Again, your individual taxes may be higher or lower, depending on the taxable value of your property.

	Last Year	This Year
Average home value	$40,000	$40,000
General exemptions available (amount available on the average home, not including senior citizen's or disabled person's exemptions)	5,000	5,000
Average taxable value	35,000	35,000
Tax rate	.4802	.60 (proposed)
Tax	168.07	210.00 (proposed)

Under this proposal taxes on the average home would (increase) by $ (41.93) or (24.94%) percent compared with last year's taxes.

Comparing tax rates without adjusting for changes in property value, the tax rate would (increase) by $(.1198) per $100 of taxable value or (24.94%) percent compared to last year's tax rate. These tax rate figures are not adjusted for changes in the taxable value of property.

NOTICE OF VOTE ON TAX RATE

The City of Bandera conducted a public hearing on a proposal to increase your property taxes by 8% (8 percent) on September 14th, 1989, at 6 p.m.

The City Council is scheduled to vote on the tax rate at a public meeting to be held on September 18, 1989 at 6:00 p.m. in the Municipal Bldg.

Jellystone Parks celebrate 20 years in September

The Yogi Bear's Jellystone Park Camp-Resort in Bandera is joining with other Jellystone Park facilities across the nation to celebrate their 20th anniversary this September.

The local river-side camp is one of more than 80 franchises in 26 U.S. states and two Canadian provinces, and the system is the second oldest continuously operating private campground system in North America.

Formerly Bandera River Resort, the local facility became affiliated with the Yogi Bear Camp Resort system in August 1978. The park is open the year round and is the busiest in the winter months when so-called "snowbirds," or retired persons escaping the colder weather in the north, invade in great numbers.

The park in Bandera is owned by Bob and Judy Abbey and managed by Wayne Kent, known to all the campers as "Mr. Wonderful."

Campers at the Bandera park this week are enjoying all the birthday activities, including a pot luck supper on Monday, a hot dog roast on Wednesday, campfire and marshmallow roast on Friday, and several ice cream socials.

Saturday, the campers will have a birthday party for Yogi, complete with cake and ice cream.

The Jellystone Park Family Center will be open to the public Sunday morning, Sept. 17, from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. for an all-you-can-eat pancake breakfast for just $1 per person. The menu includes coffee, orange juice, and ham will be available for 50 cents per slice. Reservations are required and can be made by phone at 796-3751, said spokeswoman Judy Johnson.

Yogi's camp-resort system was born from an idea 20 years ago when a couple of creative and enterprising individuals proposed the idea to Columbia Pictures. The first resort in the system was in Sturgeon Bay, Wisc., and its opening in 1969 drew large crowds interested in seeing the 10-foot-tall statue of Yogi Bear at the park entrance.

That park was an immediate hit, and eight more parks were opened during the next two years. They began selling souvenir items at park gift shops in 1970 and added eight additional parks in 1973 and 1974, despite energy crisis woes.

Toll free reservations were introduced in 1973.

Ownership has changed fairly often. Jellystone Campgrounds, Ltd., became Leisure Systems, Inc., in 1978; Ahnert Enterprises acquired the system in 1986; and in 1988 the Rank Organization of London acquired Ahnert and the parent company became known as Rank Ahnert, Inc.

Tainted corn threat to wildlife

Aflatoxin poses a serious danger to Texas birds

Wildlife officials are concerned that improper disposal or use of corn contaminated by aflatoxin could pose a threat to several species of birds in South Texas during the next few weeks.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department (TPWD) officials urged farmers who are unable to market contaminated corn to plow under or otherwise destroy their crops to avoid its consumption by water fowl, quail, turkeys, cranes and doves.

As much as half of this year's South Texas corn crop is contaminated with detectible levels of the toxin, according to the Texas Department of Agriculture. The contamination affects corn already harvested as well as standing crops, officials said.

Bob Jessen, waterfowl program leader for the TPWD, said the contamination is widespread in an area roughly from San Antonio south and west to the Rio Grande. "Aflatoxin is carcinogenic to birds, and it also can suppress their immune systems, causing them to be susceptible to other diseases," said Jessen.

Aflatoxin was the main factor in the die-off of several hundred geese in the Katy Prairie area west of Houston during November 1988, Jessen said, and it also caused the loss of geese and sandhill cranes in Refugio County in 1979. "So far we have no reports of bird mortalities from South Texas, but the possibility exists if the contaminated corn is left where it can be picked up by wildlife," he said.

Hunters during the upcoming seasons should refrain from picking up birds that appear sick. Jessen also recommended that the livers and other organs of game birds not be eaten.

Wolf club report

With an all-time high number of sheep and goat-killing and chasing dogs caught, Bandera County Wolf Club reported 26 predators killed during the month of August.

"The dog situation is becoming disastrous," said club reporter Bill Sharp. Apparently, the number of loose livestock-killing dogs in the county has grown, and the club reported that 13 dogs were killed or caught last month.

A total of five coyotes, including two by the Kelso Ranch, one by Dewitt Leibold, one by Eddie Leibold and one by Blackwell ranch were reported caught.

A total of eight hogs, including two by Harley Odom, two by Bill Sharp, two by Flying A ranch, one by Dewitt Leibold, and one by Gayle Monier were reported caught.

Military job seekers workshop planned at Lackland, Sept. 19

A "Job Seekers Workshop" for former military personnel of all ranks will be offered by the Non Commissioned Officers Association (NCOA) at Lackland Air Force Base, Tuesday, Sept. 19.

The workshop will be conducted by Lewis Ferguson, an NCOA career transition expert, from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. at the Arnold Hall Community Center, Building 5506.

The Job Seekers Workshops are designed to assist military personnel who plan to enter the civilian job market after separating or retiring from the armed forces.

The workshop is offered free of charge to both NCOA members and non-members. "Military personnel of all ranks who have decided to leave active service and separated or retired veterans are invited to attend," says spokesman Lewis Ferguson. In addition, the workshop is open to their family members.

The workshop's focus will begin with goal setting and end with salary negotiation. Also included in the seminar are tips on resume writing and preparation, interview techniques, and other advice.

In addition, participants will be assisted in completing an NCOA "Mini Resume," a summary of an individual's professional qualifications, which will be entered into a data base of job seekers maintained by Employment Transition Services, an NCOA-sponsored service, and made available to companies looking for separating military personnel.

The NCOA's Veterans Employment Assistance Program was started 15 years ago after the federal government stopped funding outplacement programs for military personnel. Since that time, the NCOA estimates that close to one million people have used the VEA Program. Today, the VEA sponsors Job Seekers Workshops on most major military installations throughout the United States.

Three hunters will be granted big horn permits in West Texas

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department will issue permits to hunters to take three surplus mature desert bighorn sheep rams from herds in the Trans-Pecos region of West Texas during the 1989-90 hunting season.

Meeting in Austin, the Parks and Wildlife Commission authorized the issuance of one permit to a Texas resident to be selected in a public drawing, one to landowners adjacent to the Sierra Diable Wildlife Management Area (WMA), and one to the successful bidder at an auction held recently by the Foundation for North American Wild Sheep.

Bobby Alexander, acting director of the TPWD's Wildlife Division, told the commission there currently are about 185 free-ranging desert bighorns and 92 inside fenced brood pastures in West Texas. He said the rams selected for harvest are near the end of their productivity, and harvesting them will have no detrimental effect on the herds.

Pay-up or pokey for unpaid fines says Kerr County sheriff Kaiser

Almost 200 arrest warrants in a one-week period were issued in Kerr County recently in an effort to crack down on people with unpaid fines.

The overdue fine total for the some 190 people is $51,474.50, according to Kerr County Court-at-Law Judge Bill Baskette.

The misdemeanor fines were for offenses including DWI, theft by check, assault, criminal mischief and possession of marijuana.

Kerr County Sheriff Frances Kaiser said she intends to assign the manpower to do whatever it takes to serve the warrants.

"Either they pay their fines or they come in and sit it out," the sheriff said. Although the 63-bed Kerr County jail has been overflowing its capacity, Kaiser said those arrested would serve their time in surrounding counties if necessary.

Duck, goose seasons adopted by TPWD

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission has adopted 1989-90 waterfowl hunting seasons that include a return to the traditional shooting hours of one-half hour before sunrise to sunset and a continuation of last year's reduced duck bag limits.

Meeting in Austin on Aug. 31, the commission set a three-duck daily bag limit statewide. Hunters will be allowed to take three ducks in the aggregate, including no more than two mallards (not more than one of which may be a female), two wood ducks, one redhead, one mottled duck, one hooded merganser and one pintail. The season is closed on canvasbacks.

Butterfly Lark with Kevin Mouton aboard is first across the line in the 300-yard eleventh race Sunday, Sept. 10 at Bandera Downs. The track will now shut down for a five to six million dollar face-lift in order to be ready for Bandera's first pari-mutuel racing scheduled for March 2, 1990.

Downs runs final race for '89

Track will open March 1990 for pari-mutuel racing

Mr. Pie Man, a 2-year-old stallion trained by Gabe and Gary Newman coasted to an easy victory in the Labor Day Allowance Sunday, the featured event in the final day of non-pari-mutuel racing at Bandera Downs.

The track will be closed until pari-mutuel racing begins on March 2 while $5 million to $6 million in renovations are completed.

Walter Rodgers was aboard Mr. Pie Man as he won $7,121 for his owner, Arthur M. Damm. He covered the 330-yard distance in 17.06 seconds, just a nose ahead of the disqualified Twelve Features, who was clocked in 17.07 seconds.

The second-place money was taken by Jan's Llano Lady, a Pat Doyle trained mare, after Twelve Features, who finished behind Mr. Pie Man, was disqualified and placed in seventh place. Second place was good for $3,459 while seventh place earned only $916.

Gertie's Girl was awarded third place.

Other winners in 1989's last day of racing Sunday included This Bug Will Boogie, who won the Noo Purple Cow Saloon Sprint over 330 yards in 17.25 seconds, and Better Get Truckin', a 4-year-old who won the Last Non-Pari-Mutuel Sprint, over 770 yards in 40.15 seconds.

Utopia volleyball

Utopia High School volleyball team traveled to Sabinal Tuesday, Aug. 29, and both the varsity and junior varsity squads returned victorious.

JV squad, led by the serving and setting of Tana Clark, defeated Sabinal 15-2, 15-7.

In the varsity contest, Utopia jumped out to a 12-0 lead behind the serving of Stephanie Orbison. The Lady Buffaloes went on to victory 15-1, 15-8.

The Utopia Invitational volleyball tournament was held Saturday, Sept. 2.

Locally-trained filly wins 14th

Dash for Speed, the apparently unbeatable filly that has now won 14 consecutive races and which is trained by Larry Keiter of Bandera, will make her next run in the $125,000-added Breeders Championship Classic Oct. 21 at Sunland Park, near El Paso.

The filly crossed the $1 million mark in earnings on the Labor Day weekend by winning the $19,200 Higheatejet Handicap on Sept. 3, her seventh graded race win at Ruidoso Downs in her career.

Riden by jockey Steve Fuller, the filly broke from the No. 3 starting position and took the lead at the halfway point and then pulled away steadily for the win by 2 2/3 lengths in 17.25 seconds, just one-hundredth of a second off the track record of 17.24 seconds.

She was named "Horse of the Meet" at Ruidoso Downs along with See Me Do It, a 3-year-old filly that won two Grade I stakes races this year, and she was named top older mare at Ruidoso Downs.

Top jockey

Tami Purcell of Dripping Springs became the first female rider to be named top jockey at Delta Downs in Vinton, La.

She piloted 133 of her 543 mounts to victories and won second 88 times and third 61 times.

Jesse Sauceda

Allen Moehrig

Sauceda, Moehrig tops for 1989 racing season

Jesse Sauceda was 1989's top jockey at Bandera Downs with 49 winners and Allen Moehrig was top trainer with 27, the track announced this week.

Neither award winner was seriously challenged for their honors. Sauceda compiled 444 points in the Bandera Downs system based on their finishes during the year and second place Joe Quintanilla had 385 points. Moehrig amassed 195 points to second place Don Farris' 158 points.

Jockeys after Sauceda and Quintanilla included in order Robert Bard, Ignacio Bustamante, Tim Wortman, Isaac Chapa, Scott Lace, Nicky Wilson, Jerry Lee Yoakum and Anna Landolt.

Trainers ranked in order after Moehrig and Farris were David Latham, Walter Smith, Pat Doyle, Perry Clarke, Jim Brock, Todd Taylor, Dave Correll and Frank Mendez.

Besides riding 49 mounts to victory, Sauceda was aboard 37 second-place horses and 44 show horses. Quintanilla had 37 winners, 36 places and 41 shows.

Bard rode 35 winners and Chapa rode 28.

Thirteen of the horses Moehrig trained finished second and 11 took home third-place awards. Farris trained 19 winners, Clarke trained 17 and Latham trained 16.

Bandera Downs racing season was cut short so that the track can make between $5 million and $6 million in renovations to prepare for the beginning of pari-mutuel racing March 2.

SA Straus group plans Retama track

Vowing not to begin construction until the state reduces its take from pari-mutuel betting pools, a group headed by Joe Straus Jr. and David Straus in San Antonio says Churchill Downs will become involved in the proposed Class 1 race track in San Antonio.

The Straus group plans to build a $55 to $60 million track at the current site of Retama Polo Fields at the intersection of I-35 and Loop 1604, if the state reduces its 5-percent tax on the racing handle.

Dogs win season opener, 13-0

By Nick Johnson
Editor

Bandera's Bulldogs put together a 20-play fourth quarter drive that consumed 10 minutes, 11 seconds of the 12-minute fourth quarter Friday to preserve a 13-point lead and win their second consecutive opening-night game over Pearsall.

The time-consuming drive was a picture of near-perfect execution as the Bulldogs handled 20 plays without a major miscue under the careful guidance of quarterback Epi Cardenas, who had given the Bulldogs its fourth-quarter lead with touchdown passes in the second and third quarters.

Junior Bo Mansfield was the workhorse on that fateful drive, carrying 11 times for 32 yards, but Cardenas mixed up the Pearsall defense just enough by keeping the ball five times and handing it to Scott Rogers on two occasions.

Coach Sam Swierc eschewed a field goal attempt on fourth down on the Maverick 11-yard line, preferring to turn the ball over with 40 seconds left to risking a kick that Pearsall could have turned into a big play.

The Bulldog defense, which was stubborn all evening long, found it easy to bar the door for the final 40 seconds when the Mavs had no timeouts remaining.

Pearsall mounted its only threat of the evening at the end of the first quarter when it recovered the second Bandera fumble of the quarter on the Bulldog 37-yard stripe. The Mavs moved to the Bandera 10 where on fourth down quarterback Trey Powell was stopped at the 5-yard line.

Bandera scored late in the second stanza after a 12-play 72-yard drive climaxed by a 5-yard touchdown pass from Cardenas to Robert Bloxham.

A Pearsall fumble on its own 38-yard line led to the second Bandera score in the third period. Cardenas got the six-pointer on a 5-yard pass to T.R. Andreas, who made a remarkable catch over his head at the end zone.

Mansfield led the Bulldogs both on offense and defense, gaining 110 yards on 22 carries and making 10 unassisted tackles and helping on two others from his linebacker position.

Valen Dews made eight unassisted tackles and helped on four others and drew praise from Coach Swierc after moving to defensive guard for this game. "He did a heck of a job," said the coach.

The mentor also praised the work of Jesse Cardenas as a backup player in the defensive secondary. "He's going to see more action," Swierc promised.

The coach sees his Bulldogs' situation as similar to last year when Bandera beat Pearsall, 20-7, in the opener but were blasted by Ingram in Bulldog Stadium, 46-14.

"This year we know not to take anyone lightly," said Swierc.

"Ingram has good running backs, they try to get outside, and they do a good job of it," he said. "They've got better individual speed than we do, so we're going to have to play a contain defense to stop them."

Medina 'Cats trampled by Mustangs, 42-12

Medina's new-look gridders wound up a bit shopworn in their season opener in Natalia Friday, Sept. 8 as the Mustangs stampeded over the Bobcats 41-12.

In addition to the loss, senior quarterback Josh Turpin suffered a sore rotary cuff and will be unable to throw the ball for a week, according to head coach Joe Winchell.

Medina opened the game strongly and led at the first quarter's end 6-0. "We were down 13-6 at the half," said Winchell, but I felt like we could come back."

Mistakes in the form of penalties and dropped interceptions cost the 'Cats. "We made two (interceptions) but we should have had five," said Winchell. "But in the third quarter, we just didn't play good football at all," he said.

Winchell cited weak tackling and let down after "a couple of big Mustang plays" as the main factors in the run-away, in addition to Turpin's injury.

"We've been teaching Josh a new way to throw the football," said the coach. His shoulder muscles are not used to it and he had pain in his rotary cuff. He couldn't bring his arm forward without pain so he was throwing short."

Turpin "just needs rest" was the doctor's report, according to the coach and he will return to throwing after a week. "He still will play on defense," said Winchell.

Medina did mount a sustained drive late in the last period and marched 60 yards on the ground for a final TD.

"I called time and told the guys that we weren't going to win this one but we could try to improve and not give up. I'm proud of the way we made that final push. We'll continue to improve."

Medina will travel to Comfort on Friday, Sept. 15. Game time is 8 p.m.

Bulldog leading rusher Bo Mansfield has no place to go on this carry but managed 110 yards in 22 trips for the night as Bandera defeated Pearsall, 13-0, Friday, Sept. 8. The dogs will try for a second win at Ingram Sept. 15.

Junior Bo Mansfield was the workhorse on that fateful drive, carrying 11 times for 32 yards, but Cardenas mixed up the Pearsall defense just enough by keeping the ball five times and handing it to Scott Rogers on two occasions.

Coach Sam Swierc eschewed a field goal attempt on fourth down on the Maverick 11-yard line, preferring to turn the ball over with 40 seconds left to risking a kick that Pearsall could have turned into a big play.

The Bulldog defense, which was stubborn all evening long, found it easy to bar the door for the final 40 seconds when the Mavs had no timeouts remaining.

Pearsall mounted its only threat of the evening at the end of the first quarter when it recovered the second Bandera fumble of the quarter on the Bulldog 37-yard stripe. The Mavs moved to the Bandera 10 where on fourth down quarterback Trey Powell was stopped at the 5-yard line.

Bandera scored late in the second stanza after a 12-play 72-yard drive climaxed by a 5-yard touchdown pass from Cardenas to Robert Bloxham.

A Pearsall fumble on its own 38-yard line led to the second Bandera score in the third period. Cardenas got the six-pointer on a 5-yard pass to T.R. Andreas, who made a remarkable catch over his head at the end zone.

Mansfield led the Bulldogs both on offense and defense, gaining 110 yards on 22 carries and making 10 unassisted tackles and helping on two others from his linebacker position.

Valen Dews made eight unassisted tackles and helped on four others and drew praise from Coach Swierc after moving to defensive guard for this game. "He did a heck of a job," said the coach.

The mentor also praised the work of Jesse Cardenas as a backup player in the defensive secondary. "He's going to see more action," Swierc promised.

The coach sees his Bulldogs' situation as similar to last year when Bandera beat Pearsall, 20-7, in the opener but were blasted by Ingram in Bulldog Stadium, 45-14.

"This year we know not to take anyone lightly," said Swierc.

"Ingram has good running backs, they try to get outside, and they do a good job of it," he said. "They've got better individual speed than we do, so we're going to have to play a contain defense to stop them."

Bulldog leading rusher Bo Mansfield has no place to go on this carry but managed 110 yards in 22 trips for the night as Bandera defeated Pearsall, 13-0, Friday, Sept. 8. The dogs will try for a second win at Ingram Sept. 15.

Medina 'Cats trampled by Mustangs, 42-12

Medina's new-look gridders wound up a bit shopworn in their season opener in Natalia Friday, Sept. 8 as the Mustangs stampeded over the Bobcats 41-12.

In addition to the loss, senior quarterback Josh Turpin suffered a sore rotary cuff and will be unable to throw the ball for a week, according to head coach Joe Winchell.

Medina opened the game strongly and led at the first quarter's end 6-0. "We were down 13-6 at the half," said Winchell, but I felt like we could come back."

Mistakes in the form of penalties and dropped interceptions cost the 'Cats. "We made two (interceptions) but we should have had five," said Winchell. "But in the third quarter, we just didn't play good football at all," he said.

Winchell cited weak tackling and let down after "a couple of big Mustang plays" as the main factors in the run-away, in addition to Turpin's injury.

"We've been teaching Josh a new way to throw the football," said the coach. His shoulder muscles are not used to it and he had pain in his rotary cuff. He couldn't bring his arm forward without pain so he was throwing short."

Turpin "just needs rest" was the doctor's report, according to the coach and he will return to throwing after a week. "He still will play on defense," said Winchell.

Medina did mount a sustained drive late in the last period and marched 60 yards on the ground for a final TD.

"I called time and told the guys that we weren't going to win this one but we could try to improve and not give up. I'm proud of the way we made that final push. We'll continue to improve."

Medina will travel to Comfort on Friday, Sept. 15. Game time is 8 p.m.

1989 The Bandera Bulletin

Most folks go after deer for their antlers. However, a local craftsman has designs of a different nature in mind when he "hunts for horns." Please see page 7 for further enlightenment.

Keep your eye on your puppy, there's an alligator in the lake

An alligator was sighted in Medina Lake Saturday, Sept. 16, by a Bandera County sheriff's deputy and wildlife officials say they're certain the animal will be trapped before it becomes a nuisance.

Texas Parks and Wildlife officials did not see the presence of the reptile as a threat to human life, but they did recommend leaving it alone and reporting its location to law enforcement officials.

Bandera County Sheriff's Deputy Robin Price says he saw what he thought was a stump in Medina Lake about a half-mile towards the lake from the Wharton's Dock Lounge. But as he watched, he saw the form of an alligator he said was at least four feet long float to the surface and then swim away.

He also reports sighting the reptile on a lake bank sunning itself.

A search by Price and game warden Ernest Lerma did not locate the four- to six-foot alligator, but the TPW plans to trap it and relocate it in another part of the state, says Jimmy Rutledge, biologist with the TPW in San Antonio. The trap should be deployed towards the end of the week, he said.

The biologist says the alligator poses no immediate threat to humans, but may consume pets. "A four-foot alligator will eat a small dog or a duck," says Rutledge.

"Don't worry about your cows, but don't let your small dogs go swimming in the lake, or it will eat them," advises Captain Caudle of the TPW district office in San Antonio.

Humans may be in danger if the alligator gets used to humans and stays in the area for a long time and grows. "He won't stay four foot long for long," says Rutledge.

"Don't feed it. It will become unafraid and it might become a nuisance," says Caudle.

There are no alligator-related fatalities in Texas, reports Rutledge, but there have been in other states. In those cases, a person was attacked and killed because the alligator had been fed by humans. "Nine times out of ten, the attacking alligator lost its fear of humans," says Rutledge.

Alligators are no longer on the endangered species list, but it is a game animal in Texas with a specific season and permits required for hunting. The season is in September and the TPW issues alligator permits dependent on the alligator population in the area and the department's harvest recommendations, says Rutledge.

"It is against the law to take an alligator without a permit and the permits do not include Medina and Bandera counties," cautions Caudle.

There is a season for alligator in Baytown, Houston and the Lake Charles area, says Caudle.

There is a large alligator population in Texas, says Caudle, and many exist in Choke Canyon south of San Antonio.

If people see the alligator, they should call the Bandera County or Medina County sheriff's department.

Alligators look for a habitat that is an isolated area, an area with a bank where it can sun itself during the day, and shallow water with vegetation, such as the edge of a body of water or coves, he says.

Alligators feed on turtles, nutria (water rodent), fish, amphibians, and other animals swimming in the water.

Alligators are nocturnal animals, feeding at night. Alligators don't eat every day and may feed only once a week, but they won't turn down available food, says Caudle.

Filing period now open for water district posts

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Filing for candidates to fill nine unpaid positions on the Springhills Water Management District board of directors opened Wednesday and will continue until Friday, Sept. 29.

Bandera County residents who own taxable real property and are at least 21 years of age may file for a place on the new district's board of directors on the Nov. 7 ballot at the Bandera County River Authority office.

Voters will be asked on the Nov. 7 ballot to approve or disapprove the creation of Bandera County's combined surface water and underground water district, select nine directors to serve on its initial board of directors if the measure passes, and pass judgement on 21 proposed constitutional amendments.

Current members of the district's temporary board of directors who will appear on the ballot as outlined by Senate Bill 1636 that created the district are Phil Becker of Tarpley, Don E. Karr and Craig Tips of Bandera, Joe Cantu and J.B. Edwards of Pipe Creek, J.K. Leighton of Vandenpool, and Paul Garrison Jr. of Medina.

Also listed in the enabling legislation from the Texas 71st Legislature, is Connie Taylor, who submitted her resignation from the water district board and Tom Denyer, who has moved out of the district.

The current water management district temporary board Sept. 18 appointed Mary Jane Cave of Bandera and Morgan Cox of Medina to take their place. They were appointed Gov. Bill

BCAD may change method of election

The Bandera County Appraisal District may change the way its board of directors are selected Friday, Sept. 22, to make the Bandera Independent School District's opinion count more heavily than other taxing entities.

Bandera County commissioners have protested chief appraiser Larry Reagan's plan for selecting the five directors that will run the district during 1990-91.

Reagan's proposal calls for the number of votes cast by the taxing entities to based on the amount of taxes levied. The last time directors were selected, 1987, each of the taxing entities had one vote.

The taxing entities include Bandera County, the city of Bandera, Bandera ISD, Medina ISD, and Utopia ISD.

Under Reagan's proposal, Bandera ISD would have over 50 percent of the votes and could elect all five directors without regard to the opinion of commissioners, city councilmen or other schools' trustees.

In other action, the directors will consider correspondence concerning the district's 1990 budget, a budget that was approved Sept. 18 after only two of the five taxing units voiced their disapproval.

Other items to be considered include purchase of a computer and plotter for the county-wide property ownership maps being developed, a map file cabinet, Section 89 Internal Revenue Code compliance, and health insurance.

Alcohol said involved in fatal accident

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

One man died and another was injured Wednesday, Sept. 14, when their truck ran off FM Road 1283 south of Mico and overturned. The failure to wear a seat belt was blamed for the death and alcohol was blamed for the accident.

The driver, Thomas E. Rheaume, 36, of San Antonio and well known in the Mico area, apparently had been thrown from the vehicle and was ruled dead at the scene by justice of the peace Donald Dedner of Castroville.

Karl Hess, 28, of San Antonio, the other occupant of the 1979 Chevrolet Blazer, remained in the cab of truck during the accident and was taken to Wilford Hall by Lakehills EMS with minor injuries.

Hess was wearing his seat belt, but Rheaume was not. "Had the driver been wearing his seat belt, he would have lived through it," says investigating Department of Public Safety Trooper John Ward.

Area witnesses say Rheaume had been drinking earlier in the day. Results of blood tests have not yet been returned.

Rheaume was heading south on FM 1283, approximately 0.8 miles south of the Hill Top Cafe at about 7:35 p.m. when the mishap occurred.

The truck then "went air borne," Ward said. As it flipped over it ejected the driver into the path of the vehicle.

The truck was in the air twice for approximately 40 feet each time. "It may have made a complete roll or two in the air," he says. The truck rolled 200-300 feet before coming to rest.

Gilbert Martinez, of San Antonio and a part-time resident in Lakehills, discovered the wreck at about 7:45 p.m.

When Melvin King leaves his city post, he takes 38 years of experience with him

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

Come Oct. 1, the City of Bandera will undergo a big change when an official of almost landmark status retires.

City public works director Melvin King, after some 38 years of service, will retire, leaving behind the legacy of a dedicated, hard-working yet easy-going man. Rey Garcia began work Sept. 1 as the city's new public works director.

King has agreed to stay on part-time in an advisory capacity through the end of 1989. He also hopes to use some of his newfound "spare time" to hunt, fish, do some woodworking, and generally take it easy.

One thing he plans to do is spend more time working with the Dixon lawnmowers he sells and repairs.

King was hired Sept. 1, 1951, by Bandera County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1. Bandera's sewer plant had been in operation for about six months, and prior to that time, everyone had his own septic tank.

The board of the water district included Erle Mansfield, Ben Weimers, Frank Billings, I.E. Adamietz, and L.L. Bright.

King had been working at Erle Mansfield's gasoline station for some time, and had worked at various jobs, including construction work, since his return from the military service in 1945.

One day, Mansfield came by the station and told Melvin that he wanted him to "fill out a job application."

"I thought he was kidding me, so I just went about my business," King recalled. "He came back a little later and asked if I had the application filled out yet.

"So I sat down and wrote out an application, and that night Margaret (Callahan) and I met at the lumber yard with the water board, and we were hired."

For some months, the two of them ran the entire operation, with Callahan doing the office work and King doing the field work and some office work too. Part of his job included monitoring the sewer plant, which meant spending a minimum of about two hours at the sewer plant twice a day, to be sure there were no problems.

Soon, Melvin hired Johnny Jamiets to help with the workload, and through the years several employees came and went.

One condition Erle Mansfield put on the employees hired by the water board was that they had to join Bandera's Volunteer Fire Department.

Fighting fires wasn't quite as hazardous then, King said, because there weren't as many hazardous materials such as

"Now, being a firefighter is a continuing educational process."

In the mid 1950s, overseeing garbage pick-up was added to Melvin's list of responsibilities. He hired Coy Ross, who ran the garbage truck by himself for almost a year. Later, Julian Campos and John Causey, among others, were hired to help with the new responsibilities.

"We hoped and prayed no fires would break out during the stompede, because one of the biggest problems was simply getting from one place to another."

- Melvin King

For a time, the garbage was burned and then buried, but after environmental regulations were passed, and to accommodate people who disliked the practice of burning, the garbage was simply buried.

"You can't imagine how much more ground it takes," King said. "It took 10 times the land. We were very careful to cover it each day, so that flies and other health problems didn't become bad."

Over the years, Bandera has undergone many changes, according to Melvin. The biggest change is the way things have built up, and the changes in industry and income.

When he began in 1951, there were 225 water meters, and at current count that number has grown to 700. The city limits also grew from 486 acres to about 570, though population figures for the city have not increased as much.

Serious business

Dear editor:
A man's property, his home and farm, is the most precious thing on earth, other than life itself.

It is one of the few things in our lifetime that they can and will take away from us if we do not pay our taxes, so we have to be very careful not to overload our property with taxes. I believe it was Nathan Hale that said, "There are some things that only gunpowder will cure." I know it was Nathan Hale that said, "Give me liberty or give me death." If we destroy the home life we will destroy the family, and a person's home is one of the things that made America what it is.

You don't have to be a genius to look back several years and evaluate how much they have increased property taxes.

Karl Marx, a German, wrote the constitution for the Communist Party in which he said the first thing to do to institute Communism was to eliminate private property. He also said he thought the American people would never stand for confiscation of property, so the best way to eliminate private property was to tax property owners out of it.

I have a copy of the Gilmer-Aiken law that the legislature passed in 1949 creating independent school districts. There are almost as many pages in that law as there are sheets in the Bible. It is all restrictions and laws of procedure that deprived the local, elected school boards of the power to do anything other than what they are told.

There is one thing in the whole system we can challenge, all of the rest is questionable. The one thing we can do something about, as it is guaranteed under the Constitution of the U.S., is to take the legislature to the courts contending that it is unconstitutional for them to be able to raise taxes on our homes an automatic amount each year, without you and I having the right to vote for it or against it.

It is my belief that if we ever get this thing in court, the Civil Liberties Union will be with us all the way through the Supreme Court. If enough property owners in this 10-county area were to chip in a few dollars each, I feel sure that once we got it into the courts, the CLU would foot most of the bill.

With much attention being given to the issue of catastrophic health insurance costs, it is possible to overlook another issue that is of great interest to senior citizens in various age groups — the reduction of their Social Security benefits by a 2-1 ratio to their earnings.

Many senior citizens choose not to retire from their jobs, as many of them need additional income, above what Social Security would provide. The "earnings limit" is a provision in the law that reduces Social Security benefits by one dollar for every two dollars that recipients earn in outside income, beyond a certain threshold.

Currently the threshold is $6,880 for those aged 65 to 69 and $6,480 for those aged 62-64. Under this provision, a person aged 65, who earns $10,000 a year, would lose $560 in Social Security income.

This amounts to unfair taxation, because it saddles these senior citizens with a marginal tax rate of 50 percent on earnings that exceed the limit. And, that tax rate soars when the other taxes they must pay are included.

In my judgment, this provision is very outmoded. In effect, it tells these people they are no longer needed in the workforce; and, you and I know this is not the case.

The earnings limit dates back to the Great Depression when attempts were made to get older employees out of the work force to make room for younger workers. Today's economy is significantly different from those days, and I think our laws should reflect those changes.

People are living longer and healthier lives, and many would like to remain productive members of the workforce. This policy, however, discourages people from working past age 65, which is still a very young age.

These rules do not apply to unearned income, such as pensions, dividends, interest and investments. Senior citizens who want to work should not be taxed simply because their income is from actual work rather than from stocks or bonds.

Lobbyist's special friend says he won't seek re-election

Capitol politics focused mainly on election campaigns last week, with several startling revelations coming to the surface, including:

• A key lawmaker quit the Legislature, considered the first casualty of successive media reports about lobbyist contributions to lawmakers.

• Texas Rangers pitcher Nolan Ryan has Texas Farm Bureau support if he'll try to strike out Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower.

• Two Democrats running for lieutenant governor competed for headlines with different ethics reform proposals.

• Attorney General Jim Mattox named a campaign spy he said was placed by the opposition's campaign, and called for State Treasurer Ann Richards to apologize. She didn't.

Schlueter to Exit

One of Speaker Gib Lewis' top lieutenants, Killeen state Rep. Stan Schlueter, said he will not seek re-election and concentrate instead on family and business.

Schlueter, a seven-term veteran, chairs the powerful Calendars Committee and was considered a top contender to be speaker some day.

Recent news reports revealed he has taken large contributions from lobbyists and regularly spent $9,000 monthly from his political fund, partly to lease an Austin residence.

Schlueter cited real estate and investment setbacks due to the recession. He recently bought a $272,000 home in Austin's exclusive Estates of Barton Creek.

He is considered a Capitol Hill insider's insider. Capitol watchers predict he very well could play a role next session as a successful lobbyist.

Ethics Reform Plans

Two candidates for lieutenant governor, state Sen. Chet Edwards and Comptroller Bob Bullock, released ethics reform plans last week.

Edwards, who developed the issue last spring, wants Gov. Bill Clements to call a special session on ethics reform before the Nov. 7 election and he proposed outlawing lobby-paid vacations for lawmakers. The governor is in Africa until Sept. 25.

Bullock, who is shrewd enough to sense when an issue becomes valid, unveiled his detailed plan, which includes cross-auditing political bank accounts with tax returns, comparing lobbyist spending reports with actual spending records and punishing offenders with fines, expulsion and criminal penalties.

Pitch to a Pitcher

Ryan, who owns a cattle ranch near Alvin, said he will wait until after the baseball season ends to decide whether he'll attempt to unseat Hightower.

The Farm Bureau, largest agriculture group in the state, has vowed to oust an incumbent they regard as too liberal with either a Democrat or Republican candidate.

Ryan declined to say which party he'd choose, but most experts agree Hightower is unbeatable so far in the Democratic primary. The news also signals that the Farm Bureau has apparently given up the idea of recruiting Walt Garrison, a former Dallas Cowboy fullback and bullrider.

Campaign Spying

Attorney General Jim Mattox, who has yet to announce for the governor's race, accused Richards' campaign of sending a "spy" into his headquarters for information.

Her campaign denied the charge, implied Mattox was a political low-life for insinuating it, and refused to apologize.

Mattox named a Mexican national, Evaristo Hernandez, as the Richards' volunteer who entered his headquarters three times claiming to be a Mattox supporter.

Mattox campaigners recognized Hernandez working a Richards campaign booth at the Mexican-American Democrats convention. Mattox said Hernandez admitted working for Richards for six weeks.

Candidate List Grows

Railroad Commission Jim Sharp officially entered the race for Comptroller, saying he favors funneling illegal drug tax revenues back to local law enforcement.

His Republican opponent, Houston businessman Tommy Fatjo, immediately blasted Sharp for serving as Texas campaign manager for presidential candidate Michael Dukakis of Massachusets.

Meanwhile, two Republicans in the governor's race disagreed on how to prevent a state income tax.

Kent Hance seeks a constitutional ban; Clayton Williams seeks to use veto power. While Hance painted Williams as soft, insiders know a constitutional amendment, requiring two-thirds majority in each house, is probably out of reach at this time.

Kay Bailey Hutchinson, a Dallas lawyer-businesswoman, became the first Republican to announce for state treasurer.

There's nothing to lead me to believe Fourth Coates' bad joke in this space had anything to do with it, but the magazine Natural History recently contained an article entitled "Dry Humor" that recounted a whole passel of jokes about the drought.

While crops wither, farmers crack jokes, probably to keep from crying. The recent rains have helped; at least they have kept me from crying. But I think a small dose of humor will also help, so here's some funnies (I hope) stolen and adapted from Natural History magazine.

• It's so dry here the Baptists are sprinkling converts and the Methodists are wiping 'em with a damp cloth.

• Remember when Noah built his ark and it rained for 40 days and 40 nights? That summer, Tarpley only had an inch and a half.

• One Bandera farmer says his crop is so bad, he's going to have to buy a bale just to prime his rake.

• Bandera had a three-inch rain last week. One drop every three inches.

• It's so dry in Medina, one guy's cows give powdered milk and he milks 'em with a vacuum sweeper.

• A fellow over in Pipe Creek planted onions among his potatoes. The onions bring tears to the eyes of the potatoes which then water themselves.

• A Medina County farmer heard it was so dry over by Vanderpool that he trucked his cows up there just so they could see how lucky they were.

• Water skiing may be prohibited in Medina Lake because of all the dust it kicks up.

• Frogs down in Wharton's Dock grow to be three years old without learning how to swim.

• Fellow over by Medina drilled a well and took a sample of the water to town only to find out that it only tested out at 37-percent moisture content.

• A fish out of water in Medina Lake didn't even know there was a drought. He thought he was evolving.

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION AWARD WINNER

Melvin grew up in Roswell, N. M., the second of seven children: five brothers and two sisters. Neither sister survived childhood.

The Kings lived on a 160-acre irrigated farm, where cotton, alfalfa and corn were grown. It was a lifestyle that involved a lot of work, but it had its rewards.

"I consider (growing up on a farm) a big advantage," he said. "I learned how to work, and how to take on responsibility.

"Dad told us if we would go to school and keep our grades up, he wouldn't keep us out of school during the winter months to help pick cotton and such. When we got in from school, we knew there was work to be done, and we knew we had to do it."

They walked about a mile, then caught a school bus at 7 a.m. every morning.

In the summer, the brothers worked in the fields.

Melvin graduated from high school in 1939, and he continued working for his father on the farm during the summers. He and his older brother Marvin also took jobs during the winter months working at a cotton gin. The pay was 25 cents an hour, considered pretty good working wages at that time.

In February of 1942, Melvin went to Denver, got his physical and joined the U.S. Navy. He remained in the service until 1945. During that time, he was stationed in San Diego, Great Lakes Naval Training Station in Illinois, Kingsville, and Hawaii.

He was stationed on a naval base on the island of Maui when the Japanese arrived there and signed a treaty and surrendered.

"We had been preparing to go to Japan when they surrendered," he said. "If the war had lasted another six months, I probably would have gone to Japan."

One of Melvin's most vivid memories is the "fireworks" that were shot off when soldiers began celebrating the end of the war. There were rescue flares in each airplane, and they started disappearing and being "mysteriously" ignited.

After the war, Melvin and his wife Vera and their daughter Lynda moved to Bandera, where Vera's family lived. Shortly after they moved here, another daughter, Karen was born. In the years that followed, two more daughters, Marta and Debra, were born to Melvin and Vera.

At about the same time he started his job for the water department, King said the traditional Bandera Stompede began, and he said it was "difficult" at times to deal with the masses of people that would crowd in the streets during the three-day weekend.

"We hoped and prayed no fires would break out, because one of the biggest problems was simply getting from one place to another," King said. "Fortunately, we didn't have any bad fires during those times.

"With 35,000 people in town, restaurants would be standing room only, and sanitary facilities were at a premium. People slept everywhere," he said. "The banks of the river were lined with people, sleeping, and sometimes they would just throw down a blanket in someone's yard and spend the night."

The Stompede came to a halt in the early 1960s, at the bidding of newly-elected sheriff R.B. Miller.

In August of 1978, a flood of great magnitude hit Bandera, and the sewer plant was washed away. At that time, the city office building construction had been started, but flood damage recovery put building plans on hold for a while. A new sewer plant was built and completed in 1982, and when the Bandera City Council took over the water district at the beginning of 1983, the water board was officially dissolved.

In 1984, Garbage Gobbler was hired to collect the city's garbage. It was more costly to hire the company from outside to do the work, but less problems, and "definitely less headache," he said.

Since that time, Melvin has continued to oversee the city's public works department, with responsibilities being added to his job as the city's domain grew. He retires with 38 years of service to the community under his belt.

As a man who does not take easily to being idle, Melvin will probably find himself involved in lots of things, but one thing he will almost assuredly continue to do.

Help people.

Four drivers arrested here

Four DWI arrests were among the 65 cases and 15 arrests reported by the Bandera County sheriff's office last week.

Jose Miguel Gracia, 30, of Corpus Christi was arrested Sept. 10; Carl Kirby Morrison, 53, of Bandera was arrested Sept. 12; Jose Fuentes, 22, of Bandera was arrested Sept. 13; and Glenn Alexander, 41, of Lake Jackson was arrested Sept. 16. All were charged with driving while intoxicated.

On Sept. 9 sheriff's deputy Robin Price, aided by information from a Bandera county citizen, located and recovered a stolen vehicle in the Bandera Ranch Acres subdivision area.

The 1988 Dodge van had been reported stolen from San Antonio Sept. 7.

Debra Brooks of San Antonio reported Sept. 9 that her Medina Lake cabin had been broken into and a window unit air conditioner was stolen.

Kenneth Skinner of San Antonio reported Sept. 7 a burglary at his place in Mountain View subdivision.

According to Skinner a 1983 Honda motor scooter and several power tools were stolen.

woman from another vehicle removed Hess from the truck.

Rheaume suffered a broken left leg, crushed chest, possible broken back, neck, head, and internal injuries.

Hess was treated at Wilford Hall for minor lacerations and bruises and released Friday, Sept. 15.

Rheaume's blood will be tested for alcohol, but results will not be known for six weeks, says Ward. No charges will be filed.

Rheaume was a member of the local Teamsters Union #1110 and was a graduate of South San High School.

Survivors include a son, Justin Thomas Rheaume; his fiance, Kathryn Davis; parents Albert and Corinne Rheaume; grandmother Doris Thieault; brother and sister-in-law Allan and Christina Rheaume; sister Karen Dallis, all of San Antonio.

Services were Monday, Sept. 18, at Porter-Loring Mortuary with the Rev. Enda McKenna officiating. Burial was at Mission Burial Park South.

Medina Valley EMTs stand by waiting for the justice of the peace to arrive to pronounce Thomas E. Rheaume dead at the scene Wednesday, Sept. 13. Rheaume's 1979 Chevy Blazer sits on its side in the background after skidding up to 300 feet. Karl Hess, who was buckled into his seat in the accident, was injured and was the pallbearer at Rheaume's funeral Monday, Sept. 18.

Dr. Conrad Nightingale gets an enthusiastic embrace from some of his temporary residents of his Hill Country Veterinary Clinic. The part doberman pup and the calico cat are but a few of the animals needing homes. Clinic hours are 7 a.m.-6 p.m. Monday through Friday and 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturdays.

Filing

Clements to serve on the River Authority board.

All current water management directors are also board members of the Bandera County River Authority, except Karr, who resigned from the river authority board earlier this year. His name will nevertheless appear on the Nov. 7 ballot because he was named to the temporary board by the legislation that created it.

On Oct. 4, the names of all who have filed for the board will be drawn to determine their order on the ballot. Names will be paired on the ballot for one of nine places on the board.

Existing board members will not be differentiated from other candidates on the ballot and existing board members may be paired against one another, depending on how the names are drawn.

District board members must have been a resident of Bandera County for six months before the filing deadline, Sept. 29; a resident of Texas for last 12 months; a U.S. citizen not convicted of a felony or ruled mentally incompetent by a court.

After the Sept. 29 filing deadline, candidates can still file as write-in candidates, but they have to file at county clerk's office and be certified as a write-in candidate.

Absentee voting begins Oct. 18 for the water district and the constitutional amendments.

The district will pay $500 to the county for the district's share of the election's expense.

Residents of the Pebble Beach water district and the city of Bandera, while exempt from taxation under the current river authority law, will be in the water district and will be eligible to vote and serve on the board of directors.

Until the election, there will be the underground water district board of directors and the river authority board of directors.

After the election, if voters approve, the river authority will dissolve.

If voters turn down the district, the river authority will continue to exist with its present board and the water management district board of directors will dissolve.

Craig Tips, current secretary-treasurer of the Bandera County River Authority, was elected secretary of the temporary board of directors for the Springhills Water Management District at the district's first meeting Sept. 18.

Utopia's school tax 60.9 cents

A new tax rate of 60.9 cents was set by unanimous vote when the Utopia school board met Monday, Sept. 11. The new rate represents about a 7.3 percent increase in the local tax levy for residents of that school district.

"Program mandates by the state which must be funded locally are responsible for the major portion of the increase," said superintendent of schools John McFadin. "Other factors contributing to the budget and tax increases this year included an updated computer lab and completion of roof repairs on the main school building.

F'burg winery opens

Pedernales Vineyards is the first winery to be opened in the recently established "Fredericksburg in the Texas Hill Country" viticultural area.

It is located at the Karl and Judy Koch ranch on State Highway 16 5.4 miles south of the courthouse in Fredericksburg.

Only two wines are produced by this new boutique winery. One is a red Cabernet Sauvignon and the other a white Sauvignon Blanc. Both these varietal wines are made solely from grapes grown in the winery's 20 acre vineyard and they carry an "Estate Bottled" label.

The wines are sold presently only at the winery.

Owner Karl Koch and veteran winemaster Vernon Gold pool their talents to make the Pedernales Vineyards wines. The style of these wines might best be called a "classic dry" since all sugars are consumed in the fermentation.

All the Cabernet Sauvignon is aged over a year in oak barrels. About one-fifth of the Sauvignon Blanc is also oak aged and then it is blended back into the original stock before bottling. 1986 is the winery's first vintage release.

March of Dimes

Commissioners eye balloting

Bandera County Commissioners Monday, Sept. 25 will consider approving the joint election Nov. 7 with the Springhills Water Management District confirmation election.

Some 21 Texas state constitutional amendments are the only other items on the general election ballot.

In other matters, commissioners will consider purchase of a vote counting machine. The county's electorate will continue to use paper ballots as in the past. However, the ballots will be counted at the courthouse on a machine that will scan the paper ballots.

The purchase will be taken to help speed up the election returns process in the county.

Commissioners will also consider hiring an assistant county attorney. The commissioners had previously approved hiring an attorney part-time to try the cases in county court and justice of the peace court that county attorney Sam Darden did not have the time to investigate.

Commissioners will also consider establishment of an EMS support unit in Tarpley.

Commissioners will also discuss the possible future closure of the Medina landfill .

Commissioners will also listen to rancher Hugo Bausch explain the need for a county dog catcher, with Bausch's emphasis on recent incidents.

Commissioners will also consider renewing the county's annual indigent health care contract with Kerrville's Sid Peterson Memorial Hospital.

John Wernette of Texas State Highway Department will discuss progress on extending the paving on the Dixie Dude Road.

Commissioners will also consider a request for road closure in the Avalon subdivision of Lakehills and the county taking over maintenance of a subdivision road.

Appraisal district's budget gets left-handed approval

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

The Bandera County Appraisal District budget of $247,800 was approved as a result of inaction by Medina ISD school board Thursday, Sept. 14, inaction by Bandera ISD previously, and its approval by Utopia ISD, despite the city and county disapproving the budget.

The Medina school board did not pass a resolution to disapprove the appraisal district's budget, reports superintendent Jerry Huie. By this action, the board accepts their budget, he says.

In other action, the school board decided to stay with the Bandera County Appraisal District as their appraising office and made adjustments to the career ladder and school policies.

Appraisal district director Robert Payne of Medina explained to the Medina school board the need for making county-wide property ownership maps, some $50,000 of the appraisal district budget.

Bandera County and the city of Bandera rejected the record $247,000 district budget in separate action Monday, Sept. 11, both citing a $52,000 budget surplus not listed on the upcoming budget year and what they termed excessive salary raises.

Utopia ISD approved the budget at their Monday, Sept. 11 meeting.

The Bandera ISD school board did not take any formal action to disapprove the appraised district budget, in the Aug. 29 meeting when the board approved its budget.

The deadline for disapproving the budget passed Monday Sept. 18.

Part of the controversy concerns the $52,000 budget surplus from previous years the appraisal district has been keeping in its bank account, but not showing on its budget document. The surplus built up from years previous to 1987 and did not grow in 1988. Chief Appraiser Reagan has projected the district will spend all its 1989 budget, thus not adding to the surplus this year.

Bandera County commissioners and Bandera city councilmen and councilwomen felt the budget surplus should be credited back to the taxing entities or used to pay for the maps, but in any case should be shown on the appraisal district's budget document.

Commissioners believe that the district cannot spend the money unless it is on the budget document. In an opinion issued at commissioners' request, Bandera County Attorney Sam Darden supported their position by saying, "In connection with the budget, the law is clear, that any taxing agency is restricted to spend no more, and for no other purposes than those set out, in its budget."

At a Aug. 18 meeting, where the appraisal district board unanimously approved the budget, the five-member panel noted that the basic budget had remained constant for four years at approximately $185,000. Only the county-wide property ownership maps had boosted the 1989 budget from $10,000 to $195,350 and the $50,000 to $247,800 this coming year.

Board members did not have a specific amount that the county-wide project would cost, but talked in terms of $200,000 over four years, with the first year being 1990.

In other action Sept. 14, the Medina school board passed a resolution to continue participation with the Bandera County Appraisal District in 1990. Huie says the Medina ISD is primarily in Bandera County, but has some 15 square miles in Kerr County.

The board also set its requirements for teacher salary advancement in the career ladder system.

The state requires level two teachers (teachers above the entry level position) to "meet expectations" on teacher evaluation scores, says Huie. The Medina school sets its standards higher

Longhorns to prowl Bandera next month

Third annual cattle drive to benefit March of Dimes, Helping Hand

The third annual Longhorn Cattle Drive and Trail Ride from Helotes to Bandera Oct. 19-21 will benefit the March of Dimes and Bandera County Helping Hand, organizers have announced.

Participants will kick off the event Thursday, Oct. 19, at the Cold River Cattle Company, a San Antonio night club, with a party to raise money for the charities, says organizer Cal Chapman, and the trail drive will begin on Friday morning after a send-off breakfast in downtown Helotes.

Cattle and riders will move up State Highway 16 to Bandera, stopping at lunch in San Geronimo and for the night at Kelley's Restaurant in Pipe Creek.

A dance at Kelley's will raise additional funds for the charities, and the drive will continue at 8:30 a.m. Saturday after a Cowboy Breakfast at Kelley's. They will take a lunch break at the Pipe Creek Flea Market, and the cattle are expected to enter Bandera at about 5 p.m. Saturday evening.

The cattle will come into Bandera on State Highway 16, turn right at the Bandera Bank, and move up Main Street to makeshift pens to be constructed behind The Cabaret Dance Hall.

The featured event will be Saturday evening at The Cabaret where Jay Knight and Southern Breeze will play for a dance, with admission fees going to drive expenses and the two charities, says Chapman.

Participants may participate in the drive for $30 for one day or $50 for both days, and that includes three meals and dance admissions. Interested persons may register by mail at Box 1989, Bandera 78003, and get more information by calling Linda or Cal Chapman at 796-7353

Arkey Blue made a great grand marshal in the Cowboy Capital Rodeo Parade on Labor Day weekend, riding on his faithful steed. The only other grand marshal (in recent years at least) to actually ride a horse in that parade was also a local boy.

Guess who?

If you guessed Larry Mahan, you guessed right.

• One of the sights around Bandera that always brings a smile to my face is the spectacle of Joe Walters' goats on Highway 173 (by the entrance to the Flying L Ranch).

He's made this cute little mountain for them, and it has a tin man on it, who must be yodeling Swiss-style. The goats insist on acting like they were really in the Swiss Alps, climbing the mountain and striking photographable poses.

• Bandera is truly a place for all seasons, as the current weather demonstrates, and it is also a place for all reasons.

The reason some Beaumont visitors were here was to bring their saddles to Bo Chesson's Bandera shop for repair. His work, obviously, is known favorably and far and wide.

• Tivy High School in Kerrville conducts great adult classes featuring all kinds of interesting things for the learning season. Bandera residents may attend, but wouldn't it be nice if there was enough interest in Bandera to justify having some classes here?

There are healthful dance and exercise classes at Ms. Rhetta's here and golf lessons at the golf courses and tennis lessons at Pipe Creek, and certainly we all see a lot more walkers, joggers and cyclists.

But those forms of exercise can't replace Bandera's traditional favorite, horseback riding. Those who walk, jog and pedal must be doing it just because they don't have a cayuse to ride off into the sunset.

• Mexican-style goodies will abound Sunday, Sept. 24, at the annual Fiesta Luncheon of the St. Christopher's Episcopal Church.

• Ballan mat Patsy Montana this weekend at the Jimmie Rodgers Jubilee in Kerrville. Patsy was the first woman to sell a million country and western records when her "I Want to be a Cowboy's Sweetheart" sold that many in 1935. She was very gracious and reported that just in the past year four or five singers have also recorded "...Cowboy's Sweetheart."

Former Banderans Bettye Jeane Stevens Moore and Karl Moore were among the group that accompanied Miss Montana during the Jubilee, and Bettye Jeane sang "Have I Told You Lately That I Love You" in duet with Miss Montana.

Bettye Jeane's mother is Mrs. Forest Stevens, a rancher north of Banders, and Karl's mother is Irene Moore King, formerly of Pipe Creek and now a resident of Purple Hills Manor.

Bettye Jeane and Tom Swazell have just completed two albums soon to be released featuring Tom Dobro, with Bettye Jeane on the vocals.

Bettye Jeane and Karl now live in San Antonio where they own BJ's Southside Music Stores.

Bandera's Dusty Britches and Medina's Wilton Crider also performed at the salute to Jimmie Rodgers.

• Ho hum! Our town's Rudy Robbins was in another movie on television the other night. It was "Sugarland Express."

We can all catch him live and in the flesh at Sea World on Saturday, Sept. 30, and Sunday, Oct. 1, with his Lightening R group doing Sons of the Pioneers stuff and other old-fashioned "cowboy songs," as country and western music used to be called.

• Footnote on the invitation to the wedding of Patt A. Barefield and Joe K. Watson at the Silver Dollar Saloon Oct. 7: "Please check your guns at the door and no horses or mules (dogs OK) inside during the ceremony. Sorry, no tuxedos or formals."

• Willie Nelson's Cowboy Television Network will be filming footage for a television movie at The Cabaret Dance Hall on Saturday, Oct. 14, with Johnny Bush.

The Cabaret is inviting the public to come by and dance to Bush's strains and watch the filming.

Masters' works to be in Kerrville

The Cowboy Artists of America Museum in Kerrville will feature a display of paintings and bronzes by members of the Cowboy Artists of America plus a selection of works by historic artists including C.M. Russell, Frederic Remington, Albert Bierstadt, Frank Tenney Johnson, and W.R. Leigh through Nov. 8.

The museum is open Tuesday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sundays 1-5 p.m. It is located two miles from downtown Kerrville on State Highway 173. Call 1-896-2553 for more information.

Entries now open for wool contest

"Texas Make It Yourself With Wool" contest will be held Nov. 18 at Schreiner College in Kerrville. Application blanks are now available, and can be obtained by calling 257-6421.

The event is sponsored by the American Sheep Industry Association and the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Auxiliary. Age divisions include pre-teen (ages 13 and younger), junior (14-16), senior (18-24) and adult (24 and older).

There is no limit on the number of entries per contestant, but those entering must appear in judging and the fashion show to be eligible for prizes, according to spokeswoman Virginia Holekamp.

District winners will receive an expense paid trip to the state contest in San Angelo Dec. 2. Junior and senior winners at state will advance to the national competition in Phoenix Jan. 14-17.

Eva Boren is "arrested" and charged with wearing too large earrings and being too bossy last week as the Bandera Inn staged a holdup of a tour bus. Boren is the director of Lion's Field Recreation Center in San Antonio. She and 40 other members were treated to barbeque and all the trimmings.

'Lucky break' leads to business

Local carver finds no dilemma on horns

By Larry T. Williams
Bulletin Staff Writer

Bandera carpenter Jerry Baker may have quite literally "stumbled" on to a new and lucrative art form when he tried to leap a creek several months ago and broke his leg.

That bit of good fortune left Baker spending a lot of time looking at the view from his Hells Bells ranch north of town and trying to find ways to pass the time.

Whittling was one way. "I picked up a piece of deer horn and cut a piece off," said Baker. "Then I drilled a hole in it for a bandana slide." Baker went on to polish the gnarly antler base and finally gave it to his wife, Chris, but the idea stuck and he tried another piece.

That time Baker decided to carve into the material instead of just leaving it natural. What resulted was another slide in the form of a whimsical alligator that crawls toward a wearer's throat.

From there Baker's imagination took off and his production grew. "About this time I remembered I had a Dremel tool (a miniature grinder) and started using it to hollow out the centers of the horns," he said. "Then I tried carving with it too."

Tiny beer cans, saddles, snakes and claws, cactus and armadillos. A delicate owl in flight and

100 years old

Kerrville will celebrate its 100th birthday this weekend with the Kerrville Centennial River City Fair Sept. 22-24 at the Louise Hays Park and Tranquility Island.

The Centennial festivities will kick off with a combination centennial and Tivy High School homecoming parade Friday, starting at 3:30 p.m.

Arts and crafts as well as food and drink booths will be part of the fair.

A petition was filed Aug. 23, 1889 to incorporate the town of Kerrville. An election was held Sept. 4 and the proposal passed by an overwhelming majority.

even a right foot full of toes. All have wandered out of Baker's mind and found substance in a carved piece of antler.

"If you look at a piece of horn, most times you can see something in it," Baker says. "I call it 'stag gazing' instead of star gazing," he says. "When I see it, then I go after it."

When Baker finishes a carving he preserves it with a liquid plastic which enhances the material's color and protects the surface. He's found that the coating from a spray can works best.

"...most times you can see something in it... I call it 'stag gazing.'"

Once a piece is finished, the artist starts another, usually working each idea to completion before venturing on to a new theme.

The motorized high-speed miniature grinder speeded up Baker's work but as he continued to carve, the charm of Baker's jackknife musings caught on and he found himself unable to maintain a stock of his creations on hand.

"I've been wanting to do a show sometime soon but I can't accumulate enough to display," said Baker. "I've sold carvings to folks from all over, Houston, Kansas, even Germany. A guy came to see me from Houston back in May and cleaned me out. He bought 60 pieces and said he could sell them all at triple the price at home."

Another problem facing the artist is a steady supply of raw material. Antler is a seasonal material at best and not something a person just finds laying around most times. Baker chuckles at the fact that he has had to explain to customers that he does not kill every deer that provides him with horns. "I get most from hunters who bring them to me and a few that I find in the woods after the deer shed them," he says. "Those are rare because smaller critters eat them for the calcium."

Baker says he'll trade or buy antler material of any kind. Bone, too. He is starting to work landscapes and scenics in relief on large shoulder blade bones. "I could work in wood but anybody can do that. The horn and bone is more unusual. I like it better."

Surprisingly, antler carving is not without serious hazards. In addition to the usual cautions required because of sharp knives and mechanical tools, it seems the dust generated by the grinder is quite dangerous when inhaled.

"It's so fine, when you breathe it, it walls off the lungs," Baker said. "It can be fatal. Several people have died because of the dust."

Baker read about the problems with the dust in a knife maker's magazine and immediately started using a mask. "All I needed was to find something I really liked to do and have it kill me," he laughed.

Since he works outside most of the time, Baker uses only a (what else) bandana. "The wind blows most of the dust away from me so the bandana's enough," he said. "When I work inside I use a painters mask."

Baker will take orders for custom work or special items and welcomes ideas for new works. He will swap carving for a good supply of antlers too, he says.

The carver is now hard at work trying to produce enough pieces to fill out a show at the Frontier Times Museum in October. He has been invited to share the exhibit space with a painter and a photographer in a month-long display. If you have antlers to trade or sell or if you want to see more of Jerry Baker's work, call 796-3613.

Random blips and splats of raindrops on a tin roof suddenly reaching the crescendo of a true roaring downpour. There can be few sound sequences more pleasant in all the world. After enduring the grinding oppression of burned up pastures and dry creeks for so many months, South Texans let out a collective sigh of relief as they woke up the past nights to the delicious music of rain on the roof.

So now, with even a norther checking in from the Rockies, we can say, in the inimitable front-page words of J. Marvin Hunter, "farmers are jubilant and ranchers are rejoicing."

Strangely enough, we also found ourselves praying for rain in August in Ireland. Tourists who arrived in Europe this summer carrying the usually requisite raincoats and umbrellas found relentless sunshine instead and had to go out and buy walking shorts and sunscreen.

The Emerald Isle looked more like the Ochre Isle as we came down into Shannon this year. The little fields and mountain pastures were a painful yellow. When May and June were gloriously sunny and Dubliners scheduled holidays at home instead of in Spain, the citizenry smiled.

The sun seemed not so wonderful after all when by August, dairy farmers in our neighborhood in West Cork were fearing the hay they would normally be storing for winter and paying dearly for trucked in water for thirsty milk cows. There were forest fires in France.

Our townland depends entirely for water on wells — the Irish term for springs — coming off Gouladoo Mountain. This summer the wells went dry. The O'Briens ran a hose from the drilled well in the garden of the summer people from Saudi-Arabia. Tim Joe turned his Friesian herd into our place each evening on the way to the barn to drink from the trickle of water still coming down the cliff.

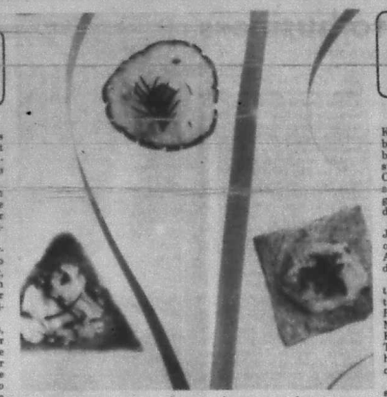
Our own well went out briefly. Sonny Hosford from over the mountain came and worked on it.

It was so warm at night this summer that we lighted only one turf fire in the snuggery. Then one of those evenings, we began to hear the distinctive wailing in the chigney of a gale coming off the Atlantic. In the wee hours came the spatter of rain against the old-fashioned dormer windows. Thanks and praise be unto Thee, O Lord.

The hay meadows back of Tim Joe's turned green by noon the next day. The trickle down our cliff swelled to a steady if tentative flow.

Peg O'Brien went back to worrying whether it was going to rain all winter without stopping, as all the children up and down the road exchanged sneakers for the standard green rubber Wellington boots.

Frankly, back here in Texas, we hope it does rain all winter without stopping and that we have to get out and cut cedar boughs to drive through the McHugo pasture on the way to town. May all the norther's come in wet!



Crab meat snacks come in many styles

Crab meat can be served many ways, from appetizers to salads

The sweet, succulent meat of the crab can be eaten and enjoyed in a variety of ways: from salads teamed with lettuce and delicate dressing to a rich filling crab puff — an appetizer blended with dill and black olives. According to Irene Elizondo of the Texas Department of Agriculture, crab is the 2nd most popular shellfish eaten in the United States, shrimp ranks first.

Crab is a crustacean — an animal which has a shell. It has a short tail and ten legs and is known for it's unusual way of walking or crawling sideways. They are found in the waters from Maine to Mexico. Texas blue crab is available year 'round but is most plentiful between April and November. Elizondo says.

Texas blue crab can be recognized by their size — five to seven inches across — and by their color — blue to blue green to brownish blue.

Crab can be purchased live, canned or frozen or freshly cooked and iced. Live blue crabs yield only 1 1/2 to 2 ounces of meat so allow 5-6 crabs per person when purchasing. Fresh crab should be cooked immediately, says Elizondo, refrigerated and used as soon as possible. It will keep 1-2 days. Frozen crab will keep up to 6 months.

A 3 1/2 ounce serving of crab has a mere 90 calories. It is also a good source of protein. The soft shell crab often served in fine restaurants is a blue crab which has shed its shell.

Crab appetizers are a treat for a party, according to Elizondo. Crabmeat nachos are a new twist to an old Southwestern favorite. The combination of textures; creamy cream cheese and crunchy onion and celery make this appetizer a real favorite. Cucumbers make a different base for lemon-dill crabmeat. This chilled, cool as a cucumber treat is a natural for warm weather parties.

For more information, please write the Texas Department of Agriculture, 122 Heiman, San Antonio, Texas 78205.

Crabmeat Nachos

48 oz. cream cheese
1/4 C. mayonnaise
1 lb. flaked crabmeat
1 C. minced green onions
1 C. coarsely chopped celery
1 (4 1/4 oz.) can chopped black olives
1/4 tsp. hot pepper sauce
1/4 tsp. paprika
Salt and pepper to taste
Tortilla chips
Paprika to garnish

In large mixing bowl, combine cream cheese and mayonnaise until soft and smooth. Add crabmeat, onion, celery, olives, hot pepper sauce, paprika, salt and pepper; mix well. To serve, top tortilla chips with crabmeat mixture and sprinkle with paprika. Makes 12 appetizer servings.

Zucchini crabmeat puffs

18 thin slices white bread
1 1/3 C. flaked crabmeat
1 1/2 small, shredded zucchini
1/2 C. minced green onions
1/2 C. mayonnaise
1 T. fresh lemon juice
1 egg white, beaten stiff
1/2 C. grated Parmesan cheese

Cut each slice of bread into 4 circles with a 1 1/2-inch diameter cutter. Toast bread rounds in preheated 350 degree F. oven for 5 minutes, turning once. In large mixing bowl, combine crabmeat, zucchini, onion, mayonnaise and lemon juice. Fold crabmeat mixture into beaten egg white. Mound mixture on toasted bread rounds. Sprinkle tops with cheese and place under broiler for 3 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes 72 appetizers or 12 appetizer servings.

By Jimmie Hughey, Library Director

Tom Clancy.("Cardinal of the Kremlin," "Hunt for Red October," etc.) has moved his CIA base of operations from the Russian sector to the drug routes of Colombia in his newest best seller, "Clear and Present Danger," now available at the Bandera County Library.

In this new work, the CIA's Jack Ryan (from previous Clancy offerings) comes to the rescue of Americans fighting Colombian drug lords in a fast-paced thriller.

Other best sellers available at the library include "From Beirut to Jerusalem" by Thomas L. Friedman, "The Old Silent" by Martha Grimes, "Murder at the Kennedy Center" by Margaret Truman, and "Great Plains," the history and legends of the American prairies by Ian Frazier.

Still on the best seller list are such offerings as "Polar Star" by Martin Cruz Smith; "The Russia House" by John le Carre; "Talking God" by Tony Hillerman; "It's Always Something," by Gilda Radner, the late comedienne's memoir describing her battle with cancer; and a hilarious look at American history by Dave Barry entitled "Dave Barry Slept Here."

• New members of the library board of trustees welcomed at the regular meeting Monday, Sept. 11, included Betty McNaughton of Medina, John Maxwell of Pipe Creek, and associate member Lauri Reagan, a senior at Bandera High School.

Lauri's job will be to act as liaison between the younger members of our community and the county library. This will enable the library to better serve that large section of our population.

Departing board members, Linda Barton and former Mayor Bob Cowan, were awarded certificates of appreciation for their work on the board.

New library board officers include Jerald "Jay" Hoskelis, president; Kathryn Thompson, vice president; and Diane "Dee" Osgood, secretary.

Officers took over their duties immediately and several important committees were appointed, including a budget preparation committee, a panel to renovate the circulation desk area, and a goals and objectives committee to draw up a five-year plan of operation.

Board meetings on the first Monday of each month at 3:45 p.m. at the library are open to the public, and the board welcomes ideas, suggestions and complaints from patrons.

Local EMTs assist Canyon Lake event

Pipe Creek paramedics Fay Honaker and Monica Wilson and special skills EMT Tom Cavin were volunteers on the Texas Hill Country Triathalon medical team at Canyon Lake Sept. 9.

More than 900 triathletes from 42 states and seven countries participated in the THCT which served as the last and largest qualifying event for next month's Ironman Triathalon in Hawaii. Some 60 athletes won qualifying slots.

Contestants swim 1.5 miles, bike 48 miles and run 10 miles. They race against each other as well as the clock. The triathletes are both male and female and as young as teenagers and as old as 68.

"We treated everything from heat-related problems, muscle cramps, stomach cramps, nausea, dehydration to sheer exhaustion," says Honaker.

Honaker and a physician roamed the race course looking for people in difficulty. "My partner, Suzie, and I were moving field 'docs' and Tom and Monica started IVs in the main medical tent," says Honaker.

Some 95 athletes, approximately ten percent of the field, received treatment from the medical team.

"We worked hard but learned a lot and had a lot of fun," says Honaker.

Civic Center Christmas Bazaar to feature arts and crafts Nov. 4

A Christmas Craft Bazaar will be held Nov. 4 starting at 9 a.m. at the Lakehills Civic Center.

Local crafts people can rent a eight-foot table for $10 from the Medina Lake Betterment Association to display their crafts that customers can buy as Christmas presents.

"We know that many of our local residents are quite talented and this is just another opportunity for your talents to be shared with visitors and those of us who are non-artisans," says Peggy Ashmore, president of the MLBA.

"As in all other fundraising events sponsored by the Medina Lake Betterment Association, all profits are used to satisfy the mortgage indebtedness and for building maintenance," says Ashmore.

Food and drinks will be sold all during the day.

Deadline for table reservation and payment is Oct. 25.

Call Ashmore at 796-8302 for a reservation form.

Work on Lakehills intersection to be complete by month's end

Drainage work currently underway at the intersection of FM Road 1283 and Park Road 37 in Lakehills should be complete this month, reports the highway department.

Olmos Construction started adding concrete rip rap last week along the steep slope of FM Road 1283 leading to the culvert at the intersection of Park Road 37, reports John Wernette, State Department of Highways and Public Transportation resident engineer in Hondo.

Additional rip rap will be added to protect on the downstream side, says Wernette.

The construction is for the purpose of erosion control on the intersection's steep slope, says Wernette. The work was to be done as part of the FM 1283 renovation, but was cut because of cost overruns on the original project.

The current construction is part of other projects primarily in Medina County.

A set of rip rap will be poured at State Highway 16, south of Pipe Creek and north of Park Road 37 in Medina County. The drainage work will be near Pat Doyle's horse ranch so that future rainfall runoff doesn't undermine a fence on a steep vertical slope.

This work is scheduled to start in the latter part of the week or next week.

All projects are going to be completed in September unless the weather delays it, says Wernette.

Some 150 pounds of assorted fresh and salt water fish were grilled, smoked, baked, blackened, chowdered or stewed and served with 60 pounds of grilled, barbecued, stewed or teriyakied chicken and 40 pounds of barbecued brisket.

It was the annual get-together at the Clouds' place in Castle Lake Ranch subdivision, and Guy Durmont won the frisbee-golf tournament, beating Tommy Tetterman by a single throw and Richard Koepke by four.

Music, trophies set for pinto cookoff

Bob Macon's one-man band has been confirmed as the entertainment and the trophies for the annual Hermann Sons pinto bean cookoff are on display. The event will be held at the Hermann Son's park beginning at 11 a.m., Saturday, Sept. 30.

Macon will play guitar and sing with his accompanying stereo system, reports spokeswoman Frances Garren.

However, the Grand Lodge Hermann Sons mixed chorus will not be able to attend the event, she says.

The trophies for first-, second-, and third-place as well as showmanship are on display at the Lakehills Variety Store and More. "Drop by and see them, they'll really be an incentive," says Garren.

Eleven bean-cooking entries have been received and more are expected, she says.

Entry forms are available at Lakehills businesses such as the Lakehills Variety Store, Adolph's, Shirley's, Fiddlin' Around, D&H Automotive, and Viking Liquor Store. All entries must be received by Thursday, Sept. 28. Entry fee is $10.

Food available during the day includes hot dogs, barbecue sandwiches, and carne guisada, egg, and egg and meat tacos.

The Hermann Sons park is located next to Millie's Pavilion in Lakehills on Park Road 37, 7 west of Heisler's Square.

For more information, call Garren at 751-2348 or Bea Borchers at 751-2469.

"Come and have fun, we expect a great turnout," says Garren.

Koffee Kup Cafe set to open in October

The Koffee Kup Cafe will open in October in the old Muleshoe Restaurant building next to Heisler's Square, the new building and business owners announced this week.

Mildred and Y.H. "Bo" Boberg of San Antonio have purchased the building and are remodeling for a restaurant they plan to open after the first of October. "We want to cater to the community people," says Bo.

Mildred says they will offer breakfast, a plate lunch during the week, standard American food, and some Mexican food.

The restaurant will feature large chicken fried steaks and other steaks including filet, t-bone, and sirloin strip. Other items will include short orders, chicken, and pork chops.

They plan to have the restaurant open Tuesday through Sunday, from 7 a.m. until 9 p.m.

Mildred says she has been in the restaurant business since 1967 when she was running an establishment in Orlando, Fla. Also, her mother was a big influence. "My mother had a place in West Palm Beach for years and years."

The Bobergs are in the process of remodeling the cafe and obtaining their beer license. They have plans to move into the area at a later date.

Also, officer nominations must be turned in to the nominating committee by October, she adds.

This will be the first fall meeting after taking off for July and August, says Webber, "So there is lots of business to discuss."

Some 40 persons participated in the health clinic Monday, Sept. 18 sponsored by the AARP, reports Webber. Some 53 persons participated Aug. 21 in the first clinic.

The South Texas Health Clinic conducted the health screening in a 31-foot self-contained recreational vehicle remodeled for the doctors.

People brought a covered dish and played cards and dominos while they waited to go through the health screening and after lunch, says Webber. AARP volunteers helped to coordinate the patients.

The salary increase for the Lieutenant Governor would not make members of the legislature ineligible to run for the office of Lieutenant Governor.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

Silver Sage Corral

By Manuel Flores

The monthly birthday luncheon will be Sept. 26 for those who celebrate their birthdays in September. The honorees are exempt from bringing food, but everyone else is asked to bring a covered dish to share with the group.

• The Silver Sage Corral has launched an extensive landscaping project. According to Harry Webb, chairman, there are many ways people can help with the project.

The main thrust of the plan is to "adopt a plant." This means that you pay for the plant you choose, which is pictured on a large poster at the center, and that plant is "yours."

You can watch the plant grow, and know you have been a part of the program to make the outside of the center as beautiful as the inside.

If you don't wish to "adopt," you can contribute money to buy landscaping timbers and other supplies that are needed in this project.

You don't have to be a volunteer at the center to adopt a plant.

Come by the center and see the ambitious plans that have been proposed.

• Spanish language classes have gotten off to a good start this fall and there is still time to avail yourself of these classes. The beginning Spanish class meets at 9:45 a.m. and Conversational Spanish meets at 10:45 a.m. each Thursday. Call the center is you wish to enroll.

A Thought For The Week
By John M. Grimes

Ralph Waldo Emerson wrote: "Nothing great was ever accomplished without enthusiasm."

Our capacity for enthusiasm is one of our greatest assets. Yet, too many adults lose their enthusiasm and become old before their time. Without realizing it, a lot of adults allow the buffeting and hard knocks of life to dampen their enthusiasm and kill their zest for life.

This was not true of S.S. Kresge, founder of the retail stores bearing his name. Here was a truly remarkable man. He was a devout Christian, a [illegible] and was a great philanthropist. He's was a man who rose from poverty to riches. During his lifetime he made millions and millions of dollars, but gave most of it away. He never lost sight of God or the dignity in people.

Once when asked about the secret of his amazing life he replied: "I have a simple philosophy ... I go early to bed, get up early, don't eat too much, work hard, help people. Don't let anything get your goat, tend to your own business, be enthusiastic, and always keep God in mind."

[illegible] is a very simple philosophy of life. With this philosophy S.S. Kresge went through life building, always building, with enthusiasm and faith.

Archbishop to visit Bandera, Lakehills

Archbishop Patrick Flores of the San Antonio archdiocese will celebrate Mass in Bandera and Lakehills Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 23-24.

Flores will celebrate Mass Saturday, Sept. 23, at St. Stanislaus Catholic Church in Bandera beginning at 5 p.m.

He will then celebrate the sacrament at 7 p.m. at St. Victor's Chapel in Lakehills. Flores will also commission the new CCD religion teachers at Lakehills, says spokeswoman Nancy MacMillan.

Flores will say the homily (sermon) at the services.

After the 7 p.m. Mass in Lakehills, there will be a reception for Flores in the church's parish hall. "We encourage everyone in the community to come," says MacMillan.

Sunday, Flores will return to say the 8:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. Masses at St. Stanislaus.

After the 8:30 a.m. Mass, there will be a reception in the church's parish hall and after the 11 a.m. Mass, the St. Stanislaus altar society will host a pot-luck lunch in the parish hall. "We want to invite all parishioners to come visit with the archbishop," says MacMillan. Everyone is asked to bring a covered dish.

Flores comes at the invitation of St. Stanislaus' Father "Mac" McManus, pastor of both the Bandera and Lakehills churches.

The San Antonio archdiocese covers 22,000 square miles and extends from Fredericksburg to New Braunfels, Gonzales, Kennedy, Carrizo Springs, Uvalde, and Del Rio, says McManus.

Chrysalis fall festival

The second annual fall festival to support Lutheran Camp Chrysalis will be held Saturday, Sept. 23, at Zion Lutheran Church in Fredericksburg.

The activities start at 10 a.m. and include an arts and crafts sale, chili cookoff, youth carnival, games, food, and drinks.

The day will conclude with an awards presentation and devotion at 4 p.m.

The church is located at 422 West Main in Fredericksburg.

For more information, call Al Sunday at 1-937-8470, Mike Pitman at 1-997-8470, or Harvey Eckert at 644-2419.

Mexican lunch at the Episcopal's

St. Christopher's Episcopal Church will host its annual "Fiesta Luncheon" Sunday, Sept. 24, beginning at 11:30 a.m.

The Mexican lunch plate will be served in the church's Davenport Hall.

Plates will go for $3.50 each.

Baked goods will also be offered for sale.

Tarpley
By Nettie Dean — 562-3464

Tarpley residents were disappointed last week when the first brisk norther of the season failed to produce significant rainfall. A little moisture accompanied the drop in temperature, but for the most part Tarpley got much less rain than any other part of Bandera County.

The cold front was, however, a great relief from hot days and sultry nights.

• Rev. and Mrs. Glenn Rhines drove to Kingsland Tuesday to attend the Hill Country Area Evangelism Conference at the First Baptist Church of Kingsland.

The Rhines report a very good conference.

• Willie and Olga Schmidt attended the wedding of his nephew, Timothy Schmidt and Ginger Jordan Saturday night at St. Stanislaus Catholic Church in Bandera. A reception at Mansfield Park pavillion followed the wedding.

• Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Riley spent several days last week with their grandchildren Decker and Ashley Riley of Corpus Christi.

• Victor C. Purvis drove to Tuoloma, Calif. last Friday and returned in a week. He visited his nephew Glenn Tyra and wife Jean there. He reports a good trip.

Medina ISD higher tax rate to be aired Thursday

The Medina Independent School District board of directors will hear public comment on the 60 cents per $100 proposed tax rate at a hearing Thursday, Sept. 21, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The rate is a 25-percent or a 22-percent effective tax rate hike over last year's 48.02 cents per $100 property valuation used in the fiscal year 1988-89, says superintendent Jerry Huie.

The increase will cause taxpayers with a $50,000 home and taking the $5,000 general homestead exemption available to pay $270 in school tax, rather than the $216.09 paid last year.

The board cites a loss in $2,500,980 in tax base because of declining land values that would have netted them $12,009 in tax revenue at last year's rate as one reason for the tax increase.

Also cited was the loss of $17,626 in state funds and $59,454 expense increase mandated by the state for salary increases.

The meeting will be held in the school's conference room.

The school district adopted a $1,314,332 budget in August, reports Huie. Of that 33.79 percent is financed by the local taxpayers and the rest is from federal and state funds.

A meeting to set the final tax rate will be held Oct. 2.

Farm loan options explained Tuesday

Bandera County farmers with loans from the Farmers Home Administration are invited to a meeting oh how FmHA's computer program is used in considering loan servicing options such as rescheduling and write-downs.

The meeting will be Tuesday, Sept. 26, at 9 a.m. at the district courtroom in Floresville, according to FmHA county supervisor Donald West.

West said the meeting is particularly important for FmHA borrowers behind in their payments and those having difficulty with their loans. "We will go over all the options available to those borrowers and explain how to go about finding one that will keep them in operation," West said.

"If a restructuring plan exists that will keep the borrower on the farm, DALR3 (the FmHA's computer program) will find that plan," he said.

Insurance deadline

Bandera County farmers interested in wheat and oats crop insurance coverage must apply by Saturday, Sept. 30, warns Tom Jean, area claims specialist for the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation.

In much the same way as other citizens select the size of deductible when purchasing other types of insurance, farmers select a policy that protects 50, 65 or 75 percent of their historic average yield, says Jean.

Premium rates are subsidized by the federal government in order to make the insurance more affordable and to increase participation among farmers.

Policies covering all unavoidable natural causes of crop damage backed by the USDA are available through local crop insurance agents, he said.

Bandera archery season slated Nov. 4-Jan. 7

Archers planning to hunt during Bandera County's archery-only hunting season for deer and turkey Oct. 7-Nov. 5 have been reminded of state archery regulations that contain some new rules on the use of crossbows by handicapped persons.

The bag limit for archers remains the same as last year, says Bandera County game warden Carl Becker — four deer per person not to exceed two buck deer.

Longbows, including recurved and compound bows, must be hand-held and hand-drawn with no mechanical devices built into or attached to the bow that would allow the archer to lock the bow at full or partial draw.

No device to propel the arrow is permitted, other than the energy stored by the hand-drawn bow, and the weapon also must have a minimum peak draw weight of 40 pounds.

Arrows, which may not be poisoned, drugged or explosive, must bear the name and address of the owner and must be equipped with a broadhead hunting point that measures at least 7/8 of an inch in width and have a minimum of two cutting edges, except for hunting squirrels.

The regular deer hunting season in Bandera County is Nov. 4-Jan. 7. The season in Medina County is Nov. 11-Jan. 14, and there is a special antierless only season north of U.S. Highway 90 Jan. 20-Feb. 4, says Becker.

The Lady Bulldogs jumped to an early 7-2 lead in the second game and setter Carrie Fellows scored five straight to tie the score at 12-12, but Medina Valley took control at that point to gain the straight-sets victory.

Other members of the Lady Bulldogs team include Jill McHazett, Viola McHorse, Lacey Fellows, Christy Parker, Stacy Sides, Lisa Wharton and Peggy Whitehead.

The Bulldogs opened district play with a 15-7 and 15-5 defeat at the hands of Somerset.

Events include wild cow milking, calf branding, steer tying and trailer loading. Three-man teams made up of ranchers and ranch hands will compete.

—Utopia—

San Antonio Cole defeated the Leakey Eagles to win the seventh annual Utopia Invitational Volleyball Tournament Saturday, Sept. 2.

Utopia varsity overtook Sabinal in the first game 15-1, 15-4, and lost to Leakey 8-15, 15-11, 5-15. Then they went on to defeat Brackettville 15-0, 15-13 for the third place award.

In the first two matches Utopia Junior Varsity lost to Brackettville 2-15, 4-15, but came back to defeat Asherton 13-15, 15-11, 16-14. In the consolation round, Utopia JV lost to Center Point 15-13, 15-11.

Talking about the tournament, coach Dudley Hawkes said, "Our girls played some quality matches. This was our first real taste of competition and we still have a few wrinkles to iron out, but I was very pleased with some of the things I saw."

Special thanks were given to Mr. and Mrs. John McFadin for providing the hospitality room, to Karen Hobbs for organizing the concessions, and to Bill and Joan Findling and Joy Davenport for working the clock and keeping the scorebook.

Utopia vs. Ingram

The Utopia Lady Buffaloes dropped a tough three-game match to Ingram Tuesday, Sept. 5, in Utopia. Ingram won the first game of the match 15-5 before Utopia rebounded to take the second game 16-14. In the final game, Ingram pulled away to a seven point lead and held on to win the game and the match 15-5, 14-16, 15-7.

"We played our best ball of the year," said coach Dudley Hawkes. "Ingram is really a tough class 2-A school. Their season record is 6-1 and they've been playing some 4-A and 5-A schools."

The coach singled out Diana Duke, Stephanie Orbison, and Tori Couch for their outstanding play, but added that the entire team played extremely well.

The Utopia JV defeated Ingram's JV 15-13, 15-17, 15-6. Tana Clark and Sugar Moore were cited for their outstanding play.

The Lady Buffaloes traveled to Brackettville Saturday to play Bracket and Comstock.

Lake Somerville trail designed for horsemen

Equestrians have an excellent place to ride in pleasant surroundings at Lake Somerville State Park, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

A 13-mile riding trail winds through 5,000 acres of rolling hills, bottomlands and open fields between the Nails Creek and Birch Creek Units of the park adjacent to Lake Somerville in Washington and Lee Counties.

The park units were designed to accommodate equestrians and their mounts. Trailhead camping areas have water tanks and hitching rails as well as picnic tables, fire rings and parking spaces large enough for horse trailers.

The trailway has two water sources, mileage markers, direction signs and rest shelters with maps.

A network of loop trails takes riders to primitive camping areas, providing extended trips beyond the 13-mile trail. Riders can enter the trail from either park unit. The park is located south of Bryan and College Station. For information or reservations call the Nails Creek Unit at 409-289-2392 or the Birch Creek Unit at 409-535-7763.

Cross country

Amie Nightingale placed third to lead the Bandera High School girls' cross country team to a fifth-place finish in the Ingram Cross Country Meet Saturday, Sept. 16.

Nightingale ran the two-mile course in 13 minutes, 36 seconds.

Other Bandera runners included Christi Wilson 16th, Viola and Violet McHorse, Christine Jackson, Tracy Felton, Rebekah Bates, Kimber Vos and Sherlyn Brown.

Nightingale said all the BHS runners bettered their previous best times for one mile but had slower-than-normal efforts over the second mile.

The BHS boys did not have the five runners required to compete for the team title, but four ran for individual placings. They were Tony Arnold, Victor Solis, Jason Arredondo and Kenneth Wilson.

The cross country teams, coached by Barbara Mazurek, will compete in the Poteet Cross Country Meet Saturday, Sept. 23.

Run/walk scheduled Sept. 30 at St. Mary's

A "Run for Home" run and walk will be held Sept. 30 to benefit St. Vincent de Paul.

The event will be a five-mile run or a two-mile walk. Registration begins at 7 a.m. with an 8 a.m. starting time. There is an $8 entry fee. Trophies will be awarded and participants will receive a free t-shirt.

The event will be held at the Koehler Pavilion in San Antonio's Brackenridge Park and is sponsored by St. Mary's University.

All the money raised will go to the St. Vincent de Paul society which they will use to provide food for the Sam shelter in downtown San Antonio, says spokeswoman Susie McLean. They will also buy warm hats and mittens for people in shelter and elderly in the substandard housing.

Contact McLean in the public relations office at 1-436-3327 for more information.

Bulldogs 'boot' Warriors

Last minute field goal gives 'Dogs second victory

By Nick Johnson
Editor

It was a titanic defensive scrap for 46 minutes, 41 seconds, but for 1 minute, 18 seconds it was a spine-tingling offensive heart-stopper marked by big plays.

The biggest plays were made by Bandera's Bulldogs during a 59-yard drive that set up the biggest play of them all — a 32-yard field goal that provided all the points Bandera needed to defeat Ingram, 3-0.

That came with just 20 ticks left on the clock, but that left time enough for one more big play by Ingram quarterback Brad Fisher and a defensive gem — an interception by Epi Cardenas with two seconds to go that preserved Bandera's victory.

The Bulldogs are now unbeaten, untied and unscored on in 1989, a happy circumstance after a pair of 2-8 years under Coach Sam Swierc.

Friday's scoring was provided by a soccer-style, 32-yard field goal by Jeff Hensley that put points on the scoreboard with just 20 seconds left.

To the chagrin of Coach Swierc who called time out and decided to try the field goal on third down, it appeared as though that was too much time, however, when Warrior quarterback Fisher uncorked a 20-yard pass to Chad Harding at the midfield stripe. But Cardenas snuffed out any ideas of last-second heroics the Ingram boys may have had by intercepting Fisher's next offering to end the game.

Until Hensley's fateful kick, his second attempt of the night, Bandera's offense moved by fits and starts for 179 yards, as drive after drive stalled because of miscues of one sort or another.

"Our offense was inconsistent when it came time to get into the end zone," Coach Swierc said this week. One Bandera touchdown was called back because of a holding call away from the ball, and a fumble in the shadow of the Ingram goal line was caused by a failure to adjust to a changing snap count, the coach said.

Defensive coordinator Earl Byerley was lavish in his praise of the defensive effort, showering complements on the head of Leroy Brown (9 tackles and 7 assists), Bo Mansfield (8 tackles and 6 assists), Paul Mangold, Valen Dews, Cardenas and Scott Rogers.

"We had an extreme effort on the part of a lot of people," said Byerley. "The big difference in our defense this year is that Bo Mansfield is not having to make every tackle like he did last year," the defense coach said. "He's getting a lot of help."

The string of shutouts may be difficult to sustain this week as the Bulldogs take on offensive-minded Natalia Friday in Bulldog Stadium at 8 p.m.

"The Natalia Mustangs are for real," says Coach Swierc, pointing out that they have exceeded all expectations in their first two games. He said Natalia has benefited from a couple of transfers, including a rangy quarterback who allows the Mustangs to rely on the passing game.

"They will probably hit us harder than anyone has so far this year," Swierc said.

Both teams are unbeaten. Natalia defeated Medina 42-14 and LaVernia, 14-12, while Bandera blanked Pearsall, 13-0, and Ingram, 3-0.

With just 20 seconds left in Friday's game against Ingram, Bulldog senior Jeff Hensley drills the winning field goal from 32 yards out.

Southern doves look 'good'

Prospects appear good for dove hunting in the South Zone of Texas, south of U.S. Highway 90, which opened Wednesday, Sept. 20, says Bandera County game warden Carl Becker.

"I've been working with game wardens in South Texas recently, and to me the prospects look good," Becker said Tuesday. "Some of the best hunting will be late in the evening around stock tanks or other sources of water."

He also issued a warning to hunters who are baiting areas to attract dove. "We're running across quite a bit of baiting," said Becker. "That's a federal violation as well as a state violation."

He said in some areas as much as 600 to 800 pounds of maize have been poured on the ground to attract dove.

Hunters used to shooting in the Central Zone of Texas, which includes Bandera County, will encounter a special regulation that is enforced in the South Zone only, Becker said. "Hunters are required to retain one fully-feathered wing until (the bird) reaches its final destination," he explained. "It's always been required down there (in the South Zone) but not in recent years in the Central Zone," Becker pointed out.

The bag limit in the South Zone is the same as in the Central Zone, 12 dove not to exceed two whitewings, Becker said.

21st senior roping competition planned

The 21st annual Fiesta Roping competition for teams arranged by Walter Langebenning will be held Oct. 6-8 at Mansfield Park Arena.

Competition will be conducted in three age groups — one for ropers 40 years of age and over, one for ropers 50 years and above, and a third for two-man teams with a combined age of 100 years or more.

Oldest competitor last year, 74-year-old Troy Ford of Lovington, N.M., is expected to return this year. Other contestants from as far away as California, Florida, Mississippi and Alabama are expected, says Langehennig.

The event, started in 1960, has been held in Bandera each year except four when it was held under cover in Kerrville because of rain in the Bandera area.

Comfort 'Cats chew Medina 63-0

"If it's true that you learn from your mistakes, we should be ready for the pros," said Medina head coach Joe Winchell after Medina's 63-0 loss to Comfort Friday, Sept. 8.

The coach cited an interception, a fumble on the 12-yard line, a blocked punt and two long pass plays as the main ingredients into the drubbing. "We just gave them 35 points," he said. "It seemed like when we made a mistake, they jumped on it big time and scored."

Comfort ran up a 21 point lead in the first quarter and scored another seven in the second. They added 28 points more in the third stanza and capped the game with an additional TD in the final period.

Medina will play before a home crowd for the first time this season on Friday, Sept. 22, when they host Sabinal. Game time is 8 p.m.

Saloon owner beaten, robbed

'He was like a madman,' says 'Crazy Bob' Applegate

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

In an attack described as unnecessarily brutal, saloon-owner Robert "Crazy Bob" Applegate was beaten and robbed last week by an assailant the victim described as "a madman."

The attack occurred around 4 a.m. Friday, Sept. 22, according to a Bandera County sheriff's department report. The report said a customer stayed after the saloon's closing time and attacked Applegate with the four-foot-long handle of a paint roller.

The suspect reportedly tied Applegate with electrical cords, then beat and kicked him and left him tied up in the bathroom.

"He acted like he was on dope or something," Applegate said Tuesday. "He had no reason to beat and kick me after he tied me up. I told him to take anything he wanted after he had hit me just a few times.

"He was like a madman," he said.

Applegate was transported to the Clear Fork Medical Center, where he said was treated for severe bruises and lacerations on his face and body.

"They said I was one of the luckiest guys around because I didn't have any broken ribs," he said. "But I haven't been able to work, and I expect I'll be sore for a long time."

The suspect apparently took Applegate's keys, which included keys to "everything in the place," he said. "I'll have to change all the locks." The suspect then fled in Applegate's vehicle, leaving him tied up.

Applegate said it took him quite a while to work himself loose and summon help. He said when the suspect left, he told him that if he told the police, he would return to beat him up again.

"He had no reason to beat and kick me after he tied me up," Applegate said.

Sheriff's deputy James Kimbrell confirmed Tuesday that a suspect had been identified and was being sought for questioning. He said the suspect would probably be charged with aggravated robbery, a first degree felony, because a deadly weapon was used, and because the victim was over age 65.

Kimbrell confirmed that Applegate, 66, was struck in the face quite a few times in the attack.

"He looked absolutely awful," Kimbrell said.

Two county officials stricken with heart attacks at seminars

Two Bandera County officials were hospitalized for heart attacks last week, both apparently suffered during work-related seminars.

County commissioner Bennie Barker was to be transferred to Audie Murphy Veteran's Hospital in San Antonio Wednesday after preliminary tests in U.S. Veteran's Hospital in Kerrville, and county tax assessor-collector Marguerite Stevens is expected home from the hospital late this week after bypass surgery.

Both were stricken during seminars related to their duties as county officials.

Stevens suffered an attack during a seminar for tax officials in Austin, a member of her staff said. She had four bypasses during surgery last week, and the staff member said her physicians said she may be able to return home this week.

Barker apparently suffered an attack during the County Judges and Commissioners Conference June 28-30 in Corpus Christi, but it was not diagnosed as a heart attack until he consulted his physician Thursday complaining of stomach pains and nausea.

He was hospitalized immediately and is expected to return to his Wharton's Dock home after tests are completed, according to his wife, Patricia.

International bicycle race picks Bandera County for two stages

By Nick Johnson
Editor

The 1990 Brandera Jeans Tour of Texas international bicycle race in April will include two events in Bandera County, including a new stage that starts and finishes in Medina, spokesman David Mayer-Oakes said this week.

The nine-stage race will start with a prologue time trial that counts in Round Rock, near Austin, March 30 and will conclude in Fort Worth Sunday, April 8, after nine stages, including the two Bandera County races and another new stage from Kerrville to Austin that goes through Comfort.

The Olympic-class cyclists from as many as 30 nations from all over the globe will race in Bandera County for Stage 4 on Monday, April 2, and for Stage 5 on Tuesday, April 3, and Bandera and Kerrville are designated as the co-host cities for Stage 6, the Hill Country Road Race Wednesday, April 4, which starts in Kerrville and goes through Comfort en route to Austin.

Bandera and Leakey are co-hosts of the April 2 event and Bandera and Medina are co-host cities for the April 3 event.

The fastest finisher after adding the times of all nine stages becomes the tour winner and teams compete to have their star finish first. Stage winners are also recognized and rewarded, and there are sprints within stages that also have winners and awards.

The April 2 race will be the same Bandera to Leakey Road Race that was held last year. Designated as tour's Stage Four, it will be 102 miles for the men and 53 miles for the women, starting at the Bandera County courthouse in Bandera and finishing at the Real County courthouse in Leakey.

Stage 5 is the Bandera Pass Road Race, a new stage starting and finishing in Medina on April 3.

It is mostly in Bandera County, but goes into Kerr County shortly after leaving Medina Children's Home on State Highway 16. It passes the Quiet Valley Ranch and approaches Kerrville before turning eastward on Lower Turtle Creek Road and southward through Bandera Pass to Bandera via FM Road 2828 and Ridge Route Road.

Racers in this stage will continue to Tarpley via FM Rd 470, to Vanderpool on FM Rd 187, and return to Medina on FM Rd 337 for the finish.

The Bandera Pass Road Race totals 45 miles for the women and 122 miles for the men, and the terrain varies from a low of 1,360 feet at the Medina River west of Bandera to 2,380 feet at the Divide near the finish west of Medina.

The same 2,380-foot mark on FM Rd 187 west of Medina is also the highest point of the Monday morning Bandera to Leakey Road race, but it has two other second-category climbs in Real County that ascend and descend more quickly. In bicycling, climbs and descents are rated by category, the first category being extreme mountain climbs like those encountered in the European Alps and the Rocky Mountains of this country.

There are only four second-category climbs in the entire tour, three in the Bandera to Leakey Road Race and one in the Bandera Pass Road Race.

Stage 6 is also new to the Tour this year. Called the Hill Country Road Race, it starts in Kerrville and proceeds to Austin through Comfort, Grapetown, Luckenbach, Blanco, Wimberly and Dripping Springs. It contains one third-category climb west of Comfort.

