Utopia woman wins big at Ruidoso

Billye Porter of Utopia, a regular in the grandstand at Ruidoso Downs in New Mexico, Sunday, July 29, won a $21,000 Custom Chevrolet pickup truck in a drawing at the race track.

The winner had to be present to win, and Billye and her husband, J.E., were in the stands when her name was drawn. The truck is now at their small Utopia ranch, track officials said.

The Porters have been fairly regular patrons of the New Mexico track since 1966, when they came there the first time to watch a friend's horse run. Now they take advantage of the cooler temperatures in the mountain resort area to escape the Texas heat, track officials said. hold season tickets in the Ruidoso Downs grandstands.

They were scheduled to pose for pictures in the winners' circle on that first visit to Ruidoso Downs in 1966, but their friend's horse never made it to the circle that day.

"We came out with some friends who had a horse in the Governor's Handicap in 1966," said J.E. Porter. "It was one of the favorites and we expected to get into the winners' circle that day, but things didn't work out that way."

Twenty-four years later they finally got into the circle by winning the July 29 drawing. Track general manager Rick Henson and Chevrolet dealer Ted Durham presented Billye Porter with the keys to her new truck in the place of honor where winners of the All-American Futurity are feasted annually.

"This is wonderful," said Billye. "You will never know how excited I am."

Hank Thompson is Mr. Honky-Tonk Swing

His career in country music spans five decades

Hank Thompson is the man who symbolically holds the patent on the American art form known as Honky-Tonk Swing.

Thompson's career in country music has spanned five decades - from the 1940s into the 1980s, but he remains immortalized forever by his fans as one of the most innovative contributors that his industry has ever known.

He stands with country giants Eddy Arnold and the late Ernest Tubb and has to his credit an unparalleled list of "firsts" that has made it clear that since country music gained acceptance as a musical art form across the urban and rural setting, and not just something cowboys played, Thompson clearly helped carry it "to town."

Thompson, a former electrical engineering student, was a pioneer in the use of amplification and used the skills he acquired while attending Princeton University to build his own sound and light systems. In doing so, he brought a previously undreamed-of level of technical sophistication to the country performance arena.

He made country music history by becoming the first of his field to record both in hi-fi and in stereo, and reached still another technological milestone when he hosted the first television variety show in the nation to be broadcast in color.

When he appeared at the Showboat Hotel in Las Vegas in 1957, he became the first country artist ever to headline in America's entertainment capital, leaving the door wide open for a succession of his peers that continues.

A live album had never been attempted by a country singer until he recorded his "Live at the Golden Nugget" in Las Vegas in 1960.

Further, a drum had never sat on the stage of the Grand Ole Opry until guest star Thompson insisted that his brand of music could not be made without one.

His "brand of music" was a magical blend of big-band bravura with fiddle and steel guitar, enhanced by mostly self-composed lyrics that finally transcended the boundary between the blue and white collars. During his early years in the business, brass instruments took their place along side the guitar in his Western Swing band.

With Thompson's leadership, the image of country music took a vital leap from confinement within the rural subculture to the heart of an urban world.

Since he dived into the country mainstream with the self-penned "Whoa, Sailor" in 1946, more and more songs have come.

"The Wild Side of Life", "Humpty Dumpty Heart", "Oklahoma Hills", "A Six Pack To Go" are all classic records bearing the unmistakable Thompson cachet which generated sales of over 30 million units through the '50s and '60s.

From Carnegie Hall to the great halls of Europe, Africa and Asia, the crowds remained constant and their responses unrestrained.

Then, in the 1970s, a landslide of rock influence fell into the country marketplace, apparently burying all future demand for traditional form, many artists and critics thought.

Established artists were faced with grueling career choices which were plainly limited and irrefutable. Those who could adapt did; those who could not retired.

Except Thompson. Without compromise, he confidently embraced the sound that he had nurtured, standing prophetically on the alert for the powerful resurgence that traditional country music is experiencing today.

The total impact of Thompson's remarkable career cannot be fully measured.

Signed to his present label, Nashville's Step One Records, in 1987, the entertainer remains a pervasive force in his profession. His Step One debut, a two-album "greatest hits" anthology, was released in early 1988 and was quickly followed by the all-new, aptly titled "Here's To Country Music" LP. Sales of both products have reached six figures, adding still more reinforcement to Thompson's box-office appeal.

The total impact of Thompson's remarkable career can never be fully measured, but to examine even a fragment of that impact raises rhetorical questions:

Without "The Wild Side of Life" and its "answer song," Kitty Wells' "It Wasn't God Who Made Honky-Tonk Angels," back in 1952, would any other vehicle have been powerful enough to propel Wells to country stardom? As the first woman to succeed in a previously male-dominated realm, could she still have paved the way for Patsy Cline and Reba McEntire?

Students will march in each day to music as per the old-fashion vacation Bible School.

There will be a closing program at 7 p.m. Friday evening.

The study, based on the first book of Corinthians, will be offered to students two years old through high school age.

The opening assembly at 9 a.m. and the 11:30 p.m. closing assembly each day will have the appearance of the deep sea creatures, says Marks.

About racing

by Bill Lakey

Since last week's column, it has rather succinctly been brought to my attention that if I'm going to mention a tip sheet that I publish, I should say that I put it out. I agree. Fact is, I'm proud of it. Its name is Horseman's Picks. My girlfriend is equally proud of hers. It's called Eve's Picks.

Speaking of tip sheets again, in Oklahoma there is an independent person who wrote a computer program that grades tip sheets as to results in every way you can imagine. Every handicapper who wanted to participated in this grading system and the results were made public on a daily, weekly and per meet basis.

This has been in effect the last four Remington Park meets and the results are available to anyone who wants to pay for it. I, of course, did participate because I think it is an excellent public awareness program.

I also think it had the effect of making the participation handicappers better, because it became a matter of intense competition. Who could be the best? At last count, there were 42 tip sheets represented.

The tip sheets put out by Remington Park were not included in the program, but they did post their results every day at a designated place which was accessible to the public, as does Bandera Downs.

I learned handicapping horses for the age-old reason one learns most anything of value: the attempt to reduce pain and make things more comfortable.

But I have also learned that picking the horses is one thing, knowing how to bet them is something else.

Few of us, including myself, subscribe to the old professional horseplayer's saying, "you can beat a race, but you can't beat the races." Obviously what they are saying is that there are not many races that are cut and dried enough for them to want to risk their money by betting them. Well, those guys probably know what is best, but I am still hardheaded enough to believe a fellow ought to be able to beat 'em all.

So what I do is play straight bets I feel sure about and use the exotic bets such as the quinella, exacta or trifecta to try to beat the others. Exotic bets are designed to play as many horses as one wants in the attempt to to win the bet.

There are different ways to use or bet the horses of your choice, such as wheeling and boxing, that help with the exotic bets.

In the front of the official program is a good explanation of these types of bets, and one would be wise to familiarize oneself with this. The official program is the source of a lot of good information. For example, I think it is important to know who the leading jockey is and who the leading trainer is. A lot of times, the leading jockey is leading because he/she is riding the better horses.

• One of the things I like most about Bandera Downs is the number of quarter horse races they run. It is great for the bettor, because quarterhorses run truer to form than thoroughbreds and, in my opinion, are easier to handicap.

I will tell you something else. The speed indexes and times on the horses coming in from Remington Park now are very misleading. These horses are a lot better than these indicators show. Equitrack is a very strange animal, and if you handicap these horses like you would horses from other tracks, you may get snuck up on. They are going to need a couple of outs on this track before anyone can evaluate them more accurately.

• We have driven all over this area and I have yet to find anyone within a radius of 70 miles from Bandera who is not excited about this track being here. I don't know if Texans are just "gambling fools" like the media director at Remington Park told me one night that Oklahomans are, but it appears to me that the success of this race track, as far as area support is concerned, is guaranteed. See you there.

Los Alamitos handle tops in country

Los Alamitos race track in California has had an average daily handle of more than $1 million to be the tops in the U.S. by far.

It's $1,014,951 handle, which includes both on-track and off-track wagering, is up 7 percent from a year ago.

Second best is Fair Meadows, which has only on-track wagering and has generated an average daily handle of $562,348.

Kipaducey wins

Kipaducey, great-grandson of On Deck, won the 400-yard, $255,000 Denim N Diamonds Futurity G1 at Los Alamitos in California Saturday, July 28, in 19.76 seconds, paying bettors $5, $3 and $3.60. Kid O Dash was second.

It was the colt's fifth victory in eight starts. He's trained by William R. Cory and was ridden by Bruce Pilkenton.

Eureka Downs broke

Direct competition from dog racing was said to have contributed to declining attendance and handle at Eureka Downs in Kansas, causing the track to file for Chapter 11 bankruptcy.

Class I pari-mutuel horse race track plans announced

A developer's group this week announced plans for a $110-million Class I pari-mutuel race track in the Dallas-Fort Worth area that they say could draw 2.4 million race fans for 200 days of racing in 1993.

The 1¼-mile oval track would be near the intersection of Interstate 20 and Spur 408 in southwest Dallas. It would be on a 1,000-acre site and include a nine-level stadium that would seat 30,000.

Developers says the building of the track is depends on raising financing and a favorable decision by the Texas Racing Commission.

Construction is expected to begin in mid-1991, according to press reports.

Europe, track, and Christianity: all in one summer for Bandera woman

By James Henry Frazar

ter of J.M. and Mary Clements of Bandera was a member of "God's track team" in Europe this summer.

Clements, who just finished attending Texas Tech University and is on her way to starting a P.E. coaching job in Corpus Christi in the fall at a Catholic school, took a detour this summer to California and Europe by way of Athletes in Action, a Christian track team.

Athletes in Action recruits track athletes over 18 years of age with a Christian background, says Clements. If an athlete is accepted, the person is assigned to a team and travels to other countries to run in meets and spread the Gospel, she says.

People want to hear what athletes have to say and what they believe, says Clements. "People look up to athletes. People come up to us and ask us about our lives and our sport. We talk with them and also tell them about our belief in God," she says. What the Athletes in Action group tells those that are willing to listen involves personal testimony, "such as how we started believing in Jesus," says Clements.

"When you run for Athletes in Action, run for God. You're on God's track team," says Clements.

Clements was at Texas Tech on scholarship for track and on their track team, where she placed first in the 400-meter dash at the New Mexico State University track at the University of Texas at El Paso meet and second and third at other meets.

She also participated in the Texas Relays in 1989 - "one of the biggest track meets in Texas involving major universities and colleges throughout the United States," says Clements.

She met representatives of Athletes in Action at a track meet, but didn't join the organization for almost a year.

At one of her university track meets, Clements says she was on her way to run in a race, "and someone from their booth called out to me and said they wanted to tell me about Athletes in Action. I was in a hurry to get to the starting line on time, so I took some of their brochures and threw it in my track bag," she says.

And there that information sat for several months. "About a year later, I found the information and read it and got interested in their program," She communicated and so did they.

She was accepted into the program in late March of 1990.

But it wasn't just fill in an application and send it off. "I had to tell them my times and tell about my Christian background and they did research on me, too," she says.

Then there was finances. Like other Christian overseas evangelistic and missionary programs, those that participated had to raise their own money for the trip, though the organization did

She says she accepted sponsorships from friends, businesses, churches, relatives in order to raise over $3,000 for her expenses.

Clements left June 15 for California where she and other athletes were given a three-day orientation on witnessing the Christian message.

After California, her team of eight then flew to Zurich and used a van to travel to different track meets in different countries throughout Eastern and Central Europe during a five week period. Other Athletes in Action teams went to other parts of Europe.

Her track team competed seven meets in East and West Germany, Hungary, Rumania, and Poland against national and collegiate teams.

They also stayed in Austria, Switzerland, and Czechoslovakia. She says she was able to take a side trip to Yugoslavia by herself.

While they were in Europe, Clements and her teammates found that the Europeans they met were "crazy about Americans, especially because of the sports. We signed autographs and people would crowd around us to see, hear and touch American athletes," she says.

"We would meet with people after the competition to tell them the message of God," says Clements. Huge crowds would meet with them after each track meet.

"They came both because we were American athletics and to

Some talks would last up to six hours. "Some of the people didn't even know who God was," says Clements.

But she also learned about the good. "We almost always had pork and lots of cabbage and bread," Clements says.

There are no fast food restaurants except in Budapest where they found a McDonald's, just like in Moscow. The restaurant was very large and very crowded. "There were 10 or 15 registers and every one had a line out the door," she says. The food there was good - just like in America.

Spending money in Eastern Europe was like spending money in Mexico "we had to use thousands of (units of) their money in place of an American dollar," she says. However, some countries took the American dollar without exchanging it into their currency.

The culture of Eastern Europe seemed "like they were 50 years behind," says Clements. There were cobblestone roads, horses used for transportation and old fashioned toilets and outhouses. She adds that their brand of toilet paper had wood chips in it. They brought their own toilet paper from the United States, she says.

Most of the time the athletes stayed with families that were set up by the local track or the Athletes in Action staff.

Clements competed in the 400-

Athletes in Action record in the women's 4x100-meter relay.

Other events that the team competed in included the 100- and 400-meter hurdles, 100-meter dash, and 1,500-meter to 10K-long distance races.

She says she got to know the members of her team well. The other seven were from all over the United States.

Athletes in Action had team members representing most Christian denominations. Clements is Catholic herself, and the others on her team included Baptists, Presbyterians and Methodists.