Other Tour of Texas events are Stage 2, the Zilker Park Criterium in Austin on Friday, March 31; Stage 3, the Circle C to Boerne

'Gator trap is set, but still empty, warden says

An alligator spotted two weeks ago is still on the loose, but the game warden has set the trap.

Game Warden Ernest "Ernie" Lerma has baited a trap near the head waters of Medina Lake so the four to six-foot alligator may be trapped live and taken to a more suitable location in Texas.

Lerma says he suspects the alligator was originally brought to an exotic game ranch in Bandera, but a 1987 flood washed it out of the tank and it has been in Medina Lake ever since.

The public should call either the Bandera or Medina County Sheriff's Department if they see the alligator. Do not attempt to feed it in an attempt to tame it.

Officials caution that is is against the law to take an alligator without a permit and there is no alligator hunting season in Medina and Bandera counties. So, don't shoot the 'gator, call it in, 10-4 good baddy.

Occupancy tax rate changed by county for third time

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Bandera County Commissioners Monday changed the hotel-motel tax for a third time, reducing it to six percent for county lodging facilities and to five percent, for motels in the city, effective Oct. 1.

The commissioners bowed to pressure from several dude ranch owners and a motel owner and manager to bring the overall bed tax in the county to a uniform 12 percent across the county. That's in line with other Hill Country areas, they told commissioners.

Commissioners set the tax at three percent July 25 and upped it to seven percent Aug. 14, eyeing a possible $150,000 that might flow into the tourism promotion fund over the $40,000 projected at the lower rate.

With the commissioners' action, the hotel/motel occupancy tax in Bandera County will be a six percent state tax and a six percent county tax levying a total tax on a room of 12 percent. With the split level tax, the tax at Bandera Inn and River Front would be six percent state, five percent county, and one percent city, also 12 percent of the total bill.

Henry Moeller, one of the partners of the River Front Motel, cited the 12 percent tax in Kerrville which generated $360,000 in revenue as a good example to follow. He said a six percent tax would have generated $88,858, based on last year's hotel occupancy revenue.

Clay Conoly, chairman of the Bandera Convention and Visitors Bureau, and manager of Dixie Dude Ranch, agreed that it

Buying at home

Dear editor:
This is to express my sincere appreciation to the Bandera County Sheriff's Department for trading at home. They purchased their boots and jeans for their new uniforms from the Trading Post (Main Street in Bandera). I would like to see other departments spend their money here, keeping it circulating for the good of the county.

Lakehills togetherness

Dear editor:
Being filled with love and warmth, I am once again reminded of what a wonderful place Lakehills is in which to live.

When Archbishop Patrick Flores visited St. Victor's Chapel Saturday evening, he brought with him much holiness, strength, sincerity, and most of all, love. He talked about how we should love our neighbors, care for our elderly and our children. Basically, he spoke of serving the Lord.

In preparing for the archbishop's visit, we realized we were in need of an electrician, a mason and a new carpet.

Calls went out to Jack Williams, Jerry Willis and the Popham family for a carpet. Without hesitation, they volunteered their time, energy, materials and a carpet.

We want to say "thank you" to these wonderful, generous individuals who have given so much of themselves to our community. This is what makes Lakehills such a special place to live and call home.

The most touching experience was the way St. Victor's entire parish family came together to dust, mop, vacuum, water, mow, rake, plant flowers, etc. Everyone brought homemade cakes, cookies and sandwiches for the reception, which was glorious. Everyone worked together in such a splendid way, we know the Spirit was within us.

Let us pray that we as a community will continue to grow spiritually in strength and in love.

Viewpoint

By Mary Scott Nabers
Commissioner, Texas Employment Commission

Many Texans will remember that back in 1976 the federal government enacted a temporary 0.2 percent FUTA surtax to pay off $8.7 billion debt in the national unemployment system.

Despite a promise that the tax would expire when the debt was paid off, the temptation of collecting almost $1 billion in revenue was obviously too great for Congress to resist and the tax due to expire in 1987, was extended through 1990.

There is absolutely no reason to continue to tax Texas taxpayers and the Texas Employment Commission has supported elimination of the surtax since 1987.

Finally, a bill to repeal the 0.2 percent FUTA surtax has been introduced by two Oregon representatives, Ron Wyden and Peter DeFazio. "The Federal Unemployment Tax Relief Act of 1989," HR 2316, will, if passed, repeal the surtax at the end of 1989 reducing every Texas Taxpayer's annual FUTA cost by $14 per employee.

Although a hearing has not yet been set, the bill will eventually be heard in the Subcommittee on Human Resources of the House Ways and Means Committee. For everyone who is interested in this legislation, now is the time to write congressional representatives. Taxpayers in this state may find that the bill does not pass without active support from the business community.

On a related note, the TEC opposed another federal measure that would have increased our administrative budget, but would have cost the employees of the state $164 million in additional FUTA taxes in the next three years. The proposal, based on increasing the $7,000 FUTA wage base, would have added $300 million nationwide to the operating budgets of employment security agencies.

All state agencies are facing budget crunches, but TEC felt that the price was too high. Over three years, Texas would have received about $45 million of the $164 estimated collections from Texas employers for employment security operations.

That definitely did not appear to be in the best interests of taxpayers!

Houston pollster's report shocks Demos, especially Mattox people

Last week's shocker was a Houston pollster's report that Attorney general Jim Mattox has only eight percent support from Democrats, while former Gov. Mark White has 23 percent.

For Mattox, who's been running for governor for seven unabashed years, that figure is dismally low and casts a dark cloud on his candidacy.

Eight percent is so low it might be inaccurate, but folks have been wondering all summer why Mattox hasn't officially announced his candidacy, and supporters of other candidates are now saying that's why.

Poll Accuracy Questioned

Mattox disputed the poll the next day, saying his and other polls consistently give him higher support, but he didn't say at what level it's running.

Look soon for him to release his own poll showing stronger support.

Nevertheless, the indications are good for White to run.

Not only does he register enough support to encourage a race, but White's mentor, former Gov. Dolph Briscoe, also drew seven percent in the same poll.

Briscoe, a top leader of dwindling conservative Democrats, has chosen to explore his own candidacy rather than support Mattox or Treasurer Ann Richards, who led the poll with 35 percent.

Remember, as governor, Briscoe gave protege White his start by naming him secretary of state. Consider, theoretically, if Briscoe delivered seven percent to White, then White trails Richards today by only five points.

White, always gutsy, has taken bigger chances with less odds. Many say he'll enter the race.

Mattox shouldn't be counted out, either. Although there is some quiet party talk of trying to persuade him to step to the U.S. Senate race against Phil Gramm, Mattox gave no indication he'll back away from the governor's race.

More Campaigning

GOP gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams unleashed a million-dollar TV blitz to boost name ID which touts his accomplishments of starting 28 businesses.

Williams also said he will turn the state's controversial acquisition, 215,000-acre Big Bend Ranch, into a 90-day boot camp for first-time convicts before sending them to labor for six months on community projects.

The head of Houston Lighting and Power Co. endorsed Bob Bullock for Lt. Governor in a letter on company stationary.

Bullock's Democratic primary opponent, state Sen. Chet Edwards, responded that Bullock "is in the utilities' pocket."

Schlueter Quits House

State Rep. Stan Schlueter, D—Killeen, one of several lawmakers named in news reports on excessive political contributions and how they are spent, resigned his seat to become a lobbyist. Schlueter insisted he made the decision weeks ago, and the media revelations were just unlucky timing.

Other reports said IRS agents made copies of his contribution reports at the secretary of state's office after the news broke.

Ethics Amnesty Declared

Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle, who heads the state public integrity unit, declared amnesty for legislators who broke ethics laws in 1988, but vowed to get them next year.

Earle said the law is too vague to pursue and , along with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, urged reform in the November special session.

State Capitol Highlights

Other Highlights

- Former Gov. Preston Smith filed chapter 7 bankruptcy documents seeking protection against creditors, becoming the second former governor to fall victim to the economic recession.
- Black and Hispanic groups joined to file a lawsuit challenging the manner in which Texas elects its state district judges.

The suit seeks to install single-member districts in nine urban counties and maintains that the at-large district system discriminates against minorities.

- Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby told a federal immigration panel its reform act is "flawed" and that economic development on both sides of the Rio Grande is the answer.

The economies of Texas and northern Mexico "are all one, and always will be, whatever pieces of paper are adopted," he said.

Guess who's getting it in the ol' pocket book this time? Mr. and Ms. Middle Class America, that's who. The same hapless couple that gets it all the time. This time its the so-called tax cut that's in the capital gains proposal currently being debated in Congress.

Right now, 85 percent of U.S. taxpayers [illegible] $50,000 per year. 14.2 percent make between $50,000 and $200,000, and 0.8 percent make in excess of $200,000. In one capital gains version being debated, only 8 percent of the tax savings will go to taxpayers who earn less than $50,000. Fully 60 percent of the benefit will go the the precious few who are the very wealthy. You know, the ones that make more than $200,000 per year; the ones who finance the big and victorious political campaigns.

If the revenue loss is offset with a tax increase down the road, the costs will be borne by families with incomes of less than $100,000 a year, families who already pay more than 60 percent of all federal taxes.

The 1981 Reagan tax cut reduced the tax on the very wealthy from 50 percent to 28 percent, but reduced tax loopholes that were allowing some of the very wealthiest to escape paying taxes completely. One of those loopholes was a preferential rate on capital gains.

Now they want to renege on this deal and give back their preferential rate.

Part of the argument for this new loophole is that it will increase savings. I wonder. After Reagan's tax relief for the rich in 1981, personal savings in the U.S. dropped from 7.5 percent to 3.2 percent in 1987.

One of the proposals on Capital Hill makes a little sense. It would restore deductions for individual retirement accounts and allow penalty-free withdrawals from an IRA account for college expenses and first-time home purchases.

Such a plan will give people added encouragement to save not only for retirement, but also for two of the most important purchases they will make in their lifetime: a home and a college education.

3 more hats in water district race

Three candidates have added their hats to the race for nine positions on the Springhills Water Management District board of directors, in addition to the nine present temporary directors that are automatically in the running.

Norman Mansfield and John Halliday of Lakehills, and Travis Reddoan of Bandera have filed for positions. Filing ends Friday, Sept. 29 at 5 p.m.

Filing is done at the Bandera County River Authority office in the Old County Jail building.

Voters will be asked on the Nov. 7 ballot to approve or disapprove the creation of Bandera County's combined surface water and underground water district, select nine directors to serve on its initial board of directors if the measure passes.

In a separate matter, but on the same ballot, voters will also pass judgement on 21 proposed Texas state constitutional amendments.

Current members of the district's temporary board of directors who will appear on the ballot are Phil Becker of Tarpley, Don E. Karr, Mary Jane Cave, and Craig Tips of Bandera, Joe Cantu and J.B. Edwards of Pipe Creek, J.K. Leighton of Vanderpool, and Paul Garrison Jr. and Morgan Cox of Medina.

On Oct. 4, the names of all who have filed for the board will be drawn to determine the order their names will be listed on the ballot. Existing board members will not be differentiated from other candidates.

To qualify, district board members must have been a resident of Bandera County for six months before the filing deadline; must own taxable real property by the district; be at least 21 years of age; be a resident of Texas for least 12 months; be a U.S. citizen not convicted of a felony or ruled mentally incompetent by a court.

After the Friday filing deadline, candidates can still file as write-in candidates, but they have to file at county clerk's office and be certified as a write-in candidate.

Absentee voting begins Oct. 18 and ends Nov. 3 for the water district and the constitutional amendments.

Bandera County commissioners approved the joint election Monday, Sept. 25 and okayed the county paying the bill for the election with the water district paying $500 as the district's share of the election's expense.

Hearing planned on new rules on polluting Edwards Aquifer

A public hearing on proposed amendments to Texas Water Commission rules to combat pollution of the Edwards Aquifer will be held Thursday, Sept. 28, in San Antonio.

The Texas Water Commission hearing will be held at 7 p.m. in Room 2.0124 of the Humanities and Business Building at the University of Texas at San Antonio.

The proposed rules, which will amend the Edwards Aquifer rules Chapter 313, Title 31, Texas Administrative Code, could place tighter restrictions on underground storage tanks, as mandated by federal law, and standardize anti-pollution regulations in portions of Hays, Travis, and Williamson counties that are over the Edwards Aquifer recharge zone.

Rules have to be more stringent over the Edwards aquifer because of the high potential for quick contamination of San Antonio's sole-source water supply because of sinkholes and caves in the area, says water commission staff attorney Mark Jordan.

The rules will include portions of Travis County for the first time and will bring portions of Williamson County into the Edwards rules, rather than being under separate rules as they are now, says Jordan.

Once the comments are taken, the water commission's staff will make their recommendations to the water commission and the new rules will be adopted by the commission.

The hearing will not address proposals to limit or regulate pumping from the aquifer, which underlies Uvalde, Medina, Bexar, Comal and Hays counties. Water from Bandera County drains into the Edwards recharge zone, south and east of Bandera County.

The hearing will also not address a lawsuit filed by the Guadalupe-Blanco River Authority, which has offices in Kerrville, that seeks to declare the Edwards Aquifer an underground river and give state control of the aquifer.

BISD board has hearing

Only about three people showed up, and no one asked to speak at the public hearing on the tax rate held by the Bandera ISD school board Monday, Sept. 25, according to superintendent of schools Ted Dockery.

"The board has been over the information several times, so there was not much discussion," Dockery said. "No one asked to speak, and the meeting was very short."

The board will meet again Oct. 3 in a special meeting to vote on the tax rate.

Bandera trustees approved a 9.73 percent tax increase when they met Sept. 11, and the school district's 1989-90 budget calls for maintenance and operating tax rate of 63.088 cents per $100 valuation. The BISD debt service rate will be 11.122 cents, for a total tax rate of 74.210 cents, slightly under the tax rollback figure, according to Dockery.

Six persons arrested in county during week

Six persons were arrested by Bandera County sheriff's officials last week on charges including burglary of a habitation, public intoxication, issuance of bad checks and traffic warrants.

Mexican nationals Jose Perez and Arranda Vicenti of Bandera were arrested, charged with burglary of a habitation, and released to I.N.S.

Two break-ins were reported Sept. 23.

Truitt Chance of San Antonio reported his house in Timber Creek had been broken into. Chance told investigating officers that a wall phone was stolen and that some vandalism occurred inside the house.

Nativadad Mendoza of San Antonio reported that his weekend place at Lakehills had been broken into. Mendoza reported that several cases of beer were taken.

Sept. 17 Bandera County sheriff's deputy Robin Price, assisted by residents of the Timber Creek subdivision located and recovered two stolen vehicles in that area.

The vehicles were reportedly concealed by cedar brush and were located by residents. The vehicles were reported stolen by San Antonio police.

Jury postponed

Bandera County grand jury did not meet at its scheduled time Sept. 25, due to a mix-up, according to Bandera County and District Clerk Vera King.

"The list for a new grand jury cannot be opened before a certain date without the judge's permission, and we couldn't reach him in time," she said.

King said grand jury has been rescheduled for Oct. 30.

—Tax—

would be unfair to the River Front and Bandera Inn customers to spend the extra one percent tax.

Conoly reported that many small communities had a 12 percent hotel-motel tax, and lowering the county to six percent in the county and five percent in the city would bring Bandera County in line with other Hill Country areas.

To avoid the difference between outside the city and inside the city tax rates, Conoly said the bureau had tried to get the city to rescind their three percent city bed tax so the bureau could take full advantage of the county's tax, but the city kept their tax at one percent. "They wanted to keep their hand in it," commented Conoly.

The city, who rescinded its contract with the Bandera County Chamber of Commerce to advertise the city's advantages, feeling it could distribute the money to the library and the museum and anyone else who needs it, observed Conoly.

Moeller and Bandera Inn manager Mary Weatherill both recommended the reduction in the county's tax to five percent within the city limits.

Conoly reported that while there was nothing in the law that allowed splitting the tax rate in the city and the county, there was nothing prohibiting it either. He said the attorney general's office advised him that the county could probably have a split tax as long as none of the effected people objected.

Dude ranch owners and representatives Don Hicks, Tom Winchell, and Janelle Marks said they would prefer the three percent tax, but would accept six percent.

Mayan owner Hicks expressed concern that the county tax on top of their 10 percent service charge would reduce business, thus defeating the purpose of the tax. "We have a good clientele already and we will be doubling the tax on them for no reason," he said.

Twin Elms guest ranch owner Frank Anderwald preferred a seven percent county tax to raise the maximum revenue possible and wanted to continue to pressure the city to eliminate its tax.

Commissioner N.P. "Bud" Thompson told the gathering that the county would set it to six or seven percent, whatever the majority wanted. He also said that Bandera County should not be too worried about the rate in other counties. "Our county has more to offer," he said.

Commissioner Roger Raser also assured dude ranchers that the rate was not set in stone.

Raser agreed Conoly and the lodging proprietors that they should not come back in a month to reset it without evidence that the tax was hurting lodging in the county.

Commissioners agree to hire dog catcher

Bandera County Commissioners Monday, Sept. 25, agreed to pursue hiring a dog catcher to alleviate the problems of stray and loose dogs preying on area livestock.

Hugo and Mildred Bausch requested commissioners to take action and employ a county dog catcher, after the loss of 20 sheep in two separate dog attacks this month.

Commissioners have been approached on several occasions about the problem of dogs running loose in the county, but took no action. "We did a lot of talking about it, but never did anything about it," admits commissioner Roger Raser.

Raser recalled veterinarian Steve Sells' offer to impound captured dogs at his expanded facility and euthanize unclaimed dogs for a fee, but also stated the county halted further consideration because there was no vehicle or person available for the task.

Commissioner Dan Alanis suggested using the van currently used by the sheriff's department. The vehicle, which the county owns, is soon to be retired by the sheriff once the department's new vehicles come in.

Raser said the van removes the vehicle purchase obstacle from the dog catcher plan and portable kennels furnished by Sells could be used to contain the captured dogs until taken to the kennel.

Raser suggested hiring a person that would initially work full-time in the position and pay them a hourly wage plus a bonus for each dog captured. Once the dog problem in the county was reduced, the dog catcher would continue his canine duties part-time and work at the county yard part-time.

County inspector Mac Green suggested that the fines from dog owners who claimed their errant pup could be used to finance the operation.

While most dog attacks come at night, Raser advised that finding untagged and free roaming dogs during the day would eliminate most of the problems that occur at night.

Alanis added that the dog catcher could initially go down subdivision roads and find the many wandering, loose, untagged dogs.

The county dog law allows dogs to roam free during the day, but they must have a county license tag. Tagged dogs can run loose at night only with a muzzle.

BCAD defends its method of electing members of board

By James Henry Fraser
Bulletin Staff Writer

Bandera County Appraisal District directors insisted Friday, Sept. 22, that the selection method for their posts has not changed and that the percentage method of voting used was consistent with current law.

Directors also insisted that they do not have to refund $52,000 budget surplus, citing House Bill 432.

Saying an article in The Bandera Bulletin last week incorrectly attributed the selection method to chief appraiser Larry Reagan, director Joe Synder said the election procedure was as laid down in the Texas state tax code.

"We are going to follow the law as set out by the legislature," said W.B. Kirkpatrick, who chaired the meeting.

The common perception among even some taxing entity officials indicated that each voting taxing entity, Bandera Independent School District, Bandera County, Utopia ISD, Medina ISD, and the city of Bandera each had one vote and each nominated one director. While that has been the practice, that is not the law, according to Reagan.

Under the law, Bandera ISD, with a $2,750,626 tax levy, receives 2,660 votes, some 53.2 percent of the votes to be cast.

Bandera County has the next largest share with 1,526 votes, some 30.5 percent, based on its $1,577,872 tax levy.

Both Utopia and Medina ISDs have 379 and 378 votes, respectively, some 7.58 percent and 7.56 percent, based on their $392,428 and $390,751 levy.

Bandera comes in with 57 votes, some 1.14 percent, based on $56,171 in taxes to be levied.

The method of selection of appraisal district directors did not change with the new law and has been the same since the districts went into effect, agreed Mike Estes, coordinator of technical assistance for the Texas State Property Tax Board in Austin.

What did change is certain conservation and reclamation districts can be included in the director selection, but not until after Jan. 1, 1990.

The changes laid out in legislation passed by the Texas 71st Legislature adds the special districts to the procedure, and does not change it, says Estes.

There is a "Three-fourths Rule" provision in the law that would allow the voting districts to reapportion votes, but in Bandera County's case would take four of the five voting taxing entities to agree, and one of those that must agree would be Bandera ISD.

If the taxing entities would agree to changing the voting procedure, the budget allocation would also surely be changed, speculates Reagan. "If voting tax entities don't agree on another [illegible] than the standard method for selection of directors, the budget share (of each taxing entity) must be re-allocated according to the way the entities adopted the three-fourths rule," he says.

Reagan adds that if a selection process decided under the three-fourths rule applied that would equalize the votes, the same hasn't applied to the budget.

The appraisal district's budget is funded by each taxing entity in proportions to their tax levy, just as the voting is allocated, which means if budgets be equalized, some districts could face larger bills from the appraisal district.

In the explanation sent out by the Texas State Property Tax Board, the change the three-fourths rule would make to Bandera ISD is, "No unit's voting strength may be reduced to less than one half of the number of votes it holds in the current selection process without its consent, unless the unit's appraisal district budget allocation is reduced in the same proportion as its voting strength."

Two taxing entities have sent resolutions indicating they want a change in the selection process and for the change to take place, two more districts must submit a resolution by Oct. 2.

It is not necessarily true that the budget allocation equals the number of votes, says Estes, as under the three-fourths rule, the taxing entities have considerable freedom in determining their selection process. However, if Bandera ISD's voting block is reduced more than 50 percent, which it would if the method would go to a 20 percent share per taxing entity, then budget reallocation must be made, he says.

Estes says that if they agree, taxing units can alter their method of selecting the directors, but as with any law, it will have to be tested in court to define the exact legality.

Reagan told the Bulletin Friday that a fairer way of allocating the votes and the budget would be based on a ratio of the number of parcels each taxing entity has. This would be in line with the amount of work the appraisal district does for each district.

In another matter, the $54,012 budget surplus the district had at the beginning of the year, was on the appraisal district's financial statements sent to the taxing entities and is not effected by the new law, because the new law only deals with the current fiscal year, reports Reagan.

Reagan says the section of the new law, House Bill 432, only applies to the current year. The law states, "If the total amount of the payments made or due to be made by the taxing units participating in an appraisal district exceeds the amount actually spent or obligated to be spent during the fiscal year for which the payments were made, the chief appraiser shall credit the excess amount against each taxing unit's allocated payments for the following year in proportion to the amount of each unit's budget allocation for the fiscal year for which payments were made.

Reagan says the law did not make this section retroactive to previous years.

The law only effects this fiscal year, advises Estes, and would not apply to budget surpluses built up in previous years. The Bandera County Appraisal District's fiscal year is Jan. 1 to Dec. 31.

Synder defended not putting the district's budget surplus on their budget document by saying that the county puts its unencumbered funds, which are its surplus funds, as a budget memo.

Reagan says he was advised by the district's auditor not to put the contingency funds in the budget.

At the Friday meeting, directors reported they anticipate no budget surplus, but might go over budget by $3,000 in legal costs and $2,500 in ARB board costs.

A new hand-held, portable computer and printer for the office were purchased by the district, costing in the $1,000 to $2,000 range. The computer will be used by field appraisers when onsite to store and check data for accuracy.

'Now I feel I have more confidence'

10 persons learn art of self defense in seminar here

Instructor Dennis Mason looks on as Billie Byar whirls in a maneuver to break the strangle hold of Cynthia Wiley during a self-defense seminar held Saturday, Sept. 23 at the Bandera High School gym.

One woman lives alone on a ranch and commutes to the city. Another owns a business in an isolated location. A third's real estate profession requires constant contact with the public.

Together they were joined by 10 other persons whose reasons for attending a self-defense seminar Saturday were as varied as their enthusiasm was high.

"Now I really feel that I have more confidence, if I had to defend myself," remarked Gay Guilott after the seminar.

"Immediately following the seminar, we had requests to schedule another class," said Gail Stone, who coordinated the seminar, which was a community service project of the Bandera County Board of Realtors. "I think you could say the seminar was a success."

The seminar featured martial arts instructor Gary Ploch and an assistant and featured practice in escaping from various holds that might be used in a typical attack situation, Stone said.

"Movements that were awkward at first became more natural with practice," she observed. "Ploch stressed the importance of using the feet and hands as weapons as well as objects commonly available, such as purses, car keys and articles of clothing.

Instructions in the tactics of using pressure points to control an attacker were also given. "Pressure applied to various parts of the body will cause a reaction to the pain which allows the practitioner (victim of an attack) to take control of the situation," Stone explained.

Among the pressure points discussed were the madibular angle at the jawline, the hypoglosal nerve in the neck, the infra-orbital nerve below the nose, and the jugular notch at the collarbone, Stone said.

"It's amazing how effective these pressure points are," commented participant Geri Valdez.

Backward trailering of horses may be safer

By Marilyn Brown
TAES Science Writer

Trailering can be hard on a horse, which must maintain its balance as the vehicle stops, turns and lurches, even though the animal has no means to predict what will happen next. Rubber mats and leg guards are all the result of a horseman's effort to make the trailer ride safer and more comfortable.

It's not difficult to understand, then, why reports from Europe and Australia challenge the conventional means of trailering horses, that is, head first—tail last. The anatomy of the horse, with its curved back legs and the slope of the hooves, these reports said, dictates that the horse should ride backward, making it easier for the horse to stop and balance during braking and turning.

"There was no objective data to back up these reports," says Gisela Dellmeier, animal behavior scientist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. "So we decided to take a look for ourselves and see if there was anything to it."

Sixteen same sex pairs of yearling horses that had never before been transported in a conventional two-horse trailer were transported in an extended-floor trailer, with one randomly assigned to face in the direction of travel and the other facing in the opposite direction. Which direction a horse faced on a particular side of the trailer was alternated with each trip to balance any effects that might result from being closer to the on-coming traffic on the shoulder of the road.

The horses were hauled over a 15- to 20-minute course that included high acceleration, abrupt stops, turns in each direction and paved and non-paved surfaces. The course was deliberately made rough and rubber mats were not provided, Dellmeier says, to magnify any differences that might arise.

The trailer itself was a custom-made model that was extra large, allowing for partitions to be built to hide researchers while they gathered data. The partitions were moved from side to side of the trailer, depending upon the trailer side and direction the horse was facing, so that the observer could record losses of balance and impacts against the trailer sides, front, or butt-rope.

Heartrates were continuously recorded on a strip chart recorder. Cortisol, T3, and T4 thyroid hormone concentrations were determined from blood samples drawn from the veins immediately prior to removal of the horses from the pasture, immediately after loading and immediately after transport but prior to unloading.

The research found that rear-facing horses had fewer impacts against the trailer sides, fewer total impacts, and fewer losses of balance. Heartrates were significantly lower only during the first 15 seconds of travel for rear-facing horses.

While rear-facing horses were better able to maintain their footing, no major effects on physiology were found in this experiment.

"It should be remembered," Dellmeier says, "that this was a preliminary, short-term study. What about a long-term trip, a horse being trailered for 10, 14, or 18 hours? It may be that a small difference on a short trip may have a much greater effect over a long distance."

In addition, the horses used in this experiment had not been trailered before in a conventional two-horse trailer, and a horse that is accustomed to forward or sideways trailering might respond differently, she says.

Jehovah Witnesses protest religious persecution

Local members of Jehovah's Witnesses have joined others throughout the U.S. in appealing by letter to the president of the African nation of Burundi to halt what they call the religious persecution of Witnesses in that country.

Jack D. Pearson, presiding overseer for the Bandera congregation of Witnesses, said Witnesses are demanding that their sect be officially recognized as an established religion in Burundi.

Pearson said Jehovah's Witnesses have been singled out as a target for religious oppression in Burundi. "The persecution has caused Witnesses to be deprived of work to support their families, imprisoned, whipped, beaten, and deprived of food," Pearson said in a written statement delivered to The Bulletin Monday.

Pearson said Witnesses the world over are peaceful and lawabiding and respectful of national emblems. He urged others to join the Witnesses in protesting persecution in Burundi. "As long as the basic human rights of any group of people are trampled on, no one's rights are secure," Pearson's statement said.

Bandera County homemakers attend statewide meeting

Four homemakers from Bandera County were among the nearly 1,000 who attended the 63rd annual state meeting of the Texas Extension Homemakers Association in Corpus Christi Sept. 12-14.

Helen Ahr and Marie Holland of Bandera were delegates and Lois Morgenstern and Gerry Sharp of Bandera attended as members.

Keynote address at the meeting was delivered by author and publisher Becky Barker who advised members to be ready for the myriad of information needed when a spouse dies.

Sharp reported that detective Floyd Price of the Lubbock Police Department listed what can be done to avoid being victimized by crime while traveling. "Ninety percent of crime is drug-related," he said.

Homemakers attended workshops on donating organs, child abuse, family support systems, making the world work without war, and soil and water conservation, Sharp said.

A Look Back At Bandera

5 years ago... The city of Bandera, represented by Mayor Bob Cowan annexed 26 acres near the Medina River on Highway 173 south and the Bandera Bulldogs were flying high and rated 10th in the state, having upset powerhouse schools such as Alamo Heights. The Lady Bulldogs, including Beckie Clements, Christine Fleming, Shannon McMullan, Kim Cherry, Kellie Clements, Missy Mangold, Terri Butler and Tammy Rigsby, were the second-place winners at the Southside invitational basketball tournament, and a school bond election was set for Oct. 20. Walker Memorial Chapel was dedicated, and Grand Ole Opry star Faron Young appeared at Bandera's Cabaret. Manual and Bulah Faris celebrated their 62nd wedding anniversary, and at the same time Manual celebrated his 93rd birthday. Bud Cox of San Antonio took top honors for the second year in a row at the Medina Lake Betterment Association's fourth annual Great Gumbo Cookoff. An estimated crowd of 3,000 was on hand for the festivities.

17 years ago... Bandera High School twirlers Brenda Schmidt, Donna Kolka and Dianne Lindig were to be featured in a patriotic half-time show, and Mrs. J.B. Connally's children, including sons John and Merrill Connally, and daughter Carmen Hicks gathered with her at Purple Hills Nursing Home for a visit. Bandera's Fine Arts Club planned a trip to historic Fredericksburg, and Mrs. D.H. Crowell spent the week in Mexico, promoting Texas tourism. The Bandera Bulldogs defeated the D'Hanis Cowboys 27-0, and Comfort beat Medina by a score of 16-13. Mary Kay Anderwald and Howard Billings were married, and recording artist Arkey Blue sponsored The Silver Dollar Derby at Lost Valley Downs Race Track. The Bandera Bulletin announced the sale of its job printing department to Wallace Gilligon, who had been employed at the Bulletin for two years. District Attorney Bob Barton presided when a Bandera County Grand Jury met and returned 31 true bills, and the Bulletin announced that Ella Erfurt and Dan Sandidge were married Aug. 13. And a cyclone reportedly did considerable property damage at the Blackie Wheeler place.

Bandera honors art students participate in San Antonio ceremony of unity

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

Celebrating a theme of unity, some 16 Bandera junior high honors art students participated Sept. 20 in the unveiling of a mural in San Antonio that they helped create along with students from 15 other private, parochial and public middle schools.

"Sending the Message of Unity" was the theme of the mural, dedicated by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, at San Antonio's Hemisfair Children's Park.

Pride in their work and the permanence of the display impressed the Bandera students, according to teacher Sue Holloway.

"When they are grandparents they can come lay their hands on it," Holloway said. "The work they created and their names are in the middle of the wall."

The portion of the mural designed by the Bandera students shows a banner proclaiming "United We Stand." The banner is held by five children with different colored faces.

Last school year's honors art class, that encompassed Bandera ISD students from grades six through eight, were the only non-San Antonio school participating in creation of the 14-part mural that will be on permanent display at the Children's Playground at HemisFair Park in San Antonio.

Students "brainstormed," then after much discussion the class finally agreed on one design. They spent class time making a "mock-up" of the tile work design.

The finished design was taken to San Antonio College where the design was transferred to clay and the art heated in a furnace to create tiles.

The Bandera tiles were mounted on a wall at the Children's Park in Hemisfair Park along with similar murals from 13 other San Antonio schools.

The entire project was unveiled Wednesday, Sept. 20, with Bandera eighth-grader Stephen Johnson as one of 14 students pulling the rope to take the covering away from the 65-foot long by 3½ foot tall mural.

Each student participating in the creation of the mural signed the mural's border.

"The murals and the students' signatures will be on permanent display," said Holloway.

The Bandera students who participated in the creation of the mural include Holly Combs, Freddie Westphal, Michelle Moreno, Juan Lopez, Gabe Obledo, Kelly Reser, Trey D'Spain, Michael Killinger, Rickie Gard, Shawnee Stricker, John Teich, Jeremy Biediger, Julie Traweek, Elizabeth Edmondson, Stephen Johnson, and Heather Willis.

The project was sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews in celebration of the organization's 35th anniversary and was paid for by corporate donors.

San Antonio city councilman and mayor pro-tem Robert Thompson, the Rev. S.H. James, Rabbi Samuel Stahl and Vicar General Lawrence Stuebben were among those participating in Wednesday's ceremony.

Bandera honors art students take time out Wednesday, Sept. 20, before the unveiling of a 65-foot long mural at San Antonio's Hemisfair Park. They created one of 14 murals depicting religious and racial unity for the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Friday is 4-H deadline

This Friday, Sept. 29, is the deadline for Bandera County youths to enroll in 4-H in time to participate in the upcoming junior livestock show and foods projects, according to county extension agent Jan Bryson.

The actual deadline, Oct. 1, falls on Sunday, and Bryson said all 4-H enrollees must have forms completed and turned in by that time.

"All 4-H youths must re-enroll each September to remain active in the 4-H club," Bryson said. "You may sign up to join 4-H any time of the year and participate in some of the other projects that are offered."

There are several new projects starting up this 4-H year, so come by the Bandera County Extension office (the old courthouse building behind the Bandera Ice House) and find out what we offer," she said.

For more information, you can call the extension office at 796-7755.

Corpus AIDS trial moved to Uvalde

Uvalde's 38th District courtroom this week is the site of the trial of a Corpus Christi man charged with aggravated sexual assault with threat of bodily injury.

Thomas Anthony Zule, 43, is charged in the January 1988 attack of a male juvenile. Zule was reportedly infected with the deadly AIDS virus at the time the attack occurred.

The trial was moved from Nueces County on a change of venue, and Uvalde officials are reported to be expecting a great deal of media attention and also attention from the legal community in the potentially precedent-setting case.

"The trial will probably attract a lot of attention," said Nueces County Assistant District Attorney Mike Hummell. "It did when Zule was arrested."

Library Book Fair at Alkek School

Students, parents, teachers and visitors are invited to attend the Alkek Elementary School library Book Fair Monday, Oct. 2 through Friday, Oct. 6. Books will be on display in the library from 7:45 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day of the fair, and students will be allowed to browse and purchase books.

The fair will encourage student interest in reading and in building home libraries, and will contribute to a worthwhile project for the library, according to school officials. Profits will be used to purchase audio-visual equipment.

The book fair display will include new books from many major publishers in all price ranges. Reading interests represented including classics, fiction, biographies, adventure stories, science, nature, crafts, mystery and reference books.

Texas sweet potatoes better than others

The state's sweet potato harvest usually begins in August in East Texas. This year the crop is expected to peak between Oct. 1 through 15. Consumers can find this root vegetable in grocery stores now through April.

Texas seriously entered the commercial sweet potato market in the early 1900's. And by 1926 most sweet potato farms were located in the eastern counties. Today with this crop, for every $1 put into agricultural farming, $3 worth of movement is stimulated, contributing millions of dollars into the Texas economy.

According to Sheilah Rushing, President of the Texas Sweet Potato Growers Association, the state ranked third in production nationally in 1988.

Rushing added that this year the state has seen an acreage increase of 15 to 20 percent due to younger farmers coming into the business.

Rushing's grandparents started in the sweet potato business in 1939 and her parents, Larry and Bonnie McAfee, have been in the business for 30 years. Today the McAfee Farms is a 200 acre operation in Yantis which grows, packs and ships sweet potatoes. The McAfees, as do other Texas sweet potato farmers, have great pride in the quality of their product taking great care in planting, digging and harvesting for the sake of product's appearance and taste.

According to Rushing, Texas sweet potatoes are definitely of better quality than those coming in from out of state. But due to competition from other states, Texans end up with out-of-state product of lower quality. Consumers need to ask for Texas sweet potatoes at grocery stores to end this practice. When enough customers ask for a particular product, retailers have no choice but to meet consumer demand.

This versatile root vegetable offers good taste, and delivers important nutrition as well. High in fiber and complex carbohydrates, a 3 1/2 ounce serving is packed with over 100 percent of vitamin A, and 1/3 RDA of vitamin C, as well as important iron, thiamine, riboflavin and phosophorus.

Sweet potatoes, versatile enough to bake or fry, make great desserts and delicious candy.

The following recipes have been tested by Carol Gutherie, Texas Department of Agriculture home economist.

Berlin's life to be saluted in Kerrville

Planned before his death on Friday, Sept. 22, a salute to the life and music of Irving Berlin will be presented by the Kerrville branch of the American Association of University Women at 2 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 30, at the Inn of the Hills in Kerrville.

The prolific composer of "God Bless America," "White Christmas" and hundreds of other classics, was 101 when he died in his Manhattan town house where he had lived for 20 years.

The Kerrville musical review will include well-known Berlin compositions sung by Kerrville's Elizabeth Real, comedy and humor by Margaretta Bolding of Houston, and piano accompaniment by Charlie Tilson, also of Houston.

Admission is $7.50 and includes refreshments. Proceeds go to the sponsoring group's scholarship program.

Janie Frickie will join T.G. Sheppard and some of Texas' rising musical stars at Sea World of Texas in San Antonio Saturday, Sept. 30, and Sunday, Oct. 1, for the state finals of "Country Showdown." Bandera's Rudy Robbins is also among those scheduled to perform.

Mixer scheduled

The Cowboy Capital Rodeo Association will sponsor a mixer to show their appreciation to the citizens and businesses of Bandera County that supported the Cowboy Capital PRCA Rodeo on Labor Day Weekend on Friday, Sept. 29, from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. at The Cabaret Dance Hall.

The mixer will feature a free Mexican food buffet, cocktail hour drink prices, and a gala social with music for dancing by Jay Eric and Blieders Creek, appearing by special request.

Game dinner set

The 19th annual Game Dinner Gala and Auction Thursday, Oct. 5, at the Witte Museum in San Antonio will feature television physician Dr. Red Duke, music by the bluegrass band called Tennessee Valley Authority and by Rick Cavender and The Oh So Good Band, and a Southwestern-style menu.

Frontier Times to feature 3 artists, media in October

Three artists works in three media will be featured at the Frontier Times Museum during the month of October.

Bandera carver Jerry Baker will display a collection of his antler creations, Rick Mittelstedt from Center Point will exhibit a dozen of his oil paintings, and photographer Larry T. Williams will show a selection of 10 cibichrome prints.

Baker is a carpenter who began carving as a pastime while recovering from a broken leg. The hobby grew and now Baker finds himself with almost more orders than he can produce.

The carver's works range from bandana slides to relief carvings on shoulder bones. His subjects include tiny beer cans, saddles, snakes and wildlife as well as scenics and landscapes and almost anything else a person's mind can generate.

"If you look at a piece of horn," says Baker, "most times you can see something in it. I call it 'stag gazing' instead of star gazing."

Mittelstedt says he is an artist dedicated to the creation of representational images of the American southwest. He works in a variety of media including pencil, acrylic, oil and bronze sculpture.

Mittelstedt is a geologist by training and a self-taught painter by choice. His former occupation gave him the opportunity to travel throughout the southwestern part of the country and it is from these journeys that he bases his art. "It is not often that you will find me without an artbook in hand," he says.

"With the sketches gathered on his travels, Mittelstedt works in his studio in Center Point creating a monochromatic underpainting of his subject before applying a carefully planned color glazing to complete the work. He says his color application varies in technique but he strives always for his realism to be a blend of the best of both tonalism and impressionism.

Photographer Williams is the staff shooter for the Bulletin and also freelances. His work has been seen in a number of publications including Modern Photography, Texas Monthly, The Dallas Morning News, Texas Racing Forum and a feature article on the apple industry in Medina in the July issue of Texas Highways.

"I have chosen subjects for this exhibit that are crisp and direct," says Williams. "Images that are cropped to the essence of the subject and that are arresting because of color and composition."

"I decided to show cibichrome prints because they are the only means by which a color transparency can be reproduced as a print and still retain all the quality of color and depth in the original," he says. "A cibichrome is almost as good as looking through the camera's lens."

The exhibit will open Monday Oct. 2 and will continue through the 31.

Frontier Times hours are from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Sundays. Admission is $1.50 for adults and 25 cents for students under age 19. Children under age 6 and members are free.

October artists at the Frontier Times Museum are from the left, painter Rick Mittelstedt, carver Jerry Baker and photographer Larry T. Williams.

Top bean cooks set to boil pintos Saturday

Top place winner Sy Turner of Lakehills will try to make it three first places in a row as he square off with over 17 other cooks at this Saturday's Hermann Sons pinto bean cookoff.

Jerry Acord of Pipe Creek, last year's second place winner is set to try his hand again. Also slated to participate is a team from Andy Brieno's Cheers.

Entertainment (beside the bean cookers) will be Bob Macon singing and playing guitar to his accompanying stereo system.

Food available during the day (beside samples from bean cooks) includes hot dogs, barbecue sandwiches, and carne guisada, egg, and egg and meat tacos.

The judging of entries will begin at 2 p.m. with prize-winning bean sale afterward.

Cooks can still enter until Thursday, Sept. 28. Entry forms are available at Lakehills business such as the Lakehills Variety Store, Adolph's, Shirley's, Fiddlin' Around, D&H Automotive, and Viking Liquor Store. Entry fee is $10.

The Hermann Sons park is located next to Millie's Pavilion in Lakehills on Park Road 37, west of Heisler's Square.

For more information, call Frances Garren at 751-2348 or Bea Borchers at 751-2469.

St. Victor's flea market still has space available Saturday

The St. Victor's flea market has 20 marketeers set to display their wares Saturday, Sept. 30 in Lakehills.

The flea market at the Catholic church on Park Road 37 will open at 9 a.m. and run until 4 p.m., says spokeswoman Cecilia Hartmann.

The church's altar society will have the food concession and will be selling hot dogs, tamales, cookies, cakes, soda water, coffee and ice tea.

There are still eight small tables and other spaces available for $3 as of Tuesday, Sept. 26, and spaces without tables for $3, says Hartmann.

There will be no electricity available to the tables or spaces, and space under the pavilion for marketeers will be on a first-come, first-serve basis, says Hartmann.

Reservations can be made by calling 535-6247, 751-2904, or 751-2264.

Proceeds from the market will benefit the church.

Legion post sets meetings

The American Legion Post 410 and Auxiliary Unit 410 will meet Thursday, Sept. 28, at the Legion Hall in Lakehills.

Past presidents will be honored by the auxiliary and Jennifer Craven is scheduled to report on her activities at the Bluebonnet Girls State, says spokeswoman Jerry Mauer.

Gwen Akin, unit president, is seeking assistance in compiling a list of deceased members of Unit 410. Their names are to be inscribed on a memorial plaque to be displayed at the post home, says Mauer.

A covered dish supper at 7 p.m. will precede the separate business meetings at 8 p.m.

Pipe Creek 4-H

The Pipe Creek 4-H Club will join other organizations in Bandera County and throughout the state in the state highway clean-up project Sunday, Oct. 1, picking up litter along two miles of FM Road 1283.

The 4-Hers have joined the "Adopt-a-Highway" program and will pick up litter along FM 1283 just south of Pipe Creek, past the firehouse, and to just beyond the s-curve.

Sunday's cleanup will start at 3 p.m. and go until 5:30 p.m. "Everybody in the Pipe Creek 4-H Club is to meet at the Pipe Creek firehouse at 3 p.m.," says reported Lacey Sorrel.

The club members will also assist in the fall Pipe Creek VFD barbecue fundraiser by holding a clean-up day Oct. 14, the day before the barbecue. "Every 4-H member needs to help," says Sorrel.

4-H members will also donate cakes, cookies, brownies, and other baked goods to be sold at the barbecue, says Sorrel.

Chili cookoff Oct. 21

The sixth annual Pipe Creek EMS Support Team Chili Cookoff will be held Saturday, Oct. 21, at Kelley's Shamrock Tavern in Pipe Creek.

The cooking will begin at 8 a.m. and the judging will be at 4 p.m., with an auction to follow. Entry fee is $15.

For more information, call Jerry Acord at 535-6121.

Shell material spread to rehab oyster reefs

About 8,000 cubic yards of clam shell material have been spread on three public oyster reefs in San Antonio Bay near Seadrift as part of a reef rehabilitation project of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Water from the Medina River, which rises in Bandera County, flows to San Antonio Bay.

The federally-funded project is aimed at rehabilitating reefs damaged by flooding in 1987.

Clean shell spread during August will provide improved areas for newly-spawned larval oysters (spat) to attach and grow, according to TPWD biologist Steve Marwitz of Rockport. The material was sprayed from barges with high-powered hoses on Mosquito Point, Panther Point and Live Oak reefs in San Antonio Bay.

"This rehabilitation project should provide economic benefits to the San Antonio Bay oyster fishery, which is the second most valuable in Texas," said Marwitz. "Coastwide 1988 oyster landings were 2.3 million pounds and an ex-vessel value of $5.7 million."

Lakeshore turkey shoot to include two-category menudo cookoff

The annual Lakeshore volunteer fire department Turkey Shoot Festival and Menudo Cookoff will be held Oct. 28 at the firehouse in the Wharton's Dock area.

The turkey shoot will begin at 10 a.m. and last until everyone is tired of shooting, says assistant chairman Joe Sowell.

The shoot will be conducted by the rules of the "Field & Stream" Magazine contest so winners of the competition can be entered in a national drawing. There will be 14 shooters on line for each round and the shooter closest to X wins the turkey.

The men will shoot 12 gauge shotguns and the women can use 12 or 20 gauge, says Sowell.

The menudo cookoff will have two categories: adult for ages 15 and above, and a junior category for children up to 15.

Deadline for cook entries is 9 a.m. that Saturday. There is a $10 entry fee. Judging will be at 4 p.m.

Contact Charlie Highnote at 796-3387 or Sowell at 796-3830 for more information.

New Orleans judges slated for cookoff

The judges for the Oct. 7 Ninth Annual Great Gumbo Festival and Cookoff will all be from New Orleans this year, keeping up the tradition of Cajun-knowledgeable judges for the event.

Doug Noduft, executive manager of the world famous Copeland's restaurant, a Cajun restaurant in New Orleans, has been selected as one of the judges. Noduft has been trained and has worked as a supervisor in gourmet foods in Louisiana for numerous years, says festival general chairman, Robert M. Caswell.

Suzy Philibert Mikulski, a direct French descendent and noted food critic and connoisseur of French and Cajun foods, has been selected as a second judge for the cookoff. She is an excellent cook in her own right and works as the senior legal secretary in the 24th Judicial District Court for the Parish of Jefferson, Louisiana.

Mike Caswell of Paradis, La., is the third judge. He is a chef whose recipes for preparation of gumbo, Cajun and Creole foods have made him well known in the greater New Orleans area. He is employed as the executive sales manager for Bumper to Bumper Auto Parts in New Orleans. His family hails from Jeanerette, La.

While the gumbo cooks are plying their trade, the public will have music by Dusty Britches, Ballan Grant, and the Whoosits Goodtime Garbage Pile Band for entertainment.

The public can sample gumbo from the cooks for $1 a cup, complete with rice, bowl, and spoon.

The presentation of awards and the auctioning of the winning entries will be held from 4 p.m. until 5 p.m.

The gate opens for the general public with a $1 admission charge.

Entry fee for gumbo cooks is $20.

Rules and further information can be received by calling Bob Caswell in San Antonio at 736-2017, Lakehills at 751-3401 or 751-2727 or by calling Peggy Ashmore in Bandera at 796-8302.

Rural and urban dwellers face some environmental issues

Environmental issues facing rural communities across Texas and the nation are hard to separate from those that impact upon urban areas, says the associate director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Concerns for conservation and quality of our land, water, air and other natural resources aren't all related to agriculture, said Dr. Milo J. Schult at a two-day rural economic development conference in Lubbock.

He said satisfactory resolution of these issues will require a greater knowledge base and development of an environmental ethic which will sustain our agricultural production base.

"Urban individuals are going to be stake holders and are going to want to have a say in how these issues are going to be resolved," Shult said.

About 400 community leaders and staff members of U.S. Department of Agriculture agencies which serve the state took part in the conference to examine ways to strengthen rural communities. The Lubbock meeting was hosted by the Texas Food and Agriculture Council (FAC), a consortium of the USDA agencies.

"Not all (environmental concerns) are emerging issues. Some are lingering issues," Schult said.

The late 1950s and the 1960s have been characterized as the time of broadest environmental concern, with numerous books published and observations such as "Earth Day" programs held on university campuses.

"There's a difference in environmental concerns today," Shult said. "They are characterized by more sophistication, more knowledge, and perhaps we see more focus, more direct ways of approaching the issues today," he said.

Besides questions about soil conservation, water use and quality, condition of the air and global climate, and depletion of energy resources, Shult touched on several other issues. Among these were land use, recreation and the increasing population.

In land use, he said, "One thing that's going to impact on rural areas is what happens to waste disposal."

Recreation is being viewed by many farmers and ranchers as an opportunity for increased income, the Extension Service administrator said. But he cautioned that recreation landowners face such problems as access, quality and quantity of product, conflicts of users, equitable user fees and liability.

"Population is an environmental issue," Shult said, citing spiralling global population in the half-century. The concern isn't just the increase, but the distribution, he said.

It was a real pleasure seeing the Bandera Bulldog pep rally and parade on Main Street Friday.

Cheer leaders, flag wavers, the Bulldog Band and peppy pep squad members and the football players riding, what else?, a hay [illegible]. They were cheered by onlookers all the way down to Bulldog Stadium, site of the rally.

Oct. 26 is homecoming eve at BHS and bonfire night when a symbol of an outhouse atop the pile of brush is consumed by the flames to the cheers of the exuberant youth.

Hasn't anyone got a real outhouse they can donate? Or can one be made that looks like the real thing? It's a tradition, don't you know.

• The Silver Sage Corral senior citizens center is probably the most active group in the county. Maybe I've been in Bandera too long, but it's been a long time since I've seen so many people work so well together.

In two weeks they're having a huge arts and crafts day with all the items made by someone over 55 years of age. Exhibitors are signing up from all over Texas.

The entry fee is just $2 and the door prize is a fantastic patchwork quilt they've been sewing on for weeks. It has 54 appliqued brands from Bandera County, including some of the oldest and some from working ranches of today.

I may be provincial, but I sure hope someone in Bandera County wins this so it can be displayed here.

• It won't really be city hall in Bandera any more without Melvin King's smiling face. During his tenure as the city's chief cook and bottle washer, the powerthat-be heaped task upon task on his shoulders, and he just smiled and went forward.

He says he wants to do more fishing, and we hope his second life is a lot less work than his first.

• Wayne and Debbie Kennemer have opened a new restaurant in Medina in the site of the old Trails End Restaurant on Main Street. It's called The Orchard, in recognition of Medina's new-found apple industry.

Someone asked Debbie what kind of restaurant it was going to be. "A good one," was her quick reply.

• The town continues to host an amazing number of tourists. Some are from the guest ranches, which seem to be keeping fairly full. Some are early-arriving "snowbirds" at Jellystone Park and Thousand Trails. But most are just driving through for the [illegible] enjoying the wonderful weather.

• If you're a Bandera tenderfoot (meaning you've moved here in the past 10 years) and want to feel what the Cowboy Capital is about, call Cal Chapman and ask him where you can rent a horse for the upcoming longhorn cattle drive.

These symbolic cattle drives are a lot of fun to participate in and not grueling and gritty like the old Chisholm Trail Drives in the Hollywood vein. And they certainly give you a taste of the old west flavor of Bandera.

• And talking about romantic adventures, there's a six-foot, eight-inch cowboy-trainer at Bandera Downs who decided to go "wooing" the other day. He saddled up Ol' Paint, jumped into his spurs and chaps, rode into town, stopped at a florist for a bouquet of flowers, and proceeded to the place where his favorite gal was employed.

Hey gals, is that romantic or what?

Jeffrey Walker

In the Soviet

Navy Seaman Jeffrey K. Walker, son of Bobby R. and Mary B. Walker of Medina, recently visited the Soviet Black Sea port of Sevastopol while serving aboard the guided missile cruiser, the U.S.S. Thomas S. Gates.

Thousands of Soviet spectators greeted the Gates and the frigate U.S.S. Kauffman, the first U.S. Navy ships to visit the port since at least 1945 and the first to visit the Soviet Union in 14 years. More than 25,000 Soviets toured the two ships.

The ship that Walker sails on is an Aegis guided missile cruiser.

Walker toured Soviet-style collective farms and vineyards, historical sites, military installations and youth camps, the Navy said. There were also concerts, folk dance demonstrations, formal receptions and mixers.

Walker is a 1988 graduate of Medina High School.

Airman Jeffrey A. Weatherford, son of Lillian Weatherford of Pipe Creek, has graduated from Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio.

He was a 1982 graduate of Bandera High School.

Tammy Rigsby, Mark Castello announce plans for church wedding Saturday

Tammy Louise Rigsby of Pipe Creek and Mark Castello have announced their plans to marry.

The bride elect is the daughter of Dr. Billy and Jackie Rigsby of Pipe Creek. She is a 1985 graduate of Bandera High School and employed by Automated Impressions in San Antonio.

The future groom is the son of Frank Castello of La Grange and Bernice Castello of Laredo. He is a graduate of Laredo United High School and North Texas State University. He is employed by North Park Lincoln Mercury in San Antonio.

The couple plans a Sept. 30 wedding in St. Peter's Catholic church.

Bandera

By Peggy Tobin

It's difficult to face daily reality after a month or so in a state of altered consciousness brought on by watching the magic light show of Atlantic mists and clouds playing about the Irish mountains and having the day's most trying task consist of going down the boreen to the sea cliffs to pick blackberries from among the brambles on the old rock walls.

We don't trip out for the entire time. We do have to remember to throw scones to the sea-gull and his brown baby waiting on the barn roof. And for two concentrated weeks each year, our family works to organize, stage, and greet the public each day at the Bantry Regatta Art Exhibition. It's fun. It's our thank-you present to the beautiful Christian country which for centuries has given so much to the world in the persons of the saints who left Ireland to teach, to preach, or to do the hard work building a new world which others were too proud to do.

The Protestant school donates the use of its gymnasium each year for the official community event. More than 1,000 viewers registered this year, including former foreign minister Peter Barry and families of fishermen from Whiddy Island. More than a third of the 150 paintings entered by 27 area artists were sold, a good accomplishment for the four day run of any such show. The artists receive the proceeds.

Participants as always were a vivid and varied group, typifying the heterogeneity of people living in West Cork these days. There were teen-agers aspiring to be architects or designers, an art professor at a Catholic monastery school who signs his name in Gaelic, the phalanx of English ladies from Skibbereen (who call themselves the Wednesday Painters to avoid the obvious label of Sunday Painters), a university teacher from Northern Ireland who lives in London, Dutch expatriates working in the classic Flemish style, and a Welsh impressionist who used to know poet Dylan Thomas.

Prizes were awarded, winners judged by Emily and Tom Pressly, San Antonio expatriates, who live now in County Cork. We carried the ribbons over on the plane, having obtained them at a trophy shop in Kerrville.

Tom Pressly has a specific Bandera connection in that he was the architect hired by Sandy and Bic Doane to repair and modernize the Frontier Times Museum building in the early sixties when the Doanes purchased the museum from the Hunter estate.

Which brings us back to art on the Bandera scene. Nettie Saul called to say that Commander Gordon, who with his wife gave a collection of European and Oriental antiques to the museum, was the maker of the totem pole, newly restored. Charlie Eckhart had signed the base of the piece when it was first installed, leading us to think, apparently in error, that he was the artist. We're investigating our misapprehension.

Then our attention was called to the fanciful reptiles penned up now in the front yard of Judy McGinnis' old house. We were over the sea hanging paintings when Jim Justice arrived to add color to already colorful Main Street. Welcome!

Somebody told Phil to tell us that there is a bronze sculpture on prominent display out at the Mayan which was once in the collection of Will Rogers.

Please call if we have missed anything else! Unfortunately, the mural of grazing cattle which the late Mary Tajan painted on her house near Pipe Creek has been covered over. It was a prize piece of "naive" art.

Silver Sage Corral

By Manuel Flores

Saturday, Sept. 30, beginning at 9 a.m., will be landscape day to work on the front of the Silver Sage Corr l. Come, bring some tools, some muscles and join r worthwhile endeavor of your senior center. With adequate help it should get finished in one day. The women are going to provide food and refreshments. "Come on seniors, let's have an old-time community work day where we can all have some fun as well as having a finished job we can be proud of," said Harry Webb, volunteer in charge of the landscaping project.

Last Tuesday, 14 fourth grade students from the Medina Independent School District, under the direction of their teacher, Judy Moore, visited the Silver Sage Corral. These youngsters were given a tour of the facilities of the center and were quite impressed. Harry Webb demonstrated the weaving looms and demonstrations on making ceramics were presented. The children were all interested in these projects and especially enjoyed the cookies and punch served by Mrs. Holleron. The students have all written thank you letters to the center and in some cases have drawn pictures depicting their visit.

Della May Cox has been honored as second runner up for the Outstanding Hospital Volunteer for 1988-1989. This project is sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars Department of Texas Auxiliary. Della May does much volunteer work in the community as well as her hospital work.

Exercise class leader, Judy Goodenough, and her husband, John, have just returned from a week's vacation. They spent a few days at Pensacola Beach, Fla. where they enjoyed the surf and white sand.

During Judy's absence, LaVern McClosky led the class, with assistance from Grace Wooten who brought a video-tape sent by her daughter, Kay, for use with the exercise class.

About two weeks age, the exercise class welcomed Helen Ahr back from her Caribbean cruise and enjoyed hearing about life on the SS Norway, with visits to the islands of St. Croix and St. Thomas before hurricane Hugo devastated them.

Tuesday, Oct. 3 is the monthly pancake breakfast. Come enjoy some of the lightest hot cakes, hottest coffee and best conversation in the state of Texas. Marie Holland and her crew make a special effort to make this an enjoyable time of the month.

The Silver Sage Corral has some 55Plus coupons for Sea World of Texas and their Mum Festival. The coupon gives $5 off per ticket to persons 55 years of age or older. The coupons are free, so come by the Center to pick one up. The Mum Festival at Sea World is Wednesday, Oct. 4, 1989.

On Monday, Sept. 25, a free health screening was offered at the center. The South Texas Health Check mobile unit was in the parking lot of the center and we had in excess of 50 persons take advantage of this free service. Since there was such a large response, plans are being made to repeat the screening on Oct. 6. Watch this column for an announcement.

The Bandera County Brands Quilt will be on display at various businesses until the drawing on Oct. 14. On Monday, Oct. 2 the quilt will be on display at Boyle's Grocery from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. For a complete schedule of where the quilt will be shown, call the center. Quilt show admission tickets will be available at each of the places where the quilt will be on display. This quilt is the work of Carolee's Belles and was quilted by various members and supporters of the Bandera County Senior Citizen's Center.

A re-dedication ceremony of the 20th anniversary of the Dietert Claim will be held at Dietert Claim in Kerrville, Friday, Oct. 6 at 10 a.m. An open house in all buildings will be held from 10:45 to 4 p.m., and a semi-formal dance from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. On Saturday, Oct. 7, a memorial service honoring deceased volunteers will be held at 10 a.m. and a fun with music presentation from 2 to 4 p.m.

Celebrates 50th

Former Bandera residents John and Delores Searcy were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary Sept. 3 in Clifton, Colo., with a reception given by their children.

West Texas parks good for stargazing

Most Texas state parks are located in rural settings away from city lights, and parks in West Texas especially share the wide open spaces and clear night skies that have made McDonald Observatory world famous for its "dark sky" stargazing.

"Amateur stargazers looking for that excellent night-sky quality can find it from the Rio Grande to the Panhandle," said Bob Houser, chief of park operations for the Texas parks and Wildlife Department. "Dust, clouds and moisture, city lights and even moonlight can block a clear view of the stars."

The clean air and low humidity in West Texas help create brilliant daytime vistas and one of th darkest night skies in the world, Hauser said.

Campers are in for a treat if they have not seen an unobstructed night sky in a long time. Major constellations can be identified using a simple star chart. The weather usually cooperates, with temperatures that drop 20 to 30 degrees during the night.

Barring rain, the weekend of Sept. 27-29 will be optimal for stargazing. The new moon arrives on Sept. 29, giving the weekend the darkest nights of the month.

Sagittarius will be low in the southern sky around 9 p.m. The Little Dipper, which contains the North Star as the last star in its handle, will be in mid-sky, and the Big Dipper will be below it and to the west. The Great Square of Pegasus, which looks similar to the Big Dipper, will be in midsky to the east. Campers will find the Northern Cross and the Summer Triangle directly overhead around 9 p.m.

The full moon occurs on Friday, Sept. 14. Although it does obscure the stars somewhat, it has its own allure. The September full moon formerly was called the Comanche Moon in West Texas because it marked a time for Indian gatherings and ceremony.

Recreation parks in dark sky country include Balmorhea, Big Spring, Caprock Canyons, Copper Breaks, Davis Mountains, Fort Griffin, Lake Colorado City, Monahans Sandhills, Palo Duro Canyon and Seminole Canyon.

These state parks have standard campsite facilities including water, electricity, picnic tables, fire rings, restrooms with showers and dump stations for trailers. But each park also has its won special attractions.

Balmorhea in Toyahvale (915-375-2370) has motel-like courts, some with kitchens, and a swimming pool. Indian Lodge at Davis Mountains State Park (915-426-3337) offers complete hotel service. Seminole Canyon in Comstock (915-292-4464) has Indian pictographs preserved in its canyons.

Fort Griffin in Albany (915-762-3592) has preserved historic structures and is home to the official state Texas Longhorn herd.

Palo Duro in Canyon (806-488-2227) and Caprock Canyons in Quitaque (806-455-1492) feature magnificent back-country settings.

Prospective visitors may call the individual parks for information and reservations. A brochure containing complete information on state park facilities can be obtained by writing the TPWD, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, TX78744, or by calling toll-free 1-800-792-1112.

Comfort presents dinner theatre

"A Bad Year for Tomatoes," a play by John Patrick, runs at the Comfort Dinner Theatre through this weekend. The last performance is scheduled Saturday, Sept. 30.

The cast includes amateur performers from Kerrville, Boerne, Comfort and Center Point.

Dinner is served Friday and Saturday at 6:45 p.m., and the play begins at 8 p.m. Tickets are $13 for dinner and show, or $6.50 for the play only.

For reservations and information, call 1-800-232-5559.

LV eyes EMS

Leon Valley city council is considering setting up their own EMS system, following an announcement by San Antonio EMS that rates would go up more than 28 percent for 1990.

San Antonio EMS charged Leon Valley $132,000 this year, and announced that charges would be $179,000 for fiscal year 1990.

Leon Valley City Manager Don Manning said he expected the cost of setting up an EMS service in Leon Valley to be between $350,000 and $400,000.

"We Care About People"

A Thought For The Week
By John M. Grimes
PROMISES, PROMISES, PROMISES ... All too often they are just a roar of useless words. Sometimes they are potent. Very often impotent. Sometimes they are important; sometimes unimportant. Written or spoken, the variances apply.
Promises deal with all things, in every phase of life. Knowing what or whom to believe poses problems at times. It seems at times that people denigrate themselves; they shrug their shoulders as they give-or take-promises.
This is nothing new. It has been going on for a long time. Let's think about this...Isn't it true that promises should never be given unless there is an intention to keep them? This is more than good common sense. Promises of wealth, power, love, and other things create new visions of life ... it is always best to check the vision for flaws in goodness, sincerity and integrity...

"Let me say that the local pharmacist is not the fault. He is being ratcheted down because of Medicare and Medicaid. He is being squeezed because of the profits and the price increases of the drug manufacturers. The poor pharmacist is standing out there daily trying to explain to us why our drugs are going up so much, and those explanations are almost beyond comprehension for the general public."

Leroy Ybarra

Leroy Ybarra of Bandera has been recognized by Super S Foods for successfully completing the company's "Accuracy Is My Specialty" (AIMS) training program.

Sales tax exemptions to take effect Oct. 1, Bullock announces

Over 15,000 Texas taxpayers will pay less state sales tax when exemptions passed by the Legislature take effect on October 1, according to state comptroller, Bob Bullock.

"These exemptions will give a tax break to groups ranging from senior citizens doing yard work to people sightseeing in Texas," Bullock said.

As of Oct. 1, the state will not collect sales tax on computer program repair, maintenance and restoration as long as the work is done by someone who didn't sell or create the program, Bullock said.

Candy, gum and trinkets from vending machines will also be tax exempt when the price is 25 cents or less and the goods are randomly dispensed. Sales tax is still due on beverages.

Employers using temporary help services may also be exempt from the state sales tax if the temporary help does the work regular employees normally do. To qualify for the exemption, the employer must also directly supervise the temporary help and provide needed supplies and equipment.

Lawn care will also be exempt from the state sales tax when the work is done by someone at least 65 years old whose taxable receipts are under $5,000 a year.

And finally, people won't owe sales tax on admission fees, tour fees or any other entertainment charges when they're visiting a Recorded Texas Historic Landmark or a site in Texas that's included in the National Register of Historic Places.

Horse event to aid handicapped

A thousand dollars will be added to entry fees and awarded to winners of the Barrel and Roping Extravaganza Saturday, Sept. 30 at 2 p.m. in the Fish Hatchery Arena in Divine.

Proceeds will benefit the Sheltered Workshop, a facility in which handicapped persons make assorted items for re-sale.

Tax rep to field questions Oct. 10

A representative from the state comptroller's office will be in Bandera Tuesday, Oct. 10, to answer questions about Texas taxes and to assist taxpayers with paperwork and other tax problems.

Cynthia Rusch, an enforcement officer from the Kerrville office of the comptroller's office, will meet taxpayers at the courthouse from 2:15 p.m. to 4:15 p.m. There is no charge for the service, of course.

"I'm sending my employees out to help people with questions, filling out forms, and working out problems on a local, one-on-one basis," explains comptroller Bob Bullock. "There's some things you just can't do as well over the phone or through the mail."

Persons unable to meet with Rusch on Oct. 10 may still get individual tax assistance by calling the comptroller's toll-free telephone number, 1-800-252-5555.

Lady Buffaloes win

Utopia's Lady Buffaloes volleyball team traveled to Brackettville Saturday, Sept. 9, and both the varsity and junior varsity teams emerged victorious from their matches.

In their first match, Utopia JV defeated Brackett JV 15-1, 10-15, 15-6. Utopia JV also played Comstock Varsity and again came out on top 15-4, 15-8.

Sugar Moore and Tana Clark were singled out by Coach Hawkes as having top individual performances. The JV now stands 5-2 for the season.

Utopia varsity overtook Brackett varsity in a two-game match 15-5, 15-5. This brought the varsity record to 4-2 for the season. Coach Hawkes cited Lady Buffaloes Diana Duke and Tricia Bishop for outstanding play.

Fredericksburg, SA plan fests

Fredericksburg and San Antonio will mirror Munich, Germany's Oktoberfest celebration with music, food, beer, and dancing.

San Antonio's celebration will be held at the Beethoven Home and Garden at 422 Pereida Street Oct. 6-7 when the gates open each day at 5 p.m.

Featured will be German and Belgian/ folk dancers, the Beethoven choirs, Harp and Shamrock Singers, and the Beethoven Concert Band. A sing-a-long will conclude the entertainment.

Bratwurst, goulash, Irish bread and pancakes, Belgian strawberry waffles, and desserts will be served along with German beer and wine, American beer, and soft drinks.

Polka dancing starts at 9 p.m. There is a $2.50 admission charge.

While up north the same weekend in October will bring arts, crafts, foods, drinks, music, dancing, beer and children's entertainment to Fredericksburg.

Fredericksburg's Oktoberfest will be celebrated for the eighth year Friday 6 p.m. to midnight, Saturday 10 a.m. to midnight, and Sunday noon to 6 p.m. in downtown Fredericksburg at Market Square.

Oktoberfest is sponsored by the Pedernales Creative Arts Alliance, a non-profit organization. Monies from the event are used in the advancement and promotion of the arts, music, drama and crafts on all levels in the Fredericksburg community.

Oktoberfest started in 1810 in Germany to celebrate the engagement of Crown Prince Ludwig to Baroness Theresa. It has continued ever since and has become an event that is celebrated world wide.

Kerrville seeks new police chief

Kerrville City manager Glenn Brown announced last week that city will seek a new police chief to replace Scotty Evans, long-time police chief that Brown recently demoted to captain.

Brown refused to discuss the reasons for Evans' demotion, but said the decision came after "months of consideration."

Lt. Rosie McCray will be acting chief until the position is filled, Brown said.

Grid game pivots on two plays, Bulldogs lose to Natalia 9-7

Bandera's Bulldog defense extended its streak of scoreless quarters to 12 Friday, but the visiting Natalia Mustangs turned two offensive mistakes into scores to deal Bandera its first defeat of 1989.

The winning margin in the 9-7 contest was a safety that occured when the ball was centered over punter Leroy Brown's head and went out of the end zone, and Natalia's touchdown came on a recovery of a Bandera fumble in six-point land.

The Bulldog defense, which shut out its two earlier opponents, limited Natalia to just 108 yards on the ground and through the air, but nine turnovers kept Bandera in hot water all night long, despite the defensive steadiness.

"We gave it away," said Bulldog coach Sam Swierc, pointing to just two plays on which the game turned, and he blamed his play calling for the disasters that occured on those two occasions. One was the fumble that resulted in the Mustangs' touchdown and the other was a pass in the fading moments of the game that was intercepted to prevent a repeat of last week's last-second field goal that gave Bandera a 3-0 victory at Ingram.

"Four other interceptions and four fumbles didn't help either," the coach observed. "We worked on (preventing) turnovers last week and it didn't work."

So it will be back to fundamentals again this week for the Bulldogs as they prepare for San Antonio Memorial, now defending a one-game home winning streak instead of a 51-game losing skein that was brought to an end two weeks ago.

"They're a much better football team than last year," Swierc reported. Bandera handed Memorial a 30-7 defeat last year, a winless one for the San Antonio eleven. "They have more kids out for football and kids in positions they are capable of playing," the Bulldog coach said. "They have speed in the backfield and they throw quite a bit, much like Natalia, and they have some good size on defense."

Kickoff Friday night at Memorial is at 7:30 p.m., instead of the usual 8 p.m., and Swierc says Bulldog spirite are high, despite Friday's heart-breaking loss. In fact, Swierc's confidence is so high that he thinks his team can go the rest of the season without losing.

"One (losing) game is not going to break us," he says. "I don't feel we should lose any more games."

Though Bandera lost the ball on turnovers nine times Friday, they gained possession four times with a pair of Natalia fumble recoveries and a pair of pass interceptions by Brown and Jeff Hensley.

Brown's interception became an oddity when he fumbled after rumbling 47 yards to the Mustang 23-yard-line, but Bulldog sophomore Ben Samuel picked the fumble out of the air to keep the ball in Bandera hands. But Samuel's heroics were in vain as the Mustangs made one of their four interceptions two plays later.

Bulldog quarterback Epi Cardenas, forced to pass under pressure all night long, completed just three of 17 tosses, but they all came during the last-minute drive that ended on an interception just before Bandera was able to get into field goal position.

Running back Bo Mansfield gained 61 yards, bringing his total so far this year to 247 for the year. Jeff Pullin gained 52 yards, including two en route to Bandera's only touchdown, and Cardenas got 40 yards from his quarterback position.

The Bulldog freshmen play Medina here Thursday at 6 p.m. and the seventh and eighth grade teams play in Comfort at 5 p.m. Thursday.

Sabinal slaps 'Cats 24-0; Medina still seeking win

When Sabinal scored on a 73-yard pass and run play the first time it handled the ball Friday against Medina, some doubters in the stands were set for another 50-point defeat.

But the Bobcats went on to shut out Sabinal's passing attack for the remainder of the game and to limit them to a 24-0 victory.

Bobcat Thomas Fields, a junior running back, gained 120 yards on the ground and the Medina defense, though yielding large gains on the ground, came up with several big plays to help hold down the score.

Medina will try to get into the win column Friday when it hosts Blanco. Kickoff is at 8 p.m. The junior varsity plays Bandera Freshmen in Bulldog Stadium in Bandera Thursday at 4:30 p.m. and the Medina Junior High plays in Blanco at 5 p.m. Thursday.

The courthouse.

A Bandera County landmark since 1877.

Bandera County courthouse stands on Main Street between Pecan and Hackberry, across from the county library.

County Commissioners in 1890 granted the petition to build a courthouse on a public square, and move from a site near Cypress Street where the courthouse had been in operation since 1877. The old courthouse, beside the old Bandera County jail, still stands today. It houses two justice of the peace courts and county extension offices.

Offices inside the main hall of the Bandera County courthouse include those of Bandera County and District Clerk Vera King, and Bandera County Tax Assessor and Collector Marguerite Stevens.

Upstairs is the courtroom where District Judge Steve Ables presides at least once each month.

The courthouse was completed in 1891, and it was not until 1967 that another wing was added. In that wing currently is the office of Bandera County EMS, and the offices of Bandera County treasurer Elizabeth James and Bandera County Judge Ray Mauer.

County Court meets each month in a small courtroom, and the judge has a private office off the courtroom. In the event of a jury trial, county court is held in the larger courtroom upstairs.

Bandera County Commissioners also hold their regular monthly meetings in the judge's smaller courtroom.

The original architect for the Bandera courthouse was B.F. Trester, who supposedly designed the building to resemble the Kerr County courthouse. Accounts differ significantly in the amount Trester was paid: A historical marker on the courthouse says the fee was $5. A book about Texas courthouses identifies the architect as "Lester" and says he was paid $50.

Minutes from the Bandera County commissioners court Aug. 11, 1890, indicate the initial payment was $500 for architectural services. Minutes from commissioners court Dec. 8, 1890, show the commissioners

'She's truly beautiful and well worth pampering'
— architect Bob Cowan

Courthouse monuments.

tabled a request for payment from Trester because "he had already been paid the sum of $500 for the job which was not yet completed."

Trester died early in 1891, and in March of that year commissioners ordered the plans and specifications delivered to A.B. Frankel.

In April, building contractors abandoned the building site, and were ordered to meet with commissioners. The contractor was fined $360 for the delay, and the county commissioners finished the $20,000 building, which had been scheduled to be finished May 15, in September, 1891.

"The building shows the influence of the Greek Renaissance Revival," says Bandera architect Robert Cowan. "Built from cut limestone blocks quarried locally, and with massive structural trusses made from Cypress, it takes on a sense of timeless permanency," he said.

"The original interiors with plaster walls, beaded wood ceilings and windows of large proportions must have been delightful," says Cowan. "Even today, as you go up the double staircase and the single grand staircase entrance into the courtroom, it is not difficult to imagine the area serving not only the courts of the day, but various meetings, dances, and parties for the entire community.

The courtroom, though it has been modernized, still contains touches from days gone by such as old wooden railings and bookcases.

"A visit through the judge's chambers, up the access stairs to the attic is most revealing," says Cowan. "The huge wood trusses are something else, especially the details of assembly.

"Going on up to the dome, with its louvers, one can see how ventilation was provided before the days of air conditioning," he explains. "Above the louvers are spaces for the clockworks, which need to be retrieved from the past and reinstalled.

"For those energetic enough to climb to the pinnacle of the building, into the cupola, the reward for looking through the windows is being able to see 'forever' in all directions."

"Yes, for a grand old lady almost 100 years old, the Bandera County Courthouse is truly beautiful and well worth pampering."

Among the landmarks in Bandera County are some five landmarks that stand on the courthouse square: rodeo cowboy champions' monument, the war heroes monument, veterans' monument, Camp Montel monument and the Amasa Clark monument.

The rodeo cowboys champions' monument, topped by a bronze statue of a cowboy on horseback roping a calf, is placed in honor of Bandera County cowboy champions.

Cowboy champions honored include Toots Mansfield, Ray Wharton, Buddy Groff, Todd Whitewood, Scooter Fries, Clay Billings and Jimmy Adams.

The war heroes monument is a memorial to Bandera County men who sacrificed their lives in World War I. Some 23 names are inscribed on the granite monument that has stood since 1924.

The veterans' monument is the newest monument on the courthouse square, and is placed in honor and memory of all war veterans by the Bandera County veterans and auxiliaries. It is pledged as a "tribute to valor" in "patriotic allegiance to sanctify God and country."

The Camp Montel monument is a memorial to the Texans who served in the Confederacy. It commemorates Captain Charles DeMontel, and the Texas Civil War Frontier Defense. The monument was placed by the state of Texas in 1964.

"Texas had 2,000 miles of coastline and frontier to defend from Union attack, Indian raids, marauders, and bandits from Mexico " it says on the back of the granite monument. "defense lines were set to give... protection with the few men left in the state."

The Clark monument is a huge granite boulder that was erected as a memorial to Bandera pioneer Amasa Clark, who died in 1927 at the age of 101.

Clark, the first permanent settler in Bandera county, came here in 1852. He was a veteran of the Mexican war, and the stone marker originally stood in the National Cemetery at Ft. Sam Houston.

In 1945, when Ft. Sam officials needed to move the marker to erect a building on the site, the granite monument was moved to Bandera.

Bandera County Library

Bandera County Library, home to some 20,000 volumes, boasts a collection which includes approximately 5,000 children's books, a large print collection, a substantial Spanish language book collection, video tapes, and books on audio tape.

Recently, the library has gone online, and has an in-house computerized catalog.

Bandera County residents may obtain a library card free of charge, and visitors may check materials out on a temporary card with a $10 deposit, according to librarian Jimmie Hughie.

"The deposit is refunded when the materials are returned," said Hughie.

Most materials are available for a two-week checkout period.

Library patrons can take advantage of a paperback book exchange, which allows a book to be traded for another in "approximately the same condition," says Hughie.

Books by mail and interlibrary loan are an added feature.

The library also offers 16-millimeter films and projector for use, a children's story hour, and it sponsors a summer reading program for children.

It is housed in a historic building that was erected during the depression out of donated stone under a Works-Progress Administration program. It stands on Main Street directly across from the county courthouse.

The original Library Association was organized in 1932 with about 35 members, including some prominent Bandera citizens. A small building and lot on Main Street was purchased and some 400 books were donated.

In 1934, a CWA project was secured, and Bandera folks raised some $6,000 in matching funds. Originally, the front part of the fieldstone building was used as a civic auditorium, and the rear section housed the library.

In the mid-1970's, the library was enlarged and the building remodeled. The downstairs now serves as office space for the Texas Department of Human Services.

"Friends of the Library," a group of community supporters who work to promote the library and its continually expanding programs, meets on a regular basis to oversee library business.

Another program offered at the library is adult education, and includes classes in citizenship, literacy, English as a second language, GED preparation and basic adult education.

Library hours are Monday through Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon.

Pari-mutuel racing.

132 days scheduled in 1990.

By Nick Johnson
Bulletin Editor

It will be a completely renovated Bandera Downs when pari-mutuel horse racing begins on Texas Independence Day, March 2, after a $5 million to $6 million facelift that will make it the best racing facility in Texas.

Non-pari-mutuel racing has been suspended at the historic Bandera track while some renovations are completed, and work is expected to continue throughout the fall and winter.

Track officials plan to lengthen the running surface to a full one-mile oval that will be 80 feet wide with a 7-furlong (1,540 yards) chute on the back side. Bandera Downs' special surface includes healthy portions of cedar fiber to make it spongy, and "Poteet sand," a particularly good component for proper drainage and desired texture and consistency.

Spectator seating will be tripled so that 4,500 fans can be seated under cover and a completely new turf club will be built that will seat an additional 1,000 spectators in air conditioned comfort.

A picnic area will be constructed with tables and benches for many additional spectators and the infield will be enlarged to accommodate those who prefer to stand.

An artist's conception of Bandera Downs' new grandstand.

The existing turf club will be moved and converted into a cooking area for trainers and other personnel in the stable area, and the bottom part walled in to contain racing offices.

The track's administrative offices and the offices of state officials that will monitor the track's operations (representatives of the comptroller's office, a veterinarian and stewards) will be constructed.

They'll break from a pari-mutuel gate on March 2, and thousands are expected for the opening days.

A completely new paddock will be created and a pre-saddling holding area required by Texas Racing Commission rules will be nearby. Horses are saddled in the paddock, and it's a good place to size up your favorite up close.

New jockey quarters will also be constructed, according to co-owners Stan Scruby and Don Essary, and a new safety rail will be installed completely around the one-mile oval.

Bandera Downs was constructed in 1965 by a group headed by local automobile dealer Henry Adams, and the first race (non-pari-mutuel, of course) was on July 10, 1965. It was a member of what was called "the Texas Racing Circuit" and 18 days of racing were held that year.

The track was purchased in 1983 by Scruby and Essary and has become one of the premier non-pari-mutuel racing sites in Texas.

Polly's

A 100-year-old chapel.

One of the more pleasant sites in Bandera County is also one of the county's more important historical sites, the 100-year old chapel of Jose Policarpo Rodriguez.

Polly's Chapel (sometimes spelled Poli's Chapel) is located a few miles off State Highway 16 east of Bandera. Turn north on Privilege Creek Road and follow the signs.

It was a spring day on the blossoming Texas frontier, April 17, 1882, to be exact, when a small group of neighbors gathered on a little rise above Privilege Creek to lay the cornerstone for a little stone church.

The strong and handsome building of carefully dressed limestone blocks, dedicated to the use of the "Iglesia Metodista Episcopal del Sur" was the realization of the dreams of a strong and handsome man.

Historians say Jose Policarpo Rodriguez was possibly the most towering figure in the history of the Hill Country. They also report he was a dreamer and a fearless doer.

Born in Mexico in 1829, Polly came to Texas as a very young and very brash man to become an Indian scout, fighter, frontier guide and surveyor.

He was most prominently associated with the U.S. Cavalry and its bizarre camel corps experiment at Camp Verde near Bandera Pass. When the Civil War ended the project, Polly decided to stay in the area, having acquired land on nearby Privilege Creek in 1858.

Raised as a Catholic, he was converted to the Methodist denomination and became devoted to the well-being of the Privilege Creek community and to the church he built there.

Before he died in 1914, he wrote the story of his life and his church in a book originally published in 1908 by the Methodist Board of Missions. A fictionalized book on his life, written for the younger reader, was published in 1989 by Corona Publishing Company of San Antonio ("Poli, A Mexican Boy in Early Texas," by Jay Neugeboren, available in hardback for $13.95 at The Bandera Bulletin).

Polly's Chapel has a medallion and plaque designating it as a recorded Texas landmark. It has been recommended and is a candidate for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Sites of the U.S. Department of Interior.

Dinosaur tracks.

They're remnants of another time when giants walked in Hondo Creek.

If, in your travels around Bandera County you find yourself in Tarpley, (and you might 'cause there's a good place to eat there; but that's another story...) go south on FM Road 462 for about a mile-and-a-half and you'll see a sign touting dinosaur tracks.

Park in the pull-off space provided and slip through the narrow opening in the fence and hike the few steps to the creek. There, stretched out to the south, is a veritable stampede of ancient prints, forever preserved in the stone bed of the watercourse.

The bi-pedal creatures that several million years ago left their tracks in Hondo Creek were not members of the human race, according to a pair of amateur ichnologists R.J. Hastings of Waxahatchie and Glen J. Kuban of Ohio who studied the markings during the summer of 1969, but rather were placed there by a group of large, upright walking meat-eaters refered to as carnisaurs.

The pair spent several days at the site of the tracks cleaning debris from the impressions and making notes as they gathered evidence to disprove a theory that certain of the markings were made by early man during the same period as the dinosaurs.

"We're trying to document these tracks which are similar to those found at Glen Rose (in Somervell County)," said Hastings. "We're attempting to gather more data against the 'mantrack' theory."

Hastings, who is a high school physics and advanced mathematics teacher, further explained that there is a belief among some people that man and dinosaurs existed on earth at the same time thereby disproving the theory of evolution. Thus the reference to some impressions as mantracks.

Hastings and Kuban are of the opinion that the elongated prints found at both Tarpley and Glen Rose are those of carnosaurs which were walking in an unusual manner.

Bandera County's controversial tracks are located on the property of W.J."Willie" Schmidt who lives across the stream. Schmidt says he doesn't mind folks visiting the tracks, but he asks that they not litter his attraction so the next people along can enjoy it also.

On your way back to your car you might drop a friendly donation into the lockbox provided to show your thanks for the view into the past. The collections help with the upkeep and maintainance of the site.

Schmidt's tracks are not the only ones in Bandera County, but the others are not generally accessible to the public. Bandera is one of 13 counties in the state with marks left by the giant beasts but the rock where the tracks are found is similar. It's all part of a huge ocean shore line that once ran from what is now west of Fort Worth to Austin and then down to San Antonio, Bandera, and Laredo.

Frontier Times Museum.

Originally a private collection of the publisher of The Frontier Times magazine, the museum is now owned by the people of Bandera County.

Bandera's Frontier Times Museum started in 1927 from a small private collection of old west and pioneer relics belonging to the late J. Marvin Hunter Sr., but with the addition of many diverse and unusual artifacts that include some prehistoric items, the museum now located at 506 13th St. has become a Bandera landmark.

In front of the museum stands a recently-restored totem pole. The 16-foot tall pole, reportedly placed at the museum in 1943 by Charles Eckhart, fell during a storm around 1983.

The pole was restored by local artist and craftsman Fred Collins, who reportedly used only a black and white photograph as a guide in the restoration process.

At first, a few museum articles were housed in a room in the Bandera New Era printing office, but by 1933 the collection had become so large, the fieldstone building was erected to house it.

Many of the artifacts, due to their rarity and value, rival those to be found in much larger, more famous museums. Frontier Times Museum has one of the largest and most eclectic collections to be found anywhere, containing over 40,000 artifacts pertaining to hundreds of subjects.

The museum includes a gallery of paintings of the old west, a treasure house of antiques, the Gordon collection, historic photographs, prehistoric relics, Roy Bean's bottles, and a Jivaro shrunken head.

On sale at the museum are included books on the old Southwest and its characters. Hunter wrote many books on the Southwest and edited "Frontier Times," a monthly magazine, for many years. Among the books he authored and printed were "The Life of Bigfoot Wallace," "The Trail Drivers of Texas," "Lottie Deno," "Album of Gunfighters," "Horrors of Indian Activity," "Old Camp Verde, Home of the Camels," and "Pioneer History of Bandera County."

Founded in 1933 by Hunter, and later owned by the F.B. Doane Foundation, the Frontier Times Museum has been jointly owned by the citizens of Bandera County since 1972.

Because the museum is owned jointly by some 8,000 citizens of Bandera county, it depends solely on private donations for its support and receives no city or county fundings as do many other museums. It is operated on behalf of the local citizens by a board of directors, 25 people from different backgrounds and different areas of the county.

In addition to the museum's permanent displays, rotating exhibits are presented in the Doane gallery, featuring a different area artist each month. Watercolors, leatherwork, needlework, quilting, oil painting and ceramics are a few of the types of art exhibited.

The museum's Louise Gordon collection contains artifacts including a full-size totem pole, many items of oriental art and a fabulous collection of 400 bells from all parts of the world.

The bells range from Russian sleigh bells, elephant and camel bells, and a Siamese dancer's collar and necklace to a Chinese gong from the Ming dynasty.

The oldest bell in the collection is a gong from China's Han dynasty, 207 B.C. to 220 A.D.

One of the more unusual items in the Gordon collection is a throne chair from the Doge's Palace in Venice, Italy. This ornately-carved chair of Circassian walnut is over 400 years old, and was used by the royalty of Europe when they visited the Doge, or chief magistrate of Venice, to pay their respects.

Perhaps the rarest item in the collection is a reincarnation plate which comes from the Krishna temple in Benares, India, the birthplace of Hinduism.

The plate, intricately carved in silver, copper and brass, was used by the Hindu priests to teach their followers the cyclic theory of reincarnation. It was presented to Gordon by the leaders of an Indian province in gratitude for her financial aid during a famine.

Gordon, an English woman who lived in San Antonio until her death in 1941, left the artifacts to Hunter in her will.

The Charles Fagan Collection includes many items of South American origin, including a 400-year-old pair of brass conquistador stirrups, a porcupine fish, a wooden idol from Easter Island, an iguana lizard, an alligator tooth necklace and two shrunken heads.

The heads were shrunken by the Jivaro Indians, a tribal people living in the jungles of southeastern Ecuador and northern Peru. They carry on blood feuds among themselves, and in order to prevent the spirits of their dead enemies from inhabiting their bodies, they perform an elaborate ceremony that involves the shrinking of their victim's head.

Fagan was for some 25 years an officer on a Grace liner, the Santa Clara, and according to Hunter, Fagan made regular trips to South America.

He apparently took great interest in Hunter's efforts to establish a museum in Bandera.

Many of the museum's artifacts come from Texas and the southwestern United States. Among the pioneer items are assorted tools, saddles, furniture, weapons and clothing.

Tarpley's old telephone switchboard, used from the 1930s to the mid-1960s, several early model telephones, music boxes from the 1880s, an early permanent wave machine, a primitive baby incubator and a full-sized replica steam engine are among the many artifacts at the Frontier Times Museum.

The oldest artifact found in Texas is a sample of fiber netting used by prehistoric man who lived in the Chisos Mountains of the Big Bend territory nearly 3,000 years ago.

An unusual item is a camel hair pillow that belonged to Bandera County pioneer Amasa Clark, who was a camel herder during the 1850s "great Camp Verde camel experiment."

Clark secured enough camel hair to stuff a mattress and two pillows. The mattress eventually fell apart, and one of the pillows was placed in Clark's coffin when he died at age 101. The other came to the Frontier Times Museum.

Frontier Times Museum is visited by over 12,000 people from around the world each year, and is open every day of the week. Hours are from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and 1-4:30 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $1.50 for adults, 25 cents for students through age 18, and children under age 6 are admitted free.

Members of the Friends of Frontier Times Museum are admitted free. This organization helps support the museum and allows its members unlimited free admission to the museum for a one year period.

Memberships are available in the following categories: Senior Citizen $5; Individual $10; Family $15; Business $25; Patron $100 and Life Member $1,000. All immediate family members are admitted free with a family membership, and life members get perpetual free admission. For more information, call the museum at 796-3864.

Pipe Creek Texas

Once Lipan Apache country, the land where Pipe Creek Junction stands was first granted to a railroad company. William J. Hamilton, son of Sheriff Henry Hamilton, patented the land on August 29, 1878 building a cotton gin and grist mill on the north side of Highway 16 and a little to the west. The gin's large cistern can still be seen from the restaurant.

Felix and Harriet Newcomer later bought the small portion of the Hamilton ranch which extended south of Highway 16 and sold the one-acre store corner to E.B. and Carrie Keefe on March 3, 1911 for $150. The Keefes built the first store at this location in the spring of that year. It was a two story frame building with the store on the first floor and their residence on the second floor. After only a few months, the Keefes sold everything back to the Newcomers. The Newcomer's son Jim then ran the store adding shed wings to both sides of the original building.

In 1914 Tom W. Deskin, Sr. offered Jim Newcomer and his widowed mother a 480 acre ranch north of Pipe Creek as an even trade for the store and the offer was too much to resist. The Deskins then ran the store for the next four years. After the Deskins, a number of other people — Dick Cox, Ernest Jump and Henry Darrow, John T. Dixon, Elmer Pickens, and Lawrence Edwards —tried their hand at running the store. Dick Cox was the first of the owners to buy a motor-powered truck to haul supplies which he purchased in 1918.

In the spring of 1924 Adolph and Laura Schott took over the operation of the store. Laura was Jim Newcomer's daughter. In 1930 Adolph built the dance hall to the east of the store doing much of the building himself. Dancing, movies, and skating were held in the hall. For a while the Mormons met there on Sunday mornings when they had no place to meet. In 1936 when the road to San Antonio was widened for the paving of Highway 16, the current store building was built. Again Adolph did much of the framing with help from Jonathon Newcomer and Dumpy McCarthy. Henry Gombert of Boerne did the rock work. The store was the first place in Pipe Creek to receive electricity from the Bandera Electric Co-op being connected December 24, 1940. In 1944 Adolph and Laura leased the store to the L.M. Claptons who built the cafe on the corner which Earl White later ran and where Hank Kruger has his real estate office.

In September 1951 Ed and Ann Jennings took charge of the store. After Earl White moved his cafe from next door, Ed began aiming more at the convenience market. The older natives continued to bring their eggs and some produce in to trade for needed staples until well into the 1960's. Ed made the store into a notable tourist attraction with his novel items and humorous signs posted around such as: the parking meter next to the real estate office with a sign that said "First and only parking meter in Bandera County", a post with a "City Limits" sign nailed to both sides of the post, a sign on the front door that said "No dogs or horses allowed", a coon skin cap placed on a mounted deer's head with a sign hanging around the deer's neck that said "Me too" during the Davy Crockett coon skin cap craze, a coconut hanging over the vegetable bin with a sign that said "Squeeze this, not the tomatoes," a large cracker barrel on the counter when Captain Gus was popular on T.V., and many more things. The "Marrying Oaks" in back of the store were a popular place to be married by Justice of the Peace Jennings. Ed operated the store for more than thirty years, retiring and closing the store in the fall of 1982.

Don and Ginger, former owners of "Helen's Cafe," purchased the property in the spring of 1986, the corner where the old store and dance hall sits. They remodeled the old store into a restaurant known as "The Pipe Creek Junction Cafe" which opened Aug. 1986. The cafe is open 6 a.m. til 11 p.m. seven days a week proudly serving breakfast, lunch and dinner. Floating the Medina.

The river is full of exciting, tight, water-filled rapids.

The tree-lined Medina River in Bandera County has become an increasingly popular avenue for canoeists and is especially pleasant during the spring and fall seasons when water flow is sufficient for good paddling.

Under normal water flow conditions the spring-fed river provides a good mixture of class one and two rapids separated by deep pools of emerald green that are perfect for the water rat who wants to up his skill level and have a fun weekend paddling too. If the kids are not too small and can swim, the cool, cypress shaded glades and glass-smooth pools offer a fine opportunity for a family outing also.

Public access to the Medina River can be found adjacent to several bridges on State Highway 16 from approximately four miles West of Medina city to the park bridge in Bandera. The park is also a good place to take out should one enter the river further up.

Two of the more popular launch points upstream of Bandera are the bridge four miles east of Medina and the Camp Bandina crossing. These two points do not offer any camping space however, as both are surrounded by private property.

Another site with camping but no facilities is Moffit Park in Medina.

A good mid-way camp for a two-day trip is Ranger Crossing roadside park west of Bandera on 16. There are picnic tables and lots of space but again no facilities. A smaller roadside park is located about a mile further down on FM Road 470.

Should canoeists want to venture below Bandera, exit points are limited to English Crossing and Ruede's camp near the mouth of Medina Lake.

In high water, the Medina River can be dangerous. Writers Ben Nolan and Bob Narramore state in their Texas Rivers and Rapids state that the Medina "should not be considered by a family group that has small children or by parties who haven't had white water experience, especially at above normal water levels."

They are well founded in their caution for the river is full of tight, swift, rock-filled rapids. Also, since the flood of 1978 the channels have a great many fallen trees that at times generate difficult obstacles.

More information, water conditions, shuttle service and canoe rentals can be found at Fred Collins Workshop just west of Bandera on Highway 16 or by calling 796-3553.

Silver Sage Corral.

Bandera's senior citizens center earned a statewide Award of Excellence and has become a model for emulation by other communities.

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

Staff photos by Larry T. Williams

Bandera's Silver Sage Corral recently received a statewide group's Award of Excellence, and locally the 'Corral is known as a place to meet, share ideas and experiences, and just generally a place where adults and senior citizens can get together.

The award was presented by the Texas Association of Senior Centers in April. The award is seldom presented, according to Bandera County Coordinator for the Aging Manuel Flores, and the last time the award was given was in 1985.

Bandera County's senior activity center has been studied as a model for other senior centers.

After recent building additions, several activities can go on simultaneously, and they often do at the Silver Sage Corral. There is a strong following and a lot of support in the community.

One activity that is planned is their first annual arts, crafts and quilt show Oct. 14. The all-handmade arts and crafts available will be made by persons age 55 and older.

The center is some 66 volunteers strong, and they average about 800 hours of volunteer time per month. Usually, about 400 (and sometimes more) lunches are served at the center, and in August the center's minivan traveled 1,017.6 miles, transporting 622 people to various destinations.

One "big plus" of the Silver Sage Corral is the people and the friendly atmosphere. There is great diversity of backgrounds among the participants, and native Banderans and "old-timers" gather with recent retirees and visitors to the area.

"Winter Texans," predominantly retired visitors who travel south to spend the cold winter months in south Texas, come through the Silver Sage Corral often, according to Flores.

"They drop in almost daily," he said. "Most of them are very impressed with what they see.

"A lot of them are looking for a place to retire," Flores said.

"I think we have one of the best facilities in the state."

Many younger people also participate in activities at the Silver Sage Corral. Although senior citizens are given first priority, Wehmeyer said they try to avoid an atmosphere of isolation. Anything that isolates or sets one group apart is against the philosophy of the sponsoring bodies.

"It is unusual to find a facility of this quality in such a small town," said Glenn Wehmeyer, director of Kerrville's Dietert Claim and formerly with the Bandera program. "Many times what is available to senior centers in small towns are just store-fronts."

Bandera's senior center was founded almost 13 years ago, and in 1984 they broke ground for the facility where the Silver Sage Corral is currently located. It was dedicated in April of 1985.

It is an uncommon program that Flores said provides social interaction, life enrichment opportunities, a recreational outlet and educational challenges for the participants.

A variety of available activities includes puzzling, quilting and games for drop-ins, and a wide assortment of classes such as beginning and conversational Spanish, needle crafts, weaving, ceramics, drawing and sketching. A low impact exercise group meets three times a week, and there are several days when there are musical activities going on.

Other group activities including a decoupage class may soon be forming, Flores said. He also said he hopes that soon another language besides Spanish, such as German or Polish, will be offered.

"There is a rich Polish heritage (in the Bandera area), and I wish that more of the history and customs could be preserved," he said.

The Silver Sage Corral is open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. week days. The regular schedule includes:

Monday: ceramics, low impact exercise, table loom weaving, card and table games, sketching, and arts and crafts.

Tuesday: Pancake breakfast (first Tuesday of each month), birthday lunch (fourth Tuesday of each month), quilting, table games, autoharp, guitar and Melodiers.

Wednesday: low impact exercise, knitting, oil painting, samba and table games.

Thursday: Rock Hounds (third Thursday of each month), Spanish (beginners and conversational), table games and puzzles.

Friday: Silver Sage Corral Advisory Board (fourth Friday of each month), Melodiers (first and third Fridays of each month), low impact exercise and bridge.

Adopt A Pet Of Bandera
Hill Country Veterinary Hospital operates a shelter known as "Adopt A Pet Of Bandera" for stray pets found in Bandera County. Strays may be presented to the hospital where they will be vaccinated, dipped and dewormed. Persons adopting these pets will pay only a nominal fee for the vaccines and neutering or spaying surgery. It is our hope this service will get strays off the streets and into a home where they won't reproduce any more strays.

Surgery Facilities
Doctors Nightingale and Zermuehlen provide a variety of surgery procedures for dogs, cats, horses, cattle, sheep, and goats. Pictured are Dr. Zermuehlen and Dr. Nightingale preparing one of over 1,000 equine joints for arthroscopic chip removal.

Stallion Breeding Service
Hill Country Veterinary Hospital and Equine Center offers equine breeding services to 3 Racing Quarter Horses and 1 Thoroughbred. Dr. Zermuehlen provides experience in embryo transfers, sonograms, broodmare reproduction, foaling and foal management. Two service vehicles allow on farm examinations with some of our technical diagnostic equipment. Pictured is Dr. Zermuehlen with "Hooked On Cash", earner of $165,000.00.

Post Operative Patient
Whether the animal is small or large, quick recovery from anesthesia is important. Gas and injectable anesthesia are used in combination to ensure safety during surgery and allow quick recovery. Pictured is one horse which has just had bone chips removed from both knees and one ankle. Surgery lasted about one hour but the horse is able to stand in less than half an hour.

Bandera's senior citizens center earned a statewide Award of Excellence and has become a model for emulation by other communities.

Bandera's Silver Sage Corral recently received a statewide group's Award of Excellence, and locally the 'Corral is known as a place to meet, share ideas and experiences, and just generally a place where adults and senior citizens can get together.

The award was presented by the Texas Association of Senior Centers in April. The award is seldom presented, according to Bandera County Coordinator for the Aging Manuel Flores, and the last time the award was given was in 1985.

Bandera County's senior activity center has been studied as a model for other senior centers.

A Walking Tour.

Bandera has the second oldest Polish Catholic Church and other historic buildings from the town's past.

Bandera offers historic buildings from the time of its founding, such as the second oldest Polish church in Texas and into the later years as the town, county, and country developed.

Some of these buildings can be toured by an afternoon's walk or via a leisurely bicycle ride around the city.

1. Catholic Cemetery (1850s), Cypress between 7th and 8th Streets, was established after 16 Polish families came to Bandera in 1855. Names of these early immigrants are listed on a monument in front of the church. Located on the church grounds is the 14 stations of the cross.

2. St. Stanislaus Catholic Church (1876) was established by the Polish colonists who came to Bandera in 1855. Their 1858 log building was located where the present Gothic vernacular stone structure stands. It is the second oldest Polish church in Texas, after one in Panna Maria in Karnes County. The church's steeple was replaced in 1988 due to leaks that had developed in its metal exterior. Recorded Texas Historic Landmark.

3. Old Rectory, (1930) on Cypress and 7th Streets. Built of stone from a previously used addition to the Catholic church.

4. Jureczki-Tobin House (1876) on the southwest corner of Cypress and 7th Streets was built by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jureczki, early pioneer colonists from Poland. The house is a recorded Texas Historic Landmark and on the National Register.

5. St. Joseph's Convent-Parish Museum (1874) is located on the center of block near back entrance to St. Stanislaus. It was originally erected for the Sisters of the Immaculate Conception as a convent and later used as a school for children of early Polish settlers. Recorded Texas Historic Landmark.

6. St. Joseph's School (1920) was formerly used as a parochial school and is now used by the Catholic church as a parish and fellowship hall. This hipped-roof symmetrical two-story rock structure was designed from older plans of the Bandera Public School building making it look older than it really is.

7. English Style House (1920) is located at Hackberry and Ninth Streets is the residence of A.K. Briggs, an early-day school principal, has a massive chimney.

8. Montague House (1880) on Ninth and Hackberry Streets was built for Judge and Mrs. Charles Montague, Jr. Some 12 Montague children were raised in this historic old house.

9. Carmichael Home (1890) at the corner of Hackberry and 10th Streets was built by H.H. Carmichael, a graduate of Columbia University, who came to Texas from Missouri. He married Mary E. Risinger of Helena 1987 and moved to Bandera establishing a business in present Ranch Store building.

10. Bandera United Methodist Church (1867) at Hackberry and 11th Streets is a United Methodist Church national historic site. The original frame building was later replaced by a stone structure that has been enlarged to its present architectural plan. Andrew "Fighting Jack" Potter was the first Methodist minister in this area. Recorded Texas Historic Landmark.

11. Bandera School Campus at 11th and Cherry Streets was built in 1913 school was the first substantially built, multi-room public school in the area still in continuous use. The old high school, still part of the campus, was built by WPA in 1937.

12. Bandera County Library (1934) at Main and Pecan was a WPA project of the Great Depression era. Remodeled in 1970's. A new roof has been added to prevent leaks. The bottom floor currently houses state offices.

13. Courthouse (1890) at Hackberry and Pecan Streets was designed by B.F. Trester Jr., work started by Ed Braden and Son of San Antonio and was completed by E. Huffmeyer, a local merchant and contractor. Stone for the building was quarried locally and laid by itinerant Russian stonemasons. The building has had a wing added on the Hackberry Street side. Recorded Texas Historic Landmark and on the National Register.

14. First Baptist Church (1908) at North Pecan is a replacement structure for the 1908 original church. The entire block was bought in 1883 and given to the church by F. L. Hicks in 1884.

15. Frontier Times Museum (1933) at 506 13th Street was built by frontier journalist-historian, J. Marvin Hunter to house collections of Texana. It is currently maintained by the Frontier Times Museum, Inc. a non-profit institution. A modest admission fee for a remarkable display of historic items. Local art is displayed with a new display each month. Recorded Texas Historic Landmark.

16. William J. Davenport House (1910) 1506 Pecan is a wood vernacular with classical elements, two-story weatherboard frame house; gable projecting bay on side; two-tier porch with simple Ionic columns.

Bicycling.

Bandera County's many bicycling advantages have attracted the Branders Tour of Texas, which will have three stages of its 1990 event here.

Bandera County has become an increasingly popular arena for recreational cyclists, and there's good reason for it.

The scenery here is unrivaled anywhere in the state, its Hill Country is cooler in the summer than flat-land sites, and its air is as pristine as you'll find in the U.S.

Add to those advantages a good farm-to-market road and state highway system that is relatively little-traveled by motorized vehicles and that is a nice blend of fast-paced flats, challenging climbs and breath-taking descents.

The Branders Tour of Texas, the largest pro-am, international bicycle stage race in the U.S., recognized Bandera County's cycling advantages in 1989 by deciding to hold one of its eight stages here, starting in Bandera and proceeding westward to Leakey.

In April of 1990, three stages of that nationally and internationally televised spectacle will be home of not one but three stages of the eight-stage event. The traditional Bandera to Leakey Road Race will be held on Monday, April 2. The Medina Pass Road Race, new in 1989, will start in Medina and go over Medina Mountain and finish in Medina. On the next day, Wednesday, April 4, the Hill Country Road Race will begin and end in Bandera with a loop through Kerrville. Many of the cyclists will choose Bandera to spend their rest day on Thursday, April 5, here before the race resumes in the Austin area on Friday, April 6.

Any of the paved roads indicated on the map in the center of this visitor's guide are good routes for the cyclist, and there are challenges in the hills that would stir the most ardent mountain biker.

You can ride the routes that the world's greatest road racers will ride in April, if you have someone to pick you up in Leakey. Maps of a variety of routes are available at the offices of the Bandera County Chamber of Commerce.

Water stops are sometimes far apart, so stock up often at the many convenience stores along the routes. There is water available, of course, in Bandera and at many points along the north shore of Lake Medina as well as in Pipe Creek, Tarpley, Medina, Vanderpool, Utopia.

There is a fully-supported recreational bicycle ride in Bandera each Labor Day weekend offering cyclists a choice of three rides.

It's more important than ever for drivers to be aware of cyclists.

Because of the increasing number of cyclists on the roads of Bandera County, it is more important than ever that drivers of motorized vehicles be aware of them and know what to expect from them.

Remember, bicyclists are vehicles and must observe all the same rules of the road that the operator of any vehicle must observe, including riding on the right side of the road in the same direction as other vehicles.

Because they move at a slower pace than other traffic on the roadway, cyclists ride as near as practicable to the right curb or edge of the roadway, but they do operate on the roadway and have every right to do so.

Experienced cyclists obey all traffic signs and signals. They warn other traffic when stopping or turning by giving hand signals with the left hand.

Cyclists should not ride with more than two bicycles side-by-side nor should they ride double, except on tandems.

Long-distance recreational cyclists as well as racers eat special food to enhance their performance and to remain fit. Those in training consume 55 percent to 65 percent of their daily calories in carbohydrates, and that's 50 percent more than the typical American eats.

Studies show that diets high in carbohydrates help ward off fatigue, so most cyclists eat plenty of fruits, vegetables and starchy foods like pasta, potatoes and beans.

Because of the evaporative effect of the wind, cyclists lose tremendous quantities of water in sweat and through heavy breathing. Cyclists drink 4 to 8 liters of fluid a day, and more during long rides.

Today there are an estimated 82 million recreational cyclists in America, and cycling has the second largest number of participants of any sport in the world (soccer has the most).

Deer Hunting in Bandera County.

To increase deer hunting success, recall a deer's sense of smell and its need for familiar surroundings, especially on the day of the hunt. Clothes must blend into the trees so the deer won't see you, but must stand out to be seen by other hunters.

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Facets of deer hunting fascinate most people, whether it's the rack or horns on a white-tail buck deer, their majestic stance, their appearance almost out of nowhere, or the 100 to 200 pounds of venison that can come out of a deer.

Many hunters put a lot of time into selecting the spot, feeding corn at their selected site during the months before the opening of hunting season (Nov. 4), and selecting their weapon and deer blind.

Whether a hunter owns the land, has a deer lease, or goes day-hunting on a managed ranch, all that effort can misfire if the hunter doesn't remember a deer's keen sense of smell, need for familiar surroundings, and that it is hunted by predators other than man.

That means a hunter must be concerned about his scent, clothes, and timing on hunting day, whether on opening day or the last day of the season (Jan. 7).

The chance of hunting success, especially with the bigger, trophy bucks can be increased by removing scent from the hunter's person and clothes. Use non-scented soap and shampoo and clothes that don't have human smells. Another factor is timing: realize that when a hunter goes to the blind, there is no way to avoid scaring the deer and that time interval must be compensated for.

Scent

People, like other mammals, have a scent all their own. Don't decrease your chances of a successful hunt by adding manufactured scents. Use non-scented soaps and shampoos to bathe before the hunt. If the wind changes and you didn't take a bath with non-scented soap, the deer will smell you, says Will Honeycutt, one of Bandera's experienced hunters.

Stay away from scented aftershave, also. Deer can smell tobacco and anything foreign to their domain, says Honeycutt. Consider a cover scent that can be purchased at a hunting store to hide the human smell.

Another scent is the hunter's breath. Use baking soda to remove the odor without adding another scent from commercial mouthwash. "They'll (the deer) smell what you had for breakfast," says Honeycutt. Mouthwashes also have a scent, whether mediciney or minty.

Clothes

A hunter must consider three factors about the clothes he wears to the blind: 1) clothes must blend in with the surroundings for the deer, 2) clothes must distinguish the hunter from the background for other hunters, and 3) clothes must not carry a scent of their own.

Clothes must be of a dark shade that blends in with the surroundings. The green with dark green and almost black camouflage is a favorite of hunters and it blends in with the surroundings.

But green on a hunter in green surroundings makes the hunter hard to see. The hunter's camouflage orange is to keep the hunters from shooting each other, says Honeycutt. The deer won't be able to tell the difference between the dark orange and the dark green, but other hunters will.

Basically deer don't see color, says Honeycutt. They see shades and the color white scares them to death, he adds. When deer see the dark shades of green or orange among the trees, they can't distinguish it as a threat or danger by color alone. It looks like the same color, actually the same shade as the animal's surroundings, the trees and brush of the Hill Country.

Hunting clothes need to be washed in unscented detergents. The fewer odors the better, says Honeycutt. "I keep my hunting clothes in a plastic bag until I get ready to hunt," says Honeycutt. The clothes might pick up the odors from smoking or cooking even the morning of the hunt, he adds.

Dress warmly, Honeycutt recommends. "It's hard to sit still when you're cold," he says. It is better to take clothes off if it gets too hot, he says.

When to go to the blind

The pre-dawn and the late afternoon is the time to go out to the blind. Early morning and evening has the highest percentage of deer movement, says Honeycutt.

For the morning, one hour before sunrise is the time to set out for the blind. "Be in the stand and settled prior to the deer moving, which will be at dawn," says Honeycutt. At

It looks like the same color, actually the same shade as the animal's surroundings, the trees and brush of the Hill Country.

Hunting clothes need to be washed in unscented detergents. The fewer odors the better, says Honeycutt. "I keep my hunting clothes in a plastic bag until I get ready to hunt," says Honeycutt. The clothes might pick up the odors from smoking or cooking even the morning of the hunt, he adds.

Dress warmly, Honeycutt recommends. "It's hard to sit still when you're cold," he says. It is better to take clothes off if it gets too hot, he says.

When to go to the blind

The pre-dawn and the late afternoon is the time to go out to the blind. Early morning and evening has the highest percentage of deer movement, says Honeycutt.

For the morning, one hour before sunrise is the time to set out for the blind. "Be in the stand and settled prior to the deer moving, which will be at dawn," says Honeycutt. At dawn the deer begin to browse, nibbling and making their way to or from the bed.

Deer feed more at night during hunting season because of the hunting pressure, says Honeycutt.

For the evening, go out two-and-a-half hours before sunset. Leave about 4 p.m., get there, and be settled, says Honeycutt.

Hunting laws say the hours are from one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset, but during the brighter part of the day, you're luck's low unless you are very, very patient.

Items to take to the blind

Besides a rifle and ammunition, a hunter should consider taking field glasses (binoculars), a sharp knife for field dressing of the deer, and a short length of rope to tie the deer up with. Ninety percent of deer hunters hang their deer to field dress them, says Honeycutt.

Can't just shoot anywhere

Once you come out to the country, you can shoot deer anywhere, right? Wrong. In Bandera County, hunters in organized subdivisions must be hunted on tracts of land that are over 10 acres in area.

To hunt on a piece of property, that land must be 10 acres in size, if it is in a subdivision in Bandera County, says Bandera County Judge Mauer. This applies to all rifles, including .22 calibers and 30-30s.

In Bandera County, most hunters lurk in blinds, waiting for the big moment.

The restriction does not apply to shotguns or pistols, however. So deer hunting is permissible under county regulations with these shorter range weapons.

People live closer together in subdivisions, says Mauer. There are not as many people in isolated areas, so rifles can be discharged in non-subdivision areas, he adds.

Fishing Medina Lake.

The fall and winter season is not just for hunting. With fewer boaters on the lake, fishermen can find quiet coves and fiesty fish.

Fall and winter are not the time to give up fishing in Medina Lake, but the time to put in the boat and bring out the rod and reel, because the skiers are few and other people are busy chasing white-tail deer, leaving the bounty of bass, catfish, and crappie waiting for a lure.

Anyone who takes a line, ties on any lure, and casts that line in no particular direction will get the rewards of their efforts - nothing.

A fisherman who selects his bait, finds the right spot, and casts his line in the proper place, to the proper depth, and reels it in right will surely get their reward.

As of September, the lake was down over 30 feet from its expected level. What that means to fishermen is: look for new spots, the old ones are above water.

But Medina Lake, being created from a river valley between hills will still have the drop-offs and cove pockets needed to find fish.

But fishing Medina Lake is not so hard that it takes an expert, just someone who considers the fish's habits.

Medina Lake boat fishermen should power into one of the numerous coves or hang off one of the many points (peninsulas) that punctuate the lake. These places have changes and it's those changes where the fish will be found.

Bass look for a drop off or brushy area in order to hide, so they'll be able to attack their prey, the pan fish in the lake.

The depth to go fishing deeps on the cold, too. As the weather gets colder, so does the lake's water, though less so.

The colder it gets, the deeper the fish go. They could easily reach depths of 20 to 30 feet. As the day progresses, the water warms up and the fish will migrate up to 10- to 20-foot range.

Artificial lures remain popular, with topwater, crank bait, jigs, and plastic worms as the types that normally work in Medina Lake.

Plastic worms and crank bait (lures that go deep) work best in the colder times.

Minnows will catch black and white crappie, white bass, and the occasional striper, hybrid striper or catfish. Minnow fishing is often done at night, with a light shining into the water to draw bait fish to the surface. Baited hooks on rod and reel lines are lowered to between 18- and 24-feet, and possibly deeper in the summer. Fishermen need to find a deep cove or point.

The white bass run, a product of breeding, begins when it starts getting warm in the spring, about mid-March in 1989.

White bass can be caught in vast numbers during the spring when they make their annual spawning migration.

The white bass swim up river to reach spawning grounds in the shallow water of Medina River. During this time, fishermen along the river can catch in the neighborhood of 50 bass in a few hours.

To prove it, Sunday, March 19, 1989, Craig Honaker, and Jeff Barth and Chuck Hamilton of San Antonio caught 66 white bass in 2½ hours. Sunday, March 26, Honaker and Barth repeated their work with 56 white bass in two hours. Monday, March 27, Honaker and Charlie Cupp of San Antonio caught 32 white bass. "We stopped when we got enough fish," explains Honaker.

Honaker says he uses a combination top water and jig with a quick-jerk action retrieve. He gets a top water lure called, "Ting Torpedo" and removes the lower treble hook and rear propellor. He ties a line about six- to seven-feet long to the top water lure and adds a 1/32 ounce yellow-skirted, red-headed crappie jig.

Honaker casts the lure-combination out and then reels it back with quick six- to ten-inch strokes. "You've got to have the right rig and use the right stroke," he says.

Honaker says he learned the lure-combination trick from a 78-year-old man three years ago. They were fishing alongside each other, and the older man was pulling in one fish after another while Honaker got no strikes. "He cleaned up right beside me (using the rig), while I used minnows," he says.

But white bass are not limited to the river, as there were reports in 1989 of white bass begin caught in Medina Lake shallows.

A white bass weighing 3 pounds 10 ounces, caught by Chris Clark, 15, of Pipe Creek, was the largest of 16 caught by four fishermen in Haby's Cove, March 26.

The 16 white bass, two black bass, and one crappie were caught in two- to six-foot of water along the cove by Jim and Randy Gerlach and Steve and Chris Clark. A copper "Shad-rap" lure, a gold crank bait that glitters, was used to catch the fish in the late afternoon and early evening.

The fishermen had to guide their boat along the entire cove waiting for the white bass to strike.

Other fish to catch that don't depend on the spawning season is catfish. Rod and reel hooks baited with night crawlers will catch catfish near the river and lake bottom.

Trotlines can be used to take yellow, blue and channel catfish. Catfish are bottom feeders and trotlines should be placed along a channel where catfish are likely to travel.

Shore or pier fishing is viable in the lake and river, but the emphasis needs to be redirected. Catfish via night crawlers when fishing deep, crappie via minnows at night under the lights, and perch via small worms on cane pole are still ways to enjoy a day of fishing.

For perch, find a place where there's a "change," like a pile of rocks or brush area. Perch have to be found and fishermen have to try different areas. But once you find one, you've almost always find more, because perch come in bunches.

To find a place to fish from shore, try Goat Hill Camp, Bob's Cove, and Lakeside Inn in Lakehills and Cedar Point Landing in Mico.

Other places for fishing from shore once the water comes up is Wharton's Dock on the Bandera side of the Medina River and Pop's Place on the Pipe Creek side of the river.

The state boat ramp at the end of the Park Road 37 is open to the public, but it is to be used officially for boat launching only. Many people picnic, swim, and fish from its shoreline, however. Use of the boat ramp site for anything but boat launching is illegal and there are absolutely no facilities for a day's outing.

Boat launching at Medina Lake.

The drop in the water level of Medina Lake to more than 30 feet has dried the river to a creek and pushed the headwaters of the lake further south, preventing some establishments from running the fishing trade, but there at least four places along Medina Lake can launch a boat and more will follow when the rains come and the lake goes up.

With the lake down, some normal suppliers of fishing tackle along the water will not be carrying their supplies.

In Lakehills, Goat Hill Camp, down Goat Hill Road (19th Street) off Park Road 37, boats can be launched straight down the shore's gradual decline to the water level. Phone 751-2072.

Further down Park Road 37, the State Boat Ramp is the only free boat launching area. Incorrectly termed "state park," it has no on-duty personnel and no facilities.

Past the state boat ramp and continuing on a winding county road is Bob's Cove. Boat launching is available along with camping, picnicking, swimming, bait, picnic supplies, and one covered and one open-air party pavilion. Phone 751-9923.

In Mico, Red Cove's new boat ramp, on Medina Dam Road, should be able to launch boats even if the water level continues to descend.

Other places that will be able to launch boats once the water level comes up is Wharton's Dock (796-7445) south of Bandera, Pop's Place (535-4366) south of Pipe Creek, and Cedar Point Landing at Medina Dam in Mico.

Boat gas is available from M&M Marina at Bob's Cove, Bob's Cove and Stormy's Marina in Mico.

Boat gas will be available at Wharton's Dock and Pop's Place when the water level comes up.

Bandera Pass.

About 11½ miles north of the city of Bandera near the intersection of State Highway 173 and FM Road 2828 visitors coming from the north pass through a historic gateway to Bandera County and old Mexico. It's Bandera Pass, visible as a distinctive notch in the ridge that is sometimes called Bandera Mountain.

Today's traveler rolls over long vanished footprints of other wayfarers who also appreciated the scenic views and abundance of this area of the Hill Country.

There are several tales about how Bandera and the pass got their names, but the most popular story recalls a fierce battle that was waged in the notch around 1732 when some of those conquistadores went against a group of Apache Indians in a bloody encounter.

When the dust settled, a treaty was signed in which the Indians agreed never to come south of the pass and the Spaniards vowed never to go north of the divide.

To signify their agreement, a red flag was placed atop the highest peak of the pass. It was from this bandera, flag or banner in Spanish, that Bandera Pass became known

Camp Verde is the site of the great camel experiment carried out by the U.S. Army in 1856. Needing a means of transportation through the arid regions of the Southwest, the army decided to try using the "ships of the desert" and Camp Verde became their permanent home.

The Great Camel Experiment got mixed reviews, and the end of the Civil War and a shortage of funds finally brought an end to the experiment in 1869 when Camp Verde was deactivated.

The fort's buildings were all destroyed in a fire in 1910 but a remnant of that time still lives on in the Camp Verde General Store.

The store was founded in 1857, but the two-story stone building that it occupies is not quite that old. The original building was swept away by a flood in 1900 and the present structure was completed six months later.

Even after the fort was closed down, the store and its post office continued to serve pioneer ranchers who were settling the area, as it does today.

Visitors to the store can experience a bit of the "way it used to be" while browsing through its crowded aisles or sitting in the cool shade of the oak trees in the garden or on the porch or patio. However, the goods on display tend toward the nostalgic and artistic more than the utilitarian fare of 130 years ago. The store offers everything from tasty home-made goodies to a life-sized wooden sculpture of (who else) Robert E. Lee.

The apple of Bandera County's eye.

An annual event celebrating the apple harvest last year drew 15,000 visitors.

By Larry T. Williams
Bulletin Staff Writer

Texas agriculture has always been an up and down way of living ...usually more down than up. Drought, low market prices, varmints and finally plummeting oil prices all have had the farmers and land owners on the run. So, it's not surprising that several years ago some enterprising Hill Country ranchers started looking around for a way to make their acres pay.

They discovered that botanical genetics had produced a variety of dwarf fruit trees that would stand up to the harsh climate and soil conditions of the Edwards Plateau so some of the ranchers decided to gamble on apples in the orchard instead of petroleum in the futures.

Texas apple growers can provide fresh, tree-ripened fruit that is far superior to any brought in from out of state. About the end of May the familiar Red Delicious apples from the Northwest start tasting like cardboard. That's because they were put into cold storage after being picked green back in September of the previous year, says a local grower. One doesn't find fresh Washington apples in the stores until October. That five-month hiatus can drive a fresh-apple lover to distraction.

Texas grown apples are available when those from afar are not, at least not worth mentioning. While most other places are dragging out their cold storage crop (picked the year before, remember), Texas growers are providing juicy lunch box stuffers straight off their trees.

Even when a person tastes a "fresh" imported apple, its flavor still suffers from too early a picking. The longer an apple stays on the tree and moves toward peak ripeness, the higher the sugar content and the richer its flavor. But fully ripe fruit cannot be shipped long distances or stored for extended periods of time. So, the Washington Types "can't even come close" when compared to the sweetness and taste of a home-county-grown Texas apple. A fact many people across the state are beginning to discover as more locally produced fruits are sold in area stores.

Bandera County's harvest season begins in late June and continues through September and into the first days of October, right in that time slot left open by the big guys up north.

The apple industry has the potential in a few years, to help ease the financial crunch brought on by a softening economy. Right now Bandera County's main source of revenue is tourism, a seasonal and sometimes lucrative business. But tourism is one of the first businesses to feel the tightening cinch of a weakening economy.

If the next few seasons go as predicted, the apple harvest for the Bandera County area could soon reach 30,000 bushels of the red and green goodies. That translates to 1.2 million pounds of fresh fruit in the local stores. At an average wholesale price of 50 cents a pound, the young agri-industry can have a $600,000 impact on the area's financial well-being.

In addition to the fruit sales, apple growers are finding a steady market for young trees in containers, ready for planting.

And then there's the other spin-off businesses that are products of the industry, including cider, jellies, baked goods and even the theme-curio trade that comes from a likeable subject such as apples. And of course, it's a great excuse to have an annual shindig.

Bandera County could harvest as many as 30,000 bushels of apples within the next few years, experts say.

The folks around Medina found that out and are serious about apples. In July 1988 the town launched the first annual "Texas International Apple Festival" to publicize the new industry and the town. Medina was even officially named the "Apple Capital of Texas" by Deputy State Agriculture Commissioner Mike Moeller.

The festival drew an estimated 5,000 people to the Hill Country hamlet and statewide attention to the coming of age of a new industry for Bandera County.

Texas Highways magazine featured the apple industry around Medina in its July 1989 issue and because of the wide-spread publicity, the little town found itself host to 15,000 visitors during the second festival. Applemania had arrived in the Hill Country.

Starting an apple orchard is not inexpensive. Estimates indicate it will cost between $10 and $15 per tree to put in an orchard of 2,000 two-year-old trees and all the systems to nurture their growth.

However, the dwarf trees can be planted quite densely and maintained through the dry Texas summers with drip irrigation. And results happen quickly. The first crop will come at 18 months and full production can be expected after 2½ years. The trees have a useful life expectancy of about 15 years, so rotational planting is advised.

The costs in money and time are high but a commercial orchard can be founded on a minimum of land. Densities as high as 2,400 trees per acre have proved successful. Therefore, land costs can be low and once the trees are established their maintenance is nominal, say the growers.

Considering the changes in the economic mainstream during the last few years, this new crop may hold a bushel basket full of solutions to Bandera County's cash flow.

Native and Exotic Game

Wildlife abounds in Bandera County and many species make excellent photographic subjects. This armadillo was caught in the lens of staff photographer Larry T. Williams. Among the other natives here are turkey, deer, raccoon, squirrel, opossum, nutria, fox, coyote, mountain lion (cougar), javelina, feral hogs, and many others.

Tennis, anyone?

Nestled in the cedars and oaks off State Highway 16 is the Pipe Creek Racquet Club, primarily a membership tennis resort, but more than happy to entertain visitors to the area for a day, a weekend or a week.

Located less than one mile north on Bear Creek Road, the four-court resort offers cedar cottages to spend the night, a cathedral ceilinged club house, swimming pool, beach volleyball court, shuffleboard, and horseshoes.

The lighted, individually-fenced tennis courts have one clay and three hard surfaces and are open from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Racquet rental, racquet restringing, ball machine, and lessons are available.

While yearly memberships are available, there are weekend packages including barbecue, country and western dancing at a local dance hall, a day at Bandera Downs, and of course, tennis. Daily and weekly rates are also available.

A continental breakfast is also served with cabin rental.

The club is owned and run by resident tennis pro Chuck Jandreau. Jandreau formerly owned a tennis club in Las Vegas and instructed movie stars and celebrities including Johnny Carson, Gene Kelly, Dinah Shore, Janet Leigh, Marilyn McCoo and the Smothers Brothers.

For reservations, call 535-6188, write P.O. Box 63121 Pipe Creek, Tex. 78063. From Bandera, drive east on State Highway 16 towards Pipe Creek six miles, turn left on Bear Creek Road and go about a quarter mile.

Golfing group holds tournaments.

Two men, Sam Braswell, a Lakehills banker, and Bob Crist, a retired automotive parts store owner from the Rio Grande valley, founded the Medina Lake Golf Association to "find a few people to play golf with."

The group is now a reported 105 strong, according to current president Preston Boggs. They regularly sponsor tournaments.

In August, MLGA in conjunction with the Flying L Ranch raised more than $2,900 for BACIT, a local group dedicated to raising money for school athletic plant improvements.

For more information, call Boggs at 751-3535 or Braswell at 751-2287.

The par-72 Flying L course is said challenge casual and experienced golfers alike, according to course manager Bill Anderson. The course wanders through the country side, over hills and around strategically placed lakes.

It has plenty of trees that give the golfer a chance to use every club in his or her bag. The greens are excellent and undulating.

Hole no. 9 is a 441-yard, par-4 hole where accuracy off the tee is a must. The tight fairway is lined by trees on the left and an embankment on the right. Hole no. 7 requires pin-point accuracy from the tee to avoid water in front and to the right of the green.

Included at the Flying L course are a fully-equipped pro shop, snack bar and grill, 9-hole putting green, more than 40 carts, and paved cart paths.

Tournaments are scheduled regularly, and overnight lodging and meals are available.

This is a dude ranch where you can come as a family group or a larger group for over-night staying or longer. There is a swimming pool, horses to ride, a landing strip and other attractions.

Many have bought their own lot and built a cottage or house to live in permanently.

Phone 796-3001, or Texas toll-free 1-800-292-5134.

Lost Valley Golf

Lost Valley 18-hole golf course is on Lost Valley Ranch, about 4 miles south east of Bandera on State Highway 16, also called Bandera Road as it comes from San Antonio. Lost Valley also accommodates family or larger groups for overnight or longer stays. It has a landing strip, swimming pool, tennis courts and other attractions. It is adjacent to Bandera Downs race track.

The 18-hole course covers some 380 acres, and has a par-4 average. It is just right for the weekend golfer, with the back nine posing more of a challenge.

The front nine holes are built among many oak trees with one water hole on the par-4 third hole. You have to hit long off the tee to clear the lake on the second shot. The front nine has two par-5 holes and two par-3 holes.

There are several "dog-leg" holes on the front nine, including the par-5 No. 2, and the par-4 No. 6.

The back nine holes have very few trees, but some of the holes are pretty long. There is only one lake in the back nine and it runs for about 100 yards in front of the tee on the par-3 14th hole.

Hole No. 17, a par-5, is reported to be the most challenging, and ultimately the most rewarding. The 18th finishing hole requires a well-placed shot on the tree-lined dog-leg hole.

Lost Maples State Natural Area.

The park's headquarters are open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. weekends. Day use permits are $2 per vehicle and are good until 10 p.m. There is no charge to senior citizens for daytime use of the park.

Its fall color display is extravagant.

Lost Maples State Natural Area has gained a reputation for its beautiful fall scenic splendor. Every year, from all across the United States and other parts of the world, people flock to the site near Vanderpool in hopes of catching the bigtooth or canyon maples as they create an extravagant display of color.

The trees are abundant, not only in the park but in the surrounding canyons. Spectacular hues ranging from fiery reds and oranges to muted yellow and gold draw scenery lovers from far and near.

This year, park officials do not express a great deal of optimism about the fall display of color, but they are quick to point out that it is extremely hard to predict just when the change will occur, and how bright the colors will be.

Usually, the seasonal display of colors occurs sometime during the time from mid-October to early November, and this year officials are predicting the maples will be turning a little earlier than usual, partly due to dry summer conditions, and partly due to an early cold spell that has hit the area.

This year, many of the smaller trees planted recently have already begun turning orange and brown and are already dropping leaves, according to park official Patsy Greaves.

Located in western Bandera County on the Sabinal River, five miles north of Vanderpool, on Ranch Road 187, the park was named for relict and unchanging stands of the bigtooth maple trees.

The maple trees are a modern-day reminder of Ice Age glaciers that deposited the seeds 12,000 years ago.

The park is a combination of steep, rugged limestone canyons, springs, plateau grasslands, wooden slopes and clear streams.

Because of its unique features and biological significance, the area was designated a National Natural Landmark by the Heritage Conservation and Reclamation Service in 1980, but the lands were purchased by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Service in 1973 and 1974 to preserve and perpetuate this outstanding and scenic natural resource.

Development of the park has been consistent with conservation goals, and park manager Roy Heideman reports that recent improvements include electrical hookups added to the 30 campsites, and shade shelters built over the campsite picnic tables. Campsites are available for daytime and overnight use.

The day-use area consists of 20 picnic sites, parking spaces and a restroom. For more extended visits, there are two types of camping.

Some 30 general camping areas designed for RV and trailer use include electrical hook-up, dump station and restroom and shower facilities.

Eight primitive camping areas, where no vehicles are permitted, offer campers a more rustic experience using a backpack and hiking shoes.

The park's headquarters are open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. weekends. Day use permits are $2 per vehicle and are good until 10 p.m. There is no charge to senior citizens for daytime use of the park.

Currently general camping is $9 per night, plus vehicle entrance fee. Primitive camping is $4 per night plus vehicle entrance fee.

Reservations are recommended, as campsites and facilities are limited. For more information, call 966-3413.

The staging area near the trailhead has 20 parking spaces and the park has 10.5 miles of trails. Activities include picnicking, camping, hiking, nature walks, bird watching and sightseeing.

Archaeological evidence shows that this area was used by prehistoric peoples at various times in the past. The Apache, Lipan Apache and Comanche Indians ranged over the land well into the 19th century.

The park is located on the highly dissected margin of the Edwards Plateau and has a maximum relief of about 450 feet. High canyon walls of the Sabinal River and its tributaries enclose and protect the park from the drying winds and high summer temperatures of the region.

The canyon has been a natural refuge for thousands of years, sheltering a unique combination of rare or isolated plants and animals.

Upland plateaus are mostly open grasslands with scattered motts of live oak and madronas. Upper slopes are dense woodlands of the Ashe juniper and Lacey oak with mixtures of Texas oak, Texas ash and escarpment black cherry. Canyon bottoms support sycamore, pecan, oaks, hackberry, maple, walnuts and button bush.

Populations of the American smoke tree occur in this area, and common witchhazel and Canadian moonseed occur in the park isolated from the rest of their kind by hundreds of miles.

The endemic sycamore-leaf snowbell is noted for its graceful white blossoms in early spring.

Guadalupe bass and the green-throated darter, both unique to Central Texas, are known from the spring-fed streams. These same springs host three secretive amphibians: the unique Texas salamander, the scarce barking frog, and the Texas cliff frog.

Among the Texas animals known to live in and around the park are the white-tailed deer, armadillo, bobcat, opossum, raccoon, grey fox, rock squirrel, fox squirrel, mountain lion, Russian boar and javelina.

Some of these animals are shy and reclusive and others normally are active only at night, but wildlife sightings are a common and enjoyable aspect of the natural scene in this park.

The bigtooth maples, or canyon maples, are the outstanding feature of Lost Maples State Natural Area.

The species grows today in the Rocky Mountains from Idaho to West Texas and northern Mexico.

Small populations at Sabinal Canyon, Fort Hood in Central Texas and the Wichita Mountains in Oklahoma are believed to be the surviving relics of the Pleistocene Ice Age, when these trees migrated from ancestral sugar maple stock eastward across Texas.

As the climate became more hot and dry in recent times, the Texas maples were restricted to sheltered canyon pockets like the park. This same explanation can account for other rare and isolated plants and animals in the canyon.

Bigtooth maples (Acer grandidentatum) are close relatives of the celebrated sugar maples of commerce. The brilliance of their fall color depends on weather conditions in September and October. Adequate rainfall, cool, crisp nights and plenty of sunshine during this period will assure a spectacular blaze of red, yellow and orange the first half of each November.

The maple groves along the Sabinal River are the easiest to see, but visitors claim that the harder-to-reach stands in Hale's Hollow and along Can Creek and Dry Can Creek are the more rewarding.

Lost Maples State Natural Area is scheduled to become the first sanctuary for the only native Texas game fish found exclusively within the borders of the Lone Star State — the Guadalupe bass.

Evolved in the clear, swift water of streams and rivers such as the Sabinal, the Medina and the Guadalupe, the Guadalupe bass has become threatened because of the hybridization. That's why the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department is determined to take steps to insure its survival as a distinct species.

Sabinal Canyon Museum.

A new showcase for the old.

The Sabinal Canyon Museum, which just opened this August, preserves the history of the west end of Bandera County and Utopia dating back to its first permanent white settlers in 1852.

The 1,200 square-foot facility in Utopia on State Highway 187 exhibits pistols, farm implements, clothing, appliances, spurs, photographs, tools, household items, barbed wire and knick-knacks, primarily from the 1850-1920s.

The museum displays a picture of the first store and post office in Waresville, the town that proceeded Utopia, and the old rock store, the first business built in Utopia.

Items on display include a communion set used by the Utopia First Christian Church and a Haliburton third reader used by J.H. Hicks in the 1930s.

Other items include irons, egg beaters, carbide porch lamps, glass milk bottles and an old McClelland cavalry saddle used in the 1940s.

An arrowhead and Indian artifact collection on permanent loan from The University of Texas at Austin is also part of the museum. Dr. Thomas Hester, head of the archeology department at UT, has a collection of arrowheads and spear points from 9200 B.C. to 1800 A.D. with specimens primarily from the Hill Country and South Texas area.

The other collections include crystals and minerals, displayed by one of the museum's founders, Douglas Bacon.

Sabinal Canyon's history dates back to the Spanish Colonel Uvalde who fought the last great Indian battle in 1790 four miles south of the present-day town of Utopia. He defeated the Comanches who had previously driven out the Apaches and Kickapoos.

The histories of many of the community's families including the Thompsons, Davenports, and Wares are recorded on decopouges, wooden plaques, that hang in the museum.

Sabinal Canyon's first permanent white settler was Captain William Ware whose log cabin home still exists.

Ware had seen the canyon years before when he had scouted the Spanish Trails. After several hard ships, the native Georgian settled just south of present-day Utopia on Aug. 17, 1852.

In 1876, George Andrew Barker came to the Sabinal Canyon area, said, "This is Utopia," and the rest is history.

Utopia, which is just south of Bandera County in Uvalde County is the only town in America named "Utopia."

The museum will be open Friday and Sunday from 1 - 4 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. The museum will also be open holidays and special event days. three days a week from 2-5 p.m. through the winter. Call 1-966-2313.

The museum currently does not charge admission, but relies on donations.

Venison.

Get it in the wild or at your local grocer. Either way it is a flavor treat, and here's a recipe to try.

Venison is the most popular game meat in Texas. And until recently, in order to enjoy it, it was necessary to be a hunter or to know a hunter. But that is no longer true. Venison is as close as a local grocery store, according to Irene Elizondo, of the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Venison is now being harvested commercially in Texas and is available in frozen 1 pound packages. Cuts include ground, chunks or chili grind.

Mike Hughes of the Broken Arrow Ranch in Ingram has been harvesting deer since 1983. Originally sold only to retaurants, Broken Arrow Ranch venison is now available to consumers at the retail level.

Commercially produced venison has several advantages over wild game:

• 1. Flavor: Commercial venison has a milder flavor than wild venison because it is grass fed. Harvesting methods are carefully controlled to avoid any stress on the animal and the result is a more tender product.

• 2. Versatility: Venison can be used in any recipe which calls for red meat. Because it is low in fat, it has a tendency to dry out if cooked improperly. For dry cooking methods, such as broiling, cook for a short time, cook rare to medium, and baste frequently. Serve ground meat dishes immediately after cooking.

• Health: Because the exotics are allowed to graze naturally, their diet is free of pesticides and chemicals. They are also hormone, steroid and antibiotic-free. Venison is naturally low in fat, cholesterol and calories. Since it is a red meat, it is high in protein, minerals and vitamins. A 3 oz. serving of Axis venison contains only 116 calories and 1.27 grams of fat.

Celebrate the Labor Day holiday by serving venison burgers. Not only will the burgers be a conversation piece, but they will offer family and friends a healthy, flavorful meal. Mike Hughes suggests cooking patties by browning quickly over high heat. Reduce the heat and add a small amount of water or wine. Simmer, covered for 8 to 10 minutes. Serve immediately.

A recipe to try is tantalizing Venison marengo, a flavorful combination of the exotic meat with other ingredients plus seasoning and served over pasta or rice.

For more information on Texas agricultural products, write the Texas Department of Agriculture, 122 Heiman, San Antonio, Texas 78205.

A special archers-only season exists from Oct. 7 to Nov. 5.

Archers planning to hunt during Texas' archery-only hunting season for deer and turkey Oct. 7-Nov. 5 should be aware of state archery regulations, including some new regulations on the use of crossbows by handicapped persons.

Law enforcement officials of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department said the longbow, which includes recurved and compound bows, must be hand-held and hand-drawn with no mechanical levices built into or attached to the bow that would allow the archer to lock the bow at full or partial draw.

Also, no device to propel the arrow is permitted other than the energy stored by the hand-drawn bow, and the bow also must have a minimum peak draw weight of 40 pounds.

Arrows used in taking game animals and game birds may not be poisoned, drugged, or explosive. Each arrow must bear the name and address of the user in a non-water soluble medium.

When hunting turkeys and any game animal other than squirrels, the arrow must be equipped with a broadhead hunting point that measures at least 7/8 of an inch in width and have a minimum of two cutting edges.

Crossbows are not authorized for use in hunting game birds or game animals except that persons having an upper limb handicap may use a crossbow to hunt deer and turkey during the archery-only season, Oct. 7-Nov. 5, provided: 1.) no telescopic sight is attached to the crossbow, 2.) the crossbow has a minimum of 125 pounds of pull, 3.) the crossbow has a mechanical safety, and 4.) the bow conforms with the requirements applicable to arrows as described above that are authorized for legal use with the longbow.

"Upper limbed handicapped person" means a person who has a permanent loss of the use of fingers, hand or arm in a manner that renders the person incapable of using a longbow, compound bow or recurved bow. While hunting deer or turkey with a crossbow, persons handicaped in this manner must have in their immediate possession a physician's statement certifying the extent of the disability.

Hill Country
State Natural Area.

If you are one who enjoys primitive camping and getting away from it all, Bandera County offers a rather unique opportunity at the Hill Country State Natural Area.

In this 4,753-acre park one may ride a horse or hike for miles unopposed by fences or keep-out signs.

Ranging from river bottoms to steep and rocky hill tops with a view worth the climb, the former Merrick Ranch has enough space and sites for several weekend visits.

Located 10 miles southwest of Bandera at the end of Dixie Dude Road (FM 1077), the park is maintained in a natural state but does have water and toilets adjacent to the headquarters building. A permit is required for use of the facility and information can be obtained by calling the park manager, Raymond Ludwig at 796-4413.

Water is not available other than at the headquarters and campsites must be left with no evidence of occupation. Camp stoves are required for cooking as no ground fires are permitted.

However, the few restrictions are only there to preserve the habitat and wildlife that abounds within the protective boundaries of the park and a quiet hiker or rider will see deer, turkey, and quail as well as an uncountable number of other forms of native animals and birds.

The ranch is being allowed to revert to its natural condition and the incursions of man are kept to a minimum. Visitors are encouraged to closely examine and sense the feels, smells and sounds of nature, taking only memories and photographs and leaving no perceptible trace of their passing.

It's necessary to make reservations before planning an outing at the natural area for many riding organizations make frequent use of it for distance and endurance competitions. These events themselves provide an exciting and entertaining day both for the spectator and entrant alike.

Bird watching.

All that's needed in Bandera County are a quiet demeanor and a little patience.

Everyone has, at one time or another enjoyed looking at and listening to the beauty that is Texas birdlife. Most of those casual "bird watchers," however, are not aware of the great extent of watchables that are in the Lone Star State, much less Bandera County.

According to Roger Tory Peterson's "A Field Guide To the Birds of Texas," Bandera County is located smack in the middle of the largest bird population area in the United States.

"More than 540 species have been recorded" in Texas. "California runs a poor second with roughly 80 fewer species," says Peterson.

Bandera County is located in the center of the Edwards Plateau area and that geographical region is itself centered within an expanse of Texas known to serious birdwatchers as the "twilight" or "blend" zone. This zone is a section of the state (about a third) that is bounded on the east by a line from Brownsville to San Antonio to Austin to Brady and then to Abilene and northwest to Childress. The western edge is marked by a line from Del Rio to the lower corner of New Mexico.

Within this vast acreage it is possible for one to see, at various times of the year, almost every one of those 540 species of avifauna.

Of course, not all of the birds seen in the zone are residents. Some only nest here, and others merely pass through on their way to other specific spots in the continent. But to the avid watcher or the curious passerby, each season offers a wide choice of feathered viewing.

All a person needs to enjoy these feathered creatures is a quiet demeanor and a little patience. A pair of 7x35 or 7x50 binoculars will bring even the tiniest of their numbers close enough to seemingly touch.

If photography is your bag, a telephoto lens with a focal length of 200mm or larger will enable the viewer to capture the colorful birds on film for more leisurely observation.

With these viewing aids all the smallest details and subtleties will become evident and enable even an inexperienced tyro to identify (with the help of a good field guide) more bird species than he ever knew existed.

The old image of "typical" doddering, grey-haired birdwatcher in rubber boots has been shoved aside as more and more folks have become interested in the pastime.

People are discovering that a jaunt to the woods or just a stroll around their own back yard can be a rewarding and relaxing as well as educational experience.

Field guides that give the reader information on habitat, songs, typical characteristics and identifying markings are available at most bookstores and are necessary for anyone wanting to learn about the birds they see.

Once armed with the means to see and recognize the subjects, a person has but to step out his door to enjoy the great variety of Hill Country birds.

Besides the more commonly known such as the cardinal or "red bird" and vast numbers of sparrows, one can enjoy the acrobatic antics of chickadees and titmice around the house or stare in wonder at the rainbow-hued painted bunting. This marvel of nature appears to have been dipped in four buckets of paint, red, yellow, blue and green. A color scheme so startling that the first-time observer tends to rub his eyes in disbelief.

Ducks, geese, hawks, quail, flycatchers, wrens...the list is so long one can seldom name all of the birdlife seen in a day, much less an entire season.

From the tiny hummingbird to the bald eagle with 6-foot wings, Bandera County and the Hill Country provides habitats for all.

Everyone has, at one time or another enjoyed looking at and listening to the beauty that is Texas birdlife. Most of those casual "birdwatchers," however, are not aware of the great extent of watchables that are in the Lone Star State, much less Bandera County.

According to Roger Tory Peterson's "A Field Guide To the Birds of Texas," Bandera County is located smack in the middle of the largest bird population area in the United States.

"More than 540 species have been recorded" in Texas. "California runs a poor second with roughly 80 fewer species," says Peterson.

Bandera County is located in the center of the Edwards Plateau area and that geographical region is itself centered within an expanse of Texas known to serious birdwatchers as the "twilight" or "blend" zone. This zone is a section of the state (about a third) that is bounded on the east by a line from Brownsville to San Antonio to Austin to Brady and then to Abilene and northwest to Childress. The western edge is marked by a line from Del Rio to the lower corner of New Mexico.

Within this vast acreage it is possible for one to see, at various times of the year, almost every one of those 540 species of avifauna.

Of course, not all of the birds seen in the zone are residents. Some only nest here, and others merely pass through on their way to other specific spots in the continent. But to the avid watcher or the curious passerby, each season offers a wide choice of feathered viewing.

All a person needs to enjoy these feathered creatures is a quiet demeanor and a little patience. A pair of 7x35 or 7x50 binoculars will bring even the tiniest of their numbers close enough to seemingly touch.

If photography is your bag, a telephoto lens with a focal length of 200mm or larger will enable the viewer to capture the colorful birds on film for more leisurely observation.

With these viewing aids all the smallest details and subtleties will become evident and enable even an inexperienced tyro to identify (with the help of a good field guide) more bird species than he ever knew existed.

The old image of "typical" doddering, grey-haired birdwatcher in rubber boots has been shoved aside as more and more folks have become interested in the pastime.

People are discovering that a jaunt to the woods or just a stroll around their own back yard can be a rewarding and relaxing as well as educational experience.

Field guides that give the reader information on habitat, songs, typical characteristics and identifying markings are available at most bookstores and are necessary for anyone wanting to learn about the birds they see.

Once armed with the means to see and recognize the subjects, a person has but to step out his door to enjoy the great variety of Hill Country birds.

Besides the more commonly known such as the cardinal or "red bird" and vast numbers of sparrows, one can enjoy the acrobatic antics of chickadees and titmice around the house or stare in wonder at the rainbow-hued painted bunting. This marvel of nature appears to have been dipped in four buckets of paint, red, yellow, blue and green. A color scheme so startling that the first-time observer tends to rub his eyes in disbelief.

Ducks, geese, hawks, quail, flycatchers, wrens...the list is so long one can seldom name all of the birdlife seen in a day, much less an entire season.

From the tiny hummingbird to the bald eagle with 6-foot wings, Bandera County and the Hill Country provides habitats for all.

Handmade quilt captures history

Some 55 Bandera County brands are depicted on a quilt that will be given away in a drawing Saturday, Oct. 14 at Bandera County's first annual quilt show to be held in conjunction with the Senior Citizens Arts and Crafts Show.

The quilt, made by members of the local needlework group "Carolee's Belles," preserves local history with fabric and thread. Done in shades of blue, it has 55 blocks, each with a different brand emblem quilted into the center of it.

The brands represent local working ranches, and group leader Carolee Youngblood said that each rancher was asked to pay a $10 fee to have his or her registered brand included in the quilt. She said the interest level has been great in the outcome of the quilting group's efforts.

The Bandera brands quilt was displayed at the Silver Sage Corral senior center Sept. 26, and it will be displayed again at that location Oct. 13 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. It will be on display from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the following days at the following locations: Bandera County Library, Oct. 5; Super S Grocery, Oct. 6; First State Bank, Bandera, Oct. 10; and Bandera County Courthouse Oct. 11.

The show will feature several types of quilt displays, Youngblood said.

"We want to feature mainly quilts that were made and/or used in Bandera County," she said. "We want not only the fancy, 'parlor' type show quilts, but the work quilts and the ones that had more practical use.

By definition, a quilt must be made of three layers, and there are a lot of different ways to stitch and assemble them.

"Quilts usually have an interesting history," she said. "They were primarily used for cover, but actually making the quilt was a social time, a time of fellowship."

Quilts generally play an important part in people's memories, and "just about everyone has a quilt story," or something to share about their quilt's history, Youngblood said.

"They are expensive to buy, and expensive to make," she said. "You don't generally make one for somebody unless you love them."

Those who worked on the brands quilt, or who have helped with the project include Ruby Jackson, Eva Plummer, Mary Portman, Minnie Hayes, Marie Holland, Mary Carpenter, Vivian Webb, Carolee Youngblood, Kiddo Wright, Phyllis Smith, Ruth Ann Tipps, Peggy Tobin, Jane Graham, Kathryn Thompson, Karen Breazeale, Audrey Martin, Evangeline Wilson, Claire Johnston, Joyce Sellburg, Marian Bunch, Manuel Flores, Dorothy Callahan, June Westmeyer, Mary Joe Kirkpatrick, and Ruth Meador.

The Senior Citizen Arts and Crafts Show and Quilt Show at the Silver Sage Corral Saturday, Oct. 14, from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Exhibitors will be age 55 and up, and all craft items for sale will be made by the exhibitors, according to the board of directors of the Bandera County Committee on Aging. All items will be hand-made, and no commercial items will be sold.

Admission for the arts and crafts show is free.

Admission tickets for the quilt show are $2, or three for $5.

The Silver Sage Corral is the senior citizen center for the Bandera County Committee on Aging. It is a non-profit organization operated "expressly for the comfort, education, entertainment and fellowship of our senior citizens."

Funds raised from the arts, crafts and quilt show will be used for the support and operation of the center.

Suspect jailed in robbery

Unemployed Kerrville man held in lieu of $10,000 bond

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

A suspect has been arrested, and the investigation continues in last week's robbery and attack on local saloon owner Robert "Crazy Bob" Applegate, according to Bandera County Sheriff Steve Forest.

Thomas Wayne Pagel, 19, an unemployed welder living in Kerrville, was arrested Tuesday, Sept. 26 and charged with robbery and inflicting bodily injury. He remained in custody at press time under a $10,000 bond.

Applegate was reportedly beaten and robbed around 4 a.m. Friday, Sept. 22, according to the Bandera County sheriff's department. The report said a customer stayed after the saloon's closing time and attacked Applegate with the four-foot-long handle of a paint roller.

Pagel reportedly tied Applegate with electrical cords, then beat and kicked him and left him tied up in the bathroom. The suspect then fled in Applegate's vehicle.

According to Forest, Pagel was in possession of Applegate's red station wagon at the time of his arrest in Kerrville. Texas Ranger Joe Davis and the Kerr County Sheriff's office worked with the Bandera County sheriff's office in apprehending Pagel.

"It took all three departments working together," the sheriff said. "The cooperation among them was very good."

Forest said the investigation is still continuing, and there are several discrepancies between Pagel's story and Applegate's account of what happened Sept. 22.

According to the sheriff, Applegate said Pagel, who is only 19, had been drinking beer at Applegate's saloon. Since the legal drinking age is 21, Forest said he wanted to investigate the whole situation more thoroughly.

Bandera County jail officials reported a total of 10 arrests this week, including charges of criminal trespass, aggravated assault, possession of marijuana, robbery and bodily injury, resisting arrest, traffic violations and public intoxication.

Larry Faglie, 41, of Medina was arrested Sept. 25 and charged with aggravated assault. He was released on bond.

Kenneth Alexander, 22, and Dennis Bruce, 28, both of Pipe Creek were arrested Sept. 28 and charged with criminal trespass. Alexander was also charged with assault, according to the sheriff's office. Both were released on bond.

Sept. 30, Edward Rodriguez Jr. of San Antonio reported his place at Highland Waters was burglarized. According to Rodriguez, numerous items were taken and were valued in excess of $1,600.

Truck runs over, kills 14-month-old child

A 14-month-old child was struck down and killed Friday in what has been described as a "tragic accident" in the parking lot of the Value Village store 2.8 miles north of Bandera on State Highway 173 in one of three major accidents reported in the county over the weekend.

James Dean Robinson Jr. was apparently killed instantly when a truck and trailer driven by a Kerrville man ran over him. The toddler, son of James Robinson Sr. and Adele Terry Skinner Robinson, 19, of Bandera, was pronounced dead at 7:23 p.m. by Peace Justice Bonnie Towers.

According to Department of Public Safety trooper Nolan Metz, John M. Greiner, 30, of Kerrville had just left his place of work, Wagner Tire Store in Bandera. He pulled his white Dodge pickup into the parking lot of Value Village, and had hooked onto a 1962 model U-Haul trailer that he was to transfer to a Kerrville location. When he pulled out, his vehicle and trailer apparently ran directly over the child.

No one was aware of the accident until 5-year old Theresa Skinner began screaming when she saw the toddler. The accident reportedly happened at about 6:55 p.m., and Metz said apparently young Robinson died of "massive trauma" to his head.

Metz said that a routine blood alcohol test was run on Greiner, but that there was "no indication" that he had been drinking.

"Apparently it was just a tragic accident," Metz said. "It's difficult at this point to say anyone was at fault."

Metz said more tests were being run, and that more a conclusive report might be out in a couple of weeks.

A Bandera woman was injured Friday when her 1982 Chevrolet struck a 1976 Chevrolet pickup driven by a Bandera man. The accident occurred one mile west of Ridge Route Road on FM 2828.

Elizabeth Jane Crawford, 70, of Bandera, was transported to Sid Peterson Memorial Hospital in Kerrville by Medina EMS.

James D. Robinson Jr.

According to DPS reports, Count Leon Bower, 75, had pulled out of his driveway alongside his mailbox, and was pulling out into the highway when his pickup was struck on the left side by the right front of Crawford's vehicle.

"He failed to yield the right-of-way to Crawford," Metz said.

Bower reportedly suffered minor injuries, but refused transport at the scene. His wife, Marcia Bower, 68, a passenger in the vehicle, was reportedly not injured.

In a one-car accident Saturday, Sept. 30, a 1983 Chevrolet Blazer driven by Billy Wade Bratton, 29, of Bandera, left the roadway 2.6 miles south of Bandera on Wharton's Dock Road. The northbound vehicle struck an embankment, went through a fence and struck a tree.

Bratton was slightly injured, according to Metz, but his wife, Rhonda Bratton, was transported by Bandera EMS to Sid Peterson Memorial Hospital. According to Metz, the woman is pregnant, and as a precaution she was taken to the hospital for observation.

He gave all he could

Dear editor:

I was thoroughly impressed with Janna Sandidge's article on Melvin King (The Bulletin, Sept. 21). She brought to light a facet of Melvin's personality that many don't know about or choose to ignore - his willingness to help.

When one works for the public, one cannot avoid criticism, and Melvin has had to shoulder his share. Notwithstanding, I know that Melvin has always given his position and the city all that he could offer, even to the point of paying water board bills before payin g himself.

I would like to publicly thank Melvin for the help he has given me over the last two years and wish him the best in his future endeavors.

The San Antonio Express-News

The Texas Supreme Court Monday ruled what should have been obvious to anyone: Texas' public school finance system is unconstitutional.

The high court's unanimous decision correctly made no recommendation about what should be done, but it gave the Legislature only until next May 1 to correct the inequity.

The Legislature meets in special session Nov. 14 but is not due to meet next spring. With worker's compensation already on the table, legislators have their work cut out for them. It should have been done long ago.

Praise is due the Mexican American Legal Defense & Educational Fund, or MALDEF, and the Edgewood School District, which carried the suit against the state and 48 wealthy districts on behalf of 67 poor school districts.

The history of the case is actually much longer. Edgewood was the focus of a 1968 class-action suit brought by seven parents of 15 Edgewood students who argued for equalization of school funding.

In 1971, a federal court found Texas' school funding system unconstitutional. In 1973, the U.S. Supreme Court overturned that, but said the state Legislature must address school finances.

For 11 years the Legislature stalled. In 1984, the Edgewood-MALDEF suit was filed. State District Judge Harley Clark ruled in April 1987 the state's school financing method was unconstitutional, but an appellate court overruled Clark last December, leaving it to the high court.

Children in poor districts deserve the same chance to learn as children in rich districts, but evidence proves they don't get it: Wealthy districts turn out scholars; poor districts dropouts.

And state comptroller Bob Bullock reports that 730 of the state's 1,100 districts spend less than the statewide average of $3,290 per student. The average in those districts was $2,976 compared with $4,268 in the wealthier districts.

The Supreme Court made the right decision after two decades of treading water with children's futures. Now, legislators, get on with it.

Wacky world of Texas politics grows wilder by the week

Gov. Bill Clements attended the first-ever education summit with President George Bush, Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos and other governors.

Back in Texas, rural lawmakers campaigned for a proposed amendment to issue $75 million in bonds for revitalization of the agricultural sector.

Meanwhile, several state officials, very much out of sync, reminded us that the wonderful, wacky world of the campaign trail is growing wilder every day. For example:

• Attorney General Jim Mattox will finally officially announce next week for governor amidst controversy he did — or did not — promise in a news story to make alcoholism problems of his opponent, Ann Richards, a campaign issue.

• Mattox, with his strong Baptist roots, apparently mused whether reformed alcoholics are fit to serve, which prompted Comptroller Bob Bullock, himself a reformed alcoholic now running for lieutenant governor, to remark that Mattox was all wet. Others reacted angrily. Alcoholism and alcoholics are not uncommon at the State Capitol.

• Former Gov. Mark White, also a Baptist, but no ally of either Mattox or Bullock, will soon announce his comeback try for the Governorship, an associate predicted.

• House Speaker Gib Lewis cited "unfair press reports" on political contributions, which may have sicked the IRS on some lawmakers, as one reason why two key lawmakers quit last week and why more may follow.

Mattox Yes, White Maybe

Mattox said he was misquoted, and never said alcoholism would become a campaign issue. He also said Richards first brought out her past alcoholism, particularly in her new autobiography.

The misquotes drew the wrath of state party chair Bob Slagle, who could just see GOP TV ads with footage of one Democrat ripping the alcoholism of another.

Meanwhile, John Houchins resigned from the Texas Water Commission, where White appointed him, so that he can better help White win the governor's race.

He said private polls he and friends commissioned show White "beating every Republican, everywhere" in the state.

White, for his part, tantalizingly stayed one step short of confirming his plans.

Caperton, McKinney Quit

Two key legislators surprised all when they quit last week, citing family, finances and fatigue as the reasons.

Declining to stand for re-election are state Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, and state Rep. Mike McKinney, D—Centerville.

Neither were mentioned in recent news reports which have painted several lawmakers as on the take, albeit legally, but both said they have felt the public's low regard as a result.

Caperton and McKinney, have performed yeoman service in the Legislature and are highly regarded by colleagues.

Their districts, however, have grown more Republican in the '80s, in large part because of U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, who will again head the GOP ticket next year.

If more lawmakers follow, voters might well remember that it's not unusual for lawmakers to quit after serving eight years, which qualifies them for retirement benefits.

Given the large freshman class of 1982, the result of '81 redistricting, it's quite likely more lawmakers will step aside.

Bandera County

potpourri

By Nick Johnson

For the first time in more than 50 years, a horse racing fan will step up to a pari-mutuel window in Texas Friday and place a legal wager on the outcome of a race. And despite the remoteness of the site —Brady—, the event has captured the imagination of Texans.

According to Gus Clemens, director of press relations at G. Rollie White Downs in Brady, 4,500 advance tickets available for each performance this weekend have been sold out and there is not a hotel, motel or bed-and-breakfast room left in town. Hasn't been for months, says Clemens.

In fact, the nearest room available is in Brownwood, 45 miles away from the track.

There's not even room at the stable. G. Rollie White racing secretary Gordon Graham reports that the track received 1,400 stall applications for 520 available stalls.

• The success of a state-operated lottery in Oregon based on the outcome of professional football games has shaken up some in the horse racing business. In fact, three horseman's groups in Kentucky have joined forces to file suit to stop that state from doing the same.

Kentucky's new Super Sports lottery is scheduled to start Oct. 18, unless an injunction sought by the horsemen (and horsewomen) is granted.

• Voters in two Iowa counties recently approved a state plan to allow riverboat gambling. The law permits bets no larger than $5 and limits losses to $200, but only on excursion boats.

One Iowa county rejected the idea.

• The American Red Cross, which conducts annual fund-raising drives to finance their relief work for victims of disasters, is now seeking more funds "to meet the expenditures for relief to victims of Hurricane Hugo."

• Washington apple growers are also taking advantage of the generosity of others— in this case the hapless U.S. taxpayer—by accepting $9.5 million in funds appropriated to "bail out" the financially troubled apple growers.

Now comes news that they are not financially troubled at all. In fact, they grossed a record $493.6 million in the past year, despite a scare over their use of the chemical Alar. Their previous record year was 1986 when they grossed $488 million.

Thank God for Bandera County apples. They're not tainted by Alar and growers haven't accepted bailout funds. In fact, Bandera apple growers have just completed harvesting the last of this year's crop and working hard to market them — without federal help.

Medina Lake 'gator in wrong environment: game warden

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

"We're removing the alligator for its own protection," explains game warden Ernie Lerma.

Medina Lake Game Warden Ernest "Ernie" Lerma says the sole alligator sighted in Medina Lake is in the wrong environment and will be removed for its own protection and stresses that the alligator does not pose a threat to people.

Medina Lake doesn't have the plant growth to hide an alligator from humans especially with the lowering level of the lake, says Lerma. Alligators needs a lake like Choke Canyon, which has hundreds of surface acres with heavy cover.

"We are removing the alligator for its own protection," says Lerma.

Lerma also says, the alligator presents no threat to human swimmers or skiers.

From confirmed reports, Lerma says there is only one alligator in the lake, and other reports of multiple reptiles are not confirmed.

The trap for the alligator that was deployed last week was moved by vandals this week, but was recovered upstream, reports Lerma. He found evidence that a boat had been brought to the spot, the trap remove and apparently towed or dragged along the river bottom and ditched about ½ mile upstream on the Medina River on the opposite side of the bank.

The trap is like a large hog trap that would take two to three strong men to move, says Lerma.

From now on, the trap will be deployed at night in spots close to where the alligator is sighted. In an "alligator census" Monday night, no alligators were found, says Lerma.

Lerma adds he's known about the alligator for the last two years, but it has been seen more often recently because of the decreasing water level in the lake.

He also says he is concerned that someone will destroy the alligator under the misconception that it may hurt someone.

But the four- to six-foot alligator has caused excitement and conversation. Area citizens have begun taking advantage of the attention, showing less concern about what was initially seen as a danger.

Area residents have been basking in the attention from television stations and San Antonio and Bandera newspapers, but sightings of actual sunbathing or swimming alligators have been minimal.

Chuck Strange will be making alligator T-shirts to take advantage in the interest in the lake reptile. The words, "Medina Lake Gator," will surround a big picture of an alligator on T-shirts he will be selling in Lakehills.

Louie Mays will begin offering alligator earrings in her shop. Jim Gallagher of Jim's Rebait Shop has a sign advertising "Gator Bait" for fun.

No reports from fishermen this year, but there were reports last year, adds Gallagher.

An inflatable alligator was used at the Sunday, Oct. 1, wedding of Billy Ray Mason and Cheryl Simpson of Lakehills at Bob's Cove. The plastic toy, which was almost as long as the sighted alligator, was tied behind the wedding party's pontoon boat and appeared to "chase" them.

Al Whitaker of Boerne, who has a waterfront home at Wharton's Dock, said he saw the alligator heading for the lake. He launched his large boat on Medina Lake Saturday, Sept. 16, and brought it up the river as far as he could towards Wharton's Dock boat ramp. On turning around to head back to the lake his boys and wife, Mary, spotted an alligator in front of their boat. They estimated its size as four to six feet. The alligator kept swimming in front of the boat until it got back in the lake proper.

Rumors of alligators in Medina Lake have been heard for several years, report a number of lake residents. Jim Reilly of Lakehills says he used to see them years ago, but were only sighted on long fishing trips.

Most current reports have placed the alligator in the head waters of Medina Lake south of Wharton's Dock and as far south as Turk's Head.

Most offices and businesses to remain open Columbus Day

The Monday, Oct. 9, Columbus Day holiday will find banks and post offices closed, but other government offices will be open with the business community all but ignoring the holiday.

The Bandera County courthouse, offices and library, Bandera city hall, Texas Department of Human Services office and Bandera County Helping Hand will be open normal hours.

The Silver Sage Corral Senior Citizens Activity Center will be open and the meals-on-wheels will be in operation.

The Bulletin's office will be open and the advertising and news deadlines remain the same.

Columbus Day marks the first recorded sighting of land in the Western Hemisphere by Christopher Columbus Oct. 12, 1492, some 497 years ago. Columbus, who was born about 1451 in or near Genoa, left Spain for what he thought would be the East Indies Aug. 3, 1492.

New employees noted

Bandera County sheriff Steve Forest said Monday that two new full-time employees, a deputy and a communications operator, have been added to the department.

Salvador Obiedo of Bandera was hired Oct. 1 as deputy, and Carolyn Edwards of Pipe Creek will begin work Oct. 15 as communications operator.

Setting it straight

The Bandera Bulletin was quoting motel operator Henry Moeller when it reported that the Bandera Inn's Mary Weatherill supported the reduction in the county's hotel occupancy tax to five percent inside the city limits of Bandera.

Actually, Weatherill took no public position on the matter.

Donations noted

Recent donations to the Bandera Sheriff's department include stuffed animals for their children's program and a camper cover for the pickup used to haul the department's recently acquired drug-sniffing dog.

Clint Dowell and Gus Marrero Sr. donated the camper cover.

May Bachelor, Andy Weid, Tanna Jureczki, and the Helping Hand organization donated stuffed animals to the department.

"We want to thank these people for their willingness to help the department," said Bandera County sheriff Steve Forest. "We really appreciate their donations."

Retail sales in July make big jump

By William Wall
Bulletin Austin Bureau

Bandera's July retail sales were more than 42 percent higher than last year, according to the latest figures released by the State Comptroller's office.

The monthly City Sales and Use Tax Comparison Summary also reported that the city's 1989 year-to-date retail sales totals were more than 7.5 percent higher than during the same period last year.

Checks totaling $72.5 million have been sent to 888 cities that impose local sales tax at either one or one-half percent, comptroller Bob Bullock said.

Bandera's share of this month's checks is $10,282.50, a 42.84 percent increase over last September's $7,196.96. The city's 1989 year-to-date total was $101,348.52, 7.79 percent above the $94,646.11 received for the first seven months of 1988.

"There are three reasons for the jump in sales tax revenues in Bandera this period," said Sharon Hogan, public information officer for the Comptroller's office. "In addition to increased sales, there are three new taxpayers in Bandera that were not on the roles last year. Plus, there are a number of businesses who filed quarterly returns in 1988 and have now graduated to monthly filing status."

The September checks are for taxes collected by monthly filers in July and reported to the Comptroller's office by Aug. 21, according to Bullock.

Statewide, September city sales tax allocations are up 6.8 percent over last year and year-to-date city allocations are 9.4 percent higher than in 1988, according to Bullock.

In addition, 92 Texas counties received payments of $7 million this month for their share of the one-half percent county sales taxes, Bullock said.

County sales tax take exceeds $80,000.

Bandera County's share of the September checks was $8,496.38, bringing its 1989 year-to-date total to $80,157.42.

Kendall County received $21,492.26 for a year-to-date total of $203,246.95; Kerr County received $69,791.51, for a 1989 total of $650,113.73; Medina County received $22,276.43, for a total of $237,080.37; and Uvalde County received $30,794.51, for a total of $349,418.59.

Medina landfill slated for closing.

Commissioners to set date for closing Medina landfill

Bandera County Commissioners Monday, Oct. 9, will decide what day to close the Medina landfill.

New regulations passed down by the state from the federal government will require landfills, such as the one in Medina, to conduct extensive monitoring of ground water quality and other enviromental restraints, including a ban on burning of trash in the dump.

The county is faced with a Jan. 1 deadline to decide what action to take on the landfill and will then have 18 months to implement those actions, says Bandera County judge Ray F. Mauer.

The county would be faced with prohibitive costs if they try to keep the dump open, adds Mauer.

The Garbage Gobbler company, that serves Bandera and other parts of the county, offered at a September presentation to the Medina Rotary Club to install a garbage compactor near Medina that would be operated much the same as the Bandera and Lakehills sites, and/or provide residental pickup like Bandera has.

Commissioners will need to come up with a closing procedure for the dump and will have to submit that plan to the state for approval.

In other matters, commissioners will consider hiring a dog catcher, a subject first taken up by the county and the city of Bandera approximately a year ago.

Commissioners will also consider a request for the county taking over maintenance of the road behind the new Medina Lake Volunteer Fire Department fire station in Lakehills and Wilderness Trail and Bailey's Circle in Timber Creek Ranch.

Commissioners will also decide the fate of two county-owned unused underground fuel tanks. State law requires registration and monitoring of underground fuel tanks and since the tank at the precinct yard in Medina and the tank at the county maintenance barn in Bandera are not used, commissioners are likely to remove the tanks.

Commissioner Barker to have triple by-pass

County commissioner Bennie Barker of Wharton's Dock is out of the hospital temporarily but will be re-admitted Monday and will undergo triple by-pass surgery Wednesday.

Barker was stricken in late June in Corpus Christi, but his ailment was not diagnosed as a heart attack until last week. He said physicians told him he could expect to lead a normal life after recovering from the surgery.

Leora Edith Edwards

Leora Edith Edwards, 95, of Pipe Creek died Monday, Oct. 2, in Purple Hills Manor nursing home in Bandera.

He began his stint as an announcer at KENS-TV in San Antonio in 1953, and he worked at that station until 1979, when the Captain Gus Show went off the air.

From there, he went to KERV radio station in Kerrville, where for a time he was station manager, and had a commentary-format talk show.

He had worked as a bit player in three Hollywood movies, and also worked as a radio announcer in Houston for a time before coming to the San Antonio station. He appeared in many plays at the San Antonio Little Theater, and was on the SALT board for a time.

"He was also a handwriting expert," said his wife Regina. "He had analyzed the handwriting of such people as Lila Cockrell and Henry Cisneros."

In recent years, Alston had continued to be active in the Jehovah's Witness faith. He and his wife were both ordained ministers of that religion for some 36 years. He was also an elder of the congregation.

While we can't exactly claim that we have been turning down offers coming over the phone from Texas Monthly since we embarked on our literary venture hear in the pages of the Bandera Bulletin, it is true that lots of cards and letters keep coming in. People are truly interested in local history and Texas color and we are most grateful to all those from whom we hear.

Dr. Tommy Roosth of San Antonio called to say that he has purchased ranch land out the general direction of Highway 2828 on Laxson Creek. He has found two interesting graveyards on his place which he wishes to preserve with historical markers. He is doing research on the life and times of the Stanard family, whose family plot is the one in better condition than the other. The oldest grave listed in Bandera County Cemetery Records, compiled by Gladys Graves, Edith Denson, and Mrs. Billy Barnes for the county historical commission years ago, is that of Levi Lewis Jr., 1801-1872. We deduce that he was the father of "Mother, Sarah Catherine Lewis Stanard, 1845-1901."

The Stanards were prominent in civic and church circles in the early days. The member of the family many of us knew, not that many years ago, was Stanard Nesting, the courtly old-fashioned pharmacist who used to dispense remedies and prescriptions at the Corner Drug Store on Main Street, Bandera.

Dr. B. Edward Burgess of Houston is writing a book on the original courthouses of Texas and stopped to talk with Rex Buck recently at the Old Jail offices of the river authority. We sent him what we have on Bandera's first courthouse next door atop the river bluff.

A publishing house in New York City, working on The Smithsonian Guide to Historic America, sent us the draft of a proposed entry on Bandera for additions or corrections. Both the town and Frontier Times Museum will be listed. We found the information basically correct, especially the part about Bandera's being the cowboy capital of the world.

Dave Pawson of Dallas is doing a book on flags of Texas. Thanks to the efforts of former County Judge Rein Vander Zee, Bandera is one of only forty counties in the state to have an official flag. Dave had questions about the motifs used in designing our county flag and wondered about the legendary flag on Bandera Pass. (Not that again!)

and carnival-style game booths sponsored by local organizations, reports festival general chairman Bob Caswell.

The Lill' Wrangler will lead off the afternoon's entertainment at noon underneath the covered outdoor patio, with her one-woman singing and guitar playing. But strumming out tunes won't be enough for her, as she plans to get the audience involved, bringing people from the audience to sing and generally joke around.

But the audience won't get a rest at 2 p.m., when the Whoosits take the stage, as they will continue the audience participation with their style of folk singing.

The band is made up of eight or more members, who play guitar, washboard, banjo, bass washtub, and other sorts of invented instruments. Band members will come down from the stage and join the audience in dancing, sing-a-longs, and other foolishness.

For more regular dance music, Dusty Britches and band will play for a Country and Western dance starting at 6 p.m.

But gumbo remains the name of the afternoon and cookers will prepare a minimum of three gallons of gumbo, of which one quart will go for judging. The announcement of winners and auction of entries starts at 4 p.m.

Gumbo will most likely be seafood, but chicken, turkey, sausage, game or other meat will be present.

Gumbo samples will be available for the public for $1 a cup.

There will be a first place winner from the professional division and a first and second place from the amateur division, says Caswell. A showmanship trophy will also be awarded for whichever entrant in either division demonstrates the most flair, public appeal, entertainment, decorations, creativity or outrageous presentation of their gumbo.

A "People's Choice" trophy will be awarded to the contestant who receives the most votes from the cookoff goers for their choice as best gumbo, says Caswell.

The gate opens at noon for the general public with a $1 admission charge.

For further information call Caswell in San Antonio at 736-2017, Lakehills at 751-3401 or 751-2727 or call Peggy Ashmore in Bandera at 796-8302.

The Medina Lake Betterment Association sponsors the event.

"Cat" Reilly shakes more spices into her gumbo. One secret of good gumbo is adding spices throughout the cooking process.

The roux is the gumbo thing, says cookoff champ

Gumbo's the thing at Saturday's Great Gumbo Festival and Cookoff and those who wish to try their own hand at the cajun dish can benefit from the advice of two-time winner Catherine "Cat" Reilly of LaKehills who says the best gumbo doesn't have to be cooked by a cajun, but any cook will have to spend time on the roux.

Gumbo is a combination of a flour-grease base, tomatoes and peppers, and a-meat broth.

Reilly says she learned how to cook gumbo originally from her parents who were from Nederland near Beaumont and she picked up pointers along the way.

The best gumbo she ever tasted (next to her's now) was made with shrimp and Reilly strongly recommends the salt water crustacean, though "crawdad" (crawfish) gumbo is wonderful. Also, chicken and sausage gumbo is delicious.

To begin gumbo, a cook first starts with a roux, says Reilly. Equal amounts of flour and bacon grease are slowly cooked for about 45 minutes over a very low fire to brown it until it is the color of a dark copper penny. "Don't scorch it," Reilly advises.

Also, use only cast iron pans to brown the roux, as a bad taste is added to the gumbo from aluminum pots, she says.

Separately, a seafood or other meat broth is cooked. She adds blue crab and/or the shrimp shells to her broth and strains the shells out after the broth is cooked.

Seasoning must be done at all stages of gumbo cooking, from when the roux is prepared to just at the very end to give it that final kick.

Also, use red cayenne peppers, never jalapenos.

Another hint is to avoid cooking shrimp too long. When the shrimp meat turns from translucent to solid white-pink, then it's done. Don't over cook, as the shrimp will be tough.

Seafood Gumbo

"Cat" Reilly's Seafood Gumbo recipe consists of:

1 cup bacon drippings
1 cup flour
1 cup sliced okra
1 cup chopped bell pepper
½ medium white onion
½ medium yellow onion
3 ribs of chopped celery (include tops)
2 cloves garlic
bacon grease in which to saute vegetables
½ cup chopped fresh parsley
1 28 oz. can whole tomatoes
1 medium can tomato sauce
½ teaspoon garlic
½ teaspoon onion powder
¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 teaspoon dried basil
juice of one lemon
1 drop of aromatic bitters
½ teaspoon marjoram
½ teaspoon fine herbs
¼ teaspoon black pepper
1 lb. raw, peeled shrimp
½ lb. crab meat
1 gallon seafood stock
1 tablespoon file

Saute peppers, onions, celery and garlic in bacon drippings. Cook until translucent, about 20 minutes. Saute okra separately. Drain vegetables well, and set aside.

Combine one cup of flour, and one cup of bacon drippings to make roux. Cook roux over medium heat, stirring constantly. Be careful not to scorch; cook until roux is color of a copper penny. This will take about 1½ to 2 hours.

Add vegetables and tomatoes to roux and stir for 45 seconds to one minute. Add tomato sauce, broth, and spices. Add more spices all during cooking; add more or less according to taste. Be sure to add more especially near the very end. This produces different levels of flavor. Also, use fresh and dried herbs, whenever possible.

Add shrimp and crabmeat 20 minutes before serving.

Serve gumbo over hot rice.

Never use salt, onion salt, or garlic salt, only powder. These spices will make gumbo very salty tasting.

Use your imagination and add spices and herbs that you use with fish.

Add parsley at end of cooking.

Burglaries solved

Some $6,433 in stolen property has been recovered, according to a report by the Bandera County sheriff's criminal investigation division.

The CID has conducted investigations into numerous cases which has resulted in the return of some 13 items, according to Bandera County sheriff Steve Forest.

"One individual has been formally charged with burglary of a habitation," said Forest. "The indictments of other individuals are expected in the near future."

The recently formed CID unit has assisted the patrol division in the investigation of two burglaries, the execution of a search warrant and several arrest warrants.

30-day weather outlook offers little chance of rain

Rainfall, which has been below normal for months, will continue to be below normal, predicts the National Weather Service in their 30 day outlook for October, but temperatures should be slightly lower than normal.

Rainfall was 2.84 inches in Bandera for September, short of the average 3.72 inches for September and far short of 4.84 inches registered in Sept. 1988, reports the Bandera County Soil Conservation Service. The total rainfall at the Bandera measuring station is 20.17 inches for the year.

The San Antonio-based weather service reports average rainfall for October as 2.88 inches. Records from the soil conservation service register a 3.85 inch average.

Temperatures, which have been record breaking in San Antonio with 97 as a high for Sunday, should be just below normal in October, predicts the weather service.

For the first week of October, the NWS reports an average high temperature of 86 with lows in the mid-60s. For the entire month of October, the average high is 82 and low is 59.

The Bandera Electric Cooperative recorded a 91 high and 49 low for Sunday, Oct. 1, as compared to a 82 high and 62 low on the same date in 1988, 80 and 48 in 1987, and 90 and 76 in 1986.

Phone books being distributed

The face of a friendly Texan adorns the cover of Southwestern Bell's 1989 telephone directory which was to be delivered in Bandera beginning Oct. 2, said area manager Doyle Bebee.

The face is that of Joe Dobkins of Red Oak. He's also featured in the Texas Department of Commerce's tourism advertising campaign being conducted under the theme, "Texas, it's like a whole other country." The same photo will appear on more than 175 directories, Bebee said.

More than 16,000 of the directories that include Bandera, Medina, Pipe Creek and the Lake Medina area will be distributed Bebee said. Delivery should be completed by Oct. 16, he said.

The Bandera directory will be printed in a slightly larger type face for the residential and business listings, the telephone company spokesman said. It will include 125 white pages with 14,634 listings and 96 yellow pages.

Each residential customer will receive one directory. For additional copies, Bebee said customers may call the SW Bell business office.

Silas Turner took first place in the Hermann Sons Pinto Bean Cookoff for the third year at the Lakehills event Saturday, Sept. 30, with I-Bar Ranch Style pinto beans. Second place and showmanship were awarded to Kay Rocha of Boerne and Pam Dixon of San Antonio with Rio Grande Beans. John Cavazos, drumming up support for the American Legion, took third with Shotgun Beans. Ron Biegay, representing Adolph's Restaurant, took fourth place with Bertie's Best Beans.

what's rustlin'

It was 6:30 a.m. Saturday and the motorcycles were already piling into Bandera. More than 50 of them.

An unusual sight? No, because every Saturday morning there are from 50 to 200 bikers at the OST for their usual pre-ride breakfast. Many more stop at the Pipe Creek Junction Cafe.

It's tradition, and word gets passed on from old bikers to new ones.

Now, these aren't the stereotypes of the bearded, leather-jacketed tough guys with "Harley Davidson" emblazoned on their backs, Marlon Brando-style "Wild Ones." For the most part they are young couples and they ride machines that cost a pretty penny.

Saturday's early-morning gathering was unusual in that it was being filmed by the Kawasaki Motorcycle people for use in their 1990 advertising both on television and in magazines.

A couple on horseback rode back and forth in front of the lined-up bikes for the benefit of the cameras.

The ad agency people went to each of the cycle owners and got them to sign a release in exchange for the sum of $1.

It was business-as-usual at the OST, however, with the waitresses and cooks working hard to keep up with the demands of the crowd. At one point a TV cameraman aimed at Shawna and shouted, "Smile, you're on TV!"

"Later, later," was her quick reply.

• The Medina Lake Betterment Association is another group in Bandera County that really pulls together. Every time I pick up The Bulletin I read of another something they're putting on.

Their biggest event is this Saturday when they stage their annual Great Gumbo Cookoff with arts and crafts booths, games, continuous entertainment, and the most delicious gumbo this side of the bayous of Louisiana.

• Since we have our own pony express ride each year, here's some fun about the original Pony Express:

They delivered mail for 19 months and only lost one sack. The first rider to arrive in San Fran came by boat and the classified ad for riders read, "Wanted, young, skinny, wiry fellows not over 18. Must be expert riders willing to risk death daily. Orphans preferred."

• Our own Bo Chesson of Bo's Rodeo and Ranch Shop was one of five winners of $3,378 in a recent Wingo game of one of those other newspapers in nearby San Antonio.

What's he going to do with the money? Take his wife Onella to the National Finals Rodeo in Las Vegas.

He's a gold-card carrying member of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association. Gold card? That's the kind you get when you've been a continuous, dues-paying PRCA member as long as Bo has.

Bo also wants to attend the annual reunion of "The Wild Bunch," a group of the original "Turtle Association" members. That's the group that preceded the RCA and PRCA.

The Turtle Association was formed in New York and Washington, D.C., Bo tells me, when a group of cowboys were on the old "rodeo circuit" in the 1920s. A rodeo at that time was really a wild west show, and performers went on strike for higher pay, citing the danger of the performances they put on.

At showtime, the cowboys all simply sat down in the bleachers along with the paying customers, and the show didn't go on.

It must have worked, because from that sit-down beginning came the first association of cowboys.

Fredericksburg Oktoberfest to continue through Sunday

Fredericksburg's Oktoberfest celebration Friday through Sunday, Oct. 6-8 will have arts, crafts, foods, drinks, music, dancing, beer and children's entertainment.

Oktoberfest will have five large circus-size tents, three for arts and crafts and two with stages for musical entertainment which will be continuous from the time the gates open until closing each day.

There will be 10 bands performing a wide variety of German music and one band that plays the best Dixie Land music this side of New Orleans, says a spokesman for the Pedernales Creative Arts Alliance, sponsor of the fest. Three dance groups will perform various dances from the old country and some modern styles.

Some 80 exhibitors from Texas and other states will display their wares, including Bob Stamm of Fredericksburg who makes game boards, dominos, rolling pins and many other items from hard woods inlaid with mesquite.

Also at the fest will be Terry and Pam Montandon of Nebraska who produce hand carved "Prairie Santas" and dress them in furs and quilted fabrics.

Kay LeRoy of Shreveport, La. will bring her woven baskets of many shapes and sizes with various fibers, sea grasses, reeds and coconut hair.

Ann Carlyle of Dallas will display her corn husk dolls dressed in period costumes.

There will be 30 Fredericksburg artists who are each going to display three original works of art many of which have never been displayed for the public.

Oktoberfest will be celebrated Friday 6 p.m. to midnight, Saturday 10 p.m. to midnight, and Sunday noon to 6 p.m. in downtown Fredericksburg at Marktg Square.

The prices Friday and Sunday are: Adults $3, Children (six - 12) $1, and under six free. Saturday: Adults $4, Children (six - 12) $1, under 6 free.

Proceeds from Oktoberfest will advance and promote of the arts, music, drama and crafts on all levels in Fredericksburg.

Lady chili cooks compete in state championship event

The 19th First Annual Clara Driscoll Memorial Ladies State Championship Chili Cookoff will be held Saturday, Oct. 7, at its birthplace, the tiny magic town of Luckenbach.

Lady chili cooks from all over the state will be vying for the chance to become the Texas Chili Queen. The first three winners will be eligible for the Terlingua Championship cookoff held in November in the Big Bend.

The cookoff is dedicated to Clara Driscoll (1881-1945), the fiery daughter of a South Texas rancher who financed a drive to save the Alamo from commercial exploitation.

Burglaries solved

Some $6,433 in stolen property has been recovered, according to a report by the Bandera County sheriff's criminal investigation division.

The CID has conducted investigations into numerous cases which has resulted in the return of some 13 items, according to Bandera County sheriff Steve Forest.

"One individual has been formally charged with burglary of a habitation," said Forest. "The indictments of other individuals are expected in the near future."

The recently formed CID unit has assisted the patrol division in the investigation of two burglaries, the execution of a search warrant and several arrest warrants.

Bluegrass event set

The Old Settlers Bluegrass Festival in Round Rock Oct. 13-15 will feature a variety of Austin-area and Texas bluegrass bands, instrumental workshops, and band, guitar and banjo contests.

Johnny Gimble will be master of ceremonies Oct. 14 and among the groups expected are the Tennessee Valley Authority, the Young Family, Second Time Around and Fightin' Creek Bluegrass.

It was 6:30 a.m. Saturday and the motorcycles were already piling into Bandera. More than 50 of them.

An unusual sight? No, because every Saturday morning there are from 50 to 200 bikers at the OST for their usual pre-ride breakfast. Many more stop at the Pipe Creek Junction Cafe.

It's tradition, and word gets passed on from old bikers to new ones.

Now, these aren't the stereotypes of the bearded, leather-jacketed tough guys with "Harley Davidson" emblazoned on their backs, Marlon Brando-style "Wild Ones." For the most part they are young couples and they ride machines that cost a pretty penny.

Saturday's early-morning gathering was unusual in that it was being filmed by the Kawasaki Motorcycle people for use in their 1990 advertising both on television and in magazines.

A couple on horseback rode back and forth in front of the lined-up bikes for the benefit of the cameras.

The ad agency people went to each of the cycle owners and got them to sign a release in exchange for the sum of $1.

It was business-as-usual at the OST, however, with the waitresses and cooks working hard to keep up with the demands of the crowd. At one point a TV cameraman aimed at Shawna and shouted, "Smile, you're on TV!"

"Later, later," was her quick reply.

• The Medina Lake Betterment Association is another group in Bandera County that really pulls together. Every time I pick up The Bulletin I read of another something they're putting on.

Their biggest event is this Saturday when they stage their annual Great Gumbo Cookoff with arts and crafts booths, games, continuous entertainment, and the most delicious gumbo this side of the bayous of Louisiana.

• Since we have our own pony express ride each year, here's some fun about the original Pony Express:

They delivered mail for 19 months and only lost one sack. The first rider to arrive in San Fran came by boat and the classified ad for riders read, "Wanted, young, skinny, wiry fellows not over 18. Must be expert riders willing to risk death daily. Orphans preferred."

• Our own Bo Chesson of Bo's Rodeo and Ranch Shop was one of five winners of $3,378 in a recent Wingo game of one of those other newspapers in nearby San Antonio.

What's he going to do with the money? Take his wife Onella to the National Finals Rodeo in Las Vegas.

He's a gold-card carrying member of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association. Gold card? That's the kind you get when you've been a continuous, dues-paying PRCA member as long as Bo has.

Bo also wants to attend the annual reunion of "The Wild Bunch," a group of the original "Turtle Association" members. That's the group that preceded the RCA and PRCA.

The Turtle Association was formed in New York and Washington, D.C., Bo tells me, when a group of cowboys were on the old "rodeo circuit" in the 1920s. A rodeo at that time was really a wild west show, and performers went on strike for higher pay, citing the danger of the performances they put on.

At showtime, the cowboys all simply sat down in the bleachers along with the paying customers, and the show didn't go on.

It must have worked, because from that sit-down beginning came the first association of cowboys.

Fredericksburg Oktoberfest to continue through Sunday

Fredericksburg's Oktoberfest celebration Friday through Sunday, Oct. 6-8 will have arts, crafts, foods, drinks, music, dancing, beer and children's entertainment.

Oktoberfest will have five large circus-size tents, three for arts and crafts and two with stages for musical entertainment which will be continuous from the time the gates open until closing each day.

There will be 10 bands performing a wide variety of German music and one band that plays the best Dixie Land music this side of New Orleans, says a spokesman for the Federnales Creative Arts Alliance, sponsor of the fest. Three dance groups will perform various dances from the old country and some modern styles.

Some 80 exhibitors from Texas and other states will display their wares, including Bob Stamm of Fredericksburg who makes game boards, dominos, rolling pins and many other items from hardwoods inlaid with mesquite.

Also at the fest will be Terry and Pam Montandon of Nebraska who produce hand carved "Prairie Santas" and dress them in furs and quilted fabrics.

Kay LeRoy of Shreveport, La. will bring her woven baskets of many shapes and sizes with various fibers, sea grasses, reeds and coconut hair.

Ann Carlyle of Dallas will display her corn husk dolls dressed in period costumes.

There will be 30 Fredericksburg artists who are each going to display three original works of art many of which have never been displayed for the public.

Oktoberfest will be celebrated Friday 6 p.m. to midnight, Saturday 10 p.m. to midnight, and Sunday noon to 6 p.m. in downtown Fredericksburg at Marker Square.

The prices Friday and Sunday are: Adults $3, Children (six - 12) $1, and under six free. Saturday: Adults $4, Children (six - 12) $1 under 6 free.

Many of the people in these groups help out with the Texas Renaissance Festival held in Magnolia, reports Mary.

Her family is mainly involved with costuming.

Members of SCA will study a period of history and a locale, not necessarily European. "They take on the persona of someone living in the Middle Ages and adopt a name," she says.

Members are not limited to the Middle Ages, but can study periods from just before the time of Christ, primarily Egyptian, to just past Elizabethan period of the 1600s.

The SCA has been around for about 24 years and got its start at the University of California at Berkeley. A professor told his students to put on a Medieval Fair as their final project.

The first fair had jousting matches with trash can lids and baseball bats, but the idea held, until today, when knights have costumes and painted and decorated plywood shields.

SCA organizations are usually centered around college towns.

San Antonio's barony is planning to build a Viking warship, which may be seen on Medina Lake in the future.

The Bandera County club will be looking to put on a arts and sciences fair.

The club is mainly a history study group that has fun, says Mary.

Everyone is invited, and those attending are asked to bring a covered dish, says a spokesman for the restaurant.

• The Charles DeWitt family has returned to their winter home. Chuck, and his wife Maradelle, pack up their Airstream trailer and head for the cooler states during the summer months, always stopping in Oregon to visit with Chuck's mother, Sara.

Sara is 101 years old and is doing reasonably well, they report. She was visiting with Chuck on her 100th birthday and is remembered fondly by the friends and neighbors that attended her birthday party.

Maradelle flew to Clifton during the summer when her father, 91, took a turn for the worse. He has improved and she returned to Chuck and they continued their travels.

• Recently Marian Trout and the Marion Birche family floated gently with pilot Diane Mullins in' her colorful balloon over homes and ranches southeast of Bandera.

Watching livestock, exotic animals, rabbits, and quail proved most fascinating, the passengers report. After sunrise, the return trip was gained by the pilot's elevating the soaring aircraft into a gently breeze blowing the other way. After the landing, an interesting ceremony surprised the guests and capped off what they termed, "a serene, heavenly ride."

Last Sunday afternoon, this same party were guests of Robin Shaw, who guided them to an unusual sight in the nearly dry Medina riverbed. They marveled over the imprint left in the sandstone by some huge, prehistoric snail-like fossil. This touch with nature's ancient history "made her day," Marjorie said.

• Phil and Nola Bledsoe have their daughter Sherry, son-in-law Kenny Finley and grandsons David and Joey visiting from Kentucky. Also stopping in for the weekend was their daughter, Theresa, son-in-law Al Ventura and grandson Kevin from Live Oak and grandson Chris Jose from San Antonio.

• Tony Mosty and Chris dropped by for a visit with Bledsoes over the weekend as did Harry Walkintin.

• Chet and Sandy Collins spent the weekend at what was their waterfront property, looking at their new boat and wishing for water.

• Betty and Bud Ciarlo enjoyed a visit with Dave and Cathy Stocker from Austin on Sunday. Dave works for the Austin city police department as a forensic expert. Dave is a retired federal police officer from the Panama Canal Zone. The Ciarlos and Stockers were friends for many years in Panama.

Medina Lake Volunteer Auxiliary to hold meeting Monday

The Medina Lake Volunteer Volunteer Fire Department Auxiliary will hold its regular monthly meeting at the home of Helen Smith off Goat Hill Road.

Committee chairwomen will be announced and plans for the annual Christmas party will begin, says organization president Dolly Dresser.

Officers for the coming year are Dresser; Dorothy Alatorre, vice president; Gwen Akin, secretary; and June Settlemeyer, treasurer.

We look forward to another good year and with the opening of the new fire station, it should be busy, but exciting, says Dresser.

Call 751-3335 for more information.

Commentary

The Lakeshore Volunteer Fire Department responded to four grass fire calls this past week. Many people stopped and parked and in some cases got in the way, firemen report. This seems to be a coming thing at a fire or accident. If you are not qualified to assist please stay out of the way.

Retired Peace Justice Ed Jennings, right, lays down the wedding law Sunday, Oct. 1, at the wedding of Billy Mason and Cheryl Simpson while standing on a pontoon boat in Medina Lake.

Mason, Simpson wed "on the water" Sunday

Billy Ray Mason and Cheryl Simpson of Lakehills were married Sunday, Oct. 1, on a pontoon boat ceremony at Bob's Cove in Lakehills.

Retired Justice of the Peace Ed Jennings tied the knot aboard the boat in Medina Lake with Game Warden Ernest Lerma and owner of Bob's Cove Marina Ralph Lehman as witnesses.

Jennings said it was the first such ceremony he had performed on the water.

Some 10 to 12 boats circled the wedding pontoon boat and even an inflatable rubber alligator was thrown in the water and towed by the pontoon boat for good measure.

Best man was Terry L. Mason of San Antonio and the maid of honor was Sandra Mason.

Parents of the groom are John and Margie Mason of Lakehills.

The bride's parents are David L. Akey and Sally Lemer.

The wedding party left from M&M Marina, which John Mason owns. "We just about had it sunk with so many people in attendance," says John.

A reception was held at Bob's Cove with at least 126 guests.

New law regulates jetskis

While the new BWI (boating while intoxicated) law is the most publicized of the new boating laws, the state legislature also passed a law concerning jetskis and similar water vehicles.

House Bill 2182 defines "personal watercraft" as a motorboat up to ten-feet in length, designated to be operated by sitting, standing or kneeling on top of the vessel as opposed to inside the vessel. This law pertains to jetski's, waverunners, wetbikes, skicoos, etc.