She says she was asked to be a leader in Athletes in Action next year, but she says she's not sure whether she's going next year, as she has to consider her own life's responsibility with the job she's just landed.

'Grease' to close

The Point Theatre's production of the musical "Grease" will continue at the Ingram theater through Saturday, Aug. 4.

It stars Kathlene Ritch as a pretty-but-innocent "square" and Ken Stephens III as the slick-haired, leather-jacketed guy of her dreams.

Volunteers pull body bag containing the remains of Jose Andres G. Nava from the river Saturday morning.

Pair drowns in river

Moonlight outing ends in tragedy

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

The bodies of two young men missing after they jumped into the Medina River to save a 16-year-old companion were recovered Saturday east of the Bandera City Park after a six-hour search by firefighters, game wardens and law enforcement personnel.

The two men drowned early Saturday morning in the swift waters of the Medina River after saving the life of a girl who had fallen off the city park dam.

They were the third and fourth drownings this year in Bandera County.

Dead is Jose Andres G. Nava, 20, and Enrique Pulido Jr., 19, both of San Antonio.

They had helped one of their friends, an unidentified 16 year old who could not swim, out of the river, but they never left the water.

Volunteers from the Bandera County Civil Defense Organization and area volunteer fire fighters from Bandera, Tarpley, Medina Lake, Lakeshore, Castle Lake, law enforcement personnel including the sheriff's deputies, game wardens, and Department of Public Safety troopers assisted in the search, says Bandera city chief of police Walter Welch.

The volunteers were broken into two groups and searched both sides of the river starting when the morning got light, about 7:30 a.m., says Welch. Volunteers started along the banks of the river downstream from the dam where the two men had drowned.

The banks were too weedy to conduct a thorough search, so Welch called for a boat, which was supplied by Medina Lake game warden Ernest Lerma later in the day. In the meantime volunteers waded through the swift water that at times was chest high.

Welch reports that the Medina River was a foot above normal. "We had a rise on Medina that morning, but it (the water) was clear," he says. At least one inch of rainfall had fallen in the Bandera area Friday.

The swift water kept searchers from finding the bodies because the current's fast flow set up a wave pattern that was hard to look through, rather than the usual flat, mirror-finish the river usually has, Welch said.

One of the searchers said the water was a little murky. He could see his white tennis shoes on the bottom of the water, but it was hard to see as the water was rushing so fast, says Welch.

Nava's body was found about 10:30 a.m. at the river near where 14th Street ends, about three city blocks downstream from the State Highway 173 bridge, says the police chief.

The searchers continued the search until about 1:30 p.m., when they broke for lunch. They

PUC staff suggests cut in LCRA rate

The staff of the Public Utility Commission studying a Lower Colorado River Authority request for a 9.2 percent increase in wholesale electricity rates has instead recommended a 5.8 percent decrease, but most of the LCRA's customers continue to favor paying higher rates.

The Bandera Electric Cooperative said last week it would not join with a group of co-ops from the New Braunfels area that is opposing the LCRA's rate hike request.

The PUC staff said the rates now being charged by the LCRA are unreasonable, citing reductions in the LCRA's proposed operations and maintenance expenses, fuel, amortization costs and debt service coverage.

Hearings on the LCRA's request for a $24 million rate hike began Friday, Aug. 3, in Austin. The hearings could last two months.

Robert A. Rima, general council for the PUC, filed a motion saying he "believes the staff's analysis of LCRA's rate application demonstrates that LCRA's existing rates are unreasonable."

A spokesman for the so-called New Braunfels Group protesting the proposed rate increase said Rima's position gives added weight to his group's call for considering what he called LCRA's faulty projects in determining the need for a rate increase.

"We hope that LCRA will reconsider its request for a rate increase at this time," said Robert Sohn, spokesman for the NBG.

Other wholesale customers of LCRA, including the Bandera Co-op, said a rate decrease now would "most likely trigger an additional rate case in the near future."

The Association of Wholesale Customers says it favors a rate increase of $20 million with provisions that would prevent any further rate increases for at least three years. The current rate increase request is the LCRA's fourth in the last three years.

It also wants to create a "rate stabilization fund" from money paid by their rate payers that would make refunds to LCRA's wholesale customers when the fund reaches a certain balance.

The AWC's financial consultant Samuel Hadaway admitted the LCRA is among "the financially strongest public wholesale power systems in the United States," but said lower rates recommended by the New Braunfels Group and the PUC staff could reduce the LCRA's bond rating.

"I believe NBG's approach would be detrimental to LCRA's financial integrity and ultimately harmful to LCRA's customers," said consultant Samuel Hadaway.

The Bandera Co-op's general manager Russ Vander Zee said the local electric utility supports the AWC's position. "We can understand where (the NBG) is coming from," he said. "We're all hoping LCRA receives sufficient revenues to remain strong."

Bandera man apologizes for injury to EMT

A Bandera man involved in a melee Saturday, July 27, north of Medina, says he's sorry he hurt the EMT who first responded to the scene.

And one additional arrest has been made in the case, but so far no charges have been filed, reports the Bandera County Sheriff's Department.

Daniel W. Pipkin, 26, of Bandera says he apologizes to the EMT, Mary Walker of Medina, for bruising her arm, but he says he was only trying to get help for his friend, Michael Grubbs, who suffered a fractured skull in the multi-person fight. "I am sorry that I hurt that lady," Pipkin said Thursday.

Pipkin says after the fight broke out, last Saturday, in which golf clubs, a sickle, and a tire tool was used as weapons, he dragged Grubbs to safety and stayed with him to protect him from the other people involved in the fight.

Pipkin says he saw that Grubbs was bleeding "real bad." "I was scared. I thought my buddy was dying," he said.

Pipkin said when he saw Walker's car pull up, he ran to it to get help. He said he had no intention of stealing the car and [illegible] know who the person was in the car.

Pipkin admitted he may have overreacted to the arrival of the EMT. "I was hysterical," he said.

Pipkin said once the officers and the ambulance arrived, he helped the EMTs put Grubbs in the ambulance. After Grubbs was loaded into the ambulance, Pipkin said the sheriff's deputies put handcuffs on him and arrested him.

Pipkin stated that he stayed at the scene after everyone else left to find help for his friend. "That guy would have died if I hadn't helped," he said.

"I wasn't involved in the fight," said Pipkin.

Larry Shipley was arrested Wednesday, Aug. 1, for disorderly conduct in connection with the July 28 incident and on outstanding warrants from Bonnie Towers' peace justice, reports investigating sheriff's deputy Sal Obiedo.

There are two other arrests to be made in the case, reports Obiedo.

Obiedo says that reserve deputies Maynard Phillips and Bruce Eliker provided valuable help to the department by gathering evidence, specifically the weapons used in the fight.

Records keep falling at Bandera Downs

By Nick Johnson
Bulletin Editor

Records continue to fall at Bandera Downs both on the track and in the box office.

The track handled more than $1 million in wagers this weekend for the first time and set a single-day betting record of $431,592 Sunday. The Friday crowd of exactly 2,400 souls established a per capita betting record by risking $110.20 each.

On the track, jockey Jesse Sauceda of San Antonio set a record by riding five winners on a single day Friday, and a thoroughbred, Happy Boss, smashed a track record for five furlongs by winning Friday's 10th race in one minute flat, four-fifths of a second faster than the previous record of 1:00.8 set on July 6 by Gent Away.

A record payoff of $56,773.60 was claimed by a pair of San Antonio men, Steve Talanco and Danny Fragoso, who won the twin trifecta Sunday by picking the first three finishers in order in two races.

And Saturday's victory by Squinch Eye, a 2-year-old owned and trained by Toby Keeton of Bandera and piloted by Nicky Wilson of Bandera, may not have been a record, but his performance stamped him as one of the premier quarter horses in the country.

The son of Yawl and Azure Trouble won the $24,320 Lone Star State Futurity by fully 3½ lengths, a healthy margin indeed in a 350-yard race. His time of 17.95 seconds didn't match his qualifying clocking of 17.82, but he beat some pretty good nags in the process, including Burnibuni and Rich Prestige.

"Squinch Eye's dominating performance proved beyond a doubt that (he) is indeed made of champion calibre," said Bandera Downs publicist Don Rhine. The odds-on betting favorite, Squinch Eye paid $2.80 bettors only $2.80, $2.20 and $2.40.

Go Little Poggo, another Toby Keeton horse, won the weekend's other featured event, the 350-yard Satin and Lace Handicap, Sunday, beating Sis Who by a neck to claim the winner's share of the $10,000 purse. Go Little Poggo paid $6.60, $3.80 and $3.

Long shots of the weekend were in the second and third races Friday. Fourth Down Dash went off in the second race at 18 to 1 and paid $2 bettors $38.60, $13 and $6.20, and in the next race Savage Lady went off at 15 to 1 and paid $32.80, $11 and $7.

Fourth Down Dash's victory in the second half of Friday's daily double led to a payoff of $169.80, and the 8-7 quinella paid $2 bettors $282.60.

After Friday morning's rain, the running surface was rated as "good" instead of "fast" for the first time this year, and the conditions may have been responsible for the defeat of the betting favorite, Especially Effort, in the day's featured event.

The track was back to its usual "fast" condition Saturday.

Track clocker David Gordon was injured as the seventh race Saturday was marred by an incident that also knocked jockey Anna Landolt off her horse and chased jockey Terry Layton out of the starting gate.

Gordon was kicked in the back and complained of neck and back pain, but he was reported in good condition after spending the night in a San Antonio hospital, according to publicist Rhine.

Alamo City pair hits $51,000 twin trifecta

Two San Antonio men sped into Bandera Downs Sunday, laid $12 worth of bets down on the fifth race five minutes before post time, and took home the over $40,000 in the highly touted twin trifecta exotic wager.

This is the second and largest payoff in the twin trifecta at Bandera Downs and the second time it has gone to people from San Antonio. But the two men could have missed winning it if they hadn't paid attention when one of their chosen horses was scratched from the race.

Steve Talanco and Danny Fragoso, who are regular pool playing partners, teamed up to play the horses Sunday after Fragoso decided he knew how to pick winners after learning handicapping and how to read the Daily Racing Form a few days before.

And pick them Fragoso did. On their very first time at Bandera Downs the two partners won $56,773.60, the single largest payoff in the current era of Texas pari-mutuel betting. They took home $45,419.60 after taxes. The Internal Revenue Service took its share of $11,354.

Talanco, who works in his family's rock quarry business, and Fragoso, who is a small-time car dealer, say they will split the money and invest some of it in a car dealership they will operate together.

But they also talked about going back to the Cold River Cattle Company, where their success started, and share many drinks with many friends.

Fragoso says he attended the July 31, Bandera Downs handicapping seminar at the Cold River Cattle Company in San Antonio and learned to read the Daily Racing Form.

He tried his knowledge at home with imaginary bets on Friday's races. Checking Saturday's racing results in the newspaper, he saw he could have won $4,400. Fragoso says he was dreaming about winning all Saturday night.

Sunday Fragoso called Talanco and told him of his make-believe success. "Let's go, we're going to win," Fragoso said. They were off to the races.

Talanco and Fragoso got in a car with friends Sunday after noon and headed for Bandera Downs specifically to bet the twin trifecta, which at the time had a carry-over pool of $41,750.40 from Saturday and the previous weekend.

On their way to Bandera, Fragoso read the Daily Racing Form and handicapped the fifth and sixth race while Talanco drove quickly to get to the track on time.

They arrived five minutes before post time, rushed to the Second-biggest photograph to be taken at race track

With apologies to Randy Quaid, Bandera Downs officials hope to take "the second-biggest photograph in history" Friday when they make a giant winner's circle photo "of all Bandera residents."

It's part of Bandera Day at the Races when Bandera Downs will salute the community of Bandera with free admittance to anyone from Bandera.

The photograph will be made in the winner's circle after the featured race of the day, the City of Bandera Handicap. "All Bandera residents are invited to join in the photo, a copy of which will be presented to city officials as a souvenir of Bandera Day," said track publicist Don Rhine.

"The more people that get involved, the more fun this will be," said Michael Zlaket, Bandera Downs' director of marketing. "Who knows, maybe we can get a few hundred people down there and set a record."

All Bandera residents displaying a valid driver's license or other photo ID will be given free general admission Friday and discount Turf Club Terrace and grandstand reserved tickets are available at the Bandera County Chamber of Commerce.

Gates open at 2 p.m., the first race will begin at 4 p.m., and the City of Bandera Handicap will start at about 7 p.m., Rhine said. In order to accomodate all comers, the photo will actually be taken on the race track just behind the winner's circle.

Increase Postal Rates?

William Burrus is executive vice president of the American Postal Workers Union (APWU), which represents more than 320,000 postal workers. Formerly, he was president of the Cleveland, Ohio, APWU Local.

YES

Should there be an increase in postal rates?

Yes. The law requires that the U.S. Postal Service operate on a "break-even" financial basis. As inflation increases the cost of goods and services, postage rates must be adjusted accordingly. However, the final decision on postal rates is determined by an independent body, the Postal Rate Commission (PRC). Since the Postal Reorganization Act of 1970, postage rates as measured against inflation have remained relatively stable. Postage in the United States is the lowest in the world, while servicing the largest population on a daily basis. Postal critics have only a hypothetical model of efficiency to compare with U.S. postal services.

What effect would this have on consumers and businesses?

The U.S. postage rate has contributed to the ability of American business to expand markets and opportunities. If the approved postage increase is within the range that the Postal Service has requested, there will be a temporary effect on volume. Postage rates will continue to be cheaper than other forms of communications, and consumers and businesses will still enjoy cheap, reliable service.