While riding or being towed by a "personal watercraft," persons must wear a coast guard approved life jacket. These vessels may, under no circumstances, be operated at night. No aftermarket lighting will be considered legal.

These watercraft must be operated at idle speed when within 50 feet of any other object, including another vessel, platform, dock, shore or person. Persons operating such vessels must be 12 years or older or accompanied by a person 16 or older.

Texans Respond To Illiteracy

"Texas is in trouble.

One third of the adults in Texas today lack the reading and writing skills necessary to function in the modern workplace.

Without the participation of these 3.3 million Texans, Texas cannot keep up with today's technological advances or compete for tomorrow's more specialized jobs.

Unless we act now to overcome this devastating situation, Texas will be left behind."

Boy Scouts gather with sponsor

Eight boy scouts and six adult leaders of Boy Scout Troop 144 joined the Pipe Creek Presbyterian Church in a campout at The Farm Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 30 and Oct. 1.

The troop set up camp Saturday morning and immediately proceeded to enjoy the activities at the Bandera resort and learned how to tie new knots. The water was cold, but they swam anyway, the boys report.

The Scouts joined the congregation for a Saturday night potluck supper followed by campfire singing and a message by the Rev. Dale Rinse.

Two new assistant Scout leaders, Denny Peck and Tony Parker, had their first experience helping with the troop activities along with Scoutmaster Tom Beer, and assistant Scoutmasters Cliff Henry and Ray Workman.

Sunday morning the Scouts joined church members for an outdoor service before breaking camp.

The church sponsors the troop.

Boy Scouts to assist in rescue drill

Boy Scouts from troop 146 will assist with the State EMS Wilderness Rescue Competition Oct. 6-8 in Garner State Park.

The Bandera County Boy Scouts will act as guides showing EMS teams where they will stage their competition and run errands. "They will be the legs, arms and hands of the (EMS) management committee," says assistant Scout leader Howard Lurker.

EMS rescue teams from all over Texas will converge on the state park west of Utopia and compete for medical accuracy and treatment.

Bulldog band to travel to contest

The Bandera Bulldog Band will travel to Medina Valley on Saturday, Oct. 28 for the UIL Marching Contest.

Last year the band received a second division rating. Director Milton Fox said he hopes that the band will do well enough to receive a first division. Fox feels that the band has the potential to win.

When asked if going to state marching contest was attainable, Fox replied, "In about two or three years. This year's band is much better than last year's band. This is the best Bandera band in a long time."

The band will perform Quantum, Ghostbusters/Axel F, Battle Hymn Chorale, and Congo under the direction of drum major, Jeannie Parades. The performance will feature the new 16-member flag corps, which Fox says is "great," in addition to percussion, trombones and a trumpet solo by J.B. Neuenschwander.

The community is invited and encouraged to come to Medina Valley and support the "Jammin' Band from Bulldog Land."

Southside takes Ladies

Southside beat Bandera's Lady Bulldogs in straight game wins by identical scores of 15-13, Sept.9.

Lisa Wharton, Peggy Whitehead and Christy Parker were credited with major plays during the game with outstanding blocking.

Scoring was as follows: Whitehead, 4 kills, 1 block, 2 digs; Parker, 3 kills, 2 blocks; Wharton, 1 kill, 6 blocks; Genie Clements, 2 kills.

Lady Bulldogs defeat Rohawks, stand 1-2 in district play

The Lady Bulldogs won against the Randolph Rohawks in volleyball action Tuesday, Sept. 19, although the Lady Bulldogs went through three painful matches against the Rohawks.

In the first game the Lady Bulldogs started off slowly, 9-4, Randolph's favor. Bandera called the first time out, and after that Carrie Fellows served six points, bringing the score to 10-9, Bandera's favor. With a kill by Viola McHorse, the Lady Bulldogs got the ball back, and Stacy Sides served to make the score 14-12. Server Peggy Whitehead served the ball which Christi Parker hit to win the game 15-12.

In the second game, the Lady Bulldogs again started off slowly. The score was 7-0, Randolph's favor. The Lady Dogs fought back with kills by McHorse, Whitehead, and Parker and strong serving by Fellows. The Bulldogs had too little too late and lost 15-12.

In the third game the Lady Bulldogs were determined to win even though they again started slowly with the score 6-0, in Randolph's favor. With kills by Whitehead and Parker and strong serving from Fellows the Lady Bulldogs won 15-13.

The win made the Lady Bulldogs 1-2 in district. Their remaining games are: Southside —there: Cole — there; Floresville — here; Comfort — there; District Tournament — to be announced.

Student Council plans projects, raises Homecoming funds

Student Council members at BHS are planning many projects for students in Bandera.

The biggest project is the Homecoming game on Oct. 27. In order to do this they are raising money so that the homecoming festives will be an excellent event.

So far, they have had a bake sale at some recent football games, and they held a car wash on Saturday Sept. 23.

Plans for the rest of the year include organizing a student court, updating the constitution, and having leadership workshops.

They also plan to sponsor dances such as the "Sweet Hearts Dance" in February.

Another thing the Council does is hold a gift exchange before all football games with the Bulldog's opponents. By doing this they donate to the American Cancer Society in the name of the opponents.

The Student Council meets every Monday during break.

If there are any questions, contact Student Council President Brett Emmons and it will be brought up in these meetings.

Bulldog JV wins two

The Bulldogs domination of both games of a rare doubleheader now gives the J.V. a three-game winning streak.

Bandera's first game was against the Medina Bobcats last Thursday. The score was set up when Todd Nightingale recovered a fumble at the Bobcat's 10 yard line. Eugene Adamson took it in from there with a 5 yard run, for the only score in the game.

Bulldog quarterback Ray Chafin completed four passes to Bryce Kindla. Pat Raab, Bobby Hopper, and Ramiro Tirado all played excellently on defense. The game ended leaving Bandera with a 6-0 win over Medina.

The Bulldog's second game was the defeat of S.A. Memorial. The Dogs headed into the locker room at half with a 7-0 lead. The defense was exceptional with Trey D'Spain, Jon Rutledge, and Jake Stricker. Stricker had five quarterback sacks and 12 tackles. Memorial's only score was in the third quarter.

Bandera took control in the fourth quarter with three more touchdowns.

Two of the teams four touchdowns were on passes to J.B. Nuenschwander and Jody Carpenter. Jess Edwards scored the remaining touchdown with a 35 yard run, which gave him a total of 120 yards for the night. Cody Woodland kicked three extra points to give the Dogs a 27-6 victory.

'Rio Azul' art exhibit due at UTSA

From Oct. 6 to Nov. 15, The University of Texas at San Antonio will host a major archaeological exhibit entitled "Rio Azul: City of the Storm God" in the campus Art Gallery.

The exhibit will showcase a life-size replica of the Maya tomb found intact in the Guatemala jungles in 1984 by an expedition led by UTSA anthropologist Dr. Richard E.W. Adams. The archaeological project was sponsored and funded in part by the National Geographic Society.

The editor of National Geographic Magazine, Wilbur E. Garrett, will be here to help open the exhibit.

"Rio Azul: City of the Storm God" will go on display to the public here on Friday, Oct. 6. When the exhibit closes at UTSA, it will then travel to the Denver Museum of Natural History, the National Geographic Society's Explorers Hall in Washington, D.C., and the Natural History Museum of Los Angeles County.

In conjunction with this exhibit, San Antonio will be the site of "Guatemala Month," a joint venture of several of the city's cultural centers, which have scheduled an exciting series of events in October that will explore the artistic diversity of Guatemala.

Plans include a concert by the San Antonio Symphony and Marimba de Concierto at the newly renovated Majestic Theater; a lecture on Guatemalan textiles by authority Gwendolyn Ritz; and performances by Marimba de Inguat, the official marimba band of the Guatemala Tourist Agency, throughout the city.

Student teacher Bill Nabours learns, teaches

Not only is Bandera High School a learning center for students but for a awhile it is serving as a learning experience for one student teacher, Bill Nabours.

He is midway through a student-teaching program for Schreiner College. Mr. Nabours is assisting Margie Keese in journalism and Claire Roberts in history.

He attended Temple Junior College and Southwest Texas State while majoring in journalism and minoring in history.

Mr. Nabours has been a sports editor for 10 years at several newspapers in Texas. He now is a freelance journalist.

Besides sports, he has also covered law enforcement.

Mr. Nabours is a sports fan and loves to travel. He is a newlywed, and feels that this teaching experience will be something to look back on.

Mr. Nabours says he enjoys teaching in Bandera, and he would like to see the school do well academically and athletically in U.I.L. competition.

Silver Sage Corral

By Manuel Flores

After many weeks of planning and collecting funds the landscaping in the front of the Silver Sage Corral has been completed.

Saturday, Sept. 30, the volunteers assembled, and when they left that evening the front of the building had been transformed into a thing of beauty. The workers who toiled outside included Harry Wood, Mary Carpenter, Roy Carpenter, Sherman Vangenes, Mary McClosky, Arthur Bunch, Dr. George Meador and Floyd Portman.

Those who showed up and brought food and beverages included Fannie Caffall, Marie Holland, Helen Williams, Juanita Woodward, May Bachelor, Sue Black, Karen Breazeale, Mary Portman, Tye Goff, Vivian Webb, Glyn Taylor, Helen Ahr, Mélecee Rugh, and Doloras Greene. Bill Haynes brought fresh tomptoes to be eaten with the meal.

Robin Shaw brought a huge bag of sawdust to be mixed with the soil.

While this "family" affair was going on, W.B. Kirkpatrick made shelves and painted for the arts and crafts department.

• The Silver Sage Corral's next big project will be the construction of a carport on the side of the building. So far, $80 has been raised toward this goal through the sale of aluminum cans. Leon and Lillian Ray are heading up the aluminum can drive.

Mary Ann Kruckmeyer, Connie H. Villemain and Helen Ahr have donated to the carport fund. Anyone who wishes to contribute to this fund can contact the center. Construction of the carport will begin as soon as enough funds have been completed.

• Saturday, Oct. 14 the first annual Senior Citizens Arts and Crafts Show will be held on the grounds of the Silver Sage Corral. Many exhibitors will be on hand to display articles which they have made and many different types of crafts will be represented.

In addition to the arts and crafts show, there will be a quilt show inside the center.

A food booth will be staffed by volunteers to provide lots of goodies for those who stop by to enjoy the fun.

• A rededication ceremony of the 20th anniversary of the Dietert Claim will be held at the Kerrville center Friday, Oct. 6 at 10 a.m. An open house in all buildings will be held from 10:45 a.m. to 4 p.m., and all senior citizens are encouraged to attend and help Kerrville celebrate a worthwhile event.

• A big thank you to all the persons that support the Silver Sage Corral. In the "family" of volunteers there are those who donate money, those who donate time and labor, and those who donate both. There is a great sense of pride at the center.

• We are going to have a series about the board of directors at the Silver Sage Corral, so people can come to know them better.

We are working to make our senior activities center a better place to fit the needs and interests of us all. Your board must know your wishes in order to investigate and possibly implement a program to fit them. If we can't, we will let you know why.

Either contact a board member, or better yet, make use of the suggestion box. We are not looking for gripes — good, constructive criticism, yes, but give us your ideas at the same time.

Open house at Fort Sam planned for military retirees

An open house will be held Saturday, Oct. 21, at the Academy of Health Sciences Building at Fort Sam Houston for retirees from all branches of the military services and their spouses or widows.

The open house is designed to update members of the retired community of their rights, privileges, benefits and obligations," says spokesman retired Col. J. Weiner. The event will run from 7:30 a.m. to noon.

Speakers will be present to speak on the latest legislation affecting retirees, including military health care, Social Security, Medicare Catastrophic coverage, and taxes, says Col. Weiner.

Retired persons group resume monthly meeting schedule

John Muir's movie "High Sierra" was the featured program when the Bandera Hills Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) met Sept. 20 after a three-month summer vacation.

"We need more members, and we are giving a discount to those members who bring in more members," said spokeswoman Doloras Greene.

The health advocacy report, given by Mickey Causey, included good eating rules, senior problems, and an announced health clinic at the Silver Sage Corral.

Art Bunch gave the legislative report, and Melecee Rugh reported on the American Cancer Society. She said the ACS in Bandera needs members, and that the district office has moved.

Hostesses were Melecee Rugh and Mickie Causey, and refreshments were provided by Lois Love and Peggy Vavrick.

A Thought For The Week
By John M. Grimes

"Stubborn as a mule." No one seems to know how or when the saying started. The Bible says something about it. In Psalm 32 we read, "Be not as the horse or as the mule which have no understanding." Maybe the saying comes from there.

Some people are more stubborn than others. Stubbornness can be described as hard-headedness, hard to get along with, set in one's ways and so on. When one is in such a mood or has that attitude, it is often impossible to reason with that person. At such times they have no understanding' has special meaning. It takes patience to try to reach an understanding. When understanding is reached, stubbornness vanishes like a smoke ring ... When two people stubbornly hold opposing views, it is impossible to reach an understanding because neither one strives with understanding for an understanding. When an issue is big enough, it is important for at least one of the two stubbornheads to have an understanding of the other person's lack of understanding.

NOTICE OF MEETING

The Board of Trustees of the Bandera Independent School District will meet in regular session on Monday, Oct. 9, 1989, at 7 p.m. at Bandera High School.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Bandera County Commissioners Court has taken the necessary legal action under the laws and statutes of the State of Texas to close the easement beginning at Park Row "J" and passing between Lots 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, at Block 64 and Lots 17, 18, 19, 20, and 21, of Block 65, Subdivision H, Avalon Ranch, Lakehills, Bandera County, Texas, and ending at Ave. N., as shown on the plat of Avalon Ranch on file in Bandera Plat Records. This request is made in view of the fact that this road has never been opened and is not needed to access other property.

PUBLIC NOTICE

All Developers and Subdividers planning projects in Bandera County are urged to obtain and follow the regulations governing subdivisions in Bandera County. Failure to follow these established regulations will almost certainly result in costly delays. Some of the most critical items are:

1. Written request to proceed accompanied by a statement from Bandera Electric Cooperative that electricity will be furnished.
2. Utility easements indicated by survey.
3. Road dedication indicated by survey.
4. Construction and maintenance bonds on roads.
5. All lots or tracts adequate in size.
6. Plats to be drawn to a scale of 200 feet to the inch on 18" by 24" sheets. A key map shows the entire area to be drawn on U.S.G.S. maps which are available in the County Judge's office.
7. Compliance with Bandera County Regulations covering sanitary facilities and water wells.

These directives, most of which have been in force since 1972, by order of the Bandera County Commissioners' Court, are available for any developer at the office of Permits and Inspections, County Courthouse. I urge all concerned to obtain this document and follow it closely during the course of your planning and development schedule.

17 candidates on ballot for 9 water district positions

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Some 17 candidates have filed for nine positions on the Springhills Water Management District, nine directors and eight others.

Filing last week were Travis Redman, Melvin King, Phil Tobin of Bandera, Charles "Bill" Weber and Keith Keese of Medina, Nemecio Mansfield, John Halliday, and Randy Schott of Lakehills.

The nine present temporary directors that are automatically in the running are Phil Becker of Tarpley, Don E. Karr, Mary Jane Cave, and Craig Tips of Bandera, Joe Cantu and J.B. Edwards of Pipe Creek, J.K. Leighton of Vanderpool, and Paul Garrison Jr. and Morgan Cox of Medina.

Voters will be asked on the Nov. 7 ballot to approve or disapprove the creation of Bandera County's combined surface water and underground water district, and select nine directors to serve on its initial board of directors if the measure passes.

The names of all who have filed for the board will have been drawn to determine the order their names will be listed on the ballot Wednesday, Oct. 4, at 10 a.m. in the Bandera County Clerk's office. Existing board members will not be differentiated from other candidates on the ballot.

Candidates can still file as write-in candidates, but they have to file at county clerk's office and be certified as a write-in candidates.

Absentee voting begins Oct. 18 and ends Nov. 3 for the water district and the constitutional amendments.

Jobless rate up slightly but still below state norm

By William Wall
Bulletin Austin Bureau

The August unemployment rate in Bandera County was seven-tenths of one percent higher than the previous month, according to the latest figures released by the Texas Employment Commission.

The monthly Texas Labor Market Analysis state that Bandera County's jobless rate for August was 3.4 percent, up from July's 2.7 percent. The rate last August was 3 percent.

"The monthly increase in the Bandera County unemployment rate is somewhat misleading," said Rachel Tello-Sanchez, employment commission labor market analyst. "There was a gain of 40 new jobs in August but that was offset by the larger total work force. The local statistics in the yearly comparison are similar to statewide figures over the same period and point to a general slowdown of the economy."

The statewide unemployment rate for August was 7.2 percent, one-tenth of one percent higher than July and one-half of one percent higher than August 1988.

The latest report showed that two of the five surrounding counties reported increases in their jobless rates, Kendall County by three-tenths of one percent and Uvalde County by one percent.

The unemployment rates declined in Kerr County by 1.2 percent, in Real County by nine-tenths of one percent, and in Medina County by one-half of one percent.

Commission statistics indicate that 3,963 persons in the Bandera County civilian labor force were employed in August out of 4,101. The county's total work force in July was 4,031, of whom 3,923 were employed.

Last August's report showed the county's total work force to be 4,052, with 4,176 employed.

The statewide statistics for August showed 7,842,700 persons employed out of 8,452,400. In July, 7,813,200 were employed in Texas out of a civilian labor force of 8,427,700.

Figures from the August 1988 report showed 7,859,600 persons were employed out of 8,424,500.

"The monthly increase in statewide unemployment is not significant because joblessness is quite volatile during the summer months," said Tello-Sanchez. "The one-half percent jump in unemployment from August 1988 indicates that the state economy is slowing down."

The strongest gains in statewide employment in 1989 have come in the government and services industries, while job opportunities in the trade, manufacturing, construction and mining sectors have declined, Tello-Sanchez said.

Conservation group to elect

One of the five directors for the Bandera County Soil and Water Conservation Board will be elected Oct. 7 at the El Paraiso Ranch along with seminars on forage, juniper control, turkey, and cattle management.

The Bandera Soil and Water Conservation District and the Bandera County Extension Service will co-sponsor the event that begins at 9:30 a.m. Attendees should plan to meet inside the ranch's entrance gate, says Bandera County Extension Agent John Allen.

Speakers include Dr. Larry White, extension range specialist, who will address redberry and Ashe (blueberry) juniper identification and control. Until recently, only Ashe juniper, or Ashe cedar was thought to be present in the Hill Country, says Billy Griffin, conservationist with the Bandera SCS.

The common Ashe cedar will die when all the green leaves are removed, says Griffin. The recently found redberry Cedar buds below ground, and if cut off at the base, it will grow back, making herbicide treatment or bulldozing of the roots necessary.

There is not much difference between redberry and Ashe cedar, says Griffin.

White will also discuss how to take a forage inventory to determine the estimated pounds of available forage.

Dr Tom Troxel, extension beef cattle specialist, will discuss rating cow body conditions, supplemental feeding, and cow and heifer selection and culling.

Dr. Dale Rollins, extension wildlife specialist, will discuss turkey management in the Hill Country.

There will be a noon meal served with a suggest $3 donation.

The gathering will elect one person to represent subdivision five on the board of directors of the Bandera Soil and Water Conservation District #229 shortly after the noon meal.

The current director for zone five is Fred Burch and he is eligible for re-election.

Zone, or subdivision, five covers Medina and west, but does not include Vanderpool and the Lost Maples area. Zone five is generally north of State Highway 470.

The member to be elected must be a qualified voter in the subdivision and own land within subdivision five. To be eligible to be a director, a person must be actively involved in agriculture in Bandera county and must reside in the zone he or she will represent," says Griffin.

Persons eligible to vote must be at least 18 years of age, reside in the county, and hold title to farm or ranch land lying in the county.

Other directors are Vernon Porter, zone four; Raymond Hicks representing the Tarpley area, Tony Jennings representing Pipe Creek and Lakehills, and Evelyn Reininger of Bandera. The term of office is four years.

A Bandera County farmer or rancher who desires to use a conservation program on his land may receive assistance from the district. In cooperation with the land owner, Billy Griffin, district conservationist, works to develop a conservation plan tailored to the landowner's goals. After a mutually agreeable plan is developed, the individual is given the opportunity to sign an agreement with the Bandera District which includes the conservation plan. The plan is then brought before the board of directors for approval. After approval, the district is ready to assist with implementation.

In addition to their primary responsibility of helping individuals implement conservation practices, districts are also involved in educational programs which inform landowners, community leaders and others about the need for soil and water conservation.

For more information, contact Griffin at 796-3334 or Allen at 796-7755.

Youth rodeo buckles awarded

The Bandera Youth Rodeo Association presented a total of 32 belt buckles to youth participants Sunday, Oct. 1, at the organization's year end barbecue.

Tack and money are awarded to each event winner for first through fifth places for all events, which include barrel racing, calf roping, bullriding, polebending, and goat tying, reports spokeswoman Fonda Chesson. Some 24 buckles were given for the event winners and eight for the all-around champions.

All-around buckles are awarded to the boy and girl based on a point system for four age groups. Novice, up to age six years; Pee Wee, seven to 10 years; Junior, 11 to 14 years, and Senior, 15 to 19 years.

The BYRA holds a youth rodeo each Friday night during the summer months for competitors ages two to 19.

Local merchants, individuals, and businessmen sponsor events and buckles for the BYRA, reports Chesson.

A fundraiser is planned for this winter, such as a team roping. All proceeds go towards purchase of prizes and jackpot money won for the season, says Chesson.

There are approximately 60 members of the BYRA. Roy Chesson is the adult president and Steele Montague is the junior president of the BYRA. Linda Clay is secretary.

Buckles, tack, and prize money were awarded to Bandera County youth rodeo participants Sunday, Oct. 1, at an awards barbeque in Mansfield Park. Some 32 buckles were given to participants for top places in last summer's youth rodeos.

Disaster program sign-up under way

Farmers and ranchers in Bandera County have until April 2 to sign up for the government's Disaster Payment Program, says Jimmie R. Saathoff, county executive director of the U.S. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Disaster payments will be issued in commodity certificates if the amount is in excess of $200, Saathoff said, and producers must be covered by insurance in 1990 if assistance is applied for a 1989 crop.

Yield data and basic payment rates are not yet available, Saathoff said, but producers may apply for benefits now and payments will be computed when the data is available.

The deadline has passed for applying for crop insurance protection for 1990 wheat and oats, Saathoff said, and the deadline for applying for the emergency feeds program has been extended through Nov. 30.

Clifford Flach of Medina is one of 1,800 ranchers across the state using guard donkeys to protect his sheep.

Donkeys effective in predator control

Properly used, they are an inexpensive, humane protection

"Guard donkeys are no longer a novelty in Texas," Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said today. "They are an effective method of predator control among Texas sheep and goat producers. We estimate that 1,800 producers are using guard donkeys in Texas today."

Hightower said that donkeys don't work every time. "In fact, there are some circumstances where donkeys are almost guaranteed to fail. But when properly used, donkeys are an inexpensive and humane way to keep coyotes away from farm animals."

In January of 1988 TDA announced a comprehensive predator management program for Texas sheep, goat and lamb producers. "We paraded a bunch of dogs, llamas and donkeys on the grounds of the state capitol," said Hightower. "The skeptics said that maybe I should have been on the other end of one of those leashes.

"But given time and hard work and producers' willingness to try something a little different, we now have evidence that should convince even the skeptic," Hightower said.

Hightower's statements were based on two recent surveys, including one of 500 Texas sheep and goat producers.

Texas leads the nation both in the number of sheep and goats and in wool and mohair production, with Texas ranchers now producing 3.6 million animals and reaping annual sales of more than $150 million," Hightower said. "Unfortunately, until we launched this comprehensive program, these same producers were also losing more than 190,000 animals, valued at over $9 million, every year to predators."

"Now we have evidence that predator control can work. Dogs and donkeys can keep coyotes away from sheep and goats in many situations."

Based on responses to the surveys, Hightower estimated that 2,400 of Texas' 11,000 sheep and goat producers have used donkeys, with 1,800 producers currently using them.

"Responses to the survey varied widely. We have a bunch of success stories, and then we have some instances where donkeys just don't work. Less than ideal husbandry practices and unrealistic expectations by the producers probably contributed to many failures as much as any inadequacies of the donkeys. Some producers expect a donkey to guard more than 1,000 head of sheep or goats scattered in pastures larger than two sections (two square miles). This is an impossible task."

TDA's findings were compiled by predator management specialists Murray Walton and Andy Feild for presentation next week to the Fourth Eastern Wildlife Damage Control Conference meeting in Madison, Wis.

Cable going into Medina

K-1 Cable of Great Bend, Kan. began installation of television cable wires in Medina last week and anticipate completion of the project next week.

The entire project should be complete by the first of Nov. 1, reports Sonny Rippy, a contractor for Cable Subscription Service, who is doing the actual work for K-1 Cable. The slab has been poured and the groundwork completed for the microwave dishes, but the dishes themselves have not been installed.

When ready, subscribers will have access to 18 channels.

At a commissioners' court meeting earlier in the year, a representative of K-1 Cable told commissioners that the monthly charge would be $23.99 a month with a $30 installation charge. The installation charge may be discounted for early subscribers.

A Bandera Electric Co-op line crew was changing out a series of poles and hardware Tuesday, Oct. 3 in preparation for the installation of a TV cable service to Medina. Crew foreman, Jim Wagner, said that five structures would be raised in order to provide enough clearance for the additional wires. The work would take about 2 1/2 days, he said.

Flying L tournament to celebrate golf history

A Salute to Scotland will be the theme of an Oct. 15 golf tournament benefiting the American Cancer Society at the Flying L Golf Course in Bandera.

The game of golf originated in Scotland more than five centuries ago. "It's high time that we honored the Scots for giving us the wonderful game of golf," says tournament director Bob Neuser.

History's earliest mention of the game of golf was in 1457 when King James II issued an anti-golf edict. "Instead, the people were urged to practice archery, a sport more allied to the defense of the realm," says Neuser.

Bagpipers and drummers in Highland dress from the San Antonio Scottish Society will accompany the golfers down the fairway with ancient battle tunes, Neuser said. A number of golfers will play the tournament wearing Scottish kilts, and golfers of Scottish and Irish ancestry particularly are urged to participate. "If they choose to come in kilts, so much the better," says Neuser.

The tournament is limited to 120 golfers, or 30 teams of four players each, the tourney director said. It will be a four-person scramble for both men and women. The cost per person is $50, and that includes green fees, golf cart, soft drinks and an awards dinner at the Flying L pavilion where winners will receive prizes.

Radio personality Bob Guthrie of WOAI in San Antonio will be master of ceremonies at an awards dinner following the tournament.

Game dinner wall hanging on display at Witte Museum

A one-of-a-kind applique wall hanging designed and executed by noted San Antonio fiber artist Wilanna Bristow, goes on display Thursday, Sept. 28, for one week only, in the lobby of the Witte Museum.

Entitled "Native Texans," the 4'x6' stitchery depicting native Texas animals in a woodland setting, will be a live auction highlight at the San Antonio Museum Association's Oct. 5 game dinner gala and auction. The week-long display will give visitors an opportunity to preview the wall hanging prior to the event.

Commissioned for the auction, "Native Texans" has been generously underwritten by Elizabeth H. Maddux. Proceeds from the annual fall Texas-style gala at the Witte Museum benefit the general operating budget of the San Antonio Museum Association.

For reservations and further information, call 226-5544, ext. 262.

The Witte Museum is located at 3801 Broadway, San Antonio.

Larry Mahan to be saluted at legends event in Vegas

Rodeo legend Larry Mahan of Bandera will be saluted at the third annual Living Legend Awards tribute and roast in Las Vegas during the National Finals Rodeo on Dec. 8.

Harley May, three-time world champion steer wrestler, will also be recognized.

Mahan was best all-around rodeo performer six times and two-time world champion bull rider. He also competed in bareback riding and saddle bronc riding.

After retirement from active competition, he was active in retailing western clothing, music, ranching and raising horses and team roping and even appeared in a couple of movies.

He currently owns a ranch off FM Road 2828 west of Bandera.

The Medina Lake level dropped another foot last week to 38 feet below the spillway and lake residents keep moving their floating docks and boats farther out as the water recedes. This photograph from Neal Cove shows Tiki Island in the background. If the lake were full, the photographer would have been 25 feet under water.

Former Medina athlete subject of UIL probe

Former Medina student Troy House and the Ingram school district were the subject of a University Interscholastic League inquiry into allegations that the high school senior was recruited by Ingram, a violation of UIL rules, the San Antonio Express-News reports.

House scored more than 2,000 points the last two seasons while playing at Leakey. He attended Medina school as a junior high school student. House averaged 45.3 points per game in leading Leakey to the Region IV-A finals. Leakey lost only four games in the two years that House played there.

His mother, June House, was hired this summer by the Ingram School District, and allegations that the student-athlete was recruited by Ingram surfaced during a meeting of the district's executive committee. House's father remains a coach in Leakey.

If the district committee, which was to meet Tuesday, finds that UIL rules were broken, it could declare House ineligible for any UIL activity for the remainder of the school year.

Old ropers will team up in Mansfield arena

The 21st annual team roping fiesta will be held at Bandera's Mansfield Rodeo Arena Oct. 6-8, featuring teams whose combined ages is 100 years or more.

Competition will begin Friday at about 7:30 p.m. with roping teams made up of cowboys 40 years of age and older and will last until close to midnight, says Walter Langehenning, one of the organizers.

Saturday competition will begin about 10 a.m. with ropers 50 years of age and older.

Later Saturday, the "Century Team Roping" will commence, with teams whose combined age of both partners must total 100 years or more with the youngest partner of any team is 40 years of age or over.

Saturday's competition will continue until about 7 p.m., estimates Langehenning. The length of the roping event will depend on how many people actually enter.

Contestants are expected from Florida, California, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Oklahoma, and New Mexico, as well as Texas and Langehenning says contestants have booked many rooms in the local motels.

They plan to use the covered arena next door to the open air arena if rain occurs.

There is no admission charge for spectators.

Last year's winners in the 40 years and older category were Wayne Shaw of Blanket, and Ed Watkins of Taft, Calif. Last year's winners in the 50 years and older category were Bronc Cutty of Hennessey, Okla. and Watkins. Last year's winners in the century competition were Shaw and Glen Rainy of Rockwall.

Panthers rip Bobcats, 28-0

The Medina Bobcats are still looking for their first win of the season after going down to a 28-0 thrashing at the hands of Blanco's Panthers Friday, Sept. 29.

Panther tailback Shane Johnson was the leading scorer with touchdown runs of one and nine yards, both in the first half. Ryan Johnson also tallied six points on a five yard charge and quarterback Jason Wagenfehr passed eight yards to Pat Jonas for the final TD. Brett Fisher passed to John Romero for a two-point conversion after the second score and Daryl Fishbeck booted two PATs in the final period.

Medina ball handler Sloan Baker tried to pass his team out of trouble but only completed four of 24 attempts for 37 yards. The Bobcat ground game was led by Jason Childers and Thomas Fields but Panther defenders held Medina to only 67 yards for the night.

Medina, now 0-4, will host Texas Military Institute Friday, Oct 6. Game time is 8 p.m.

Blocked punt recovery gives dogs third win

By Nick Johnson
Editor

San Antonio — Despite a recurring attack of turnoveritis, Bandera's Bulldogs handed San Antonio Memorial a 14-7 defeat Friday in a non-district football game at Edgewood Stadium.

A Minuteman punt blocked by Bulldog sophomore Ethan Timmons in the end zone and covered by linebacker Bo Mansfield furnished the margin of victory.

It was sweet revenge for the Bandera defense which had watched Memorial's speedy running back Terry Stevenson go by enroute to a 70-yard touchdown with three seconds left in the second quarter to break the Bulldogs' string of not having allowed a touchdown at 13.

That lightening-like strike came on the first play from scrimmage after Bandera put together a workman-like 68-yard scoring drive that ended on a 19-yard scoring pass from quarterback Epi Cardenas to Jeff Hensley.

Up until that late first-half scoring frenzy, Bandera had completely dominated the Minutemen, but were throttled by another attack of turnovers that had led to their only defeat a week earlier.

This time there were only three fumbles, compared to nine turnovers last week, but they came at the most crucial spots. One of them kept Bandera out of the Minuteman end zone after the Bulldogs had driven to the Memorial 5-yard line. "The others were on drives we needed to sustain," said coach Sam Swierc.

An apparent 66-yard touchdown run by Cardenas in the second stanza was called back because of a clipping penalty.

As usual, the defense was the bright spot for Bandera, and Coach Swierc had high praise for Paul Mangold, Mansfield, Valen Dews, Ber Samuel, Jesse Cardenas and Jeff Pullin. "And Trevor Hull, a defensive guard for only two weeks but already a starter, has come on real well," the coach said.

Bandera faces Comfort Friday in the Bobcats' own den, and the Bulldogs may be fighting the flu bug as well as the 'Cats when the curtain rises on the final non-district contest of the year.

Three coaches, including head man Swierc, were suffering through the disease this week and several players were also suffering early in the week, including starting linebacker and punter Leroy Brown.

"Comfort is by far the best team we've seen up to this point," Swierc worried this week. "They are a senior ball club with several players who have been starters for four years.

"They'll be in the playoffs this year," said Swierc flatly.

Kickoff time in Comfort is 8 p.m.

The Comfort junior varsity will play here Thursday at 6 p.m. and both junior high teams will be in Comfort for contests that start at 5 p.m.

Cross-country team places 5th in Kerrville

Medina, led by Sloan Baker who finished 14, placed fifth in a cross country meet in Kerrville in competition with junior varsity teams from Class AAAAA schools and other varsity teams from Class AAA and AA schools. Medina is Class A.

Baker finished the 3.1-mile course in 19 minutes, 57 seconds. The first five finishers of each team count toward the team standings, and other Bobcat placers were Norman Hurt, who finished 21st in 20:26; Donny Rambin, 28th in 21:06; Shane Keese, 47th in 21:35; and Thomas Fields, 63rd in 22:15.

Josh Turpin was just behind Fields in 64th place, also in 22.15, and Shane Hodge finished in 26:03 and Josh Sims in 29:25.

Only three Lady Bobcats competed, too few to compete for the team title, and Cali Barton finished the two-mile course in 16 minutes, 19 seconds; Mary Roland in 16:23, and Key Blanton in 20:26.

'We think ... will be good for Brady,' citizens say

By Nick Johnson
Editor

Brady — The merchant outside his store on courthouse square here Friday was surrounded by an array of merchandise you wouldn't expect to be best sellers among visitors with horse racing on their minds. His sidewalk display included such items as cheap throw rugs, inexpensive towels, and slippers and handkerchiefs.

"We think racing will be good for Brady," he said. "We've been waiting a long time, but now it's here, and we're ready for it."

A couple of miles away at G. Rollie White Downs, a race track on the outskirts of this town that advertises itself as "the geographic center of Texas," a man of a different stripe used exactly the same words.

"We think racing will be good for Brady," said Clifford Grubbs, as a crowd of news reporters and television cameramen crowded around him. Grubbs was an all-state running back for Harlandale High School in San Antonio in 1955 and now he's the man on whom the people of Brady are counting to make their track an economic catalyst. He's track president.

The local newspaper, The Brady Standard, headlined one story in a 22-page special section published Friday, "Track should bring town 'back to life.'" Grocery store owner Bob McShan told the newspaper, "I can't help but feel that it (pari-mutuel racing) will bring Brady back to life. We should definitely see a boom in our economy," he said.

The special section was crowded with large-size advertisements from local merchants who apparently hoped it would revive their businesses. McDonald's advertised a "daily double," an ordinary Big Mac with two beef patties. And Norman Motors proclaimed in large letters, "Welcome race fans! Rent a Ford."

Grubbs looked tired as he moved through a small group of mostly-local well-wishers in the open-air tent that served as a turf club for opening weekend. He was accepting the accolades of a bevy of Brady citizens sipping drinks and Lone Star beer under the tent as the rain poured down outside. They seemed to be at a victory celebration.

In the stands nearby and under them where shiny pari-mutuel windows were ranged in a long, well-lighted line, 5,000 paying customers were busy reading their racing forms, consulting a tout sheet that sold at the track and in a few stores for $3, and

City gives raises to public works crew

Bandera city council Monday gave across-the-board 25-cent-per-hour pay increases to the four-member public works crew and authorized the hiring of a fifth man at $4 per hour at the urging of new public works director Rey Garcia.

"I want to give them an incentive raise of 25 cents per hour each," Garcia told the council. "That's for good faith," he said, indicating he had asked them to work more efficiently and wants this raise to show them that it will pay off.

The raises will go to Jay Carpenter, who currently is paid $1,242.37 per month; James Sutton, now earning $800 per month; Brian Cummings, now paid $918.66; and Julian Campos, now paid $608.

Garcia said he wanted to station Cummings to monitor the solid waste treatment plant virtually full time and needed the fifth employee to take up some of the slack that will result from that move.

Several serious spills of partially treated sewage into the Medina River during the past year have drawn the ire of county officials, state inspectors and downstream residents, and Garcia wants Cummings to observe the plant's operations more to prevent recurrence or at least to reduce the seriousness of such spills.

"Because we are monitored so closely by the Texas Water Commission and the Environmental Protection Agency, I want Brian Cummings to monitor the plant all the time, except when his presence is required elsewhere in emergency situations," Garcia told the council.

"I don't want them (state and federal officials) coming down here and raising hell with us," he said. "I want to comply with their rules and regulations as closely as possible."

He told the council that the pay raises and the new employee could be paid for from budgeted funds.

The council also authorized Garcia to purchase a "sewer jet machine" for up to $5,000. That's a machine that flushes water through sewer mains under extreme pressure to clean the pipes of grease and other obstructions.

He also gave the city an example of an escalating water rate he wants to institute here "to put in the minds of people that water is a precious commodity and that it is a finite commodity."

The new rate schedule, which will be considered in detail by the council at a future session, would mean raising the water rate for users that consume larger amounts of water.

As an example only and not a concrete recommendation, he said the present rate of $1 per 1,000 gallons could be raised to $1.25 for customers that use between 25,500 and 35,000 gallons per month; $1.50 for those using between 35,000 and 45,000 gallons; $1.75 for those using between 45,000 and 55,000 gallons, and $2 for those using more than 55,000 gallons.

The average residential customer uses 25,500, he said, and therefore would not experience a rate increase.

He also suggested a series of Industrial tour starts in Bandera Oct. 19

Bandera is one of 10 communities on the itinerary of a group of representatives from businesses shopping for new locations, the Lower Colorado River Authority announced this week.

The industrial representatives will be in Bandera on Thursday, Oct. 19, the first stop on their 10-community, four-day familiarization tour sponsored by the LCRA's economic development office.

Company presidents, industry representatives and industrial location specialists will comprise the tour, lodging at Tapatio Springs Resort near Boerne.

The Bandera portions of the tour are being coordinated by insurance man Joe W. McMullan, chairman of the Bandera County Chamber of Commerce's Economic Development Committee.

Other communities included in the tour are Boerne, Gruene/New Braunfels, Schertz/Cibolo, Seguin, San Marcos, Georgetown, Elgin, Bastrop and Smithville.

"Central Texas is an undiscovered oasis with low-cost electricity, a good supply of water, an excellent labor pool, and a high quality of life," says the LCRA, and "that's the message that is being delivered" during the tour, it said.

The LCRA is the sole supplier of power to the Bandera Electric Cooperative, Inc., which provides electricity in Bandera and Boerne and several other communities in the area.

The tour will kick off in Bandera and then go to Gruene for lunch and the rapidly-growing city of New Braunfels. From there they will see the successful businesses of Schertz and Cibolo, including Garden Ridge Pottery, the largest import center in the Southwest, and Jungle Laboratories and Nabisco.

The tour guests will progress through the industrial town of Seguin and have dinner at Aquarena Springs Restaurant in San Marcos before resting for the night at Camp Warnecke Resort Condominiums in New Braunfels.

Friday's itinerary includes a visit to historic San Marcos, home of Southwest Texas State University

Polygraph test inconclusive in 'Crazy Bob' robbery case

A polygraph given to Thomas W. Pagel last week proved inconclusive, and another lie-detector test was scheduled for sometime this week, Bandera County sheriff Steve Forest said Monday.

Pagel, 19, of Kerrville, was arrested last week in connection with the recent robbery and attack on local saloon owner Robert "Crazy Bob" Applegate, according to Forest.

Applegate was reportedly beaten and robbed Friday, Sept. 22, and according to a sheriff's report, he was tied with electrical cords, then beaten and kicked and left tied up in the bathroom.

Forest said the investigation is still continuing, and there are several inconsistencies between Pagel's story and Applegate's account of what happened Sept. 22. One discrepancy is the amount of money in question, Forest said.

"To be conclusive, we are going to have to repeat the test."

Oct. 5, and he seated OK on some things, but some others he failed."

Rewards offered for cow killer

Partially butchered animal left by roadside

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

Rewards totaling $1,500 have been offered for the person or persons responsible for butchering a cow that was found near Medina last week, says Bandera County Sheriff Steve Forest.

The black holstein/angus cross was found on State Highway 16 about halfway between Bandera and Medina, about a quarter mile from Winan's Creek Thursday, Oct. 5, about 1.7 miles from where is was supposed to be. Both hindquarters and one front quarter had been removed. The cow was about four months pregnant, according to owner Hilbert W. "Sonny" Jonas.

"The job looked absolutely professional," said Forest. "It appears to be someone well-skilled in slaughtering animals, either a deer hunter or a butcher."

The sheriff said it did not appear that the cow had been hit on the road, and that there was no evidence that it had been in the right of way before it was killed.

"We examined the location where the cow was found, and (are) of the opinion that the cow's throat was cut at that location where found," Forest said. "We made a thorough search on Jonas' place for evidence as to how the cow moved or was transported or captured and could find nothing amiss with the fences on the property, no evidence where she had jumped the fence or where she had been removed from the premises," the sheriff said.

"We checked the highway from Jonas' place to the location where the animal was found and did not locate any droppings or tracks."

The sheriff said Jonas has offered a $1,000 reward for the arrest, indictment and conviction of the person or persons responsible, and the sheriff is offering an additional $500 for the arrest and indictment of a suspect. He said they hope that someone who might have witnessed anything suspicious-looking in that area last Thursday will contact the sheriff's office.

"Someone must have passed by or seen something," Forest said. He said apparently something or someone must have interrupted the culprits before they finished removing the fourth quarter. He said the skin had been split, like they were about to remove the other front leg.

Viewpoint

The Austin American Statesman

Despite criticism from some armchair generals in the Congress, the administration of President Bush was correct to refrain from direct military intervention during the recent attempted coup to remove Panamanian ruler Manuel Noriega.

Secretary of State James Baker declared before a Senate committee that the United States retains the option to intervene. The U.S. government certainly has the right to intervene in order to protect the Panama Canal or U.S. troops who could be under attack.

But the United States should not militarily intervene to topple the ruler of any country with which we are not at war, however odious that despot.

What the country can do is wait patiently and anticipate the eventual fate sure to befall Noriega and the development of a genuine internal democracy movement, which the United States could support.

The chances of Noriega becoming the victim of his own nefarious activities are high, for he is involved in two high-risk operations: international drug trafficking, according to drug enforcement officials, and the persecution of his own people. Either one seems certain to guarantee him a sudden downfall.

In the case of the short-lived rebellion this week, news reports credit jealousy and an unfair division of drug dividends as the reason for the near-insurrection. If that was the source of the dissatisfaction among the Panamanian officer corps, then two things are surely at play: one is that substituting yet another corrupt general would have solved little. The other is that this same corps of officers will, as drug ringleaders often do, again disintegrate into personal rivalries with the chieftain continuing in danger.

But, if his own officers do not get Noriega, the people eventually will, for despite Noriega's megalomanic declarations that "only God can kill me," a people long oppressed more often than not rise up and do what a U.S. administration should not do. The people may be, in the end, the very force God uses to remove Noriega.

The following is an excerpt from an editorial in the Dallas Morning News:

The Texas Supreme Court has ruled by a unanimous vote that Texas' system of public education funding is unconstitutional.

This will require a substantial rewriting of the state school funding laws, something that will affect every Texan.

It is important to note that the vote was 9-0. The finding was not the product of some liberal majority intent on acting as a super legislature. The current court includes three Republicans and two moderate-to-conservative Democrats. Although the opinion was written by the court's most liberal member, Oscar Mauzy, it was written with the concurrence of all other justices. Texans may say feel confident that their court has rendered a fair and accurate interpretation of the law.

In its ruling, the court specifically stated that it was the role of the Legislature to remedy the system's inadequacy. The court has given the Legislature until May 1 to make whatever changes it deems necessary to make the system constitutional.

The court stated clearly that it was not mandating more spending or higher taxes. It is clear that the current amount of money being spent simply can be redistributed more evenly among the school districts. However, that would certainly mean less funds available for many districts, while others would gain.

To create greater equality without cutting expenditures in any district will almost certainly cost more. That either will require a radical shift in spending priorities and tough choices, or more money.

If the answer is more money, that could mean a restructuring of the tax code, as well as the school funding system.

Supreme Court's school decision puts Capitol crowd in a spin

Top lawmakers disagreed on whether a tax increase will be needed to equalize public school financing in the wake of last week's historic Texas Supreme Court decision.

The High Court sent the Capitol world spinning with its unanimous decision that struck down the present finance system as unconstitutional and sent the issue back to the Legislature for remedy.

The justices gave legislators no recipe, but set May 1, 1990 as the deadline for a solution.

New Taxes Predicted

Key Democrats immediately predicted a state tax hike as much as $2 billion coupled with some local school district tax increases.

New taxes would most likely come in the form of an expanded sales tax base to include new service industries such as real estate and others.

The so-called "sin taxes" on alcohol and tobacco could also be increased and certain tax exemptions cancelled.

But Gov. Bill Clements cautioned that money itself was not the solution and promised to call a special session this spring following task force hearings across the state.

The High Court, composed of six Democrats and three Republicans, said the present system cheats students in poor school districts out of an equal education.

Bloated School Budgets

Clements said the first step to a solution was to attack bloated school budgets and consolidate some of the 1,100 school districts.

While some local school districts feared a loss of state revenues, Clements also warned other districts not to expect large amounts of new state funds to be infused into local spending.

Prisons, Drug Stance

Unused military bases and under-used state buildings should be temporary housing for prisoners and drug addicts, said former Secretary of State Jack Rains, now a candidate for governor.

"If these barracks, dorms and hospital beds were good enough for our nation's soldiers, they should be good enough for our state's prisoners," he said.

Rains also promised he and his staff would set examples for others in state government by voluntarily submitting to drug tests.

He also vowed to push for a new law requiring prison inmates to improve their literacy skills and be drug-free before parole.

Burial Plots for Sale

Texas General Land Commissioner Garry Mauro said the state would auction 17 burial plots in a cemetery where three former governors, two U.S. cabinet members, and the first woman elected to statewide office are buried.

The lots are in historic Shady Oakwood Cemetery, which is owned by the Texas School for the Blind.

Governors Elisha Pease, Jim Hogg, and O.B. Colquitt are buried there. The sale will be held Oct. 25, with a minimum bid of $16,000.

Brady Races Start

Texas' fledgling parimutuel racing industry was off and running, for the first time in 52 years, at G. Rollie White Downs in Brady.

Gambling proponents predicted this new industry would boost local economies in Brady and other racetrack towns around the state, while opponents warned of organized crime.

Brady officials said motel rooms were booked solid in a 60-mile radius, whild a new fast food franchise rushed to open its doors before the weekend.

TDC Moves on Job Program

The Texas Department of Commerce sent a five-man team to take financial control of the Dallas job-training program after it failed for months to send the state proper budget reports.

Last year the $12 million Dallas program was reported having one of the worst records for training welfare recipients and the poor.

Other Highlights

- Former state Rep. Cliff Johnson, who until recently served as Gov. Bill Clements' legislative director, was appointed by Clements to the Texas Water Commission.
- The State Preservation Board awarded emergency contracts of up to $192,860 to remove cancer-causing asbestos particles released into the basement of the state Capitol during a recent fire.
- Six people, including two Killeen attorneys, have announced their candidacy to fill the seat vacated by the resignation of longtime state Rep. Stan Schlueter.
- Eleven Texas counties repeated their demand for the Texas Department of Corrections to take about 6,000 felons out of their jails, while their attorneys asked for permission to seek compensation for keeping them.
- Chuck Nash, chairman of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission, was named to the National Park System Advisory Board by Secretary of the Interior Michael Lujan.

Bandera County
potpourri
By Nick Johnson

When I arrived in Brady Friday I had time to take a little look around the city and interview a downtown merchant before heading out to the track for the first day of pari-mutuel racing in Texas in more than a half century. On the way I stopped at a convenience store that advertised racing forms and tout sheets.

The racing form was a bargain. They were giving it away as an introductory gesture. The tout sheet was $3 – little enough, I thought, if it would help me pick just one winner.

A program was another necessity, at $1.25, because neither the racing form nor the tout sheet listed the program numbers of the horses in each race, and the sign at the pari-mutuel window was clear: "How to call a bet: 1. Amount of bet, 2. Type of bet, 3. Horse number."

I also picked up a copy of the local newspaper – another bargain at 35 cents – because it contained a special section devoted to pari-mutuel racing. More information, I thought, to help me pick some winners at the track.

My tout sheet and the program each fingered No. 9 in the first race, and who was I to argue? After all, No. 9 was named "He A Vik," a natural choice for a true descendant of the Vikings from Nordland.

The wait at the in the line at the pari-mutuel window was only brief, and when I got to the front of the line I said, in a voice I hoped sounded experienced, "Five dollars to win on number nine."

Rain began to fall before the first race went off and I wondered if He A Vik was also He A Mudder. But no matter, my $5 was in the hands (hooves?) of a 2-year-old gelding.

Like Allstate, they were good hands, because He A Vik was a winner, and I tried to act casual as I went to the window to collect my winnings, my historic winnings in the historic first race in a half century.

P.S.: You guessed it. I blew my entire $17 and more in the next four races.

Such is the ecstacy and agony of pari-mutuel horse racing.

Joel Sides in rites at academy

Midshipman Joel Sides of Medina recently participated in Acceptance Day ceremonies at the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N.Y., where he is a student.

The event marks the official "acceptance" of the freshman, or plebe, class into the ranks of the academy's regiment of midshipmen.

A 1989 graduate of Medina High School, Sides was one of 269 plebes given the academy oath by Rear Adm. Paul L. Krinsky, the superintendent.

Sides and other members of the plebe class reported to the academy in July. Operated by the Maritime Administration of the U.S. Department of Transportation, the academy trains future merchant marine officers.

Two injured in separate mishaps on Park Rd. 37 near Lakehills

Two persons were injured in separate accidents Saturday, Oct. 7, on Park Road 37 in the Lakehills area, according to Texas Department of Public Safety trooper Dan Butts, and a man injured last week is reported to be in good condition this week.

Roger Allen Peterson of Lakehills, who was injured in last weekend's one car rollover, is reported in good condition.

Steven Rio, 27, of San Antonio was injured when the motorcycle he was driving went off the road 4.8 miles east of FM Road 1283 at approximately 1:50 p.m. Saturday. He was transported by Lakehills EMS, according to Butts.

Henry Dorantes, 31, of San Antonio was also reported injured Saturday at about 5 p.m. when he was thrown from his vehicle when it overturned. According to Butts, the red Toyota left the roadway and overturned on Park Road 37 past Turk's store, near the fire station.

Dorantes was transported to Medical Center Hospital by Lakehills EMS and treated for multiple trauma. His condition Monday was listed as fair, but guarded.

Peterson, 28, who was in surgical intensive care last week after he lost control of his 1984 Chevy Monte Carlo Saturday, Sept. 30 southeast of Mico, was listed in good condition Monday.

He was recently moved from SIC to a regular hospital floor, reports a spokeswoman for Medical Center Hospital in San Antonio.

Peterson's injuries were listed as multiple trauma by the hospital last week.

His passenger, Greg Windell, 22, of Akinson was treated and released the day of the accident.

Attorney announces for state rep

Tom Cate, a 33-year-old attorney from Lytle, has announced his candidacy for state representative, District 45, the seat now held by state Rep. Eldon Edge, a Poth Democrat.

Cate's campaign announcement failed to mention whether he would seek the nomination of the Democratic or Republican party. District 45 includes Atascosa, Frio, Live Oak, Medina, Wilson and Bandera counties.

Cate earned a law degree from St. Mary's University in San Antonio and he did undergraduate work at Texas Lutheran College in Seguin.

He has been in solo practice of law in Lytle since August 1981, and he serves as city attorney for the cities of Devine and Lytle.

He grew up in Lytle and is married to the former Linda Lytle. They have two young sons, Charles and Daniel.

Walter H. Joyce Jr. of Lytle is Cate's campaign treasurer.

City appoints Dorothy Darden to replace Stephens on council

Bandera city council Monday named Dorothy Darden to fill out the council term left vacant by the sudden resignation of Rilla Stephens.

Dorothy Darden

Stephens submitted her resignation last week, to be effective Tuesday, Oct. 3, in a terse letter that gave no reason for her move. "Please accept my resignation from the city council, effective Oct. 3," she wrote in her letter of resignation. "My deepest apologies for having to do this."

Darden received the fourth-highest vote total in last May's city council election at which the three top vote getters were elected to the council. She was named on 61 ballots while Stephens was named on 86. Charlie Eckhart on 78 and Geneva Dowell on 74.

She is the wife of former county attorney Sam L. Darden, a former city attorney.

public information seminars covering such topics as how to conserve water, where our water comes from and why the supply is limited, and how to maintain a nice lawn without using 55,000 gallons of water.

He also got the council's OK to proceed on getting prices to complete the renovation of the city's well number 3, which is under the water tower behind the OST Restaurant. The city has already spent $48,000 on the well without result, but he says for an additional $14,000 "I'm going to get you at least 250 gallons per minute."

"What I have in mind is to perforate the well," he explained, and he wants to utilize a line shaft drive pump powered by a 100 horsepower electric motor instead of a submersible pump.

He promised to bring detailed cost estimates to the council's Nov. 13 meeting.

In other action Monday, the council authorized closing Oak Street between Main and 11th streets Saturday for the filming of Johnny Bush at The Cabaret Dance Hall, OKed the repair of an existing street light and the erection of warning signs on Rugh Hill where complaints of young people "hanging out" have been voiced, and authorized the marking of five Main Street parking spaces "for compact cars only."

Police chief Walter Welch objected to the change in parking on Main Street, saying it was impossible to enforce because one man's "small car" may be another man's "medium car."

But Mayor Raymond Adámietz told him manufacturers designate their cars as compact or full-sized and the police department could get a manufacturers' listing to tell the difference.

Two of the parking places in question are in front of Busbee's Bar-B-Que and three are across Main Street in front of Roundup Realty. Parking pickups or full-size cars in those spaces causes Main Street traffic to cross the center line to avoid hitting them, the council was told.

The council did not take action on a bid from city inspector Jon Murrell to construct a pump house on Rugh Hill. Murrell's bid was submitted after two others bid about $1,000 each to do the job using stone construction. Murrell's bid was about one-half the others, but council members worried that the awarding of the contract to a city employee would be a conflict of interest.

A discussion of the future of the Frontier Hotel, which was supposed to involve plumber Dan Rittman, Steve Milne, lessor Linda Romjue, and owner representative Charles Chandler, was postponed until Monday, Oct. 16, at the request of Romjue, who said she and her people preferred to discuss it during a workshop session devoted almost completely to that issue alone.

Thefts plague newspaper distributor

As more "win money" type games are added to San Antonio newspapers on sale in Bandera, more people are "paying for one and taking them all," according to Glen Lawless, the local distributor for the San Antonio Light.

"My wife and I have had this distributorship since February, 1988," he said. "We've always had some stealing, but since they (the Light) started Lotería, our losses have gone up 30 to 50 percent, mostly on Sundays. We have a few daily losses, but the game issues are the ones hit hardest."

"We lost 53 papers last week and 10 just from the Bandera Inn alone this weekend," said Lawless. "My cost is 43 cents a paper and that has to be paid. I lose the costs and the profit from the 75 cent selling price."

Lawless says that of his 10 vending machines, the worst thefts occur at the post office location and at Boyle's and Super S groceries. "I've quit placing many papers at the post office," he said. "I put two, one top and one bottom. That's it. Whoever buys one takes them all, every time."

"In an effort to stop the loss of catch," Lawless kept watch on his machines this weekend and it paid off. He nabbed one woman in the act of stealing and filed charges against her. "It was terrible," he said. "I was really embarrassed and upset, but I've got to do something."

Lawless also saw a man remove extra papers from the machine at Super S and got his vehicle license number. "I hate to charge someone for stealing a newspaper, but they add up to a lot of money," he said. "I will continue to monitor the boxes and I will file charges on anybody I catch."

Sales taxes in city, county up over figures of year ago

Sales tax collections in the city of Bandera during September were 12.4 percent higher than a year ago, bringing the total for the year to more than $110,000, 8.2 percent more than was collected in the first nine months of 1988.

The state comptroller's office said merchants inside the city of Bandera collected $9,499 as the city's share of the sales tax during September. That compares with $8,454 for the same period last year.

The city has received $110,848 so far this year, 8.2 percent more than the $102,474 received through the first nine months of 1988.

Bandera County received a rebate of $8,023, up 18.9 percent over a comparable period last year. That brings the county's year-to-date total to $58,180, up 47 percent from 1988. The county's total must be [illegible] percent before it receives any rebate.

Statewide, city rebates were up almost 11 percent for September and year-to-date payments to cities are up an average of 9.5 percent, state comptroller Bob Bullock said.

Receipts for the year were generally up in other area communities also. San Antonio receipts for 1989 were up 9.9 percent, Leon Valley up 9.2 percent, Blanco up 11.3 percent, Johnson City up 37.0 percent, New Braunfels up 17.0 percent, Fredericksburg up 51.3 percent, Boerne up 3.9 percent, Ingram up 14.4 percent, Kerrville up 6.8 percent, Junction up 3.4 percent, Castroville up 1.3 percent, Hondo up 12.6 percent, Uvalde up 0.8 percent.

placing bets. Before the day was out, they would wager $188,975 on 10 races.

It was the first betting on horse races that has taken place under the watchful eye of the Department of Public Safety in 52 years, and there were plenty of DPS agents around, as well as representatives of the state comptroller's department, the health department, and others.

Internal Revenue Service agents were there also, taking immediately off the top their share of any winnings over $100.

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

But there were as many losers as winners. It's planned that way, of course. Winning wagers are paid from a pari-mutuel pool that is made up of money bet on the race after the state, the track, and several others take their share also off the top.

Saturday's crowd of 5,100 topped Friday's by about 100, said track spokesmen Gus Timmens, but Sunday's attendance was 4,700, though among them was Gov. Bill Clements and his wife, Rita, whose mother, Mrs. Mason Crocker, has a home in Brady.

The McCulloch County sheriff's department said the crowd in Brady over the weekend was large but extremely well behaved. "In fact, we really had a below-normal weekend as far as arrests were concerned," Chief Deputy Johnny King told The Bulletin by phone Tuesday. "We had fewer arrests than we would than we do on a normal weekend."

Not a single racing fan related incident was reported during the weekend, he said.

Several Bandera residents were spotted among the 5,000 opening-day fans, including Bitsy Waits who said she managed to bet on the winner in the first race, but still didn't win any money. That's because she was so determined to have a winner in that historic first race that she bet on all 10 horses.

There were a few hitches, mostly caused by the track management's failure to complete arrangements in time for opening day. There were no television monitors available to the public, though the mounts for the monitors were erected. The turf club was not complete, so a tent served the purpose. There were no betting windows there Friday, but news reports said they were in place Saturday for the convenience of turf club patrons.

There was also a shortage of thoroughbreds, a fact one owner blamed on a natural inclination of track officials to favor quarter horses that have supported racing and wheel racing in Texas for years, and their [illegible] absolute absence of out-of-state horses, a fact some attributed to a too-high state tax on wagering and others said was a tribute to the Texas horse industry.

Bandera Downs co-owner Don Essary of Amarillo was pleased with what he saw at Brady on opening day as he marveled at the progress track officials made in the last five days before opening. "Stan (Scruby) and I were here Monday and they had a long way to go," he said. "Today, most of it is in place and it looks good."

He said it's almost a horse racing tradition for race tracks to get ready just minutes before opening day, or hours after it. "It was the same way at Remington Park in Oklahoma last year," he recalled. "No one wants to be late, but it seems like they all are."

"Will we be ready on opening day (March 2)?" he reflected after a reporter's question. "We don't want to be late," he said.

But opening day at Brady was a cheering experience for Essary. He surveyed the crowd of 5,000. "If they can draw this many people up here, we should be able to double it, with the proximity of San Antonio," he observed.

The pari-mutuel handle (the total amount wagered) surpassed $200,000 on Saturday and again on Sunday ($201,754 and $200,363). Five percent of the handle goes to the state, and five percent to horsemen by way of purses. The track keeps 8 to 10 percent, depending on the type of wager, and the remainder (about 81 percent) is returned to the bettors who have winning tickets.

Admission prices ranged from $2 for general admission to $7 for turf club seating. McCulloch County may collect 15 cents for each admission and the city of Brady may do the same.

Nine nominated for appraisal district director positions

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Nine Bandera County citizens were nominated Monday for five positions on the board of directors of the Bandera County Appraisal District, with other nominations possible this week.

Bandera County Commissioners placed the names of five persons, including two commissioners, as their nominees for the board. Bandera Independent School District nominated three Bandera-area current directors, and the Utopia ISD nominated one man.

Medina ISD and the city of Bandera will decide their nominees later in the week, with a deadline of Oct. 16 for the nominations.

Each voting tax entity is allowed to place up to five names in nomination.

Bandera County Commissioners Monday, Oct. 9, selected Louise Karr, Gary Johnston, Gilbert Scheele, and commissioners Dan Alanis and Roger Raser as their nominees to the appraisal district board.

Commissioners were afraid that the Bandera school district, with its overwhelming 53.2 percent of the vote, could control the board of directors by nominating and electing their nominees. "Previously, we submitted one name and voted for that one person," said Bandera County Judge Ray F. Mauer, "and each tax entity did the same thing."

Under the director election procedure, Bandera ISD gets 2,660 votes, or 53.2 percent of the total vote. Bandera County gets 1,526 votes, or 30.52 percent; Utopia ISD gets 379 votes, or 7.58 percent; Medina ISD gets 378 votes, or 7.56 percent; and the city of Bandera gets 57 votes, or 1.14 percent. The vote is based on each taxing entity's contribution to the appraisal district's budget which, in turn, is based on taxable valuations.

Under the procedure, any entity could divide its vote and cast portions of its share of the votes for several nominees or cast all its votes for one candidate. Bandera ISD, with such a large percentage of the votes, could elect two to four directors, depending on how the other entities voted.

With the second largest share, the county could elect one or two directors.

Splitting the county's vote would defeat the original procedure of each voting tax entity electing one director, said commissioner Raser.

Commissioner Alanis said that if the county cast all its votes for one candidate, it would be assured of representation, and if the county voted for two, the other school districts and the city may not have representation.

In separate action, board of director incumbents Joe Hearn, W.B. Kirkpatrick and Fabian Masurek were nominated by the Bandera Independent School District board of trustees at their Monday night meeting.

"Generally, I think the (school) board feels there needs to be some consistency (on the appraisal district board) in order for the appraisal district to move forward," said school superintendent Ted Dockery Tuesday. He indicated that in general the school board approved of the job done by the appraisal district board in the past.

The county earlier this year tried to remove Kirkpatrick from the board, but was blocked by a disagreement over procedure with chief appraiser Larry Reagan.

In separate action, Utopia ISD trustees Monday night placed the name of Ben Barrow in nomination for the BCAD board.

Joe Snyder of Utopia, who is currently serving on the board, said he did not wish to serve again.

The Bandera City Council will meet Friday at 5 p.m. to decide who it will nominate.

Medina ISD will consider their nominations at their regular board meeting Thursday, Oct. 12 beginning at 7:30 p.m., says superintendent Jerry Huie.

Joe "Sonny" Payne of Medina also currently serves on the BCAD board.

Commissioners don't act on Medina landfill, dog catcher issues

Bandera County Commissioners Monday, Oct. 9, took no action on closing the Medina landfill, but will proceed with development of a state-approved plan to cease dumping in the five-acre site.

In another matter, commissioners backed off hiring a dog catcher as a county employee and looked to contract the task. Commissioners also paid $600 restitution to ranchers who lost livestock to dog attacks.

In other action, commissioners gave preliminary acceptance of roads in Pipe Creek and Lakehills.

Commissioners plan to close the Medina landfill before Jan. 1, but could close it as soon as two or three months, says Bandera County Judge Ray Mauer.

The state will require stringent monitoring of groundwater quality and has specific requirements about what can and cannot be buried in the dump after the time, making the cost of operating the landfill prohibitive.

If the dump remains open past the state deadline, one well hole will have to be dug upstream of the dump and several downstream, says commissioner Roger Raser. The test wells, used to check water quality, could cost $35-45 per foot to drill and may have to be drilled down to the aquifer, he says. Water quality tests will have to be run to ensure the dump is not contaminating the water quality.

There is really not enough space left in the five-acre site to continue using it as a landfill and no maps have yet been found that show where garbage was buried, says Mauer. "It's hard to tell where we buried garbage."

The landfill is full, says commissioner N.P. "Bud" Thompson. "There is no place to dig any more holes (trenches)."

Apparently, commercial operators have been using the landfill and have been dumping prohibited material, says Mauer. He adds he suspects the commercial dumpers are coming from Kerrville or San Antonio.

Other changes to landfill operation if it is kept open much longer would be shredding tires instead of just burying them, no burning of trash, lining of trenches, and having the dump monitored 24 hours a day in case people break in to dump material.

Commissioners will prepare a closing plan and submit it to the state for approval, which will take six to eight weeks. A representative from the state health department will have met with county inspector Raymond "Spot" Wright and Mauer Tuesday to determine what elements need to be in the plan.

Medina residents will need to obtain residential garbage pickup from a firm such as Garbage Gobbler, who stands ready to provide the service, or the county will have to put a trash compactor in Medina similar to the ones in Bandera and Lakehills.

In another matter, commissioners will contact the veterinarians in the county to see if they'll contract or find someone to contract to be a dog catcher.

"The county does have the authority to pick up dogs without county tags that are running loose," says Mauer, but commissioners did not move to hire a dog catcher, as discussed at the Sept. 25 meeting.

Raser will approach both Steve Sells and Conrad Nightingale about either contracting with the county to provide a dog catching service or get their suggestions as to who can do it.

In other matters, commissioners agreed to distribute half of the remaining dog license tags fees, some $1,220, to ranchers with $4,805 claims in livestock killed by roaming dogs.

The county will pro-rate the $610 allocated among the eight ranchers who submitted claims ranging from $45 to $1,125.

Claims included Hugo Bausch with 24 ewes valued at $50 each and two yearling Angora goats at $40 each. Kim Herrera also lost 11 ewes at $50 each and one Angora nanny goat at $45 each.

Ernest Faris lost three registered Rambouliet ewes valued at $250 each and three Rambouliet lambs at $125 each.

Other claims include W.B. Joiner, seven nannies at a total of $315; Rocky A. Hubbie, four yearlings and one billy totalling $190; Jim Anderwald, five nannies, 14 kids, and four ewes totalling $710; Dewitt Leibold, four kids and two nannies totalling $200; and Patrick Godkin, 10 Spanish goats and four sheep totalling $490.

County inspector Mac Green visits the site of dog attacks, determines if the livestock was destroyed by dogs, and places a value on the animals.

The county charges a $1 dog registration fee for a county dog tag. Citizens who have their dogs vaccinated at veterinarians' offices in the county receive a rabies vaccination tag and can pay the $1 county registration fee at the vet's office and receive a county tag. Otherwise, citizens can obtain a dog tag license at the county treasurer's office in the courthouse.

The county cannot pay the full value of the claims because there is insufficient funds in the dog account, which is earmarked for restitution to ranchers. Alanis said if enforcement of the dog registration law, dogs that run loose must be tagged and if they run loose at night, must wear a muzzle. Dogs in violation can be picked up and destroyed if not claimed.

Thompson remarked that dogs who would be at home during the day, can travel up to five miles at night to kill livestock if allowed to run loose.

In road-related matters, commissioners gave preliminary acceptance of 0.4 miles of Wilderness Trail and 0.2 miles of Bailey's Circle in Timberc[illegible]eek Ranch south of Pipe Creek.

Residents will have a contractor bring both roads up to county specification, at an estimated cost of $[illegible] per foot.

The county previously accepted 4.5 miles of road in the subdivision, says Alanis.

In another road matter, commissioners accepted as county roads Fourth Street from Park Road 37 to one block west and an unnamed street one block west of Park Road 37 between 4th and 8th Streets.

Fourth Street, between the new Medina Lake Volunteer Fire Department Central firehouse Panchita Thomson's real estate office and the street behind the fire station will be used by the fire department's trucks, says Alanis.

Both roads will need to be worked, says Alanis.

A Look Back At Bandera

5 years ago... Bandera County had been declared a disaster area by the FmHA, "due to losses to cash and feed crops brought on by the drought and last winter's freeze." The new Silver Sage Corral building was taking shape, and Murry LeStourgeon and his crew were busy closing in the roof rafters. Pipe Creek was planning a fundraiser to build a home for the EMS unit, and Purple Hills Nursing Home administrator Eloise Nixon announced her retirement. Bandera Bulldogs beat the Hondo Owls "for the first time, ever," 12-9, before an estimated crowd of 3,500 spectators in Bulldog stadium. Bandera County Livestock Association directors were considering going forward with construction of a $75,000 livestock show barn, and Mr. and Miss BHS, Terri Butler and Bubba Calass, were named at BHS Homecoming. Lost Maples State Natural Area officials said leaves were already beginning to turn in the park, and that a beautiful display of color was predicted. Only 34 percent of the registered voters in BISD turned out to approve a bond election for the new elementary school, and school superintendent Ron Calass said Sept. 1986 was the earliest he could predict students attending the new school.

28 years ago... Langford Hardware Store announced that a brand new vehicle, The Scout, made by International Harvester, was now available in Bandera. Hill Country telephone company announced that dial-type telephones would be placed in several communities, including Medina, Center Point and Comfort. A large crowd gathered at Bennie's U-Bar Ranch for the annual 4-H barbecue and awards dinner. Those members honored included John Focke, Jamie Sue Nixon, Charmen, Dickie and Howard Hicks, Frank Craddock, Shirley Pember, Freddie Floch, Preston Faris, Shirley Welch, Susie Short, Arlin Thetford and Louis Reininger. Chuck roast was 49 cents per pound, grapes were 15 cents per pound, and a Duncan Hines cake mix was 31 cents. Roscoe Hayes and Ruth Bay were married Oct. 14, and D.W. Hicks and Mike Pember shared honors as premiere exhibitors at the Pan American Angora Goat Show in Dallas at the State Fair. Billy Griffin and Dan Alanis presided at the organizational meeting of the Bandera Lions Club, and Alanis was named president of the newly-formed organization. Movies showing at the Bantex Theater included Tammy Tell Me True, Ben Hur, The Parent Trap, Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea, Dondi, and the Curse of Frankenstein Will Haunt You Forever.

Robert Paniagua — 535-6172

Nathan R. McRae Jr. of Pipe Creek retired Thursday, Oct. 5, from the San Antonio Police Department after 39 years of service.

He was affectionately dubbed "Mr. Auto Theft" by the theft bureau.

He also received a 35 year service award from the city of San Antonio.

McRae and his wife, Sue, moved to Pipe Creek in 1984. They have three daughters, seven granddaughters, and one grandson. They are active members in the Pipe Creek Presbyterian Church.

New boating laws in effect

In addition to the new BWI (boating while intoxicated) law, several other new boating laws became effective and enforceable on Sept. 1 and pertain to specific boating regulations.

Senate Bill 1611 is meant to protect scuba divers and snorkelers from being struck by boats. Boaters can now be cited for operating a boat within 50-feet of a floating "divers flag" or an international "alpha" flag, both designating divers are "down" in the area.

The "divers flag" is 24-inches by 24-inches with a solid red background and a diagonal white stripe across it. The "alpha" flag is notched on it's open end, and is vertically blue and white striped. Boaters must also restrict headway speed (come to an idle) within 300-feet to 150-feet within the site of these flags.

House Bill 953 restricts the operation of larger horsepower boats to persons 13 years of age and over. A person 13 years and under can operate up to a 15-horsepower engine only. Persons 13 years and under can operate a larger horsepower boat when accompanied by a person 16 years or over who can produce evidence of having taken an approved boating course.

House Bill 2170 requires that all boats that are to be registered as "homemade" must be inspected by a peace officer in addition to the notarized affidavit already required. This is to prevent stolen boats from being titled as "homemade."

House Bill 3078 allows for a designated "observer" 13 years or over in the boat to watch a skier being pulled by the boat in lieu of a ski mirror. Ski mirrors four-inches by four-inches are still required without the use of an observer.

PC girl's clean air drawing displayed at SA hospital

A "Clean Air" drawing created by Holly Terry, 8, of Pipe Creek will be used as the "No Smoking" announcement at the Methodist Hospital in San Antonio and was unveiled Tuesday, Oct. 10.

Terry's drawing, one of 18 entries, depicts a field with a house, tree, and animals. It depicts her idea of what clean air should be, says her mother, Vicky Terry.

"Clean air is good to breathe," adds Holly.

Copies of her drawing, enlarged and framed, will be placed all around the hospital announcing the hospital's "Smoke Free Environment," says hospital spokeswoman Diane Dorsett. The hospital is restricting its smoking area to only a few places.

The other entries will be displayed on the hospital's fourth floor, the pediatric ward, says Dorsett.

Wharton's Dock

By John Ciarlo — 796-3225

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Walker have just returned from a trip to the midwest. They flew from San Antonio to Cleveland, Ohio where they were met by Bill's brother, Dr. Lewis Walker and wife from Akron, Ohio. In Akron they were met by another brother, Jim Walker from Fresno, Calif.

While in Ohio they drove to Kidroni Amish Country, a very unique community.

They visited the Mennonites Relief sale where 100 quilts and many ladies' crafts were displayed. They drove through the largest Amish settlement in the world in Wineburg, Ohio and admired the autumn coloration.

They the drove from Akron, Ohio to Indianapolis, Ind. to visit another one of Bill's brothers, John Walker, and his wife. While there they attended a family reunion to celebrate the 92nd birthday of Bill's aunt, Mary Katherine Underwood, affectionately known as Aunt Kit. Her birthday was proclaimed "Aunt Kit Day" by the Mayor of Indianapolis, who came to the 92-year-old's party Sept. 30.

In Mayor William H. Hudnut III's proclamation, he said, Underwood was "an Indianapolis resident since 1897; was a vital member of the work force until retirement in 1969, after which she continued to work part-time and volunteer; and she is a woman who is dedicated to her family, helping to raise her niece and nephew, caring for her late husband and now keeping her daughter, with whom she lives, on her toes."

• Betty Ciarlo's brother Jim Hevitt and wife Coyla drove in from Yuba City, Calif. for a few days visit. Jim and Coyla flew out of San Antonio for Buffalo N.Y. to attend a reunion in Niagara Falls of the 756th B-24 Bomber Squadron then based in Italy, of the 459th Bomb Group. They will return on Oct. 18 to spend a few days and then head back to California in their motor home.

• Tom Andreas was admitted to Wilford Hall Hospital Sunday, Oct. 8. No report on his condition as of Monday morning.

• Miss Laura Townsley, granddaughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Ken Allen, brought a whole day of joy to the Allen's house as Townsley visited Saturday, Sept. 30. She was accompanied by her parents Rick and Renee Townsley. There was further celebration as they surprised Rick with a birthday cake.

Laura lives in Austin and she says she really treasures these visits with grandad and grandmother.

There was a time of fellowship Sunday night as the Allens invited everyone attending church service to come over to the new parsonage for coffee and cake. It was a most enjoyable time as everyone got to see the parsonage after the "move-in" and relax with friends.

• Audrey Burge of Corpus Christi came up on Friday, Oct. 6, for a long weekend at her home in Wharton's Dock. Her granddaughter, Latricia Stein, who is attending Southwest Texas State University at San Marcos, came for a weekend visit.

They enjoyed a catfish dinner at the Copper Lantern and also attended the first Saturday of the month community dinner, which had a record crowd. Oscar Koehler prepared the barbecue for the community dinner.

• Thelma Fernandez and Juanita "Sister" Schaefer gave a baby shower for Laurie Pierce at the Copper Lantern Sept. 30 and Sister says it was a big surprise. Over 20 guests, many from out of town, attended. Laurie received many nice gifts. Sister had a real nice table set up for the shower. After the shower, the family all enjoyed barbecue.

• The Walker Memorial Baptist Church on Wharton's Dock Road has Bible study at 9:45 a.m. and worship at 11 a.m. every Sunday. Sunday and Wednesday evening services are at 6:30 p.m., as opposed to the previous time of 7 p.m. Dr. Marion Birch is music director for the Chapel. "Everyone is welcome and, up to now the chapel has not run out of seats," says a spokesman for the church.

Methodist minister Jarrell Sharp helps serve the eats during a Bandera County Library fund raiser Saturday, Oct. 7, in the Bandera firehouse. Ruth Meador reported 665 plates were served during the event. "We really appreciate the outstanding community support," she said.

The Bookshelf
By Jimmie Hughey, Library Director

Hope you made the Friends of the Library barbecue supper on Saturday, Oct. 7. It was great fun and great eating. We thank all the volunteers from the Friends as well as all the other participants for their efforts on behalf of the Library.

• The best seller shelf looks about the same as last time. Books are tending to stay a bit longer these days on that list. Have added Ludlum's old-new bet seller, "Tuesayne." This is not a new offering, but has recently become more popular.

• Volunteers are badly needed in the library. It is not necessary that you are a trained librarian, just willing to type, file, shelve books, straighten shelves, reorganize shelves, read to kids, help kids find what they need (yesterday, usually), help adults find what they want, and etc.

• In the near future, there will be a new sign out front welcoming tourists to our library. We have certainly always welcomed them and they have come in large numbers over the past few months, but we wish to spread the word more quickly by advertising out front that we welcome them. Watch for it.

Greek culture festival set in San Antonio this week

Authentic Greek culture will be presented with dancing and cooking demonstrations, travel films, an icon display, and food when the three-day long "original" Greek FUNstival kicks off its 29th year Friday through Sunday, Oct. 13-15, on the grounds of St. Sophia Greek Orthodox Church, 2504 N. St. Mary's Street in San Antonio.

Entertainment highlights include daily performances by Tasso Mavris, a New York-based Greek band, and Kali Pareah (The Good Crowd), a dance troupe of local children who will also teach traditional native dances.

During the three-day celebration delicacies such as baklava, a favorite Greek pastry, and the beef shis-ke-bab known as souvlaki will be offered. FUNstival-goers also will enjoy gyros, combination of beef and lamb, and sweet loukamades, also known as honey puffs.

Proceeds support charitable activities in the San Antonio community and other church programs.

Originating in 1960, the FUNstival is sponsored by the Saint Sophia Greek Orthodox Church.

FUNstival hours are noon to 11 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 13 -14; and noon to 7 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 15. Additional parking is available at the American Security Life Insurance building at 745 E. Mulberry with free shuttle after 5 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, and all day Sunday.

Tickets are $2.50 in advance and $3 at the door. Children's admission is $1, and family tickets are $6.50, which includes up to four family members. Discount tickets are available for active military and seniors. Call 1-735-5051 for ticket information.

Filming set at Cabaret

Bandera will host a movie crew Saturday, and according to Pat Tarr, the filming of Willie Nelson's latest movie, "Texas Honkytonk," will feature a dancehall scene filmed Saturday night at The Cabaret.

The Cabaret's doors will open that night at 7 p.m., and Johnny Bush is scheduled to appear around 9 p.m. Earlier in the day, a film crew will probably be on the Bandera streets, capturing local color on film.

Tarr did not say whether Nelson would make an appearance in the Cowboy Capital.

Cycle tour planned

A recreational bicycle event with supported rides of 21, 45, 62 (a metric century) and 100 miles will be held in conjunction with the Boerne Oktoberfest on Oct. 21.

The four rides will have staggered starts with Century riders leaving first at 8 a.m. from the Boerne Area Community Center, 820 Adler, in Boerne.

Entry fee is $12 and T-shirts are $10 additional. A pre-ride breakfast is optional at $4.

Quilts at Castroville Landmark Inn Park

Landmark Inn State Historical Park, in Castroville, will be hosting a Quilt Exhibit on Saturday, Oct. 14, at 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The quilts will be displayed by members of the Medina County Quilt Guild. Admission is free.

Landmark Inn is located at U.S. Highway 90 West and Florence Street.

For more information contact park superintendent Leah Huth at 1-538-2133.

Johnny Cardenas counts $2,500 that he won in a closest-to-the-pin contest held in conjunction with the Texas Open golf tournament in San Antonio Sunday. The prize for a hole-in-one would have been $1 million, but Cardenas won first place with a shot that was less than five feet from the pin. Cardenas' prize was supposed to be the free use of a Bill Cavender Cadillac for a year, but he opted for the cash when he was told he had to furnish full-coverage insurance on the $31,000 vehicle.

by bungy

I have never seen so much going on as there is in Bandera. For a so-called dull autumn, it's pretty exciting here.

• The Silver Sage Corral has its arts and crafts fair with that magnificent Bandera brands quilt featured on page 1 of last week's Bulletin.

• Johnny Bush will be at The Cabaret Dance Hall this week when Willie Nelson's Cowboy Television Network will be filming the beginning of a series of western dance places all over the U.S.

I'm told the series will be beamed to the Orient.

• El Jacalito (little shack), a fast food Mexican restaurant in that cute little building on 11th Street that used to be Sam's Barber Shop, is opening Friday.

Margarita Espinosa bought the building and said menu items like fajitas, carne asada and homemade flour tortillas will be ready to go, and she'll be open for breakfast and lunch.

• I still say all the Bandera restaurants should get together and proclaim this place the Gourmet Capital of Texas. Surely we have more restaurants per capita than most other places, if not all other places.

If they did, someone would open a gimmick restaurant like one I heard of in Wisconsin where the restaurant was upstairs with a trap door that the wait-persons would open and yell orders down to the bar below. The drinks would be passed up on a sting.

Or, the "non-restaurant" that used to be in downtown San Antonio where customers would be seated in a room without dishes, silverware or decorations. Orders would be shouted out a sliding wooden window into a real restaurant next door which would send the food back through the window.

The owner was such a character his "non-businesses" boomed.

• The Flying L Ranch is celebrating golf history Sunday with a benefit tournament that will be played to the accompaniment of bagpipes. They are the same bagpipers that lead off our Memorial Day Funtier Day Parade.

• The Pipe Creek Volunteer Fire Department is having a barbecue on Sunday.

• As we all know, at least a couple of our justices of the peace are really colorful.

Judge Tom Grant, for example, performs his duties at weddings in a top hat and tails and his extraordinary vocabulary. Former peace justice Ed Jennings performs his under the marrying oak, on the lake, and anywhere else the wedding couple's imagination might dictate.

But that may be pretty tame compared to Judge Agapito Gonzales in Jim Wells County who's been holding court since 1966 at a table in the G&G Bar.

• The newest sport that's sweeping the world right now is called "bungy jumping."

Participants tie a bungy cord around their ankles and jump off a 300-foot bridge yelling, "Bungeeeeeeee." The cord is elastic and brings them up just short of the point where their head hits the ground. "It's an amazing sensation," says one 18-year-old who tried it. "It's a safe, clean buzz."

Three Bandera County day care centers install music program

By Larry T. Williams
Bulletin Staff Writer

"Rain, rain, go away. Come again some other day..."

In these drought-ridden times, that particular song is not a top ten favorite among most Bandera County residents. However, to the youngsters at Noah's Ark Day Care Center who were singing the ageless childhood ditty, the words not only were fun to sing; they were motions to be performed and marks to be placed on a board in time to the tune.

But mostly they were just fun.

That fact could be seen in their smiles as they waved invisible umbrellas and eagerly sang the words, "Rain, rain..."

"We want children to experience the joy of music without the pressure of learning," said Mark Williams. He is the founder of Viva Musica, which is now conducting classes in three child care facilities in Bandera County, including Noah's Ark and Kindergarten in Bandera and Imagination Station in Pipe Creek.

"Our classes are based on the programs established by the well known 20th century Hungarian composer Zoltan Kodaly (pronounced KO-di)," said Williams.

According to Williams, in 1923 Kodaly became aware that children in Budapest were not receiving an adequate musical knowledge. He set out to develop a system that would encourage young people to want to experience music.

Kodaly devised a system of musical experiences aimed at children from ages 18 months to 12 years of age that develops musical skills through participation in singing, musical folk games and movements coordinated to the songs.

Rather than having to learn notation and all the strange and complicated musical symbols found on sheet music, Williams' teachers create "song pictures" which are drawn to the beat of each song and are established in a child's mind by group singing and the related motions that mimic what is being sung.

Williams says that his program seeks to develop a child's confidence in the use of his voice as an instrument. It develops listening and concentration skills along with the ability to hear rhythm and melody in the mind and teaches the musical concepts of louder, softer, faster, slower, higher, lower, beat, rhythm and timbre. Finally, he says his song pictures develop the skills needed to read musical notation and foster a love and appreciation of music.

Williams spent a year studying the Kodaly method at the Liszt Academy in Budapest while he was supervisor of musical education in the US Virgin Islands.

He began using the techniques he'd learned while working in the music department at the University of Texas at San Antonio. Williams required his students to do their lab teaching in local nursery schools.

Word got around to other child care centers in the area and Williams found his techniques much in demand. So much so that he persuaded Ron English, whom Williams had met at UTSA, to join him and they began placing their teachers in an ever increasing number of nursery schools.

"Now we have programs in 65 schools in Texas and Oklahoma," says Williams. "We're in 20 locations in San Antonio, 25 in Austin and now three in Bandera," he said.

Williams also mentioned locations that include Victoria, Georgetown, Stillwater, Tulsa and "several pending in North Carolina," he said.

Once a child is well grounded in the song picture techniques, Williams' teachers can extend their work to instruments including guitar and piano.

"After studying with us, a child is ready for the keyboard at four years of age and the guitar by age six or seven," said Williams. "We use the same devices of pictures and motion to teach the proper ways of striking keys and plucking strings," he said.

Another advantage is the improved performance of Kodaly technique students in the regular classroom, says Williams. He says skills in math and perception are particularly sharpened by the teaching methods and the results have been noted by public school teachers.

Parents interested in finding out more about the Kodaly method of learning music can contact one of the three nursery schools in Bandera County. Those schools are: Kingdergarten at 796-4175, Noah's Ark at 796-4722 and Imagination Station in Pipe Creek at 535-4028.

Bandera

By Peggy Tobin

Going deeper into October still looking for general drought-breaking rains, the likes of us in Southwest Texas can't help but wonder why so many TV weather men still refer to possible wet weekends as creating "problems" and continue to call sunny days "nice."

And there are even a few people right around here who think that water is a limitless resource which comes out of the tap just the way eggs emerge from plastic cartons in the grocery store. They are not the people who have had to have their wells re-worked lately.

Unfortunately, the historic mind-set of Anglo settlers moving west in Texas was created by memories of cooler wetter greener scenes in the eastern United States and Europe. We still continue to think that a wet year is normal, a dry year unusual, and plan our lives and landscapes accordingly.

The fact that the Hill Country is located right on the magic line to which Dr. Walter Prescott Webb referred in his writings on the Great Frontier confuses us further. If we were just a bit further east of the famous 98th meridian, we could righteously proceed to grow St. Augustine grass and tea roses. But some years, the Hill Country is as wet as Big Thickey and some years as dry as Big Bend.

Because our dry can be so very dry, it seems that the smart thing to do is to recognize that for planning purposes, we had better assume we live in semi-desert.

Which means fewer English-style sweeping lawns and more Spanish patios, old-time pioneer swept door yards, more natural prairies of native grasses which don't need the rain. It probably means fewer wells drilled in our Glen Rose aquifer, already pulled down by increased demand. It means paying attention to all water usage in general and cutting out frivolous flights of fancy. (We'll never forget the long gone character from Houston, who back in the drought of the fifties, proposed to keep a twenty-acre tank filled with water from a Trinity well.)

Native plants have surely proved their sturdy worth this past dry year. Right now, butterflies and hummingbirds are having a fiesta feeding frenzy congregated around the blooming bee bush, lantana, salgia greggii and cenizo. And a little patch we have of mealy blue sage has not stopped blooming since spring and is producing deeper violet flowers each time it puts out anew.

Also we must mention an antique rose bush we hauled in two years ago. Unlike its prissy hybrid relatives, it too has stood up to the long hot sumer and has continued to bloom. The roses are indeed plain Janes compared to new varieties from Tyler, but they are fragrant. And they're pink. And they're there.

Demolition halted

An order stopping the partial demolition of a 46-year-old church in Helotes was signed Monday by District Judge Charles Gonzalez.

Our Lady of Guadalupe Church, which has become a landmark for Bandera travelers to and from San Antonio, is being razed to make room for an addition to the building. Opponents of the renovation said they fear the remaining portion of the church will collapse, according to the San Antonio Express-News.

A hearing Friday will determine whether the restraining order will remain in effect.

Charging. Dodging. Challenging. Guarding. One side on the offensive. One side on the defensive.
When the press faces off against public figures, it sometimes seems like a sporting event. But it's more serious than that. Because often, at the heart of the issue is the First Amendment. And its guarantee of a free press.
Some say the rights of the press should be taken away. They say the press goes too far. Sometimes even the press questions how far is too far.
Others say the rights of the press protect the rights of the people. Your right to be informed about things that affect your life and your right to decide.
The debate will continue.

Basic food handling skills important for senior citizens as well as others

Jan Bryson, Bandera County home extension agent, told members of the Medina Lake Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons that basic food and utensil handling is just as important for folks over 55 as anyone else.

Tips Bryson gave the gathering at the American Legion hall Monday, Sept. 25, included organizing the kitchen by placing tools in the area where they need to be used, cooking several helpings at a time and storing them in the freezer. She also cautioned members to read food content labels, especially for salt. The same cutting board should not be used for meats and other foods wash thoroughly between uses or have different boards, she advises.

In other AARP news, the Health Check Mobile Unit served 87 people Aug. 21 and 53 at the Sept. 18 visit.

The surplus food commodities program, for which the association provides volunteers, served 78 people in September.

Highway cleanup chairman Smokey Settlemeyer says the next highway litter pickup will be held in mid-October.

A tour to Yoakum is planned for December. Interested members should call Florence Mayer at 751-2401 for reservations.

Defensive driving instructor June Settlemeyer reported two classes were held in September, one in Bandera and one in Lakehills, serving 30 people. The third edition of the curriculum is now in use. "There have been one million graduates of the course nationally," she says.

Edith Evans reported that the trip to the Shrine Circus will be Oct. 19. Interested members should contact Evans for transportation arrangements.

The Purple Hills Bingo was held Sept. 27 and will be held again Oct. 25.

The programs for the Oct. 23 regular meeting will concern the new Medicare laws.

The next executive committee meeting and fun day is schedule for Oct. 16.

A Thought For The Week
By John M. Grimes

Worry, worry, worry! This is the tempo of many a life in this so-called enlightened age. Sadly, too many people are the harrassed and unhappy victims of that miserable phenomenon of human life called worry. They worry about their health, about their jobs and businesses, and even about their social standing. Yet when they look back over every reason of anxiety they can see that nothing was made better by it and many things were decidedly made worse.

Some statistics have been worked out to show the needlessness of worry. Here is a handy WORRY TABLE against which you can check your anxiety rating:

WORRY TABLE

Things that never happen	40%
Things that can't be changed by all the worry in the world	35%
Things that turn out better than originally expected	15%
Petty, insignificant fretting	8%
Legitimate cause for concern	2%
Total	100%

The next time you're upset and worried, remember the words of Cowper, the English poet. His very helpful words were: "The cares of today are seldom those of tomorrow," and when we lie down at night, we may safely say to most of our troubles, "You have done your worst and we shall see you no more."

Obituaries

Frank Mansfield

Frank Horace Mansfield, 91, of Bandera died Saturday, Oct. 7 in his home.

He was born in Bandera on March 28, 1903, and lived there all his life. He owned and operated the first Chevrolet dealership in Bandera, and later had a successful appliance store for more than 30 years.

Frank Mansfield, the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Mansfield, grew up at the Mansfield's "old home place," now called Mansfield Park. Frank graduated with Bandera High School class of 1919.

For a time he engaged in ranching, and in the early 1920's bought and operated Mansfield-Blakeney Chevrolet with "Doc" Blakeney.

He was the fir st Bandera volunteer fire chief, and he supported the VFD for many years.

"He helped get the fire department and the water district going," said longtime friend Raymond Hicks. "For many years, he helped keep the windmills and water pumps in the county going, and he operated a thrasher to help with the harvest.

"I knew him most of my life. Something I always admired was that he never did try to take any credit for the things he did," Hicks said. "He was a good community worker, always working for the public."

Hicks said Mansfield sold the land for Mansfield Park for way below market cost, as a community service.

He sold the car dealership in 1941, and he and his wife, Ruby, opened Mansfield Appliance store. They sold the business and retired in 1978, and his wife died two years later. He was also preceded in death by his only son, Donald H. Mansfield, in 1942.

Monday night Bandera City council discussed possible ways for the city to honor Mansfield's memory. One possibility they considered was naming the fire station after him. Council members Ross Bailey and Geneva Dowell paid tribute to Mansfield at the meeting.

"I hope we can make a permanent commemoration to Frank in some way," Bailey said, "possibly naming the firehouse after him."

Survivors include daughter Cora Belle Nunn, of Kerrville; a grandson, J.M. Nunn of College Station; two sisters, Louella Vanderveer of Bandera and Dolly Mayfield of Amarillo.

Services were Monday, Oct. 9 at Grimes Funeral Home in Bandera with the Rev. Frank Pullin officiating. Burial was in Bandera cemetery.

Leaves beginning to turn at Lost Maples state park

Fall color is coming to Lost Maples State Natural Area early this year, as the leaves of Spanish Oaks are turning color and some of the maple leaves are beginning to turn.

Each autumn, prospective visitors hope weather conditions will be right for a colorful display of bigtooth maple leaves at Lost Maples State Natural Area at the west end of Bandera County.

"If weather conditions are just right, the leaves turn bright reds, oranges and yellows," says park superintendent Roy Heideman. Cloudy days and warm temperatures produce dull colors, he adds.

The leaves usually begin to change color in mid-October, and in good years they reach their peak during the first two weeks of November, but this year, the annual autumn color change appears to be starting early. "It has been especially dry this spring and summer, so we don't know how that will affect the fall colors," he says.

The park, located on the Sabinal River, has a combination of steep Hill Country canyons, springs, plateau grasslands, wooded slopes and clear streams. The park has a limited number of roads and is primarily a hiking park.

Heideman says campsites are almost fully booked for weekends in October and November, so he recommends weekday visitation. "Since only 250 cars are allowed in the day use parking area, it is especially important for visitors planning a one-day trip to schedule it for a weekday," he says.

Beyond the developed area of the park, visitors can follow the Maple Trail along the river. Wayside plaques help hikers identify trees and other aspects of the canyons.

More adventurous backpackers can hike 10 miles of rustic, and at times strenuous, canyon trails and camp overnight at any of eight designated primitive camping areas.

Lost Maples is in Bandera County, four miles north of Vanderpool on FM Road 187. Call 1-966-3413 for information and camping reservations.

School attendance stressed in October

Although school attendance is always considered important, during the month of October the importance of attendance is significantly increased because of its impact on funding, according to Bandera ISD superintendent Ted Dockery.

"School funding for the year from the state is based on attendance during that time," Dockery said. "There is also a March accounting period, but historically, attendance is best in October.

"It can literally mean thousands of dollars for the district," he said.

So far, BISD attendance this month looks good, according to figures compiled by assistant superintendent Skip Pfeiffer. The first week in October, Bandera schools attendance averaged 96.2 percent, up some 1.7 percent from the first week in October, 1988.

Second graders had the best record last week, with 98.7 percent of that group in attendance. Following closely behind in the numbers is the fifth grade, with 98.5 percent.

Average daily membership was 1,463.6, and average daily attendance was 1,408.

Grades K-5 had a 97.2 percent attendance record, while grades 6-8 had 95.8 in attendance and grades 9-12 had 94.8 in attendance.

Throughout the school district last week, the average number of daily absences was 55.6. During the same week last year, that number was 76.

Varsity captains chosen by team

Scott Rogers, Leroy Brown, Steele Montague, Epi Cardenas, and Bo Mansfield were chosen as the 1989 Football Captains by their teammates and coaches.

Senior, Rogers has lettered in football for three years. He plays tailback on the offense and is a defensive end. Later on this year, Rogers plans to participate in track.

Brown, a junior, has lettered two years in football. He plays as an offensive guard, linebacker, and punter. Brown thinks that the Bulldogs are going to have a winning season. Brown said, "Our defense is better than it has been for years." Brown is also active in basketball and baseball.

Senior, Montague has lettered two years in football and has been playing for three years. He plays defensive end in football.

Cardenas, a Senior, has lettered one year in football. He is positioned as a quarterback and cornerback. Cardenas said that the team this year is stronger than before. Cardenas also participates in baseball and basketball.

Junior, Mansfield plays in the positions of fullback and linebacker. Mansfield has lettered for two years and was named All District Linebacker in 1988. Mansfield believes that the team has a great chance for a winning season. Mansfield will also participate in basketball, baseball, and track.

Open House to be held at Bandera High School

Monday, Oct. 16, at 7 p.m., Bandera High School will have its open house.

Parents and friends of BHS students, are personally invited to Open House. Parents will meet in the auditorium at 7 p.m. and then attend each of their child's classes in the order of their schedule. In each class five minutes will be given for teachers to explain the objectives of their class and what is hoped to be accomplished throughout the semester. A couple of minutes will be given in between classes so parents can find the next class.

If parents have trouble finding a class there will be students with name tags to offer assistance.

After Open House refreshments will be served in the cafeteria. The refreshments will be provided by Mrs. Sara Clark's homemaking classes. Bandera High School looks forward to seeing all interested parents and friends at Open House.

Comfort blanks JV 'Dogs Oct. 5

Bandera's JV Bulldogs had their three game winning streak snapped last Thursday as Comfort blanked them 20-0.

The JV Dogs suffered five turnovers. The team lost three fumbles and had two passes intercepted. Their record falls to 3-2-1.

Bandera only trailed 7-0 at halftime but gave up two more touchdowns in the second half.

It should be noted, however, that Bandera's JV consists mainly of freshmen and a few sophomores while Comfort fielded a team that included seven juniors.

Although Bandera's young Bulldogs were shutout, the final score was an improvement over last year's contest that Comfort won 44-6.

Positive peer group takes drug-free stand

Many activities have taken place at BHS since the last school year. The P.R.I.D.E. organization at BHS is an important part of fighting drugs and alcohol in Bandera and the surrounding area.

Positive Peer Reinforcement In Drug Education (P.R.I.D.E.) is the name of the new BHS drug-free group. It was formed by three BHS students to educate students and parents about substance abuse and instill positive peer pressure in students not to use drugs and alcohol. Mrs. Barbara Opperman is the adult sponsor.

On Sept. 22, a rally was held after school as a membership drive for the P.R.I.D.E. group. Approximately 50 students attended the rally. An informative speech was given about the organization and its future plans. Afterwards, pizza was served to all who attended.

Interest in starting a substance free group in Bandera started in July when Tiffany Moseley, Kati Reagan, Lauri Reagan and Dawn Macon attended four day events to how to go about organizing a group.

July 12-15, Moseley, L. Reagan, and K. Reagan attended the Texas Youth in Action Leadership Conference held at Texas Christian University campus in Fort Worth.

The girls attended the conference because they felt there was a drug problem in Bandera and something needed to be done about it.

The conference was designed to train teens to say "No" to drugs and alcohol and to provide a network of support to reinforce young people's commitment to be drug free. The conference also gave participants effective ideas on how to start and support drug prevention programs in their communities.

Daily activities at the conference included workshops, teen discussion groups, community action planning groups, and motivational speakers. Special events included the "Un" Olympics and Wacky Games, "Valentine" in concert, a pizza party, and a dance by Brent Green Entertainment.

The group from Bandera traveled to Fort Worth with sponsors and students from Center Point, Kerrville, and Ingram.

After their return from the different events, Macon, Moseley, and L. Reagan met with the Bandera community action planning committee and became involved in the community group. The president of the group is Dan Butts.

A community-wide seminar is scheduled to be held Oct. 24 at the BHS auditorium. The seminar may include skits performed by P.R.I.D.E. members, demonstrations by the drug-sniffing dog, informative exhibits and motivational speakers.

Further details about the seminar will be given later.

Renaissance underway at Bandera High School

"A Renaissance in Excellence" is a new program underway at Bandera High School this year.

The renaissance program is an incentive designed to get students to try harder in school and increase their attendance. This program encourages this by giving discount/privilege cards to students on the A or A-B Honor Roll and those having only one absence or better with passing grades.

There will be three cards the students can strive for each six weeks. The Gold Card is for A Honor Roll students. The Silver Card is for A-B Honor Roll students and the Blue Card is for attendance.

Nineteen local merchants have committed to helping with this program. The school will also give privileges and discounts to the card holders.

School officials are hoping it has similar results as it has had in other area schools. Within a 12-week time period, an area school raised their average daily attendance from 95 to 96 percent.

Participating merchants will be spotlighted in the Pen-N-Paw section of the Bandera Bulletin.

Anyone wishing to contribute to this program can contact Mr. Richard Delamain, BHS principal, at 796-3753 or Amy Reagan at 796-4803.

BISD strives for excellence

Bandera schools have begun the 1989-90 school year with the goal of making itself more effective in the upcoming decade.

"A number of researchers have sought the reasons some schools are more effective at teaching the basic skills than others," said assistant superintendent Skip Pfeiffer. "...the effective schools research has identified a cluster of characteristics common to effective schools."

The five basic correlates, according to Pfeiffer, include instructional leadership, high expectations, measurement and evaluation, school climate, and instructional focus.

"Although much of the effective schools research appears to be common sense, the findings provide a distinction between what works and what does not; between effective and ineffective practices," he said.

The effective schools program was presented to the BISD trustees during intensive workshops over two days during the past summer. As a result of these workshops, a mission statement was developed which will give the district direction for the future, according to Pfeiffer.

"A team of teachers from each campus is presently being trained to achieve the five correlates and to train other staff members on their campuses," he said. "The training will also help them recognize problems within the school's system and to work collaboratively to improve the situations."

Pfeiffer said the program is not an indication that the district is not currently doing a good job.

"I don't want anyone to get the idea that the district is not currently doing a good job," he said. "The schools in Bandera are proud of the education and training they provide students in the district.

"We do not consider ourselves ineffective, but there is room for improvement in any school, and ours are not exceptions.

"The program has been successful in many schools," he said. "If we retain the effective practices we now employ and put in place those things that will make us more effective, the program will be a success here also."

Single parenting workshops set

A series of workshops for single parents will be offered at Bandera High School for six consecutive Mondays beginning Oct. 23 from 7-9 p.m. each night, according to assistant superintendent Skip Pfeiffer.

The workshop is sponsored by Active Parenting, and will be presented free to the first 25 single parents who register. There is no charge for the sessions.

To register, call the superintendent's office at 796-3313.

"We hope that the parents who register will attend all six two-hour sessions," Pfeiffer said. Registrants will receive a free workbook and handbook dealing with active parenting.

"Barbara Fuller will be the facilitator," Pfeiffer said. "She presented a similar program for parents last year and it was very well received. She is a psychotherapist and is employed by the Phoenix Center in Kerrville."

The program consists of video dramatizations of real-life situations and interaction between parents on the "how-to's" of raising children in a single parent household.

"Hopefully, parents can be equipped with the skills they need to meet the challenges of being a parent in this day and time and can reawaken the feeling of joy in their children," he said.

Video yearbook to be constructed by class

Gifted and Talented class has decided to construct a video yearbook for the 1989-90 school year.

The year-long project will be filmed by the students of the GT class. It will include everyday life at BHS, including band, sports, organizations, classes, and all school-oriented functions. The video will be designed to appeal to the entire student body.

The GT class guarantees to produce a better product than previous videos. The yearbook video will also be enhanced with computer graphics. The video is already underway and will be available at the end of the school year. Orders will be taken at the start of the second semester.

The GT class was started last year and is instructed by Liz Vakey and Marilyn Wiles at Bandera High School.

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Former Bandera City Public Works Director Melvin King will appear as the first of 17 candidates on the Nov. 7 ballot in Springhills Water Management District director election.

Second on the ballot will be Keith Keese of Medina, followed by district temporary directors Craig Tips of Bandera, Joe Cantu of Pipe Creek, and Phil Becker of Tarpley, reports Bandera County Clerk Vera King.

Sixth on the ballot will be candidate Randy Schott of Lakehills followed by district temporary directors Morgan Cox of Medina and Mary Jane "M.J." Cave of Bandera.

Ninth on the ballot is Charles W. "Bill" Weber Jr. of Medina, followed by temporary director Paul Garrison Jr. of Medina, Phillip P. Tobin of Bandera, temporary directors Don Karr of Bandera and J.K. Leighton of Vanderpool, John Halliday of Lakehills, temporary director J.B. Edwards of Pipe Creek, Travis H. Feelman of Bandera and Norman Hicks Mansfield of Lakehills.

Existing board members will not be differentiated from other candidates on the ballot.

Mary Jane Cave

Mary Jane Cave, or M.J. Cave as it will appear on the ballot, 47, of Bandera is the only woman running for one of nine positions on the Springhills Water Management District election Nov. 7.

Cave, who works at Sundance Travel as a tour group coordinator, feels the newly legislated district will manage and conserve the water in Bandera County "by and for the residents of Bandera County," she emphasizes.

The district, if confirmed by the county's voters, will set as a goal to insure that there will be water for future generations and "to keep agencies outside Bandera County from gaining control of our water." She also sees keeping the county's water supply from pollution as another important goal of the district.

Cave was recently appointed to the board of directors of the Bandera County River Authority, a board that will be replaced with the directors elected in November if voters confirm the district. However, she points out that she has served on several committees of the river authority, including the election committee, giving her the opportunity to be immediately involved. She also is a member of the river authority's executive committee, goals and objectives committee, and served on the auditor selection committee.

Cave is the chairwoman of the Bandera County Republican Committee and was formerly an industrial engineer for the Manville Corporation.

Cave would like to see continuity from the present river authority board to the new combined surface water-underground water district in the initial years of the district. "The current directors are familiar with the Texas Water Code and have in the past and will continue in the future to follow these guidelines," she says.

Norman Mansfield

Norman Hicks Mansfield, 68, of Lakehills is a registered petroleum engineer and seeks to bring his expertise to the Springhills Water Management District if elected Nov. 7.

Mansfield sees a water district that would cover all of Bandera County as, "... the best present method of assuring local control of a God-given precious resource."

Mansfield sees the district goal's as preserving, "... the quantity and quality of our surface and subsurface water for present and future generations."

The district must endeavor to "utilize the county's surface and underground water to benefit the entire county as well as individuals in distress, says Mansfield, due to the devastating drought the county is in.

Mansfield says his education, 30 years as a business owner and geological knowledge from his technical background as a registered petroleum engineer gives him the qualifications needed for the post. He says he has been involved in engineering, design, fabrication, and construction for 50 years and presently owns a heavy equipment shop.

As a native Banderan he says, "My deep seated concern should be utilized to prolong the good way of life that my great-grandfathers helped to establish in our county." He cites his family's background of service to the community, "That gives me incentive to help guide our (the county's) destiny."

Other experience includes a total of 14 years in the military including three years as an ordnance officer in World War II.

"The Springhills Water Management District can be an effective service for prolonging the day when our water resources can no longer support the population, so all citizens should give their utmost support" to the district, he says.

John Halliday

John Halliday, 61, of Lakehills, a candidate for the Springhills Water Management District, is self-employed in the construction industry and has 38 years in civil service.

Halliday feels Bandera County needs a water district to maintain local control, ensure water quality, and encourage wise water use and conservation. "Unless we maintain local control (of our water), outsiders will do it for us," he says.

The district should set as its goals, "To ensure water quality and historic uses of waters in Bandera County be maintained for generations to come," says Halliday.

Halliday recommends continuing the work of the Bandera County River Authority, which the new district will replace if voters concur.

Halliday, a 17-year resident of the county, says he has many years of experience in management, budgeting, financial and long range planning.

Halliday, who has been involved in ranching and construction, says he has been involved in the development of many contingency and emergency plans.

He also adds that he has the time to devote to the task.

Water meeting scheduled

A public meeting to discuss the Springhills Water Management District will feature state Sen. Bill Sims Tuesday, Oct. 24, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the Mansfield Park Recreation Center.

Also expected at the meeting are Bandera County Judge Ray F. Mauer, Bandera County River Authority chairman Phil Becker, and BCRA executive director Ray Buck.

Radio personality Jud Ashmore will moderate the evening of presentations and questions about the confirmation election to be held Nov. 7.

The Springhills Water Management District was created by the Texas state legislature in May through the sponsorship of Sims and state Rep. Eldon Edge.

The water district board coexists with the Bandera County River Authority.

Voters will be asked on the Nov. 7 general election ballot to approve or disapprove the existance of the water district and elect nine directors.

If voters approve the issue, the nine candidates receiving the most votes will become the district's initial directors and the river authority will merge into the new district.

If voters disapprove the issue, the water district will disappear, but the river authority will remain.

Absentee voting begins Oct. 18 and ends Nov. 3 for the water district and the constitutional amendments.

The event is sponsored by the Bandera County Commissioners and board of directors of the Bandera County River Authority, and has been coordinated by the Citizens for Good Government.

Blocked extra-point attempt difference in Bobcats' victory

Medina comes from behind twice to win season's first, 14-13

By Larry T. Williams
Bulletin Staff Writer

Medina's Bobcats finally found themselves on the winning side of the scoreboard after they squeaked by the Texas Military Institute Panthers 14-13 Friday night, Oct. 6.

A blocked PAT in the second quarter made the difference in scores and a series of penalties against the Panthers late in the fourth quarter was instrumental in the outcome of the game.

TMI led off the scoring with a 20-yard pass from Carlos Canales to Brian Ellis with 1:28 left in the second period. The fateful extra point attempt followed when Bobcat guard Jason Davila charged into the backfield and blocked the boot by Joe Astleford.

Medina came right back when running back Norman Hurt caught a first down, 29-yard, fleaflicker pass from running back Thomas Fields on the TMI 18 with 11 seconds left in the half. Hurt went high in the air for the catch and several Panthers were trying to dismember him as he hung onto the ball.

Time ran out during the next play as another Bobcat pass fell short, but a face mask penalty gave Medina one more chance from the nine-yard line.

With a drizzle now falling, quarterback Sloan Baker tossed a strike to Jason Childers in the end zone to tie the score. Kicker Chris Keiser's aim was true and the 'Cats went to the locker room with a 7-6 halftime advantage.

In spite of increasing rain, the Panthers roared back with a 60 yard aerial bomb from John Mentor to John White at 8:42 of the third stanza. This time the PAT attempt by Astleford was on line and the Panthers again had the lead, 13-7.

Two possessions later Medina started a drive from their own 35. This time the 'Cats stayed on the ground and steadily drove 60 yards in nine plays to the five yard line. From there, Logan Sill took a handoff and fought his way to pay dirt. Keiser's kick again split the uprights and Medina led 14-13.

The Bobcats proved their worth later in the period when Chad Parker intercepted a pass to stop a TMI drive on the Medina 26. The Panthers stopped themselves late in the last quarter when two procedure penalties and a ticket for intentional grounding moved them from their 35 to the 15 yard stripe. A last ditch pass effort came up short and the Bobcats took over and ran out the clock for their first win of the season.

Medina, now 1-4, will host Rocksprings for their District 29-A opener Friday, Oct. 13. The Angoras are 3-2 for the season.

Bandera's fumbling ways continue to plague team

By Nick Johnson
Editor

Bandera grid coach Sam Swierc thinks his team's season-long siege of turnovers may disappear when his Bulldogs open District 8-AAA play against Llano's Yellowjackets in Bulldog Stadium Friday.

"I think our kids will be more mentally ready to start AAA district play than they were to play an AA team," Swierc said. "They'll have a different outlook the next five weeks, knowing the games count toward post-season play."

Bandera fumbled the ball on its first play from scrimmage at Comfort Friday, and it put them in an immediate 7-0 hole from which they were never able to recover. Comfort went on to deal Bandera a 21-0 defeat, the Bulldogs second in five non-district encounters this year.

"I can't explain these turnovers," Coach Swierc said. "We take probably 500 snaps in practice. Maybe not that many, but enough so that we shouldn't fumble a snap on the first play of the game. I can't explain it."

That fumbled snap Friday gave Comfort's unbeaten Bobcats the ball on the Bulldog 14-yard line, and it took a penalty and four plays to punch it in. The payoff came on a 15-yard pass from quarterback Tye Green to Mike Segleski Jr.

Green pitched another touchdown pass in the second quarter, this time for 11 yards to tight end Stoney Thomas after an Epi Cardenas pass was intercepted on the Bulldog 21-yard line. And another Bandera fumble led directly to the 'Cats final touchdown in the third period when Chris Driskell recovered a fumbled punt in the end zone.

Bandera fumbled seven times Friday, but managed to recover four of them, and together with two intercepted pass, the Bulldogs committed five turnovers.

The Bobcats longest sustained scoring drive Friday covered just Norman Hurt, 84, hung on to the ball in spite of a bone-rattling tackle by a TMI defender during Medina's 14-13 win over the Panthers Friday, Oct. 6. Hurt's spectacular catch set up a Jason Childers' touchdown seconds later which, combined with a Chris Keiser PAT put the 'Cats ahead at halftime, 7-6.

21 yards, but at that it was the first against the Bandera defense this year. The only other touchdown scored on the Bulldog defense was a 70-yard strike with three seconds left in the first half last week against Memorial.

Jeff Pullin led Bandera rushers with 48 yards on three carries and Bo Mansfield added 26 to bring his total for the season to 344 yards.

Llano running back Chad Hartman leads the Yellowjacket offense, carrying the ball on one-half of all his team's offensive plays.

He gained 247 yards last week on 27 carries in Llano's upset victory over previously undefeated Dripping Springs. "They could easily be 5-0," says Bandera Coach Swierc. "They are typical of last year's team, a great defense with a fairly potent offense.

"They are a lot bigger than we are and are pretty physical," Swierc said. "They are very comparable to Comfort."

Kickoff at Bulldog Stadium is 8 p.m.

The Bandera junior varsity plays in Llano Thursday at 5:30 p.m. and the junior high plays two games here with the first game beginning at 5:30 p.m.

Harrison also won fourth place with Tommy Morrison of Houston, reports organizer Walter Langehenning.

Winners of the 40 and over competition were Jeff Bridges of Glen Rose and Rudisall, Shaw and Mauldin with second, Larry Irvin of Fredericksburg and Mauldin with third, and Irvin and Bill Teaque of Crane with fourth.

Winners of the 50 and over competition were K.H Boulting-house of Cherokee and Richard Garcia of Linn, Ralph Carter of Celera and Harrison with second, Boultinghouse of Cherokee and Glyn Raney of Rockwall with third, W.T. Kirk of Kress and James Garrison of Kyle.

Bandera old timer to compete in Corpus

Bandera Cowboy John Hauer will compete in Seguin Friday and Saturday, Oct. 13 and 14, in the bullriding event of the Old Timers' Rodeo Association's year-end finals.

Competitors in the Old Timers' Rodeo finals are limited to those 35 years of age and older in rough stock events and 40 years and older in steer wrestling, team roping and calf roping.

Performances are at 8 p.m. both Friday and Saturday.

Race meet axed

Officials at Evangeline Downs in Lafayette, La., have cancelled a 50-day quarter horse race meet that was scheduled to run through March 18, citing an inability to fill entries on the first day as the reason for the decision.

Charles Ashy Sr., president and general manager of the track, said he asked permission of the Louisiana Racing Commission to cancel the meet as soon as he realized he would not be able to get enough horses to fill the first day's card.

Horsemen blamed the track's unusual format which required them to haul horses in and out of Evangeline Downs on race day, because the track's barn area was closed.

1989 The Bandera Bulletin

Our 46th Year, No. 16 — Thursday, October 19, 1989 — Thirty-five cents

A familiar profile prepares to go on stage at Bandera's Cabaret Saturday, Oct. 14. For confirmation of his identity and a related story please refer to pages 6 and 7.

Cross country runners pour into a narrowing slot as they start a 3-mile race during the 14th annual Bandera Invitational Cross Country Meet at Bandera High School Saturday, Oct. 14. Out of the 456 runners from 33 schools, Bandera's Amie Nightingale, daughter of former Olympian Conrad Nightingale, placed fourth overall among the girls and Kenneth Wilson led the Bulldog boys by placing 38th overall. The seventh grade team of Jason Evans, Chris Schulte, Travis Coover, Domingo Hinojosa and David Shankles won its division.

The Medina Lake alligator was found dead Sunday, Oct. 15, and Game Warden Ernest Lerma, who has been trying to track the reptile for the last two years, says it's the only one in the lake.

The seven-foot, seven-inch alligator, which has been sighted on occasion since October 1987, was apparently a victim of a boat propellor which inflicted fatal gashes to the animal's head.

While more than one alligator has been reported in the lake, the evidence of tracks he found indicates there was only one, says Lerma.

Lerma, in connection with Texas Parks and Wildlife fisheries biologist Jimmy Rutledge, began a program designed to trap the alligator after a sighting by the Bandera County Sheriff's Department Sept. 16.

Lerma says TPW planned to remove the alligator from the lake for its own protection, rather than because any perceived threat it may have to the general public.

The two TPW officials agreed that the reptile should not be in the Medina Lake environment because the lake did not offer enough cover for the animal to live naturally without human interference.

The declining lake level, now down to 40 feet below the spillway, forced the alligator from its niche along Medina Lake near Liebold's Ranch where it was first sighted Oct. 1987 by a trotline fisherman in river debris from that summer's flooding.

As the lake level dropped over the past two years, the reptile apparently moved further out into the lake, until recently it took up habitation in Cypress Cove near Turk's Head Bluff. "It was one of the last secluded areas in the lake," says Lerma.

Lerma says he had been baiting a trap in the cove for the last five days after several reported sightings.

There were tracks and skid marks that indicated the animal was coming up on the bank, says Lerma. "Skid marks" are impressions in the mud where the tail and lower section of the reptile's body drag. "There were fresh signs of it being in there (the cove)," he says.

The 175-pound alligator was discovered Sunday, Oct. 17, about 10:30 a.m., floating dead within 15 feet of the trap.

Apparently, the alligator was accidently hit in the head in the narrow cove by a propellor from a passing boat. "It didn't have enough clearance to get away," Lerma speculates.

The reptile tried to recover from the multiple gashes and would come onto the beach to sun itself. But complications, probably infection, set in and the animal died, Lerma speculated.

During its futile recovery period, the reptile probably didn't eat, and so it wasn't interested in the food in the nearby trap, speculates Lerma.

The Medina Lake alligator was a female and was estimated by Rutledge to be seven years of age.

Lerma says he received many calls asking if it was safe to swim and fish, all based on the misconception that the reptile was dangerous.

Female alligators can reach a size of nine feet and up to 200 pounds, while their male counterparts can reach 14 feet and 450 to 575 pounds.

The alligator in many respects was good for the lake, as it ate rough fish, nutria, and rats.

But the lake was not good for the alligator.

Anti-drug campaign planned here

The national Red Ribbon Campaign against drug abuse will kick off in Bandera County Tuesday, Oct. 24, at the Bandera High School auditorium with presentations designed as much for parents as it will be for students.

Skits by the Positive Peer Reinforcement In Drug Education (PRIDE), a drug paraphernalia display, and medical, law enforcement, and social worker guest speakers will make presentations.

The rally will kick off Red Ribbon Day, Wednesday, Oct. 25.

Bandera County will join with hundreds of Red Ribbon rallies across the nation when three separate presentations will describe what to look for and how to deal with children who have turned to drugs.

Helga Hendricks and Misty Morris of the Medina County Family Life Center in Hondo will tell parents and friends of drug abusers what to do once they've recognized there is a problem with their children or friends.

The counselors from Hondo will tell what should be done once the symptoms of drug abuse are detected, says Bandera County Extension Agent Jan Bryson. They will tell how to become more aware and watch for symptoms and the sociological and psychological aspects of the problem.

Chief deputy Ted Brooks or Constable Donnie Walker will describe how law enforcement officials identify drug usage by the physical evidence.

The Bandera County law enforcement official will also describe the tools they use to detect and combat drug abuse, including the use of a drug-sniffing dog.

The sheriff's office will describe what materials, such as rolling papers, a child might have if they are using drugs.

A drug-use paraphernalia exhibit will also be displayed, says Department of Public Safety Trooper Dan Butts, chairman of the Bandera County Drug Awareness Task Force.

Bandera physician Royce McAnally will discuss the medical symptoms of drug abuse.

The skits "Turnaround," showing how a student could turn to drugs when they think things are going wrong in his or her life and "Toy Soldiers," showing how students can turn to drugs when looking for friends and acceptance, will be performed by PRIDE, says Tiffany Moseley, co-chairwoman of the student group PRIDE.

The junior high students will read poems.

Wednesday will be Red Ribbon Day and students and adults are encouraged to wear their red ribbons and wear red clothing in support of the campaign against drug abuse, says Barbara Oppelman, faculty sponsor of the drug awareness campaign at Bandera High School. All businesses are asked to put up red decorations, she says.

The student councils of the Bandera schools will be involved in decorating their respective school in posters and ribbons, she adds.

As inspiration for the students, at least two buses will take over 100 students to a rally at Kerrville's Tivy Stadium Monday, Oct. 23.

There they will hear Dave Quilter, supervisory special agent for the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency.

The Bandera students will perform at least one of their skits at the Kerrville rally, which will also involve students from Centerpoint.

The Red Ribbon Campaign originated when federal agent Enrique Camarena was murdered by drug traffickers in 1985.

The Red Ribbon now takes its place with the Yellow Ribbon, representing the American Embassy workers previously held captive in Iran, and the Green Ribbon, symbolizing the murdered children of Atlanta.

One of the problems facing society is that former drug-users now have children who imitate them, says Butts.

"If one child is using drugs, we have a problem," says Butts.

Business hall of fame to induct Alkek

Philanthropist Albert B. Alkek of Bandera is one of five persons who will be inducted in the Texas Business Hall of Fame Thursday, Oct. 26, in black-tie ceremonies in the Westin Galleria Hotel in Houston.

Other inductees include Perry R. Bass of Dallas, the late Hugh Roy Cullin of Fort Worth, banker Ben F. Love of Houston, and radio and newspaper developer McHenry T. Tichenor of Harlingen.

Alkek, a successful oilfield wildcatter and investor whose company built the first products pipeline in Texas, purchased one-half interest in Sinclair Oil Company in 1952, changing its name to Alkek Oil.

He is a member of the Texas Public Safety Commission which governs the Department of Public Safety and he has won many awards as a community leader and contributor to humanitarian, medical and education causes.

He has made many philanthropic donations to Bandera County and the Bandera Independent School District, and the school board honored him by naming its new elementary school in his honor.

'Old Fashioned Christmas' is best quilt

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

"Old Fashioned Christmas" was named best of show, and quilt depicting Halley's Comet and a double wedding ring design were given the judge's choice in the Silver Sage Corral Quilt Show Saturday, Oct. 14.

The quilt and crafts show benefitted the Silver Sage Corral, and according to Mary Joe Kirkpatrick, profit from the quilt show was more than $1,500.

Money raised by sales in the gift boutique and food booth at the center Friday and Saturday was about $450, according to coordinator Manuel Flores.

One project that has been designated for the funds is a carport for the seniors' mini-bus, but the money will also be used to fund other programs at the center.

"It costs between $900 and $1,000 a month just to keep the doors open here," said Kirkpatrick. "We depend on donations, and on moneymaking projects like this one to keep going."

"Community support is just wonderful," Flores added. "We get a lot of support from many businesses, individuals and churches."

More than 800 volunteer hours are logged per month at the center, he said.

One example of community support is the quilting group that made and donated the Bandera Brands quilt given away in a drawing Saturday.

The Bandera Brands quilt was won by Pat Chapman, a member of a local quilting group who said she bought $30 worth of tickets to [illegible]

Chapman said she intends to use the historic quilt in the home she shares with her husband, Peter Chapman, and eventually they "will probably donate it to the museum."

Saturday, crowds on the grounds of the Silver Sage Corral were estimated to be between 250 and 300. There were four crafts booths set up, and next year there may be some changes, in order to draw more exhibitors, according to board chairman Harry Webb. Although there weren't many crafts exhibitors outside, the quilt show and gift boutique inside the building drew a large crowd.

More than 200 signed the guest book, Flores reported.

"The judges chose Jane Everett's quilt, made by her mother, as the best of the show," said Carolee Youngblood, who served as primary organizer of the quilt show. "It was truly outstanding."

The quilt, called "An Old Fashioned Christmas," by Everett, and was made by her mother.

Donna Alexander's "Grandmother White's Flower Garden," made in 1928, placed first in the Bandera County yesteryear pieced category.

Tobin's "Halley's Comet" placed Dorothy Sterner of San Antonio. It placed first in the 1980's applique category, and Everett's "Giant Dahlia," also made by Sterner, placed first in the 1980's pieced category.

"Halley's Comet," a quilt said to be more than 100 years old, was given one of the judge's choice awards. The quilt is owned by Peggy Tobin of Bandera.

"It was passed down many generations of the Pickens family to Helen McKandles of Pipe Creek," Tobin said. "Halley's Comet appeared in 1835. The batting is home-made from [illegible]

Williams helped

Dear Editor:

Recently at the Lone Star Ice House in Pipe Creek, the clerk on duty, Mark Williams, observed an individual remove more Sunday papers from a (paper) machine than he had paid for.

Being busy with customers inside, Mark was unable to confront the alleged thief, but was able to get a license number and description of the auto and person.

With this information and the help of Constable Ernest Reich, the perpetrator was confronted and restitution was made.

I am grateful to Mark for his efforts in helping to deter dishonest persons.

Bandera County shut out

Dear editor:

The people of Bandera County should know the federal government has done it to us again. In June, Bandera County made application for a federal grant to prepare for increased traffic anticipated in March and continuing through the year (because of pari-mutuel racing). The idea was to avoid DWI problems and to get folks home safely from the races.

The end of the story is that Bexar County and San Antonio got $506,000 and Bandera County may get two warning signs and zero money.

If this makes you as angry as it does me, please let U.S. Rep. Lamar Smith know by contacting him through his Kerrville office either by phone (1-895-1414) or letter (The Hon. Lamar Smith, U.S. Representative, 1006 Junction Highway, Kerrville 78028).

Just mention the DWI grant.

Encourage the Super 5

Dear editor:

Did you know Bandera Junior High School has a boys' cross country team that is suberb? There are two boys of the five-member seventh grade team who have consistently placed in or near the top 10 runners (in meets) throughout this season, which began Sept. 9.

This team placed first among seventh grade teams in the Bandera Invitational Cross Country Meet Saturday, Oct. 14. They were awarded a beautiful oak plaque engraved with their names.

As you can tell, we are very proud of these kids, their super coach Barbara Mazurek, and all the parents who get their boys to practice at 6:30 a.m. each weekday (it's still dark) so they may run the course for an hour before they shower, dress for school, and catch a bus to the junior high school. Then at athletics period, under the very professional and watchful eyes of Coach Mazurek, they stretch and build for another hour. The only break in this routine comes on Friday because there is a meet scheduled for early Saturday morning.

These boys begin practice in August, before school begins and continues through the la...meet on Saturday, Oct. 21, at Devine. These beginners, aged 11 through 13 years, do not advance to district or beyond as do the varsity teams.

I just wanted to let you know, in case you haven't heard, about this "Super 5," their dedicated coach, and their parents, who attend these meets weekly, assisting where they can.

Let's encourage and observe and support these boys now and next season and look forward to the same excellent performances.

Still need many more

Dear editor:

Several months ago, I wrote a letter telling everyone about the Bandera cookbook the Frontier Times Museum is planning to publish.

As of this date, we have received some wonderful recipes, but we still need many more.

I hope every person reading this letter will send at least one recipe so we will be able to start putting our cookbook together. We would appreciate this very much, as we have set Nov. 20 as our deadline.

Recipes may be mailed to Frontier Times Museum, Box 1918, Bandera 78003. You may drop them off at the museum or place them in one of our collection boxes which will be located at the Bandera County courthouse, the Silver Sage Corral, Tarpley Store, Jean's Exertrim, Bandera Electric Co-op, Boyle's Market and Super S Foods. Boxes will also be placed in Medina, Pipe Creek and Lakehills.

You can help make these cookbooks very special if you will submit a recipe with your name signed to provide a personal touch.

Mattox takes his campaign on the offensive road

The often-used grudging concession of admiration for a politician with whom one usually disagrees, goes like this: "You may not like his position, but you know where he stands."

Attorney General Jim Mattox reportedly running a distant third when he announced for governor last week, staked out firm positions on more issues than any candidate of either party.

Obviously aware that a little derring-do is needed to play catch-up, Mattox risked boldness while others rested on caution.

An unabashed, unapologetic liberal, Mattox said he:

- Supports a lottery to fund public school financing, and opposes any form of new taxes;
- Will veto any state income tax bill the Legislature passes;
- Favors the death penalty for heinous crimes and drug dealing; and
- Would use the Texas National Guard to seal off the Rio Grande border to drug smugglers and car thieves.

Does this platform sound liberal to you? Mattox, the arch-liberal, embraced several issues dear to conservative hearts. While other Democrats quietly discuss moving the party back to center, Mattox publicly put his leadership on the line.

Thus far, only Republican Clayton Williams is as open and firm on any issue. His is the war on drugs.

Lottery Response

In response to the Mattox challenge, Gov. Bill Clements asked both political parties to put the lottery issue on the primary ballot.

The other major candidates declined to follow Mattox' strong lead on the lottery issue, and only Republican Kent Hance expressed opposition to one.

More law officers

Congressman John Bryant of Dallas, a candidate for attorney general, said Texas cities should hire 10,000 more police officers during the next four years to reduce their soaring crime rates.

Citing FBI statistics, Bryant said, "Texas has today become one of the most dangerous states in America in which to live."

Bryant said he would support city councils that raise taxes to bolster their police forces. But he said, "I don't expect any mayors to advocate this."

He also proposed that the state authorize the Department of Public Safety to hire 40 additional narcotics officers.

Insurance Lawsuit

Mattox said two insurance firms, Travelers Insurance Co. and St. Paul's Fire and Marine Insurance Co., have agreed to pay $500,000 and testify in an anti-trust lawsuit continuing against other insurance companies.

The two firms denied any wrongdoing, and the payments are not fines or penalties, but for investigative and legal costs.

Past Deeds Surface

Two state legislators and a former house member, all running to replace the late Houston Congressman Mickey Leland, blamed each other for checkered reports of their pasts.

State Rep. Ron Wilson was chided years back for possible misuse of $16,000 in state funds, of which he paid back $2,000; Houston city councilman Anthony Hall was criticized for allegedly steering city business to a client/contributor; and state Sen. Craig Washington apologized for his assault on a woman friend six years ago.

Other Campaigns

- In the 17th state senatorial district, Bryan state Rep. Richard Smith announced for the Republican slate, and Ron DeLord, head of the state's largest police labor union, entered as a Democrat.

Meanwhile, former state Rep. Dan Kubiak, in Europe on a trade mission when incumbent Sen. Kent Caperton announced his retirement, is reportedly eyeing the race.

- State Rep. Keith Valigura, R-Conroe, will not seek re-election, opting to devote more time to family and business. He endorsed Dr. Bob Rabuck as his successor.
- Bob Munson, a veteran of Louisiana political battles, will take over state Sen. Chet Edwards' underdog campaign for lieutenant governor.

This may come as a shock to some of the younger Aggies around here, but the official colors of the Bandera Bulldogs may still be orange and white. At least that's the word from a former Bandera High School student-athlete who was there when the Bulldogs began wearing the blue.

"When I first came to Bandera, in the fall of 1946, the school colors were orange and white," writes retired Lt. Col. Pat Blair, now a San Antonio resident. "In fact, I wore a very faded jersey in a game against Nixon that year. It was a real hand-me-down. You know, the kind issued to third stringers.

"In truth," Blair continues, "the first team uniforms were not much better. And I recall the number I wore was the same number also worn in the same game by Al Kindla's older brother, Slick....

"Charlie Applegate (Crazy Bob Applegate's brother who was written up recently in the San Antonio Express-News as San Antonio's most devout Chicago Cubs fan) was not long graduated (from BHS) and was a young businessman in town. He decided to do something about the ragged appearance of our uniforms by spearheading a campaign to get businesses to donate money for new ones," Blair writes.

"Well, he ended up with not near enough money to buy new orange and white uniforms, but he got some kind of cut rate deal on some solid black (he called in navy blue) uniforms with small white numbers.

"That's how in 1947 the school colors changed from orange to blue," says Blair.

Butchered cow died from blows to head

A dead cow was exhumed last week, and the reward offered for the conviction of her killer has jumped to a total of $2,500, Bandera County sheriff Steve Forest said Monday.

According to Forest, the black holstein/angus cross had not been shot, but probably died from blows to the head. The cow was found along State Highway 16 between Medina and Bandera Thursday, Oct. 5. The cow was carrying a calf at the time, and had three of its four quarters removed.

The cow's owner, Hilbert "Sonny" Jonas, has offered $1,000 reward for the arrest, indictment and conviction of the cow-killer, and Forest said Monday that in addition to the $500 the sheriff's office is offering, an anonymous donor has put up another $1,000, making the total reward $2,500.

Forest said the reward money his department is offering does not come from the county's budget, but from a special fund made up of money seized from drug arrests made by the department.

Margarito Flores Jr., 24, of Junction, and Richard Calhoun, 60, of Bandera, were arrested Oct. 14 and charged with driving while intoxicated. Both arrests were made by the Department of Public Safety.

Stephen R. Thompson, 22, of Cypress, was arrested by Bandera County sheriff's deputies Oct. 13 and charged with burglary of a building.

Randall Joseph Oliver, 17, of

Kenneth Scheiber, 42, of Hondo was arrested Oct. 10 and charged with assault.

Travis Pratt, 37, of Pipe Creek, was arrested Oct. 8 and charged with endangering a child.

Oct. 12, Dale Dougherty of San Antonio reported a burglary at his place in Medina Bend. According to Dougherty, the incident occurred sometime between Oct. 1 and Oct. 12. Approximately $1,200 in property was stolen.

Also Oct. 12, John Smith of Leon Valley reported a break-in at his place in Medina Bend. The burglary took place sometime between Sept. 15 and Oct. 9. According to Smith, some damage was done to his property, but nothing was taken.

Oct. 9, Gary Welch of San Antonio reported a burglary at his place in Lakehills. The burglary occurred between Sept. 15 and Oct. 9. According to Welch, approximately $600 in property was taken.

Bandera savings institution sports new name now

The savings and loan office on Main Street in Bandera is now known as Guaranty Federal Savings Bank to reflect its new ownership that came about as a result of an acquisition last year Temple-Inland Inc., Mason Best Company, and Trammell Crow Company.

New signs were erected last month at the Bandera branch and 17 others in preparation for the name change, which became effective Oct. 1.

"Employees are excited about the changes," said Bandera branch manager Edith Chandler. "We want to convey to our communities that although the name may have been modified, the bank has not changed its focus on the customer."

The branch has been known as a branch of First Federal Savings of Austin. Prior to its purchase in about 1987 it was a branch of University Savings.

The acquisition of First Federal Savings makes it possible for customers of the 18 branches of the old First Federal to transact business at 52 branches in 33 cities across Texas, says company spokesman Richard W. Roth. Guaranty Federal Savings Bank's operations center has been moved from Texas City to First Federal's facility in Austin.

In all, Guaranty Federal now has $4 billion in total assets, the company says, and 52 branch offices and 12 mortgage offices in Texas.

Judge schooled in Austin seminar

Justice of the Peace Tom Grant of Bandera attended a seminar on new laws in Austin Thursday, Oct. 5.

Setting it straight

The city of Bandera has spent $34,000 to date renovating Well No. 3, not $48,000 as was reported last week. The $48,000 is the sum of the $34,000 and the estimated $14,000 necessary to make the well pump 250 gallons of water per minute, says public works director Rey Garcia.

Balloonist Diane Mullins will speak to members of the Bandera Optimist Club Monday, Oct. 23, at the Bandera Inn at 7:30 p.m.

The public is invited, says Optimist spokeswoman Gay Guilott.

Chamber seeks volunteers to help with Hunters' Barbecue

Bandera county Chamber of Commerce officials are looking for volunteers to help stage the traditional Hunters' Barbecue Friday, Nov. 3, at Mansfield Park.

The Hunters' Barbecue, traditionally one of the community's biggest events, is held on the eve of the opening of whitetail deer hunting season and is the community's annual salute to the deer hunters who visit the community for the annual hunting event.

Ranchers who lease their property for hunting generally treat their lessors to dinner and townsfolk pay a nominal fee for their dinner and the opportunity to mingle with visitors and express their appreciation to them in person.

"The barbecue is the city's way of welcoming deer hunters to the area," explains chamber secretary Nancy Hopes. Persons who want to help stage the barbecue may call the chamber office at 796-4312.

Absentee balloting underway

The in-person, absentee balloting period opens Wednesday, Oct. 18, for those registered to vote in the Nov. 7 election, says Bandera County Clerk Vera King.

Registered voters will have until Nov. 3 to appear in person at the county courthouse and cast absentee ballots in next month's election.

Under a 1987 state law that relaxed absentee balloting requirements, Texans were given the option of casting absentee votes by personal appearance without having to give a reason for doing so.

A separate period still exists for those who cast absentee ballots by mail. That period began Sept. 8. Those who vote absentee by mail must give a reason for not being able to cast their ballot on election day.

11 persons in line for 5 BCAD posts

By James Henry Frazar

Some 11 nominees for five positions on the board of directors of the Bandera County Appraisal District have been selected and the ballots for the taxing entities are expected as soon as late this week.

Medina ISD Thursday, Oct. 12, nominated current board member Robert "Sonny" W. Payne Jr. and in separate action, the city of Bandera nominated Irvin Stevens Friday, Oct. 13.

Utopia ISD trustees Monday, Oct. 9, placed the name of Ben Barrow in nomination for the BCAD board.

In separate action, incumbents Joe Hearn, W.B. Kirkpatrick and Fabian Mazurek were nominated by the Bandera Independent School District board of trustees Monday, Oct. 9. They cited a need to continue consistency on the board.

Bandera County Commissioners Monday, Oct. 9, selected Louise Karr, Gary Johnston, Gilbert Scheele, and commissioners Dan Alanis and Roger Raser as their nominees to the appraisal district board.

Each voting-taxing entity is allowed to place up to five names in nomination.

Under BCAD's unusual election procedure, Bandera ISD gets 2,660 votes, or 53.2 percent of the total; Bandera County gets 1,526 votes, or 30.52 percent; Utopia ISD gets 379 votes, or 7.58 percent; Medina ISD gets 378 votes, or 7.56 percent; and the city of Bandera gets 57 votes, or 1.14 percent. The vote is based on each taxing entity's contribution to the appraisal district's budget.

Under this procedure laid out by the state property tax board, each taxing entity can cast all its votes for one candidate or divide its votes and distribute the votes to as many candidates as it would like.

Candidates seek positions on water management board

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

J.K. Leighton, Joe M. Cantu, and J.B. Edwards are three candidates of the 17 candidates on the Nov. 7 ballot in Springhills Water Management District director election.

Last week, The Bulletin featured Mary Jane Cave, John Halliday, and Norman Hicks Mansfield.

Next week, The Bulletin will feature more candidates.

J.K. Leighton

J.K. Leighton, 67, of Vanderpool is a Realtor and ranch owner, retired from the U.S. Postal Service.

Leighton says he believes that water is the most valuable resource in Bandera County and citizens need to guard against that water being controlled from outside the county. "I feel that local citizens will have a greater interest in water conservation and management if our water can be managed by local real property owners versus being placed in a multi-county district.

Leighton says he sees the goals of the new disrict, if confirmed by voters Nov. 7, as protecting and enhancing the county's surface and ground water and preserving land owners' rights to that water.

Bandera County is designated as a critical water area by the state water commission, says Leighton.

Leighton says he is running for the board so he may repay county citizens for the benefits he has from living in the county.

Leighton has served for two years on the Bandera County River Authority board and has been in the real estate business since the 1960s.

He also reminds voters that board members are not paid.

Leighton says he is aware of the importance of water conservation districts forming in the state. "Bandera County will have the first single-county river (surface) and (under)ground conservation district formed in the state of Texas," he says.

"We as voters need to vote in favor of the forming of the Springhills Water Management District," says Leighton. "We need to elect who we feel are the best qualified directors to work together with one goal - to preserve and manage the water in our district."

J.B. Edwards

J.B. Edwards, 68, of Pipe Creek is a rancher and real estate broker.

He says he sees the Springhills Water Management District as watchdog over water and environmental resources in Bandera County and to provide the amount of safeguards the use of the county's water as county residents would want.

Edwards says the first thing the district needs to do, if confirmed by the voters Nov. 7, is to keep a coordinated understanding of the movements of other areas and their effect on Bandera County's water supply.

Edwards says he has the energy and resources to serve and the knowledge and experience "as a devoted student of our underground and above-ground water."

Edwards has served as a justice of the peace for 14 years and has had 14 years on the Bandera Independent School District board of which he served two terms as president. Edwards is on his second appointment to the Bandera County River Authority. He says he has also passed real estate appraising courses.

Edwards has owned and operated a successful heavy machinery contracting business in Bandera County for 25 years. During this time he has built many earthen water retainers and has become a student of surface springs and water penetration.

Joe M. Cantu

Joe M. Cantu, 48, of Pipe Creek, is a self-employed business owner and owns and operates businesses at Pipe Creek's Barrel House Center including Barrel House Automotive.

Cantu says the Springhills Water Management District should manage, conserve, and preserve the quantity and quality of both surface and ground water in Bandera County.

The district, if confirmed by voters Nov. 7, will need to gather public input as to a first set of priorities concerning water.

Cantu, as a member of the Bandera County River Authority board of directors, says he has become more aware of water issues facing the state.

As a business owner, Cantu says he receives input and understands the feeling of county citizens. "I understand budget and expense and the need to operate with the least of both."

Cantu says the county needs to be involved in the management of our water, because, "Sometime in the near future, the state of Texas is going to require that our groundwater be under some management district."

Cantu says the county's water resources are of the utmost importance to insure the county's growth and economy. "The future of Bandera County will depend strongly on the management of our water resources because water is and will become more and more our most valued resource," says Cantu.

"I strongly urge voters to vote for the confirmation of the Springhills Water Management District and select the directors of their choice," he says.

Christmas Fair set

Seventy-five dealers from all over Texas are expected at The 6th annual Oma's Christmas Fair in Boerne Dec. 2 and 3 selling seashell pictures, iron art, Christmas decorations and wreaths, crocheted and knitted items, fold art and many other items.

German food and drinks will be available and the German Club of Boerne High School will sing German songs and play polka music.

Public meeting on water set Tuesday

A public meeting to discuss the Springhills Water Management District will feature as speaker State Sen. Bill Sims Tuesday, Oct. 24, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the Mansfield Park Recreation Center.

Also expected at the meeting are State Rep. Eldon Edge, Bandera County Judge Ray F. Mauer, Bandera County River Authority chairman Phil Becker, and BCRA executive director Ray Buck.

Other speakers with an expertize in water issues are expected, says Buck.

The purpose of the meeting is to give an overview of water issues concerning the state as well as the county, says Buck. Also to be discussed are why the legislation was proposed.

A question and answer session will follow.

The Springhills Water Management District, created by the state legislature in May, is designed to regulate underground water and in the election, county voters will vote to continue or abolish the district. If voters decide to keep the district Nov. 7, the river authority would be merged into with the new district, forming only one district.

The event is sponsored by the Bandera River Authority and is being coordinated by the board under the direction of chairman Becker.

The Harmonizers will entertain as part of the program that ends at 2 p.m.

Each member is asked to bring a covered dish to share.

Those that wish to attend can meet at the First Baptist Church of Bandera at 8:30 a.m. to ride the county van, says Bandera County Extension Agent Jan Bryson.

Business group due to visit Bandera

Bandera County has completed a Team Readiness training program that could help the county attract businesses and industries.

Bandera County will have the opportunity to use their new skills Oct. 19, when an LCRA-hosted Familierization Tour for business prospects will make a stop in Bandera.

A group of businessmen considering relocating or building a new plant will tour Bandera Monday morning. They will also visit other towns in the Hill Country.

"LCRA will be inviting target firms from throughout the United States to tour part of LCRA's service area," says Rosa Rios-Valdez, LCRA Economic/Industrial Development Manager. "Bandera County and other 'Team Ready' cities are prepared to demonstrate a fast-track, quick response to inquiries from these business prospects."

County Judge Ray F. Mauer accepted a certificate for this accomplishment at the Bandera Commissioners Court meeting Monday, Oct. 9.

The Team Readiness certification is awarded by the Lower Colorado River Authority, which sponsors the program.

To be certified as a "Team Ready" community, Bandera County met the following requirement and must requalify every two years.

- Set up a local economic development team, composed of civic and business leaders and public officials interested in adding new industries in the community.
- Developed a written work program that outlines specific activities for the team leaders to address in recruiting business and industries.
- Competed leadership training provided by LCRA on local economic development planning and on responding to prospect inquiries.
- Compiled complete data on the county's support resources for business and industry, such as schools, medical facilities, and utilities information.
- Identified sites and facilities with appropriate zoning for the type of industry or business desired.

Local team members attended three training sessions conducted by Glenn Altwein of LCRA and Paul Williams, Southwest Consulting Services.

Participants include Leanne Miller, president of Bandera County Chamber of Commerce; Joe McMullan, chairman of the Bandera County Economic Development Committee, and Jeff Partenheimer, chairman of the Bandera County Area Diversification Subcommittee.

Team Ready Committee members include Bandera Mayor Raymond Adamietz, Linda Stein, Gerry Sharp, Peace Justice Tom Grant, Johnny Boyle, Richard Saunders and Gary Johnston.

Also included are Beverly Cox, Bandera County Commissioner Roger Raser, Edith Chandler, Ray D'Spain and Dianne Mullins.

Through team training, Bandera County is now prepared to identify prospective businesses and to promote the advantages of doing business in the county," says Altwein. "We congratulate them and look forward to working closely with Bandera County."

The Team Readiness Program is sponsored by the LCRA Economic/Industrial Development Office.

Willie Nelson, Johnny Bush Billy Joe Shaver at Cabaret

Willie Nelson returned to Bandera Saturday after an absence of several years, but the legendary country music star said he was glad to be back here for a visit.

Nelson, Johnny Bush, Billy Joe Shaver and a film crew were at Bandera's Cabaret Saturday, Oct. 14 for a special taping by Willie's new Cowboy Television Network. According to CTN executive Doug Holloway, the Bandera footage will be used in the "Honky Tonk concert series" when CTN goes on the air sometime after March 15.

The cable channel is owned by Nelson, Holloway, Mack Long and Bud Shrake and will feature "something different than you can get on the country television stations now," and will reportedly use musicians such as San Antonio's jazz artist Jackie King.

Nelson contends that there has been a lot of good music, and particularly country music coming out of Texas since the 1970s, and humbly, he spreads the credit for this phenomenon around.

Willie Nelson's first Bandera job was at the old Silver Spur club in the early 1950s. He was playing with Ernest Tubb's band at the time. Later, he played at The Cabaret with Ray Price's band.

Price had many hit songs written by newcomers such as Willie Nelson and Kris Kristofferson. After Willie began recording his own stuff, he gained popularity.

For a time during the 1960s, Willie made his home in Bandera. He later moved to Helotes, then eventually he settled in the Austin area, which still serves as his "home base."

Fiddling youth wins first place in Alabama convention

Julie Ann Carpenter of San Angelo, 12, a performer at both International Apple Festivals in Medina, won first place among beginning fiddlers at the Tennessee Valley Old Time Fiddlers Convention in Athens, Ala., earlier this month.

The youthful musician is the granddaughter of Tom and Faye Carpenter of Medina and a two-time national champion junior fiddler.

The Tennessee event is known as the "granddaddy of fiddlers conventions" and emphasizes mastery of old-time styles and tunes. It drew an estimated crowd of 20,000 and more than 200 contestants.

Carpenter won a trophy and $300 cash.

EMS Chili Cookoff hosted at Kelley's

The fall edition of the Pipe Creek EMS Support Team Chili Cookoff will be held Saturday, Oct. 21, at Kelley's Shamrock Tavern in Pipe Creek with a night-before dance to benefit the March of Dimes.

On Friday, the annual Bandera Longhorn Cattle Drive that benefits the March of Dimes will stop over at Kelley's Friday for the dance, featuring Tina Martin and E.Z. Pickins.

An estimated 100 Longhorns are expected in the drive, which will start from Helotes, stopping at San Geronimo and then at Kelley's in Pipe Creek. They will head out Saturday morning to the Cabaret.

Saturday morning chili cooking will start about 8 a.m. with cookers aiming for first-, second-, and third-place trophies made by Lakehills Art Gallery. One showmanship trophy will also be awarded. Cook's entry fee is $15.

There will be no "worst" chili trophy this year, but there will be a people's choice award, where cookoff goers will vote for their choice of top chili.

Beer and soda and food will be available. Proceeds from sales outside will go the EMS Support Team, says L.C. Kelley, tavern owner.

The chili judging will be at 4 p.m., with an auction to follow.

For more information, call Jerry Acord at 535-6121. "All proceeds go to the EMS Support Team," says Acord.

Lakeshore VFD Turkey Shoot and Menudo Cookoff Oct. 28

The annual Lakeshore volunteer fire department Turkey Shoot Festival and Menudo Cookoff will be held Oct. 28 at the firehouse in the Wharton's Dock area.

The turkey shoot will begin at 10 a.m. and last until everyone is tired of shooting. The shoot will be conducted by the rules of the "Field and Stream" Magazine contest so winners of the competition can be entered in a national drawing.

Pat Barker and her crew will be there serving Pat's famous prize-winning Tex-Mex food, beer and soft drinks will be sold.

For further information, contact Charlie Highnote at 796-3387 or Joe Sowell at 796-3830.

St. Victor's to host hunters'supper Nov. 4

St. Victor's Chapel Annual Turkey Supper will be held Saturday Nov. 4, starting at 5 p.m.

Turkey, corn bread dressing, sweet potatoes, green beans, cranberry sauce, and celery sticks will be served on the $3.75 adult plate and $2.50 child's plate, says publicity chairwoman Dorothy Casey. Coffee and tea will be available.

Homemade pies, cakes and cookies will also be for sale by the slice or whole.

This traditional event was started as a fund raiser by the pioneer residents to establish a Catholic chapel in the Medina Lake area, says Casey. "It also was planned as an event to celebrate the opening of deer season to attract visiting hunters to enjoy a delicious meal after a trying day afield," she says.

"We welcome back all who joined our family in the past and look forward to new members and visitors," says Casey.

The church is located on Park Road 37 in Lakehills.

Boating incidents relatively minor at Medina Lake

Medina Lake had a relatively safe summer this year, partially due to the normal boating traffic being curtailed by the lower water levels.

One drowning, that of a 25-year-old Mexican national, Erasmo G. Juanes occured Sunday, April 2, he fell into the lake while stepping backwards to take pictures.

Two other serious accidents were reported, one involving a skier who was apparently pulled up from the water a bit too fast, pulling several muscles in his forearms.

The other accident involved an intoxicated man who was riding as a passenger on the bow of a boat. The boat hit a large wake and the man was thrown from the boat, which subsequently ran over him. His left forearm was severely cut by the propeller of the boat.

The injured man became belligerent with the Red Cove employee who was telephoning for ment by the Lakehills EMS.

an ambulance, and was taken to Bexar Medical Center for treat

Over the Labor Day weekend, there was a report of another boating accident, but the injured party was taken for medical treatment by private transport.

Medina Lake Game Warden Ernest "Ernie" Lerma has been warning boaters to be especially careful on the lake because of the brush and trees now exposed by the low water levels. "Exercise extreme caution at night," Lerma says. "There are islands, gravel bars and peninsulas exposed now, that perhaps were not there the week before."

"The new BWI law seems to have made boaters more aware of the problems with boating and alcohol," Lerma elaborates. "There were also less vehicular accidents leaving the lake. I believe it's helping the officers on the highways as well."

Wharton's Dock

By John Ciarlo — 796-3225

Gwen Allen, wife of the Rev. Ken Allen of Walker Memorial Chapel, was admitted to Wilford Hall Medical Center Tuesday, Oct. 10, and underwent eye surgery Wednesday. She is back home and reports she is feeling fine.

• Commissioner Bennie Barker returned to Audie Murphy Memorial Veterans Administration Hospital in San Antonio Monday, Oct. 16, and was scheduled to undergo cardiac bypass surgery Wednesday, Oct. 18.

• George Smith of Wharton's Dock was admitted to Nix Memorial Center Sunday, Oct. 15, and was to have had surgery Monday, Oct. 16.

• Irene Affield, who is living with her daughter Bonnie Heuer of Lake Medina Shores, celebrated her 80th birthday with a surprise visit from her other daughter, Shirley, and husband Norman Helmas from Gilbert, Ariz.

Affield was also surprised at the Silver Sage Corral Senior Citizens Center when a large number of her friends showed up to enjoy lunch with her, followed with a birthday cake. Irene stated, "It was a birthday I will never forget."

That evening they went out to eat where another surprise was waiting, this time for the Helmas' in celebration of their 33rd wedding anniversary.

• Ola and Frank Harrell left their home at Wharton's Dock in April and traveled to McCall, Idaho, arriving there April 16 finding lots and lots of snow. They spent one night and then went to Junction City, Ore., to help their son move.

They stayed a week there and took a trip around Mt. Shasta, Calif. and then back to McCall and found that all the snow had gone.

During the last part of June they took a trip to Victoria, Canada, leaving from Point Angeles, Wash. on a ferry. They spent several days in Victoria and saw the Butchart Gardens and a "fabulous" museum. They also took a ferry through the San Juan Islands.

They took another trip back to Klamath Falls, Ore. to help their granddaughter Nendi celebrate her 17th birthday.

On the trip back to their home at Wharton's Dock, they spent several hours in Arches National Park in Utah.

• Ethel Smalley of Lake Medina Shores has returned home after a lengthy trip. Her first stop was in Dallas for a week visiting her son, Jim, and family, Carol and Jeff.

On Aug. 19, she flew to Cleveland for a week's visit with her son, Deek, and family, Fran and David.

Ethel and other family members attended the Smalley family reunion Aug. 27 in Boone, Ia., with over 100 relatives in attendance.

Al Smalley and his wife Bernice and Ethel traveled the farthest distance to attend the reunion. Ethel was the oldest, 87, to attend.

• Kim and Ray Byrd from San Antonio and Joyce Reese, Juanita "Sister" Shaefer's daughter, and Duane Stevens from Falfurrias visited friends and Shaefer and Oscar Koehler for the weekend.

• Marvin and Ariel Drewry from Edinburg came up for the weekend to visit Marvin's cousin, Marie Bentley. As usual, Marvin brought along a load of fresh produce for area friends including pickles, which will probably be canned this week.

• Nikey Coffey of Wharton's Dock area was burned on both hands and one foot when she attempted to move a lighted Potpourri container and the melted wax ran out on her.

Bring your good shooting eye and your appetite and join the fun at the Lakeshore Volunteer Fire Department Turkey Shoot and Menudo Cookoff Oct. 28. Remember it costs money to operate a volunteer fire department and your support is needed.

He ran into a deer Wednesday, Oct. 4, while he was riding his motorcycle on FM Road 1283.

• While there will be a chili cookoff at Kelley's Shamrock this Saturday, another is planned next weekend at Pop's Place for Bandera County Helping Hand Saturday, Oct. 28.

Cooks can register by calling Shirley McMullen at 535-4366 or 535-4384. Entry fee is $10.

Scouts hold court

Boy Scout Troop 144 held their first Court of Honor Tuesday, Oct. 17 at the Pipe Creek Presbyterian Church.

The ceremony recognized the advancement of each scout. Wayne Eskridge, scouting district executive, helped Scoutmaster Tom Beer present skill awards and merit badges to Chris Bradberry, Jake Campbell, J.R. Forsythe, Tim Henry, Chris Leibold, Shaun Moseley, and Josh Story.

Sports spokeswoman Virginia Henry.

Also honored were the newly trained Scout Master Tom Beer and his assistant scoutmasters Ray Workman, Tony Parker and Cliff Henry.

what's rustlin'

by bungy

There'll be longhorn cattle in the streets of Bandera this weekend when the annual drive from Helotes winds up at The Cabaret Dance Hall Saturday. Look for them on Main Street at around 5 p.m.

The drovers and the camp followers will camp Friday night at Kelley's Shamrock Bar in Pipe Creek, and the beeves will be penned behind The Cabaret Saturday night and moved out early Sunday morning.

I've been told these longhorns still have a wild streak in them and are very unpredictable. As unpredictable, perhaps as drovers Dickie Hicks, Chuck Wyatt and Cal Chapman.

• Busbee's Bar-B-Que has done a terrific job of expanding his restaurant on Main Street. It's completely glassed in and still contains Marianne's cowboy and ranch museum mounted on the walls.

I remember when Bud Merka had a barbecue stand there and that was it. Customers got their orders at a counter with a let-down shutter and then wandered up Main Street eating.

Don Busbee bought it and expanded it to include indoor and outdoor dining areas. Now it's completely inside, but the decor remains a great example of "cowboy capital art."

And the barbecue is still delicious.

• Rudy Robbins and his "Cowboy Band" played in the ballroom of the Hilton Palacio del Rio in SA, and they "wowed" them.

• A new shop has opened at 311-C Main Street that is kind of a mixture of arts and crafts, art gallery, antique shop, delicious pecan pies, baked goods, nickle coffee and more.

Stop by to say, "Howdy."

• The Sheriff's Posse featuring the fiddlin' sheriff, Steve Forest, will be in Tarpley Saturday for a Veterans of Foreign Wars barbecue. You can count on lots of foot-stompin' fun.

• True Value Hardware is going to try to be open on Sundays to help out the weekend workers, they say.

• The Bandera County Convention and Visitors Bureau, a committee of the Bandera County Chamber of Commerce, is putting together a budget for spending the county-levied motel and guest ranch occupancy tax to promote tourism in Bandera County.

It will come up with suggested percentages for advertising, historical plaques, signs, brochures and other items and present it to the county commissioners.

It would behoove any organizations who have any ideas on how to promote tourism in Bandera to get a representative to the next general meeting, at the chamber office at 7 p.m. on Nov. 20.

• Wayne and Debbie Kennemer, who operate the Orchard Restaurant in Medina, are really Wayne and Janice Kennemer. She was beginning to wonder if he had two wives. Sorry about that, Janice.

• The Willie Nelson-Johnny Bush shindig at The Cabaret Saturday night was electric. Everyone dancing and hollering to all the popular songs of both.

I stood on a chair to get an overall view, and it was like a million cowboy hats swirling in time to the music.

Willie left his boot prints and signature in a cement mold so our town's "Cowboy Trail of the Stars" on Main Street at Leal's Mexican Restaurant and Cantina can be enlarged.

This event brought a lot of happy shoppers into Banders shops Saturday and Sunday as did the terrific quilt show at the Silver Sage Corral.

The tourist merchants surely say, "thank you."

Job workshop set

A Job Seekers Workshop will be held at Arnold Hall at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio from 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 24.

Pork today is lighter, leaner

Can be grilled, sauteed or stir-fried quickly

Today's new leaner pork is available in a wide variety of cuts. Among the more familiar cuts, a very good selection of boneless pork is available offering recipe-ready convenience for today's way of cooking.

Although today's pork is lighter and leaner, it's still flavorful. This great tasting meat offers more nutrient value for fewer calories than ever before. An average three ounce serving of lean pork contains 200 calories or less, according to Irene Elizondo, of the Texas Department of Agriculture.

In cholesterol content, pork compares favorably with beef and chicken. A three ounce serving of cooked lean pork contains just 79 milligrams of cholesterol. The American Heart Association recommends 300 mg. of dietary cholesterol a day; a three ounce serving of pork is only 26 percent of the recommended amount.

A good source of B vitamins, pork leads as a dietary source of thiamine containing three times as much as any other meat, says Elizondo.

Nutritionists recommend that fat consumption should be about 30-35 percent of the total calories. Fat, a frequent subject for debate, is essential for proper body functioning. Besides helping to furnish heat and energy, fat carries the fat soluble vitamins A, D, E and K while supplying the essential fatty acid and linoleic acid necessary for proper growth and well-being. Saturated fat in pork is less than 40 percent; the rest is mono-or polyunsaturated.

Because today's pork is leaner, says Elizondo, cooks need to be careful not to overcook. For forktender, juicy pork, grill, saute or stir-fry quickly. Or roast to an internal temperature of 155 degree F. to 160 degrees F.

For more information and recipes using Texas pork, write to the Texas Department of Agriculture, 122 Heiman, San Antonio, Texas 78205.

Senior Citizens

Silver Sage Corral

By Manuel Flores

Though the Silver Sage Corral functions primarily as a senior citizens activity center, the roster of superactive adults there are quick to point out that all ages are welcome to participate in most of the activities there, and that the Corral has become a social gathering place for adults of all ages in Bandera County.

"We're not just a bunch of old folks," said Harry Webb, who serves as board chairman for the sponsoring organization. "There are many active adults here, and we stay busy constantly."

Webb, Manuel Flores, Marie Holland and others are trying to dispel the myth that as people get older they become less active and less involved in the community. One way to do this is to show that seniors can create through such programs as Webb's weaving class, which meets each week at the center.

Nutrition and transportation are the only two areas that have an age restriction at the center. Other activities and services are open to all ages, Flores said.

"We want people to know this is an activity center," Webb said, "with the emphasis on active."

shirt orders. All the shirts were blue or white, monogrammed, and made of pure cotton. The quilt, made between 1943 and 1945, placed first in the non-Bandera yesteryear pieced category.

Thompson's "Flower Basket," was made in the mid-1940's to use as a bedspread for a spare room poster single bed, and placed first in the non-Bandera yesteryear appliqued category.

Mary Carpenter's "Around the World," hand-made around 1940 by her husband Roy's mother, placed first in the 1940-1970 pieced category.

Phyllis Smith's "Mother Smith's Quilt," an applique with button-hole edging made around 1925 and assembled in Bandera and quilted in Fredericksburg in 1986 placed first in the appliqued new and old category.

Linda Barton's "Grandmother's Flower Garden" placed first in the pieced new and old category.

"The print pieces are scraps from my first grade dresses," Barton said. "My mother had pieced enough blocks for a double bed size quilt, but never put them together.

"When she gave them to me, I wanted a king size, so I took off the second row of print and made more blocks, then set it together with green and white.

"She started it in 1949." Barton continued, "I finished it in 1 . It was the s. "I made Evangeline ... cross stitch birds and flowers, placed first in the embroidery category, and her knitted blocks took first place honors in the other needle arts quilts category.

Marie Krueger's "Bears and Balloons" placed first in the baby quilt category.

Others who displayed quilts in the show included Dorothy Callahan, Gustie Carpenter, Lillian Bradford, Betty Ciarlo, Marilyn Michalczak, Ruth Whitehead, Margaret Evans, Jane Graham, Mrs. Alfred Anderwald, Ruth Ann Tips, John Rogers and Mary Joe Kirkpatrick.

A Thought For The Week
By John M. Grimes

Does revenge ever serve a good purpose? Did you ever want to "get even" with someone who did you a wrong? Most people would probably say, "yes" — especially if a bad business deal was involved ... or an insult occurred ... or a snub on family or friends was experienced. Whatever the reasons, often times a deep seated desire for revenge surfaces.

Regardless of circumstances, vengeance is harmful and should be avoided ... When a desire for revenge is felt, the words of St. Paul should be remembered. In his Epistle to the Romans, he said: "Vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord."

We are taught to turn the other cheek when injured because reprisals serve no good purpose. It has been proved time and again that evil will punish itself. It is a fact of life that a victor often becomes his own victim when he tries to get even' ... Is this not a fact we should remember more often?...

The Bookshelf

By Jimmie Hughey, Library Director

The circulation area of the Bandera County Library is about to get a face-lift.

With a few moves of shelving and various other sleight-of-hand moves, the library will end up with more space within the circulation area to process books, store books to be processed, and in general work more effectively for library users.

This means we will not have to store books on the floor, process books in the library area, nor get in the patrons' way.

Neil Peterson of Peterson Woodcrafts in Bandera won a competitive bid to do the construction work which will be paid for from the Trade Trust Fund, not county funds.

Additional shelving and a refurbished sign have been ordered from funds derived from the city of Bandera's hotel occupancy tax.

• New best sellers this week include John Jakes' "California Gold," Stephen Coonts' "Minotaur," Fulghum's "It Was On Fire When I Lay Down On It," "A Knight in Shining Armor," "The Oldest Confederate Widow Tells All," and Ken Follett's "Pillar of Earth."

We also have a good selection of video cassettes, both in English and in Spanish.

• Persons taking Spanish classes at Silver Sage Corral might want to hone up on their Spanish reading skills by investigating the collection of Spanish-language books. In addition to works by Mexican and Spanish authors, the library has translations of Zane Grey, B. Traven and Earle Stanley Gardner (Perry Mason).

Sandidge, Scott say vows in Aug. 12 ceremony

Rena Sandidge and the Rev. Bob Scott were married Saturday, Aug. 12, at Bandera United Methodist Church with the Rev. Jarrell Sharp officiating. Southwest Texas Conference Bishop Ernest Dixon also assisted with the ceremony.

The bride's attendants included matron of honor Renie Garrison; and bridesmaids Janna Sandidge, daughter of the bride; Robin Scott, daughter of the groom; and Carrie Sandidge, granddaughter of the bride. Rena was given away by her son, G.T Sandidge III.

Music was provided by organist Karen Zickler and pianist Debra Goode, nieces of the bride. Shauna Kingman, granddaughter of the bride, presided at the bride's book.

The bride wore a two-piece street-length pale pink linen damask dress with seed pearl ornaments.

The groom wore an off-white silk jacket and charcoal grey trousers.

A barbecue dinner and reception was held after the ceremony at the Tarpley home of Dan and Ella Sandidge.

The couple lives in Crossett, Ark., where he is pastor of First United Methodist Church there.

Bandera
By Peggy Tobin

Passersby are watching the careful dismantling of the Spanish-style stucco additions to the building at the corner of Eleventh and Cypress Streets. Day by day, more of the configuration of the oldest stone building in Bandera is showing up. Al "Squeaky" Evans, new owner of the corner complex formerly part of the John R. Langford estate, plans to restore the historic house to as close a resemblance of its original look as possible.

Mrs. Frank Baker of Boerne furnished information on the house which was included in the book, "Inklings of the Past", written by Nettie Saul and illustrated by Margaret Focke. The locally published work, first issued as a paperback series, came out in a consolidated hard-cover edition in 1976 to commemorate the bicentennial of the American Revolution. It is already a sought-after collector's item as well as a prime source-book of architectural history.

"The first stone building erected in Bandera", Mrs. Baker says, "was built by P.D. Saner in the year 1855 and still stands at the corner of Cypress and Eleventh Streets. It has been used as a court house, a school house, a store, a funeral home, a residence and a bakery. In 1869, the building was sold to Henry Stevens for the sum of 75 dollars. In later years it was called Noonan's Corner.

"It is related that on one occasion, when District Court was in session, some of the grand jurors attending court spread their pallets in the yard and were asleep one night when Indians made a stealthy raid and stole all the juror's horses, which were staked a short distance away".

Squeaky Evans is anxious to hear from anyone with information or memories of the old place which has stood witness to much of the colorful history of Bandera. He especially would hope for an old picture of the house before it was altered to suit 1930 fashion fantasies. Is there such a photo?

Not so incidentally, Punkie Eckhart and Nancy Hopes, members of Bandera's planning and zoning commission, are beginning an inventory of all notable historic buildings and sites around the town. An inventory of the entire county was made by Kathy Burns, architectural historian working with Alamo Area Council of Governments and Texas Historical Commission, back in 1979. Punkie and Nancy will expand upon Kathy's work. Any intact structure now fifty years old is historic, at least in the local context which is the context we care about.

Meanwhile, it is great to see that most people building or remodelling these days are fans of the early Texas style and are working to "Keep Bandera Western". Thanks Squeaky! The frontier atmosphere is the thing everyone who comes here is yearning for. Our goose laying golden eggs lives under a tin roof and wears cowboy boots with run-over heels.

Bandina Church of Christ to hear gospel preachers

The Camp Bandina Church of Christ has invited the public to hear two gospel preachers during the church's first annual series of lectures Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 21 and 22.

John H. Banister of Dallas and Sammie Swim of McAllen will be featured in the two-day lectureship with congregational singing under the direction of Gene Helm and Danny Cummings, both of Kerrville.

The Jubilee Boys, a quartet of gospel singers, will appear on the program Saturday at 7 p.m.

Camp Bandina will open at noon Friday and remain open until noon Monday, Oct. 23. Lectures will begin at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. on Saturday, classes at 10:15 a.m. and 3:15 p.m., and a sing song at 7 p.m..

Worship and study will be held at 9:15 a.m. Sunday with dinner on the grounds scheduled at noon.

Banister has been preaching for more than 21 years and thousands have heard his voice over radio and television. He was minister at the Skillman Avenue Church of Christ in Dallas from 1948 to 1971 and was heard over KRLD radio each Sunday for 21 years and on KRLD-TV for 17 years.

Swim, minister of Harvey Drive Church of Christ in McAllen, has been preaching 40 years in Arlington, Dallas, San Antonio and elsewhere. He helped organize the San Antonio Bible Chair and continued to preach for various congregations in the San Antonio area.

He appeared often on radio station WOAI in San Antonio and was moderator and panelist on the KENS-TV program "What Does the Bible Say?"

Todd Verciglio and his friend Rebel were once again winners in the American Quarter Horse Association and STQHA competition. The duo came away with top honors for 1989 in addition to three buckles, a silver tray and cooling blanket.

Trio celebrates 263 years

A combined total of 263 years were celebrated Saturday, Oct. 7, at a party honoring the birthdays of Paul Garrison of Medina and Raymond Hicks and the Rev. Ira Garrison, both of Bandera.

About 80 guests helped the trio celebrate the occasion at the party hosted by Rev. Garrison's children, Mr. and Mrs. George File of Houston, Mr. and Mrs. T.O. Garrison Jr. of Fort Worth, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Storrs of Bandera.

Mrs. Bruce Montague presided at the guest book. Mrs. Paul Lavon Garrison of Medina served cake, and Mrs. O.L. Brantley of Kerrville and Barbara Brantley of Dallas served punch.

Allison and Regina Montague were junior hostesses and their mother, Mrs. James Wood of Temple, recorded the festivities on video tape.

Ruling's impact unknown, says Bandera school dad

Although Bandera is considered "rich" by school district standards, the impact of last week's ruling by the Texas Supreme Court that the state's school finance system is unconstitutional is as yet unknown, according to BISD superintendent Ted Dockery.

"Nobody knows yet what will happen," Dockery said. "They didn't announce (at the time) what would be done, but my apprehension is that every time they look at the funding it ends up hurting Bandera.

"Bandera is considered a rich district primarily because of their property values," he said.

The Supreme Court ruled unanimously that the state's public school finance system is unconstitutional and gave lawmakers until May to come up with a solution. Most experts seem to think at least part of the solution will involve a tax increase.

The ongoing school suit began in 1968 when a group of parents filed a class-action federal lawsuit, claiming the Texas school financing system violates the 14th amendment. The case finally made it into a federal courtroom in 1971, and the federal court at that time ruled the Texas system unconstitutional. Two years later, the U.S. Supreme Court overturned the decision, but said the Texas legislature must address the issue of school finance.

In 1984, the issue was reactivated when Edgewood and seven other school districts filed suit to change the state's school funding formula. Later that year, House Bill 72 went into effect, making a resounding impact.

In 1987, an Austin district judge upheld the ruling that the state's funding system is unconstitutional, but his decision was overturned by the 3rd Court of Appeals.

The case was argued before the Texas Supreme Court earlier this year, and last week's decision again puts the ball into the court of Texas lawmakers.

The supreme court said the current financing system violates constitutional provision for an "efficient" system. It said there is a wide disparity between the amounts spent on students across the state, and it allowed the seven months between now and May 1 to avoid disruption of the education process this year.

Gov. Bill Clements announced he will call a special session in the spring to deal with the school financing, and that before that time a special "task force" will study the issue and make proposals before the session.

Conference to key on youth problems

Critical issues facing youth and possible solutions will be the focus of a daylong conference Oct. 26 at the Howard Johnson Plaza South in Austin.

Keynoter Dr. Shirley O'Brien, assistant director of operations with the Univeresity of Arizona Cooperative Extension Program, will discuss "Youth at Risk: A Challenge for the 90s." Dr. Zerle Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, will preside and State Rep. Wilhelmina Delco of Austin will discuss legislation impacting youth at risk.

School attendance stressed during October

Although school districts emphasize October for high attendance, Bandera school officials are emphasizing the importance of year round attendance.

"Of course perfect attendance all year is important, but due to determining state funding, October and February are specifically targeted as high percentage attendance months," said Mr. Ted Dockery, BISD superintendent.

During October 2-27 and during February district funding is determined on the basis of the district's four best attendance weeks.

The amount allotted is a weighted formula according to the school district's average attendance and the district's property values.

Historically, attendance is best in October. Alkek elementary school usually has the best attendance with about 99 percent. Junior high and high school has about the same percentage of attendance.

"Hopefully this year we will have 97 Percent attendance in one of the four week periods," said Mr. Dockery. Having 97 percent attendance will give the school district about $1,160 per student.

At each school, the principal and staff have decided on rewards for the second period class with the best percentage of attendance. At Alkek elementary they are having pizza and Coke parties. The junior high school is giving prizes, and Bandera High School is having pizza parties for the best attendance.

Nightingale places

BHS senior Amie Nightingale ran her best time this season at the Southwestern University Cross Country meet in Georgetown Saturday, Oct. 7.

Nightingale placed 12th out of 160 runners, in under 13 minutes. She attended the meet in Georgetown, where the state meet is usually held.

Her plans for the future are to continue her education and continue competing in track.

Citizen Bee set

Bandera High School students will again this year participate in the Citizen Bee, a social studies academic competition which could lead to a scholarship and a study trip to Washington D.C. in June.

The Citizen Bee is an academic competition, sponsored by the Close Up Foundation, that focuses on social studies and progresses through school, regional, and state events. Three Bandera students will advance to regional competition with top students there going to the state finals.

Clair Roberts, an educator at Bandera, will be coordinating the Citizen Bee at the school.

State winners earn a trip to Washington to participate in the foundation's government studies program and the national competition. Winners of the national event receive college scholarships of $7,000, $5,000 and $3,000.

Schools which register for the event are permitted an unlimited number of participants and receive source books from which most questions are derived.

The national Citizen Bee is funded by the Milken Family Foundation, with additional support from KPMG Peat Marwick, RJR Nabisco, Inc., Kraft General Foods; and the Monsanto Fund. On the state level the competition is sponsored by Amoco Foundation, Inc.; Southwestern Bell Foundation; and the Houston Chronicle.

TEAMS tests to be administered

Bandera students will be taking TEAMS tests this month, according to administrative assistant Ken Kling.

"During the 1985-86 school year, the Texas Education Agency instituted the Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills (TEAMS) assessment program," Kling said. The program, mandated by House Bill 72. measures minimum basic skills in mathematics and English language arts in grades 11 and 12.

"The test given to 11th and 12th graders is an exit level examination and both the mathematics and English language arts section of the test must be passed by students prior to their receiving a high school diploma," he said.

The TEAMS exit level test is administered at least twice each school year. For the October test administration, 11th graders will be tested for the first time and students who previously have not demonstrated mastery on both sections of the test will have the opportunity to retake the test, Kling said.

The math portion will be administered Wednesday, Oct. 25, and the English language arts portion will be administered Thursday, Oct. 26. All testing will take place at Bandera High School and will begin during the first period class time.

TAFE convention

Seven members of the Texas Association for Future Educators (TAFE) attended St. Mary's University Mon. Oct. 9, for the District Convention.

Members attended speeches given by Dr. Yvonne Katz, superintendent of Harlandale I.S.D. and city councilwoman, Naria Berriozabal. They spoke to the students about the importance of becoming an educator and the rewards of teaching.

The TAFE members then attended a morning class. Three members attended a psychology class while the remaining four observed a political science class.

Those who attended the convention were Alice Childs, Beth Childs, Jennifer Craven, Liza Garza, Melanie Jeffery, Audrey Kowalik, and Heather Small. TAFE sponsor is Mrs. Claire Roberts.

Open House a busy time at Bandera High School

Distribution of the honor cards for the Renaissance Program was the highlight of the BHS Open House held on Monday, Oct. 16 at 7 p.m. A large group was in attendance.

Open House began with everyone assembled in the auditorium for the welcome and a brief explanation of the Renaissance Program. Parents were then instructed on the classroom visitation part of the program. During the 5 minute time period alotted for each class. Teachers gave a brief explanation of their expectation for the class and the curriculum. A bell rang to signal the parents to go to the next class on their child's schedule.

During the second period class the Honor Cards were passed out to those students that attained all A's or all A's & B's during the first six weeks. Each honor student's parents were given a book mark from the principal with the student's picture on it.

After everyone finished 7th period class, refreshments, prepared by the Home Economics classes, were served in the cafeteria.

Cutting championships coming to Cowtown

Horses and riders compete in the world's third-largest purse sport when the National Cutting Horse Association's World Championship Futurity rides into Will Rogers Memorial Center in Fort Worth, Nov. 28 through Dec. 10.

With purses in the millions, cutting horse competition has risen to rank behind only tennis and golf in purses paid.

The competition is a living landmark to ranch life, having evolved from the horse and wrangler's needed skill in cutting or separating livestock from the herd.

The World Futurity has become the premier event of Fort Worth's equestrian contests, spawning gala dinners, parades and concerts.

Bobcat running back Thomas Fields gained 100 yards for the second game in a row during Rocksprings' 32-14 defeat of Medina Friday, Oct. 13.

Rocksprings goats trample 'Cats 32-14 in District 29-A opener

By Larry T. Williams
Staff Writer

Medina's Bobcats were their own worst enemy in their 32-14 blowout defeat at the hands of the Rocksprings Angoras Friday night, Oct. 13. The lopsided district opening loss had nothing to do with any associated bad luck.

Medina quarterbacks Josh Turpin and Slone Baker attempted 31 passes for the night but only nine found their way to Bobcat receivers. Seven attempts were snatched away by the Goats to stop Medina drives and the other 15 tosses wound up on the turf.

Bobcat running back Thomas Fields provided a bright spot by racking up his second consecutive 100 yard game, but his efforts were not enough to over come the Angora rushing and the Medina mistakes.

Rocksprings rolled up 286 rushing yards in 53 carries and tacked on another 37 through the air to score five times with five different players. Their only weakness seemed to be in point-after-touchdown conversions. Angora booter Mario Rivera managed only one successful extra point for the night. Another point was given back to the Goats after Medina was ticketed for roughing the kicker.

Bobcat statistics were finalized at 136 yards passing and 108 yards rushing. They nabbed one Angora pass and were penalized six times for 60 yards.

The Cats will travel to Nueces Canyon Friday, Oct. 20 for their second district game.

Military rodeo set in SA Oct. 27-28

The Military Rodeo Cowboys Association Finals will be held Oct. 27 and 28 at the Twin Oaks Exposition Center, 24910 Toutant Beauregard Blvd. in San Antonio.

There will be three performances at 8 p.m. Friday and 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday, and they will include bull riding, bareback and saddle bronc riding, calf roping, team roping, steer wrestling and barrel racing. A calf scramble will be held for kids.

Tickets are $6 in advance and $7 at the gate on the day of the performance.

Applications for racing to be accepted this spring

The Texas Racing Commission will reopen the application periods for all classes of horse race tracks next spring, it said last week.

Bandera Downs is one of 11 Class 2 tracks already licensed. Fredericksburg is the only Class 3 track licensed and there have been no Class 1 licenses granted.

The commission voted to accept appplications for Class 2 and Class 3 tracks for a one-month period beginning March 1. Racing begins at Bandera Downs on March 2.

Applications for Class 1 tracks in Dallas, Tarrant (Fort Worth) and Bexar (San Antonio) counties will be accepted in April and applications from Harris County (Houston) will be accepted in May.

Hearings on the applications are expected to be conducted within 120 days after the applications have been submitted., and it will probably be 1992 before any additional Class 2 tracks are conducting pari-mutuel racing, a TRC spokeswoman said.

In other action last week, the commission relaxed rules prohibiting married or other closely related jockeys, trainers or owners from working at the same track. The new rule will allow track stewards to determine on a case-by-case basis whether related persons working at the same track would pose a conflict of interest.

Commissioners also heard assurances from the owner of Manor Downs near Austin, Frances Carr, that she plans to begin racing soon. The track postponed its scheduled opening on Oct. 6.

Optimist Tri-Star football contest scheduled Saturday, Oct. 28

The Bandera Optimist Club will hold its annual Tri-Star Football Contest Saturday, Oct. 28, at Bulldog Stadium.

The program tests the skills of contestants in three of the basic skills of the game of football: place kicking, passing and punting. Boys and girls aged 7 through 12 years will compete against children of their own age only in six age groups. "All that's needed to compete is a pair of gym shoes," says spokesman Sully Woodland.

Bandera Bulldog football Coach Sam Swierc and his staff will conduct a clinic on passing, punting and place kicking from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday and the competition will begin at 2 p.m.

Three finalists in each age group will be determined Saturday, and they will compete prior to the Bandera-Fredericksburg football game in Bulldog Stadium Friday, Nov. 3, to determine the first three winners in each division, who will receive plaques for their achievements.

Application forms will be available at Bulldog Stadium on the day of the competition, Woodland said.

Fair meet record

A near-record handle of $22.4 million was reported by the New Mexico State Fair in Albuquerque after its 26-day season, and officials credited intertrack wagering.

Snake handler-broadcaster Jim Harris of Lakehills will present a program on snakes found in the Bandera area at the regular monthly meeting of the Bandera Rockhounds Thursday, Oct. 19, at 7:30 p.m. at the Silver Sage Corral.

'Dogs lose district opener to Llano Yellowjackets

By Nick Johnson
Editor

A couple of what Coach Sam Swierc called "critical mistakes" were the difference in the Bandera Bulldogs 14-3 district-opening loss to Llano's Yellowjackets Friday.

Given that, however, there's no margin for the same critical errors in the next four games because two defeats will probably be too many to merit postseason play.

"The team that makes the fewest 'critical mistakes' will probably be the team to beat (in District 8-AAA) because all the teams are about equal," the coach said Tuesday.

"I think our kids played well enough to win Friday, and I think they realize they played well enough to win, but a couple of bad breaks made the difference," Swierc observed.

Bandera's failure to score with a first down at the Llano one-yard line late in the game was one of the critical failures the coach was talking about, and that certainly was the straw that broke the blue and white camel's back in this football game.

Trailing 14-3, the Bulldogs took possession of the ball on the 'Jacket 47-yard line after a short punt and a holding penalty with a little more than 6 minutes to go.

It was a time-consuming but nevertheless efficient drive that put the ball on Llano's 1-yard line with 3½ minutes left, but the 'Jacket defense held Bandera for four downs to take possession of the ball with two minutes left.

"Our kids said we were in the end zone," Coach Swierc said. That was on a sweep to the right by Scott Rogers that the referees ruled was stopped short of touchdown land.

Bandera used its passing attack more often Friday than it had in its non-district games as Epi Cardenas went to the air 20 times, completing 7 for 83 yards and having 1 dropped and one called back because of a fumble.

But three interceptions continued to stall the Bulldogs, including one in the Llano end zone that prevented a Bulldog touchdown.

It will be a new look indeed for the San Antonio Spurs this season, and just in time.

After last year's dismal showing, there had to be some changes or people would begin staying away from Hemisfair Arena in greater numbers even than last year.

But cage fans familiar with last year's team won't recognize this year's edition without a program. That's the good news.

David Robinson will finally be in a Spurs uniform and he'll be joined by a couple of all-stars, Terry Cummings of Milwaukee and Maurice Cheeks of Philadelphia.

First-round draft choice Sean Elliott was even in uniform, cumbersome-looking knee brace and all, Saturday when the Spurs opened a brief pre-season schedule in the Arena against Cummings' old mates, the Milwaukee Bucks.

One of the few holdovers from last year, Vernon Maxwell, hit a three-pointer to put San Antonio ahead, 100-94, with 3½ minutes to play, and the record crowd heaved a collective sigh of relief, apparently secure in the knowledge that their Spurs had won.

More than 14,000 faithful were in the stands, a Spurs record for a preseason opener, and that's many more faithful than existed at the end of last season.

So the pre-season hype has won the fans curiosity, if nothing else. It remains to be seen whether Coach Larry Brown can turn his hatful of new faces into the kind of cohesive unit it takes to win consistently in the National Basketball Association.

If he can, then San Antonio fans will fill the arena or whatever building they play in. The ticket price is a little steep by Bandera standards, but I'd bet that even some of us in the Cowboy Capital would spring for a ticket to see NBA basketball like the fans see in Los Angeles, Boston and Autumn Hills.

—Bulldogs—

Bo Mansfield gained 74 yards on 9 carries to lead Bulldog ball carriers and he caught one pass for 13 more yards. Those 74 yards bring Mansfield's season's total to 408, fourth in District 8-AAA behind Curtis Hartman of Llano (805), Ronald Blanks of Hondo (552) and Eric McGowan of Brady (496).

Mansfield and McGowan will face off Friday in Brady when Bandera tries to snap a three-game losing streak, but Coach Swiere may look more to Epi Cardenas' aerial wizardry than to Mansfield's power running this week.

"We're going to have to open up and pass against Brady," the coach said Tuesday. "They have big people up front and fast people outside, and we feel we can be successful passing against them.

"That will open up things for our running attack," he said hopefully.

The defending district champions average 205-pounds-per-man across the offensive line and are off to a good start this year with a district victory over Hondo on their record.

They gained 362 yards to Hondo's 201 and fumbled inside the 5-yard-line five times and inside the 10-yard line four times while stumbling to a 21-15 victory over the Owls.

Safety classes set for deer hunters

A 10-hour hunter's safety class will be conducted Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 21 and 22, by volunteer instructor Robert Kalka of Bandera at the Bandera Bank board room beginning at 9 a.m. each day.

The class is part of the Texas Hunter Education program coordinated by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and completion is mandatory for hunters born between Sept. 2, 1971, and Aug. 31, 1973, Kalka said.

The class is designed to educate hunters to be safe, knowledgeable, responsible and involved, the TPWD says. "The course is extremely valuable to young hunters, but it is intended for people of all ages and interests," the wildlife agency says in its printed

Wrangler sued by Maltsberger family

Unspecified damages sought for providing driver alcohol

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

The children of a Pipe Creek family who lost their parents and a child Feb. 3 in the worst automobile accident in Bandera County this decade are seeking restitution from the owners of the Wrangler Bar in Bandera, which the suit charges provided the alcohol that contributed to the accident.

James Dunn Houston Evans, 37, drove his 1984 Ford truck across State Highway 16's center stripe south of Bandera and ploughed head-on into the 1967 Chevrolet truck driven by Jerry David Maltsberger, 54, killing himself, Maltsberger, and Maltsberger's two passengers, his wife Evelyn Frances, 53, and grandson Timothy Wayne Andreas, 4.

Blood alcohol test results reported by the Texas Department of Public Safety showed Evans had a 0.3 percent blood alcohol content and Maltsberger had 0.11 percent, making both drivers legally drunk.

The suit, filed in 166th State District Court in Bexar County, accuses Evans of gross negligence conduct in operating his vehicle while under the influence of alcohol, but targets the Wrangler Bar and Lounge as the source of that alcohol.

The suit, filed against Eva Biggs, Katherine N. Mitchell, Wrangler Bar and Lounge, and Avkat, Inc., says the lounge employees continued to serve Evans drinks even though he was already drunk.

"D.H. Evans was obviously extremely intoxicated and should not have been served alcoholic beverages. It was the responsibility of the waitress and the bartender having contact with this patron, to refuse him service of alcoholic beverage due to his display of drunken behavior," says attorney Janice Maloney of the Law Offices of Pat Maloney of San Antonio, representing the Maltsberger family.

The case was filed in Bexar County, because Bexar County, "is being both the residence and corporate location of Katherine N. Mitchell and Avkat, Inc."

The suit, naming Kenneth W. and Kathryn M. Andreas of Bandera; Robert A. and John Maltsberger of Wimberly; Pamela Lico, Robert, Dean, and Dennis Maltsberger of Pipe Creek, Daniel Maltsberger of Dawson, and Robin Lumpkin of Ennis as plaintiffs, accuses the bar owner of negligent conduct. "The agents, servants, and/or employees of the Wrangler Bar breached their duty to report the drunken behavior to someone in charge, so that a friend or acquaintance or relative could be notified that Evans was in no condition to drive a vehicle," the plaintiffs charge.

The Maltsberger family brings the suit in connection with the Texas Wrongful Death Statute and wants damages as the result of the deaths of Jerry and Evelyn Maltsberger and Andreas.

The suit says Evans and the bar, deprived the Andreas family, "... of the love and affection of their only minor son, which they would have enjoyed throughout his childhood and adulthood..."

The suit also says that the Maltsberger family members were deprived of the, "... love, affection, guidance, support and maintenance, which they have received from their parents..."

The unspecified damages sought in the suit seek to compensate the family for the loss of love, affection, and companionship, as well as advice and counsel. Also sought are damages due to past and future mental anguish.

Also requested is compensation for funeral expenses. Some of the funeral expenses were paid by a benefit dinner given in Pipe Creek shortly after the accident.

Exemplary damages are sought because Evans and the bar owners had a "... conscious disregard for the rights and welfare of the plaintiffs and such acts constitute gross negligence..."

The original petition was filed in the Bexar County District Clerk's office Aug. 29, but the first citations were not served until early October.

Maloney is requesting a jury trial, but the case is not set for trial on either the jury or non-jury calendar in the court of State District Judge Peter Michael Curry. Even if the trial is set immediately, the case could not come to trial sooner than December 1990, says jury setting clerk Sandra T. Padilla.

The suit shows the Estate of James D.H. Evans is represented by Jane Fenner Evans of Medina.

Bob Roberts of Austin filed an intervention on behalf of some of the adult children, but Maloney will be the lead attorney, reports Maloney's office.

Leaders wrestle with drug, water issues

Alcohol problem tops list of drug abuse woes

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

"Alcohol is the number one problem when it comes to teenage death," said Texas Department of Public Safety narcotics officer Ron Lawson at Tuesday night's drug awareness program at Bandera High School. The program was a part of National Red Ribbon Week, a drug abuse awareness campaign being observed this week.

"Spuds McKenzie wasn't designed for us. He appeals to the younger kids," he told the audience of some 130 students and adults. "We have to tell our kids the truth about alcohol—it is a dangerous drug."

Helga Hendricks, director of the Medina County Family Life Center addressed the issue of peer pressure among students.

"With all due respects to the former first lady, it isn't always that easy to 'just say no,'" Hendricks said. She likened the peer pressure young people feel to turning down a neighbor who asks you to have a Tupperware party.

"It's not that easy to say no, is it?" she asked.

Hendricks and Misti Morris, also of the Medina County center, outlined ways which parents can prevent their children's involvement with drugs.

"A lot of the kids we talk to say their parents are hypocrites," Morris said. "Parents should set a good example."

"Talk to your kids, and spend time with them, have fun," Hendricks said.

"But don't be afraid to be a parent. Encourage behaviors, and raise people who will become responsible adults."

Bandera physician Royce McAnally spoke of medical updates of drug use.

"Cocaine and marijuana are addictive," McAnally said. "Forget what you've heard, and forget what you've heard. They are addictive.

"You ask any emergency room physician," he said. "There is no question about it."

The doctor described physical symptoms of several types of drug use, and he gave first-hand accounts of emergency room cases he has seen.

"In the one year and eight months since I came here, we've handled 11 drug-related emer-

Water protection is aim of management district

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

The ballot proposal creating the Springhills Water Management District is not an issue of whether to manage the county's water or not, but whether local citizens will do the controlling or someone from outside the county.

That's the gist of the message some 50 Bandera County citizens got Tuesday, Oct. 24, during a town hall-type meeting concerning the proposed combined surface and underground water district, to be confirmed or rejected by voters Nov. 7.

A panel that consisted of state Sen. Bill Sims of San Angelo, state Rep. Eldon Edge of Poth, Bandera County Judge Ray F. Mauer of Lakehills, Bandera County River Authority board chairman Phil Becker of Tarpley and Texas Water Alliance executive director Steve Stagner of Austin told the gathering that the new water district could have broad or narrow powers, depending on the will of the citizens and the people they elect.

Sims told the gathering that they must keep their water from becoming polluted. "If you want your sons and grandsons to stay here (in the county), you have to protect your water," he said.

The state of Texas, as result of a 1985 water reform package, has declared Bandera County a critical water area because the projected growth of Bandera County may outstrip the ability of the county's aquifers to produce enough water for the expected population, said Becker.

If Bandera County does not control its own underground water by a district, there is always the possibly of being brought into the Edwards Underground Water District, said Stagner.

The district would serve mainly as a watchdog over the use of underground water, and especially its quality, calling in the Texas Water Commission and their powers when pollution is detected or anticipated.

County's deer population up 30 percent, PWD says

By Nick Johnson
Bulletin Editor

The deer population in Bandera County is estimated to be about 40,000 deer, an increase of more than 30 percent over last year's estimate, but Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologists suggest hunters kill fewer bucks in the county during the coming season.

The wildlife agency said its recently-completed annual deer population surveys indicated a population of 85 deer per 1,000 acres. Last year the surveys indicated a population of 59 deer per 1,000 acres, or about 30,000 deer.

Despite the increased deer population, wildlife biologists suggested that landowners in Bandera County "try for a harvest of 1 doe or antlerless deer for every 60 acres and 1 buck for every 200 acres." Last year they suggested taking 1 buck for every 200 acres.

The whitetail deer hunting season opens in Bandera County on Saturday, Nov. 4 and runs through Sunday, Jan. 7. The bag limit is 5 deer, but no more than 2 antlered bucks.

The wildlife agency said in a news release that did not quote any one person that taking fewer bucks this year would result in a better balance in the surviving herds.

"The recommended rates result from the need to better balance the sex ratio observed in the herd and from a desire to produce a healthier deer population that is properly matched to the existing supply of deer foods in the county," the wildlife agency said.

The wildlife agency was quick to point out that the general harvest rate it suggests are based on county averages. "They may not be completely suitable for each individual ranch in the county," the news release acknowledged.

Doe permits are not necessary for antlerless deer. "Hunters will need only the appropriate tag off their hunting license," the wildlife agency said. Landowner permission is required, of course, as it is for all hunting.

Volunteers sought to help stage record-breaking barbecue

With a record crowd expected again this year, plans are underway, and volunteers are still being sought for the 25th annual Hunters' Barbecue, scheduled in Bandera Friday, Nov. 3. The event, sponsored by the Bandera Chamber of Commerce, will be held at Mansfield Park, two miles west of Bandera on State Highway 16.

Some 2,500 attended the Hun-ing to chamber secretary Nancy Hopes. Over 250 letters have already been sent out to landowners, volunteers and businesses in preparation for this year's hunting season kickoff event. Letters were also sent to such notables as Bandera County Judge Ray Mauer, Bandera Mayor Raymond Adamietz, and State Representative Eldon Edge.

The meal will cost $4 for adults and $2.50 for children, and includes barbecue brisket, sausage, beans, cole slaw and other con-

Legion wants exemption

Dear editor:

The referendum election on Nov. 7 could dramatically affect our local American Legion Post. A vote for proposition No. 4 will assure that we can continue to support local business, civic and charitable organizations. We are members of the Bandera County Chamber of Commerce and the Cowboy Capital Rodeo Association. We donate to and support the Cancer Society, Helping Hand, Scouting, children and youth programs and our local churches. We donate hundreds of dollars annually to the Kerrville Veteran's Hospital. Our members also give hundreds of volunteer hours to hospitals and other programs that save tax dollars and benefit all citizens. Our members donate their time, none are paid, to raise the funds to support these programs.

We urge the citizens of Bandera and Bandera County to help our federally chartered veterans organizations by voting FOR proposition No. 4.

Charles L. Haver
Commander
Bandera Post 157
American Legion

So does the VFW

Dear editor:

Veterans' organizations across the state have united in their support for proposition No. 4. It's been some time since you've seen the American Legion, the VFW and the Disabled American Veterans united; in fact, it's kind of patriotic.