How would this affect postal services?

The increase will permit the Postal Service to maintain the level of service that Americans have enjoyed over the years. Unfortunately, Postal Service management is planning to delay mail intentionally through service standard changes totally unrelated to the increase in postage. Although the two issues are unrelated, the timing of service erosions and postage increases is ill-conceived. Despite individual complaints, magnified by the media, the U.S. Postal Service delivers 40 percent of the world's volume of mail at the world's cheapest rate. Those who propose to relax the postal monopoly and encourage competition would only serve to ultimately increase cost and decrease service. The airlines, banking and telephone industries are mini-examples of a deregulated Postal Service.

©1990, PM Editorial Services

Tracey E. Schreft is associate director of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce's Small Business Center. The chamber is the world's largest federation of businesses, chambers of commerce, and trade and professional associations.

NO

Should there be an increase in postal rates?

No. With postal service at a record low and just three years after the last increase, a 19 percent rate hike is unjustified. Since 1958, the inflation-adjusted price of postage stamps has risen 70 percent while the price of many commodities has declined: 80 percent for televisions, 40 percent for milk and 22 percent for gasoline. Despite escalating wages for postal workers, which now total $40,000 in total compensation, productivity has been flat or fallen over the last three years. More than $1 billion has been spent on automation, yet, only one-third of the expected savings have been realized. Before the Postal Service receives another increase, it must first realize the other two-thirds of the savings from automation.

What effect would this have on consumers and businesses?

Because postage costs are part of almost every item we buy, the increase will cost about $8 billion, or $88 a household. This includes the higher costs of business that would be passed on to the consumer. This $88 means it will cost the average American worker an additional day's pay for mail services. Businesses will be hardest hit by an increase. Small companies that rely on direct-mail marketing may go out of business. If the rate goes up 20 percent and a business sends out 20 percent fewer mailings, that's equivalent to losing 1 in 5 prospective customers.

How would this affect postal services?

In exchange for higher rates, the Postal Service plans to slow first-class mail delivery. Under the plan, some mail now delivered overnight will take two days, and some mail delivered in two days will take three. This amounts to one of the greatest intentional slowdowns in postal history. In the 1700s, Postmaster General Ben Franklin set a two-day delivery standard for mail traveling from Philadelphia to New York. Despite having spent more than $1 billion on automation, our standards are lower today. Mail service that gets worse as it gets more expensive can no longer be accepted.

Our comments in this space two weeks ago on the folly of the federal government's current farm policy brought this reply from Bill Hoover, the Texas Farm Bureau's flack from Waco:

"One of your readers sent us a copy of your recent column in which you discussed farm program cost.

"I am sure that you believe that there are two sides to every issue. A new study by the University of Missouri covers very well the other side of this issue. The study found that the stabilizing influence of government farm programs saved American consumers an estimated $40 billion by holding down food cost increases following the 1988 drought.

"This information was made available by the U.S. House Committee on Agriculture. According to the study released by the Food and Agricultural Policy Research Institute at the University of Missouri-Columbia, government farm policies cushioned the effects of the drought on consumers. Without farm programs, the FAPRI report predicts annual increases in food costs would have averaged $5 billion between 1989 and 1996.

"The FAPRI report points out the following:

- "Before the 1988 drought -one of the worst in history — the United States had a carry-over corn reserve of 4.3 billion bushels. One year later — after the drought — U.S. corn stocks were down to 1.9 billion bushels.
- "Without this level of grain stock reserves (accumulated at a government cost of $15 billion between fiscal 1986-90), corn prices could have gone up 41 percent.
- "Without these stock reserves, high corn prices would have forced farmers to sell of their livestock, glutting the market, and providing initially lower meat prices.
- "But the long-term effect of smaller livestock herds would have been much higher meat prices for years, since it takes time to rebuild heres.
- "Without farm programs, annual increases in food costs to consumers would have averaged $5 billion between 1989 and 1996 — a total of $40 billion.

"Copies of the FAPRI report, entitled "Analysis of the 1988 Drought Under a Lower Stock Scenario," are available directly from the House Agriculture Committee office, 1301 Longworth Building, Washington, D.C. 20515. Written requests only please to Jim Davis at the committee address, fax number 202-225-3158.

"I hope that you will be able to give some publicity to this information.

Four persons injured during week in area traffic accidents

Four persons were injured in four automobile accidents and no one was injured in the first race of the season at Sell's Dragway, reports Bandera County Sheriff's Deputies.

A motorcycle driver and his passenger were injured Saturday, Aug. 4, when they struck a car turning into a parking lot.

Dale Ray Smith, 22, of San Antonio was driving a 1982 Yamaha motorcycle on State Highway 16 near Steve Sells Veterinary clinic about 4 p.m. when he attempted to pass a car driven by John Harris Bruce, 31, of Bandera, who was turning into Sell's parking lot, says investigating Deputies. Deputies said Bruce was not charged.

Smith was hospitalized at Medina Community Hospital with serious injuries. Bruce was uninjured.

Smith was cited for no motorcycle license and no liability.

Wayne Gamblin Brandon, 17, of Medina suffered serious injuries Thursday, Aug. 2, when the 1984 Oldsmobile he was driving ran off State Highway 16.

Brandon was traveling south on Highway 16 2.9 miles north of Medina about 5 p.m. when he entered a curve to the right and ran off the road to the right, Butts.

He overcorrected, went across the road, ran off the road on the wooden fence at Sell's clinic, reports Butts.

Smith and Ayres were taken to Medina Community Hospital with serious injuries. Bruce was uninjured.

Smith was cited for no motorcycle license and no liability.

Scott Cubbler, 24, of Houston was alightly injured Monday, July 23, when he ran off the FM Road 470 about 7:45 p.m. miles east of Utopia, reports DPS Trooper Glenn Stokes.

He apparently lost control, went through a wire fence, traveled approximately 300 feet and struck a tree.

Cubbler suffered bruises and lacerations.

No one was injured Sunday, July 29, when three cars rear-ended each other in a chain-reaction incident on Highway 16 1.2 miles east of Bandera near the new truck level 12:55 p.m.

All three cars were westbound on the outside lane when one of them came to a complete stop and the two cars behind it ran into it.

Citations were issued to the driver of one car for following too close and another driver for failing to control his speed. The people involved were from San Antonio.

No one was injured Thursday, Aug. 2, in a two car accident that occurred about 2:50 p.m. on Park 37 in Lakehills, reports Butts.

No one was injured Sunday, Aug. 5, in a hit and run accident when one car rear ended another car on Red Bluff Road about 12:30 a.m. The driver of the car that struck the other car left the scene, reports Scales.

No one was injured on a 5:30 p.m. accident Monday, July 30, when the driver was westbound on a curve on River Bluff Circle and drove through a fence. The driver had just received his learners permit, says Scales.

No one was injured Saturday, July 21, in a two car accident on Highway 16 3.8 miles north of Bedera about 12:15 p.m. A car was passing the car in front of it when the car he was trying to pass, tried to pass a third car. The first car was struck in the side by the second, reports Scales.

Know signs of sexually transmitted diseases

Although AIDS commands wide public attention, other sexually transmitted diseases are increasing at rapid rates, according to the Texas Medical Association, and many people do not know they are infected.

Every sexually active person should know the symptoms of sexually transmitted diseases, said TMA member Dr. Sam Nixon, continuing education director at The University of Texas Health Science Center at Houston. Those warning signs include:

- Burning during urination;
- Discharge from sex organs;
- Sores, bumps, or blisters in the genital area; or
- Itching in or around the sex organs.

Men also should be alert to any lump, swelling, or soreness in the testicles, and women should note any pain in the pelvic area or bleeding between menstrual periods.

With some diseases, the symptoms appear for a while and then disappear, "which does not mean the disease is gone," Dr. Nixon said.

Syphilis, for example, may appear first as a chancre (sore or lesion) on the penis or vagina, which heals after a couple of weeks. Two to six months later, it may reappear as a body rash.

A simple way to check for sexually transmitted diseases is to do a genital self-examination, Dr. Nixon said. A how-to pamphlet, "Genital Self Examination Guide," can be obtained by calling 1-800-234-1124 or writing GSE, PO Box 4088, Woburn, Mass. 01888-4088.

Anyone who notices suspicious symptoms in the genital area should see a doctor. In most cases, the doctor can make a diagnosis through observation, cultures, or blood tests.

Increasingly, sexually transmitted diseases do not occur in isolation. "If a person has one disease, the doctor should look for others," Dr. Nixon said.

When diagnosed promptly, most sexually transmitted diseases can be cured or effectively controlled. Of the five most common diseases, three — chlamydia, gonorrhea, and syphilis — are bacterial and treated with antibiotics. The other two — genital herpes and genital warts — are viral diseases that may require a variety of treatment approaches.

Left untreated, these diseases can result in infertility, blindness, heart disease, and brain damage. In addition, some diseases have been associated with increased risks of genital cancers and may even increase the risk of contracting AIDS.

A few minutes later, Time for a Miracle, My Flam Pet and Nordic Empress came in first, second and third and paid them $658.80 [illegible]

Fragoso looked at his list of picks and they put the exchange ticket down on Sing it Again Sam, Rennoba, and She Goes Away in the sixth race.

But as the horses were entering the starting gate, Rennoba, unseated jockey Joe Garren and the filly promptly ran down the track and was scratched by the stewards.

As the crowd of racing fans applauded in jest at Rennoba's decision to leave the race, Fragoso saw the need for a change. A need he might have missed if one of the friends hadn't said something about the horse.

While track officials took all of the horses out of the starting gate to allow twin trifecta bettors a chance to exchange, Fragoso went back to the window and substituted She Goes Away in second place and Pools Quick in third. Fragoso says he just looked down at his list and moved the Labor Day parade entries sought

Entries are needed for the Labor Day PRCA Rodeo Parade to be held Saturday, Sept. 1, says parade chairwoman Bungy Grant-Ellington.

Organizations interested in being in the parade should contact Nancy Hopes at the Bandera County Chamber of Commerce at 796-3045 for information. "Let's make this the biggest ever and the most fun," she says.

The parade will begin at 10 a.m. and start at Purple Hills Nursing Home and head south on Main Street to Cypress Street.

Parade entries have been slow coming in so far, says Grant-Ellington.

Blanco seeks film

A film company making a movie near Austin has toured Blanco County at the invitation of the Blanco County Film Commission which has offered the Blanco area as a site for future filming, says the Johnson City Record-Courier.

fourth place horse up to third.

According to the track's tote board, there were at least six exchange tickets eligible for the sixth race Sunday.

Ironically, this was the first time they had actually bought a horse race even though they had gambled and bet on horses before. The two men have been to Louisiana Downs before and have gambled before in Las Vegas, they say. "We love gambling," says Talancio and Fragoso adds, "as a hobby."

But this was the first time they really handicapped a race. Fragoso told track officials that their handicapping seminar really helped him.

Track publicist Don Rhine, who conducts some of those seminars and conducted the one Fragoso attended was all smiles Sunday.

The previous twin trifecta payoff was July 22, when San Antonio College photography professor Fred Whitecotton won $13,295.20. He netted $10,637.20 after settling on the grounds with the IRS in the track's first twin trifecta weekend.

The twin trifecta carry-over pool started at $19,068 Friday as no one hit the jackpot the previous weekend. And it grew to $28,357.60 Friday and $41,750.40 Saturday. According to the track's tote board, there were at least 505 exchange tickets Saturday, but none were winners.

To win the twin trifecta, a bettor picks the first-, second-, and third-place winners in the race dubbed, "the first half of the twin trifecta." If the three horses the bettor picks win, place, and show at the finish line in the order he predicts, he collects a payoff on that bet and gets an "exchange" ticket. He then picks the first-, second- and third-place winner in the second twin trifecta race.

Yarn man to speak

Jack Donovan, a yarn sales agent from Pennsylvania, will be the featured speaker Thursday, Aug. 16, at the annual summer directors meeting of the Mohair Council of America at 10 a.m. at the Inn of the Hills in Kerrville.

Results of domestic and foreign market surveys will also be presented, says council president Mark McLaughlin.

Drowns

Welch said they considered using DPS trooper Dan Butts's canoe for the search, but judged that the water was too swift.

In the meantime, Lopez's boat was able to drag the river, but still came up empty.

Wardens with goggles looked underwater for the last victim, and found Pulido's body about 3:30 p.m. on the west side of the Bandera Inn property line in an area that had been searched using the boat, says Welch.

According to a one of Nava and Pulido's companions, Nava's sister, another girl, Nava, Pulido, and a third man were at the Bandera City Park after midnight Saturday, Aug. 6, when one of the girls walked across the dam in the park about 2:45 a.m., reports Welch.

The 16-year-old girl fell off the bridge and Nava and Pulido went into the water to save her, the witness told Welch.

Some of the friends helped the girl out of the water, but the other two men did not come out of the water.

Nava's sister, Rachael Romero, 17, told the San Antonio Express-News that her brother, Pulido, and the third man went into the water to save the girl.

"She (the rescued girl) said my brother (Nava) picked her up so she could get air and she saw him go down," Romero told the San Antonio paper. "Then he (Nava) picked her up again so she could get out, and then he went down again. But this time, she didn't see him anymore."

For a time, the group thought the disappearance was a joke. "That other guy (Pulido), he likes to joke around a lot, so we thought they were just kidding around when they didn't come back up," she said.

"But when we couldn't find them after a long time, I went to police," she said.

Welch says he began his investigation after 5:30 a.m., when he received the call. Nava and Pulido's friends told the police that the two had gone into the water about 2:45 a.m. and hadn't been seen since. [illegible]

Game warden Carl Becker says the response and cooperation of volunteers in Saturday's search was tremendous. "It made it easy for those who were trying to coordinate it (the search)," says Becker.

Bandera County Civil Defense coordinator Tommy Adams and Welch coordinated the two search groups.

Peace Justice Bonnie Towers pronounced the two men dead and ruled the deaths as drownings later that day.

According to Romero's account in the Express-News, the group of friends regularly came to the Bandera park at night. "We got there like about 2 a.m.," she said. "It was my first time going out there. We had just gone to go swimming and stuff. I can't believe my brother died. He was a good swimmer."

Nava and Pulido's death brings the total of drownings in Bandera County to three for 1990 and four for the Bandera County-Medina Lake area.

Castroville drowned in Medina Lake Sunday, June 17, when he apparently walked off an underwater ledge at the state boat [illegible] he was carrying two children, age three and four, under his arm that Father's Day. Witnesses said he went under water suddenly, dropping the two children in the water as he went down.

The children's parents rescued the children, but despite the efforts of several people who searched the waters, no one could find him in time to save his life. Reza's body was found in 15 feet of water very near where he went down later a few hours later.

Ironically, Reza had saved a child from drowning in the Medina River last year.

USAA's sizes overwhelmed her

Now it feels like family, says Lorri Robbins

Lorri Robbins at work.

When Lorri Robbins of Bandera first arrived at USAA in 1988, the size of its building overwhelmed her. "I never wandered around, she says. I went nowhere but to my desk and places I was sent on errands."

Lorri compares the experience to entering The University of Texas at Austin after graduating from Bandera High School with a class of 70 people. She remembers being too nervous to ride university buses that travel in a circuit around the campus. "I wasn't familiar with the roads, and I was afraid of getting dropped off in some unknown part of Austin," she laughs. "I must have walked 200 miles my first week there."

But in both settings, Lorri has found a way to make life homey. As an intern in USAA's summer hire program, Lorri spends Christmas and summer vacations working at the San Antonio-based insurance and financial services company, and she says it now feels like family. Co-workers tease her about her new boyfriend, and after work she often joins them for dancing at Cold River, a local club.

Though Lorri considered transferring to the accounting department this summer, she chose to return to the area where she worked before. Her department, Loss Financial Processing, was a developmental project when Lorri started three years ago, and she has watched its team grow from 7 to 51 members. The group is developing a system for claims and loss reserving, and Lorri participates in documenting and distributing information. She enjoyed the chance to build the program from the beginning. "I fit right in because we were all new," Lorri remembers.

The support from supervisors hasn't faded. "I come back now, and everyone says, 'Hi, Lorri. Hi, Lorri,'" says the young accounting major. "It's a nice feeling."

The fourth of Telvy and Gloria Robbins' five children, Lorri is used to a large-family atmosphere. She calls Bandera "a good place to grow up in," and says the size of her school allowed her to participate in a wide range of activities. Her father, an agriculture teacher, encouraged all of his children to be involved in that program. "I've raised just about everything you can," says Lorri, adding with pride that her 10 year-old sister Carilee just finished her fourth year of shows.

A sports enthusiast, Lorri played volleyball, basketball and ran track in high school. While on sister and a brother decided to continue in athletics by coaching high school sports, Lorri followed her other brother to The University of Texas and into accounting.

"Why accounting?" Lorri asks in a teasing tone of voice. "I wonder that myself sometimes." Though she admits that her older brother Jim influenced her decision ("He put me a lot of programs"), she appreciates the flexibility an accounting degree offers her.

Lorri continues to be involved in athletics as well as academics at college. She is a member of the Texas Relay Student Committee, which organized and [illegible] the nation's largest track meets. Through the committee, Lorri has a large circle of friends, normally difficult to achieve at a large university. "In class you meet only a few people, the two that sit on this side and the two that sit on that," she says. But all the people working on the committee become close, and since many members of the carefully-selected team are involved in other clubs, the circle expands. "We all get to be friends, and then you meet their friends," Lorri explains.

Lorri is undecided about what she will do after college. One of the features that originally attracted her to USAA was the company's aid for employees continuing their education, but now she is not sure how much further she wants to go. While considering a CPA, she hasn't thought much about getting a master's degree. Lorri suspects, "after five years I'll want a break from school."

Where that break will lead her, Lorri doesn't know. Accounting firms have begun to send her recruiting letters, although it will be two years before she graduates. While she says the people she is to work with will determine her final choice, she has become comfortable with the possibility of working in a big city or at a large firm. "It doesn't intimidate me anymore."

Vaccinations only part of rabies prevention

The Texas Department of Health (TDH) routinely issues public reminders that pet owners need to renew their animal's rabies vaccinations yearly, as the law requires. However, health officials stress that shots for pets are only the minimum precautions Texans should take in avoiding exposure to rabies.

People also should stay away from stray cats and dogs, particularly any that are behaving unnaturally. They also never should try to handle a wild animal which appears to have no fear of humans. It is impossible to know whether a stray animal without a tag has been vaccinated, and no vaccines have been developed for most wild species.

Veterinarians, trappers, hunters and cave explorers should note the general health of any animals they encounter, and should consider precautionary immunizations against rabies every two years.

Robby L. Davis, Director of the TDH General Sanitation Division, explained that anyone handling wild mammals risks exposure to rabies. In recent years, a wide variety of animals, including the first armadillo known to be diagnosed with the disease, have been reported to TDH. Also, for a second year, a serious outbreak of rabies has persisted among rural dogs and coyotes along the Mexican border.

At least one human death from rabies has occurred this year in Texas, resulting from a man being bitten by a bat.

"Bats are second only to wild skunks as the most frequent carriers of rabies," Davis said.

Davis said that bats in recent years have been proven beneficial in controlling insects and in pollinating crops. They also are believed to be rabid solely due to them through centuries of folklore. "We know now how useful bats are," he added, "but that is no reason for us to forget that they, like most other unvaccinated animals, can carry deadly diseases.

"We recently have been concerned about potential danger in the new public interest in bats, raccoons and other non-domestic animals. Some people have begun to adopt these species as pets, even taking them into school classrooms," he said.

"In our opinion at TDH, no animal should be allowed on school property unless it has a clean bill of health, and there is no way a veterinarian can certify that a wild animal does not carry rabies," Davis added.

Davis said that anyone who is bitten or attacked by an animal believed to be rabid should notify local health and animal control authorities. Specimens of the animal should be tested too to determine whether the animal is rabid. Also, the victim's doctor may recommend treatment to prevent onset of rabies.

For more information, contact Bobby L. Davis, Director, General Sanitation Division, at 512-458-7521.

Brian Richards completes basic at Marine Corps' Camp Pendleton

Brian H. Richards of Bandera has completed U.S. Marine Corps basic training at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

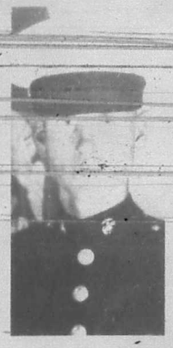
A 1988 graduate of Bandera High School, Richards joined the Corps in February and left Bandera for Camp Pendleton in April.

Super S Foods to resume its Apples for Students promotion



Brian Richards

Super S Foods, which has one of its 47 supermarkets in Bandera, announced this week that it would continue its promotion in which it redeems cash register receipts for computers for area schools.

The program, called "Apples for the Students," allows students to earn Apple computer equipment for their schools by collecting cash register receipts.

The supermarket chain said it gave more than $250,000 in computers, printers and software packages to schools in Central and South Texas last year. That number could grow to $500,000 this fall, says the company's chairman of the board, Jim Stanley.

The program will begin on Wednesday, Aug. 8.

Cash register tapes totaling $70,000 can be redeemed for an Apple IIc monochrome system and $125,000 in tapes will be good for a Macintosh system, said spokesman Mark Dieterle.

"There is no cost to the school whatsoever," said Stanley. "Once the tapes are turned in to us, we get them in four to six weeks and present the equipment to the school.

"We even arrange for a local distributor to install it and give those operating in an orientation," the grocer said. "Of course, this is all brand new equipment which is fully covered by the manufacturer's regular warranty."

Apples for the Students was designed to address the growing need for more computer equipment in our primary and secondary schools," said Stanley. "It will help prepare students literacy among students who will be graduating into increasingly computerized workplaces and college environments."

Ashley Godfrey places first in District 4-H Fashion Show

Pre-junior 4-Her Ashley Godfrey placed first in her category at the District 4-H Fashion Show in Boerne Saturday, July 28, and several other Bandera County competitors garnered honors.

"It was (Godfrey's) first time to go to district," said Bandera County Extension Agent Jan Bryson. "There were over 140 contestants." Godfrey made a nightgown and pinafore set that Bryson described as "beautiful."

Senior Windy Wagner placed second in the specialty wear category with sleeping attire she made. Seniors Julie Ruede and Laci Sorrell also placed second in their respective ready-to-wear categories: Ruede in the active sportswear contest and Sorrell in the evening wear contest. All three second placers will be alternate candidates for state competition, scheduled Aug. 16-18 in El Paso.

Senior Debbie Falardeaux placed fifth for her construction of non-tailored day wear and junior Dusty Reed placed fifth for her coordinates construction.

Other competitors from Bandera County included juniors Jeanette Williams and Misti Wells; and pre-juniors Michelle Dexter and Jennifer Reed.

Ruede and Falardeaux participated in the district awards ceremony. Michelle Godfrey and Emily Keith served as judges and Euna Wagner arranged for refreshments. Godfrey, Keith and Wagner provided music.

Civil War encampment to be re-enacted at Maxey

As part of the Northeast Texas Heritage Festival, a Civil War re-enactment group will be camped at the Sam Bell Maxey House State Historic Park Aug. 10-11, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Sam Bell Maxey formed the original 9th Texas Infantry Regiment in 1861 and mustered his men to march to Corinth, Mississippi. "Historic news accounts report that all of the town turned out with bands and flags to see Maxey leading his troops and riding his big white horse," says David Baccus, park superintendent.

Subsequently the 9th Texas Infantry suffered an 80 percent casualty rate at the Battle of Shiloh.

Known as Co. F 9th Texas Infantry, the Southern Volunteers established their re-enactment group 12 years ago to remember the historic 9th Texas Infantry Regiment.

They will be establishing an authentic Civil War period camp and playing a demonstration game of "rounder," Friday, Aug. 10. The Civil War-era game is a cross between baseball and rugby.

Saturday morning Co. F 9th Texas Infantry will preform military drill and ceremony, and display their period weapons, flags, uniforms, tents, cooking gear and camp furnishings for park visitors.

The historical park is located in downtown Paris at 812 South Church Street, the corner of Washington Street. Built in the High Victorian Italianate style, it was a proper home for the ex-Confederate general Sam Bell Maxey. The house and Maxey furnishings have been preserved to reflect almost 100 years of continuous use by the Maxey family.

Tours are given Wednesday through Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. for an admission of $1 for adults, 50 cents for children six to 12, and free to children under six. For further information call (214)785-5716.

Local song writer get Kerrville airplay

Bandera youth to appear in Point Theatre production

Dennis Hargis, son of Tim and Barbara McKay of Bandera, will be appearing in the Point Theatre's production of "Winnie-the-Pooh," the children's tale of a boy and his teddy bear and animal friends. The show will be staged Wednesday through Saturday through Aug. 25 at the Ingram theater.

Hargis, a Bandera High School freshman, has been active in theater arts the past two years and has appeared in four school productions.

Directed and designed by the Hill Country Arts Foundation's theater director David Cockerell, the Ingram production stars Preston Hyde in the title role of a stuffed bear. Fifth grader Gregory S. Hulett will play Piglet.

Tickets at $10 for adults, $8 for HCAF members and $5 for children may be reserved by calling 367-5122 in Ingram.

Zilker Park in Southwest Austin is home to one of Texas' largest spring-fed swimming pools, Barton Springs. Pure, clear water from the Edwards Aquifer bubbles year-round at a constant 68 degrees. The pool remains open through all four seasons, and a number of hardy swimmers can be seen just about any month of the year. Texas Department of Commerce photo.

Known primarily for its Stockyards District, Fort Worth has a number of beautiful natural areas, such as the Botanic Gardens adjacent to Trinity Park. Over 150,000 living plants representing 2,500 different species are displayed in both formal and natural settings. Texas Department of Commerce photo.

Alabama-Coushatta Indians from the Big Thicket of East Texas are among the 30 ethnic groups represented at the Texas Folklife Festival in San Antonio. Dozens of exhibits and booths during the four-day event feature the food and wares, crafts and customs of the many cultures of Texas. Sunday Social planned Aug. 12 in Lakehills

The Medina Lake Volunteer Fire Department Auxiliary will host a Sunday Social Aug. 12 beginning at 5 p.m. at the new fire station in Lakehills.

Ice cream, pie, tacos, and tamales will be served, reports president Dolly Dresser.

Proceeds from the event will be used by the auxiliary to buy items needed in the new firehouse. "The auxiliary has put over $5,000 into essentials at the new station and we need to 'replenish the pot' as there is still much to be done," says Dresser.

"Everyone is invited to join us at our social and 'warm up' for the forthcoming (department) Labor Day barbecue," she says.