Proposition No. 4 would help non-profit veterans' organizations by exempting a small portion of their business organization — their meeting facility — from local ad valorem (property) taxes. The impact, according to state comptroller Bob Bullock, "is minimal." The president of the state organization of county tax assessors agrees. "The amount of money currently being collected against these associations is insignificant, and when compared to the amount of revenue raised for civic and charitable organizations, the exemption is well worth it.

Why all the commotion about taxes? At stake is millions of dollars raised by veterans' organizations that get recycled through local economies by means of providing student scholarships, recreation at local nursing homes and veterans' hospitals, support of Boy Scout troops, and aid to local communities during time of need.

Figures derived from the state departments of the American Legion and the VFW demonstrate that veterans' organizations already pay their share — millions each — of others' taxes through local operations. With this kind of revenue being collected at this level, I can't see why anyone would object to the property tax exemption.

We're really going to be hurt statewide if this proposition fails, and the veterans' organizations will most likely have to cut back on some of their community activities that have been supported in the past.

William E. Bryce
Commander
Bandera Post
VFW

(Editor's note: Opponents of proposition No. 4 point out that a new property tax exemption for veterans' groups merely shifts the tax burden to other hard-pressed taxpayers. If exempted, veterans' organizations will continue to receive the benefits and services provided by local governments but will not pay the costs of these services.

They also point out that the current property tax exemption for charitable organizations is available to those veterans' organizations that are wholly dedicated to performing truly worthwhile and beneficial activities. The exemption in proposition No. 4 could extend to some veterans organizations that devote only a part of their energies toward beneficent activities and engage in many other activities solely for the benefit of the members of the organization.

They also claim the proposed exemption is unfair because it is limited to a special-interest group. By allowing only veterans organizations that are chartered by congress to be exempt, the proposal would prevent new, small or local veterans groups not affiliated with one of the established organizations from qualifying for tax relief. Proposition No. 4 completely overlooks the many other worthy nonprofit organizations that do not qualify as purely public charities under current law but that perform substantial amounts of charitable activity, opponents say.

Firefighters for No. 17

Dear editor:

The proposed constitutional amendment, Proposition No. 17 on the ballot Nov. 7, authorizes the creation of a fund which can be used by all fire departments in the state, paid or volunteer, large or small. The fund may be used only for training and equipment and will be distributed on a priority basis with the most urgent needs being served first.

If approved, the fund will address the serious problem of funding for the almost 2,000 fire departments in the state. Fire departments will be eligible to apply for low-interest loans or grants in an effort to address unnecessary deaths and injuries as well as the needless loss of property due to fire which could be prevented with better training and equipment. During 1987, 322 Texans died in fires which caused $486 million in damages.

State Rep. Rick Ferry of Haskell, author of the bill, said, "Voting against this proposition is the same as putting a $99 price tag on a human life."

Phillip Tobin
Bandera VFD

(Editor's note: Opponents of proposition No. 17 point out that fire protection has traditionally been a local responsibility. Counties, municipalities, rural fire prevention districts and others should raise money locally to provide fire protection to their areas.

Opponents also say that the amendment is unfair to persons paying for adequate fire protection to pay for protection of those areas of the state.

Political activity picks up as special session draws near

State Capitol
Highlights
By Lyndell Williams

While Ann Richards was raising money in an earthquake, Clayton Williams was slamming the jail door on drug dealers, and Jim Mattox was pushing a lottery, lawmakers were preparing for the Nov. 14 special session.

The solitude now is like a lull before a hurricane, for this session, the third attempt to resolve an issue obscure to Bubba, will brew political conflict, life or death.

The governor wants the Legislature to lower the very, very expensive cost of workers' compensation insurance in Texas.

Compromises have been hammered out on several points, but unresolved is whether trial juries or prescribed standards should set the amounts of injury awards.

The pro-business solons say high-dollar jury awards are the main reason why costs have ballooned in the first place. The Republicans have adopted this argument as their own.

Trial lawyers want to preserve the right of trial by jury, saying any other prescription will gyp the injured parties. Democrats, generally, take this side.

Lame Duck Generals

The opposing generals, if you will, are two powerful lame ducks: Gov. Bill Clements and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Hobby has the power to defeat any bill in the Senate. Clements can veto any bill and keep lawmakers in session on any issue.

We're talking a waiting game that's already lasted through a regular and a special session.

Like house-to-house combat, the real battlefield here is each lawmaker's ability to financially absorb the expense of staying in Austin, away form his business, his family, and his peace of mind.

Lobbyists on both sides are prepared to finance their version with political contributions and to punish opposing votes with dollars against them on the campaign trail next year.

An obscure issue for Bubba? A bloody one for lawmakers. And an important one for the economic sector.

Pay Raise Amendment

As if the financial pressure weren't enough, lawmakers have been catching flak lately for language in the proposed amendment giving them a pay raise.

On the Nov. 7 ballot, the amendment reads it's for limiting legislative pay raises. In reality, legislative pay will triple, if voters approve the amendment.

Many think lawmakers deserve a raise, but the wording smacks of deviousness, trickery which could result in defeat of the issue.

Campaign Trails

Gubernatorial hopeful Mattox asked the governor to add a state lottery to the special session agenda, but the governor virtually ignored the request.

Williams has been boosting his name ID with a series of TV commercials featuring his talking plain but tough on his mission against drug dealers.

Meanwhile, Richards, whose tons of out-of-state campaign money has been and will be a campaign issue, is continuing to raise California dollars.

If she wanted to do it quietly, she failed. She was in San Francisco for her fundraiser when the earthquake hit.

The quake halted the World Series, but whether it stopped Ann from raising money, only her disclosure reports will reveal.

Grades Tied to Rally

Fox Tech High School band students were told their grades were in jeopardy if they didn't perform at a gubernatorial campaign rally for Mattox, their parents said.

But school officials insist the band's performance was strictly voluntary.

"I'd say basically it's just a misunderstanding," band director Arnold Garcia said. "It was definitely voluntary."

Garza said a grade-point deduction for not taking part would have been against school rules.

Limit Congress Terms

State Rep. Bill Hammond, R-Dallas, wants the Texas Legislature to tell Congress to set a limit of 12 years on their terms.

Bandera County
potpourri
By Nick Johnson

Nick Johnson, in anticipation of the world series, took the week off. Now, faced with having to come back to work and still no series, well, he was so despondent that he couldn't face writing a column this week.

By James Henry Frazar

Within the lifetimes of many adults in Bandera County, Halloween, the time of "trick or treating," has changed from a purely children's affair to the point where adult activities of the night are more significant.

And attitudes are still changing while its origins get pushed further and further back as new traditions are born.

When I was a child, we dressed up in store-bought costumes of astronauts and fairy princesses. My younger brother and I would tour block after block in Seguin with two of our friends receiving candy and other treats.

The arrival at each door was anxiously anticipated with the "Trick-or-Treat" chorus happily shouted as soon the door cracked open.

Our parents were always nearby and we never thought that the people we visited would have foul play in mind, even though we didn't know who they were. In fact, we didn't like going to houses that we knew, because our parents would inevitably talk and visit for several minutes cutting out precious time that we felt would be spent more fruitfully collecting store-bought and homemade goodies.

But by the time I hit junior high and high school, when trick-or-treating was out of my age group, there came the reports of children being harmed by the candy they received. There was the celebrated case of a father giving his son a piece of poison-laced candy to kill him to collect the life insurance money, with the Halloween candy as a cover.

By the time I had my own children, trick-or-treating was reduced to a few homes of friends. The visits were planned ahead of time, taking the spontaneity out of the rite.

During these times, hospitals offered X-raying of candy and children were warned to take only store-bought, wrapped and sealed treats. So much for popcorn balls.

Now house-to-house trick-or-treating is almost non-existent, with some notable exceptions, however. I wonder if Lillie will pass out treats again this year?

Taking the place of trick-or-treating are large parties, sometimes at civic centers, sometimes at businesses. There will be a Cub Scout Halloween party at the Pipe Creek Community Center Saturday and a community party at the Lakehills Civic Center Tuesday.

I wonder if children still know what "trick-or-treat" means now?

Some churches have responded to what they feel is a not-so-Christian celebration by hosting non-spook festivals. This includes Pipe Creek's Hill Country Chapel harvest festival and Lakehills' Faith Chapel with a hallelujah party, both Tuesday.

But truly, the biggest change has come with the adults. Gone are the days when it was a purely childish holiday, tolerated by adults. Now they too dress up and I dare say, look forward to a night of partying more than their children.

Department stores feature adult costumes and beer and other companies go out of their way to advertise Halloween as another opportunity to imbibe.

As we evolve culturally, there are always different ways of doing things, and this includes celebrations. As each generation is born and grows up and eventually dies, traditions change.

But one thing remains constant: people loved to be scared, whether by horror movies, masks and costumes or ghost-stories.

So Halloween will continue to be an important holiday, whether the feds and the bankers get the day off or not.

Nine burglary suspects in county jail

A Lakehills liquor store was burglarized Oct. 16, and two suspects remained in custody Monday, according to Bandera County sheriff Steve Forest.

Nine burglary suspects remained in Bandera County jail Monday, Oct. 23, and the jail is full almost to capacity, Forest said.

"We've been making a lot of arrests on burglaries, mostly in the Lakehills area," Forest said. "Much of the burglary is alcohol-related.

"Young people want whiskey and beer, and they go get some," the sheriff said of the break-ins. "It's not worth it, believe me."

Bandera County has a total of 21 prisoners in custody, but seven of those are "farmed out" to the jail facilities in Boerne and Jourdanton, Forest said. Three of the prisoners are women.

Some 14 prisoners remain in Bandera County jail. Maximum occupancy there is 16, but Forest said because prisoners of differing classifications must be handled differently, the jail is considered full.

Oct. 16, Gordon Nordlund reported a burglary at the Viking Liquor Store in Lakehills. According to officers' reports, the front plate-glass window was broken out and several hundred dollars worth of liquor was stolen.

Investigation by Bandera County sheriff's deputies resulted in the arrests of Richard Troy Brieno, 20, and David A. Brieno, 17, both of Lakehills, who were arrested Monday, Oct. 16, and charged with burglary of a building. Deputies reportedly recovered much of the stolen property.

Leonardo O. Molina, 35, of Mexico was arrested Oct. 17 and charged with burglary.

Lesley D. Morgan, 25, of Bandera was arrested Oct. 19 and charged with theft.

Lance Griffin, 20, of Hondo and Shawn Canady, 21, of San Antonio were arrested Oct. 20 and charged with driving while intoxicated.

Randall Joseph Oliver, 17, remained in custody Monday. He was arrested Oct. 13 and charged with arson in connection with a fire that was set in the floor of an abandoned house in the Lakehills area, according to Forest. Lakehills firefighters contained the blaze before much damage was done, the sheriff said.

Reward offered for the conviction of the person or persons involved in killing a black holstein/angus cross cow near Medina Oct. 5 has jumped to a total of $2,700, Forest said Monday.

According to Forest, a woman gave a statement to the department last week, and said she saw the cow roaming loose in the right of way between 10:30 and 11 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 4.

The cow was found along State Highway 16 between Medina and Bandera Thursday, Oct. 5.

Oct. 19, John Neely of Bandera reported a theft of an air-conditioning unit from a house in Freedom Springs. According to Neely, the unit valued at $1,200 was taken from outside the house his company had listed for sale.

Oct. 20, Gary Lane of Lakehills reported a burglary at his residence in Geronimo Springs. According to Lane, approximately $700 in property was taken.

Police report

Four persons injured in two separate mishaps

Four persons were injured in a two-car accident on the old Kerrville Highway Sunday, Oct. 22, and a separate one motorcycle accident north of Medina Saturday, Oct. 21.

Other accidents earlier this week included two one-car accidents in the Pipe Creek area Tuesday, Oct. 17.

A two-vehicle accident Sunday, Oct. 22, on the old Kerrville Highway injured two men and damaged both trucks involved.

Hosea Mendez, 74, of Bandera pulled out of a private drive onto the Old Kerrville Highway about 2:45 p.m. in his blue 1977 GMC pickup, when he was struck by a northbound brown 1973 Ford pickup driven by George Clark, 21, of Bandera.

Mendez, who was not wearing a safety belt, was transported to Sid Peterson Memorial Hospital in Kerrville with a possible broken arm, says Department of Public Safety Trooper Nolan Metz.

He was evaluated by the hospital and released Sunday, says a nursing supervisor in the hospital, who gave no further details of his treatment.

Clark was uninjured, but his passenger, Lewis Clark, 56, was treated at the scene by EMS for a cut knee. Both were wearing safety belts, reports Metz.

While no citations were issued Sunday, Metz did say that apparently Mendez failed to yield right of way to the oncoming vehicle.

In a separate accident, a motorcycle driven by Dale Finney, 45, of Humble ran off the road 4.6 miles north of Medina on State Highway 16 Saturday, Oct. 21, slightly injuring the motorcycle operator and injuring his passenger enough to warrant hospitalization.

Finney was driving his 1984 Honda Gold Wing motorcycle north on Highway 16 when he apparently ran over the raised pavement markers in the center of the road as he was rounding a curve. He lost control of his motorcycle and ran off the road on the right side, reports Metz.

Finney and his passenger, Patricia Sides, 32, of Humble, were transported to Sid Peterson Memorial Hospital in Kerrville by Medina EMS.

According to the nursing supervisor at Sid Peterson, no treatment for Finney was recorded at the hospital Monday, but Sides was evaluated Saturday and sent to Methodist Hospital in San Antonio that evening with a head injury.

Sides was listed in fair condition on the neurology floor Monday, reports a spokeswoman for Methodist Hospital.

Other accidents included a one car rollover Tuesday, Oct. 17, between Polly's Peak Drive and Bear Creek Road on State Highway 16 in the morning. There were no injuries to the driver, according to DPS trooper Dan Butts.

Later Tuesday, a car rolled over on State Highway 16, south of Pipe Creek, but north of the intersection of Park Road 37 in Medina County. No injuries were reported, says Butts.

Fiddlers due here

The United Fiddlers' Association will hold a free jam session Saturday, Oct. 28, at the American Legion Hall in Bandera from 1:30 p.m. to 6 p.m.

It's time to fall back as DST ends Sunday

Daylight Savings Time will end early Sunday morning, Oct. 29, giving school children daylight to get on the bus and Halloween trick-or-treaters an early nightfall.

The sunrise that has been breaking over the horizon at about 7:54 a.m. will appear at 6:54 a.m. and the sun which has been slipping under the horizon around 7:00 p.m. will set at 6:00 p.m. starting Sunday, Oct. 29, after the clocks have been turned back one hour to return to Standard Time.

The clock officially goes back one hour at 2 a.m., Sunday, Oct. 29, but the usual suggestion is to set it back one hour when you go to bed Saturday night.

The rule of "Spring forward, fall back," is the easiest way to remember the change.

Daylight Savings Time will begin again, somehow appropriately, Sunday, April 1, April Fool's Day, when the clocks will be set ahead one hour.

Miss Mohair Texas pageant to be resumed in Kerrville

The first Miss Mohair Texas since 1966 will be crowned Jan. 19 at a pageant in Kerrville.

Terry Trees is director of the pageant that will select a queen to represent mohair producers at public events and help raise public awareness of mohair fabric, organizers said.

To be eligible to compete, contestants must be between the ages of 16 and 21 years and must have a background or knowledge of Angora goats and the agri-business associated with raising, breeding, feeding, shearing, grading and selling mohair, Trees said.

The winner will receive a scholarship and other gifts, Trees said.

The pageant will be held at the YO Hilton Hotel.

Miss Texas Mohair was selected from 1939 through 1966, and former queens will be honored at a party following the crowning of Miss Texas Mohair 1990-91.

Drugs

gencies," McAnally said. "Don't think that we're immune to this problem."

The doctor said alcohol is the third leading cause of death in the United States, and $30 billion was spent in this country for cocaine in 1988.

Though the main focus of Tuesday's meeting was spreading the message that drugs are bad, Lawson and the others stressed that concerned parents and others are primarily trying to save young people from the nightmare world of drugs.

"To save one child is a pretty wonderful thing," Lawson said. "I'd much rather save one child than to put 100 dopers in jail."

Inhalant abuse was another topic covered by Morris and Hendricks. They said products such as spray paint, glue, gasoline and freon can give kids a "cheap, deadly high."

Since many of the products are readily available and can be obtained easily by children, Morris said inhalant abuse can be a particular threat to younger children.

Dr. McAnally advised audience members to "push sports, scouting, music, dance, church involvement— anything to keep kids busy and active in the community."

"Love them," Hendricks said. "Be proud, set a good example, and love your kids enough to be responsible parents."

The overwhelming message in Hendricks remarks were for parents to be involved, and treat children like people. Through spending time listening and talking to them, she said, you will be more likely to keep your children from turning to drugs.

A display of many types of drug paraphernalia was viewed by the audience, and a variety of pamphlets and informational handouts were also available.

Local students participate in anti-drug program

In the ongoing Texans War on Drugs, some Bandera High School students have formed a group that takes a stand locally on substance abuse, including alcohol.

P.R.I.D.E., or Positive Peer Reinforcement In Drug Education, is a statewide movement, and local students including Tiffany Moseley, Lauri Reagan, Kati Reagan and Dawn Macon have formed a group and are working to make a positive impact on the community.

Because locally and statewide, alcohol abuse has continued to be a problem, not only in the teen community but in other factions of society as well, the peer group has made an effort to take a particular stand on alcohol use by minors.

According to the group, PRIDE's basic premise is that any public policy or government literature should uphold the laws on alcohol use by minors.

"In most communities it is illegal for minors to possess, consume, or buy alcohol," according to an official statement by the group. Parental perogatives do exist, but parents are also responsible for their children who drink.

"Parents are not only legally responsible but are also liable to civil and criminal charges for alcohol use and its consequences by minors on their property or under their supervision," PRIDE says. "Parents who allow minors to drink can be charged with causing risk of injury and contributing to the delinquency of a minor and also with the results of the minor's traffic accidents."

The group's position is that there is no "safe dose" of alcohol for juveniles. Adolescence is a time of development and uncertainty, and alcohol use at this time increases risk factors.

"Driving accidents are the major cause of death among teenagers, with alcohol the dominant factor," PRIDE says. "The young driver is still developing skills and should not drink or be distracted by drinking passengers. Policies that aim only at the drinking driver are inadequate for teenage driving problems.

"The advertising media and popular culture at present stress heavy, constant drinking. 'Drink and Drown' contests, '3 for 1 Tequila' parties, 'Bladder Buster' parties, and T-shirts with 'Party Till You Puke' and 'Avoid Hangovers, Stay Drunk' logos.

"Adolescents need a strong and clear countermessage from concerned adults," according to PRIDE.

cise include well identification and mapping, monitoring water quality and well logs, and even septic tank regulation if the county commissioners turn that power over to them. The district could regulate how far apart wells would have to be if water conservation becomes necessary.

However, Becker said he didn't think the district would embark on an extensive project without county citizens input.

Becker further speculated that the district, if confirmed, may have to raise the current 1.15 cents per $100 property valuation the river authority charges to a modest 1.50 cents, depending on how much the state requires the district to do.

Sims and the other panel members encouraged the gathering to work for passage of the district. Sims said he had told some counties in his senatorial district they didn't need a water district, but Bandera county needs it. "If I were you, I'd make darn sure I got it," he said.

"It is very important that we control our water and not let someone else do it for us," said Mauer.

"Without water, we're nothing," said Sims.

PRIDE takes a stand on local drug problem

The skit "Turnaround," shows how a student could turn to drugs when things are going wrong in his or her life, and "Toy Soldiers," shows how students can turn to drugs when looking for friends and acceptance.

Monday, some 30 students from Bandera schools traveled to Tivy Antler stadium in Kerrville to a kick-off Red Ribbon Rally held there. Dave Hunter, U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency supervisory special agent gave a special presentation to the group.

Students from Bandera, Ingram, Center Point and Kerrville schools participated in skits at the rally.

National Red Ribbon Day was Wednesday, Oct. 25. That day, students and adults were encouraged to wear their red ribbons and wear red clothing in support of the campaign against drug abuse, according to Barbara Opperman, faculty sponsor of the drug awareness campaign at Bandera High School. Bandera businesses were also asked to put up red decorations, she said.

According to Butts, one main goal of the program is to educate parents about narcotics and narcotic problems.

"I think drug abuse, including alcohol, is definitely a problem locally," he said.

The student councils of Bandera Junior High and Bandera High Schools decorated the campuses with posters and ribbons to commemorate the week.

The Red Ribbon Campaign originated when federal agent Enrique Camarena was murdered by drug traffickers in 1985.

The Red Ribbon now takes its place with the Yellow Ribbon, representing the American Embassy workers previously held captive in Iran, and the Green Ribbon, symbolizing the murdered children of Atlanta.

Tarpley woman to head state's plant society

The Tarpley woman who has been named president-elect of the statewide Native Plant Society of Texas vows to bring the group's annual meeting with up to 300 participants to Bandera next October.

"A very large turnout can be expected here because it will be a very good time to see the local maples in color while still having fall flowers in bloom," says Dorothy Mattiza, who was elected president-elect at the group's 1989 annual meeting Friday and Saturday near Dallas.

She said Bandera's attractions also include its central location, excellent tourist facilities, and the opportunity to see varied habitats on local ranches.

Mattiza operates Gunsight Mountain Ranch Nursery on a ranch north of Tarpley which has become the locale for a variety of field trips to observe the native plants which thrive there.

The 1989 state convention of the plant society was held at the Agricultural Extension Station at Renner, near Dallas, and at the Dallas Arboretum. It was conducted under the theme, "Landscaping With Native Plants," Mattiza said.

Also attending the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. John Maxwell of Pipe Creek, Karen Walbrun of Bandera and her daughter, Shannon, who is a University of Texas at San Antonio student planning a career in landscape architecture.

Mattiza will assume the office of president of the native plant group next October.

diments. Coffee and tea will also be provided.

Barbecue brisket and sausage will also be available by the pound, she said.

"We are anticipating a record crowd this year," said chamber vice-president Diane Mullins. "Land owners and lease operators must pay for their hunters' tickets before the barbecue so that we may get them to you in time for your hunters.

"If your hunters do not see you until after the barbecue, tickets must still be paid for and their names left with the chamber so that we can verify that their tickets have been bought.

"A sweets booth will be available for those who wish to indulge," she said. "Serving will begin at 5:30 p.m. and continue until we run out of either hunters or food."

Prize drawings and live music will be the entertainment for the evening.

A deer rifle, hunting knife, deer corn and other prizes will be available, and the Hilltoppers and Dusty Britches will entertain the crowd.

Hopes said the chamber is still seeking volunteers, to help with serving chores, for baked goods and prizes. Businesses and individuals are being sought to help.

Advance tickets are available at the Bandera County Chamber of Commerce office, 1206 Cypress.

Merger will result in new bank name

The name will be changed, but customers will notice few other changes if Bandera's First State Bank merger with four other banks is approved by regulatory agencies as expected.

The local bank is one of five included in an application to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation for permission to merge with Chas. Schreiner Bank of Kerrville, Ingram State Bank of Ingram, Southwest National Bank of Austin and the First National Bank of Fredericksburg.

All will do business as Schreiner Bank, if the merger is approved as it is expected to be.

The five banks are all currently owned by Schreiner Bancshares, Inc., a bank holding company. In what First State Bank president Sully S. Woodland called "a branch banking strategy, the banks will be merged into a single entity with multiple locations.

"Regulatory approval is expected and the branching plan should be completed by the end of the first quarter of 1990 (March 31)," Woodland said Tuesday.

Besides the name change, there will be few other noticeable changes, Woodland said. Personnel will remain the same and the business philosophy will be unchanged, he said. The Lakehills branch of the First State Bank will continue to operate as a branch of the Bandera bank, Woodland said.

"The transition to branch banking will result in greater convenience for our customers as well as increased operating efficiencies for the bank," Woodland said.

He said customers of any of the banks will be able to take advantages of a full-service banking center at any of its branch locations, which include a Lakehills branch of the First State Bank of Bandera.

"Customers will be able to deposit and withdraw funds, cash checks, make loan payments and conduct other business at any of the Schreiner Bank locations," the veteran Bandera banker said.

"While Schreiner Bank customers will benefit from new conveniences, they will continue to see the same high level of service provided at the branch locations by the same staff they do business with now," Woodland said.

He said that once the merger is completed, customers with combined certificates of deposit of more than $100,000 at the bank will remain fully covered by the FDIC until the maturity dates of their deposits. "As the need arises, the bank will work with customers to ensure that their funds are invested and protected properly in the future as well," he said.

Schreiner Bancshares, Inc., reported assets of $399.4 million as of Sept. 30. First State Bank of Bandera reported total assets of $43.9 million on Sept. 30. Schreiner Bank, with assets of 271.5 million is the biggest branch by far in the merged bank.

The holding company reported a major change in senior management earlier this month when its executive vice president, Bob Carignan, was named chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Shreiner Bank and Dennis Glenewinkel was named bank president and chief operating officer.

Glenewinkel replaced longtime Schreiner Bank president Raymond Barker, who continued as president and chairman of the holding company. Bill Cowden, president of Ingram State Bank, was appointed to serve also as senior vice president in charge of lending at Schreiner Bank.

Chas. Schreiner Bank's quarterly statements of condition showed an $18 million decrease in deposits in the past year.

Jennifer Persyn SWT nominee

Jennifer Persyn of Lakehills, a sophomore elementary education major at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos, is one of 31 co-eds nominated for homecoming queen, the university announced.

Persyn, a 1988 graduate of Bandera High School where she was a cheerleader, was nominated by Jackson Hall, a residence hall on campus.

The queen and first and second runners-up will be selected in campus-wide elections Oct. 24-26 and announced during homecoming activities at halftime of the SWTSU Bobcats football game Saturday afternoon, Nov. 4. Five finalists will be announced Friday night, Nov. 3, during the university's traditional homecoming spirit rally at Strahan Coliseum.

Intermediate emergency medical technicians practice using a MAST trousers unit during a class at Bandera High School. The trousers unit is used to prevent shock by pressurizing a victim's legs and abdomen to concentrate blood in vital organs. The classes, which have included training in IV skills and intubation (inserting a tracheal tube) will continue into December.

ASC nominations due by Monday

Petitions nominating agricultural producers for election to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee must be received by Monday, Oct. 30, says county executive director Jimmie Ruth Saathoff.

The election will be on Dec. 4.

Three-term committeeman Rudolph "Rudy" Schott of Lakehills is prohibited from being elected to a fourth term. "Mr. Schott has been a valued committeeman," says Saathoff. "He served with the ASCS for 23 years with dedication and loyal commitment to the farmers in Bandera County.

"His service is greatly appreciated," she said.

The slate of at least three nominees will be completed by Nov. 1, Saathoff said. If fewer than three persons are nominated by petition, the Bandera County committee must add nominees to complete the slate, Saathoff said.

Other committeemen are L.D. Moore, chairman, and Hubert Mazurek, vice chairman. The committee meets the first Wednesday of each month at the ASCS offices on Main Street in Bandera at 9:30 a.m. It administers U.S. Department of Agriculture programs in the county.

Leslie Coffee, daughter of Lester and Pat Coffee, had a Halloween party Friday, Oct. 20, with about 30 "ghosts and goblins" enjoying dancing, good food and soft drinks. After the party, six of Leslie's girl friends stayed for the night for a "chatter" slumber party.

• County commissioner Bennie Barker underwent surgery Wednesday, Oct. 18. He may be able to come home by Oct. 25, wife Patricia reports.

• Sunday morning the mini-revival gets under way at the Walker Memorial Chapel at 11 a.m. There will be a "potluck" meal immediately after the service in the fellowship hall. After the meal there will be singing and just good old fashioned fellowship.

• The Copper Lantern will have a Community Halloween party Thursday, Oct. 31 starting at 7 p.m. "Everyone is invited and there will be treats for the trick or treaters," says a spokesman for the lounge and restaurant.

• George Smith is home from the hospital after undergoing surgery Oct. 16. He reports that he is doing fine and slowly getting over it.

• Bud "John" and Betty Ciarlo will be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary Oct. 28. They were married in Dayton, Ohio and lived most of their married life in different parts of the world. They returned stateside in 1972 to San Antonio.

They have two children, Fred who is now in Turkey in the army, and Judith Hines who lives at Benson, N.C.

They have six grandsons and eight great-grandchildren.

Bud and Betty both liked Texas so well that when he retired from civil service they built a home in the Hill Country.

Marion and Marjorie Birch and Marje's sister, Marian Trout, gave a surprise anniversary gathering for the Ciarlos at their home Oct. 17. There was a beautiful anniversary candle burning on the table with various snacks to munch on and a lovely bouquet of flowers. Later an anniversary cake and ice cream was served.

• Eric Bledsoe, son of Phil and Nola Bledsoe, their daughter-in-law, Margie and granddaughter Christy departed for Warner Robbins Ga., after a week's visit. Eric has gotten out of the Air Force and is opening a trucking business in Georgia.

• Sharon Anderwald, Steven Andreas from Houston, and Susan Andreas from Dallas were at Kenneth and Kathy Andreas' home visiting their dad, Tom Andreas. Tom was released from the hospital Thursday. On Saturday, Bubba and Sheri Cherry ate barbecue at the Longhorn and all the children were there to be with their dad.

• Pete and Leslie Pigott returned home Oct. 8 from a four-month trip.

In June, they went to San Diego, Calif. They visited Pete's sister and husband, while he underwent successful back surgery.

Next they drove to Yellowstone National Park, where they were employed by Hamilton Stores from June 28 to Sept. 14.

Hamilton has 14 stores in the park and 70 percent of their employees are senior citizens. While Leslie and Pete were employed as a sales clerk and custodian, they were provided full hook-ups and parking space for their RV.

During the summer, they enjoyed the cool mountain air at the 6,650-foot elevation. "We actually felt guilty enjoying the climate (60 degrees) and the nice people we worked with. Pete especially enjoyed the tourists and spent time with people from all over the world," says Leslie.

"We had two days off each week, which gave us an opportunity to see all the nooks and crannies off the beaten path, and even outside the park, including Jackson and Cody, Wyo., and Billings and Bozeman, Mont.," she continues.

On their return trip, they visited Mt. Rushmore and the Badlands of South Dakota, en-route to southern Illinois to see Leslie's Sister.

From there, they went to Mississippi to see Pete's three sisters and to fish in the Gulf of Mexico. Then they stopped over in Louisiana to see Leslie's brother.

"Needless to say, we have been blessed this summer, and thank God that He allowed us to go, and to return to our friends and loved ones," says Pete.

Revival planned at chapel in Wharton's Dock

Walker Memorial Baptist Chapel will hold a revival Sunday, Oct. 29 through Wednesday, Nov. 1 with services at 11 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Sunday and 7 p.m. Monday through Wednesday.

The Rev. Marion Birch will be leading the song service for the revival and special music will be provided by the "Friends of the Father." The duo is made up of Sherry Owen and Jan Jeffries of San Antonio and sing in many churches in the San Antonio area.

"Owen and Jeffries blend both contemporary and traditional songs as they sing for the Lord," says the Rev. Ken Allen of Walker Memorial Baptist. "The Friends of the Father have one desire as they sing - that God be glorified and honored through the gifts that God has given them," he says.

Allen will preach and bring a message that God's Word is more relevant for today than at any previous time. "God is trying to get people's attention through the calamities that are taking place in our world today. Too many people feel self-confident and secure in their self-made security," he says. Allen will speak on Judgement Day and God's love and justice.

Everyone within the community is invited to come out and "celebrate in praise and worship," says Allen.

There will be a time of fellowship following each service with coffee and other refreshments.

"The Cub Scouts main purpose in the celebration is to give the children of the area a place for a safe Halloween," says Story.

The function is also a fund-raiser and money earned will be used for patches, achievement awards, and other items needed for the pack, says Story. This is the only fundraiser the pack has during the year, she says.

Boy Scout troop 144 will do the parking at the community center at the corner of State Highway 16 and FM Road 1283 in Pipe Creek.

Activities planned at the Lakehills Civic Center include a haunted house, children's games designed for different age groups, and a ghost story teller.

Leslie Coffee, daughter of Lester and Pat Coffee, had a Halloween party Friday, Oct. 20, with about 30 "ghosts and goblins" enjoying dancing, good food and soft drinks. After the party, six of Leslie's girl friends stayed for the night for a "chatter" slumber party.

• County commissioner Bennie Barker underwent surgery Wednesday, Oct. 18. He may be able to come home by Oct. 25, wife Patricia reports.

• Sunday morning the mini-revival gets under way at the Walker Memorial Chapel at 11 a.m. There will be a "potluck" meal immediately after the service in the fellowship hall. After the meal there will be singing and just good old fashioned fellowship.

• The Copper Lantern will have a Community Halloween party Thursday, Oct. 31 starting at 7 p.m. "Everyone is invited and there will be treats for the trick or treaters," says a spokesman for the lounge and restaurant.

• George Smith is home from the hospital after undergoing surgery Oct. 16. He reports that he is doing fine and slowly getting over it.

• Bud "John" and Betty Ciarlo will be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary Oct. 28. They were married in Dayton, Ohio and lived most of their married life in different parts of the world. They returned stateside in 1972 to San Antonio.

They have two children, Fred who is now in Turkey in the army, and Judith Hines who lives at Benson, N.C.

They have six grandsons and eight great-grandchildren.

Bud and Betty both liked Texas so well that when he retired from civil service they built a home in the Hill Country.

Marion and Marjorie Birch and Marje's sister, Marian Trout, gave a surprise anniversary gathering for the Ciarlos at their home Oct. 17. There was a beautiful anniversary candle burning on the table with various snacks to munch on and a lovely bouquet of flowers. Later an anniversary cake and ice cream was served.

• Eric Bledsoe, son of Phil and Nelda Bledsoe, their daughter-in-law, Marrie and granddaughter Christy departed for Warner Robbins Ga., after a week's visit. Eric has gotten out of the Air Force and is opening a trucking business in Georgia.

• Sharon Underwald, Steven Andreas from Houston, and Susan Andreas from Dallas were at Kenneth and Kathy Andreas' home visiting their dad, Tom Andreas. Tom was released from the hospital Thursday. On Saturday, Bubba and Sheri Cherry ate barbecue at the Longhorn and all the children were there to be with their dad.

• Pete and Leslie Pigott returned home Oct. 8 from a four-month trip.

In June, they went to San Diego, Calif. They visited Pete's sister and husband, while he underwent successful back surgery.

Next they drove to Yellowstone National Park, where they were employed by Hamilton Stores from June 28 to Sept. 14.

Hamilton has 14 stores in the park and 70 percent of their employees are senior citizens. While Leslie and Pete were employed as a sales clerk and custodian, they were provided full hook-ups and parking space for their RV.

During the summer, they enjoyed the cool mountain air at the 6,650-foot elevation. "We actually felt guilty enjoying the climate (60 degrees) and the nice people we worked with. Pete especially enjoyed the tourists and spent time with people from all over the world," says Leslie.

"We had two days off each week, which gave us an opportunity to see all the nooks and crannies off the beaten path, and even outside the park, including Jackson and Cody, Wyo., and Billings and Bozeman, Mont.," she continues.

On their return trip, they visited Mt. Rushmore and the Badlands of South Dakota, en-route to southern Illinois to see Leslie's Sister.

From there, they went to Mississippi to see Pete's three sisters and to fish in the Gulf of Mexico. Then they stopped over in Louisiana to see Leslie's brother.

"Needless to say, we have been blessed this summer, and thank God that He allowed us to go, and to return to our friends and loved ones," says Pete.

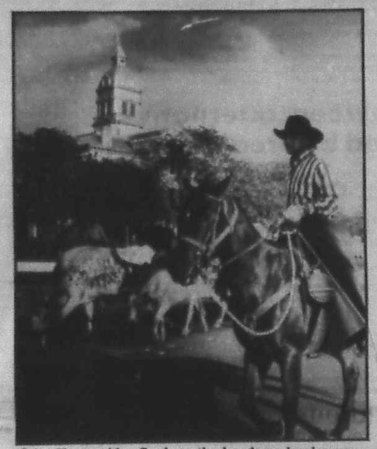
Cowboys and trailriders drove 100 steers into Bandera Saturday afternoon, Oct. 21, as a finale to the third annual Bandera Longhorn Cattle Drive.

The drive of 40 longhorns and other steers raised $500 for the benefit of the March of Dimes and Bandera County Helping Hand, said Cal Chapman, one of the organizers.

"We also got good advertising for the town through San Antonio newspaper coverage and TV newscasts," he said. "We're already planning next year's drive. It will be even bigger and better," he said.

Horns clacking together, the longhorns are squeezed into a narrowing trail as the drive approaches Bandera.

Except for the concrete bridge, the scene might be 100 years ago when similar herds probably stopped for a cooling drink at Bandera Creek.



John Hauer rides flank as the longhorn herd passes Bandera County courthouse.

Briefly noted

Thirty take bank-sponsored trip

Thirty [illegible] attended the Passion Play in Eureka Springs, Ark., during a seven-day Bandera Bank-sponsored trip to the Ozark Mountains of Arkansas and Missouri.

The group returned Wednesday, Oct. 18, from a trip that also included the spectacular views of multi-hued mountain foliage, a luncheon train ride in the forest, a visit to Thorncrown Chapel, and shopping in Eureka Springs, a town also known as "Little Switzerland."

The group also visited Branson, Mo., where they took in shows featuring Mickey Gilley, the Sons of the Pioneers, and The Texans. They also visited the School of the Ozarks and Stone Hill Winery.

Among those on the trip were Councilwoman Geneva Dowell and husband, Clint, Della Mae Cox, Ismay Green, Eleanor Merritt, Floyd and Mary Portman, Joyce Sellberg and Mary Worley, all of Bandera, and Maedell Carpenter, Thelma Gallant and Flonne Williams, all of Medina.

Also Julie Lehman and Alice Leibold, both of Lakehills; Dorothy and John Benham of Pipe Creek and Mrs. Benham's brother and wife, Leon and Mickey McMillan of Brady.

Sophie Mazurek, formerly of Bandera, joined the group from Kerrville.

Girl Scouts collect in clothing drive

Bandera Girl Scouts are among the 650 troops in the San Antonio Area Council who are distributing a total of 57,000 bags to be used to collect clothing for the Salvation Army Adult Rehabilitation Center.

The five Bandera troops are collecting usable items from their family, neighbors, and friends, says troop leader Cathy Clamon.

The filled bags will be returned Saturday, Oct. 28, to San Antonio.

As part of the "Helping Hands" campaign, Girl Scouts can earn a patch by returning five filled bags, says area spokeswoman Julie Rose.

The girls that brought in five bags last year will get a service bar to add to their patch, says Clamon.

"A $95 scholarship will be given to the girl who collects the most bags in each of the three age groups: Brownie, Junior and Cadette/Senior," Rose says. Also, a special award will be given to the troop with 100 percent participation and the largest number of bags per troop collected.

Last year, 6,200 girls collected 30,822 filled bags.

Gets scholarship

Faye A. Comingore of Lakehills has been awarded a $2,000 Corps of Cadets Sul Ross Scholarship at Texas A&M University.

The university says about one out of six members of the university's Corps of Cadets receives this scholarship, which is awarded to freshmen who exhibit leadership potential. The grant is named for a former governor of Texas and former president of the university.

The scholarship is a $500-per-semester stipend for four semesters and is based on academic performance, leadership in high school, and supportive letters of recommendation, the university said.

Comingore was drum major of the Bandera Bulldog Band last year and a member of the school's graduating class.

Fine Artists meet

Po-Po Family Restaurant was the site of the Bandera Fine Arts Club luncheon Tuesday, Oct. 3 as that club began their new year.

Club president Pat D'Spain [illegible] program leader Ginny Brient, who presented her guest, her sister, Ruth Hay.

Hay introduced featured speaker retired Col. Bettie Edmonds, who spoke on excerpts from her life, both military and civilian.

Hostess chair Dorothy Darden presented each of the 58 members and guests present with a miniature basket of potpourri.

The club's Nov. 7 meeting will be held at Bandera Bank meeting room.

Guitarist in concert

Classical guitarist William Kanengiser, first-prize winner at the 1987 Concert Artists Guild international competition in New York, will perform in concert Tuesday, Oct. 31, at 7:30 p.m. in the UTSA Recital Hall.

Halloween party set

A Halloween party will be held at the Cabaret Tuesday, Oct. 31, for all Girl Scouts in Bandera County.

The costume party, hosted by Bandera Brownies Troop 930, will be from 6:30-9 p.m. and will be complete with dancing, says troop leader Cathy Clamon.

Poppy Day Nov. 11

Veterans Day, Nov. 11, will also be the American Legion Auxiliary's Poppy Day to honor Americans who died in war.

"The American Legion Auxiliary asks you to wear a Poppy and honor every American who died for the American ideals of freedom, justice and equality," said Auxiliary president Marie Holland of Bandera.

"It's a small symbol of a great sacrifice," she said. Members of the American Legion Auxiliary Unit 157 will sell the Poppies on Nov. 11.

what's rustlin'

by bungy

Let's have some fun! Let's determine once and for all who's the Biggest Character in Bandera.

I think we have more "real characters" here per capita than anywhere else, so many, in fact, we may have to alter our monicker to "Cowboy and Real Character Capital of the World."

At any rate, let's start right here in Bandera, for example. We'll start with Lou Colburn. Is there anyone else in the world with T-E-X-A-S implanted in gold in his front teeth?

Then there's Tom Grant (Junior to older Banderans) the justice of the peace with an amazing vocabulary and high hat and the fiddlin' sheriff (Steve Forest) who always smiles, though I haven't seen him handle an unruly prisoner.

And there's always the gold dust twins, Joe Reid and Kenneth Stroud, who preside at more than iron works over at The Forge.

At Wharton's Dock there's Ceasar Masse, who's one of the most renowned Cajun fiddlers who also plays piano, lead and bass guitar, horns and even a viola.

And on the other side of Medina Lake there's Panchita, the octogenarian who throws a birthday party for the entire community, and Judd Ashmore whose ultra-conservative and radical views go out over the airways throughout WOAI's considerable listening area.

In Pipe Creek, Ed Jennings tops the list as the storied "marrying judge," but some say most of the population would qualify.

Medina has its share, with Wilton Crider coming immediately to mind.

And our town's Byron Townley, for example, his jeans tucked into high-top boots, allowed himself to be pulled down Main Street in a recent parade by a pack of dalmations and played a sheriff with pink suspenders and pink boots in a recent skit, and actually ran for mayor. Byron Townley? That's the real name of our own Dusty Britches.

But these are only a sampling. What we need to do is get nominations from the floor, so to speak. All of you out in reader-land know of at least one genuine "character."

Nominations close in two weeks. Write a description of your favorite in 25 words or less and mail it or bring it by The Bulletin, 1116 Main Street or P.O. Box 697, Bandera 78003. Mark it "What's Rustlin'."

The winner will be the arbitrary choice of your columnist and a suitable honor will be bestowed, I promise you.

Dr. George Meador and Karen Breazeale provide violin and piano accompaniment as the Melodiers have their sing-along at the Silver Sage Corral.

Silver Sage Corral

By Manuel Flores

The first annual Arts and Crafts Show for senior citizens over age 55 and the quilt show are now a pleasant memory. There were not a lot of exhibitors at brought items to the arts and crafts exhibit, but we hope the number will grow each yr.

The quilt show drew a lot of entries, and the quilts were beautiful. The Bandera Brands quilt was won by Pat and Peter Chapman, who live on the Tarpley Road. Pat is a member of the group that made the quilt, and the Chapmans will surely appreciate this heirloom that they won.

The success of this event was due in large part to the generous contributions of such merchants and friends as Boyle's Market, Ken's II Butane, The Chef, Zeke's, Bandera Volunteer Fire Department, Bandera United Methodist Church, Harry Webb and Carolee's Belles.

The charbroiled "Tom's" burgers were great, and really added to the day. Perhaps we could have these served again.

• Friday, Oct. 13 a group from New Braunfels and Seguin, en route to a barbecue at the Real Ranch in Kerrville, stopped by the Silver Sage Corral for a tour of the facilities. Jan's Van Tours was responsible for bringing the group here.

• The Sagettes Exercise Class welcomes new members Betty Swinford, Florence Perry and Marjorie Sullivan,and welcomes back Peggy Huffman from a visit to Arkansas. Fannie Caffall has been unable to participate due to illness.

Friday, Oct. 13 the group had an impromptu mascot, Lauryn Erfurt, granddaughter of Dorothy Callahan, who did all the moves with the class.

• The Melodiers have resumed their sing-alongs on the first and third Friday of each month from 5-6 p.m. Karen Breazeale played piano for their Oct. 20 sing-along at the Silver Sage Corral.

Tuesday, Oct. 17 the Melodiers and Autoharp players presented a program at Edgewater Care Center in Kerrville.

According to Judy Goodenough, the group has already had two requests for Christmas programs to be given in Kerrville.

• Oct. 22-29 has been designated "Drug Free Society Week," and red ribbons will be available to anyone who wishes to wear them during Red Ribbon Week. Stop by the Silver Sage Corral, pick up a ribbon, and "stick your neck out for the kids" during this week.

• The October birthday luncheon was Tuesday, Oct. 24, and everyone was invited to wear Halloween costumes. There were prizes awarded for the best costumes.

• Marie Holland is asking for volunteers to help make Christmas items for the upcoming holiday season in the gift boutique. With all the visitors to the center recently, almost all the Christmas items have been sold. Anyone with an extra hour or so is invited to come to the center and help, or call Marie and let her know when you are available.

• This week's featured member of the Board of Directors of the Silver Sage Corral is Mary Carpenter. Mary grew up on a ranch in Live Oak County and attended high school in George West.

She received her bachelor's degree in biology from Texas A&I University in Kingsville.

In 1949 she married Roy Carpenter. Mary worked in veterinary medicine to help Roy get his degree in Engineering at Texas A&M University.

Mary worked in research in Austin and has done a lot of substitute teaching in science. She got her teaching certificate at the University of Houston at Clear Lake.

The Carpenters have two sons and two grandchildren who live in League City.

Roy retired from the Corps of Engineers in Galveston in 1979. The Carpenters took an extended trip to Alaska in their small motor home.

In 1985, Roy and Mary came to the hill country to find a home, and they now live in the Bandera Falls area near Pipe Creek.

They helped establish Pipe Creek Presbyterian Church, where Mary was pianist for three and one-half years, and is involved in the Sunday School department. Roy is an elder with the church.

Mary and Roy volunteer at Bandera County Helping Hand, where Roy is past president. They also work at the Silver Sage Corral and Bandera County Library.

Mary's hobbies include sewing, music, and visiting their grandchildren.

Seniors get passes

The Utopia school board approved an action to recognize support of school activities by senior citizens. Seniors aged 60 and above will be given free passes to all school sponsored activities in fine arts and athletics hosted by Utopia ISD. Passes may be secured at any timeat the gate of a school sponsored activity.

Our Halloween Party will be in the afternoon of the thirty-first. Prizes will be awarded for best costume for residents and staff.

A Thought For The Week
By John M. Grimes

BE YOURSELF... There are many people who go through life not knowing who they really are. They go through life imitating other people and never really live up to their own innate abilities and talents.

There is a story told about advice Irving Berlin gave George Gershwin, when he was a struggling young composer in New York. Berlin who was very successful was very much impressed with the young Gershwin. In fact he offered Gershwin a very lucrative job as his musical secretary. Yet in the next breath he said, "But don't take the job. If you do, you may develop into a second-rate Berlin. But if you insist on being yourself, someday you'll become a first-rate Gershwin. ...And we all know what happened to George Gershwin ...He we ... on to become one of America's most significant composers of his ge...eration...

Dale Carnegie in his marvelous book, "How To Stop Worrying and Start Living," puts it another way... "All art is autobiographical. You can sing only what you are. You can paint only what you are. You must be what your experiences, your environment, and your heredity have made you. For better or for worse, you must cultivate your own little garden. For better or for worse, you must play your own little instrument in the orchestra of life."

Good advice! We think so. Why not try it? ... Next week we will comment more on "Being Yourself." Watch for it. You will find it interesting...

Vice president Beverly Cox, director Henry Moeller and executive director Ed Phelps look over a Texas map during Phelps' visit to Bandera this week.

Cox re-nominated for tourist post

Beverly Cox of Sundance Travel Agency in Bandera has been nominated for re-election as second vice president of the Texas Hill Country Tourism Association at the group's annual membership meeting and banquet Thursday, Oct. 26, at the Sunday House Motor Inn in Kerrville.

The meeting gets under way at 11:30 a.m. and a proposal to revise the group's by-laws will also be considered.

The only nominees for election are the incumbents, which include Cox and Omer Mathiason of Kerrville, the group's president. Henry Moeller, partner in the River Front Motel in Bandera, was recently re-elected as one of the group's directors.

The group's first full-time executive director, Ed Phelps of Kerrville, was in Bandera last week visiting with current members and seeking new ones.

Phelps came to the THCTA from the Corsicana Chamber of Commerce and was formerly with the Kerrville Area Chamber of Commerce and the Texas State Arts And Crafts Foundation. He said he hopes to build the THCTA membership to 1,000 in the next 30 months "to strengthen the impact and effectiveness of advertising promoting the Texas Hill Country."

The THCTA represents tourist-related businesses in a 23-county Hill Country area. It maintains a full-time office at 1001 Junction Highway in Kerrville.

Subdivisions occupy commissioners

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Bandera County Commissioners Monday, Oct. 23 heard from an attorney protesting the cancellation last year of the Altamira Hills Subdivision.

In other action, commissioners heard a request to cancel Ranger Ranch Subdivision, closed an unused road in Lakehills, and heard a proposal for the county to provide health insurance for county employees by self-insurance.

Attorney James Permetti of Boerne filed a protest from residents of the cancelled Altamira Hills subdivision, as part of a lawsuit against the county and subdivision developers.

Property owners Gary and Lois C. Whitfield and Mary Dare are suing the county, the original subdivision developer, Rein J. Vander Zee, and Albert Alkek's M&A Properties who last controlled the subdivision because of commissioners action Oct. 24, 1988 ordering cancellation of the subdivision.

In their suit, the Whitfields and Dare want the county to restore the subdivision or at least "that the deed restrictions of the Altamira Hills subdivision are in full force and effect and render void and unenforceable the Oct. 24 action of commissioners court to cancel the deed restrictions to the Altamira Hills subdivision," according to the law suit filed in 216th district court.

The Whitfields and Dare claim that the county and the developers failed to show that "cancellation of all or part of the subdivision did not interfere with the established rights of any purchasers who owns any part of the subdivision..."

They also claim that the county, "Failed to give personal notice to subdivision owners as required by the Oct. 24 order of commissioners court.

In their pleadings, the Whitfields and Dare ask the district court judge to declare that M&A Properties breached their contract by trying to amend the deeds in the subdivision without the written consent of not less than 90 percent of the tract owners.

They also accuse M&A Properties of failing to protect the value and desirability of the subdivision property values

Bandera
By Peggy Tobin

Reviving an ancient custom, we have lately gone on leisurely Sunday afternoon drives. Nobody at our house has ever watched pro football. We gave up brush-cutting in the back pasture to make time for a windshield survey of the Medina River from its source to the lake.

Not since the sad days of August, 1978, had we ventured up the North Prong. When we drove up the river then, we quickly retreated, unable to bear the sight of the once shady canyon stripped bare by the record flood. Over the years, a trip up the river to revel in the views of grey cliffs, clear water crossings, and overhanging cypress, pecan, and water oak trees had been the antidote for any kind of dismaying dailiness.

We remember with such fondness the trek up the road to the Heimsath Ranch where the Medina River Reading Club often met in the fifties. Star and Charles Heimsath had organized what amounted to a great books course, eagerly attended by a fascinating cross-section of Bandera and Medina people. (Have Tolstoy, Carlyle, Ruskin, or Plato been publicly discussed in the county lately?)

We remember with fondness the trek up the road to the Heimsath Ranch where the Medina River Reading Club ofter met in the fifties.

Anyway, this 1989 expedition up the North Prong was most comforting. While a few cypress trees are coming back, the most grievous gashes along the river channel are being mercifully covered with thick growths of sycamore, china berry and willow. Perhaps these "trash" trees must come first before the stately hardwoods and cypress can return. They certainly help the looks of things for now.

We have reluctantly accepted the raised and paved over crossings on the public part of the road, knowing that the romantic water crossings still exist on the private land beyond. And we are most grateful for the knowledge that some old-time families are still able to maintain large ranches in some of the most scenic and environmentally significant parts of our county, thus protecting them into the tenuous future faced by the Hill Country.

And we are grateful for the generosity of ranch-owners like Louise Merrick and wise planners of Texas Parks and Wildlife for making public access possible to such great open spaces as Lost Maples and Hill Country Natural Area, both in Bandera County.

While we're all working to preserve the early Texas buildings in town and to promote Bandera as the Cowboy Capital, we can't forget that the greatest asset the county actually has is its virtually unspoiled natural beauty. It ain't Grand Canyon, but it ain't bad. At least west of Bandera!

Red Ribbon Rally held

Car horns could be heard honking all around Kerrville Monday, Oct. 23, as the kick-off of Red Ribbon Week began with an area-wide rally.

Students and parents gathered at Antler Stadium Monday evening for an hour of excitement, enthusiasm and discussion on how to "Just Say No" to drug use.

The featured speaker of the evening was J. David Quilter, from the Drug Enforcement Agency. He spoke about the drug problem in our world today. He read a poem, written by a high school student, about how the drug problem was not caused by today's teens, but that it started in earlier generations and has gradually become worse. Mr. Quilter said we need to get involved in drug education in order to "Turn the Tide" against drugs and "Just Say No!"

In the 60's, a wave of drug use hit the United States and has steadily worsened over the last 25 years. This year's theme is "Turn The Tide" because those fighting drug use are hoping to decrease drug use and the drug flow into the U.S., thus, they will "turn the tide" against drugs.

Music for the rally was provided by the Ingram band. Todd Calvert, an Ingram Tom Moore High School student, opened the ceremonies with a welcome and a recognition of the [illegible] War on Drugs. The song "Turn The Tide" was sung by a group of students from Center Point. Following this, cheerleaders from Bandera Jr. High, Center Point, and Notre Dame schools performed "anti-drug" yells. Also, two skits were performed by Bandera and Center Point students to the songs, "Turn Around" and "Toy Soldiers." A poem was read by two high school students. The poem was about a husband and wife's marital problems. In listening to the poem, one would think the husband was having an affair, and he was with cocaine. "Anti-Drug" yells were also performed by Tivy cheerleaders and Ingram cheerleaders.

To end the rally, a moment of silence was observed and then a Tivy high school student read the "Serenity Prayer." Everyone was encouraged to honk their horns as they went home to make others aware of their interest in "turning the tide" against drug use and abuse.

Parenting workshops set locally, to be conducted by Kerr center

Two parenting workshops have been scheduled by two different groups in Bandera starting next week. Both will be sponsored by Active Parenting.

A series of workshops for single parents will be offered at Bandera High School for six consecutive Mondays beginning Oct. 30 from 7-9 p.m. each night.

A series of active parenting workshops will be held at Bandera United Methodist Church for six consecutive Tuesdays beginning Nov. 7 from 7 to 8 p.m.

The workshop at the high school will be presented free to the first 25 single parents who register, and the workshop at Bandera United Methodist Church is also free to the public.

Both workshops will be presented by the Phoenix Center, with facilitator Barbara Fuller leading the presentations.

Fuller is a licensed psychotherapist, and she is employed by the Phoenix Center in Kerrville.

The video-based programs will include dramatizations of real-life situations and interaction between parents on the "how-to's" of raising children in a single parent household.

For information on the Monday workshops, call Bandera Independent School District at 796-3753.

Safe Halloween urged

Halloween, a traditional time when children prepare for the big night by searching for scary masks and spooky outfits, falls Tuesday, Oct. 31. Although having fun and filling up their goody bags are uppermost in their minds, children should also be encouraged to follow safe practices. Parents should keep in mind the following safety tips provided by Scott and White Memorial Hospital in Temple:

- Make costumes short enough so the child won't trip when going up and down stairs.
- Use white or bright colors, or big patches of white on the costumes to ensure good visibility.
- Use fire-retardant fabric for the costumes or treat the material with a chemical fire-retardant.
- When making masks or hoods, cut out holes in them that are large enough to assure easy breathing and good vision. Using makeup or face paints instead of masks is an even better idea.
- If face paints are used, make sure they are designed specifically for this purpose, they are non-poisonous and the paint can be washed off easily.
- When lighting Jack o'lanterns, use small flashlights, not candles, in order to prevent fires.
- Have an adult accompany the children while they are trick or treating.
- Trick or treating should be done before dark, especially if you have young children. Set a curfew for the older children and enforce it.
- Instruct the children to stay in their own neighborhood and to call on only people they know and trust.
- Give each child a flashlight and remind him or her not to shine it into anyone's eyes, especially someone driving an automobile.
- To prevent falls, remind children to use sidewalks instead of cutting across yards and vacant lots.
- If your child gets sick, try to find out exactly what he or she ate and where it came from. Call your doctor immediately, or contact Scott and White Poison Control Center at 817-774-2005.

Seniors win brigade

Every year, before Homecoming, there is an event called the Bucket Brigade. Members from each class have a bucket to earn money for their class. The object is to keep your opponent from winning by putting anything except pennies into the buckets. The object is to get the most money in pennies. Any other money is subtracted from the total amount in the bucket.

The winning class (seniors this year) keep the money in their bucket for their class. The other three classes' money goes to the Student Council to defray cost of the Homecoming Ceremonies.

This year the seniors won with $111.90 worth of pennies. The total income of the Bucket Brigade was $257.73. The total for the juniors was $25.45. Next was the freshmen with a balance of $8.49, trailed by the sophomores with a negative $1.09.

17 candidates seek posts on water management board

By James Henry Frazer
Bulletin Staff Writer

Charles W. "Bill" Weber Jr., Keith Keese, Melvin King, and Randy Schott are four of the 17 candidates on the Nov. 7 ballot in Springhills Water Management District director election.

The Bulletin has featured J.K. Leighton of Vanderpool, Joe M. Cantu and J.B. Edwards of Pipe Creek, Mary Jane Cave of Bandera, and John Buckley and Norman Hicks Mansfield of Lakehills. Next week, The Bulletin will feature more candidates.

The other candidates in the election are Travis Redman, Phil Tobin, Craig A. Tips, and Don E. Karr of Bandera; Paul Garrison Jr. and Morgan Cox of Medina; and Phil Becker of Tarpley.

Write-in candidates will be allowed on the ballot, says James Henarling, deputy special assistant for elections with the Texas State Secretary of State's office. Candidates do not have to file as write-in candidates, but can just have their names written in by the voters, he says.

In addition to the election of nine directors, voters will be asked on the Nov. 7 ballot to approve or disapprove the creation of Bandera County's combined surface water and underground water district.

Absentee voting ends Friday, Nov. 3, for the water district and the constitutional amendments.

Bill Weber Jr.

Charles W. "Bill" Weber Jr., 67, is a retired civil engineer currently a rancher and growing apples in Medina.

Weber sees the goals of the district as maximizing the utilization of Bandera County water in Bandera County and protecting the quality of water within the county's boundaries.

"The water district will provide the area organization through which the citizens of Bandera County can best determine the water use in Bandera County," says Weber.

Weber feels the first task of the district will be to establish baseline conditions in water quantity, water quality, and present points of water quality degradation. The district must "establish and document a database for water throughout the county" as one of its first tasks, says Weber. The second will be to, "Build a strong effective district that can represent the county in interfacing with the state agencies, officials and other entities interested in Bandera County's water," he says.

Weber says the assets he can bring to the district are his civil engineering background and experience in water resources within Texas for over 30 years. He says he is a registered professional engineer.

His water resource experience includes water projects such as studies and designs of dams, pumping station, canals and pipeline; studies covering the hydrology of surface and underground water; and water quality and environmental impact assessments.

"While being involved with these projects I interfaced with municipalities, river authorities, water districts, and the state agencies which deal with water matters."

"It is imperative that the people approve the Springhills Water Management District which will give the people of Bandera County the ability to control ground water and surface water within the county boundaries. Presently, there are essentially no laws governing ground water, and there is no entity in Bandera County governing its ground water. This situation provides an opportunity for others to enter the picture and determine the use of our water in the future," says Weber.

Keith Keese

Keith Keese, 37, of Medina is a plant engineer for Hill Country Spring Water.

Keese believes the newly-created district, to be confirmed or rejected by voters Nov. 7, is necessary, "To protect the quantity and quality of water in Bandera County."

He sees the goals of the district, "To maintain control of Bandera County's surface and ground water."

The district needs to educate the citizens of Bandera County in water issues as its first task, says Keese.

Keese wants, "To have water available for the citizens of Bandera County in the next 50 years," as his main reason for running for the board.

Keese is a life-long resident of Medina and he says he is familiar with the water needs of the community, including the needs of farmers and ranchers.

"For the past four years I have been employed by a water bottling plant whose main concern is water quality," Keese says of his experience. "I have a Class C Bottle Water Plant Operators license and a Class D Waste Water Treatment license."

Melvin King

Melvin King, 69, of Bandera will bring his experience in management of water and wastewater treatment plants to the board of directors of the Springhills Water Management District, if he is elected Nov. 7.

King, recently retired from his post as Bandera City Public Works Director, says the water district, to be confirmed or rejected by voters, is necessary to protect the county's water resources.

He sees the goals of the district, "To maintain control of Bandera County's surface and ground water."

The district needs to educate the citizens of Bandera County in water issues as its first task, says Keese.

Keese wants, "To have water available for the citizens of Bandera County in the next 50 years," as his main reason for running for the board.

Randy Schott

Randy Schott, 37, of Lakehills is a rancher and native of Bandera County.

Schott sees the main goal of the district is "To keep control of the water in Bandera County by local people."

Schott sees the goals of the district as water conservation and pollution control. He says he wants to see the springs remain clean. "We've got good water here, and we want to keep it that way."

Schott sees the first task of the district to establish control of above- and below-ground water. "I feel local control and conservation of the water in Bandera County is vital to our future," he says. Schott says he's seen more people move into the county over the last 20 years and this must be accounted for in planning water policy.

Schott also believes that the activities of the district must be financially conservative, using a low-cost approach.

Schott has a Bachelor of Science in Agriculture Production and Management from Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos and has been a rancher in Bandera County for 19 years.

Angler lands record-tying black bass at Medina Lake

Steve S. Giordano of San Antonio caught a 15-pound, eight-ounce largemouth bass Tuesday, Oct. 10, that tied the former state record held by H.E. "Fisher" Gauntlett.

Gauntlett caught the 27-inch long lunker on a double-bladed willow-leaf spinner with a white-and-red eyes with trailer hook. Giordano caught his fish on a green plastic worm.

"It was a good color for me in that lake," he says. Many fishermen around Medina Lake find that chartreuse-colored lures are the most productive.

Giordano says he was fishing in 25 feet of water about 200 yards from shore at the junction of a cove entering the main lake. The bass struck about six feet down, he says. "It was probably one of the last casts of the day," says Giordano.

The hookin' barbs were not hooked in the corner of the mouth. "It was my day," it was also his only hit in the 1 1/2 hours he fished.

The current state record is 17 pounds, 10 ounces and is influenced by the influx of the Florida bass into Texas waters. Fisheries biologists say largemouth bass in excess of 15 pounds are rare.

Magee caught his fish Jan. 16, 1943 and it was 26½ inches long. The 13½-pound bass is a "good fish" in Medina Lake, according to Parks and Wildlife fisheries biologist Jimmy Dean. Only a small percentage of the fish get to trophy size, he adds.

"It used to be that an eight-pound bass was a large bass, but now with nine and ten pounders coming out, seven- and eight-pound bass are rarely reported any more," says Dean.

The requirement that fishermen throw back any bass below 14 inches in length has contributed to the larger fish taken in lakes, says Dean.

Tri-Star Football comes to Bandera again. Chris Davis, left, Carolee Robbins and Patrick Mazurek will join other youngsters aged 7 to 12 years in the annual event testing their skills in punting, passing and kicking a football. Bass tourney set at Medina Lake

The Rebel Bass Club will hold its 5th annual open tournament in Medina Lake on Saturday, Oct. 22, with close to 200 anglers expected and 150 registered as of Monday.

Fishermen will compete in three divisions: men, women, and children 14 years old or younger. Entry fee is $25.

Last year, 200 contestants competed and 45 anglers weighed in 64 fish for a total of 110 pounds.

The largest bass of last year's tournament weighed 5.4 pounds.

Registration will start at 6 a.m. at a boat. No trolling is allowed.

Prizes for the men's division include a $1,000 cash first-place, $200 second-place, and $100 third-place prize, as well as $50 merchandise prizes for the men's division.

Prizes for the women's division include a $150 cash first-place prize and $100 cash second-place prize. There will be three other merchandise prizes for the women's division. Entry fee is $25.

Prizes for the juniors' division include a $100 cash first-place gift certificate and merchandise for four other places. Juniors are also free only hit in the 1 1/2 hours he fished.

The pre-season favorite in District 8-AAA, Sonora's Broncos Miss and Mr. BHS will be crowned during halftime.

Bobcats defeated by Nueces Canyon

dink's gridders fell to a 1-6 Nueces Canyon Friday, Oct. 20, at the Bobcats, 36-7.

The Bobcats single bright spot was a first-quarter drive that went 90 yards in 12 plays and ended with a touchdown run by Ricky Rodriguez.

"After the first quarter, we quit playing both defense and offense," said head coach Joe Winchell. "It went downhill from there."

Medina also lost the services of junior running back Thomas Fields for a week due to a neck injury. "We'll rest him this week and he will be ready for the Center Point game," said Winchell. "He's a little sore."

Medina, still winless in district play, will host Uvalde's junior varsity Saturday, Nov. 4, at 4 p.m. Nueces Canyon will meet Center Point Friday to decide the district championship.

Utopia volleyball season winding down

The Utopia Lady Buffaloes raised their season record to 10-5 last week after losing a close match to Bloomington.

Bearcat district opponent defeated Utopia, 15-11, 15-11.

"This was an excellent opportunity for all of our girls to see action," said Coach Hyde. "Diana Duke hit the ball with a lot of authority and Tori Conch served some big points for us. Over all, it was our best serving match of the season."

Tuesday, Oct. 17, Utopia played its last regular season home game as they defeated Medina in a district contest 15-2, 15-1. Dian Weinman served 12 winning points.

Seniors Tricia Bishop, Janet McKay and Stephanie Orbison were honored before the game for their leadership, effort and attitude.

In junior varsity action Beerne defeated Utopia, but Utopia rebounded to win their final home game against Medina. Medina was swept in two games.

Tuesday, Oct. 17, Utopia played its last regular season home tournament.

Rare cranes should be reported

Endangered whooping cranes may be making their annual appearance in Texas now as they migrate from their Canadian nesting grounds to their winter home on the Texas Gulf Coast.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials ask persons who spot any of the rare birds to avoid disturbing them and report the location to the department or U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service (USFWS).

The department officials are interested in where the birds stopover on their migration to the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge and Matagorda Island on the Texas Gulf Coast.

USFWS officials said the crane apparently has another excellent production year, with 12 to 18 chicks adding to the flock at the nesting grounds in Wood Buffalo National Park in the Northwest Territories. The migrating flock, including the yearlings, numbers about 145 birds, officials said.

Because of the increase in the flock, TPW officials want to know if the birds are using new feeding areas and if their migratory patterns have changed.

Adult whooping cranes are white with black wingtips and red forehead. In flight, the bird's long neck is held straight forward and their long black legs extend beyond the tail. The adult's wingspan may be more than seven feet, and whoopers stand as tall as five feet. Juveniles have white and rusty brown body feathers and black wingtips.

Whooping cranes usually fly in family groups of two or three, says a biologist with TPW. Sometimes the flock will be as large as five when juveniles are still with the family unit. A flock of 15 to 25 birds are probably not whooping cranes, the biologists adds.

Other birds that can be confused with whooping cranes are sandhill cranes or American white Pelicans.

The past five years of good production are encouraging to state and federal biologists, since only 16 whoopers survived in the wild 48 years ago.

The whooping cranes head back to the north in early to mid-April.

If sighted, call TPW at 1-800-792-1112 or USFWS at 1-505-766-3972 during normal business hours. Sightings can also be reported by mail: write TPW, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin 78744.

Hunting looks good in Bandera County

By Nick Johnson
Editor

There's more "critters in 'dem thar hills" this year and they are in good physical condition due to at least adequate numbers of acorns, and those circumstances may add up to one of the heaviest and best deer harvests in Bandera County history.

The season opens Saturday at 5:29 a.m. (One-half hour before sunrise, which is at 6:59 a.m.) It closes Jan. 7.

"I look for a good kill opening weekend," said veteran game warden Carl Becker. "Prospects look real good. The deer are coming to the feeders real good," he observed.

The game warden said deer in the county suffered physically because of a shortage of food caused by the prolonged summer drought, but the availability of acorns, a favorite food, has improved their health. "We've had a fairly good acorn crop, and the deer are starting to pick up (physically)," he said.

Rains this week are expected to be a boon to emerging oat crops and other new growth of interest to whitetail deer.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department last week released results of its annual deer population survey that showed the current whitetail population in Bandera County was about 40,000. That's 10,000 more than were counted last year, the wildlife agency said.

Becker says the longer season now in effect and the increased number of animals means many more deer are being harvested, even though the number of hunters on opening weekend and early in the season may appear to be fewer than in years past.

"The season is much longer now, and we don't have the amount of traffic in the early part of the season," Becker says. "It's long enough now so they (some hunters) wait for holidays where they have two to three days hunting," said Becker.

The season in Medina County begins a week later than in Bandera County, but a small change is expected to make that disparity easier to cope with this year, Becker said.

The boundary between the two different seasons this year is not the county line, which in places is impossible to locate. Instead, the boundary is U.S. Highway 90 that dissects Medina County and is, of course, easily identified by sight.

The season south of that highway opens Nov. 11 and runs through Jan. 14.

The bag limit in Bandera County remains unchanged — four deer, but no more than two antlered bucks.

Permits are no longer required for killing does and other antlerless animals, and the wildlife agency urged hunters to take more doe this year than last. They recommended a harvest of 1 doe or antlerless deer for each 50 acres and one buck for every 230 acres.

"The recommended rates result from the need to better balance the sex ratio observed in the (Bandera County) herd and from a desire to produce a healthier deer population that is properly matched to the existing supply of doe.

Hunting seasons are set by the Parks and Wildlife Commission and can't be changed or extended. "Every year I get questions about whether the hunting season will be extended," Becker said. "It won't be; it can't be," he said.

He said hunters have begun complying with the requirement to complete tags immediately, but he reminded those who give away all or part of a deer that they must attach a hunter's document to the part given away. It must contain the date of the kill, the person making the kill and his license number, and the location of the kill.

He pointed out that hunters are no longer required to keep physical evidence of sex with the carcass, but may instead obtain a statement from the landowner stating the sex of the animal along with the name of the person who killed it and the location.

"This means hunters can transport the carcass without taking the heads with them," Becker explained. "Over a period of time, the heads get kind of strong," he observed.

Complete hunting laws are available in the TPWD's Texas Hunting Guide, which Becker said is available wherever hunting licenses are sold.

26th Hunters' Barbecue to be served Friday night

At about 6 a.m. Friday, Fabian Mazurek and a crew of volunteer workers will rekindle the fire of an event that has become a Bandera tradition, the 26th annual Hunter's Barbecue to be held Friday night, Nov. 3, at Mansfield Park.

Hunting season begins at the crack of dawn, Saturday, Nov. 4, and hunters in town for opening day have traditionally flocked to the barbecue for "good food, fun and music," the night before.

"Land-owners can come by the chamber office this week and get advance tickets for their hunters," said Bandera County Chamber of Commerce secretary Nancy Hopes Tuesday. "So far ticket sales have been a little slow. We've sold about 150 advanced tickets.

"Tickets will be available at the door, though," she said. The chamber office is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily.

Some 1,500 pounds of beef brisket and 500 pounds of sausage will be barbecued for the event, along with 100 pounds of beans. Serving will begin at 5:30 p.m., Hopes said. Pat Barker is in charge of getting the crew together to serve the giant meal.

Thursday morning, as regular as clockwork, and as they have done in years past, Telvy Robbins and members of Bandera's FFA chapter will set up tables for the barbecue. Then, Thursday evening, Hopes and her crew will decorate the tables and finish setting up.

Volunteers are still being sought for the event, sponsored by the Bandera Chamber of Commerce, which will be held at Mansfield Park, two miles west of Bandera on State Highway 16.

Some 2,500 attended the Hunters' Barbecue last year, according to Hopes. Over 250 letters have already been sent out to land owners, volunteers and such notables as Bandera County Judge Ray Mauer, Bandera Mayor Raymond Adamietz, and State Representative Eldon Edge.

The meal will cost $4 for adults and $2.50 for children, and includes barbecue brisket, sausage, beans, cole slaw and other condiments. Coffee and tea will also be provided.

Barbecue brisket and sausage will also be available by the pound, she said.

A sweets booth, featuring "lots of homemade cakes and pies and goodies," will be available, Hopes said. Kay Camp is in charge of desserts, she explained.

Prize drawings and live music will be the entertainment for the evening.

Advance tickets are available at the Bandera County Chamber of Commerce office, 1206 Cypress.

For more information, call 796-4312.

Water district, amendments on election ballot Tuesday

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

Tuesday, Nov. 7, Bandera County voters will go to the polls to decide not only among 21 proposed constitutional amendments, but to approve the Springhills Water Management District and select a nine-member board of directors from among some 17 candidates.

Through Tuesday, Oct. 31, 59 voters had appeared to cast their votes at the Bandera County clerk's office. During the first week of absentee voting, Bandera County Clerk Vera King reported that 25 had voted absentee by personal appearance, and two ballots were mailed out.

Absentee voting will continue through Friday, Nov. 3.

King attributed the heavy turnout to the water district election, and the high level of interest that has already been generated in that race.

Candidates for the board of directors of the Springhills Water Management District will appear on the ballot in the following order: Melvin A. King, Keith Keese, Craig Tips, Joe Cantu, Phil Becker, Randy Schott, Morgan Cox, M.J. Cave, Charles W. "Bill" Weber Jr., Paul Garrison Jr., Phillip P. Tobin, Don Karr, J.K. Leighton, John Halliday, J.B. Edwards, Travis H. Redman, and Norman Hicks Mansfield.

Votes will be tallied by computer this time for the first time in Bandera County history. After voters cast their ballots, using a special pen, the computers will be used to count votes, saving hours of counting time for election workers, according to King.

The only real difference voters will see is in the way they mark their ballots, according to Bonnie Bruce in the clerk's office. No "X" marks will be used, but instead a line must be drawn connecting two halves of arrows that appear on the ballot beside the names of candidates and beside the words "For" and "Against" on each amendment.

Election judges and alternates for the ten precincts in Bandera County include: 1. (Bandera) Marianne Sandidge, judge; B.J. Gilstrap, alternate. 2. (Pipe Creek) Helen Edwards, judge; Karen W. Sapp, alternate. 3. (Pipe Creek) Johnnie L. Newcomer, judge; Mildred Rader, alternate. 4. (Lakehills) Dorothy McCracken, judge; Doris Roemer, alternate; 5. (Bandera) Telvy Robbins, judge; Mildred Brown, alternate. 6. (Medina) Shirley Phillips, judge; Billie Mae Bilhartz, alternate. 7. (Bandera) Martin Smith, judge; Peter F. Chapman, alternate. 8. (Tarpley) Arthur Erfurt, judge; William Morris, alternate. 9. (Medina) S. Ward McCullough, judge; Marjorie Jordan, alternate. and 10. (Utopia) Charlsie Porter, judge; and Allen Hatley, alternate. Lila McMillan Ward is the absentee judge, and Bonnie Bruce is the alternate.

Polls will open at 7 a.m., and will close at 7 p.m.

Rainfall amounts in county vary up to 10 inches

A cold front that pushed through Bandera County early Saturday morning and another Monday morning brought generous rainfall over a four day period to all parts of Bandera County ranging from four to ten inches.

The official rainfall gauge in Bandera brought 5.39, 0.86, and 1.72 inches Saturday, Sunday and Monday bringing the total for the weekend of welcomed rain to 7.97 inches.

The rain caused the Medina River level at Bandera to rise a full foot to 5.2 feet, up from 4.2 feet a week ago. Medina Lake rose nearly a foot by Tuesday to 1031.89 feet above sea level, or 40.11 feet below the spillway. It was 40.97 feet below the spillway a week ago.

Other rainfall reports include the Tobin Ranch where they received 5½ inches Friday night, two inches Saturday night, 1½ inches Sunday night, and one inch Monday morning, reports Phil Tobin. This totals to 10 inches received in the Bandera area ranch.

Lakehills received 2.84 inches Oct. 28, 0.61 inches Oct. 29, and 1.16 inches Oct. 30, totalling 4.11 inches, reports Ernest Reich, who lives on the east side of FM Road 1283.

Another report from Lakehills had 5½ inches of rain near the business district.

South of Pipe Creek, George Hohon reports 6½ inches during the Friday through Monday period at his Medina River Ranch home.

Medina rainfall included 4.44 inches over the weekend bringing the October total to 5.75 inches.

Some 4.31 inches of rainfall were received in Tarpley, 9.6 miles west of Medina, reports John Berry. Another report for that area is 7.68 inches and is 24.5 inches for the year.

Reports from Tarpley indicate the rain was also in the generous range, six to nine inches, with six inches in the Rio Hondo subdivision. Anton Haner reported 5.9 inches from Friday through Monday.

Further west, the Lost Maples state park reports five inches received since Friday night. The Sabinal River is flowing instead of trickling.

The Foster Ranch west of Vanderpool reports 4.9 inches over the four day period bringing October's rainfall to a total of 5.54 inches. "This is the wettest month so far this year," says Hoyt Foster. Previously, the highest rainfall total for a month was 5.34 inches in January and the lowest is 0.08 inches in September, he adds.

In Vanderpool itself, Ken Leighton reports 4.83 inches showered down Oct. 27, 0.57 inches Oct. 28, 0.69 inches Oct. 29, and 0.29 inches Oct. 30, with his rainfall "day" ending at 7 a.m. This brings Vanderpool's October rainfall to 5.99 inches. There were no reports of flooding, adds Leighton.

The rainfall in Bandera came to 8.30 inches in October, the wettest month in the county seat, easily surpassing the 3.94 inches received in January, the prior highest rainfall month in 1989, according to the official gauge in Bandera city limits.

The is brings the total for the year to 28.47 inches, some 0.36 inches short of the average expected rainfall through the first ten months, reports Billy Griffin, conservationist with the Bandera County Soil Conservation Service.

[illegible] received as much rain as Bandera, making for the dry conditions that the recent rainfall has temporarily halted.

Lost Maples' hues may be better

Lost Maples State Natural Area has begun its fall transformation of color, and according to park officials, the colors are better this year than they have been for several years.

Good news, after a somewhat pessimistic prediction at the end of a hot, dry summer.

"All during the month of October, there have been lots of reds, and the colors are the best I've seen them since I came to work here," said park official Sandra Payne. Unusually cool weather early in the fall has apparently had a remarkable effect.

"The Sabinal River is running and beautiful," Payne said. Although recent wind and rain did knock some of the leaves off the trees, but there are still green leaves changing daily, and [illegible]

Lost Maples State Natural Area has gained a reputation for its beautiful fall scenic splendor. Every year, from all across the United States and other parts of the world, people flock to the site near Vanderpool in hopes of catching the bigtooth or canyon maples as they create an extravagant display of color.

The trees are abundant, not only in the park but in the surrounding canyons. Spectacular hues ranging from fiery reds and oranges to muted yellow and gold draw scenery lovers from far and near.

Usually, the seasonal display of colors occurs sometime during the time from mid-October to early November. Many of the leaves have turned, but there are still quite a few leaves that have not turned yet, according to Who's responsibility?

Dear editor:

Please send my condolences to the Maltsberger and Evans families for the loss of their loved ones in the Feb. 2 accident.

But, what is the world coming to?

Both drivers were "legally drunk." Are the [illegible] responsible for Mr. Maltsberger being drunk? They might as well. Why not everyone sue everyone else and let the lawyers get even richer? Pat Maloney (the attorney who brought this suit) is already one of the top ten richest lawyers in the state.

Think about it. The insurance company will get its money back by charging higher rates to you and me, and the lawyers take more than their fair share. The courts, which our taxes support, have to be paid. So who wins?

If there is any money left, it still won't bring back your loved ones. It's high time we quit supporting these ambulance chasers. Already, because of suits like this, our doctors are quitting their practices because of malpractice suits. Our policemen aren't allowed to defend themselves and our honest, law-abiding businessmen and women are having a harder time trying to earn a living.

It's time people were made responsible for their own actions. The Wrangler didn't get Mr. Evans drunk. He did. If it wasn't the Wrangler, it would have been some place else, just as Mr. Maltsberger found.

So lighten up. Look inside yourself and let your conscience be your guide.

Where's councilman living?

Dear editor:

Is it true that all city council members are supposed to reside within the city limits? If so, someone should ask councilman (Charlie) Eckhart where he is residing.

Point at others too

Dear editor:

I work at Leal's Mexican Restaurant, and (owners) Mary and Gilbert Leal are great people. But they have had a few hard knocks since they began trying to open in March.

First of all, they were told the sewer pipes ran together with another restaurant, so they removed them. Then they added to the back of the building to put in sinks and a walk-in cooler, and after they were through the owners of property next door said it was two feet on their property. So they removed it and started over, but while they were trying to close it in, someone complained about their nailing the walls.

They were open on Labor Day weekend and earned a 93 on their first inspection from the health inspector, which is great.

But someone was unhappy about the hanging plants outside the restaurant, so they called the state inspector who said they had to be removed because they are not seven feet from the building. Do you know how many of our restaurants have hanging plants inside and out? Or signs or electrical wires hanging down? Well, take a look around you, and if you want to point fingers, point at others also.

When is this going to stop? We have great food and a good business. Is Bandera scared of competition? Mary and Gilbert Leal like Bandera and the people here, so it looks as though they are going to stay.

Efficient waitress

Dear editor:

The Coastal Bend Land Sailors RV Club from Corpus Christi had a super great time in Bandera on Oct. 19, 20 and 21. We were camped at Jellystone Park, and they had so many enjoyable things for us. Friday night we had delicious hamburgers and ice cream and Sunday morning it was a delicious pancake breakfast.

We chose the OST Restaurant for our Saturday evening meal. The service was great and the food delicious. Mary Jo, our waitress, served 39 of us all by herself. The OST has a very, very efficient waitress; don't let her get away from you!

Former Governor

We hear them every day, "You only get what you pay for," and "there's no such thing as a free lunch," "penny wise and pound foolish," sayings that make the point that if you want quality, you have to pay for it.

But it seems that most voters tend to forget about those axioms when it comes to questions about how much to pay their elected officials. Texas state legislators are currently paid $600 a month. Are we "getting what we're paying for?"

I certainly hope not, and experience tells me that we are certainly getting more than our money's worth, despite the lack of any change in that pay for the past 15 years!

This November, we all have a chance to change this unfair and unrealistic situation. Two questions on the November seventh ballot, numbers 1 and 11, will provide for an increase in pay and a raise in the per diem for our state legislators. These proposals deserve your support.

Please join me Nov. 7 by voting YES on questions 1 and 11 on the ballot.

Former Texas Gov. John Connally is co-chairman of "Texans for Good Government."

Amendments 1 and 11 on the Nov. 7 ballot.

1990 voters must choose their favorite new school tax

The problem for Texas voters in next year's election is becoming clearer, even if the answer is not:

- Some candidates will promise that school finance reform can be structured without a tax hike.
- Others will say it will take $2 billion in new taxes, so pick your favorite new tax.

Rhetoric from both schools of thought, not falling along party lines, filled Capitol halls last week, even as the state education commissioner told a House panel that if current monies were redistributed to equalize education funding, some $1.05 billion would be taken from rich school districts and given to poor ones.

Meanwhile, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby unveiled his proposal to resolve the deadlock over workers' compensation insurance reform, while Gov. Bill Clements angered pro-life leaders by refusing to call a special session on abortion issues.

The Legislature will convene in a few days for a third try at lowering workers' comp insurance rates, and Clements has already promised to call another in the spring to equalize the public school financing formula.

Praise, Barbs for Hobby

If drawing praise from the opposition and wrath from one's friends is any indication of success, Hobby's plan will sail. Described by Hobby as "a solution, not a compromise," his plan drew encouraging praise from Gov. Bill Clements and the pro-business side of the issue.

But trial lawyers and labor leaders blasted him for caving in to forces seeking to remove jury awards from the process.

New Lt. Gov. Candidate

Houston businessman Rob Mosbacher, entering the race for lieutenant governor on the Republican ticket, pledged to serve only two terms and not become an Austin political institution.

It was an indirect swipe at the longevity of two Democrats, front-runner Comptroller Bob Bullock and outgoing incumbent Bill Hobby.

Both have served longest in those offices in Texas history, some 17 years. State Sen. Chet Edwards, D—Duncanville, is also in the race.

Mosbacher, who chairs the Texas Human Resources Commission, said he would bring the abortion issue to the Senate floor for a vote, and pledged to hold state agencies accountable for spending and performance.

Other Campaign Proposals

Two Republicans running for governor unveiled new campaign planks, one calling for "factories behind fences" in prisons and the other promising to meet the Supreme Court's school finance order without new taxes.

Railroad Commissioner Kent Hance said prisoners could work for industrial concerns and keep 20 percent of earnings, the rest going to defray costs of incarceration, victim restitution and family support programs.

Dallas attorney Tom Luce believes the state could avoid new taxes by giving school districts more flexibility to use their management skills.

Mattox, Clements

And Atty. Gen. Jim Mattox, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, said it again: "unequivocally, I am opposed to new taxes. I'll veto it if it comes to my desk as governor."

This is important, as his stance seems to be a departure from current Democratic Party thought and it sure will set the stage to contrast Mattox with former Gov. Mark White, who may soon enter the race.

White, you may recall, pledged no new taxes in '82, then set out to push the largest tax bill in state history, as he later told an Ohio crowd, by "raising every tax and fee in sight."

Clements refused Mattox' request to include a state lottery issue in the coming special session, and predicted Mattox would never be governor.

Other Highlights

- State Rep. Larry Evans, D—Houston, was beaten by four assailants after he refused a panhandler's request.
- A state water commissioner said the feds might pre-empt some Texas water rights if urban and rural areas don't settle their lawsuit over the Edwards Aquifer.

"Then every person in Texas loses," said Commissioner John Birdwell.

- A Texas A&M survey indicates Texas children between ages 4 to 12 are saving more money, about 30 percent from work, gifts and allowances.

That's more than their parents save, and higher than the 11 percent indicated by the '85 survey.

- Texas A&M at Galveston topped the state's increase in enrollment for the second straight year.

- Texas ranked 30th among the states in non-farm personal income growth, up 7.7 percent from the year before, said U.S. Department of Commerce officials.
- Some insurance companies have asked state district judge Pete Lowry to dismiss antitrust charges filed against them by the attorney general. Mattox said the companies illegally conspired to drive up premium costs for consumers.
- In the lawsuit to shift university resources to the Valley, assistant AG Kevin Hanlon said such a move would harm Hispanics, since most do not live along the border.
- The Texas Supreme Court voted 5-4 to reverse lower courts and ordered a trial to allow a man to prove he was illegally fired from a company seeking to avoid paying him pension benefits. Lower courts had upheld an "employment-at-will" condition for the company.

Every newspaper -- every small newspaper, anyway -- receives Barbara Thompson's Free Filler Service which is chocked full of little items Barbara, at least, thinks our readers would enjoy. They're free to use, and only a few of them contain hidden commercial messages.

The best thing about Barbara's fillers is the little ones of often strange, often little known facts of the world. Here are some examples:

- The average hippopotamus is faster than a world-class human sprinter.
- To clean eyeglasses without streaks, use a drop of vinegar on each lens.
- Before about 1800, there were no separately designed shoes for right and left feet.
- The customary Christmas Eve dish in Italy is roast eel.
- If starch sticks to the bottom of the iron, let the iron cool and apply paste silver polish. Then wipe with a damp cloth and dry.
- Ballots made of broken pottery were used by the citizens of Ancient Athens to get rid of unpopular politicians. Whenever 6,000 or more were cast, the official was sent into exile for 10 years.
- The Welch national flower is the leek -- a vegetable that closely resembles the onion.
- Your fingernails grow faster on the hand you favor.
- Keep heavy oven mitts near the freezer to wear when you hunt for items.
- Winston Churchill had twin beds, and when he couldn't fall asleep in one, he would move to the other.

Sattler's vehicle came to rest east bound in a ditch on the south side of State Highway 16. Her car was heavily damaged with the roof dented and hatchback and front windshield broken out. Nine persons arrested in 'quiet' police week

Bandera County sheriff Steve Forest reported a fairly quiet week with little criminal activity, with five arrests by the sheriff's department and four by Bandera city police officers last week.

Darrell Wayne Polasek, 24, of Jourdanton, was arrested Oct. 25 and charged with assault.

Peace Justice Preston Boggs of Lakehills ruled death by suicide in the Oct. 24 shooting death of Raul Perales, 25, a Mexican national who had been living and working as a rock mason in the Lakehills area under a work permit issued by the U.S. Department of Immigration and Naturalization.

Forest reported a total of 19 indictments, including 12 indictments on burglary-related charges, were handed down Monday by a Bandera County grand jury. At press time, the indictments had not been processed through the Bandera County clerk's office and given to the sheriff's department so that warrants could be served.

District Judge Steve Ables said pre-trial hearings in most of the cases were to be held Thursday, Nov. 2 at 9 a.m.

Jury selected

A district court jury of seven men and five women was selected Tuesday, Oct. 31 after a selection process that began Monday.

The jury was to spend Tuesday and Wednesday hearing the civil court divorce case of Tommy Joe Phillips and Rhonda Mae Phillips.

Jurors selected included Robert B. O'Dell, William Lloyd George Jr., Kevin Fitzpatrick, Frances Laskowski, Theresa Evans, William A. Bates, Susan Montague, Nolan Glenn Metz, John Wesley Ross, Lonny Raymond Hurley, Joyce Watts, and Linda Beschle.

Jury candidates not selected this week may be called to appear again Nov. 15 if a change of venue is decided in a Boerne civil case, according to district judge Steve Ables. District court will convene in Kendall County Nov. 14, and if an impartial jury cannot be found, the trial will move to Bandera and potential jurors interviewed.

The public is welcome Monday, Nov. 6, to hear Tom Fitzsimmons, financial advisor at Shearson Lehman Hutton, speak to the Bandera Optimist Club at 7:30 p.m. at the Bandera Inn.

Williams names Bandera man

Gary Johnston of Bandera has been named county coordinator for the gubernatorial campaign of Republican Clayton Williams, the candidate announced this week.

Johnston is a former president of the Bandera County Chamber of Commerce and is an employee of the state highway department in San Antonio.

"Gary will work with the volunteers in his county to build this campaign's grass roots support," said Williams, a Midland businessman who says he has started 26 companies in Texas that created more than 100,000 jobs in 50 cities.

Johnston can be reached at 796-3397, Williams' office said.

Tommy Dee

Tommy Dee, 78, of Bandera, a pioneer broadcaster who originated popular radio shows in the 1940s, died Thursday, Oct. 19, in U.S. Veteran's Hospital in Kerrville.

A resident of Bandera for the past 12 years, Dee was a popular figure on radio station WSBT in South Bend, Ind., where he originated a couple of radio quiz programs in the 1940s, hosted an outdoors program and a variety of musical programs, including a post-rock n' roll show that first aired in 1958.

He started his radio career at KTSA in San Antonio before becoming a news announcer in 1938 in Indiana. Except for military service during World War II and a 17-month leave of absence taken in Texas for his daughters health in the 1940s, he spent virtually his entire career in South Bend, retiring in 1973.

Survivors include Betty Jane Hay Dee; a daughter, Patti Hopton of Moorestown, N.J.; two sisters, Edith Atkinson of San Antonio and Cecilia Callahan of Seaside, Ore.; a brother, Martin Dominguez of San Antonio; two grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

The body was taken to Grimes Funeral Chapel in Bandera for cremation. No services are planned.

Lorenza Flanary

Lorenza Daw Flanary, 77, died Thursday, Oct. 12, at the U.S. Veteran's Hospital in Marlin.

Survivors include a brother, James Flanary of Buffalo; four sisters, Umdola Mitchell of Buffalo, Maurice Sanders of Austin, Louise Dixon of Caldwell, and Essie Clark of Pasadena.

Services were Oct. 13, at the National Cemetery in Houston with the Rev. Erskin Riveire officiating.

Bandera County rancher Raymond Hicks, above, was presented the "Friend of 4-H" award, and Buddy Wells, left, was named outstanding adult leader at the Bandera County 4-H banquet Saturday, Oct. 21 at Grace Lutheran Church. 4-H members Kevin Butts and Bradley Floyd were also honored at the event.

Kevin Butts, Brad Floyd get top 4-H awards

4-H members Kevin Butts and Bradley Floyd and adult leaders Buddy Wells and Raymond Hicks were among those honored at the Bandera County 4-H Awards Banquet Saturday, Oct. 21, at Grace Lutheran Church Hall.

Floyd and Butts were named Bandera's Gold Star winners, and both were honored recently at the District 13 4-H Gold Star luncheon in Uvalde.

"The 4-H gold star award is the highest county achievement [illegible] Bandera County extension agent Jan Bryson. "Recipients of this award are chosen on the basis of personal development, leadership, outstanding achievement in projects and activities and contributions to the overall county 4-H program."

Floyd, 15, in his six years in 4-H has won first in district public speaking and with his beef project record book. He has served as the president and vice president of the Pipe Creek 4-H club, and as the vice chairman of the county Executive Club.

He showed the grand champion steer at the 1989 Bandera County Junior Livestock Show.

Butts, 17, has been in 4-H for nine years. He has served as reporter and treasurer of the Pipe Creek 4-H Club and as County Council delegate. His family conducts research with their 300 rabbits, and his rabbits placed third at the state competition and Kevin placed second in district record book judging.

Wells was named outstanding adult leader, and Hicks was given the "Friend of 4-H" award.

"The Outstanding Adult Leader award is given each year to show the 4-H club's appreciation to an individual who has shown outstanding service to 4-H," Bryson said. "This award is voted on and chosen by secret ballot by the 4-H members all across the county."

A sheep and goat project leader in the Medina area, Wells also helps with numerous other 4-H activities. He has been a director of the county junior livestock show, and is currently serving as the Bandera County Livestock Show superintendent.

"The Friend of 4-H award is given each year by the Bandera County 4-H to a business or individual who has been an outstanding supporter of 4-H through financial, time, facilities and other types of 'more than asked for' support," Bryson explained. "Nominations are made for this award [illegible] on by the 4-H membership across the county."

Hicks has been involved in 4-H since its beginning in Bandera County. He has served as leader and supporter of the 4-H in many capacities, and continues to serve as assistant superintendent of the steers at the yearly show. He donates the use of his ranch facilities for 4-H functions and other youth-oriented activities. He also works with the San Antonio Livestock Show.

Project record books award winners included Floyd, beef; Butts, rabbits; Shannon Cowsert, clothing and textiles; Julie Ruede, foods and nutrition; Mary Schmidt, horses; and Charlie Butcher, market goats.

Jane Dry, president of the district 4-H adult leaders association was the featured speaker at the banquet.

Medina's Orchard restaurant started as community project

By Larry T. Williams
Bulletin Staff Writer

Medina now has a new "orchard" for folks to visit in search of good things to eat.

However, hungry folks that visit The Orchard Eating Establishment will find far more than just apples to select from, and the only picking required will be what one chooses from an ever-changing menu.

Owners Janice and Wayne Kennemer agree that their goal is "to serve the finest food in the Hill Country" and present it to their customers in a "relaxed and comfortable setting." Their menu reflects their goal.

Typical entree selections offered by the new restaurant include chicken-fried steak, shrimp fettucini, red snapper, pepper steak and pasta primavera. Other choices on the menu range from hamburgers and enchiladas to tournedos of axis deer with a price range from $3.95 for week-day lunches to $15 for a weekend dinner, so there is something to please nearly everyone's taste and pocketbook.

Presiding over the fine food department is Laurie C. Payne, a certified three-star chef who received her education from the Culinary Institute of America in New York and also the Cordon Bleu in London. She served her externship in Spain and has owned resturants in Houston and Hawaii.

The Orchard is the result of a group effort to re-establish a "good place to eat in Medina," according to Medina Texas Development Corporation member Baxter Adams.

Adams says that 40 persons bought $500 shares in the business in order to purchase the building and equipment from its former owner. Then the restaurant was sold to the Kennemers under conditions favorable to them to try and help establish the business firmly.

"We plan to offer a changing daily menu of healthful, made-from-scratch dishes created from local ingredients when available," says Kennemer. Of course, local ingredients around Medina include apples and those are featured in home-baked apple pies made by Tootie Fagan.

For a-la-mode fans, the Orchard can top those slabs of pie with scoops of Blue Bell ice cream served from an old-fashioned soda fountain.

The Kennemers plan an outdoor serving area in the future and will also start serving barbecue from an outdoor pit soon.

The orchard is open for lunch from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday and again for dinner from 5 p.m. to around 10 p.m.

Stockyards seeks pioneers for photo

Union Stock Yards in San Antonio is seeking anyone "who ever had any involvement with the stockyards" to be part of a commemorative photograph to be taken at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday, Nov. 8, by Goldbeck Studios.

"We are especially pleased to have this opportunity to show our gratitude to all the ranchers and employees of the stockyards, both past and present, and (employees) of all the commission companies who have helped us make it through this first 100 years," said stockyards president Carlton Hagelstein Jr.

"This picture will represent a milestone in the company's history," he said.

The photograph will be made available to anyone wishing to purchase one, Hagelstein said.

Maples

Payne, and officials are expecting a long and colorful display, according to park official Patsy Greaves.

Lost Maples State Natural Area, located in western Bandera County on the Sabinal River, is five miles north of Vanderpool, on Ranch Road 187.

The area was designated a National Natural Landmark by the Heritage Conservation and Reclamation Service in 1980, but the lands were purchased by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Service in 1973 and 1974 to preserve and perpetuate this outstanding and scenic natural resource.

Development of the park has been consistent with conservation goals, and park manager Roy Heideman reports that recent improvements include electrical hookups added to the 30 campsites, and shade shelters built over the campsite picnic tables. Campsites are available for daytime and overnight use.