A workday for volunteers will be held Friday, Aug. 10, at 8:30 a.m. following a short business meeting, says Dresser.

Maggie Buchanan is chairwoman of the event.

Choosing the right diet can be difficult proposition

People who want to maintain their normal weight or lose extra pounds often end up choosing a weight loss plan that may not be effective, says Dr. Mary Kinney Sweeten, nutritionist with the Texas Agriculturl Extension Service.

With all the television, magazine and newspaper advertisements of diet plans and commercial weight loss programs, choosing the right diet can be difficult, she says. Some people may not need a "special diet" at all.

"People with an extra two to five pounds from overeating can probably drop the weight just by cutting back on extra calories and getting on an exercise program, such as walking a mile or two each day," she says.

Some people may benefit from low-fat recipes from a magazine diet plan.

Before choosing a diet book, class or plan in hopes that it will help you with significant and permanent weight loss, Sweeten suggests asking the following questions:

• What's the source of the diet? Is it a reliable health organization?

• How is the effectiveness of the diet documented? Be aware of testimonials by "successful" clients. Ask for figures on long-term maintenance as well.

• Are sensational claims made for the diet? Does it promise that you can lose 10 pounds overnight or "eat all you want" and still lose weight?

• Is the program supervised by qualified personnel, such as a physician or a registered dietitian?

• Along with calorie reduction, does the diet include instruction in behavior and lifestyle modification to help maintain the weight loss?

• Is this a one-food diet or liquid diet? In addition to being boring, these diets omit necessary nutrients and can be a danger to a person's health.

• Is the diet nutritionally balanced? It should include foods from the major food groups of meat, poultry and fish; fruits and vegetables; dairy products; and grains and cereals.

• What is the cost of the diet? If you have to buy special foods, devices, supplements or books, will it be worth it?

Tuesday, Aug. 7, the Melodiers and Auxiliaires presented a program at Purple Hills Manor nursing home.

The Melodiers extend a hearty welcome to Bob Wyatt, a new member of the group.

• Marti and Trav Redinan are on a trip through Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, and other Canadian provinces. The exercise group has enjoyed reports from the travelers, and are looking forward to learning more about the trip when the Redmans return.

• Geraldine C. Sharp donated a TrimLine fun and fitness machine to the center. It is available for use by anyone who wants to improve their vascular system, or who just wants to exercise. We extend a big thanks to her for this generous gift.

• The cooking class will resume Thursday, Aug. 16 at 2:30 p.m. Please note special emphasis on good nutrition as well as on cooking food that tastes good.

If you have some ideas for something you'd like to learn to prepare, or would like to help instruct the class, please call the center. Anyone interested is invited to attend the class.

• The Texas Folklife Festival is now over, and the poultry display sponsored by Manuel Flores and Tom Reece was deemed the best display of the festival. The exotic fowl, pheasants and the baby chicks in the petting pen were viewed by thousands of people. Several Bandera residents came by the exhibit for a visit.

Medicare video offered by insurance board

A 10-minute video on Medicare supplement insurance is being distributed by the State Board of Insurance for use by senior citizen service organizations around the state.

The video, called "Changes in Medicare Supplement Insurance," is available on loan from the Senior Concerns and Issues Section of the board. The film was produced by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners to explain the changes in Medicare supplement insurance resulting from the repeal of the Medicare Catastrophic Care Act.

Also available is a video entitled "Insurance Tips for Senior Citizens: Buying Medicare Supplement Insurance," which was produced by the Senior Concerns and Issues section of the State Board of Insurance.

Copies of both videos were sent to Agriculture Extension district offices and Texas Department on Aging area directors for use in their lending libraries.

Organizations that wish to show either or both videotapes may write: State Board of Insurance, Senior Concerns and Issues (016-4), P.O. Box 149091, Austin, Tex., 78714-9091, or phone 512-463-6515.

New paperwork mandated by patients using Medicare

People who have Part B Medicare medical insurance should know about an important change in the way claims are submitted, says Social Security manager Bruce Tyler of San Antonio.

"Beginning Sept. 1, the Medicare medical insurance claim must be prepared and submitted by the service provider — the doctor, laboratory, medical supply company, or other party giving the service," said Tyler.

In the past, Medicare beneficiaries submitted a Patient's Request for Medicare (Form 1490S), unless the physician or service provider accepted the Medicare-approved charge as the total charge, Tyler explained. But starting in September, the doctor or service provider must send in a claim even if they don't accept assignment.

Tyler stressed that the service provider cannot charge for preparing and submitting the Medicare claim. "If a service provider refuses to prepare and submit the Medicare claim, or charges a fee for doing so, the beneficiary should contact his or her Medicare carrier," Tyler said.

The Medicare carrier for Texas is Blue Cross and Blue Shield, Box 660031, Dallas 75266 (1-800-442-2620).

A Thought For The Week
By John M. Grimes

Let's discard the poisons of the past. If today is going to be a blessing, we must discard yesterday's hurts and disappointments.

I remember an old recluse who sent word she wanted me to call on her. When I knocked on her door for several minutes, she came to the door and said, "Yes" I wanted to say, "No," in reply and get off the porch, but I didn't.

Inside I found old papers and magazines stacked up in a dirty old house. I found an old wicker chair with no cushion to sit on. It was dark, the shutters were closed and the drapes were drawn.

She told me about burying her husband some 30 years ago. She had turned bitter on life, people, and the world from that time on.

She gave me instructions for her funeral. She told me the verses from scripture, the hymns and the type of service she wanted. Then she seemed eager for me to leave. She did not want to hear about today's world. What a sad situation! What a wasted life!

The contemporary song has a great message for her and all of us, "Open up your heart and let the sunshine in."

Thank Yous

THANK YOU
God bless all the good people in this area and our friends out of town for your love and kindness in our time of sorrow. All the flowers, cards, contributions, prayers and food are gratefully appreciated.
We all have been totally besides ourselves and without each and everyone of you, the days would be even longer. The benefit for our dear Allen was more than generous. You proved once again what we are here on this earth for, to help and love one another.
We thank you from the bottom of our hearts for all that has been done for us.
With love
Rosa, Freddie and Marvin

Dogwood trees to be given by foundation

Ten free white flowering dogwood trees will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation during the month of August.

The free trees are part of the nonprofit foundation's Trees for America campaign.

"The white flowering dogwoods will add year-round beauty to your home and neighborhood," John Rosenow, the Foundation's executive director, said. "Dogwoods have showy spring flowers, scarlet autumn foliage, and red berries which attract songbirds all winter."

The trees will be shipped postpaid at the right time for planting between October 15 and December 10 with enclosed planting instructions. The six to twelve inch trees are guaranteed to grow or they will be replaced free of charge.

To become a member of the Foundation and to receive the free trees, send a $10 membership contribution to Ten Dogwoods, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, Ne 68410, by Aug. 31.

Flower show

The San Antonio Garden Center's annual flower show will be Saturday, Oct. 6 and Sunday, Oct. 7.

And now a word about cenizo

The almost general rains in South Texas lately have created ideal conditions for the most spectacular show of blooms we can remember on the purple cenizo bushes which proliferate in certain parts of the brush country.

The scruffy grey shrubs - their Spanish name means "ash" - are said to be indicators of coming rain, putting out their flowers when the humidity is high—or is it when the barometer is low? But this summer, they seem to be coming out after the rain, though with the continuing waves of storm systems, they might still be predicting moisture.

In the community graveyard on the edge of Pearsall going out the old Keystone road, an avenue of cenizo is as luxuriantly bright as any azaleas could be in the Deep South. Drab pastures have leaped into color after the heat of June. Off toward Eagle Pass, the cenizo has turned the countryside a vibrant lavender as far as the eye can see.

On the way to Kerrville this past week, we noted that all the planted specimens at ranch gates and in yards are also in the fullest bloom ever. And here at home, the old cenizo brought in from the pasture forty years ago to be replanted near the Goodbye Tree has been bent to the ground with the weight of blossom.

Along our cliff and on one steep slope cutting down to the river is the stand of native cenizo from which we dug up the one in the yard. Usually wild plants do not take moving kindly. But this one did. Growing six feet tall and finally blooming big.

As Queen for a Day, it attracted honeybees, hummingbirds, black butterflies, and human beings taking color snapshots and making videos of grandchildren admiring the flowers. Then one of the rainstorms came and left a litter of lavender on the ground. Thus ended the legendary fifteen minutes of fame. Asi pasa la vida.

The cliff area is the only part of our place where cenizo grows. We have not happened to see it growing with the choice inches-county, as popular as it is as a garden specimen. It is said that cenizo is susceptible to cotton root-rot, the bane of apple trees, rose-of sharon, and other flora. Is the presence of root-rot in a given area the reason for the absence of cenizo?

While the most beloved of Texas wild flowers tend to be those coming out in spring, we think that the cenizo, both in its wild form and in the newer lush varieties developed by the Aggies, deserves more notice. After all, it blooms in the deepest summer when we've just about given up on seeing color on anything but crape myrtle. It actually is the official flower of San Antonio Conservation Society, having been so chosen before that group became better known for the paper flowers of Fiesta San Antonio.

Computer use continues to grow in American business, schools

The day isn't far off when you won't be able to do business without a computer, according to the U.S. Small Business Administration's office of business development. Some 44 percent of small businesses with five employees or less have personal computers.

The numbers grow to more than 75 percent for small businesses with 20 to 99 employees, according to the SBA. Small businesses depend on personal computers for writing documents, analyzing data, designing text and graphic materials, accounting and payroll, and storing inventory and sales information. In many offices the computer is the main piece of equipment, fulfilling the functions of clock, telephone, typewriter, drawing board, calculator, recorder copier, checkbook, filing cabinet, and in and out trays in one small package.

A rapidly growing trend is the computer as a communications tool. Using computers to communicate is not just a fad; it is the way all business will be done in the not-so-distant future. In the 1990's, a growing part of all business communications will be done not by voice telephone or fax but through computer. Computer communications systems, generally referred to as networks come in different shapes and sizes: for example electronic bulletin boards, electronic mail systems, fax boards attached to personal computers, national information banks, on-line database services, and LAN (Local Area Networks).

Computer networks link together computers at various remote sites. To hook your personal computer to outside computers, you need a modem, a device that links your computer through telephone lines, and communications software - that comes with the modem or can be bought separately in any computer store.

Another option for many businesses is an internal network that hooks up various independent workstations in the same location. There are several low cost alternatives on the market.

Using computer networks to communicate is no longer limited to computer specialists, consultants and librarians. A growing number of small business people are taking advantage of the extensive opportunities to talk to each other, share information and cultivate business contacts.

Networks can be a tremendous resource for business leads and raw data. You can use information stored in files and databases on the network to help you make business decisions and reduce your risks in research and development, manufacturing, market research, sales strategies for introducing new products and many other areas. Using a network gives you access to information and can stimulate creativity and help extend your ideas into areas that you may not have considered.

Electronic bulletin boards (BBS's) allow you to transfer files, post information, and leave messages through electronic mail. Some bulletin board systems offer interactive question and answer sessions between members and guest speakers on topics such as taxes and financing. Examples of other business services include: investment programs, business logos, market research, financial applications for spreadsheets, software upgrades, travel information, news services and home finance information. Many bulletin board systems can be used for free or there charge annual membership fees that range from $15 to $50. Some charge a nominal sum for use of software programs.

In addition, many federal, state, and city government agencies have installed electronic bulletin board systems to disseminate information to the public. Some systems post information that can be read, while others maintain government databases of statistics, agency news or detailed reports that you can transfer to your computer. For example, you can use the Department of Commerce's Economic Bulletin Board to compile a list of foreign companies interested in starting or increasing their import or export business.

Most bulletin boards are easy to use and have clear menu driven instructions. If you are interested in plugging into a government BBS, remember that many government services are in the Washington, D.C. area, and you will have to pay long-distance tolls to use these services. If you have never used a BBS before, you may want to experiment with a local BBS first.

For more information on SBA's programs and services, contact your closest SBA office. For the SBA office in your area, call the SBA answer Desk at 1-800-368-5855.

Sonora sale results

The sale average of the annual Performance Tested Bill Sale July 28 in Sonora was stable, despite a depressed mohair and goat market.

"It was a good sale. We were extremely pleased with the average, especially in light of the current market," said Dr. Frank Craddock, sheep and goat specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Some 68 head averaged $555.62 for a total of $37,850.

The high-indexing goat went for $1,400 and the high-selling billy at the sale was purchased for $3,000. The second highest-selling billy sold for $1,600.

Drowning prevention requires alert parents

With the growing popularity of backyard swimming pools, drowning has become a leading cause of death among preschool children. To help curb this problem, the Texas Medical Association urges parents and pool owners to take appropriate precautions.

"A child under age 5 who lives near a pool is 14 to 17 times more likely to die from drowning than from an automobile accident," TEXAS MEDICINE member Dan L. Levin, M.D., medical director of pediatric intensive care at Children's Medical Center and Parkland Hospital in Dallas, "Child drownings have become an epidemic."

Toddlers are the most vulnerable to drowning, according to the U.S. Consumer Products Safety Commission. In a study of home drownings of preschool children, the commission found that 75 percent of victims are between 12 and 35 months of age.

Many of the children were seen five minutes or less before being missed. This means that drownings happen quickly and without warning.

The primary rule for parents and others who care for children is "never let a child out of your sight around water," says Dr. Levin, president of the citizen's group SPLASH (Seeking Proper Legislation Against Swimming Hazards). Practically speaking, however, that is impossible.

On a more realistic level, the best protection is a 5-foot fence separating the pool from the house and the play area. "This is different from a fence around the property," he says.

The fence should be built flush to the ground and have no more than 4 inches between slats. It should have a self-closing, self-locking gate, with the latch placed on the pool side above a child's reach. The fence also should be in good repair and have nothing propped against it, such as a lawn chair or firewood.

Some pool owners have installed other safety devices, but these have problems, Dr. Levin. Often, most safety devices are turned off during peak times and must be activated to work.

These supplementary safety precautions can be taken:

- Teach children to swim, but don't assume that lessons can save a child under 6 from drowning. A toddler who falls into a pool will not be able to swim with clothes on or have the thinking skills to swim to the side and pull himself out.
- All parents and pool owners need to learn cardio-pulmonary resuscitation, which is useful for many different kinds of emergencies.

In the usual scenario, a child is found at the bottom of a pool, says A. Compton Broders III, M.D., Dallas, chair or TMA's Committee on Emergency Medical Services and Trauma. The paramedics arrive and administer CPR, and "the child is either saved or not saved at the pool."

If parents know CPR, they can begin administering it immediately. They also should call for help. For such emergencies, a poolside telephone can be installed. To find out where to receive CPR training, call your physician or local hospital.

The Texas Medical Association is a professional organization of more than 29,000 physician and medical student members.

Herbs can be most beautiful ornamental plants in the garden

Herbs can add beauty and practicality to any landscape ... kept well-groomed, herbs can be the most beautiful plants in the garden, according to Irene Elizondo with the Texas Department of Agriculture.

"Traditionally, herbs have been grown in their own little space somewhere out in the yard, or in small containers in the kitchen, kept on the window sill," Elizondo says. "Herbs do not have to be confined to a permanent place. Herbs are great as ornamentals in vegetable and flowering gardens."

Today's gardeners are using herbs in their total landscaping, and herbs grown in pots can be moved around to fill a corner or an empty space in the garden, according to Elizondo. "One can create an impressive garden display with potted herbs and other container-grown plants arranged on bricks or weathered boxes even if one has a concrete patio for a yard," she says.

The container-grown plant idea for landscaping is not a new one and most botanical gardens use the container-grown plant idea for many of the flowering plants and small and medium-size trees for landscaping designs.

"It certainly makes gardening more interesting," Elizondo comments. "Colors, fragrances and perhaps even withering plants can be moved and replaced with ease."

Elizondo says parsley, chives, dwarf sage and thyme, which are low growing herbs, can be used as borders or edging around flowering beds. Ground-covering herbs such as chamomile and creeping thyme can become fragrant carpet pathways in the garden.

"One can have all this great flexibility and fragrance plus flavor, too," she says. "No doubt when being the creative cook in the kitchen means delectable eating. Herbs are a tasteful alternative to salt for seasoning and flavoring foods."

Tips about using fresh herbs in recipes include the use of a mortar and pestle for grinding the herbs to help release their fullest flavor, place herb leaves and stems in measuring cup and snip using kitchen shears; and save a few of the most attractive leaves for garnishing.

"Include a variety of herbs in the garden this year," Elizondo urges. "On the next visit to the garden center, discover the wealth of books available on growing herbs in your garden or kitchen."

Most publications will include a complete guide to hundreds of herbs. TDA urges consumers to buy Texas grown plants.

For information about the Texas grown program and Texas agricultural products, write the Texas Department of Agriculture, 122 Heiman, San Antonio, Texas 78205.

Public invited to meet coach at Optimist meeting

Members of the general public are invited to meet Bandera head football Coach Chris Storer at Monday's 7:30 p.m. meeting of the Bandera Optimist Club at the Bandera Inn.

"This will give all of us an opportunity to meet our new coach and show our support for the athletic program and the boys and girls who participate," said Optimist ... president Gail Stone.

Storer coached last year at Frost High School.

The new coach will be introduced again during a rally Friday, Aug. 17, when players, cheerleaders and the Bulldog Band will also participate.

Public hunting program offers low-cost recreation

Participation in the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's Type II public hunting lands hunting permits for the 1989-90 hunting season. Holders of the permits had access to 727,825 acres of land leased by the department, including newly-added acreages in North Texas and the Panhandle.

Almost 159,000 hunter-days of recreation were provided by Type II, with an additional 48,000 days of noncons umptive use. A $10 Limited Use Permit was available for persons who wished to visit the areas but not hunt.

Deer hunting accounted for the most time spent on Type II areas, with almost 20,000 hunters spending about 159,000 days afield, A total of 2,130 were successful in taking at least one deer, for a success rate of 14.2 percent. The deer harvest (bucks only) were estimated at 2,515. Hunters also harvested more than 8,500 quail, 14,000 doves, 10,000 rabbits, 43,000 squirrels, 246 feral hogs and javelinas and 8,176 waterfowl.

Swimming winners

Green also placed fourth in the figures competition and Pittman placed sixth in routine competition and they teamed with Rebecca Snell, Nikki Davila and Autumn Ashenfelter to win second in the team competition.

The youthful swimmers are members of the Cygnets team of San Antonio.

Tami wins again

Schreiner gets floor

A new wooden gymnasium floor for Schreiner College's Edington Center will be complete by mid-August.

Builders of the new floor claim athletes will be able to jump higher for rebounds and volleyball slams thanks to a rubber cushion built into each wooden plank supporting the new 8,000 square foot court.

A gift from Floy Jung of Kerrville and her daughter, Wanda Kierce Mann, launched the fund-raising campaign. With the help of several other families and friends, the project was complete in one month.

In addition to buying the floor and adjusting the gymnasium for alterations, gifts provided an alarm system to detect water leakage and special maintenance equipment.

Mann played basketball four years at Schreiner, graduating in 1987. A three-year starter, she still ranks among the college's top 10 scorers. Jung said one of her daughter's biggest fans was her step-father, Calvin Jung, in whose memory the new court will be dedicated in ceremonies this fall.

The new Robbins permacushion court replaces a 9-year-old poured polyurethane surface. NAH Floors of Houston is building Schreiner's new floor that's similar to the court at UCLA.

"It's obvious to me that the new court will improve the looks of the gym," said Schreiner athletic director Dr. Tom Wells.

"The new floor will be better psychologically for the players and will help with recruiting," said Wells.

Squinch Eye, winner of last week's 350-yard Lone Star State Futurity by 31/2 lengths, could be one of the fastest horses in the nation. Trained by Bandera trainer Toby Keeton, Squinch Eye has set a track record at La Bahia Downs in Goliad, hanging up a speed index of 106. His only defeat was in the Grade 1 $436,458 Rainbow Futurity at Ruidoso Downs in New Mexico when he started bleeding, a result Keeton attributed to the New Mexico altitude. His trainer says he'll probably stay at Bandera Downs from now on, and he's got his eye on the Oct. 28 Grade III Bandera Downs Futurity in which the purse should exceed $100,000.

Purses, cards increased at race track

By Nick Johnson
Editor

Purses at Bandera Downs have been increased 5 percent across the board and the Saturday and Sunday racing cards will be stretched to 11 races as track officials move to take advantage of the better-than-expected response from the public to its first five weeks of racing.

The changes come on the heels of the track's first $1 million weekend in terms of money wagered and a new single-day handle record of $431,000 on Sunday. Wagering records have been set nearly every day during the first 15 days of racing.

The race cards will be increased to 11 races on Saturdays, Sundays and Labor Day, beginning Aug. 11, said track president Don Essary. The feature race, which has been the ninth race of each day, will now be the 10th race on Saturday and Sunday.

There'll be no change in the Friday schedule, and post times will remain the same every day -- 4 p.m. on Friday and 1 p.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

There will be four consecutive races for thoroughbreds Sunday for the first time this year, and the increase in purses is calculated to accelerate the move to Bandera Downs by thoroughbreds and the better quarter horses.

"As we have stated all along, if we continue to do well, the benefits will be passed on to the horsemen," said Essary. "We feel that we have lived up to all our promises at this time and we plan to continue to expand our good relationship with our horsemen, who have provided our racing fans with some of the finest, most competitive horse racing available anywhere," he said.

The 5-percent increase in purses means that the rewards for horsemen in the usual overnight handicaps will range from $1,050 to $2,730, up from $1,000 to $2,600. Stake and other featured races have higher purses, including the $13,940 Lone Star State Derby set for Saturday.

The increase in purses is the track's second major concession to horsemen, many of whom were initially critical of a $2 stall fee levied by Bandera Downs. There was some talk of a boycott of the track by horsemen, but Essary eliminated that fee a couple of weeks ago.

While there will only be 10 races on Friday, a large crowd of local people are expected to attend the first in a series of salutes to area communities. It will be Bandera Day at the Races and residents of the community will be admitted to the grounds free and offered discounted Turf Club Terrace and grandstand reserve tickets.

One of Friday's featured events will be the City of Bandera Handicap, a 7 1/2 furlong (1,650 yards) thoroughbred claiming race for 3-year-olds and up, and track officials have invited all the residents of Bandera to join the winner in the winner's circle to be in a post-race photograph.

"The more people that get involved, the more fun this will be," said Michael Zlaket. "Who knows, maybe we can get a few hundred people down there and set a record."

That race will be Friday's eighth race and will begin at about 7 p.m., track officials said.

Fastest qualifiers for Saturday's Lone Star State Derby were first and second in the second trail heat on July 27. Nava's Bolder Girl won the trial in 22.37 seconds, edging Mr. Do It Now by a nose, and will probably be a slight morning-line favorite.

Cool Hand Loom finished third in that fast heat and could be a sentimental favorite among bettors.

Ms. Easy Truxton won the first heat in 22.4 seconds and Feel the Touch won the third in 22.41.

Leroy Summers will be aboard Nava's Bolder Girl in post position six when the gates open Saturday and Ignacio Bustamante will be on Mr. Do It Now in gate one. Cool Hand Loom will be piloted by Elbert Minchey.

Sunday's Bluebonnet Stakes will have $6,000 added to entry fees and is reserved for fillies and mares 3 years old an up. It's a six-furlong (1,320 yards) race for thoroughbreds.

Friday's featured event is a 350-yard allowance for non-winning quarter horses 3 years old an up in which at least five entries have a good chance at victory.

Lady Viking Belle, which is coming off a six-length victory on July 28, will probably be the morning line favorite, but she could be tested by Toast A Streaker, a Dave Correll trained horse who finished second in each of its previous two outs.

A pair of San Antonio men teamed up to win the twin trifecta Sunday, taking home more than $40,000 after taxes, so the fund will start from scratch Friday.

Records were set last weekend both on the track and in the box office as betters contributed to the first $1 million weekend ever in Texas by raking $1,064,825, and Sunday's $431,592 was a single-day state record. Friday's per capita total of $110.20 was also a new state standard.

On the track, jockey Jesse Saucedo rode five winners on Friday, a Bandera Downs record, and Happy Boss smashed a track record for five furlongs by winning Friday's 10th race in 1:00.0.

Commissioners to consider next year's county spending next week

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Next year's county budget will once again take center stage at meetings of the Bandera County commissioners Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 13 and 14.

Commissioners' Tuesday budget workshop will begin the process of compiling the 1990-91 fiscal year budget, but they may also consider some budget items at their regular Monday meeting that begins at 9 a.m.

The spending plan will include next year's sheriff's budget in which the county's top law man has proposed spending nearly $572,000, almost 50 percent more than the current $384,000 budget.

The county attorney has also requested an hefty increase in his budget.

The size of the budget eventually approved by commissioners will determine whether there will be a county tax increase next year.

Bandera County Sheriff R.S. "Steve" Forest, who has clashed with commissioners over his budget before, submitted a $571,812 spending plan for the fiscal year beginning Sept. 1, a 48.7 percent increase over last year's $384,640 budget, and a 5.3 percent increase over the amended budget of $542,837 he is operating under now.

Commissioners added $116,670 to his original $384,640 budget at the end of June his department has spent all of that money. In order to continue to fund the department, commissioners accepted approximately $24,350 from Forest's cash seizure fund and the other $93,070 came from county reserve. However, to maintain control of his spending, commissioners are approving that budget in monthly increments of approximately $31,000 each month.

The sheriff's budget includes an increase of $34,114 to pay for deputies salaries of $190,240, or 21.8 percent more than last year. Other salary-expense increases include a rise from $9,502 to $13,705, or 44.8 percent, for secretaries, and an increase from $47,668 to $86,203, or 81.8 percent, for dispatchers and jailers.

Forest isn't asking for a raise for himself, budgeting $21,915 for that purpose, but he asked for a raise for the jail cook from $9,050 to $9,860.

Other increases include office supplies from $4,000 to $6,000, investigation supplies from $2,000 to $2,735, investigation expenses from $2,424 to $5,265, jail repairs and maintenance from $3,615 to $4,000, and telephone expense from $9,000 to $27,600.

The sheriff's budget was $328,017 in fiscal 1987-88.

A preliminary version of the sheriff's budget for next year was $614,672.

County Attorney Sam Darden has also turned in a preliminary $72,080 budget, a $27,518 or 61 percent increase over last year's budget.

Darden requested a salary increase from $16,500 to $27,500, a 67 percent increase. He wants to double his secretary's allowance from $4,800 to $9,600, more than double the spending for court-appointed attorneys from $12,000 to $26,000, and fund the assistant county attorney, Robert F. Stubbeman, for the first time at a level of $20,000.