The day-use area consists of 20 picnic sites, parking spaces and a restroom. For more extended visits, there are two types of camping.

Some 30 general camping areas designed for RV and trailer use include electrical hook-up, dump station and restroom and shower facilities.

Eight primitive camping areas, where no vehicles are permitted, offer campers a more rustic experience using a backpack and hiking shoes.

The park's headquarters are open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. weekends. Day use permits are $2 per vehicle and are good until 10 p.m. There is no charge to senior citizens for daytime use of the park.

Currently general camping is $9 per night, plus vehicle entrance fee. Primitive camping is $4 per night plus vehicle entrance fee.

Reservations are strongly recommended, according to Heideman, who said that weekend conditions at the park are extremely crowded, as campsites and facilities are limited.

Weekday visits are recommended whenever possible.

For more information, call 966-3413.

The staging area near the trailhead has 20 parking spaces and the park has 10.5 miles of trails. Activities include picnicking, camping, hiking, nature walks, bird watching and sightseeing.

Bigtooth maples (Acer grandidentatum) are close relatives of the celebrated sugar maples of commerce. The brilliance of this natural event depends on weather conditions in September and October. Adequate rainfall, cool, crisp nights and plenty of sunshine during this period will assure a spectacular blaze of red, yellow and orange the first half of each November.

The maple groves along the Sabinal River are the easiest to see, but visitors claim that the harder-to-reach stands in Hale's Hollow and along Can Creek and Dry Can Creek are the more rewarding.

A fishing license is required for fishing in Lost Maples park, and it is about a one-mile hike to the fishing sites in the park.

Meeting planned in San Antonio on proposed rural highway system

A public meeting concerning a proposed rural highway system encompassing all of Texas will be held in San Antonio Thursday, Nov. 2. The meeting will be one of 10 throughout the state to gain input from interested citizens about the plan.

The rural system is designed for the entire state and construction projects will be in just about every place in Texas, says Jim Randall, engineering specialist with the state highway department in Austin. "We are trying to establish in the state of Texas an analogous system to the federal interstate highway system," he says.

The rural system will be based on connectivity and will link the major urban areas. "This is a rural system designed to link urban areas in the state," says Al Luedecke, transportation planning engineer for the highway department. "The goal is to provide enhanced mobility for rural areas with a network of four-lane or wider divided roadways."

Rather than build new roads, the highway department would improve the present highways. "We would upgrade existing roads to four-lane or better. No new highways are planned," says Randall.

The department seeks to have four-lane or better roads with cities of 20,000 population or more on the system. Cities with a population of 5,000 to 20,000 would be within 25 miles of the system.

Also connected would be principal deep water ports, major gateways from Mexico, and principal arterials from the four surrounding states.

The current interstate system will be part of the rural system.

The 30 to 40 year project would not require additional funding, but rather would reprioritize the department's present highway funding, says Randall.

The proposed system is about 9,000 miles with one-third in place with the interstate system, another third of rural roads already four-lane or better. "We are looking at 3,000 miles of highway to upgrade," says Randall.

The scheduled public meetings are for input from Texas citizens. "The department has looked at it from a technical outlook. The public meetings will help the department discover things they missed in the establishment of the system," says Randall.

Luedecke says the meetings will continue through mid-November. Eight meetings were scheduled originally, he says, in McAllen on Nov. 14 and in Longview on Nov. 16.

Thursday's meeting will be at the Holiday Inn, Airport, 77 N.E. Loop 410, San Antonio, Texas, 1-349-9900. Leudecke says detailed maps on the system will be displayed, and staff planners from the department will be available to answer questions.

The meeting will begin at 8:30 a.m. and testimony will be heard until noon.

There is presently a map of the system that will be available at the meeting and the project will go before the highway commission in a public meeting Jan. 1990. In March, 1990 the commission will formerly adopt the system, says Randall.

VOTE
General Election November 7, 1989

Vote ☑ for Confirmation of the Springhills Water Management District

Vote ☑ for Norman Hicks Mansfield, Candidate for Director

The Water District was created by the Texas Legislature subject to confirmation by the voters in Bandera County in this election. This is a joint underground water conservation district and surface water district formed to make and enforce rules for conserving, preserving, protecting, recharging, and preventing the waste of surface water. The nine directors of the district will also serve as directors on the present river authority. With the establishment of locally controlled water district, the county will be protected from outside influences wishing to expand and tap into Bandera's water source.

Norman Hicks Mansfield

Candidate for Director of Proposed Water District

Qualified in many ways to represent the residents of Bandera County:

Born in Bandera, reared on a ranch at Tarpley

Educated in Bandera County and Texas A&M University

Registered professional engineer (petroleum)

Business owner for 30 years (oilfield equipment)

Permanent resident in Bandera County past 12 years

A family tradition of public service in Bandera County for 130 years. Thank you for voting and for your vote.

21 constitutional amendments on Tuesday's ballot

Bandera County voters will go to the polls Tuesday, Nov. 7, to either approve or reject the formation of a new water control district with taxing power and to ratify or reject 21 proposed constitutional amendments.

Ten polling places in Bandera County will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. and new electronic vote counters will be used for the first time.

Besides voting "aye" or "no" on the Springhills Water Management District, a county-wide agency with taxing power that will replace the Bandera County River Authority, voters will elect nine water district directors from among 17 hopefuls to govern the new district.

The new water district will have both surface water and underground water responsibilities. The river authority had only surface water powers.

Few of the proposed Constitutional amendments have drawn much attention from voters, though there has been some vocal opposition to one changing the method increasing the pay of members of the legislature.

Amendment No. 1 on the Nov. 7 ballot would limit the pay of legislators to one-fourth of the governor's salary, which would mean approximately $23,000 a year. Legislators now are paid $7,200 per year.

Passage of the proposal would mean members could raise their own pay without actually voting on it by simply raising the pay of the governor.

Former Gov. John Connally and former Mayor Henry Cisneros of San Antonio have joined forces to head a committee promoting the passage of Amendment No. 1.

Here is a brief description of the remaining 21 ballot proposals:

- No. 2 would authorize an additional $500 million of Texas water development bonds.

Proponents say the state urgently needs funding for additional water supply, water quality and flood control projects while opponents say new bonds are not needed because there are $1 billion in unissued bonds.

- No. 3 authorizes bonds for development and production of Texas products and businesses.

Proponents said the financing is critically needed to fuel the state's economic recovery, but opponents maintain financing private businesses should be a private matter.

- No. 4 would exempt from property taxes certain property of nonprofit veterans organizations.

Those for this proposal say veterans deserve property tax relief and that many groups are struggling to pay ever-increasing taxes on their buildings. American Legion Post 157 in Bandera has been vocal in its support of this measure.

Opponents say that the amendment merely shifts the tax burden to other groups, many of which also deserve property tax relief, not tax increases.

- No. 5 would exempt from property taxation certain personal property temporarily in the state for assembling, storing, manufacturing or processing.

Proponents say it will be a tax incentive that will encourage economic development, but others call it just another tax shift that will discriminate against other types of businesses.

- No. 6 increases terms of hospital district board members to six years.
- No. 7 makes technical changes in the oaths of office prescribed for some elected officials.
- No. 8 would authorize general obligation bonds to finance expansion of prisons and mental health and mental retardation institutions.

Opponents point out that relying on bonded indebtedness may lead to financial problems in the future, while proponents say the bonds are needed to comply with federal court orders and avoid costly penalties.

- No. 9 authorizes combining into one agency all agencies of the state that set policies for imprisonment, probation and parole of criminals.

Proponents say each of these functions affects the other two and consolidation would improve coordination, planning and accountability. Opponents say the separate agencies act as a system of checks and balances.

- No. 10 would permit or require courts to inform juries about the effect of good conduct time and eligibility for parole on the period of incarceration served by a defendant convicted of a criminal offense.

Proponents say juries are often influenced by their perceptions that are based on misconceptions and that this amendment would lead to more rational sentences because jurors will be given precise information.

Opponents say the amendment will only confuse jurors and will become a contradiction with standing provisions that jurors not consider the extent to which parole and good conduct time will affect the particular defendant.

- No. 11 would increase the per diem (daily expense allowance) paid legislators, now limited to $30 per day, to equal the maximum allowed a legislator as a deduction for living expenses on federal income tax returns.

Opponents say this would increase per diem to $81 per day and they criticize the mechanism that would remove voter approval over future increases. Proponents point out that only 14 states pay their legislators less.

- No. 12 would authorize use of the principal and income of the permanent school fund to guarantee bonds issued to help school districts build new schools.

Proponents point out that it would save school districts a significant amount of money by lowering the districts' costs of borrowing. Opponents say the amendment is not needed because the existing bond guarantee program is fully available following recent changes in the application of federal arbitrage regulations.

- No. 13 would guarantee certain rights to victims of crimes, including a role in the prosecution of the accused.

Proponents say it will send a message to criminals that victims and their rights are of importance in the criminal justice system, but opponents say it is unnecessary because the rights of crime victims are already protected by statutory law.

- No. 14 would apply to the term of office for a district attorney in Fort Bend County only.

While the provision may be convenient for the people of Fort Bend County, opponents maintain that making an exception for a single district attorney defeats statewide uniformity of electing all DAs at the same general election.

- No. 15 would authorize the legislature to permit and regulate raffles conducted by certain nonprofit organizations for charitable purposes. Such raffles are now illegal.

Opponents fear the amendment would lead to increased public acceptance of legalized gambling and it would be, like current bingo law, complicated, difficult to enforce, and often abused.

Proponents say such raffles are currently being conducted for charitable and not-so-charitable reasons in clear violation of the law, and DAs seldom prosecute. That undermines public respect for all laws, they say.

This amendment, proponents maintain, would allow well-controlled raffles for worthy causes.

- No. 16 would allow the legislature to authorize the creation of hospital districts by general or special law, instead of case-by-case constitutional amendments.

Proponents say creating a hospital district is a local matter and the legislature need not be involved every time a locality wants to adopt, change or abolish a district.

Opponents say health care is a statewide issue that requires statewide coordination.

- No. 17 authorizes the state to provide grants and loans and other financial aid to local fire departments.

Proponents say adequate fire protection is a public necessity that should not be denied to areas with inadequate resources to acquire expensive but necessary

17 candidates on Water Management District ballot

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Travis Redman, Phil Tobin, Craig A. Tips, and Don E. Karr of Bandera; Paul Garrison Jr. and Morgan Cox of Medina; and Phil Becker of Tarpley are seven of the 17 candidates on the Tuesday, Nov. 7, ballot in Springhills Water Management District director election.

Write-in candidates are allowed on the ballot, says the secretary of state's office. Candidates do not have to file as write-in candidates as they do in state, county, and school board elections, but can have their names written in by the voters and the votes are to be counted.

Craig A. Tips

Craig A. Tips, 64, of Bandera, currently a pecan grower and processor is a retired geologist with 30 years experience.

Bandera County needs a water district to keep and protect its water for the citizens of Bandera County, says Tips. "The large cities of Texas desire the water of the rural areas for the growth, and city taxation would be inflicted upon Bandera County" if other areas gain control of Bandera County's water, he says.

If the water district is approved, Tips would want the district to host a public meeting after the election to determine the methods needed to conserve the local water supply.

"I feel that water is a critical issue facing the citizens of Bandera County," says Tips.

Tips is a registered professional engineer and has a bachelor of science degree in engineering from Rice University and has a bachelor of science degree in geology from the University of Texas.

Tips has six years experience in well logging and 30 years experience as a geologist and analyst with Sun Oil Company.

He has taught petroleum geology at the University of Texas at Dallas.

Tips also has a master's degree in business administration, which he says will be helpful in the management of the business operations of the district.

Tips is presently secretary-treasurer of the Bandera County River Authority.

Phil Becker

Phil Becker, 58, of Tarpley is a general contractor and rancher and presently the chairman of the Bandera County River Authority.

Becker feels the county needs the combined surface and underground water district that would be provided by the Springhills Water Management District, because the water in the county should be protected and conserved by the people of the county, not someone from outside the county. "It's the people of this county's responsibility to take care of their natural resources. Water is the most valuable resource we have," he says.

Becker sees the goals of the district as protecting the surface and underground water, but also to get the people involved in the protection.

The public needs to be educated on water use and quality because the public is the user of the resource, says Becker. "Citizens should be better informed about ground water-related responsibilities and programs of state agencies and about citizens' opportunities to participate in ground water protection activities and to influence policy making," he says.

The district needs to identify the water wells in the county and determine their depth. If there is a problem with a well in the future, the information gathered can help determine the extent of the problem, how it would effect others and what can be done to the well with the problem.

The district also needs to work closely with the city of Bandera for its immediate and future needs.

Becker says people don't need to worry about the district controlling their household wells, as those rights are protected by

Becker has worked with the Texas Water Commission and the Texas Water Development Board, as well as other river authorities and underground water districts.

Becker also has experience working with the legislature through his membership in the Association of Contractors.

Phillip Tobin

Phillip Tobin, 39, of Bandera is a rancher and he says the Springhills Water Management District, to be confirmed or rejected by voters Tuesday, will give the people of Bandera County the right to protect all surface and underground water in the county.

"I foresee the need for a county-wide district to protect this precious resource (water)," he says.

Tobin, a full-time rancher, says, "I know how precious water is to my livelihood and to my neighbors."

Tobin has experience with irrigation of crops. "For 20 years, I have worked on the some of the heaviest irrigated farms in Frio County and I have first-hand knowledge of the importance of underground and surface water to the survival of a county," he says.

The district should set as its goal to protect the county's water supply from pollution, says Tobin. The district should also make certain any major real estate development in Bandera County gives consideration to water conservation.

Tobin is the first assistant fire chief of the Bandera Volunteer Fire Department and he is the state coordinator for certification of members of volunteer fire departments in Bandera County.

Tobin is also a board member of the county Farm Bureau committee.

Morgan Cox

Morgan Cox, 68, of Medina is currently a rancher and a retired investment banker.

Cox says the Springhills Water Management District will give the county's citizens a stronger to defend its water rights against any possible takeover.

The district needs to "protect and preserve the county's surface and underground water sources from being confiscated and to preserve what we have along with maintaining a pure, clean source, he said.

The district, if confirmed by voters Nov. 7, needs to continue the daily awareness the different governing bodies in the county have of each other's effect on the county's water supply.

The new district, which would have management authority on both underground and surface water, should continue protecting the county's water resources as the Bandera River Authority has begun.

Cox says he has the experience in local government affairs and the time to work on the board of directors.

Cox says this dry year has surely prompted an awareness of the value of water in the county's citizens.

Cox is a newly appointed director to the Bandera County River Authority.

Paul Garrison Jr.

Paul Garrison Jr., 58, of Medina has been a full-time farmer and rancher since 1960.

Garrison says the purpose of the Springhills Water Management District is to prevent surrounding areas from taking charge of Bandera County's water.

"I feel that the preservation of the water in the county is of the utmost importance," says Garrison.

The district should have as its first goal to protect the county's water rights by first getting the district recognized as a legitimate district.

However, the district does not need to get involved beyond the minimum it needs to do, says Garrison.

Garrison has gained first-hand experience in surface water permitting by obtaining a permit for irrigation and a dam on his own ranch. This has gained him

Water Commission. He says he has an excess of 20 years experience in irrigation business.

Garrison has a bachelor of science in vocational agriculture and is a member of the Bandera County River Authority board of directors.

Garrison was born and raised in the county.

Don E. Karr

Don E. Karr, 56, of Bandera is a telecommunication business consultant and investor and a retired army colonel.

The water district is vital to Bandera County if it is to control its future growth and development, says Karr.

The new Springhills Water Management District gives Bandera County a single control point and voice for its water development activities, not the City of San Antonio or Edwards Underground Water District, says Karr. "If we can control our water, we can control our future," he says.

The combined surface and underground water district, if approved by the voters, should have the same goals the Bandera County River Authority has developed over the past four years: developing a water plan for Bandera County, obtaining water rights and maintaining our very unique high-quality water, says Karr. The district should also plan for and assist in the development of rural water systems, he says. "All of this will be done with the landowners' and taxpayers' concerns and rights upheld and defended," says Karr.

As the first task the proposed district undertakes, it needs to develop, by means of a professional study, a practical and reasonable water development plan for Bandera County. "Such a plan must call for our preventing the sale of Medina Lake water, to the EUWD, if we are not already too late," says Karr.

Karr says he has spent the last four years on the Bandera County River Authority working for the development of a single water the county will have only one overhead and taxing authority concerned with water.

Karr says he believes very strongly that those that have served as directors of the river authority can apply their efforts to building a new district with less of a learning curve than directors that have not served on the river authority, board. "Now is not the time to change horses, but rather to move on and hopefully begin to accomplish some of our common goals," he says.

Karr has 26 years of U.S. Army training and experience in planning and command and control functions and has served as a director of the Bandera County River Authority.

Karr says he also brings financial and business administrative skills from owning and operating businesses and serving as a bank director. He also has knowledge from several years of personal work with the Texas Public Utility and Texas Water Commission.

In Karr's years of government service, he says he has dealt with very large projects under diverse and complex regulations, as well as "The experience of working with boards and committees where one must stand and be counted, but must also be willing to continue to work toward a common goal."

Karr says he also has experience in the development of budgets and comptroller functions gained from both business and government service.

"The people of Bandera County have the opportunity to control their own future with the approval of the Springhills Water Management District and the election of the first directors. I believe this could be one of the most significant vote many of us will make for several years and urge you to think about whom you elect, for that will establish the philosophy and future of the district," says Karr.

Opponents say fire protection is traditionally a local responsibility and should remain so.

• No. 18 allows the legislature to authorize the Texas Water Development Board to issue agricultural water conservation bonds.

Proponents say water continues to be a critical and limited resource and every means must be used to promote its conservation, and it would make the present water conservation loan program operate more efficiently.

Opponents say other state and federal governmental programs already are in place to finance agricultural water programs.

• No. 19 would allow certain investments by counties, cities, towns or other political corporations or subdivisions.

Opponents say it would encourage risky investments of public funds and would become a drain on local banks and savings institutions where public funds are currently invested.

Proponents say the amendment would make it possible for political subdivisions to increase the return on local investments and to find investments that would better meet their cash flow requirements.

• No. 20 would abolish the position of county surveyor in seven counties, and it must be approved statewide and in the individual counties concerned.

Proponents say residents of the counties involved should decide this issue while opponents say abolition of the office will mean the voters of those counties will lose a measure of control over affairs of county government.

• No. 21 would authorize $75 million in general obligation bonds to finance student loan programs and to encourage the public to save money for college.

Proponents say it is imperative that the state establish and support programs to aid students paying for a college education because federal financial aid to students is likely to decrease. They say a well-educated citizenry will enhance economic development in the state.

Opponents say the amendment will further strain the state's credit and that there are more financially appealing investments available for persons saving for a college education.

By Peggy Tobin

Like most people, we tend to do chores and cope with crises without getting out of well-worn grooves. Our home groove runs from kitchen sink to typewriter via the clothes washer. The travelling groove runs into town to drop off the cleaning at Stein's, goes back to Main Street, turns the corner to Boyle's and then heads for Kerrville. For several years we had a wider loop running down to Joanna Parrish's antique co-op in Comfort. We sometimes varied the routine by going through Elm Pass to Center Point before hitting Highway 27. Try going that way, the road is another historic trail to the Guadalupe, guarded a century ago by Policarpo Rodriguez in his stone fort on Privilege Creek. There are enough elm trees left in the narrow part of the pass to explain the name of the place. A persistent legend says that ambushed Spanish carretas dumped treasure there, but landowners probably don't welcome prospectors.

A recent urge to look at the parts of the county to which the daily grind does not direct us led down the river toward Medina Lake. Scenic state roads make it easy to follow the river to Medina and up the two prongs. Following the river downstream is impossible. The old road from English Crossing always took an upland shortcut to a crossing back of the present Chevrolet dealership which we used to ford to go visit Ben Pyka in his little rock house across the river.

So we wound back and forth and in and out of subdivision roads to find river and lake vistas, starting with an expedition to Wharton's Dock. From there we worked back up to places scattered along the way. No we know where all those people live whom we see in the grocery store and where the political balance of power now is, at least in terms of voting strength around here.

It was good to see that many of the waterside residential developments, especially Bandera Falls and Pebble Beach, show a sensitivity to the unique qualities of the hill country and that so many individual home-owners have blended their little grey homes in the west or their getaway cabins into the landscape with care.

In some other areas, however, we would have to say that the residents would probably be just as happy living on the Houston Ship Channel. And some definitely need to tend to the trash. Well, we all need to do that!

It's hard to believe that not so many years ago, we were leasing some of the same country to run cattle and that the brothers Wright were raising spinach on what was the drouth-dried lakebed on their place near Wharton's Dock.

After gasping at the slicked-off modernity of the commercial development at the intersection of [illegible] Road 37 we found a place that hasn't changed a bit. Reuters Cove, still owned by Mrs. Alfred Haby, looks just as it did during the years of childhood summers we spent there. The little cabin in the cedar brake is still there, looking even smaller now, but the cove looks exactly as it did the summer the lake was so low we could almost walk to The Island. We talked with Mrs. Haby's daughter but forgot to ask if the old wooden rowboats are still there somewhere.

Springhills Water Management District Election

Public education on location and quality of ground water resources is necessary and important because the public is the user of the resource and will derive the benefits from its protection or will bear the burden of its contamination or depletion.

The citizens of Bandera County need to make and should be encouraged to make informed decisions about their water supply.

Citizens should be better informed about ground water-related responsibilities, about citizens opportunities to participate in ground water protection activities and to influence policymaking.

It is the purpose of this election to assure that the local area will determine the best methods for handling underground water problems.

I urge you to vote FOR the Springhills Water Management District in the Nov. 7 election.

Silver Sage Corral

By Manuel Flores

Clowns, goblins, ghosts, witches and things that go bump in the night were much in evidence at the monthly birthday luncheon Tuesday at the Silver Sage Corral. The winners of the best costume contest were Agnes Pouppirt, Mary McCloskey and May Batchelor. The guests of honor were Pastor Frank Pullen of the Baptist Church and Jack and Judy Tripp of the Western Auto Store. More than 80 people were at the buffet luncheon.

• After their morning workout Oct. 23, the exercise class went to the home of Meleese Rugh to have a potluck breakfast, honoring their October birthday gal, Dorothy Callahan.

Last week, three members of the class had cataract surgery. LaVern McClosky on Monday, Meleese Rugh on Tuesday, and Jennie Pauschecke on Wednesday. This will cut down on attendance for a few weeks. the class meets on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings at the Corral from 8:30 to 9:15 a.m.

• Juanita Holleron has volunteered to teach a class in decoupage starting Tuesday, Nov. 7 at 1 p.m. the class will meet once each week. Phone or come by the center to express your interest in this class.

• Tuesday, Nov. 7, is the monthly pancake breakfast. This is the one day that the volunteers of the center get up extra early to make those light, fluffy pancakes, cook crisp bacon, make fresh coffee and thaw frozen orange juice.

• The third in a series of "Meet the Board of Directors" is Marie Holland. Marie and her family are pioneers of Bandera County and I asked her to write a biographical sketch of her life.

• Marie Holland speaks:

Born the second child of Frank J. and Agnes Thanheiser Anderwald and the fourth generation of the early Polish settlers. I graduated from Bandera High School in 1941. The last two years of high school, I worked at the Dixie Dude Ranch and the next summer at Twin Elm Guest Ranch.

After graduation, I worked at different places and jobs. In San Antonio I worked for Sommers Drug Store, Brown Express, Sunset Motor Lines, Frost Bros. and City Public Service.

I moved to Houston and worked for H&NT Transportation and Herrin Motor Lines. I returned to Bandera and worked for the Marrick Ranch and Ranchman Chevrolet Co.

While working here I met my husband, Fletcher Holland who was working for Daily and Hollyfield Construction on FM 470. We were married in September of 1947 and moved to Seguin to work with the construction company.

When that job was over we moved to Tilden, the home town of my husband. We opened a welding shop there for a year or two, then we returned to Bandera where Fletcher worked with my day as a carpenter.

While living here, my mother passed away suddenly of a cerebral hemorrhage.

In 1950 we moved to Alice where Fletcher went to work for Spartan Tool and Service Company and I went to work for Texas State Bank.

In 1951 the service company sold out, and we moved to San Antonio.

Fletcher worked for Kelly Field, Dean Steel and then went towork for the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation for 23 years.

I went to work for Broadway National Bank in 1951 and we both retired January of 1982.

We had planned on traveling after retirement, but Fletcher was sick at the time and after 34 wonderful years of marriage he lost his bout with cancer on March 20, 1982, at the age of 59 years.

In 1972, we had moved to Bandera from Balderde to take care of my dad. We enjoyed eight years with him. He passed away in March of 1980.

Being left with a decision to make as to how I would live my life alone, I decided on volunteer work to be among people.

I started to organize St. Joseph School. Then I became involved with the Senior Citizens Activity Center.

At the time, plans were being made to build a new center and I was appointed finance chairman of that project. We started raising money in 1984 for this project and in April of 1985 the project was completed.

I am a member of St. Stanislaus Catholic Church. I belong to the Altar Society, am president of the social club and on the bingo committee.

I do volunteer work at the Silver Sage Corral, am a board member and chairman of the Boutique, craft class, quilting and pancake breakfast.

I belong to the Bluebonnet Extension Homemakers club, am vice chairman of Bandera County TEHA, president of the American Legion Auxiliary, chairman of the EH Council Program and Education, member of the American Association of Retired Persons, representative to the senior advisory council of the Alamo Area Council of Government in San Antonio, and treasurer of the Bandera County Fair Association.

I have helped with the Chamber of Commerce Hunters Barbecue for the last ten or twelve years.

I enjoy all the different volunteer work that I do. It is reward ing to me to be of some help to people, especially senior citizens.

In 1988 I was awarded a pin for 3,000 hours of volunteer service to the Silver Sage Corral.

A Thought For The Week
By John M. Grimes

Last week we commented on some sage advice on "Being Yourself". We feel that this poem by the late Douglas Malloch sums it up beautifully. We hope you will enjoy it as much as we do...

If you can't be a pine on the top of the hill,
Be a scrub in the valley-but be
The best little scrub by the side of the rill;
Be a bush, if you can't be a tree.
If you can't be a bush, be a bit of the grass,
And some highway happier make;
If you can't be a muskie, than just be a bass-
But the liveliest bass in the lake!
We can't all be captains, we've got to be crew,
There's something for all of us here.
There's big work to do and there's lesser to do
And the task we must do is the near.
If you can't be a highway, then just be a trail,
If you can't be the sun, be a star;
It isn't by size that you win or you fail —
Be the best of whatever you are!

Remember that no two people have been or will ever be the same. Never before, since the beginning of time has there ever been anybody exactly like you and never will be again. So, let's be ourselves and find joy in it.

Bandera square dancers plan hunters' dance

Bandera square dancers will have their annual salute to deer hunting season with a Hunters' Dance Saturday, Nov. 18, at the Bandera Bank Community Room with Richard Lawson calling the square dancing and Paul Westmeyer cueing the round dancing.

The public is invited to the annual event of the Cowboy Capital Squares, a group that does square dancing regularly on the second, fourth and fifth Monday nights of each month at the Bandera Bank.

"Square dancing is good recreation and good family activity," says spokeswoman Eva Harrison of Medina, who is the group's secretary-treasurer. She said members of the Cowboy Capital Squares range in age from 15 to 83 years. "All ages can participate and have a good time together," she says.

Besides their twice- and sometimes thrice-monthly practice sessions, members of the group regularly visit other clubs. Recently members attended square dancing events at Fort Davis, New Braunfels.

The square dancing club has been reorganized and is now run by its officers instead of the caller, Harrison said. Other officers include Wayne Saltzman of Kerrville, president; Jerry Thomas of Kerrville, vice president; and Jean Westmeyer of Pipe Creek, reporter.

"Certainly we're looking for new members," says Harrison. Two to five squares of eight people each are present for their regular meetings, and they include a lot of visitors from Jellystone Park and from Kerrville and Boerne, she said.

Lawson, a Pipe Creek resident, is the group's regular caller, and he's a veteran who is also caller for a Kerrville club and the River City Rascals in San Antonio.

Husband and wife-team exhibiting at museum

A husband-and-wife exhibit of senior citizens Harry and Vivian Webb of Bandera will be featured during November in the Doane's Gallery at the Frontier Times Museum in Bandera.

Landscape artist Vivian Webb will show a group of oils and fiber artist Harry Webb will exhibit works that feature spinning, weaving, rug making and basketry.

Vivian is a retired teacher who says she wasn't able to really pursue her painting until after she retired in 1967. She has attended art classes at Uvalde Community College and studied under Irene Klein, Clay McGaughey, Ann Templeton and Mary Zirkel.

Harry is a former hospital administrator and is retired from the U.S. Air Force. Largely self-taught, he has studied weaving with Fay Drozd, spinning at the Hill Country Arts Foundation and the San Antonio Art Guild, and basket making with Bill Phelps.

His weaving covers 4- and 8-harness looms, inkle weaving and card weaving, and he uses saxony and castle spinning wheels. His rugs are primitive hooked and oriental hooked and his favorite basket is the Cherokee double wall.

Webb has taught weaving at the Silver Sage Corral senior citizens center in Bandera for the past two years.

He will demonstrate spinning at the museum from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Nov. 4, weaving on Nov. 11, rug making on Nov. 18, and basket making on Nov. 25.

The Frontier Times Museum is open from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students.

Texas Arbor Day changed from January to April in 1990

Texans wanting to help overcome the global warming trend by planting more trees will want to be aware of a new Arbor Day date, April 27, 1990.

Dr. Michael Walterscheidt, forester with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says the state's Arbor Day will be celebrated next April 27, the last Friday of April as a result of a resolution passed by the Texas legislature and signed by Gov. Bill Clements.

Texans had previously observed Arbor Day the third Friday of January.

"Having Arbor Day in April allows trees to be planted by Texas residents when the trees are readily available for purchase from local outlets. The April Arbor Day date also coincides with attempts to establish a national Arbor Day," Walterscheidt says.

He says the 1989 Congress established the last Friday in April for National Arbor Day, but each year the bill has to be introduced and hopefully a permanent National Arbor Day will be established soon.

Walterscheidt says that because of a wide range of climatic regions in Texas, it has been difficult to establish one date for Arbor Day that is suitable for the entire state.

"Some trees are planted bare-root and the April date would be too late for seedlings. However, some homeowners plant trees grown in containers and these are readily available for April planting," he says.

Walterscheidt says agencies and organizations that work closely with trees in Texas have suggested that the state celebrate an "Arbor Season," beginning on the last Friday of January (the old Arbor Day) and ending on the new Arbor Day.

"Then trees could be planted throughout the Arbor Season, with bare-root trees being planted in January and February and container-grown trees planted in March and April. Then Arbor season could close with an April ceremony recognizing all the trees planted from January through April," he says.

Arbor Day has been observed continuously in Texas since 1889, when it was initiated at Temple, he says. But Nebraska was the first state to observe such a date as early as 1872.

Friday, the biggest benefit barbecue of the year, the Hunters' Barbecue, is one in which everyone pitches in to make it an extravaganza.

Randy MacNaughton and the Hill Toppers will donate their toe-tapping music and Dusty Britches will be fiddlin' away.

I hope the Hill Toppers start out as they did last year with "Pretty Redwing." To me, it always recalls old times.

And I know Dusty will have his share of funny, off-the-wall comments.

I'll bet the chamber will accept you as a volunteer even if you haven't contacted them yet. Call Nancy at the chamber office (796-4312) right away if you want to be part of the wonderful time volunteers have working in the serving lines, the ticket table, greeting guests, and helping the honorable Tom Grant, justice of the peace, at the cutting and weighing end of it.

• Have you noticed the three old buildings that have been moved to empty land on State Highway 16 just this side of Pipe Creek?

James McCall and family have renovated the old buildings to make some pretty nice flea market spaces. He says he has plenty of "off the road" buyers, and I can believe it by the way traffic is booming up and down that road, but he needs more sellers.

When the traffic to the race track gets going, they will boom out there.

• The state needs to put a "Lost Maples This-a-way" sign at Main and Cypress streets (Bandera Bank), because merchants sure do get asked, "Where's Lost Maples?"

People are pouring out there this year, and many stop to "catch" Bandera, Pipe Creek, Medina and Tarpley on their way out or back. For all of us, "Thanks, Lost Maples."

• There's a new business opening this weekend on Main Street next to Margie's Beauty Salon offering gourmet coffees, teas and pastries. It's a real tea shoppe. Stoppe by and welcome Lynne and Annette and at least smelle the goodies.

• I see by last week's Bulletin the deer population has reached 30,000. As a county of only 10,000 souls, we'd better watch out for any signs of "people stands."

• Sign at Mini Mart No. 1 (Lucky) 13 in Kerrville, placed. I hope with tongue in cheek: "Until morale has improved, the beatings will continue. (signed) The management."

Parenting workshop planned Tuesday

"Help for parents," a video-based active parenting workshop, will be held Tuesday evenings from 7-8 p.m. Nov. 7 through Dec. 12 at Bandera United Methodist Church.

Free child care will be available, and an active parenting handbook will provided at the program presented by Barbara Fuller, facilitator at the Phoenix Center.

For more information, call the church office at 796-3849.

Turkey supper is a tradition

St. Victor's Chapel Annual Turkey Supper, which will be held Saturday, Nov. 4, began in the mid-1950s when residents turned to community for support to start a Catholic chapel in Lakehills.

The chapel had originally been an old rock store that had served as a general store, beer joint, restaurant, and dance hall.

Parishioners, tired of the long drive to Bandera for church services, donated money and labor and got the renovation moving.

The fall hunter's turkey supper began with much of the food cooked in the homes of parishioners and the meal served in the chapel itself.

Today, the church has a kitchen and a dining hall, but continues the tradition of the hunter's supper.

Serving will start at 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 4, with turkey, cornbread dressing, and all the trimmings.

Miss BHS Amie Nightingale gets a kiss from Mr. BHS Scott Emmons at Friday's Homecoming festivities

Amie, Scott crowned

Brett Emmons and Amie Nightingale were crowned Mr. and Miss BHS during half time at the Bandera Homecoming game against Sonora. The event ended a spirit filled week for the Bulldogs.

At the beginning of the week many BHS students dressed to designate days. Monday was Red Ribbon day; Tuesday was cowboy day; Wednesday was college day; Thursday was sweats day; and Friday was the traditional blue and white day.

Other events included the bucket brigade which the seniors won for a fifth year in a row by making over $100.

The town window decorating contest was another big homecoming week event. Future Homemakers of America (FHA) placed first; the junior class placed second; and Teens for Christ placed third.

The Bulldog bonfire on the Thursday before the game was reported to be a big success. Fans showed their spirit and support for the Bulldog team, and cheerleaders and the band gave their full support.

Following the game Friday night, the student council sponsored the Homecoming Dance. Many attended the dance and enjoyed the music and food.

Second Division Rating For BHS Band

The BHS marching band received a second division in marching contest held in Hondo, Oct. 28.

The judges stated that they liked the band's show, and that they marched well, but commented on poor spacing, sound and trumpet problems.

Milton Fox, BHS band director, said that the band did well in contest. He added that he's proud of the Bulldog Band and that he is planning to receive a first division rating next year.

Mr. Fox said he feels the 52 member band would have rated higher if it was larger in size.

The band was directed by drum major Jeanie Paradee at the contest, along with assistant drum major Diane Moeller.

A Drug Awareness Program at the High School auditorium Tuesday, Oct. 24, was part of the Red Ribbon Week activities.

The program was sponsored by Bandera's Positive Peer Reinforcement in Drug Education group (PRIDE).

PRIDE members presented anti-drug skits, "Turn Around" and "Toy Soldiers."

"Turn Around" portrays a student's choice to turn to drugs when things don't go exactly the way they wish.

"Toy Soldiers" shows how one might turn to drugs to be accepted.

PRIDE hopes that this program helped the community realize the real danger of drugs.

Ron Lawson, Texas Department of Public Safety narcotics officer, spoke to the audience about the danger of drugs. He also displayed different kinds of drugs and told of their dangers.

Others who spoke at the program included Helga Hendricks and Misti Morris of the Medina County Family Life Center. They addressed the issue of peer pressure among students.

DPS lists common indications of youthful drug addiction

The Department of Public Safety believes it is important that teachers and parents recognize the common symptoms and signs of drug abuse, according to spokesman Dan Butts.

Many "hard-core" addicts can be rehabilitated if their involvement in drug abuse is detected in its early stages, DPS says.

Common symptoms of drug abuse include the following:

- Changes in school attendance, discipline and grades.
- Change in the character of homework turned in.
- Unusual flare-ups or outbreaks of temper.
- Poor physical appearance.
- Furtive behavior regarding drugs and possessions.
- Wearing of sunglasses at inappropriate times to hide dilated or constricted pupils.
- Long-sleeved shirts worn constantly to hide needle marks.
- Association with known drug abusers.
- Borrowing of money from students to purchase drugs.
- Stealing small items from school.
- Finding the student at odd places during the day such as closets, storage rooms, etc. to take drugs.

Lady Bulldogs beat Cole, finish 4th in district

The Lady Bulldogs defeated the Cole Cougars in the district playoff game to place fourth overall.

It was an overall good game for the Lady Dogs. There was good hitting by Peggy Whitehead, Lisa Wharton, and Christi Parker. Serving was the key to the game. The Lady Dogs finished the district 3-4.

The next weekend the Lady Bulldogs turned around and competed in the District Tournament, unfortunately losing their first game to Cole.

The Lady Bulldogs have two seniors on the team, Christy Parker and Claudia Mosquera. Parker hopes to go on and play vollyball in college.

The Lady Dogs are a young team and have six returning players including Lisa Wharton, Peggy Whitehead, Viola McHorse, Stacy Sides, Carrie Fellows, and Lacey Fellows.

BHS class tours Times

Bandera High School journalism class went on a field trip Oct. 25 to the Kerrville Daily Times newspaper office.

The trip was to show the students how a newspaper goes to press. Because the Times is a daily paper, they have to get information and write their stories within a few hours.

They have newer technology to make the paper a little easier to get out on time. Getting the information and writing, though, can be a difficult task if you can't get hold of your source.

The process on developing pictures for the Times is easier than at school. The Times has a machine that processes pictures quickly. The class was able to watch a photograph become printed in a matter of a few seconds. The trip, as a whole, was to inform the journalism students on a midsized, daily, city newspaper.

One of these activities will be a treasure hunt which will take place in Bandera. A date for the hunt has not yet been set.

The next Teens for Christ meeting will be Saturday, Nov. 4.

The slaves will do jobs such as babysitting, yard work, car washing and house cleaning. Faculty can contact T.A.F.E. sponsor Claire Roberts to buy their slave.

BHS classes write Civil War news

Students in Claire Roberts U.S. history classes turned into Civil War newspaper editors recently, courtesy of an assignment from Mrs. Roberts' student teacher Billy Nabours.

They had to research and write up two stories about the Civil War and then lay them out on construction paper in the design of what a Civil War era newspaper might have looked like.

Mr. Nabours thought it would be a nice change of pace from regular text book instruction and lecture-notes method of teaching. Not only is this to test knowledge of Civil War history and factual historical information but they also used their skills in spelling, writing, reading and overall creativity.

Most of the students performed the work in a satisfactory manner because most of the grades ranged between 80 to 90.

Mr. Nabours says there were some pretty creative front pages that covered the assigned subject which was to write a story about any Civil War battle and a story about any individual in that time period.

They turned these in Oct. 3 after spending three days of the previous week in the Bandera High School library.

Some examples of the students work were on display at Monday's Open House.

Wharton's Dock

By John Ciarlo — 796-3225

Bud Ciarlo is on vacation week and Pat Barker is serving as substitute correspondent.

The first-of-the-month community dinner will be held at Copper Lantern Saturday, Nov. 4, beginning at 7 p.m. Barbecue brisket and sausage will be furnished and attendees are asked to bring a covered dish.

• Tom and Nell King returned from Branson, Mo., where they attended musical shows, all with family themes. They also reported visiting Mouton Hollow Craft Village and Silver Dollar City nearby where they enjoyed arts and crafts, good food and more plays about early settlers.

They then went onto Springfield, through Battlefield National Park and a tour of the Bass Pro Shop which they report was, "a sporteman's paradise." They have returned home and reported lots of wonderful fall colors on the way back.

• Bandera County Commissioner Bennie Barker returned from Audie Murphy Memorial Veterans Administration Hospital in San Antonio after undergoing quadruple bypass surgery to his heart. Bennie reports that it went well. "Its like getting a new engine, I hope it is a V-12 Ferrari," says Barker.

• Wayne and Fran Hildenburg spent a week recently in Colorado where Wayne attended his 45th high school reunion.

From there, they traveled to Europe where they enjoyed a seven-week vacation, visiting their son Steve and his wife Sallie. Steve is a captain in the Air Force stationed at Spangdahlem, Germany.

While in Europe they traveled extensively through 16 different countries. In Germany they saw the grape vineyards of Trier, Carl Marx's birthplace, West Berlin with the Brandenburg Gate, the Berlin Wall, East Berlin (the Soviet Sector), the walled city of Rothenburg, and the remains of World War II German concentration camp Dachau.

At Bertchesgaden they found a German salt mine and visited Hitler's Tea Room, called the "Eagles Nest." They also toured King Ludwig II 1869 Neuschwanstien Castle in Fusson, West Germany.

In the small villages in the Austrian Alps where they toured, most of the hotels and homes were decorated with bright colorful flower boxes hanging from just about every window. There were beautifully decorated cows wearing heavy bells around their necks being marched through the streets from their grazing in the high country to the low lands for the winter.

In Italy, they visited Vatican City in Rome and saw Michelangelo's paintings and sculptures in the Sistine Chapel and St. Peter's Basilica as well as the catacombs and many other historical sites of Rome.

They traveled on to see the ruins of Pompeii, the Isle of Capri and the Leaning Tower of Pisa.

In Paris they saw the Notre Dame Cathedral, the Louvre Museum containing the statues of Winged Victory and Venus de Milo and the Mona Lisa. They also visited the Arch of Triumph, the Eiffel Tower and spent an evening on the Moulin Rouge.

Wade Voight, right, shows how he measures the distance between the shot and the center of the target X at the Lakeshore Volunteer Fire Department Turkey Shoot Saturday, Oct. 28. The closest piece of shot to X of 14 shooters won a turkey. At the 40 yard distance the participants shot, choked shotguns had a minimal, advantage, says Voight.

August retail sales up by 12 percent

By William Wall
Bulletin Austin Bureau

Austin — August retail sales in Bandera were more than 12 percent higher than for August 1988, according to the latest figures released by the state comptroller's office.

The monthly City Sales and Use Tax Comparison Summary also showed that 1989 year-to-date retail sales totals in Bandera increased more than 8 percent.

[illegible] have been sent to 931 cities that impose local sales tax at either one or one-half percent, comptroller Bob Bullock said Friday.

Bandera's share of this month's checks is $9,499, a 12.36 percent increase over last October's payment of $8,454. The city's 1989 year-to-date total is $120,848, an 8.17 percent increase over the $102,475 received for the comparable period of 1988.

"The reason for the jump in August sales tax allocations in Bandera is simply increased sales," said Sarah Baird, public information officer with the comptroller's office. "Our data shows no other contributing factors."

The October checks are for taxes collected by monthly filers in August and reported to the comptroller's office in September, according to Bullock.

City sales taxes collected in the five surrounding counties during the latest period were also included in the report.

Boerne, in Kendall County, reported August city sales tax revenues of $28,965, a 1.75 percent increase over last August. The city's year-to-date total is $315,195, up 3.89 percent over last year.

Two cities in Medina County reported August sales tax revenues of $48,992, 18.2 percent higher than the $41,450 received for last August. The combined 1989 year-to-date total is $577,990, a 10.4 percent increase over 1988.

Two cities in Real County reported revenues of $2,552, 4.97 percent higher than the $2,431 reported for August 1988. The combined 1989 year-to-date total is $30,028, 1 percent lowers than last year's $30,328.

Two cities in Uvalde County reported August city sales tax [illegible] 6.37 percent increase over the $54,118 received last year. The county's combined year-to-date total is $663,925, about 1 percent higher than last year.

Bandera County was one of 92 counties in the state that received payments of $7.1 million this month for their share of the one-half percent county sales tax. Bandera County's share was $8,023; bringing its year-to-date total to $88,180.

Statewide, October city sales tax allocations were up 10.99 percent over last year and year-to-date city allocations were 9.59 percent higher, according to Bullock.

"Consumers have more money to spend and they're doing just that," Bullock said. "That means another month of increased sales tax rebates for local areas."

The old river channel in Medina Lake is only 76 feet below the surface of the lake as shown by this fisherman's depth finder. With the lake down 40 feet below the spillway the edges of the channel may become visible if the lake level continues to drop, says game warden Ernest Lerma.

Roy Dugosh shows cash equal to the worth of the $1,000 certificate of deposit he won in a Guaranty Federal Savings Bank promotion as branch manager Edith Chandler holds the CD.

Roy Dugosh wins $1,000 CD in Guaranty Federal contest

Roy Dugosh of Bandera Wednesday won a $1,000 certificate of deposit in a promotion designed to call attention to the new name of Guaranty Federal Savings Bank, formerly First Federal Savings of Austin and University Savings.

Dugosh's name was selected randomly from among other entries in the free sweepstakes, which was also promoted at 16 other Guaranty locations in Central Texas, according to Bandera branch manager Edith Chandler.

The sweepstakes was meant to call attention to Guaranty Federal's effort "to prove that we are a service-oriented institution with a 'winning' attitude towards servicing our customers," Chandler said.

The bank's name was changed on Oct. 1. A majority of Guaranty Federal is owned by Temple-Inland, Inc., of Diboll, Tex., and it has $4 billion in total assets at 52 locations in 30 Texas cities, the bank says.

Rohlfs return to Medina following European trek

The Rev. Claus and Doris Rohlfs of Medina recently returned from a seven-week trip, mixed with business and pleasure, that took them to Switzerland, West Germany, East Germany and New Jersey.

They spent four days in Locarno, Switzerland, visiting Dr. Frank and Yvonne Gellert and their children, Marcus and Jessica. Dr. Gellert was an exchange student from Gottingen, West Germany, who stayed in the Rohlfs' Dallas home when the Rohlfs' children were in school.

While in Locarno, they spent time on Lake Maggiore, a summer resort where northern Europeans enjoy the warm climate. The lights of Italy could be seen across the lake, they report. The Locarno area also features a 5.76-mile four-lane tunnel, the world's longest.

In the Schleswig-Holstein area of West Germany, where Claus was born and lived to age 10, they visited many of his relatives, including 23 cousins, two aunts and an uncle.

In Friedrickstadt, they went to the church in which Claus's father was baptized as an infant and then met with Mayor Hermann Dreeke of Hibben, a community with 34 houses and no stores, not even a post office, where residents live off the land as have their ancestors for 700 years, the Rohlfs said.

The house of Doris' great-great-great-great-grandfather, who was born in 1723, was still occupied, the Rohlfs said, and Dreeke's home was more than 200 years old. One of the homes in the community was built in 1283.

Rev. Rohlfs spoke with pastors an lay leaders about revitalization of their churches, and met with Methodist Bishops Klaiber of West Germany and Minor of East Germany, as well as other denominational leaders.

In East Germany the Rohlfs attended a four-day conference and visited in the homes of several East German pastors, and Rev. Rohlfs conducted worship services in one of the smaller churches in the area.

They visited with a young registered nurse who spoke about the struggle of area hospitals to stay in operation due to the exodus of people to West Germany.

They visited Ehrenfriedersdorf, East Germany's only Methodist seminary in Bad Klosterlausnitz, Lossnitz, and Eberswalde before returning to West Germany for a meeting in the industrialized Ruhr area at Essen and a performance in Friedricksdorf of a 270-voice choir and 150-piece brass band led by choir director Max Kohler, who brought a German choir to the U.S. for a tour that included performances in Boerne, New Braunfels, Seguin, San Angelo and San Antonio.

After returning to the U.S., the Rohlfs attended the 50th year reunion of his high school graduating class in Haddon Heights, N.J.

FHA dance in Utopia

"This is the most fun I've had in a long time!" one student said at the Sadie Hawkins Hee Haw Dance sponsored by the Utopia FHA chapter Friday, Oct. 20.

Dressed in their most stylish Hee Haw outfits, students enjoyed dancing to music by Paul Coffman and taking part in various contests.

Awards for the best Hee Haw costumes went to Gini Hobbs as Maw Kettle and Rip Duke as Hill Billy. Honorable mention went to principal John Walts.

In the twist contest, Stephanie Kring and Wayne Moore took first prize. The waltz contest was won by Bobby Jones and Diane Causey. Brent and Marcy Porter took the top prize in the high school/junior high slow dance. Winners in the corny joke contest were the teams of Tanner Couch and Jim McFadin, and Tana and Toni D. Clark.

Optimists' Tri-Star Football contest rescheduled for Saturday

Because of Saturday morning's heavy rain, the Optimist Club's Tri-Star Football preliminaries were postponed until Saturday, Nov. 4, at 1 p.m. at Bulldog Stadium, says contest chairman Sam Braswell.

"The coaches checked the field Saturday morning and decided it would tear it up too much to conduct the entire contest that afternoon," Braswell said. "We'll try again this Saturday."

The contest tests passing, punting and kicking skills and is open to boys and girls aged 7 through 12. Contestants may register at the site of the contest, Braswell said.

Bobcats defeat Uvalde JV for season's second victory

By Larry T. Williams
Bulletin Staff Writer

"It wasn't pretty, but we'll take it," said Medina head coach Joe Winchell after his Bobcats defeated Uvalde's junior varsity, 7-0, Friday, Oct. 27.

For the most part, the game was a shoving match in the trenches with neither team making much of an effort at passing. Medina totaled 159 yards on 41 carries against 123 yards on 34 carries for the Coyotes.

Uvalde threw seven times but never completed a pass. Medina completed only two of nine pass attempts but those two made the Bobcat game.

The only score in the game came eight minutes deep in the third period when quarterback Sloan Baker connected with Jason Childers on a 58-yard pass play for the TD. Kicker Chris Keiser booted the point after and the scorekeeper went into retirement. The 'Cats had blown an earlier chance to score in the second quarter when they lost the ball on a fumble on the Uvalde six-inch line.

Uvalde threatened late in the third quarter when Durbin Black nabbed a Bobcat pass on his own 40-yard-line and returned the ball to the Medina 40.

The Coyotes' drive continued into the final 12 minutes until Norman Hurt intercepted on the 'Cat 29. From that point, Medina controlled the ball and Uvalde never threatened again.

"We made some mistakes but not as many as last week," Winchell said. "We put in a new defense this week and the guys really did a good job with it. They had three days to learn it and they did. It's the first time we've stopped the sweep all season."

Medina will get back to district play Friday, Nov. 3, when they host the now district champion Center Point Pirates for homecoming. The game will begin at 8 p.m. and will be preceded by the crowning of the Bobcat king and queen at 7 p.m.

PC racquet club owner wins state tennis honors

Chuck Jandreau of Pipe Creek won another state tennis championship Sunday, but it may be his last.

"This will be my last one," the operator of Pipe Creek Racquet Club said Tuesday. "It's just too difficult to get in shape for tournaments like this. I nearly died Sunday," he said.

"Nearly died" is just a figure of speech, Jandreau, however.

The tournament's first seed, Jandreau lost the first set of Sunday's championship match to No. 2 seed, Joe Bradley of Wichita Falls, after what Jandreau thought was a questionable line call.

"That made me mad," the Pipe Creek athlete said. "So I just got down to business and whipped him." Jandreau won the state championship for men 65 years of age or older by defeating Bradley, 6-7, 6-1, 6-1 at Lakeway World of Tennis near Austin.

He got to the title match by defeating Gordon Gray of Mansfield, Marvin Fletcher of San Antonio, and third-seeded James Schulze of Denton.

Jandreau won the state title for men between the ages of 60 and 65.

The Pipe Creek tennis pro was once a professional tournament player who has taught a bevy of Hollywood stars to play the game, and was a college football star and a professional baseball player.

He opened Pipe Creek Racquet Club earlier this year as a private tennis club with luxury lodging facilities and several courts, including a clay court.

State fish on increase

Guadalupe bass, the official state fish which is protected in an official sanctuary at Lost Maples State Natural Area in Bandera County, are on the increase in both size and numbers at Lake Buchanan, near Austin, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Biologist Charles Munger of San Marcos said fall electrofishing surveys found higher numbers of Guadalupes than in 1985 and 1987 surveys, and the fish collected averaged longer lengths than in the previous surveys.

"This increase in size and numbers may be due to protecting the smaller fish with the 14-inch minimum length limit and reduced bag limit," said Munger. Bag limits for Guadalupes were reduced when all black bass (largemouth, smallmouth, spotted and Guadalupe) were placed in a five-per-day aggregate limit in 1987.

The Guadalupe bass was named official "state fish" by the Texas Legislature. It is found only in Central Texas lakes and streams.

Weather, muddy water limit tourney stringers

The recent cold front and rainfall muddying the upper waters of Medina Lake kept the Rebel Bass Club to 42.83 pounds of bass with a total of 22 fish at its 5th annual open tournament at Medina Lake Sunday, Oct. 29.

Of the 185 anglers competing, only 18 brought in fish.

In the men's division, Marvin Dziuk of Castroville took first place with three bass weighing a total of 6.62 pounds. He caught the fish on a chartreuse plastic worm.

He caught one of the fish in two feet of water and two others in 12 feet of water. He caught one fish around noon and the other two before 8 a.m. All three fish were caught around "hardwood." Dziuk defines hardwood as the dead trees that are now above the lake or near the surface that grew on the land before the lake was impounded.

David Maddox of San Antonio brought in two bass totalling 5.56 pounds for second place. He caught them on purple plastic worms by the dam in approximately 15 feet of water. "I put it in the right place at the right time," says Maddox.

Kelly Hancock of San Antonio brought in the largest bass of the day along with third place with a 21-inch, 4.12 pound bass caught in 10 feet of water in Elm Creek Cove with a black and chartreuse plastic worm.

Hancock says he was raised in Mico and is the grandson of Joe Grenier, an original settler.

In fourth place was Jason Cross of San Antonio who brought in a 3.62 pound bass on a top water blue and chartreuse buzz bait. He caught it in nine feet of water about 7 a.m.

In the ladies division, Opal Quick of San Antonio brought in a one pound, four ounce bass, which she caught on a green and black "Pop-R" top water lure. She says she caught it right off the rocks across from Red Cove in water about 10 feet deep about 6:45 a.m.

Lakehills fisherman Jim Gerlach said the front that came in Friday night probably effected fishing. The change in lake level in the one to two foot range contributed to the low yield.

Gerlach said he and his son caught a total of four legal size keepers last week.

The weather was a factor this year, agrees Rebel Bass Club member Frank Weathersby, citing the influx of fresh water into the lake and the rise of about two feet by tournament time.

The upper part of the lake where last year's tournament's big bass was caught, was muddy, he says.

Also effecting the fishing performance was the 40 foot below spillway lake level. "It's a different lake," says Weathersby.

The rainfall over the weekend brought the lake up 0.86 feet at the spillway, reports the Bexar-Medina-Atascosa Water District. The water level in the lake was 1031.89 feet above sea level Tuesday, 40.11 feet below the spillway.

Last year, 209 contestants competed and 45 anglers weighed in 64 fish for a total of 110 pounds.

Bulldogs will finish season 'playing for pride,' says Swierc

"From now on we play for pride," Bandera Bulldog Coach Sam Swierc said this week after his team absorbed their third straight district defeat, this one by a single point, 14-13, to Sonora's Broncos.

"In fact, playing for pride is what the kids told me they wanted to do before I ever got the words out of my mouth," the mentor said. "Every player showed up for a meeting Saturday and all have been at practice every day and have been enthusiastic."

"Even though we're not winning, we're continuing to play good football," he observed. "It's good that the kids know that. They haven't given up, and we're proud of that. That's why we continue to play well.

"Not well enough to win, however, but we feel we've got just as good a shot at beating Fredericksburg as we had beating Llano, Brady or Sonora." The coach still feels his charges could have won either of those games or even all three, and he's convinced they can beat either or both their remaining opponents, Fredericksburg and Hondo.

But they'll have to get some breaks and outstanding performances in all phases to do so, he says, and make some subtle changes in how they attack. "Fredericksburg is big and strong, but not as quick as Sonora," the coach explains. "Therefore, we're going to try to hit 'em quick (with rapidly-developing plays) and get to the outside," he said.

That means the Bulldogs will have to throw the ball "a whole lot more," Swierc says, and he has confidence in quarterback Epi Cardenas and a corps of receivers that now includes Bo Mansfield, the team's leading ground gainer that caught a 67-yarder from Cardenas Friday that set up Bandera's first touchdown.

That pass came with 4 minutes left in the first half and gave Bandera the ball on the Sonora 20-yard line. Scott Rogers gained a first down at the Bronco 6-yard line before Cardenas hit T.R. Andreas in the corner of the end zone for a touchdown.

Jeff Hensley kicked his sixth conversion in eight tries to put Bandera into a 7-0 lead.

Sonora took the second half kickoff 66 yards to score on a quarterback sneak by rangy David Mirike, but the kick was wide, so the Broncos mounted a 65-yard march moments later to take a 12-7 lead on another sneak by Mirike.

The junior quarterback then gave Sonora what proved to be the winning margin by sliding down the line of scrimmage and into the end zone for two points.

Bandera put Hensley at the line with a chance to tie the game in the final period by driving 62 yards for a touchdown that Mansfield scored on a one-yard burst. Hensley's kick was wide, however.

For the first time this year, Bandera managed to skim through an entire game without a turnover, but Sonora's quick-reacting defense kept Bandera's offense from getting off the ground.

The Bulldogs host Fredericksburg in Bulldog Stadium Friday. Kickoff is at 8 p.m.

Friday racing suspended at Brady

Officials at G. Rollie White Downs in Brady announced racing will no longer be held on Fridays because of low attendance, but will increase its Saturday and Sunday lineup from 10 races to 12.

According to track general manager Richard Lerma, an average of $150,000 has been wagered on Saturday and Sunday but only $75,000 on Fridays.

G. Rollie White Downs was the first track to conduct pari-mutuel racing on Friday, Oct. 6.

Bandera Downs is scheduled to begin pari-mutuel racing on Friday, March 2, and is scheduled to race on both Thursdays and Fridays throughout most of 1990, as well as on weekends.

Racing commission to meet Monday

The Texas Racing Commission will investigate the status of preparations for racing at Manor Downs near Austin at its formal meeting Monday, Nov. 6, at the John H. Reagan Building in Austin.

The commission will also consider amending pari-mutuel license fees provisions and matters relating to Heart of Texas Racing, Inc., which is currently conducting racing at Brady.

Pari-mutuel racing won't start in March

Financing difficulties cause all Texas tracks to stumble at starting gate

By Nick Johnson
Editor

Bandera Downs won't begin pari-mutuel racing on March 2, co-owner Stan Scruby confirmed this week, but it still hopes to be racing by early this summer, though their building plans could be cut back significantly.

"We'll open with something," Scruby said Tuesday. "We haven't given up doing the big plan, which involves $7½ million to $8 million (for renovations), but as a fall-back position we have to be prepared to do the minimum (amount of renovation) and get open."

"We're hoping for early summer," he said.

Don Essary, co-owner with Stan and Linda Scruby, told the Texas Racing Commission Monday that there was no way the Bandera track could be open by March 2 because it has not been able to arrange for financing.

All the other tracks that reported at Monday's meeting in Austin described similar difficulties with financing, Scruby said.

A horse breeder active with the Texas Thoroughbred Racing Association last week in Bandera blamed special interests who want to build larger Class 1 tracks in San Antonio, Dallas and Houston with deliberately causing the difficulties that caused financing of Class 2 tracks to dry up.

"What we're seeing here is nothing more than Class 1 racing taking over racing in Texas," said Bill Bacon, a breeder from Welfare, at a meeting of Texas Women for Pari-Mutuel Racing in Bandera last Wednesday. He also blamed the interests behind Class 1 racing for pressuring the TRC to fire executive director Bill Meincke.

Scruby, however, identified other factors that have contributed to the drying up of investment capital at Texas tracks. "First is the general economic conditions in Texas," he said.

"The second blow was the unfavorable publicity that followed the commission's failure to award racing dates when they granted licenses," Scruby said.

"And now (G. Rollie White Downs at) Brady is going broke, or so I read in the newspapers, and that doesn't help," said Scruby.

Racing in Texas resumed last month at Brady after a 52-year hiatus, but low attendance and handle have caused the track to lose money. The track suspended its Friday racing, increased its weekend cards from 10 to 12 races, and reduced their supplement of purses in an effort to turn things around.

Manor Downs, near Austin, was licensed to begin racing last month, but has postponed opening due also to financing difficulties.

Scruby said he feels the TRC won't allow tracks to hold licenses indefinitely without racing. "I don't know how long the commission is going to let people hold licenses," he said Tuesday. "I think they'll give them a chance, but they won't wait forever."

One member of the commission, Department of Public Safety representative Ruben Cardenas said Monday he thinks the commission should begin in January to reconsider licenses of tracks that are stumbling at the starting gate, according to news reports.

"If there are some applicants out there in these same counties who do have better plans and have their financing in order, then they (should) be afforded the opportunity," Cardenas said, according to the Associated Press.

Jack Roberts, who represents comptroller Bob Bullock on the commission, urged other commission members to encourage current license holders so they can attract financing, however.

The commission Monday also denied issuing a Class 1 license to a group that calls itself Houston Turf Club.

It also appointed its own chief veterinarian, Dr. Susan R. Baittie, as acting secretary and announced a search committee of four persons, all commissioners, to find a permanent executive director to replace Meincke.

Baittie's appointment drew immediate fire from horsemen because of her lack of racing experience, which includes only four months as a track veterinarian at Canterbury Downs in Minnesota.

"Now we have an acting secretary whose total racing experience is as an assistant in a couple of test barns," said one critic who asked that he not be identified. "All we can do is hope they get a permanent executive director that has some experience."

Hunters' kill reported 'heavy,' despite empty locker plants

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Game warden Carl Becker called it an "ideal opening weekend."

More hunters were in the field in Bandera County on opening weekend, says game warden Carl Becker, and the kill was "heavy," but the results may not be showing up at meat lockers in the county as it has in the past.

With the exception of one site in Utopia, deer storage facilities in the county reported fewer deer than usual.

Becker called Nov. 4-5 an "ideal opening weekend," and he attributed the decrease of business at processing facilities as continuation of a trend in which successful hunters are skinning, quartering and icing down their kill instead of using local cold storage facilities.

And, hunters are obeying game laws, the game warden adds.

Bandera Ice House in Bandera and Adolph's Restaurant in Lakehills each reported a large drop in the number of deer in their storage lockers. Facilities in Medina and Tarpley report the same or a little fewer than last year.

One deer processing plant in Utopia reported booming business and the other says the number of deer is "lackluster."

"I found many deer already quartered in camp," explains Becker.

"The majority of the hunters are prepared to ice down their deer in camp and bring the necessary equipment to keep the deer in edible condition," says Becker. Since there is no processing plant in Bandera, the hunters find they can do the cold storage themselves.

Becker called the deer kill this year heavy and included more deer killed this opening weekend than on similar weekends in the past four or five years.

The deer are in good condition despite the range condition due to the dry year, says Becker, and the hunters he's talked to confirm that they are pleased with the condition of the deer. This is a little surprising due to the average acorn crop, he says. The deer also are moving more this year, he adds.

There were no hunting accidents and very few game law violations, Becker says. "The majority of the hunters are cooperating and obeying the game laws," he says. Hunters are more informed this year and information distributed by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and newspapers have contributed to the hunters' education, Becker says.

One law area residents are asking about, however, is the subdivision rifle law, says Becker. He says he's had many calls on hunting in subdivisions. Landowners can hunt on their own

Cadillac and drugs seized in bust here

A San Antonio man who reportedly works "on and off" at Bandera Downs was arrested in Bandera last week and charged with possession of more than 150 grams of methamphetamine (speed).

Alfred Villareal has been in the Bandera area for a while, but has a San Antonio address, according to Sgt. Jim Kimbrell of the Bandera County Sheriff's office.

Villareal was stopped by Deputy Keith Mansfield and reserve Deputy Lynn Holt on traffic charges. The officers first observed the vehicle on Main Street and noticed the driver of the 1980 Cadillac behaving in a "suspicious" manner. They followed Villareal to run the license plate number on his car.

According to Kimbrell, because one number was reported wrong in the license number, a report came back that the Cadillac was stolen.

When the patrol car began following him, Villareal reportedly became visibly nervous, and the officers noticed him making

Police report

"several overt movements in the vehicle," Kimbrell said. The suspect apparently looked in the rear view mirror, and made two turns without giving a proper signal. He then made a U-turn on 13th Street, and Mansfield and Holt pulled him over on 13th at Sycamore Street.

The officers ran the correct license number and found that the vehicle was not reported stolen, but while Villareal was out of the car, Holt noticed a .380 calibre semi-automatic pistol on the front floor on the driver's side.

When the deputies searched the car, they found approximately 151.4 grams of methamphetamine in five individual packets, Kimbrell said.

"It was an aggravated amount," Kimbrell said, adding that a small quantity of marijuana, and two items of drug paraphernalia were also found. An "aggravated amount" means an amount sufficient to bring charges of aggravated possession.

Villareal was charged with possession of a controlled substance with violation of the Texas Controlled Substance Tax Act, possession of less than two ounces of marijuana, and unlawfully carrying a weapon.

Kimbrell said that according to a new law that went into effect Sept. 1, anyone in possession of a "controlled substance" is supposed to pay taxes on it, and the amount of taxes they owe the

Gas well on school land 'blows out,' Alkek says

A gas well on what once was Bandera County school lands blew out last month, but did not catch fire or cave in, according to oilman Albert B. Alkek, and a new well will be drilled nearby.

Oilfield firefighter Red Adair of Houston was summoned to the scene of the blow out, on lands in Maverick County once owned by Bandera County schools. One-half the mineral rights on the land were retained for Bandera County schools and five percent was retained by the county.

A blow out occurs when a drill [illegible] pocket of gas under high pressure, causing the gas to literally "blow out" of the hole with great force. The major dangers in such a case are a fire and collapse of the underground [illegible].

An attempt to stop the flow of [illegible] with drilling mud failed and [illegible] was finally [illegible] the hole, [illegible] drill bit and piping but stopping the flow.

"They were unable to kill the well with mud," said geologist Scott Seaman at the site, so they ended up cementing in the drill string." The drillers are planning to drill another well, Seaman said, "but it will be several weeks before they begin."

No one was injured in the incident, Seaman said.

Alkek said a new hole near the old probably will tap the same gas pocket. A good gas well produces between 75,000 and 100,000 cubic feet per day, Alkek said. "This could have been that kind of well," he said. A cubic foot of natural gas currently sells for $2.65, Alkek said.

The property was given to Bandera County by the state to finance its permanent school fund, which operates all schools in the county. It was sold to Alkek in 1979, but the schools retained one-half of the mineral rights and [illegible] were retained by Bandera County.

Clark, who is 98 and fought in both world wars, will join other defenders of the flag and grateful citizens in celebrating the national holiday, Veterans Day, Saturday, Nov. 11.

Cartoonist

Traveling to the Far East on a trade mission was a real eye-opener for this small-town cartoonist. Although the first leg of the trip, a visit to Taipei, Taiwan, pretty much lived up to my preconceptions of Asia with its insane traffic congestion and insaner drivers and its crammed-in population, the second leg to Japan was flat-out surprising.

First off, Japan is far more spacious (as in wide-open spacious) than I had ever imagined. Out in the rural regions there are countless big sweeping valleys lined by truly majestic mountain ranges. It's green and gorgeous there, with clear rushing streams and broad forests of conifers and tropical foliage. The Kumamoto Prefecture is particularly impressive. I can now see why some Montanans in the past picked Kumamoto as our sister state in Japan. It's mountains are strikingly similar to our Beartooth — only we don't have the huge smoking volcano they have.

The Japanese cities also boggle my mind. Tokyo has got to be one of the cleanest cities of any size anywhere. You never see as much as a cigarette butt on the streets. And during my stay I never saw a single dented car — never mind any of the junkers many of us here in Montana drive.

As for the people, I've never met a friendlier or more gracious bunch. And the service you receive from them is superb, whether it be in the hotel or a restaurant (traditional or McDonald's-san) or in a public building. The help is always courteous and efficient.

On top of this, Japan is a low-crime, drug-free society. And one where the planes, trains and buses run on time.

All of the above adds up to an undeniable fact — Japan has its act together, and a class act it is. Small wonder they're beating the britches off us economically.

After the mission I'm left with the certainty that if we as a people don't mount a major effort to get our own act in order, we'll never succeed in settling the infamous trade imbalance with the Japanese. An important first step would be for more Americans to tour Japan and suffer the same rude awakening I've just suffered.

Don't forget, this is exactly how they learned from us 20 or 30 years ago when they went to Detroit to see how we built cars, then went back to Japan to improve on our techniques and eventually, corner the world market.

I can't get mad at them for what they've accomplished, I can only admire their organization and effort and urge other Americans to learn from their success.

Hobby's income tax proposal has capitol crowd talking

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby ran the dreaded state income tax up the flagpole last week; no one saluted, but they sure are talking.

Meanwhile, Gov. Bill Clements called for lawmakers to impeach Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower if a state audit now underway finds he has misspent state funds. Hightower denies any wrongdoing and claims Clements is waging a political vendetta against him. He has also cancelled the cards.

Hightower is being investigated for using a state credit card on trips that included $7,000 worth of expensive meals and hotel charges, some made at a time when he was also campaigning for presidential aspirant Jesse Jackson.

Charges Farmers

Credit cards were issued to Hightower and his top aide, Mike Moeller, by the Texas Federal Inspection Service, which is operated partly by his agency and partly by the feds.

The agency collects funds for the service by charging farmers for grading their produce, and he said expenses charged to the card were on behalf of the producers.

Hightower's general counsel, Jesse Oliver, later stated the program also provides Hightower with an '86 Chevrolet Blazer and a vehicle to Moeller.

Hobby Pushes Income Tax

In his state income tax initiative, Hobby sweetened the dose by proposing to reduce sales taxes and school property taxes at the same time.

He proposes a 4 percent personal and corporate income tax tied to abolishing the franchise tax.

Hobby, obviously a lame duck, is probably the only one who can air this issue.

Several candidates for statewide office have already pledged to veto or abolish a state income tax as part of their campaign platform.

Foes argue that existing taxes are already raised to the limit, each and every type of tax or fee, and that ultimately a new income tax and any reduced tax will also be pumped up again to intolerable levels.

Earlier in the decade, voters approved a constitutional amendment abolishing the state property tax; quite likely that's the only route voters will trust on any trip to lower taxes.

Attorney General Race

In the AG race, Republicans moved towards a legal test in the Texas Supreme Court intended to define if and how state legislators who vote for higher office benefits can run for that higher office.

State Sen. Buster Brown, R—Lake Jackson, filed a state district court lawsuit to force the issue to the high court.

Meanwhile, Dallas attorney Tex Lezar, 41, announced for attorney general on the Republican slate.

Lezar, who served as assistant U.S. attorney general during the Reagan administration, said Texas should take a tough-minded approach to the crime problem by executing drug kingpins and abolishing parole.

Regulate Health Rates

The other two members of the State Board of Insurance turned a cold shoulder to Chairman Paul Wrotenbery's suggestion that the panel seek authority to regulate health insurance rates.

Wrotenbery, citing a crisis in health insurance costs, said the board should help consumers by setting targets for rates so the public would have some basis of comparison.

Board members Dick Reynolds and Jo Ann [illegible] discussed the issue with them, expressed doubts his idea would work.

Health insurance industry officials also expressed opposition to regulating rates.

Political Campaigns

Former state Rep. Clint Hackney announced his campaign for railroad commissioner by promising to crack down on toxic waste spills, an area where Texas leads the nation.

State Rep. Dan Morales, D—San Antonio, a candidate for attorney general, called for toughening the state's environmental protection laws with a 10-point program that includes giving the AG power to start proceedings to enforce all environmental laws.

Other Highlights

• Texas House Speaker Gib Lewis predicted voters would defeat the triple salary increase for state lawmakers by as much as 60-40, and blamed the press for killing the proposed amendment.

• State Sen. Bob McFarland, R—Arlington, will not seek re-election, closing a distinguished career which spanned the House and Senate. McFarland, often mentioned for statewide office, cited commitments to family and business.

• The state utility commission staff recommended that Southwestern Bell Telephone's rates be cut by $392 million yearly because of excessive earnings, a record slash if it is adopted.

• The State Board of Pardons and Paroles will open a toll-free telephone service for crime victims seeking to cut red-tape for a straight answer.

Let's lay the blame for the apparent collapse of pari-mutuel racing in Texas where it belongs, in the lap of an inept Texas Racing Commission. Two years exactly have passed since voters of Texas said they wanted pari-mutuel horse and dog racing in Texas. And what's been accomplished?

Nothing.

More money was being wagered on horse racing in Texas illegally two years ago than is being bet legally now, and that's a travesty.

I won't go into the history of the thing, because you know that it all began immediately after the people voted for pari-mutuel when Gov. Bill Clements refused for as long as he could to even appoint a TRC.

And it's been downhill since.

It is clear that much of what would appear to be frivolous expense at G. Rollie White Downs in Brady, needless costs that have left that track near bankrupcy, have been mandated by the TRC.

Example: The number of lab assistants in test barns and their salaries are prescribed by the commission. There shall be six lab assistants in the test barn and they shall be paid $75, the TRC says. I'm told that's twice too many as are needed and too much money. About $35 to $50 each is normal, they say.

That's only one example of many instances of TRC moves that are not regulatory in nature, but out-and-out track management. I chose that example because it is the brain child of the TRC's chief veterinarian, Dr. Susan R. Baittie, whose only racing experience are a couple of stints as a lab assistant herself. Baittie was named executive secretary of the commission Monday. Now her "considerable experience" will be brought to bear on all the considerable problems of racing in Texas.

Bandera County grand jury indicts 13

A Bandera County grand jury Monday, Oct. 30, indicted 13 people on 19 counts, including aggravated sexual assault, arson, burglary and assault.

Joseph Lener, Jr. of Lakehills was indicted for aggravated sexual assault and retaliation. According to the indictment, Lener is charged with forcing a female under age 14 to perform oral sex. According to the reports, he is also charged with retaliation after reportedly threatening a family member of the alleged victim.

Thomas Pagel was indicted for felony theft and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. Pagel is charged in connection with an incident last month at Crazy Bob's.

Stephen Roger Thompson IV and Randall Joseph Oliver were both indicted on charges of arson. Oliver was also indicted on two counts of burglary of a building. The two are charged in connection with a fire in a building on property belonging to Bob Levrit. Seven others, including Gary A. Lamparty, David A. Brieno, Richard Troy Brieno, Christopher Perez, and Anthony Martinez, were also indicted for burglary of a building.

Todd M. Ricks was indicted on two counts of burglary of a habitation.

Another suspect indicted on two counts of burglary had not been arrested at press time, and his name is being withheld.

Ronald Ray Clark was indicted for possession of a controlled substance.

Lisa Gayle Deviney was also indicted for possession of a controlled substance. She appeared in court Thursday, Nov. 2, entered a guilty plea, and was sentenced by District Judge Steve Ables to a ten year probated prison sentence.

Agent to speak

County agent John Allen will speak on major tree diseases at the regular meeting of the Bandera Optimist Club Monday, Nov. 13, at 7:30 p.m. at the Bandera Inn.

amount of speed found in the 1980 Cadillac was $30,400.

"There were no stamps on the dope," Kimbrell said.

Villareal was released Nov. 3 on a combined bond of $35,000 on all the charges.

A cash bond of $25,000 was set by justice of the peace Preston Boggs for the charge of possession of methamphetamine.

There are three types of bond, according to Boggs. On a personal bond, the person charged signs a promise they will appear. On a surety bond, the person charged is released from custody when one or more people qualified and financially able to make bond promise to pay if the person charged does not appear as directed. Usually, a percentage of the amount is paid up front, according to Boggs.

In a cash bond situation, the person charged "must have posted in his behalf cash money," Boggs said. The full amount, in this case $25,000, must be posted before the person charged can be released from custody.

The reasons a cash bond is set may vary, and the choice of what type of bond is set is at the discretion of the judge setting the bond, in this case, Boggs.

Because of the large quantity of drugs and "other factors," Boggs said he set a cash bond on Villareal.

Apparently a Bexar County constable attempted to contact Boggs and have the bond reduced.

The constable reportedly contacted justice of the peace Ernest Reich and asked him to speak to Boggs about reducing the cash bond required.

When asked if he was contacted directly, Boggs replied "no comment." Boggs said the offense is now at a district court level, and that he was called upon to arraign the suspect and set bond.

In other police-related news reported this week, William Davis was arrested for driving while intoxicated early Sunday morning, Nov. 5, on State Highway 46 near the Madrona Subdivision by Mansfield and Holtz. According to Kimbrell, a report came through the teletype that the officers should use caution because the subject was wanted on a San Antonio warrant for assault with bodily injury.

Apparently Davis struggled and became violent, resisting arrest, and it took the officers several minutes to subdue him and put handcuffs on him.

Deputy Robin Price answered a violent family disturbance call near Medina, and arrested William A. Williamson, 44, of Medina. Williamson was charged with public intoxication, and according to Kimbrell, assault charges were pending because the reported victim, a neighbor, had not yet signed a complaint.

Oct. 24, Donald Hutchings of Houston reported a burglary at his place on Bumpgate Road. According to Hutchings, approximately $800 in property was taken.

Oct. 28, Joseph Shockey of Bandera reported a burglary at his place on Medina River Ranch. According to Shockey, several electrical appliances and tools were taken. Value of the property taken was reported to be more than $1,000.

Oct. 28, J.B. Edwards reported a burglary at the Edwards Ranch. A video cassette recorder and a radio telephone were reported taken.

Nov. 1, Valerie Richey of Pipe Creek reported a burglary at her place on State Highway 46. Approximately $600 worth of property was reported stolen.

Setting it straight

Dominick Verciglio was incorrectly referred to as his brother Todd in a picture caption in the Oct. 19 issue of the Bulletin.

Setting it straight

The Bulletin misspelled the name of Angela D. Carroll of Bandera, mother of Navy Airman Candace L. Hollenbaugh of Kerrville, who has completed recruit training in Orlando, Fla.

Herby Syring looks over his near-empty cold storage locker Monday, Nov. 6, after an apparently slow opening week-end of deer season. Syring had only 35 deer stored in his facility compared to "about 130 last season" for the same period.

property even if it is in a subdivision and can permit other people to hunt on their property, he says.

But if the subdivision tract is less than 10 acres, hunters must use a shotgun or a pistol rather than a rifle. The county has a rule that prohibits firing of a rifle on any tract of land less than 10 acres in a defined subdivision.

But business owners, such as Herby Syring, owner of Bandera Ice House, aren't as pleased with the opening weekend of the deer season. Syring reports that the number of hunters bringing their deer to his meat locker is way down, and so is the level of business from hunters.

Bandera Ice House had 35 deer in his meat locker during the Nov. 4-5 first weekend of hunting season as opposed to approximately 130 on last year's opening weekend.

He doesn't see as large a turnout of hunters this year as compared to last. "Usually we see an increase in business from hunters a couple of weeks before the hunting season starts, and that business wasn't there," says Syring.

Gerald Kneuper of Medina, who has a cold storage unit, reports 12 deer brought into his facility over the weekend, which is more than he had last year. Kneuper attributes the use of the locker to the unseasonably hot weather.

Most of the deer brought to the Medina storage cooler were does, but he says he also took in two 8-point bucks. The does were average size and the bucks were heavy, probably field dressing about 90 pounds.

The number of deer brought into the meat locker at Adolph's Restaurant in Lakehills were down this year from last. On the first day of hunting season, six deer were brought in, says store owner Adolph "Junior" Mazurek. Two additional deer were brought in Monday.

"I would have expected 15 to 20 the first weekend," he says.

The biggest deer in Adolph's locker was an eight-pointer and the others were six- and four point-deer. He describes the racks as small, compared to other years, and the deer were not heavy in weight.

Tarpley General Store had 14 deer brought in this weekend, says Lou Holt. "That's about what was brought in the first weekend last year," she says.

Five of the 14 were eight-pointers and three were seven-pointers. Deer seem to be larger than last year, when hunters killed many young bucks, with just five points or spikes, she reported.

Howdy's Hilltop in Tarpley hung 12 deer since the weekend, says owner Howard Billings. He terms the take he's seen "a little less than last year" but with more hunters than last year. He believes the warm weekend contributed to the reduction in the take. He also notices that the deer are a little bigger than last year.

But Utopia has had many deer brought to the two processing plants in the town.

Boyce and Davenport reports 125 deer brought to their facility during the first three days of hunting season. The deer are of average size, but in good healthy shape, says Ralph Boyce, one of the owners. The best rack of horns was 12 points, he said.

The number of deer at the Mercantile in Utopia is down this year, with 55 deer in storage from the first three days of the hunting season.

A Look Back At Bandera

40 Years Ago (1949)... Bandera was kicking off Western Hospitality Week. Merchants and guest ranches had open houses & prize drawings. Parades, Western Style Show and a square dance featuring the music of Curly Williams and the calling of Murray LeStourgeon were also planned. St. Christopher's Episcopal Mission sponsored a games party, the Legion hosted a barbecue and there were dances at the Silver Spur and Cabaret and a street dance at the Frontier Hotel. All residents were encouraged to invite in family and friends to enjoy western hospitality. In football Bandera beat Sabinal 38-20. The leading passer and rusher in the game was Thomas Keese. Luther James intercepted 2 passes and returned 1 for a touchdown. Isabel at the Ranch House Cafe was advertising merchants' lunches for 65c. Fitzgeralds Variety Store (phone number 54) had men's sport shirts for $2.99. Boyle's Store had H&H Coffee for 49c in the 1 pound tin.

26 Years Ago (1963)... The Chamber of Commerce announced they were sponsoring a new event this year, a Hunters Supper and Dance featuring the music of Frank Montague Jr., Dr. George Meador, Jimmy Russell, W.A. Spencer Jr., and Russell Blair. The Chamber also announced that the Candid Camera TV Show would be filming in Bandera. A flurry of oil leases were signed after Gulf Oil Co. struck oil on the Gallant Ranch near Medina. At the polls, Bandera voted to incorporate. Coach Don Hicks and the St. Joseph's Mustangs were given a thank you banquet at the O.S.T.-Southwestern Bell urged long distance callers to use the new "area codes" for faster service. At The Bantex Theater you could see "The Music Man" or "Bye Bye Birdie" (Adults 75c, Children 35c) and Free State Oil Co. had antifreeze for $1.55/gallon.

15 Years Ago (1974)... Bandera County voters joined the majority of voters in electing Dolph Briscoe as Governor and Bob Krueger to succeed the retiring O.C. Fisher as U.S. Representative, 21st District. Southwestern Bell began "0 Plus" long distance dialing in Bandera. At the Bulldogs Homecoming Jeff Hearn scored a touchdown but the Dogs lost to Medina Valley 20-14. Les Short & Brenda Schmidt were named Mr. & Miss BHS and a Homecoming Dance was held at the Wool & Mohair Warehouse. Medina lost their Homecoming game to Rocksprings 20-0 but saw Darlene Whitehead named Football Sweetheart and John Bigham named Pep Squad Beau. Howard Payne University announced that Annette Short of Bandera was their Homecoming Queen. Hunters' Barbecue Co-Chairmen Ashley Rugh and Conrad Nightingale declare the 11th annual event a hugh success.

Veterans organizations to memorialize and celebrate Saturday

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Four Bandera County veterans organizations will remember the sacrifices of those that have maintained the defense of the United States in morning memorial services and evening activities Friday and Saturday, Nov. 10-11.

Saturday morning, Bandera veterans organizations will participate in a flag raising and rifle salute on the courthouse lawn beginning at 7 a.m.

Later, at the Lakehills American Legion Post, a memorial and remembrance service will be conducted by Post 410 chaplain Bill Angel beginning at 10 a.m. The Rev. Adrian Rains of Faith Chapel will be the guest speaker.

Refreshments will be served afterwards.

Two benefit dances will be held in conjunction with Veteran's Day.

A Veterans Day dance will be held Friday at Arkey Blue's Silver Dollar beginning at 8 p.m. as an annual salute to veterans. Proceeds from the dance will be used to support the work of the Bandera Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 9176.

On Saturday night from 8 p.m. until midnight the Sheriff's Posse Band with Bandera County Sheriff R.S. "Steve" Forest will play at the Bandera American Legion as a benefit for Legion Post 157.

Another Saturday evening activity will be hosted by the Lakehills American Legion Post when it holds its annual Veterans Day celebration Saturday evening serving free homemade chili made by Eleanor Lane, along with tamales, and drinks starting at 6 p.m. in an open house format.

"It is our way of thanking the community for attending our fundraisers such as the July 4th celebrations, SOS cookoffs, and bingo," says spokesman Tony Kruse.

For entertainment, there will be an extra large "Country Store" game, sponsored by the Mauer Insurance Agency, says Kruse. Prizes will include jewelry, buck knives, stuffed animals, home-made bread, bags of groceries, cakes including the "better than sex" cake of chocolate, pudding, whipped cream, cherries and nuts.

During the day, American Legion auxiliary members will distribute the familiar red, hand-crafted poppies honoring America's war dead in Bandera and Lakehills and they will request a donation.

The Bandera American Legion Auxiliary will be distributing the poppies in Bandera at Super S during the morning.

The Lakehills American Legion Auxiliary will have the poppies available at the intersection of FM Road 1283 and Park Road 37 and in front of the Lakehills Post Office before and after the memorial service. Junior members will assist with the morning distribution.

The red crepe paper poppy was adopted by the American Legion Auxiliary in 1920 and is hand-made, petal by petal, by disabled and hospitalized veterans.

An additional event earlier in the week included the Disabled American Veterans Chapter 69 benefit barbecue at the Bandera American Legion Hall Wednesday, Nov. 8.

All four veteran organizations in Bandera County have community service in mind as one of their foremost projects.

The Legion home in Bandera and Lakehills is used by other community organizations and both halls are available for rent for private parties.

The four veteran orgnizations work with veterans living in the county to ensure that they are getting the benefits they deserve as well as with veterans hospitalized in the Kerrville Veterans Administration Hospital.

Both Legion posts and their auxiliaries send high school students to Boys and Girls State, a one to two week experience on a college campus where students learn about state government and elected government offices, says Charles "Chuck" Haver, commander of American Legion Post 157.

For entertainment, there will be an extra large "Country Store" game, sponsored by the Mauer Insurance Agency, says Kruse. Prizes will include jewelry, buck knives, stuffed animals, home-made bread, bags of groceries, cakes including the "better than sex" cake of chocolate, pudding, whipped cream, cherries and nuts.

The Bandera Legion and Auxiliary sent two boys and two girls from the Bandera and Medina areas and the Lakehills counterpart sends two boys and two girls from Lakehills and Pipe Creek.

Other activities of the veterans organizations include supporting the Boy Scouts, giving flags to schools and donations to Bandera County Holiday Head cave Haver.

The veterans organizations also help veterans in time of need by furnishing transportation or emergency aid, says Haver.

Other projects include a cancer program the VFW ladies auxiliary participates in and the Voice of Democracy writing contest which gives out three scholarships to students, says Betty Swinford, president of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary Post 9176. They also have safe biking, boating and patriotic programs.

They also visit Purple Hills Manor and have an MIA/POW program to "let them know that they are not forgotten," says Swinford.

Veterans also have a County Veterans Service Officer, Ross Bailey, to help veterans locate benefits provided by the federal and state government.

As county service officer, Bailey is "responsible for all the veterans in Bandera County and their widows to help them apply for Veterans Administration or state benefits," he says.

There are over 800 veterans in Bandera County, based on the membership in veterans' organizations, says Bailey, but there are more than that, he adds.

Benefits provided by the Veterans Administration include a housing loan program, pension or service-connected disability payments for widows or orphans, and funeral benefits.

A veteran can be buried in a national cemetery such Fort Sam Houston or receive a $300 burial allowance and $150 plot allowance if burial is desired at a private cemetery, says Bailey.

On the state level, Texas has the Hazelwood Act which provides the benefits that the expiring GI Bill has provided.

Also available from the state of Texas are free or reduced-cost license plates and passes into state parks, says Bailey. Fishing and hunting licenses are available to veterans at a reduced cost.

The Texas Veterans Land Board provides veterans loan guarantees on property no less than 5 acres. There is a similar home improvement loan program.

Bailey is in the driver's license office at the Bandera County Law Enforcement Building from at 10 a.m. to noon each Monday. Veterans can call him at home for an appointment at other times.

Within the county, there are two American Legion posts, one VFW post, and one DAV post.

The Bandera American Legion Post 157 has Chuck Haver as commander. Other officers are first vice commander Earl Williams, second vice commander Curtis Michalczak, adjutant Howard Strange, finance officer Joe Beh, judge advocate Sam Darden, chaplain Phillip Singleton, sergeant-at-arms Bruno Skoba, service officer Marian Coker, and historian William Heard.

Other officers first vice president Muriel Strange, second vice president Bessie Haver, secretary Marilyn Michalczak, finance officer Caroline Furach, historian Isabelle Taylor, chaplain Marla Jones, and sergeant-at-arms Joy Bastin.

Other officers of the Lakehills post are first vice commander George Driffill, second vice commander Keith Cress, adjutant Ray Mauer, finance officer Jim Robinson, chaplain Bill Angel, judge advocate Richard Mixon, sergeant-at-arms Sonny Swails, services officer Bill Kelley, and historian John Cavazos.

The Disabled American Veterans Chapter 69 has Lloyd Bastin Sr. as commander. Other officers are senior vice commander Clifton Clark, junior vice commander Wilford Perkins, chaplain Charlie Taylor, and Richard Young as adjutant and finance officer.

The Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary Chapter 69 has Joy Bastin as commander, Isabel Taylor first vice commander, and Elizabeth "Bettie" Clark as secretary and finance officer.

The Legion meets the third Thursday of each month with a potluck meal beginning at 6:30 p.m. and separate business meetings for the Legion and the auxiliary at 7:30 p.m.

The VFW meets the second Thursday of every month at the VFW post beginning at 7:30 p.m. The VFW auxiliary meets the third Monday of every month beginning at 2:30 p.m. at the VFW post.

The DAV and its auxiliary meet the first Thursday of every month at the Bandera American Legion post beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Texas releaf project set for Veterans Day

Veterans across the state will take part in a major tree planting project to improve the environment as part of Veterans Day activities Saturday, Nov. 11, Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro announced Monday, Oct. 30.

Texas Releaf, a project designed to honor veterans and enhance the Texas environment, is sponsored by the Texas Veterans Land Board (VLB) and the Texas Association of Nurserymen (TAN). On Veterans Day, veterans will receive discounts of about 25 percent on tree purchases at approximately 120 nurseries throughout the state.

Mauro says that America, which has only one-twentieth of the world's population, releases nearly one-fourth of the total carbon dioxide in our global environment because of our energy policy and consumption.

Lakehills woman wins mad dash

Birdye Faircloth of Lakehills was a grand prize winner of a $3,000 shopping spree sponsored by the Glidden paint company, and Tuesday, Nov. 7 she was scheduled to collect her prize at the Crossroads Builders Square in San Antonio.

According to a spokeswoman for Glidden, Faircloth would "don her running gear and make an energetic five minute 'dash without cash' to tag up to $3,000 worth of merchandise."

Faircloth, one of 16 winners nationwide, was selected from more than 1,000,000 entrants in the Glidden "swing into fall" sweepstakes.

"I'm surprised and delighted," said Faircloth. "I can't believe this is really happening to me."

Faircloth, a mother of nine, is in the process of building a new home.

"This couldn't have come at a better time," she said. "Christmas has certainly arrived early this year."

Costume contest winners at Lakehills

Over 100 children participated in the costume contest at the Lakehills Halloween Party at the Lakehills Civic Center, Tuesday, Oct. 31.

In the zero- to four-years category, Becky Dustin came in first place, Kenny Rettko second, Chad Smith third, and Bethany Rogers fourth, reports Peggy Ashmore, president of the Medina Lake Betterment Association, which sponsored the event.

In the five- to nine-years category, Justin Snyder took first place, Chris Townsend second, Leanna Honaker third, and Brandon Mrazek fourth.

In the 10- to 14-years range, Megan Snyder won first place, Shelley Charles second, and Craig Honaker third.

In the 15 and up category, Beverly Matthews won first, Larry McNeely won second, and Millie Harrison won third.

23 Crafters fill civic center Saturday

Some 23 craft vendors filled the Lakehills Civic Center Saturday, Nov. 4, selling arts and crafts and Christmas gifts.

The crowd that came out was of a fairly good size, reports Peggy Ashmore, president of the Medina Lake Betterment Association, which sponsored the event.

United Methodist Women meet

Some 23 members and guests were present for lunch and program at Jan Wilson's home for the Nov. 1 meeting of the Lakehills United Methodist Women.

June Settlemeyer and Gertrude Dohrow gave the program, "Called... into the World." Wilson and Alice Smart were hostesses for the meeting.

This was the annual World Thank Offering to provide an opportunity for the UMW to express gratitude for those who go about the global work of the church.

Lissie Schneider will present the Annual Advent program, "Therefore, Rejoice!" at the Dec. 6 meeting to be held 1:30 p.m. at the church's fellowship hall.

Hostess will be all the women providing samples of their Christmas baked goods.

"We invite the women of the community to join us," says organization vice-president Carol Lobert.

Clinic set

Lakehills American Legion Hall will be the site of an immunization clinic from 1:30 to 3 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 15.

The clinic is sponsored by the Texas Department of Health.

"Children must be accompanied by a parent, and a fee for service is now being assessed," said Amy Lopez, spokeswoman for the organization.

Veterans day

The Lakehills American Legion post will host its annual Veterans Day celebration Saturday, Nov. 11, starting at 6 p.m.

Pipe Creek paramedic Fay Honaker sets one more item on a display rack at the Pipe Creek Flea Market Saturday, Nov. 4. Proceeds from the two-day garage and rummage sale will be used to help complete the Pipe Creek EMS ambulance barn on State Highway 16.

Medina Lake group elects officers

The Medina Lake Preservation Society elected vice president Carol Smith as president at its meeting in October.

Smith replaces former president Marilyn Schlitz, who remains on the organization's board of directors.

Byron Sumner replaced Smith as vice president and secretary-treasurer Jerry Siedert was replaced by Anne Hall.

Added to the organization's board of directors were Panchita Thomson, Danny O'Connell, and Jeff Hansen.

Continuing as board members are Bessie Zinsmeister, Roger and Valerie Stone, and Kay and John Pittmann.

The organization is considering opening up a lending library made up of books, tape recordings, and newspaper articles concerning Medina Lake, says Smith.

Membership dues are $5 a year. The membership funds are primarily used for mailings the organization does, says Smith.

Wharton's Dock

By John Ciarlo — 796-3225

Ray Bower reports that he and Lena spent two enjoyable weeks in our 50th state, Hawaii, and included visits to four islands.

They spent four days at Waikiki beach, Diamond Head, the Punchbowl, Polynesian Culture Center, U.S.S. Arizona National monument and the city of Honolulu.

They then traveled to Kauai for three days, with a luau, tours of the fern grotto, Waimea Canyon, and other highlights of the island. After a short flight to Maui, they visited Charles Lindburg's grave, the Iao Valley and the Seven Sacred Pools. This was the favorite island as far as scenery was concerned, the Bowens report.

Another short flight took them to the "Big Island," Hawaii, for three days which included a visit to the largest active volcano, pineapple plantations, and a general tour of the island.

• John "Bud" and Betty Ciarlo just returned from a week's visit with their daughter Judy Hines and her husband Bob in Benson, N.C. On Sunday Judy had many of the Ciarlo's friends in for dinner to celebrate John and Betty's 50th wedding anniversary.

Also joining the celebration was the Ciarlos' son Fred. He was in the states for a refresher school at Ft. Rucker from military assignment at Izmir, Turkey. Fred, and his son, Fred Jr., drove down from Newport, Va. where Fred Jr. is in college at Old Dominion.

• Marie Bentley bagged her very first doe at Del Rio. She was on a hunting trip with her family and friends for two weeks as part of a group of 20.

• Mary and Buddy Walker of Houston were out checking their water front property at Wharton's Dock and visiting with friends this past week.

• Sylvia Sims went to California to visit her daughter and grandchildren.

• The benefit at the Long Horn for Kim and Abel Herrera had Sam Byrd donating a hog for the barbecue. Plates were served for a donation.

• Oscar Koeler donated brisket and Randy Shaeffer donated a hog for the first Saturday of the month community dinner at the Copper Lantern. Last weekend guests brought covered dishes of food and Gilbert Koepke did the barbecuing.

• The mini-revival held at Walker Memorial Chapel had a fair crowd attending. After services, the gathering moved to the fellowship hall to enjoy refreshments and "just good old-fashioned fellowship," says a spokesman for the group.

• Bud's saying this week is, "You know you're getting old when your knees buckle and your belt won't."

Lakeshore VFD to celebrate 10 years

The 10th anniversary of the Lakeshore Volunteer Fire Department will be celebrated Saturday, Nov. 18, at the firehouse in the Wharton's Dock area.

The department will supply ham and smoked turkey and those attending are asked to bring a covered side dish, reports department president Bill Holmes.

"Everyone, members and non-members, are invited to attend," says Holmes.

Election of officers due at Lakeshore VFD

The Lakeshore Volunteer Fire Department will conduct election of officers at their general membership meeting in December.

Up for election are the posts of president, vice president, secretary, treasurer, and one of the directors of the board.

Anyone interested in running for the offices should contact Bennie Barker at 796-3354.

Volksmarch planned at Meridian Park

Walking enthusiasts of all sizes and ages are invited to join the Trotting Texas Turtles in a 10 kilometer (6.2 mile) volksmarch at Meridian State Park Nov. 11-12, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials.

Registration will be on the day of the event at the park. The walk will start at 7 a.m. and finish by 2 p.m.

New law makes pain-easing drugs available

A new state law passed in July will allow cancer patients to get pain-easing drugs in a national climate of anxiety about drug abuse says the Texas Medical Association.

The nation has had an unwarranted fear of addiction among a small group of people who legitimately need narcotics and the Texas Medical Association says it hopes the stigma associated with taking prescribed narcotics will begin to crumble with the new state law.

In cancer patients with a spreading tumor, for example, the pain is so diffuse and severe that a narcotic such as morphine or codeine is needed to work on the entire central nervous system, says Dr. C. Stratton Hill Jr., TMA member and director of Pain Service at The University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center in Houston.