Darden appointed Stubbeman July 16, and the assistant has begun prosecuting cases in peace justice court and said then that Stubbeman should be paid out of the 15-cent tax on admissions tax at Bandera Downs.

Mauer told commissioners in a recent meeting that Darden is willing to take cuts in his budget.

The primary source of money to pay for the county budget comes from property taxes, which are based on real property values in the county.

Preliminary figures from the Bandera County Appraisal District set the value of taxable property in the county at $532,232,147, a $11,545,579, or 2.2 percent, increase from last year's $520,686,586.

With a slightly higher tax rate and a slightly higher tax base upon which to tax, the county could have enough revenue to fund the county department's increases.

Track to seek additional racing days

Essary says they want to run through November

Bandera Downs will formally ask the Texas Racing Commission for permission to conduct pari-mutuel racing on weekends through the first week of December, track president and co-owner Don Essary confirmed Tuesday.

"We've asked to be put on the commission's agenda Sept. 12 when we intend to ask for additional 1990 racing dates," Essary said. "We'd like to go through Thanksgiving (Nov. 22) and maybe through the first or second week of December."

The track's current meet is scheduled to end on Oct. 28.

Essary also revealed he intends, apparently at a later date, to ask the racing commission to restore a spring meet to the 1991 schedule that has already been approved.

That would mean racing at Bandera Downs would resume in March, instead of June 1 as is currently scheduled.

"We would certainly like to have the original dates (in 1991) that we applied for," Essary said Tuesday. "The reason we did not get those (spring) dates was because the commission did not want us to conflict with Longhorn Downs.

"Longhorn Downs won't run in 1991," Essary continued, "so we would like to race in the spring."

Longhorn Downs is a track near Round Mountain that hasn't been built yet, and Essary estimated that it would take 18 months to build a track the size that Longhorn Downs is supposed to be.

If Essary is successful on Sept. 12 getting TRC approval to extend the current meet through the second week of December, it will mean five or six additional weekends of racing this year.

He won't ask to extend the season any later than Dec. 9, however. "We don't want to run into the holiday season," he explained.

Essary said the success of Bandera Downs has not surprised him, and it was not simply the apparent success of racing here that drives him to ask for more racing dates in 1990.

He's just trying to replace the dates he lost when a lag in lining up financing caused him to open on July 6 instead of March 2. "We lost one-third of our season in this calendar year," he pointed out. "That was not beneficial to us, obviously, and it was especially hard on the horsemen because we are not offering them a long enough meet to make some money."

He says he thinks of the horsemen (owners, trainers, etc.) as one of the partners in the Bandera Downs venture, and there are more. "The additional dates will generate money for all the partners — the track, horsemen, the state, Bandera County and the city of Bandera," he said.

To call attention to that "partnership," he and co-owner Stan Scruby this week were scheduled to present checks for $7,797.60 each to County Judge Ray F. Mauer and Mayor Raymond Adamietz. It was the proceeds from the from the first 10 racing days of the county's and the city's 15-cent admissions tax at Bandera Downs.

And he pointed out Tuesday that the state had earned $280,577 from the first 18 days of racing through its 5-percent levy on the daily handle.

In addition, the county and state will realize additional revenue directly from the track in the form of sales taxes paid on programs, parking, food, beverages and other goods and services sold at the track. The city's benefit is indirect in the form of sales taxes paid by visitors attracted to the city by the track.

He said the track's attendance and handle are pretty close to his

These smiling faces may disappear if the Bandera City Council prohibits swimming at the dam at any time in the wake of the drowning of two San Antonio men beneath the dam during a moonlight swimming party in the rain-swollen river on Aug. 4.

City council to eye changes in dam

Will consider options during Monday meeting

By Nick Johnson
Bulletin Editor

Bandera city council will meet Monday, Aug. 20, to go over options to prevent more loss of life in the Medina River at the city park dam, including fencing the area off to bar any entry into the river below the dam.

Two San Antonio men on a moonlight outing at the park on Aug. 4 drowned while trying to save a 16-year-old non-swimmer who was swept off the dam by strong currents in the river swollen by recent rains.

It was only the latest in a series of incidents at the dam. Several near-drownings have been reported in the last five years, but the Aug. 4 deaths were the only fatal incidents of recent times.

Alarmed by the threat of lawsuits if it continues to ignore the danger, the city council will consider a series of options that range from fencing the entire area off to installing culverts under the dam to allow water to flow through instead of over the dam.

Engineer Rudy Klein told the council Monday, Aug. 13, that he knows of four options open to the city, but Mayor Raymond Adamietz rejected one of them out of hand.

The engineer did not make an in-depth study of the Bandera dam specifically, and said he was talking in theory only. One of the options he listed was to replace non-functioning gates in the dam with gates that work and which could be opened in times of high water to allow water to pass through the dam as well as over it.

But Mayor Adamietz said the existing gates are too small to be effective, even if they were functioning.

The engineer suggested three other options:

- Fencing off the dam and not allowing anyone to walk on the dam or to swim beneath the dam at any time.
- Changing the slope of the dam by creating a rip-rap surface down river and erecting retard blocks on the base of the dam. This would have the effect of slowing down the velocity of the water as it flows over the dam, Cline said.
- Installing a piping system of culverts through the dam to allow water to flow under the dam. This was identified as the most expensive of the available options.

City council members indicated they felt there were additional options, including one proposed by councilman Charlie Eckhart that he said could be completed almost immediately at a cost of less than $5,000.

Eckhart's plan is actually a less-expensive variation of Cline's idea to change the slope of the dam. Eckhart wants to dump some large, multi-ton boulders in the river beneath the dam, a move he said will accomplish the objective of eliminating the dangerous undertow created by large volumes of water flowing over the dam.

The site is normally a peaceful place to enjoy the delights of one of Texas' most pristine rivers and on almost every summer weekend is the source of refreshing water fun for large numbers of family groups that include many children.

But when heavy rains swell the Medina River, the velocity of the water going over the dam creates a treacherous undertow that pulls anyone or anything that floats over the dam beneath the waters and holds it there.

At least 15 persons had to be pulled out of the waters and most were sent to area hospitals in June of 1987 when rains caused the river level to rise dramatically.

The city council prohibited swimming 5C feet on either side of the dam, erected signs, and directed police Chief Walter Welch to issue citations to violators.

Welch has not enforced the prohibition, however, even though the city's attorney warned the council that failure to enforce them would open the city to lawsuits.

"If you do nothing, you'd better get your checkbook out," warned city attorney Terry Mason.

Welch maintains, however, that he is powerless to enforce city ordinances in the river, which is state-owned property.

The city council also authorized Mason to arrange a meeting with Dr. Jeffrey Blaney of the hydrology engineering department at The University of Texas at San Antonio to study the problem. Apparently, however, no meeting was ever held.

Among the options being considered is fencing off the entire dam area.

Blaney told The Bulletin in an exclusive interview that he felt the undertow could be eliminated by creating a slope on the down-river side of the dam that would allow the water to slide over the dam instead of cascade over the sheer downriver drop. That's essentially what Cline recommended by creating rip-rap surface beneath the dam and installing retard blocks.

The UTSA professor also volunteered to bring a class of advanced engineering students to the site to study the flow and recommend specific solutions. He said the only cost to the city would be a few meals and gas money.

Like city attorney Mason did three years ago, public works director Rey Garcia warned the council Monday that its inaction would invite lawsuits. "We've got to keep the tort possibility uppermost in our minds," Garcia told the council. A tort is a wrongful act for which a civil suit can be brought.

Garcia called Eckhart's quick-fix solution a bad idea. "I think it will leave us open to more lawsuits," he said.

Garcia said he had during the past two weeks contacted to the U.S. Corps of Engineers and the federal Soil Conservation Service for help, but came up empty handed.

Mayor Adamietz said he wanted to contact the Corps of Engineers again and possibly the state Department of Commerce to seek federal or state grants that might aid the city in creating a solution to the problem on an emergency basis.

Monday's meeting will be open to the public, of course, and will begin at 7 p.m. in the city council chambers of the municipal building.

City may sell lot for wildlife exhibit

The Bandera City Council is considering selling its prime downtown lot at Main and Hackberry streets to a firm headed by Gary Heard which plans to build a two-story 40-foot by 90-foot building housing a stuffed wildlife exhibit and containing booths for local firms to advertise their advantages on video tape.

Spokesman Robert Jacobs offered the city $47,000 for the lot which now houses the Bandera Farmers Market and once was the site of the Bandera Theater.

The council rejected a proposed trade for the lot last month, but most members present Monday said they thought Jacobs' idea was a good one and they would decide on the offer after getting an independent appraisal and consulting with residents.

"It sounds good," said Mayor Raymond Adamietz, "but we'll have to kick it around to see what happens." The idea may be discussed again Monday, Aug. 20, at the council's workshop meeting.

Jacobs, who operates Bandera Taxidermy, said his group has already arranged full financing for the venture at an unnamed local bank and would be able to complete the facility three months after settling the property matter with the city.

He said the tourist attraction he has planned would feature an exhibit of stuffed wildlife, including native and exotic species. Surrounding the central exhibit would be a series of booths which would be offered to dude ranches and exotic game ranches to advertise their advantages.

The booths would have the capability of showing round-the-clock video presentations, Jacobs said.

250 marijuana plants seized at Pipe Creek

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

More than 200 marijuana plants with a potential value of a half-million dollars were seized near Pipe Creek Monday and one man was arrested by three law enforcement agencies in one of the largest pot seizures of growing plants in three years.

Bruce Wayne Patton, 35, of Pipe Creek was arrested Tuesday, Aug. 14, on second degree felony charges of possession of more than five pounds, but less than 50 pounds of marijuana.

Patton was cultivating 247 marijuana plants in a subdivision off State Highway 46 south of Pipe Creek, says criminal investigator Lt. James Kimbrell.

"It's one of the largest amounts grown (that we've seized) in the last 3½ years," he says.

The joint investigation by the Department of Public Safety narcotics division based in Kerrville, the 216th District Task Force, which is in part funded by Bandera County, and the Bandera County Sheriff's Department performed the investigation leading to the bust, says Kimbrell.

Police report

If the plants were allowed to grow to maturity, the leaves would weigh up to 250 pounds and be valued at $1,800 a pound, or $450,000, says the DPS narcotics officer.

The plants were seedless, budded, and high grade, says the officer.

Most of the marijuana plants were "well established" in the ground and hidden in a cedar

to the editor

Shoddy treatment

Dear editor:

This letter is to let you and your chamber of commerce know what happened to my husband and I on a recent weekend in Bandera when we decided to celebrate our wedding anniversary at Arkey Blue's Silver Dollar Saloon.

I called several motels the first week in July only to find them booked due to the horse races, and a very nice lady at the chamber of commerce gave me several phone numbers where I might find accommodations. I called one number for several days and finally left a message on the answering machine. The next week I received a call and was told she was booked on July 21 but had July 28 open. I told her this was fine, and the following day I received a brochure from her.

After trying several days (again) to get her on the phone, I finally left a message we would be arriving at 2:30 p.m. on July 28, and if this was not convenient for her to please call me back. Not hearing from her, I erroneously assumed everything was set.

Upon arriving in Bandera at 2:30 p.m., no one was there. So I went upstairs to see if she was waiting and found no one, but I did find signs that someone was staying there. I went next door, and one of the ladies there said, "Oh, no! She's done it again. She's out of town and someone else has booked it for the weekend."

Needless to say, I was upset.

Eventually, Mr. Freeman of Bandera Imports and Rilla Stephens of Cactus Patch II boutique found us accommodations at the Silver Spur Dude Ranch.

I am writing to you, with a copy to the chamber of commerce, to let you know how Mr. Freeman and Ms. Stephens turned a bad situation into a nice weekend. They are truly an asset to Bandera and its people.

The second reason for writing you is to let you know that if this is happening at one of the businesses your tourist bureau is (recommending), maybe they need to re-evaluate the list and remove one that maybe is giving Bandera a bad name with tourists.

Do not despair, sheriff

Dear editor:

Although the number of crimes, especially burglaries, has decreased, there are those who level criticism at Sheriff (Steve) Forest for "going over budget."

Surely, most of us prefer to see our money spent "over budget" to reduce and prevent crime rather than see it thrown away defending and paying for lawsuits filed against the sheriff and the county for alleged incompetence, illegal conduct and misconduct of the sheriff and his deputies. We had too much of that in the past and I do not recall a single commissioner opening his mouth in protest. Was that costly expense budgeted?

The records in those lawsuits are sealed so we cannot know their cost to the taxpayer. I ask, Mr. Editor, can you use your good offices in an effort to have these records made public?

Concerning drug money, is it not true the commissioners are $1.222 million in debt? It would be interesting to know their plans if they can get this money from the sheriff and into their hands. It would be better to let the sheriff spend it fighting crime protecting our property and person, even though his manner of spending might not be to the entire delight of some peevish politically-motivated detractors.

I feel more personally comfortable and secure with our present law enforcement and justice system than any time during my 19 years residency in the county.

Hopefully, Sheriff Forest will not despair, but rather will continue to obtain drug money to fight crime while at the same time enjoying the inequivocal commitment and support of each commissioner, other elements of the body politic and the public. He is an inherently honest man, well experienced in law enforcement, and much more competent than any of his predecessors in my memory.

Give the sheriff a chance

Dear editor:

This is in response to Gloria Kelley's letter in the July 25 issue.

I too am a senior citizen on a fixed income and own property in Bandera County. I have only praise for Sheriff (Steve) Forest and his deputies, particularly for the length of time they've had to use antique and out-dated material to carry out their duties.