But anti-drug efforts have led many people to believe that taking narcotics for pain control will automatically create an overpowering craving for the drug, and that is not so, says Hill.

"There is no doubt that we have a prodigious drug abuse problem with narcotics in this country," Hill says. Unfortunately, that problem has been confused with beneficial uses of narcotics, he says.

The confusion lies in the definition of dependency and addiction, he says. A cancer patient may develop a dependency on narcotics for release from pain so that he can resume ordinary responsibilities and have the energy to fight the cancer. A junkie, on the other hand, gives up work, family, food and everything else in seeking the euphoria created by narcotics.

Reports of unrelieved pain in cancer patients have increased in recent years. One factor is the negative attitude of physicians, patients, and their families and friends towards narcotics.

Another factor is uncertainty among physicians about laws and regulations related to prescription of narcotics. Until now, state law has contained ambiguous language that failed to distinguish a drug abuser from a medical patient.

As a result, physicians have tended to undertreat pain at the outset or failed to increase dosages adequately as the disease progressed.

The Intractable Pain Treatment Act, Senate Bill 20, helps remove the ambiguity. The act states that a physician may prescribe "dangerous drugs or controlled substances" in the course of treatment for "intractable pain," pain whose cause cannot be removed or otherwise treated.

The bill makes clear that its provisions do not apply to patients in treatment for drug abuse or to persons using drugs for non-therapeutic purposes.

"We think this law will enable physicians to fulfill their obligations to relieve pain," Hill says. "We also hope that it will help patients and their families more readily accept narcotics when they are needed."

The Bandera County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office will be closed Friday, but the Texas Department of Human Services will be open.

Bandera, Texas 78003, U.S.A.

On the night of October 13th, 1989, Gilbert Scheele shot and killed my dog. Jack was a pedigreed labrador retriever. He was a well fed, mature dog wearing a collar. Obviously someone's pet. But, he was off of my property. According to the law, I have no recourse and Scheele was within his rights.

About this dog. Jack was five years old. I had spent about $2000 on his training. He hunted pheasants, quail, chukars, ducks and geese. He did it all. He would sit to the flush, retrieve on command, sit and hold. In one year, at a private shooting preserve where I was both a member and a guide, he had over a thousand birds shot over him. Not one bird was lost. This was a bird dog.

On the night of October 13th, Gilbert Scheele was awakened or alerted by a commotion outside. He said later that a dog was "at" his sheep. His donkey was running the dog off. He got in his pickup, ran the dog down and shot him. He said he "had no choice". He then took the body to his back pasture and dumped it out for the buzzards. This dog was wearing a collar with his name, "Jack," and my phone number on a metal plate. On that night, my wife and I were out of town. The dog was at home with our daughter and her children. The kids let the dog into the house, the door to the garage was open, and he disappeared. My daughter called friends and instituted a search, but he was not found. We arrived home on the 16th, and I took out an ad in the Bulletin asking for the return of my dog or ANY information and offered a reward. There was no response. The next week I placed an ad offering $500 for the return of my dog. I still hoped he had been picked up. You see, other sheep ranchers had told me that if someone had shot my dog, they would either call me or turn the collar in to the Sheriff. Scheele did neither. Acting on a tip, I called Scheele on October 27th, and he admitted killing him. There were no dead sheep. There were no sheep farmers. I doubt if he had ever seen one before. I also doubt very seriously that this was a "sheep killer."

Now to the crux of all of this. Bandera County is changing. People are moving here like we did because it is a beautiful area with (we thought) friendly people. There are several subdivisions close to Scheele. All of us are paying taxes and spending our paychecks in Bandera. What about the hunters that we will be welcoming this weekend? We like their money, too. What about their hunting dogs who often get lost for a day or two? Shouldn't we warn them about Scheele and his type in the Wolf Club who publish their dog kills in the paper? What about the Snow Birds and their hunting dogs who often ranches in the area? We like their money, too. If their dogs should get out, a stroll across the dude Scheele's yard could prove fatal! Are the rights of the sheep rancher more important than the rights of a homeowner who has a pet? I can agree that a dog CAUGHT IN THE ACT of killing or maiming sheep must be killed. But being cut, often against the wishes of his owner, does not automatically condemn a dog as a sheep killer. And it should not be legal to kill him. We would like to hear from others who have had this problem. Maybe there are more of us than there are of them and we can make some changes in the way things are done around here.

And: if your dog is missing, maybe you should call Scheele. Could be your collar is there like mine was.

This November weekend was, as usual, quite a weekend in Bandera as thousands came for hunting and thousands more came through en route to and from Lost Maples state park.

The annual Bandera Regulars reunion of old timers was at the Bandera Forge, and Medina residents old and new were present for that community's annual Homecoming Parade and Carnival.

It seemed like every watering hole in town had a band going at some time or other, making the the town jump, literally.

Visitors from Houston, Port Arthur, and Louisiana, to mention just a few, were in abundance.

Some restaurants stayed open 24 hours a day and even the city of Bandera got into the hospitality act, putting gorgeous, big trash cans along Main Street. That helped keep the city clean during all this; the street-sweepers late-night vigil Monday night (or Tuesday a.m.) completed the job.

Still, there's a need to figure out something for all these people to do on these big weekends, like airplane rides? Or hot air ballooning? Or a 3-hole beginners deal including golf club rentals, green fees at one or both of our fabulous golf courses?

Anyone else got any ideas?

• Volunteers were stumbling all over themselves at the annual Hunter's Barbecue of the Bandera County Chamber of Commerce, ably staged this year by chamber secretary Nancy Hopes and her worthy assistant, Pat Barker.

It wasn't Nancy's only triumph of the weekend, however. Her niece, Dona, won first place in a Witches Contest at Windsor Park Mall in San Antonio.

• On an ordinary day recently in Bandera, someone counted the vehicles going by the courthouse. Forty-six out of 100 were pickups, 38 were automobiles of various sorts, and 16 were other types (large trucks, RVs, etc.).

I'll bet a similar survey taken this weekend would have resulted in even more pickups.

• A Bandera visitor Sunday was a first-generation Ukrainian, Peter Bandera of Philadelphia. He says a very famous Eastern European anti-communist leader in the 1940s was also named Bandera, which is not an unusual name in the Ukraine.

Naturally, he left town loaded down with Bandera souvenirs for his family.

• Carmen Hicks will officiate Saturday at the grand re-opening open house at the Hair Wrap salon after a "Beauty Affair" at the Flying L Ranch featuring lessons on how we can make ourselves beautiful.

• Here are the nominees submitted so far in Rustlin's Big Character Contest:

Arkey Blue, the Silver Dollar Saloon crooner who drives a bright red truck that has character itself and whose dogs and cats are almost as famous as he is, especially those mom cats that have kittens in the middle of dances.

Honeypug Wright and his collection of fossils.

Texas Tom, whom the tourists love.

Bill Baggot, who is a little young to be a real character, but is working on it.

Rudy Robbins, our movie star celebrity who has a trained trick horse and a longhorn steer he can ride.

Roland Barthell, a newcomer in town who takes his gals bouquets on horseback and looks like a Louis L'amour hero.

Lady Weldon Hedley, who has been put up for "honorable mention," goodness knows why.

The contest ends Sunday, so get your brain to clickin' and nominate your favorites.

• Two hunters were commenting on the size of the deer population. "Up in Llano, the deer are thick as fleas on a dog's back," one said. I guess that's why Llano is the deer capital of the world.

School's advisory team plans Monday meeting

Information, community needs and planning were among the goals named at an organizational meeting of the Bandera ISD Citizens Advisory Team Monday, Nov. 6 at the Bandera High School cafeteria. All seven BISD school board trustees also attended the meeting.

Anne Samuels of Pipe Creek was named chairperson of the group, and Gwen Akin of Lakehills was named secretary.

According to superintendent of schools Ted Dockery, goals of the group will be "to establish a process through which the board might be better informed of community needs and desires; to estab sh a process through which the community might be better informed of board actions and reasons for those actions; and to allow the community to become a part of the planning and decision making processes of the district regarding facility needs."

Chairing the three sub-committees established are Richard Osgood, elementary; Larry Upton, junior high; and Richard Delamain, high school.

Long range goals for each of the three campuses were also discussed by the group. All three campuses are facing crowding problems in the immediate future, and building projects and the priority of needs will be discussed in the future by the group.

Your basic

Bandera

By Peggy Tobin

Having been around Bandera long enough to remember Cottoneyed Joe as a couple dance twirling to a fiddle tune first resurrected and recorded by Adolf Hofner, we feel qualified to comment on the ongoing controversy over Change in Bandera.

It is doubtful that anyone since the early Texas surveyors, who used to get paid with portions of the land they located, has ever made a fortune in Bandera County. The soil is too thin for lucrative farming, and the limestone too difficult to drill for the oil production which saved many a marginal Texas place. We all live here only because we wish to!

Someone said recently that Santa Fe, New Mexico, as the native Hispanics are driven farther and farther out the highway toward Albuquerque, is populated by realtors, artists, lawyers, and architects, all of whom have been, as he put it, "careless with their careers." In other words, living in golden Santa Fe is worth giving up monetary success and public prominence elsewhere. So is living in Bandera.

While Bandera has its goodly share of realtors, all right, there has never been the kind of creative activity here to crowd our county with refugee professionals only pretending to work. What we have is a disparate collection of commuters, tradesmen, old-line ranchers who inherited their land, a few absentee owners of vast acreages, retirees planting orchards, and resort owners struggling to maintain a western ambience for the edification of city folks. We do have just enough serious professionals to keep the place running and all the papers drawn up.

And though we can't dance anymore at the OST to that scratchy Adolf Hofner record, we still live here because we like the atmosphere. Change has crept up, not burst upon us all at once, and as the bump-gates have disappeared one by one, we have gotten used to the blurring of the old rural culture into whatever it is that Bandera is becoming.

There is a lot of talk lately about an escalation in the rate of Change in Bandera kicked off by the advent of pari-mutuel betting at Bandera Downs. Some people dream of fortunes finally to be made in Bandera County. Other view with trepidation the proliferation of electric signs and casual streams of traffic resulting in there being nowhere to park and nowhere to eat.

Somehow we can't get shook. We remember thinking our world was coming to an end when, in the late forties, an itinerant developer sullied our Home on the Range with the flashy Lost Valley resort and a jerry-built hotel in town. But nothing really happened. The canyon wrens went right on singing in the barn

Now even if it all does happen over at the race-track, it is our humble opinion that Bandera's basic individualistic cussedness and the vagaries of drought and flood will keep the place separate and unique. Neither San Antonio nor Kerrville can get us! Even if they try, we ain't gonna be nobody's suburb!

4-H Food Show entries below last year's number

Entries are apparently below last year's number in the Bandera County 4-H Food Show Saturday, Nov. 11, at Alkek Elementary School from 1-5 p.m.

Some 61 young people are participating in the 4-H Food and Nutrition project. Last year, there were 82 entries, according to Bandera County extension agent Jan Bryson.

Youths ages first grade to 19 years old will prepare food for the competition.

"The judging includes their knowledge of the dishes, nutrient value, how the dish was prepared and the taste of the food," Bryson said.

"The 4-H Food and Nutrition Project members took part in either a series of lessons or an all-day seminar where they learned about the principles of cookery, the food groups, and recommended daily allowances," she explained.

"The public is invited to a tasting and awards program at 3 p.m.," Bryson said. "Cookbooks will also be sold. They make great gifts and you will be able to taste everything in the cookbook."

One reason the number of food show participants is so low may be some new rules made by the Bandera County Junior Livestock Show Association last spring.

According to county agent John Allen, exhibitors must choose either a baked good or a livestock item to sell in the auction in the traditional January event.

"The board decided that we were just going to have to cut back," Allen said. "The auction was getting bigger than the buyers."

The Bandera County Junior Livestock Board also made the rule that exhibitors must be in at least the third grade. In the past, first and second graders could show livestock and baked goods.

"This county is unique in that they allow the younger ages to participate (in 4-H). On a national and state level, 4-H age is third grade, through age 19," Bryson said, explaining that most counties in the area adhere to the statewide age level guidelines.

Director Buddy Wells is superintendent of the Bandera County Junior Livestock Show, and Marcia Walker heads up the Bake Show, according to Allen.

Smokeout set

Bandera will celebrate the Great American Smokeout along with the rest of the country Thursday Nov. 16, according to Meleese Rugh, spokeswoman for the Bandera Chapter of the ACS.

Local pilot Diane Mullins is scheduled to have her hot air balloon at Alkek Elementary School for the students to see as part of the "one smokeless day" celebrated that day.

For more information on the smokeout, contact Rugh, or contact Eleanor Merritt at 796-3661.

Stocktons celebrate 50 years

Phillip Gipson and Ruth Elaine Stockton celebrated 50 years of marriage at a buffet dinner and dance at the Pipe Creek Civic Center Saturday, Oct. 21, with approximately 75 guests attending.

The music was provided by Elaine's own band, The Happy Tunes, made up of Elaine, Jane Kubel and Joyce McGuffin, with guest musician Tooter Ripps sitting in.

Guests came from as far away as Wanton Alto, Canada, California, Colorado, and Missouri.

Phil and Elaine have three children, Phyliss Parker of Boerne, Beverly Dunn of Denver, and Phillip Je of Las Vegas.

Elaine and Phil moved to Texas in 1982 and Pipe Creek in 1984. Retirement is not in the Stockton vocabulary, as Phil is a carpenter and Elaine an artist.

The press: full court

and one-on-one.

Charging. Dodging. Challenging. Guarding. One side on the offensive. One side on the defensive.
When the press faces off against public figures, it sometimes seems like a sporting event. But it's more serious than that. Because often, at the heart of the issue is the First Amendment. And its guarantee of a free press.
Some say the rights of the press should be taken away. They say the press goes too far. Sometimes even the press questions how far is too far.
Others say the rights of the press protect the rights of the people. Your right to be informed about things that affect your life and your right to decide.
The debate will continue.
But one thing is for sure. You won't always agree with what the press has to say.
And it's your right not to.

The Rev. Arnold Windecker from the Grace Lutheran Church used for his text Sunday, Matthew 5. Pianist was Mrs. Virginia Henry. Guests were Hoyt and Laverne Hamrick.

We had our Halloween Party last Tuesday afternoon. Staff and several residents dressed up in costumes. Refreshments were served to staff, residents and guests by the dietary staff. Residents winning prizes for best costume were Wendell and Callie Rees, first place; Stella Waraksa, second; Evely Carnes, third. Staff first place went to Bobbie Klein, second place to Tish Rogers and third place to Linda McNeely. Claire Rugh popped in dressed like Elsie the Cow to visit with Charlie and Helen Rugh.

We welcome two new residents, Agnes Fortinberry and Fanny Davis to our home. Agnes made her home with us for several years before having surgery and has been recuperating in Kerrville for several months.

Tuesday morning spooks from Noah's Ark and King-dergarten came by to sing Halloween songs and to deliver some gifts they had made for the residents.

• Claire Rugh took Charlie Rugh to the Black-eyed Pea in San Antonio for lunch.

• Jack Holloway attended services at the Church of Christ Wednesday evening.

• Mary and Glen O'Bryant visited her mother, Nell Miller.

• Allen and Evelyn Akin came by Friday and took Nola Baldock out for the day.

• Helen Ahr visited Gladys Huseby and June and Luther Mathis.

• Dottie Davis from Medina visited Winnie Chaddock.

• Hoyt and Laverne Hamrick visited all their many friends and took Jack Holloway to services at the Church of Christ Sunday.

Ramah Whiteside from the First Baptist Church in Pipe Creek had Bible study Thursday morning for 14 residents.

Ira Garrison died last week.

Wendell and Callie Rees took top honors in the Purple Hills Manor Halloween costume contest.

Lost Maples' rich color may be fading soon

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

Fall color display continued to be "beautiful" this week at Lost Maples State Natural Area, but there are few green leaves left to turn, and the color may begin to fade soon, said park employee Sandra Payne Tuesday.

Cool weather during early October brought a "beautiful display of colors" at Lost Maples, according to park superintendent Roy Heideman. The color display is reported to be the "best seen in recent years."

Weekends are busy at the scenic park, and the staff recommends that people visiting the park come during the week whenever possible.

Lost Maples State Natural Area is located in western Bandera county on the Sabinal River, five miles north of Vanderpool on Ranch Road 187.

Park headquarters are open Monday through Thursday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Friday and Saturday from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.; and Sunday from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Park entrance costs $2 per vehicle for day use, but senior citizens (65 and older) get in free. Day permits are good until 10 p.m., but there is limited parking.

There are picnic and camping areas available for daytime and overnight use. The day-use area contains 20 picnic sites, parking spaces and a restroom. Overnight camping areas are available, but reservations must be made well in advance, especially during this scenic time of the year.

Marker dedicated at Spur station

Great achievements and great achievers in agriculture were remembered recently as about 300 citizens dedicated a Texas Historical Commission marker at the site of the former Texas Agricultural Experiment Station west of Spur.

The work and the scientists at the station from December 1909 until the facility was closed Feb. 1, 1986, were known around the world and continue to benefit agricultural efforts around the globe, an array of local and state leaders said.

Silver Sage Corral

By Manuel Flores

Thanksgiving is just around the corner and a group of people from the Bandera Ranch Acres, headed by Jane Martin, is planning meals for the shut-ins.

This wonderful group of volunteers purchases the food, cooks it and brings it to the center to be packaged and delivered. Meals will be delivered only to the elderly residents of Bandera County, and the center will not supply dinner to persons who are visiting or to family members not usually entitled to the service.

If you wish to receive meals-on-wheels on Thanksgiving day, please call the center by noon Tuesday, Nov. 21.

Persons in the community who know of an older person or couple that may not otherwise celebrate Thanksgiving due to the lack of family contact, financial status or hardship, or who lack the ability to provide for a holiday meal for themselves, please contact the center with the person's name and address.

• For those senior citizens able to come to the center, a carry-in dinner will be held at the Silver Sage Corral. Mary Portman is in charge of this event and she has prepared a terrific menu. She requests that those planning to attend contact her and find out what to bring.

The Silver Sage Corral is the ideal place to spend a day of fellowship and feasting.

• Revival of an "old" event at the center will be a play- and sing-along each Tuesday at 1:15 p.m.

Murry LeStourgeon is in charge of this event and says that all of the old favorites, country music and folk music will be featured. Get your voice in condition and join the Tuesday group.

• A tired Doloras Greene said "Have you ever spent a week-end with 70 70-year-old teenagers?"

Her 52-year high school graduation reunion from a Chicago high school was held in San Diego recently.

The celebration included friendship time to renew old acquaintences a fabulous banquet, a three-hour cruise and a picnic on the beach. Doloras reports she is looking forward to the 55th reunion.

• The fourth person in our series, "meet the board of directors," is Clarence Hosmer.

Clarence, the youngest of four children, was born in Wabash County, Ill. on Sept. 6, 1920.

He spent his boyhood on a farm, raising corn, wheat, oats, soybeans, and hay, along with the "usual" farm animals, including horses, cows, pigs, and chickens.

He attended a one-room rural school in grades one through eight, then a small high school. He attended Eastern Illinois University, then taught, again in a "one-room rural school."

After teaching for four years, he took a position as a field clerk with Sohio Pipe Line Company in Grayville, Ill. in 1944. He became division chief clerk with the company in 1947.

In 1952, due to chronic asthma due to environmental conditions, he left Sohio and moved to Midland, where he worked for Superior Oil. He moved to Los Angeles and Houston, assuming several jobs within the company, and he retired in the position of senior advisor in 1982.

Clarence married Bonnie Lee Winter in 1941, and became the father of two children, Sarah Louise and Juanita Kathryn. Bonnie Lee died in 1973, and Clarence married Zoe Eden in 1977, becoming stepfather to Mark David Eden and Timothy McNear Eden.

Clarence boasts five grandchildren: Mark and Deanna Boughton, children of Sarah Louise; James and Jill Jorgensen, children of Juanita Kathryn; and Travis Ryan Eden, son of Mark Eden.

Clarence recently completed a three-year term as director on the Silver Sage Corral board and was re-elected as a director and as vice president of the board. He is the board's representative to AACOG (Alamo Area Council of Governments).

The Hosmers first began going to the senior center to join the bridge classes, and he subsequently wound up teaching three bridge classes. They continue to play bridge at the center each Friday.

Clarence enjoys bridge, reading, crosswords, and cryptograms. He bowls, plays golf, and enjoys volleyball. When he was younger, he played baseball, basketball and softball. He enjoys watching football, golf, baseball and basketball, his favorite being college basketball.

Clarence and Zoe are members of the Cowboy Capital Squares, and participate regularly in square dance activities.

The Hosmers are active members of Hill Country Chapel, and Clarence serves as an elder to that congregation.

Clarence and Zoe have been active in the Medina Lake AARP chapter, and Clarence has served as treasurer, corresponding secretary, vice president, and president of that organization. He currently serves as AARP representative to the Helping Hand organization.

The Hosmers are having a new home built at Flying L Ranch. They expect to move in before Thanksgiving.

They are enjoying retirement, and they believe Bandera and the Hill Country is an ideal place to spend their golden years.

A Thought For The Week
By John M. Grimes

Veteran's Day is set aside each year to honor those who served their country in the armed services. We honor them all, those who wore a uniform in days past and those who wear it today. We honor them with recognition of a debt that can never be repaid. It is beyond price.

On this Veteran's Day let us pause and remember, that for more than two centuries, the men and women of our armed services have fought in wars all over the world to preserve our American way of life. And in the intervening periods when America was not at war, our military men and women stood ready (and still do) to defend Democracy and resist totalitarian rule.

Whether they fought in the front lines or served their country in peacetime, all veterans have contributed to a strong and well-prepared America. Their sacrifices must not be forgotten.

Local Baptists join meeting in Lubbock

Ken Allen, First Baptist Church of Bandera's mission pastor to Walker Memorial Chapel is among several from Bandera County who attended the 104th annual meeting of the Baptist General Convention of Texas held Nov. 7-8 at the Lubbock Memorial Civic center.

Others from the county scheduled to attend the meeting included the Rev. Ted and Georgia Bosworth of Pipe Creek and the Rev. and Mrs. Harold Evans of Medina.

With "Mission Texas... Now!" as their theme and rallying cry, more than 6,000 people were expected to gather for the annual meeting of the 2.4 million-member denomination. Mission Texas is a five-year Texas Baptist emphasis on missions, evangelism and discipleship that was launched in 1985.

Elected messengers to the convention will choose new officers, consider resolutions on major moral and social issues, hear reports from 23 educational and human welfare institutions and vote on a proposed $68.75 million cooperative program budget.

"Through the cooperative program, Texas Baptists help support 7,500 missionaries, six seminaries, the Southern Baptist Radio and Television Commission and other worldwide causes, as well as providing funds to 23 Texas Baptist hospitals, universities, child care facilities and homes for the aging," said Thomas J. Brannon, director of the public relations department of the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

Fellowship meets

Bandera County Christian Fellowship elected the Rev. Jarrell Sharp of Bandera United Methodist Church as its new president and discussed a community Thanksgiving service when the group met Tuesday, Oct. 31 at St.Luke's Episcopal Church at 10 a.m.

Rev. Franklin Pullin, pastor of Bandera's First Baptist Church, resigned his position as leader of the group after three years.

The unified Thanksgiving service will be held Wednesday, Nov. 22 at 7 p.m. at Bandera United Methodist Church. Rev. Mike McManus of St. Stanislaus Catholic Church will bring the sermon, and each church will ask its members to bring non-perishable items to donate to Bandera County Helping Hand. The offering during the service will also be designated for the Helping Hand organization.

The group will meet again Monday, Dec. 11 at 10 a.m. at St. Luke's Episcopal Church.

Bandera County Christian Fellowship is comprised of ministers and lay persons from the various churches throughout the Bandera County area.

Church goers move

Americans have been fleeing from rural communities to cities for four generations and this human resource erosion has left its mark on small churches, according to a Texas historian.

T.R. Fehrenbach, of San Antonio, says this trend generally will continue and have even greater future impact.

As chairman of the Texas Historical Commission and author of 18 non-fiction books, Fehrenbach researches church history.

He addressed the 44th Town and Country Church Conference at Texas A&M University earlier in October and said he is very concerned about the future of small Texas towns and churches.

"Residents of the suburbs will continue to be politically and culturally dominant. Church programs will move to many newer issues while also continuing their past role of 'baptizing, marrying and burying' congregation members," Fehrenbach says.

Bake sale raises $117 for NHS

A total of $117 was raised at the annual National Honor Society Halloween bake sale to pay for Christmas gifts for the handicapped and special education students.

Some 21 NHS members met at Tiffany Moseley's house Oct. 29 to bake the items and make posters advertising the event.

Pumpkin buckets and Halloween bags were filled with an assortment of sweets.

The baked products were sold Oct. 31 to coincide with Halloween during the break and both lunches at the high school.

Results of vocational test show BHS above average

Results of the Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery (ASVAB) test, administered to BHS seniors last month, indicate that BHS seniors scored equal to or better than young people ages 18 to 23 across the nation.

The ASVAB test is a multiple aptitude test offered at no cost by the Department of Defense to secondary and post-secondary students. The battery consists of 10 subtests and is designed to help the Defense Department attract well-qualified volunteers and to help schools assist students in identifying their potential in certain job areas.

Students score in academic, verbal, and math ability, as well as mechanical and crafts, business and clerical, electronics and electrical, and health, social and technology.

The 81 BHS students who took the test scored in the 94th percentile in health, social and technology, 90th in academic, 88th in mechanical and crafts, 85th in math, 82nd in electronics and electrical, 78th in verbal, and 78th in business and clerical.

The academic, verbal and math scores measure a student's potential for further education. The rest of the scores measure their potential for performance in general career areas.

Each student received an explanatory booklet that contrasted military and civilian jobs.

The scores will be retained by the Defense Department for two years.

Brownies have Halloween fun

Some 170 girl scouts, parents, and other family members attended the Girl Scout Service Unit Halloween Party Oct. 31 at Bandera's Cabaret.

The Bandera Brownie Troop 930 offered fun and games, food and drinks, and bags of Halloween treats. The girls and their siblings played apple relay, strung apples, opened a Halloween pinata, and played a balloon popping game.

Winners of the costume contest were butterfly Ashley Jennings in the tot division; jelly bean Stacy Morris most original, skeleton Michael Campbell as scariest, Holstein calves Avery and Amerette Walzel for cutest, and Grim Reaper John Hall with the adult prize.

Costume contest judges included Wendy Holt, Jim and Beverly Gerlach, Beverly Hearn, Johnny Boyle and Phil Tobin.

Good snacking habits 'critical,' nutrition specialist says

Now that school has resumed, families will notice their snack supplies are usually low, as their teenagers meet their nutritional requirement due to growth.

Nutritionists admit that snacking or "grazing" is important to today's lifestyles, says Dr. Mary Kinney Sweeten, a Texas Agricultural Extension Service nutrition specialist.

Citing a recent FDA consumer article by Cheryl Weinstock, Sweeten says, getting into good snacking habits is critical for teens to benefit from snacking.

"Teenagers often fall into the habit of eating the same foods all the time," Sweeten says. "And sometimes the snacks they choose may not provide the variety of nutrients they need."

Teenagers who replace milk with soda at lunch may reduce the calcium in the diet, Sweeten says pointing to an example from Weinstock's recent article. Weinstock suggests teenagers replace the calcium by adding cheese to their hamburger they eat with soda. Cheese pizza is also a source of calcium, she adds.

Another good choice for teenagers is high-fiber foods, says Weinstock. Foods such as popcorn, fruits and vegetables stimulate salivation, which helps wash away excess sugar from teeth from snack foods.

Although snacking can be an asset, it becomes a liability if it results in more calories than the teen needs, Sweeten says.

"Obesity commonly starts during the teenage years," she says. "So, sensible snacking habits should be encouraged."

Expert suggests ways to prevent insects from coming into the home

Insects are beginning to look for a place to spend the winter, says entomologist J.W. Stewart of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and now's the time to hang out the "no vacancy" sign in language insects understand.

"Most of the insects are just looking for a place to overwinter and are not establishing permanent residences," says Dr. Stewart, who is headquartered at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center in Uvalde.

He suggests caulking and storing firewood away from the house.

"It is not uncommon for insects to enter attics or garages through cracks in the foundation, open windows or spaces around doors," Stewart says. "They will primarily be a nuisance and most of them present no great danger to the homeowner."

Mechanical control is possible by caulking all cracks to present insect entry, the entomologist says. Caulking also makes the structure more air-tight and should help lower heating costs, he explains.

Storing firewood away from the house will help eliminate hiding places for the pests, Stewart says. "Firewood stored near a house is like setting an apple pie on your windowsill," he said.

"The wood is an open invitation to termites that may be attracted to the firewood and later attack the wood in the home," he said.

Homeowners should always store firewood as far away from the house as possible and take only the amount needed for immediate use into the house, he says.

"Firewood stacked beside the house may be handy but as the wood warms, spiders, scorpions and other pests may leave the wood and escape to other areas of the house," Stewart warns.

Humans to race at Dallas zoo

Live bands, lots of food and prizes will be featured at the Dallas Human Race, Nov. 11, between the Dallas Zoo and the new Wilds of Africa Zoo in Dallas.

There will be a 10K run, a one-mile fun run and a 5K walk, according to organizer Mike Gill.

Alkek never gave up seeking business success

When Albert B. Alkek of Bandera accepted induction into the Texas Business Hall of Fame Thursday, Oct. 26, in Houston, he explained his accomplishments by paraphrasing Winston Churchill.

"Never give up," Alkek said. "Never give up. Never, never, never give up," he said simply, and ant down amid the applause from a standing-room-only crowd at the Westin Galleria Hotel that paid $1,200 a table or $400 a plate to be there.

The hall of fame was founded in 1982 to honor business leaders whose accomplishments best reflect the entrepreneurial spirit of Texas. Other inductees in the seventh annual awards ceremony included Fort Worth oilman and financier Perry R. Bass; the late Hugh Roy Cullen, a Houston oilman; Houston banker Ben F. Love; and McHenry Tichenor, a Harlingen broadcasting executive.

Alkek's career in the oil industry spans nearly 60 years. He was a wholesaler for Pierce Petroleum Corp. in Victoria when the company was purchased by Sinclair Oil Company, and he became head of Sinclair's refining products division in Victoria.

In 1941, Alkek met H.F. Sinclair, who became his mentor, and he merged his Sinclair holdings with his mentor's in 1948 to form Sinclair-Alkek Oil Co.

As president of the new firm, Alkek built and operated the first products pipeline in Texas, and in 1952 he bought out Sinclair's half of the company and formed Alkek Oil, which became a conglomerate that included a variety of petroleum-related companies.

Alkek has contributed several million dollars to Baylor Hospital, Methodist Hospital, the University of Houston at Victoria, the Houston Grand Opera, the Texas Military Institute, and schools in Bandera County. He also funds a variety of individual college scholarships.

The newly-constructed elementary school of the Bandera Independent School District was named in his honor in 1986.

Hanging baskets too low, inspector says

The operators of Leal's Mexican Restaurant were ordered to place their hanging plant baskets so that they did not hang below a level of seven feet from the sidewalk, city inspector Jon Murrell said this week.

The request was made to bring the restaurant into compliance with a city ordinance that prohibits signs and other items from hanging below the 7-foot level, Murrell said. He said the idea behind the ordinance is to prevent injury to passers-by who might strike their heads on the signs, hanging baskets, or other things.

An employee that asked not to be identified charged in a letter to the editor in last week's Bulletin that the restaurant was the target of discrimination that included removal of the hanging baskets by a state inspector "because they are not seven feet from the building."

Murrell said it was the height of the baskets, not distance from the building, that caused him to ask the Leals to change their location, and it was not a state inspector that made the request. He said he has ordered several other businesses in the same block to comply with the same provision, and they all had.

Unemployment rate here remains stable, TEC says

By William Wall
Bulletin Austin Bureau

Bandera County's September unemployment rate was unchanged from August, according to figures released last week by the Texas Employment Commission.

The monthly Texas Labor Market Analysis reported Bandera County's jobless rate for September to be 3.4 percent, three-tenths of one percent lower than last September.

"There was a decline in the number of total workers and employed persons in Bandera during the month," said Diane Dobie, commission labor market analyst. "However, the changes weren't great enough to affect the September rate."

The statewide unemployment rate for September was 6.3 percent, nine-tenths of one percent higher than August. The rate last September was 7.1 percent.

Two of the five surrounding counties reported increases in their monthly jobless rates — Kendall County by 1 percent to 3.1 percent and Real County by three-tenth of one percent to 4.3 percent.

The rate declined in Kerr County by one-tenth of one percent to 3 percent; in Uvalde County by 2.4 percent to 8.7 percent, and in Medina County by three-tenths of one percent to 5.7 percent.

Commission statistics indicate thet 3,897 out of 4,036 persons in the Bandera County civilian labor force were employed in September. The county's work force in August was 4,101, with 3,963 employed.

The September 1988 report showed the county's total work force to be 4,025 with 3,876 employed.

September's statewide report showed 7,744,600 persons employed out of 8,265,600. In August, 7,842,700 were reported employed in Texas out of 8,452,400.

Last September's report said 7,749,500 persons were employed in the state out of 8,340,500.

"The drop in statewide unemployment is not attributed to an increase in employment," said Dobie. "A good percentage of the summer job seekers, who did not find work, were students who returned to school.

"The only employment increase reported statewide in September took place in the government and educational services sectors."

Turkeys and the trimmings are best buys in November

Turkeys and the trimmings for Thanksgiving meals are the best food buys of November, according to a food marketing expert with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Dr. Dick Edwards, economist in food distribution at Texas A&M University, said consumers will be able to get their turkeys at a bargain, but some will have strings attached.

"The lower the price, the greater the restrictions will be," Edwards said.

He said turkey prices at about the 59-cents-a-pound level will have no restrictions on the amount of purchase required to qualify.

"To get a 29-cent-per-pound deal, the restriction will be a $50 to $75 minimum purchase. You can get a free bird with a $200-$400 purchase level requirement, but this amount can be accumulated during a three-to-four-week period," Edwards said.

"So, if a free turkey appeals to your budget, watch food ads early in November, since this type of purchase program must start early in the month," he said.

Edwards said better turkey prices generally are found at Thanksgiving than at Christmas, so prudent shoppers may want to buy several turkeys this month if they have freezer space.

He said the second best good bargain in November will be reduced prices for holiday baking supplies, including frozen pie crusts, flour, shortening, butter, cake mixes, chocolate chips, brown and powdered sugar and dried fruits.

"Manufacturers of baking products will attempt to increase their November business, and their prime strategy will be use of coupons," Edwards said.

"So take time to check your Sunday newspaper supplements and the food section on the day food ads are printed for coupons on baking products," Edwards said.

Other featured food items that relate to the Thanksgiving meal will include stuffing mixes, canned pumpkin, canned and fresh sweet potatoes, cranberry sauce and fresh cranberries for those who want to make their own sauce.

Food retailers will have alternative foods on special for people who don't wish to have turkey on Thanksgiving.

"These items include duck, rock cornish and roasting hens. Pork, including hams, will be featured, with some hams at the 99-cent range," Edwards said.

Edwards said consumers should look for special prices on broccoli, brussel sprouts, celery, carrots, cabbage and white potatoes.

He said in-season fruit also will be discounted, and leading that list will be apples, oranges, pears and grapes.

First seasonal offerings of grapefruit, oranges, tangelos and tangerines also will be made early this month.

The food expert said other grocery items with reduced prices this month will include hot chocolate, canned soups and canned chili. Coffee prices also should continue low, since members of the international coffee cartel have not yet reached an agreement on exports.

Although winter's official arrival does not come until December, the cold and sneezing season begins this month.

"Stock up on your winter cough and cold remedies, as these items will be featured in many supermarkets beginning in mid-November," Edwards said.

Bandera longhorns to be used in research project at A&M

The LH7 Ranch herd of longhorn cattle will be used to establish a base line for a research project of DNA fingerprinting in cattle, says owner Maudeen Marks.

Blood was drawn from Marks' registered longhorns Wednesday, Oct. 25, by David Wall, a PhD candidate at Texas A&M University, and Dr. Jerry Caldwell, president and owner of Immgens, Inc., a blood typing laboratory in College Station.

"The data base will be put together with the intent of learning more about the genetic differences between breeds," said Marks. "The researchers will look at genetic patterns and associate them with traits of the various cattle breeds."

Marks said the Dr. Caldwell told her that very little research has been done in the field of DNA fingerprinting in cattle.

She said Wall plans to research 14 dairy and beef breeds, three in the Bos Indicus (Indian) and 11 Bos Taurus (European).

Marks said she has long been interested in preserving the purity of the Texas Longhorn breed. Her herd was bloodtyped in a research project by Dr. Caldwell in 1982.

Marks' father, rancher Emil H. Marks, was one of a handful of men who preserved the Texas Longhorn cattle in the 1920s when they were closer to extinction than the American bison.

Marks said the LH7 bloodline is one of the seven foundation families of Texas Longhorn Breeders Association registry.

Fern Mayfield Kammer of Fredericksburg, a member of the Medina High School graduating class of 1930 was the oldest grad honored during the annual Medina School homecoming, class reunion and carnival Saturday.

Kammer was the only 1930 graduate present. Other graduates honored were those in the classes of 1940, 1950, 1960, 1970 and 1980.

Activities during the day included meetings of individual classes "for a lot of visiting, good fellowship and food," said spokeswoman Thelma Gallant.

Randy MacNaughton and Larry Kirk were masters-of-ceremony at Saturday evening's reception and program where the school's Beta Club served cake and punch and registered honored class members.

Beta Club president Robert Keeling welcomed visitors and the MHS cheerleaders led the group in singing the school song.

The first grade class's "Grab for Sheep" booth won first prize among booths, while the second grade's "Duck Pond" was second and the eighth grade's "Cake Walk" was third. Results of the judging of parade floats were not immediately available.

Graduates from other honored classes that were present:

Class of 1940: Gertrude Whitehead Krienke, Winston Morris and Leslie Mayfield, both of San Antonio; Ella Wheeler Callaway of Dripping Springs; Buford O. Baker of Hurst; Lila Mayfield Lister of Boerne; Walker Childs of Odessa; Elizabeth Walters Boehle of Hondo; and Doris Hinds Miller, Oneida Taylor Gallant and Fred E. Burch, all of Medina.

Class of 1950: Elizabeth Micklesen James of Bandera; Charlsie Walker Porter of Utopia; Logan Adams of San Antonio, and Elva Reed Keeling, Loma Smith McKinney and Morris Pue, all of Medina.

Class of 1960: Sue Wier Keiser, Gammon LeStourgeon and Nelda Adams, all of Medina, and Frances Hubble Kaiser of Kerrville. Former classmates Earl Keese of Murfeesboro, Tenn., and Douglas Whittenburg of Center Point were also present.

County X-country teams to compete in state meet

Bandera senior Amie Nightingale placed fourth at the regional cross country meet in San Antonio Saturday to qualify for the state finals Saturday in Georgetown, and Medina's boys combo became the first cross country team from that school ever to qualify for state.

Nightingale ran her personal best time of 12 minutes, 31.2 seconds over the two-mile course to qualify as an individual for state competition at Southwestern University in Georgetown.

Medina will field a seven-member team at Georgetown, led by Norman Hurt, who placed ninth in the regional meet.

Coach Greg Harbour, who organized the school's first cross country team this year, expressed pride in his runners. "They've been out here at 7 a.m. every morning since school started," he said. "Not one member has missed a practice. I'm really pleased with their effort."

The Bobcat long-distance runners placed second in the regional meet in San Antonio, matching their second-place finish at the district meet in Asherton. They missed the regional title by five points.

Bobcat Sloan Baker placed 12th, Josh Turpin 23rd, Thomas Fields 25th, Shane Keese 27th, Donny Rambin 33rd, and Shane Hodge 47th. All seven will make the trip to Georgetown and Josh Simms is an alternate.

Hurt also qualified as an individual by placing in the top 10 in his division.

"I've known all season these guys could do it," said coach Harbour. "If they keep running like they have been, they have a real good chance at third in the state meet and maybe second," he said.

Team standings in cross country are determined by adding up the finishing order of the team's first five finishers, the low-scoring team being the winner. Three teams and 10 individuals qualify for the state meet.

Medina girls' team of Mandy Barton, Calli Barton, Mary Roland, Aleathia Sietz and Key Blanton placed third in district and 34th in regional.

Bandera's girls placed 11th out of 15 teams. Tracey Felten finished in 29th place, Tandie Clements 73rd, Kimber Vos 78th, Christi Wilson 85, Holly Combs 86th, and Pam Corum 92nd.

Kenneth Wilson, competing as an individual, ran his personal best time of 17 minutes, 48 seconds to place 60th.

Nightingale, daughter of former U.S. Olympian Conrad Nightingale, a Bandera veterinarian, made her fourth appearance in regional competition Saturday, but this Saturday will be making her debut at the state level.

Crowned Miss BHS during homecoming activities a week ago, Nightingale's previous personal best time of 12:48 was accomplished at the Southwestern University Invitational last month in Georgetown where Saturday's state competition will be held.

Six winners crowned in football contest

Winners of the Bandera Optimist Club's annual Tri-Star Football Contest Saturday included Kyle Woodland, 12; Derek Pfeiffer, 11; Patrick Mazurek, 10; Joey Leal and Amaro Villarreal, both 9; Melchor Fernandez, 8; and Coy Pfeiffer, 7.

Leal and Villarreal tied for first place in the 9-year-old division.

Fifty-eight contestants pitted their skills at kicking, punting and passing the football against others in their age group. The event was rained out Saturday, Oct. 28.

Second-place winners included Bart Byerley, Charley Robertson, Thad DuBose, Chris Obiedo and Justin Teich. Third-place winners were Chad Davis, Joe Delafuente, Sonny Ybarra, Jason Gilstrap, Simon Ybarra and B.J. Newcomer.

Medina's cross-country team and Bandera's Amie Nightingale will run for all the marbles at the state cross country meet at Georgetown, Saturday, Nov. 11.

Pirates' second quarter broadside blasts Bobcats

By Larry T. Williams
Bulletin Staff Writer

The Center Point Pirates scored five times in the second quarter as they spoiled Medina's homecoming 56-0 Friday, Nov. 3.

The Bobcats got close to pay dirt twice in the first half but were never able to push across the goal line. The Pirates, on the other hand, scored twice in the third period and once more in the final twelve minutes in addition to the 34 earlier points.

Medina controlled the ball most of the first quarter and only allowed the Pirates two possessions. The district champs failed to move the ball until late in the period when quarterback Rodney Kitchens advanced the ball to the Bobcat 32-yard-line.

After the teams swapped ends of the field, running back Darwin Lemon moved the Pirates to the 'Cat 19 and then Michael Martinez went wide around left end for the TD. Tim Evans added the PAT and Center Point led 7-0.

The Pirates scored TDs again with 11:29, 8:04, 3:35, and 1:00 minutes left in the half on passes to Lemon and Sam Lopez and two runs by Andrew Martinez. Lopez booted one PAT and Evans got two others but failed on one attempt when Kitchens missheld the ball.

In the third quarter the Martinez brothers each scored again and Evans toed another extra point. Lemon evened the scoring on a two-point try by catching a Kitchens' pass in the end zone.

The final score came with 4:20 left in the game when Howard Wilson ran 25 yards for the TD. The PAT brought the total to 56 and Medina's record to 2-7 for the season and 0-3 in district play.

Medina will host D'Hanis Friday, Nov. 10, for the Bobcats' final gridiron trial of the season. Game time is at 8 p.m.

'Dogs hope to salvage season at Hondo Friday

A win Saturday at Hondo would be Bandera's first district win in three years and would double the Bulldogs' victory total of 1988, and could be Coach Sam Swierc's most important win.

The Bulldogs are currently 3-6 on the season. "Four and six would be a great stepping stone to the future," Swierc said Tuesday. "We need to go out a winner.

"These kids have stuck in there every week, and that's a tribute to them. We prepared them as well as we could and they believed in us and executed pretty well," he said.

Once-beaten Hondo will be trying to stay out of the District 8-AAA cellar when they host Bandera, and they'll have just as much incentive as the Bulldogs, Swierc feels.

Hondo has had the kind of year we've had," he remarked. "They lost a lot of close ones." The Owls did manage to defeat Llano, which has already clinched a spot in the playoffs.

Fredericksburg clinched the other spot by defeating Bandera Friday, 23-0, in a game that saw the Bulldogs threaten twice.

The Billies play Llano Friday to determine the district championship.

Bandera's frosh, 5-3-1 this year, hosts Hondo at about 7 p.m. Thursday. "If there's a future (for Bandera football) that's it," said Coach Swierc. "If they stay together."

The seventh-grade B team hosts Medina Valley at 5 p.m. and the seventh-grade regulars follow at 5:30 p.m. The eighth grade travels to Castroville to take on Medina Valley at 4:45 p.m. Thursday.

Javelina qualifies for record book

A javelina taken during a public hunt on a Texas Parks and Wildlife Department wildlife management area during February was large enough to qualify for the Safari Club International Record Book of Trophy Animals.

Department officials said Lt. Col. Wilson W. Crook Jr. of Dallas was hunting on the James Daughtrey WMA in McMullen County when he got the boar javelina.

Record book entries in the javelina category are based on skull measurements, and Crook's javelina received a composite score of 12 inches, or 1¼ inches over the minimum to qualify.

The Daughtrey WMA is a Type I wildlife management area, like Bandera County's Hill Country Natural Area.

16-pound bass taken at P' Kingdom

Friday the 13th may be unlucky for some, but is was Scott Tongate's lucky day when he caught the largest bass ever taken in the Western half of Texas.

The 59-year-old Bedford contractor was fishing a plastic worm in Possum Kingdom Reservoir near Tyler on the morning of Oct. 13 when he hooked the biggest bass of his life.

The 16-pounder he boated was not only the biggest ever caught in Possum Kingdom; it is the ninth largest in Texas, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The 26½-inch-long bass is alive and swimming at the department's Tyler Fish Hatchery.

Javelina qualifies for record book

A javelina taken during a public hunt on a Texas Parks and Wildlife Department wildlife management area during February was large enough to qualify for the Safari Club International Record Book of Trophy Animals.

Department officials said Lt. Col. Wilson W. Crook Jr. of Dallas was hunting on the James Daughtrey WMA in McMullen County when he got the boar javelina.

Record book entries in the javelina category are based on skull measurements, and Crook's javelina received a composite score of 12 inches, or 1¼ inches over the minimum to qualify.

The Daughtrey WMA is a Type I wildlife management area, like Bandera County's Hill Country Natural Area.

16-pound bass taken at P' Kingdom

Friday the 13th may be unlucky for some, but is was Scott Tongate's lucky day when he caught the largest bass ever taken in the Western half of Texas.

The 59-year-old Bedford contractor was fishing a plastic worm in Possum Kingdom Reservoir near Tyler on the morning of Oct. 13 when he hooked the biggest bass of his life.

The 16-pounder he boated was not only the biggest ever caught in Possum Kingdom; it is the ninth largest in Texas, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The 26½-inch-long bass is alive and swimming at the department's Tyler Fish Hatchery.

The Bandera Bulletin

Our 46th Year, No. 18 — Thursday, November 16, 1989 — Thirty-five cents

Bandera VFD and Pipe Creek EMTs are among volunteers carrying Sharon Barker to the MAST helicopter after she broke her leg in a freak horse riding accident in the Hill Country State Natural Area. Volunteers carried her over one hill, down a ravine and up another hill to the clearing where the helicopter could land.

Chopper rescues Houston woman injured in horse accident

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

A helicopter rescued a Houston-area woman from a remote location at Hill Country State Natural Area southwest of Bandera after she was injured in a freak horse riding accident at mid-day Friday.

Sharon Barker, 41, of Alvin, called by a friend "an experienced horse rider," broke her leg Friday, Nov. 10, about 11:15 a.m. along a ridge at the boundary of Bandera County's Hill Country State Natural Area when the horse she was walking fell on her leg.

The Hill Country State Natural Area is the former Merrick Ranch at the end of Dixie Dude Road (FM Road 1077) about 11 miles southwest of Bandera.

The injured woman's riding companion, Mary E. Goldman of Friendswood, rode back to the park manager's residence and the park manager summoned help about 11:55 a.m., after which Goldman returned to the shaded site where she had left Barker.

Park attendant Waymon "Pottsie" Groff searched for Barker and Goldman and found them about 1:30 p.m. and recommended a helicopter to get her out.

Pipe Creek and Bandera EMS, physician Royce McAnally and medical staff member Fonda Chesson, Bandera Volunteer Fire Department volunteers, rancher Glynn Rainey, and Department of Public Safety trooper Dan Butts all joined park personnel in rescue efforts as events unfolded.

The area was so remote and the danger of shock so possible, helicopter transport out was the best way, said McAnally.

Once EMS reached her, they splinted the break, and medical personnel stabilized her and set up the IV fluids for the helicopter transport.

Both the tibia and fibula of her lower right leg were broken, says McAnally. "We were concerned about shock" since she had been on the hill for so long, he said.

She had to be carried as much

City eyes $200,000 water bond issue

By Nick Johnson
Editor

Bandera public works director Rey Garcia Monday recommended a bond issue of about $200,000 to finance work on the city's water system that he says is necessary to provide for the city's water needs next summer.

Water rate payers will be called upon to repay the bonds, Garcia said.

The city council Monday authorized Garcia to begin a month-long study by a San Antonio engineering firm of water system needs in the city. It could act on a bond issue as quickly as Dec. 11.

In other action Monday, the council refused to give raises to city secretary Judy Dunn and two police officers, OKed the sale of Karnack Cable Television, voted for a member of the Bandera County Appraisal District, and contributed $300 for decorations for Shoppers Jubilee.

The bonds would finance doubling the amount of surface storage space available and refurbish the system's automatic controls and booster pumps, Garcia says.

It is only the first step of a water system overhaul that Linda Stein estimates will eventually cost $2 million and will include the replacement of much of the 50-year-old distribution system.

Garcia brought three "expert witnesses" with him to council meeting Monday, one who said his main message was "to reassure you that there's nothing wrong with borrowing."

Indeed, said grant consultant Bill Langford of Austin, being in debt up to your ears may even help get a state grant.

"The committee (that approves grants) wants to know what Bandera is doing for itself," Langford told the council. If the city were to borrow money via bonds for the first phase of renewing its water system, it can say in its grant application for funding of succeeding phases, "we've done all we can, now we need some help" via a grant.

Bond specialist Tom Anderlitch told the council its financial statement indicates it "will have no problem being able to handle (pay back) the bonds" and that either bonds or certificates of obligation could be floated for 7½ to 8-percent interest.

He reminded the council that the city's current bonded indebtedness totaled $185,000 that stemmed from the debts and obligations of the old water board which was taken over by the city in about 1983.

That indebtedness matures in 1990 and 1996.

Anderlitch gave council members a chart that showed the amount that would have to be repaid on $200,000 in bonds over 10 and 15 years. "The shorter we can keep the debt," he explained, "the lower the interest and the better it is for you and your water customers."

He also assured the council there would be no difficulty in selling the bonds. "In years past, Bandera banks were anxious to purchase Bandera County bonds," he said.

Water engineer Howard Gattis Sr. of Gattis Engineering Company of San Antonio told the council he would complete a study by Dec. 11 that would show the council what needs to be done to the system and how much of it must be done immediately and be financed by bonds.

There would be no charge for that part of the study, he said.

He attributed most of the current problems with the water system to a lack of storage space, an opinion that Garcia echoed. "Bandera does not have adequate storage to handle its own peak demands," the newly-hired public works director said. "I foresee we could have a very critical time next year, with the racetrack opening up."

Rey Garcia

He said there is a need to construct 300,000 gallons of surface or elevated storage space to augment the 318,000 gallon capacity currently available.

Garcia said he had no idea of how much of a water rate increase would be necessary to repay $200,000 in bonds over 10 or 15 years.

Langford said, however, that Bandera's water rates were lower than most other communities. "You've got room to raise rates and still be kind and fair to customers," he told the council.

Citizens' group juggles options

$3 million elementary school on the wish list

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

Adequate school facilities and school finance are among concerns faced by the Bandera Independent School District Citizens Advisory Team, according to chair Anne Samuel, and options being considered include a 500-student elementary school in Pipe Creek that would cost an estimated $3.1 million.

"I think we have to understand that our fiscal responsibility is at least as important as our academic concerns," said team member Richard Osgood.

According to superintendent of schools Ted Dockery, goals of the group are "to establish a process through which the board might be better informed of community needs and desires; to establish a process through which the community might be better informed of board actions and reasons for those actions; and to allow the community to become a part of the planning and decision-making processes of the district regarding facility needs."

"Our fiscal responsibility is at least as important as our academic concerns," said subcommittee chairman Richard Osgood.

The group had its organizational meeting Nov. 6, and since that time, subcommittees have set meetings to discuss more specific problems at each campus.

"As a parent, I'm concerned for the educational future of my three children," said committee member Darcy Quarles. "Even with the way the economy is in Texas right now, we need to think about and plan for the future."

Chairing the three sub-committees established are Osgood, elementary; Larry Upton, junior high; and Richard Delamain, high school.

All three campuses are facing crowding problems in the immediate future, and the problem of how to finance enlargements and improvements keeps cropping

"Let's get the true facts about everything concerning our school system to people who haven't had them before," said school board member Thomas "Bub" Keese.

Pfluger and Associates Architects/Planning Consultants of Austin studied the elementary and junior high campuses, and came up with several alterna-

On the elementary level, one proposed solution is a six-classroom addition to John T. Elementary School, at a proposed cost of $368,000.

Other options include a new 300-student elementary school, or a 500-student elementary school at Pipe Creek. The smaller school would cost an estimated $2.5 million and the larger school would cost the district about $3.1 million, according to the firm.

At the junior high level, the library and gymnasium are the sites where the costliest renovations are proposed.

Proposed plans ranging in cost from $88,550 to $231,000 might enlarge the library up to 1,610 square feet.

The junior high gymnasium and dressing room facility is one of the areas of greatest need, according to many committee members who have toured the campus. Two proposed renovation and expansion plans range in cost from $176,000 to $220,000.

Other proposed options at the junior high include renovation of restrooms, band hall, and science lab.

"I feel there is a need for a teacher workroom at the elementary school," said teacher Dot Larriger. "Greater than the crowding problem that is developing already at the elementary school are the needs of the district as a whole. The junior high has greater needs than the teacher

Samuel said she felt the school district's needs were so great,

Karr leads balloting for BCAD directors

Three present directors, a Lakehills woman, and a Utopia man were elected to the board of directors of the Bandera County Appraisal District this week amid criticism of the procedure that elected them.

Tax protestor Lousie Karr of Lakehills, with support from the county commissioners and the city of Bandera, was the highest vote getter with 821 votes, including 764 from the county and all of the city's 57 votes. Both entities cast their votes Monday.

Others elected were incumbents Joe Hearn and W.B. Kirkpatrick, both of Bandera, who drew 800 votes each from the Bandera Independent School district, Robert "Sonny" Payne of Bandera, who got 778 votes from Bandera ISD and 378 from Utopia ISD, and Ben Barrow of Utopia, who garnered 421 votes from Bandera ISD and 379 from Utopia ISD.

Appraisal board president Fabian Mazurek did not get a sufficient number of votes for re-election nor did county commissioners Dan Alanis and Roger Raser and Bandera businessman Irvin Stevens, highway department employee Gary Johnston, and rancher Gilbert Scheele. Incumbent Joe Snyder of Utopia did not seek re-election.

Taxing entities are apportioned votes based on their contribution to the appraisal district's budget, which in turn is based on taxable values.

Bandera ISD cast 800 of its 2,660 votes each for Hearn and Kirkpatrick, 300 for Fabian Mazurek, 422 for Payne and 421 for Barrow. That distribution of votes guaranteed the election of

By Dr. Robert Bernstein
Commissioner of Health

More than 700 job-related deaths occur yearly in Texas, more employee deaths than are reported in any other state, says the Texas Department of Health.

These fatalities and the thousands of injuries suffered by Texas' workforce have created a crisis, affecting the state's health care, insurance, and regulatory systems. In response, the state's lawmakers are proposing reforms throughout the Texas workers' compensation system.

However, Dr. Robert Bernstein, Commissioner of Health, has said, "In the search for a better workers' compensation system, thus far the greatest emphasis has been placed on containing costs. There needs to be more attention given to increasing worker safety and on preventing injuries."

After eliminating duplicated cases, victims of heart attacks, and other illnesses not directly related to workplace incidents, a health department study confirmed that 15 people died in 1986 because of traumatic events traced to their work.

Jerry Lauderdale, occupational safety and health division director, said, "These numbers are alarming. But the most disturbing fact is that many of these deaths and countless other occupational injuries and illnesses could be prevented by relatively inexpensive safety measures."

Lauderdale said that the state allocates only about $200,000 yearly for his program. That funding is supplemented by a 90 percent federal match.

"Clearly more funding, people and authority are necessary if we are going to reduce the number of fatalities and injuries in this state's workplaces," Lauderdale said. He added that, "Not only are people being killed and injured at an alarming rate each year in Texas, but also the costs for their care have skyrocketed beyond amounts their employers and insurance companies are able to pay."

The State Board of Insurance confirms that although employers paid premiums in excess of $2.96 billion last year, the insurance companies paid out some $3.16 billion in workers' compensation claims. Some insurance companies now have ceased to offers workers' compensation plans, while others have asked for a dramatic increase in their rates.

The result is that an increasing number of injured employees and the survivors of those who are killed on the job are not being compensated. "Many of them have no recourse but to rely on public assistance to meet their expenses," Lauderdale said.

One solution to the problem of rising insurance rates is injury prevention. Where effective prevention programs are in place, deaths, injuries, and premium rates go down. The state of Oklahoma, for example, suggests that such programs can reduce claims by as much as 50 percent," he added.

State Capitol Highlights

By Lyndell Williams

Texas lawmakers convened in special session to lower rates for workers' compensation insurance amid some predictions they'll fail for the third time.

Of course, they must succeed because too much unfinished business awaits them not too far down the line.

Looming behind workers' comp and its small savings for Texas employers is the prospect of a massive tax increase next spring to equalize state funding for public schools.

Lawmakers will meet in special session then to reapportion school funding before the Texas Supreme Court's May 1 deadline, and some legislators will seek to force a new tax on that agenda.

Those new taxes, they promise, will bring poor school districts up to par with rich districts, as ordered by the court.

Tax Veto Vowed

But Gov. Bill Clements said last week he will veto new taxes, and all but one of the major candidates running to succeed him have promised no new taxes, even in the face of the high court's mandate.

State Treasurer Ann Richards remains the only major candidate willing to embrace new taxes, including an income tax, as a means of equalizing public school funding.

The court didn't order massive new spending or new taxes, but some officials, including Richards, are assuming that's what it will take. One to two billion dollars.

Last week she chided Clements, warning that he will force the funding issue back into court where the judges will take over.

But Clements, who for eight years has coped with the federal court-ordered reform for prisons and mental health facilities, needs no reminders of how expensive court orders can be.

And consider this: Attorney General Jim Mattox, whose agency won the lawsuit at the [illegible] Richards' primary opponent, [illegible] no new taxes and suggested no massive spending.

[illegible] billions of dollars. Is someone making a huge mistake here?

Letters to the editor

Dog lover wishes she could rest easier

Dear editor:

My heart goes out to the Sweeneys. I too have suffered the tragic shooting of a beloved pet. Due to a death in the family, I left my boxer with a friend for two days. The dog was in a strange environment and "wandered" across the road into a pasture and was shot on the spot. The rancher did bring her collar to the sheriff's office, and they in turn notified me.

No sheep were killed, mangled or even chased, but my beautiful dog was dead. She was not running with a pack of others.

We taxpayers spend millions of dollars to defend dope pushers, rapists and murderers because they are "innocent until proven guilty." This is the way it should be. I believe in this law, but maybe it's time our four-legged friends are defended in the same way.

The world will become a much better place and we dog owners could rest easier because we do feel that our pets are a member of our families.

Watch that mandate

Dear editor:

A new campaign has started. This campaign, however, is not a typical political campaign. It is one that will let the politicians know that the local taxpayer has had enough and will not stand for any more.

For years, as local property taxes have increased, the woeful cry of school trustees has been, "We have no choice, this is another state-mandated program that we must fund locally."

Many state officials, including the top state official, have made the statement, "There will be no new taxes." At the same time they were passing very expensive education reforms. Somewhere along the line, these reforms must be paid for, more times than not, at the local level. The unstated message of these officials is very clear — the education of our youth is essential, however, my re-election or my election will be much more difficult if I raise taxes.

The practice of underfunded mandates has reached the point that it can no longer be accepted by local districts and their taxpayers. The Texas Center for Educational Research estimates that these underfunded mandates now account for about 20 percent of local districts' operating costs. Locally, this figure would be in the neighborhood of $1 million.

The 1,065 Texas school districts, along with and through the Texas Association of School Boards, have launched a campaign to deal with this problem. This program will be called "Mandate Watch."

The association will monitor and identify any effort in the direction of underfunded mandates, an alert will be sounded, and everyone will be expected to let their legislators know this mandate will not be tolerated. The battle cry adopted for this campaign is very simple, clear and easily understood. It is simply, "Put your money where your mandates are."

Build schools, not prisons

Dear editor:

Something has gone amiss in the last few years regarding where we as a community and state stand on education and educational facilities vs. prisons and facilities so related.

We are preparing to incarcerate more folks and improve our correctional facilities as is evidenced by the overwhelming passage of proposition No. 8 last Tuesday, which Bandera County passed 1,025 to 719, but we are unwilling to compensate those who are serving on our behalf (Proposition No. 1 was voted down in Bandera County by a margin of 1,279 to 368).

I am certainly not advocating a "bleeding heart" approach to handling and housing criminals. Anything but. However, I do [illegible] directed frustration towards this segment of our society. Our dilemma is whether we as taxpayers want to educate or incarcerate, and our criminals are championed by a variety of groups who are dead set on improving their living conditions and facilities and see as [illegible] are having a hard [illegible] education and education.

I am suggesting that I would prefer to spend my [illegible] their teachers and our public officials who are [illegible] prisoners and law offenders are put in a stockade out in some pasture. We don't seem to mind that our military men are living in barracks and camped-out in some field or cramped-up aboard some ship, and they are there to defend the values this country stands for. Unfortunately, as it now stands, we are mandated by law to provide better than adequate quarters for our prisoners. It's their right. Tsk, tsk.

We as a community must look at our eductional facilities in Bandera County. I would hope that the same electorate will re-examine where the school districts fall into the scheme of things and take an open-minded approach to the need in this community to upgrade present facilities.

Locally, a hold-down-expenses-at-all-costs approach has put the school district in a position where it is going to have to catch up on capital improvement needs that have not been addressed, particularly at the junior high campus. There is not a need to place blame; I think the trustees and superintendent were showing the desires of the school patrons at the time (they took that approach).

I liken the junior high campus to an old neighborhood where most of the best salvageable items have been moved to the newer high school and elementary school. What is left behind is a make-do situation, for the sixth and seventh graders in particular, with antiquated buildings and make-do accomodations. You must come visit this campus.

When the time comes, I hope the same electorate that has no qualms about signing a blank check for building better facilities for our criminals will give the same consideration to the school district and re-examine where educating and housing our young folks for this purpose fits into the overall scheme of things.

An open-eyed and open-minded examination of the needs now and in the future is needed by this district and those of us who are paying the bills. A physical examination of the junior high campus will be a real eye-opener.

Please become a part of the planning and decison making processes of the district regarding facility needs. Contact the Bandera ISD for information on how you can become involved.

A plea of desperation

Dear editor:

I am a 34-year-old indigent inmate at the Indiana Department of Corrections. I don't have anyone writing me or visiting me. I don't have any family and it seems as though the friends I once had only lasted as long as I could pay the tab.

I've written to different people, anyone who I felt might remember some bond of friendship, but night after night passes without any response. I've been forgotten and it really hurts.

Quite frankly, this is a horrible and lonely environment. Seeing other men around me getting letters and visits from family and loved ones puts me in some sad and depressed moods. The worst feeling in the world is being alone and forgotten. It would mean a great deal to me if I had someone simply to correspond with.

I am a white male, single, 5-11 and 180 pounds. I'm dark complected with light brown hair and blue eyes. I'm muscular built and I wear a moustache. I am very easy going, with a pleasant personality. I love music and playing rhythm guitar, hunting, fishing and basically all sports. I lift weights and play handball to help fight stress and tension.

I've attended heating and air conditioning school here at the vocational college and presently I am attending a welding course, working towards my degree. I am putting my life back in proper perspective.

I am not in here for any hideous crime. I had a serious drinking problem, but with the aid of counseling, I realized my mistakes and have overcome my problem.

I hope you can find it in your heart to publish this in your paper, perhaps sparking an interest in someone who feels or has felt the loneliness I live with daily. I sadly regret I am unable to pay for this letter. Frankly, I only earn $13 a month for going to school.

I am not prejudiced or biased and will promptly answer averyone who responds to my plea of desperation.

Candles will light Shoppers Jubilee

"The whole street will be like daylight," said Linda Romjue, "and the courthouse will postcard pretty."

She was describing the effect of hundreds, perhaps thousands, of luminarias that will adorn Main Street and courthouse square for the annual Shoppers' Jubilee in Bandera Friday, Dec. 1.

And while candles shrouded in paper sacks will decorate shops, the courthouse square, and both sides of Main Street, there will not be a traditional Christmas decorating contest this year.

Instead, activities will be centered around the courthouse, with a band concert by the Bandera High School Band on the grounds; a candlelight parade encircling the seat of government, with all participants afoot or astride horses; Santa and Mrs. Claus visiting children in their own little courthouse cottage; carolling; and the lighting of the town's Christmas tree across the street.

After the hour-long courthouse area festivities, the merriment will shift to the downtown stores from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., Romjue says, where most businesses will conduct open houses, several will have their own versions of Santa Claus available to consult with children, and all are being urged to slash their prices in an effort to keep Bandera Christmas shopping money in Bandera.

The centerpoint of the celebration will be the luminarias, which are votive candles flickering through paper bags. The candles are anchored in two inches of sand in the bottom of each sack.

The devices are a traditional Mexican holiday decoration.

Dog catcher put on hold once again

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Bandera County Commissioners Monday, Nov. 13, again held off making a decision on dog control, asking both veterinarians in the county to come up with a contract proposal for animal control.

Veterinarian Conrad Nightingale told commissioners that there needs to be a change in the dog registration law so that the $1 fee collected on each dog in the county will be used for more constructive purposes than paying for animals killed by roaming dogs.

Nightingale said the current reimbursement procedure is a negative approach similar to "shutting the door after the horse has left the barn."

He said the money should be used to build a facility to house stray animals. "We need to spend the money on control," he said.

The dog registration law will have to be changed before those funds can be used for a facility, Bandera County Judge Ray F. Mauer said.

Nightingale told commissioners he was doing his part in animal control by his pet adoption program that has been in operation for over a year and by registering all dogs that are vaccinated at his clinic by county residents.

He also estimated that less than 30 percent of all dogs had tags and urged registration in Bandera county.

The county cannot justify a full-time employee to catch stray dogs, but would rather contract with one of the veterinarians to perform the service, said commissioner Roger Raser.

Nightingale said he wasn't concerned about profit or whether he or veterinarian Steve Sells ran the dog control project. "I want to get something started," he said.

In another matter, commissioners set a closing date of Dec. 15 for the Medina landfill.

The county must still develop a plan to close the dump and the state must approve it.

Commissioners also set Dec. 15 as the date by which they will have the underground fuel tank at the Medina yard removed, in order to comply with new state regulations.

Commissioners plan to have the 1,000 gallon fuel tank at the main county yard in Bandera tested and placed back into service. They will have to do soil testing to ensure the tank is not leaking and polluting the soil.

In a law enforcement matter, commissioners approved drawing up an annual task force agreement between Bandera County and Kerr County so Sheriff R.S. "Steve" Forest could use an undercover officer from Kerr County in undercover operations and Kerr County could use a Bandera County officer in cases involving multi-county crimes.

In other law enforcement matters, commissioners approved an additional telephone line into the sheriff's department that would circumvent the current telephone system. Forest told commissioners that the telephone system had gone out four times recently and they were only left with the fire phone for calls. One time, the phone had been out for two hours.

In a courthouse matter, commissioners designated the stairwell leading to the district court-room and the area around the soda water vending machine as a smoking area in the courthouse. Federal law requires all public buildings to be non-smoking and a place be designated for smokers, saya Mauer.

In subdivision matters, commissioners returned to acreage the Ranger Ranch subdivision. The 75 acres are all owned by one man who requested the subdivision cancellation, attorney Ron Jackson assured the commissioners.

Commissioners gave the district and county judge the authority to waive the filing fee for people that cannot afford it on a case-by-case basis.

In executive session, commissioners reviewed the lawsuits against the county with Bandera County Attorney Sam Darden.

Setting it straight

According to Bandera Downs owner Stan Scruby, Alfredo Villareal, who was arrested in Bandera last week on drug-related charges, has never been an employee of Bandera Downs as was reported in the Bulletin. The story quoted Bandera County Sheriff's sergeant Jim Kimbrell, who said Villareal had worked at Bandera Downs "on and off."

Monday, sheriff Steve Forest confirmed that Villareal told officials he had worked at the race track, and that is what they based the report on.

"(Villareal) owns horses on the grounds, but he has never worked for Bandera Downs as a contractor, employee, or anything," Scruby said.

Forest said that after the state comptroller's office collects unpaid taxes, there will probably not be much left of the money and property seized in the arrest, and that the county will probably not "see any of the money."

By Dr. Robert Bernstein
Commissioner of Health

More than 700 job-related deaths occur yearly in Texas, more employee deaths than are reported in any other state, says the Texas Department of Health.

These fatalities and the thousands of injuries suffered by Texas' workforce have created a crisis, affecting the state's health care, insurance, and regulatory systems. In response, the state's lawmakers are proposing reforms throughout the Texas workers' compensation system.

However, Dr. Robert Bernstein, Commissioner of Health, has said, "In the search for a better workers' compensation system, thus far the greatest emphasis has been placed on containing costs. There needs to be more attention given to increasing worker safety and on preventing injuries."

After eliminating duplicated cases, victims of heart attacks, and other illnesses not directly related to workplace incidents, a health department study confirmed that 719 people died in 1986 because of traumatic events traced to their work.

Jerry Lauderdale, occupational safety and health division director, said, "These numbers are alarming. But the most disturbing fact is that many of these deaths and countless other occupational injuries and illnesses could be prevented by relatively inexpensive safety measures."

Lauderdale said that the state allocates only about $200,000 yearly for his program. That funding is supplemented by a 90 percent federal match.

"Clearly more funding, people and authority are necessary if we are going to reduce the number of fatalities and injuries in this state's workplaces," Lauderdale said. He added that, "Not only are people being killed and injured at an alarming rate each year in Texas, but also the costs for their care have skyrocketed beyond amounts their employers and insurance companies are able to pay."

The State Board of Insurance confirms that although employers paid premiums in excess of $2.96 billion last year, the insurance companies paid out some $3.16 billion in workers' compensation claims. Some insurance companies now have ceased to offers workers' compensation plans, while others have asked for a dramatic increase in their rates.

The result is that an increasing number of injured employees and the survivors of those who are killed on the job are not being compensated. "Many of them have no recourse but to rely on public assistance to meet their expenses," Lauderdale said.

"One solution to the problem of rising insurance rates is injury prevention. Where effective prevention programs are in place, deaths, injuries, and premium rates go down. The state of Oklahoma, for example, suggests that such programs can reduce claims by as much as 50 percent," he added.

Highlights

By Lyndell Williams

Texas lawmakers convened in special session to lower rates for workers' compensation insurance amid some predictions they'll fail for the third time.

Of course, they must succeed because too much unfinished business awaits them not too far down the line.

Looming behind workers' comp and its small savings for Texas employers is the prospect of a massive tax increase next spring to equalize state funding for public schools.

Lawmakers will meet in special session then to reapportion school funding before the Texas Supreme Court's May 1 deadline, and some legislators will seek to force a new tax on that agenda.

Those new taxes, they promise, will bring poor school districts up to par with rich districts, as ordered by the court.

Tax Veto Vowed

But Gov. Bill Clements said last week he will veto new taxes, and all but one of the major candidates running to succeed him have promised no new taxes, even in the face of the high court's mandate.

State Treasurer Ann Richards remains the only major candidate willing to embrace new taxes, including an income tax, as a means of equalizing public school funding.

The court didn't order massive new spending or new taxes, but some officials, including Richards, are assuming that's what it will take. One to two billion dollars.

Last week she chided Clements, warning that he will force the funding issue back into court where the judges will take over.

But Clements, who for eight years has coped with the federal court-ordered reform for prisons and mental health facilities, needs no reminders of how expensive court orders can be.

And consider this: Attorney General Jim Mattox, whose agency won the lawsuit at the [illegible] Richards' primary opponent, he has also [illegible]

The two schools of thought are apart by billions of dollars. Is someone making a huge mistake here?

Candles will light Shoppers Jubilee

"The whole street will be like daylight," said Linda Romjue, "and the courthouse will postcard pretty."

She was describing the effect of hundreds, perhaps thousands, of luminarias that will adorn Main Street and courthouse square for the annual Shoppers' Jubilee in Bandera Friday, Dec. 1.

And while candles shrouded in paper sacks will decorate shops, the courthouse square, and both sides of Main Street, there will not be a traditional Christmas decorating contest this year.

Instead, activities will be centered around the courthouse, with a band concert by the Bandera High School Band on the grounds; a candlelight parade encircling the seat of government, with all participants afoot or astride horses; Santa and Mrs. Claus visiting children in their own little courthouse cottage; carolling; and the lighting of the town's Christmas tree across the street.

After the hour-long courthouse area festivities, the merriment will shift to the downtown stores from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., Romjue says, where most businesses will conduct open houses, several will have their own versions of Santa Claus available to consult with children, and all are being urged to slash their prices in an effort to keep Bandera Christmas shopping money in Bandera.

The centerpoint of the celebration will be the luminarias, which are votive candles flickering through paper bags. The candles are anchored in two inches of sand in the bottom of each sack.

The devices are a traditional Mexican holiday decoration.

Dog catcher put on hold once again

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Bandera County Commissioners Monday, Nov. 13, again held off making a decision on dog control, asking both veterinarians in the county to come up with a contract proposal for animal control.

Veterinarian Conrad Nightingale told commissioners that there needs to be a change in the dog registration law so that the $1 fee collected on each dog in the county will be used for more constructive purposes than paying for animals killed by roaming dogs.

Nightingale said the current reimbursement procedure is a negative approach similar to "shutting the door after the horse has left the barn."

He said the money should be used to build a facility to house stray animals. "We need to spend the money on control," he said.

The dog registration law will have to be changed before those funds can be used for a facility, Bandera County Judge Ray F. Mauer said.

Nightingale told commissioners he was doing his part in animal control by his pet adoption program that has been in operation for over a year and by registering all dogs that are vaccinated at his clinic by county residents.

He also estimated that less than 30 percent of all dogs had county registration in Bandera county.

The county cannot justify a full-time employee to catch stray dogs, but would rather contract with one of the veterinarians to perform the service, said commissioner Roger Raser.

Nightingale said he wasn't concerned about profit or whether he or veterinarian Steve Sells ran the dog control project. "I want to get something started," he said.

In another matter, commissioners set a closing date of Dec. 15 for the Medina landfill.

The county must still develop a plan to close the dump and the state must approve it.

Commissioners also set Dec. 15 as the date by which they will have the underground fuel tank at the Medina yard removed, in order to comply with new state regulations.

Commissioners plan to have the 1,000 gallon fuel tank at the main county yard in Bandera tested and placed back into service. They will have to do soil testing to ensure the tank is not leaking and polluting the soil.

In a law enforcement matter, commissioners approved drawing up an annual task force agreement between Bandera County and Kerr County so Sheriff R.S. "Steve" Forest could use an undercover officer from Kerr County in undercover operations and Kerr County could use a Bandera County officer in cases involving multi-county crimes.

In other law enforcement matters, commissioners approved an additional telephone line into the sheriff's department that would circumvent the current telephone system. Forest told commissioners that the telephone system had gone out four times recently and they were only left with the fire phone for calls. One time, the phone had been out for two hours.

In a courthouse matter, commissioners designated the stairwell leading to the district courtroom and the area around the soda water vending machine as a smoking area in the courthouse. Federal law requires all public buildings to be non-smoking and a place be designated for smokers, says Mauer.

In subdivision matters, commissioners returned to acreage the Ranger Ranch subdivision. The 75 acres are all owned by one man who requested the subdivision cancellation, attorney Ron Jackson assured the commissioners.

Commissioners gave the district and county judge the authority to waive the filing fee for people that cannot afford it on a case-by-case basis.

In executive session, commissioners reviewed the lawsuits against the county with Bandera County Attorney Sam Darden.

Setting it straight

According to Bandera Downs owner Stan Scruby, Alfredo Villareal, who was arrested in Bandera last week on drug related charges, has never been an employee of Bandera Downs as was reported in the Bulletin. The story quoted Bandera County Sheriff's sergeant Jim Kimbrell, who said Villareal had worked at Bandera Downs "on and off."

Monday, sheriff Steve Forest confirmed that Villareal told officials he had worked at the race track, and that is what they based the report on.

"(Villareal) owns horses on the grounds, but he has never worked for Bandera Downs as a contractor, employee, or anything," Scruby said.

Forest said that after the state comptroller's office collects unpaid taxes, there will probably not be much left of the money and property seized in the arrest, and that the county will probably not "see any of the money."

I am certainly not advocating a "bleeding heart" approach to handling and housing criminals. However, I see a lot of misdirected frustration towards this segment of our society. Our dilemma is whether we as taxpayers want to educate or incarcerate, and our criminals are championed by a variety of groups who are dead set on improving their living conditions and [illegible] are not even considered. I have a hard time financing incarceration and education.

More than 700 job-related deaths occur yearly in Texas, more employee deaths than are reported in any other state, says the Texas Department of Health.

These fatalities and the thousands of injuries suffered by Texas' workforce have created a crisis, affecting the state's health care, insurance, and regulatory systems. In response, the state's lawmakers are proposing reforms throughout the Texas workers' compensation system.

However, Dr. Robert Bernstein, Commissioner of Health, has said, "In the search for a better workers' compensation system, thus far the greatest emphasis has been placed on containing costs. There needs to be more attention given to increasing worker safety and on preventing injuries."

After eliminating duplicated cases, victims of heart attacks, and other illnesses not directly related to workplace incidents, a health department study confirmed that 715 people died in 1986 because of traumatic events traced to their work.

Jerry Lauderdale, occupational safety and health division director, said, "These numbers are alarming. But the most disturbing fact is that many of these deaths and countless other occupational injuries and illnesses could be prevented by relatively inexpensive safety measures."

Lauderdale said that the state allocates only about $200,000 yearly for his program. That funding is supplemented by a 90 percent federal match.

"Clearly more funding, people and authority are necessary if we are going to reduce the number of fatalities and injuries in this state's workplaces," Lauderdale said. He added that, "Not only are people being killed and injured at an alarming rate each year in Texas, but also the costs for their care have skyrocketed beyond amounts their employers and insurance companies are able to pay."

The State Board of Insurance confirms that although employers paid premiums in excess of $2.96 billion last year, the insurance companies paid out some $3.16 billion in workers' compensation claims. Some insurance companies now have ceased to offers workers' compensation plans, while others have asked for a dramatic increase in their rates.

The result is that an increasing number of injured employees and the survivors of those who are killed on the job are not being compensated. "Many of them have no recourse but to rely on public assistance to meet their expenses," Lauderdale said.

"One solution to the problem of rising insurance rates is injury prevention. Where effective prevention programs are in place, deaths, injuries, and premium rates go down. The state of Oklahoma, for example, suggests that such programs can reduce claims by as much as 50 percent," he added.

Letters to the editor

Dog lover wishes she could rest easier

Dear editor:

My heart goes out to the Sweeneys. I too have suffered the tragic shooting of a beloved pet. Due to a death in the family, I left my boxer with a friend for two days. The dog was in a strange environment and "wandered" across the road into a pasture and was shot on the spot. The rancher did bring her collar to the sheriff's office, and they in turn notified me.

No sheep were killed, mangled or even chased, but my beautiful dog was dead. She was not running with a pack of others.

We taxpayers spend millions of dollars to defend dope pushers, rapists and murderers because they are "innocent until proven guilty." This is the way it should be. I believe in this law, but maybe it's time our four-legged friends are defended in the same way.

The world will become a much better place and we dog owners could rest easier because we do feel that our pets are a member of our families.

Watch that mandate

Dear editor:

A new campaign has started. This campaign, however, is not a typical political campaign. It is one that will let the politicians know that the local taxpayer has had enough and will not stand for any more.

For years, as local property taxes have increased, the woeful cry of school trustees has been, "We have no choice, this is another state-mandated program that we must fund locally."

Many state officials, including the top state official, have made the statement, "There will be no new taxes." At the same time they were passing very expensive education reforms. Somewhere along the line, these reforms must be paid for, more times than not, at the local level. The unstated message of these officials is very clear — the education of our youth is essential, however, my re-election or my election will be much more difficult if I raise taxes.

The practice of underfunded mandates has reached the point that it can no longer be accepted by local districts and their taxpayers. The Texas Center for Educational Research estimates that these underfunded mandates now account for about 20 percent of local districts' operating costs. Locally, this figure would be in the neighborhood of $1 million.

The 1,065 Texas school districts, along with and through the Texas Association of School Boards, have launched a campaign to deal with this problem. This program will be called "Mandate Watch."

The association will monitor and identify any effort in the direction of underfunded mandates, an alert will be sounded, and everyone will be expected to let their legislators know this mandate will not be tolerated. The battle cry adopted for this campaign is very simple, clear and easily understood. It is simply, "Put your money where your mandates are."

Build schools, not prisons

Dear editor:

Something has gone amiss in the last few years regarding where we as a community and state stand on education and educational facilities vs. prisons and facilities so related.

We are preparing to incarcerate more folks and improve our correctional facilities as is evidenced by the overwhelming passage of proposition No. 8 last Tuesday, which Bandera County passed 1,025 to 719, but we are unwilling to compensate those our military men are living in barracks and camped-out in some field or cramped-up aboard some ship, and they are there to defend the values this country stands for. Unfortunately, as it now stands, we are mandated by law to provide better than adequate quarters for our prisoners. It's their right. Tsk, tsk.

We as a community must look at our educational facilities in Bandera County. I would hope that the same electorate will re-examine where the school districts fall into the scheme of things and take an open-minded approach to the need in this community to upgrade present facilities.

Locally, a hold-down-expenses-at-all-costs approach has put the school district in a position where it is going to have to catch up on capital improvement needs that have not been addressed, particularly at the junior high campus. There is not a need to place blame; I think the trustees and superintendent were showing the desires of the school patrons at the time (they took that approach).

I liken the junior high campus to an old neighborhood where most of the best salvageable items have been moved to the newer high school and elementary school. What is left behind is a make-do situation, for the sixth and seventh graders in particular, with antiquated buildings and make-do accomodations. You must come visit this campus.

When the time comes, I hope the same electorate that has no qualms about signing a blank check for building better facilities for our criminals will give the same consideration to the school district and re-examine where educating and housing our young folks for this purpose fits into the overall scheme of things.

An open-eyed and open-minded examination of the needs now and in the future is needed by this district and those of us who are paying the bills. A physical examination of the junior high campus will be a real eye-opener.

Please become a part of the planning and decision making processes of the district regarding facility needs. Contact the Bandera ISD for information on how you can become involved.

A plea of desperation

Dear editor:

I am a 34-year-old indigent inmate at the Indiana Department of Corrections. I don't have anyone writing me or visiting me. I don't have any family and it seems as though the friends I once had only lasted as long as I could pay the tab.

I've written to different people, anyone who'd felt might remember some bond of friendship, but night after night passes without any response. I've been forgotten and it really hurts.

Quite franky, this is a horrible and lonely environment. Seeing other men around me getting letters and visits from family and loved ones puts me in some sad and depressed moods. The worst feeling in the world is being alone and forgotten. It would mean a great deal to me if I had someone simply to correspond with.

I am a white male, single, 5-11 and 180 pounds. I'm dark complected with light brown hair and blue eyes. I'm muscular built and I wear a moustache. I am very easy going, with a pleasant personality. I love music and playing rhythm guitar, hunting, fishing and basically all sports. I lift weights and play handball to help fight stress and tension.

I've attended heating and air conditioning school here at the vocational college and presently I am attending a welding course, working towards my degree. I am putting my life back in proper perspective.

I am not in here for any hideous crime. I had a serious drinking problem, but with the aid of counseling, I realized my mistakes and have overcome my problem.

I hope you can find it in your heart to publish this in your paper, perhaps sparking an interest in someone who feels or has felt the loneliness I live with daily. I sadly regret I am unable to pay for this letter. Frankly, I only earn $13 a month for going to school.

I am not prejudiced or biased and will promptly answer averyone who responds to my plea of desperation.

Dog catcher put on hold once again

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Bandera County Commissioners Monday, Nov. 13, again held off making a decision on dog control, asking both veterinarians in the county to come up with a contract proposal for animal control.

Veterinarian Conrad Nightingale told commissioners that there needs to be a change in the dog registration law so that the $1 fee collected on each dog in the county will be used for more constructive purposes than paying for animals killed by roaming dogs.

Nightingale said the current reimbursement procedure is a negative approach similar to "shutting the door after the horse has left the barn."

He said the money should be used to build a facility to house stray animals. "We need to spend the money on control," he said.

The dog registration law will have to be changed before those funds can be used for a facility, Bandera County Judge Ray F. Mauer said.

Nightingale told commissioners he was doing his part in animal control by his pet adoption program that has been in operation for over a year and by registering all dogs that are vaccinated at his clinic by county residents.

He also estimated that less than 30 percent of all dogs had county registration in Bandera county.

The county cannot justify a full-time employee to catch stray dogs, he said, but rather contract with one of the veterinarians to perform the service, said commissioner Roger Raser.

Nightingale said he wasn't concerned about profit or whether he or veterinarian Steve Sells ran the dog control project. "I want to get something started," he said.

In another matter, commissioners set a closing date of Dec. 15 for the Medina landfill.

The county must still develop a plan to close the dump and the state must approve it.

Commissioners also set Dec. 15 as the date by which they will have the underground fuel tank at the Medina yard removed in order to comply with new state regulations.

Commissioners plan to have the 1,000 gallon fuel tank at the main county yard in Bandera tested and placed back into service. They will have to do soil testing to ensure the tank is not leaking and polluting the soil.

In a law enforcement matter, commissioners approved drawing up an annual task force agreement between Bandera County and Kerr County so Sheriff R.S. "Steve" Forest could use an undercover officer from Kerr County in undercover operations and Kerr County could use a Bandera County officer in cases involving multi-county crimes.

In other law enforcement matters, commissioners approved an additional telephone line into the sheriff's department that would circumvent the current telephone system. Forest told commissioners that the telephone system had gone out four times recently and they were only left with the fire phone for calls. One time, the phone had been out for two hours.

In a courthouse matter, commissioners designated the stairwell leading to the district clerk's room and the area around the soda water vending machine as a smoking area in the courthouse. Federal law requires all public buildings to be non-smoking and a place be designated for smokers, says Mauer.

In subdivision matters, commissioners returned to acreage the Ranger Ranch subdivision. One lot owners are all owned by one man who requested the subdivision cancellation, attorney Ron Jackson assured the commissioners.

Commissioners gave the district and county judge the authority to waive the filing fee for people that cannot afford it on a case-by-case basis.

In executive session, commissioners reviewed the lawsuits against the county with Bandera County Attorney Sam Darden.

Candles will light Shoppers Jubilee

"The whole street will be like daylight," said Linda Romjue, "and the courthouse will postcard pretty."

She was describing the effect of hundreds, perhaps thousands, of luminarias that will adorn Main Street and courthouse square for the annual Shoppers' Jubilee in Bandera Friday, Dec. 1.

And while candles shrouded in paper sacks will decorate shops, the courthouse square, and both sides of Main Street, there will not be a traditional Christmas decorating contest this year.

Instead, activities will be centered around the courthouse, with a band concert by the Bandera High School Band on the grounds; a candlelight parade encircling the seat of government, with all participants afoot or astride horses; Santa and Mrs. Claus visiting children in their own little courthouse cottage; caroling; and the lighting of the town's Christmas tree across the street.

After the hour-long courthouse area festivities, the merriment will shift to the downtown scene from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., Romjue says, where most businesses will conduct open houses, several will have their own versions of Santa Claus available to consult with children, and all are being urged to slash their prices in an effort to keep Bandera Christmas shopping money in Bandera.

The centerpoint of the celebration will be the luminarias, which are votive candles flickering through paper bags. The candles are anchored in two inches of sand in the bottom of each sack.

The devices are a traditional Mexican holiday decoration.

Setting it straight

According to Bandera Downs owner Stan Scruby, Alfredo Villareal, who was arrested in Bandera last week on drug-related charges, has never been an employee of Bandera Downs as was reported in the Bulletin. The story quoted Bandera County Sheriff's sergeant Jim Kimbrell, who said Villareal had worked at Bandera Downs "on and off."

Monday, sheriff Steve Forest confirmed that Villareal told officials he had worked at the race track, and that is what they based the report on.

"(Villareal) owns horses on the grounds, but he has never worked for Bandera Downs as a contractor, employee, or anything," Scruby said.

Forest said that after the state comptroller's office collects unpaid taxes, there will probably not be much left of the money and property seized in the arrest, and that the county will probably not "see any of the money."

as a ½ mile from the side of a mountain, through a ravine, and up to a clearing on the mountain so the helicopter could take her to the hospital.

The MAST helicopter reached the site about 3 p.m. Its arrival was delayed until a suitable landing site could be found.

The helicopter was called because Barker was so far from roads and conventional trails, not because she was in a hard-to-reach location, said Groff. "There was no way to carry her out of the place," he said. Barker was about ½ miles from the nearest location that could be reached by the ambulance.

"We were following the fence line to orient me with the park," says Goldman, as she recalls the accident. Barker had ridden in the park twice before and Goldman is working on a book about horse riding in Texas, she says.

At the far north corner of the park, Barker's horse slipped and fell on a flat rock, knocking Barker down and pinning her leg between a rock and the horse, says Goldman. "I heard the leg snap and knew it was broken," she says.

The horse scrambled to its feet and it was fine, says Goldman.

Goldman says she splinted Barker's leg with cedar branches and got her comfortable. The fractures were not compound and didn't break the skin, says Goldman, who says she used to be a paramedic.

Goldman rode her horse to the park manager's residence where Norah Ledwig, the park manager's wife, called the park headquarters from where EMS was summoned.

Goldman and Ledwig drove by jeep to within about 1¼ miles of the accident, where Goldman went on foot to rejoin her friend. "I came back as fast as I could," says Goldman.

After Groff got the call, he says he followed the jeep tracks and horse tracks to near the accident site. "I got to the top of a hill and called out," says Groff, and then he heard them calling back.

Groff then returned to where [illegible] to call for a helicopter, realizing Barker couldn't be brought down to the road.

"It would be more damaging to carry her out," says Goldman.

After getting word to rescuers, Groff returned and found Barker. Groff stayed with Barker and Goldman and held Barker's hand the entire time, says Goldman. He stayed with her, even when other rescuers arrived, she adds. "He was worth his weight in gold."

Four people rolled Barker into a Stokes basket after Pipe Creek and Bandera EMTs splinted her leg. Goldman described a Stokes basket as body-length basket built like a cot and shaped like a canoe.

While in the basket, she was lifted over a fence and carried at least 300 yards over a hilltop, down a ravine, and to the clearing on the hill where the helicopter could land, says Goldman.

The helicopter was on the ground for no more than 10 minutes, Goldman reports. "It was the fastest move-out I've ever seen," she adds.

Goldman rode in the helicopter to Medical Center Hospital in San Antonio belted on what she describes as "a little seat facing out." She says the experience was at first exciting, but quickly turned into a "white knuckle experience" as she sat in the helicopter in the open compartment while she held her cowboy hat between her knees.

Barker's comment on the ride was, "Windy."

Goldman says the experience could have been worse, because she rode her horse too fast and too hard to get to help. "This could have been so awful. We are so lucky," she says.

Goldman says she fell off the horse once when she was riding for help, even though she knew better than to ride that fast.

She adds that the accident Barker had could have happened to anyone, even a backpacker.

Barker was treated at Bexar County Medical Center in San Antonio and released Sunday, Nov. 12.

Goldman is working on a book about five areas in Texas for trail riding. Her book will include Bandera's Hill Country Natural Area along with Big Bend National Park, Palo Duro Canyon State Park, Davy Crockett Forest, and Sam Rayburn State Park.

"There are so few place to ride horses in Texas," she says.

School

that a maximum effort was necessary in order to give students the chance to be all they can be.

"If we really support education, then we must support the idea that our school facilities are in serious need of improvement," Samuel said. "Our junior high students deserve the good quality surroundings that foster pride.

"Our elementary enrollment continues to increase, and we must provide space for these young ones to grow and learn," she said. "Our high school is the last stop before entering the tough, competitive workplace, and we must do what we can to make sure each student is prepared.

"It takes commitment," Samuel said. "It takes good facilities, it takes a dedication to excellence on the part of each person in this district."

Citizens Advisory Committee members include Gwen Akin, Celeste Burch, Joe Cantu, David Coover, Alan and Virginia Davis, Louis and Marilyn DuBose, Richard Dugosh, Bunnie Erfurt, Theresa Evans, Ken Finley, Kathleen Gundermann and Kay Heisler.

ell and Dorothy Darden traded votes on salary increases with the result that neither of two pay hikes were passed.

Mayor Raymond Adamietz pushed hard for a $114-per-month raise for city secretary Judy Dunn, who is now paid $1,086 per month, and police chief Walter Welch recommended $50-per-month raises for officers Doyle Brooks and Charles M. "Mike" Bolton.

Council members Robert Skinner and Charles Eckhart steadfastly remained opposed to all three increases "at this time," but Dowell voted against a raise for Dunn and for the police officers' increases. Darden voted for an increase for Dunn and against a raise for the policemen. "I don't know either man," the newly-appointed council member said.

Bob Singer of Mission Cable Company said his firm will not change the rates or the fare available to cable subscribers for at least six months after his company purchases Karnack Cable Company. He said his company is only a year old and has been growing by purchasing other systems such as Karnack.

A provision of the city's cable franchise agreement provides that the city must approve the sale of the company. The cable system was originated here as Star Cable TV in 1981 and sold to Karnack in 1986.

The council delayed approving a request by Bungy Grant to subdivide two river loop area lots into square-foot plots to be sold to tourists as "the smallest subdivision in Texas." It also put off accepting the annual audit report of Percival, McGrine and Co. of San Antonio.

Though it agreed to retain veteran city treasurer Margaret Callahan on the payroll through June 30, the council postponed action on her request for retirement until she submits an amended version specifying the new date.

The council OKed a request from Tom Laxson of the Planning and Zoning Commission to advertise for voluntary applications for historic site designation in the city and for persons interested in being appointed to the commission. The terms of Laxson and chamber secretary Nancy Hopes expire in January.

It also OKed a study of street lighting needs in the city.

The council also agreed in principal to name the Bandera Fire House in honor of the late Frank H. Mansfield, founder of the Bandera VFD. Councilman Ross Bailey submitted a draft resolution recognizing Mansfield and directing that an appropriate sign be erected. Final action is expected Dec. 11

Mayor Adamietz announced that 20 persons answered advertising for a park project manager and he scheduled a special meeting for 8 p.m. Monday, Nov. 20, to pick a winning candidate.

It also backed the mayor who said he planned to write letters urging congress to overturn proposed EPA landfill regulations.

Karr

Barrow.

Bandera County cast 764 of its 1,586 votes for Karr and 762 for one of its own, commissioner Dan Alanis of Lakehills.

Medina ISD cast its 378 votes for Payne and Utopia ISD cast its 379 votes for Barrow. The city of Bandera cast its 57 votes for Karr to give her the highest total.

Alanis was a part of a suit against the appraisal district last year, and both he and Karr were questioned by commissioners about their involvement in suits against the district. Each told commissioners Monday they did not have lawsuits pending at the present time.

Karr acknowledged that her husband, Norman Mansfield, recently elected Springhills Water Management District director, does have a suit pending, and she said she will not participate in matters involving that suit.

Alanis said he has withdrawn his name from the suit filed last year against the district, but he told other commissioners that his wife and brother-in-law own the property involved in an appraisal district lawsuit.

Commissioner Roger Raser, who was also a nominee for the appraisal district, said the commissioners would prefer to have one taxing entity, one vote, but were afraid Bandera ISD would try and get a majority on the board.

"I am disappointed (the voting) is set up this way. It should be one entity, one vote," said Raser.

"We all (commissioners) feel that way," agreed Bandera County Judge Ray F. Mauer. "We have voted for one candidate in the past," said Mauer.

The county cast a slightly different vote for two candidates because "we didn't want to have a tie," said Alanis.

In separate action Monday, the city of Bandera cast its 57 votes for Karr, giving her the highest total votes at 821.

Councilman Ross Bailey wanted to cast Bandera's sparse number of votes for their nominee, Irvin Stevens, but the other council members convinced him that it would be best to put their votes behind a candidate that would be able to get on the board.

The Bandera ISD school board also cast their votes Monday. It had nominated Hearn, Kirkpatrick and Mazurek in October, but the trustees' luke-warm support of Mazurek sealed his defeat.

Bandera ISD Superintendent Ted Dockery said the board had no desire to dominate the BCAD board of directors, and they gave votes to Payne and Barrow so that the "other parts of the county would have a chance of being represented."

He said they gave Hearn and Kirkpatrick 800 votes each because they wanted to make sure they were elected.

Bandera County Commissioners had nominated Gary Johnston and Gilbert Scheele as their nominees in addition to Karr, Raser, and Alanis.

Park inventory now under way

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department is renewing efforts to catalog, conserve and interpret all occurrences of rare species and significant natural communities on all of its lands.

During the 1989 field season the emphasis was on state park lands, department officials said. Major habitat types and natural communities within the habitat have been cataloged in approximately 45 parks. In addition, plant species lists have been compiled from existing data plus records collected during the current survey.

The Resource Protection Division's Texas Natural Heritage Program will be the repository for all information on these important natural resources. The results of this inventory will help the department manage for rare species, produce interpretive materials such as plant lists and descriptions of natural habitats for state parks and wildlife management area visitors, and establish a data base for setting future conservation priorities.