Sheriff Forest is the only elected county sheriff I can remember that is a professional, coming out of the Department of Public Safety, and we all know the training they get. The man is trying to give the county the kind of law and order it deserves.

Sure, the Sheriff's Department has spent a lot of money. It takes money, and a lot of it, to purchase good equipment. When it comes to spending, however, the commissioners win hands down. As of June 30, Precinct 1 owed $65,467, Precinct 2 $38,972, Precinct 3 $16,476, and Precinct 4 $41,000.

Don't think for a moment all the items they've purchased were really needed. Every precinct could save money by using more restraint.

Ms. Kelley (questioned) the nine vehicles purchased for $168,812, or $18,757 per car. I call this a bargain. Surely you've checked new car prices lately? (As for) the one for $12,400 that went to the city of Bandera, maybe Walter (Welch) had the inside track on this one and he either saved the city a lot of money or got took real bad.

Ms. Kelley, you have every right to ask questions concerning county buying, but don't zero in one department. If spending isn't checked somewhere and soon, get ready for higher taxes.

Give our sheriff a chance. He started with nothing, you might say, and now that he has something to work with, we'll see what he can do. Sheriff Forest strikes me as being a conscientious and sincere person who is trying to bring Bandera County the very best Sheriff's Department it ever had. I think he can and will do just that, if the people of the county give him a fair chance. Besides, any sheriff who can play a fiddle like he does can't be all bad.

Vendetta at taxpayers expense?

Dear editor:

Where have all the tax dollars gone for the Bandera County Sheriff's Department. I know where some of it went due to an unfortunate personal experience.

On Aug. 25, 1989, a local businessman assaulted me on a parking lot in Bandera. He threatened the lives of my wife, 3-year-old daughter and myself. As he pinned me against the box of my truck, I reacted naturally by pushing him away. I was able to continue on to my appointment after this altercation with the intent of filing charges. When I concluded my appointment at approximately 10:30 p.m., I went directly to the sheriff's office to file charges. The local businessman was there filing a complaint against me for pushing him. I proceeded to file charges for terroristic threats and minor assault. On Nov. 21 my charges were dropped by the county attorney's office. I was never notified that my charges had been dropped.

To this day I still do not know the exact reason the charges were dropped. Could it be that someone in Sam Darden's county attorney's office has done legal work in the past for the local businessman, or as the county clerk said, the case was dropped due to a backlog of cases?

The judge involved said he would never dismiss a case due to a backlog. So where is the truth? Keep in mind that this is our tax dollars at work.

On Nov. 28, one week after charges against the local businessman were dropped, the county attorney's office filed a charge of assault against me for the local businessman. I was never notified of this charge so was unable to address the situation immediately.

In April, I started a job in League City and commuted between Bandera and League City. On June 6, I was taken into custody at my place of employment by the League City police, subjected to the humiliating and degrading experience of being extradited in handcuffs and chains by the Bandera County Sheriff's Department.

One month to the day after my arrest, on July 6, the charges against me were dropped. They were not dropped due to a backlog, but dropped as stated by the motion of the county attorney's office, "after investigation, it was clear that Shippy was victim of an attack, according to witnesses present."

It appears to me the local businessman was able to carry out a costly vendetta against an innocent citizen at the taxpaying citizens' expense.

The sheriff's budget is subject to expenses incurred due to the failure of other county government offices not completely checking out information made available at the outset of a case. So the end results flow out of the sheriff's limited budget.

A personal decision

Dear editor:

How many licenses do you have? Driver's license. Hunting license. Marriage license. How about a license to steal? What, you don't have a license to steal? Well, apparently the oil companies do. Let's take a look.

The army of Iraq was still crossing the borders of Kuwait when the oil companies began to increase their prices. Yes, I'm aware that one large company announced a price freeze on Aug. 9, following a 9-percent price increase, and I'm aware that several others announced price rollbacks of 4 cents per gallon following a 15 cents per gallon increase. You may disagree that they are thieves, but you must admit that they are, at best, opportunists. Remember the 1970s when the oil companies denied making huge profits, but willingly paid the windfall profits tax? Hypocrisy at its best!

So, what can we do about it? We can purchase gasoline from the retailers of those companies who try to hold the line on prices. Or, we can rush right out and buy stock in the "price-gouging" companies in order to share in their windfall profits, thereby becoming opportunists ourselves. But, I suppose that's a personal decision. What do you think?

He's an eager volunteer

Dear editor:

Recently I visited my mother way up in the Northern Redwoods in California, in a town of about 1,200. We went to the post office to pick up her copy of the Bandera Bulletin and by mistake they gave us someone else's copy, too! I couldn't resist, so I looked up David Lackey in the phone book and he'd been to Bandera in May, to visit his in-laws, and liked it so much that he ordered a Bulletin subscription so he could check out the town and especially the real estate ads! Truly amazing coincidence!

It was brought to my attention that we've left out (in What's Rustlin') several really important "givers to the community," one being Gerald Thetford. For years, Gerald has been a most eager volunteer fire department person and has volunteered his services for any group that ever needed help and asked him for it. Thanks, Gerald!

'What a turnout!' he says

Dear editor:

On behalf of Bandera Downs, I would like to thank those who attended Bandera Day at the Races last Friday, especially those who participated in the giant Winner's Cirle photo after the Bandera feature race.

What a turnout! Over 100 people came out of the stands and onto the track for the group photo. It was a showing the entire city can be proud of, and one which I'm sure made a lasting impression on fans from other areas.

So congratulations, Bandera, for making Bandera Day at the Races a huge success!

Appraisal district sets hearing on 1991 budget

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

The Bandera County Appraisal District's 1991 budget will be aired in public Thursday, Aug. 16, but the proposed budget, unless changed by the appraisal district directors, already has two strikes against it.

At the Aug. 2 meeting of the appraisal district, four of the five directors present favored a $268,400 budget for 1991, which is eight percent higher than the 1990 $247,800 budget.

The district's budget contains $12,000 for building space, but it was the $10,000 increase in salaries for six employees that drew fire from the county and city. The pay increases for the employees range from eight to 30 percent.

At city council meeting Monday, Aug. 13, council members Ross Bailey and Bob Abbey voted to object to the district's budget while councilman Charlie Eckhart abstained. Members Dorothy Darden and Geneva Dowell were absent.

Ross Bailey questioned the raises. "Most people are lucky to have what they're getting," he said. "Sure, everyone wants a pay raise, but we need some belt tightening throughout the governmental system," he said.

Bailey didn't think the raises were justified. "I go over to the courthouse and see the employees doing nothing," he said. "I go to the appraisal district and see them doing nothing."

But Abbey didn't like the $12,000 allocated as "contingency fund for future office relocation" written in the budget. "I think we need more of an explanation to make a decision," he said.

In separate action, Bandera County Commissioners voiced their disapproval of the budget Tuesday at a budget workshop based on the salary increases for the appraisal district staff.

County employee salaries are frozen for the coming budget year and because the appraisal district employees got a salary increase last year, the district should also freeze salaries, reports commissioner Bennie Barker.

The budget calls for a raise of $2,500 for chief appraiser Larry Reagan, from $31,500 to $34,000, or 7.9 percent.

Other increases are for the abstractor, from $14,400 to $16,500, a 14.6 percent increase, and for the data processor, from $15,000 to $17,000, a 13.3 percent increase.

The bookkeeper-secretary's salary was raised from $12,000 to $15,500, a 29.6 percent increase. But her duties have also been increased. She will operate the mapping computer and update the ownership data, thus justifying the increase, according to the appraisal district directors at their meeting Thursday, July 26.

District director Louise Karr, who appeared at Monday's city council meeting, told council members that the appraisal district was trying to bring appraisal district pay in line with what the county and the city pays. "Believe me, if I hadn't been there, the raises would have been higher," said Karr.

And at the July 26 meeting where the budget was drawn up, Karr was the salary conservative as veteran director Joe Hearn proposed the higher salary suggestions.

Robert "Sonny" Payne generally sided with Karr in the July 26 discussion, with chairman W.B. Kirkpatrick acting as mediator. Director Ben Barrow of Utopia was not at the meeting.

Directors left two slots in the personnel budget for a $14,400 field appraiser and $21,180 senior appraiser. The employees that had occupied those positions have quit the district.

The directors also placed $12,000 in the budget as a contingency fund for office space, but did not specify whether that money was for construction or rental in their budget document.

Sign planned to invite race fans to Bandera

The city council Monday authorized the expenditure of up to $300 to erect a sign at the exit of Bandera Downs inviting race fans to "turn right" to visit Bandera at the conclusion of the race day.

"People are taking a left instead of a right when racing is done," said the Bandera County Chamber of Commerce's Janett Moore. "We want to encourage them to come into town to eat, dance, and shop." Moore operates Janett's, a Main Street dress shop.

Councilman Bob Abbey warned Moore that she may encounter difficulty in getting the necessary permit from the state to erect the sign, but the council voted unanimously to authorize the expenditure from occupancy tax funds for materials to construct the sign.

In other action Monday, the council heard former Bandera Chamber of Commerce president Gary Johnston propose a $14,000 paid director and $6,000 in expenses for the county's Economic Development Committee, to be paid jointly by the city and county.

The council also voted to continue its retirement program for city employees at about the current rate, rejecting a higher-cost option offered by the Texas Municipal Retirement System.

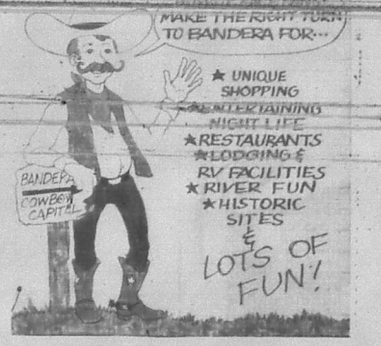
It also adopted a suggestion by councilman Charlie Eckhart to purchase copies of the latest edition of Roberts Rules of Order for each council member and the mayor at a cost of about $60.

Public works director Rey Garcia told the council that he expected the city to remain in the yellow stage of water conservation, which imposes mandatory water-saving measures, until about the middle of September.

SA man drowns in Garner Park

Ruben Vasquez Jr., 26, of San Antonio drowned in "Blue Hole" in the Frio River at Garner State Park Saturday, Aug. 4, when he stepped or fell into a hole and didn't come up.

Two other persons had to be rescued from the river a day earlier, according to park ranger Jeffrey Towers.



This artist's design sketch by Merilee Swinford shows the 4-foot by 8-foot sign the chamber hopes to erect at the entrance of Bandera Downs, if required permits can be arranged.

Approximately 100 Bandera residents came out for Bandera Day at Bandera Downs and were photographed with the winner of the Bandera Day feature race Friday. Inset pictures are winning horse owner Bob Kimbrough and jockey Belinda Cross. Kimbrough owns the thoroughbred Bob's Bambino, who topped a field of 10 horses in the 7½ furlong eighth race. Copies of a color picture taken by the race track photographer are available from Bandera Downs for a fee. For more information, call 796-7781.

that Bandera Downs has realized original projections. While the per capita wagering is lagging a little behind projections, attendance is ahead of expectations.

That means he expected the $1 million-per-weekend of wagering the past two weekends.

With 11 races on the Saturday and Sunday cards, instead of 10, the one-day handle soared to another all-time state record of $451,136 Sunday and 12,062 fans over the three-day weekend wagered another record $1,033,235.

No one was able to pick the twin trifecta, so the carryover jackpot of $19,377 will be waiting for a lucky handicapper this weekend.

Friday was the first of many "city days" planed at Bandera Downs when the people of Bandera were given free general admission and special discounts and invited into the winner's circle for a "city photo" while presenting a blanket to the owner of the winner of the eighth race.

About 100 Bandera residents managed to make it down from the stands in time to join in on the city photo in the winner's circle. Copies of the photo are available for $6 from the track.

Nava's Bolder Girl, the fastest qualifier, won the featured race for the weekend, Saturday's Lone Star Derby for accredited Texas-bred 3-year-olds. The filly owned by Clarence W. Cobb and trained by Lisa Martin, had an easy time beating a nice field.

Despite her showing in trials, Nava's Bolder Girl returned $8.40, $5.40 and $4.

Bandera trainer Dave Correll reached the winner's circle with Toast A Streaker in Friday's featured race after Big Time Lark was disqualified from first and placed in third.

An exciting stretch run in Sunday's featured Bluebonnet Handicap Stakes enabled Live Animation, a filly trained by Don Bradford, to score a victory by a neck over front-running Sara Klevens and take home the winner's share of the $9,800 purse.

break, says Kimbrell. Nineteen plants were in pots.

The plants ranged in height from two feet to 5½ feet, says Kimbrell.

When Patton was approached at his home Tuesday morning by members of the law enforcement agencies, he surrendered without a fight, says Bandera County sheriff's deputy Lynn Holt, who was in on the bust.

Patton had a Chinese-made AK47-type semi-automatic assault rifle loaded with a 30-round banana clip near his bed as well as a sawed-off .22 caliber semi-automatic rifle loaded and ready to go, says Holt.

In other police news reported this week, there were five arrests on warrants, four arrests for public intoxication and two other arrests for possession of marijuana.

No one was injured in four minor accidents last week in Bandera County.

A station wagon ran off road and struck an embankment Friday, Aug. 10, about 1:30 p.m. on Park Road 37 0.75 miles east of Lakehills, reports Department of Public Safety Trooper Glenn Scales.

Information on the other three accidents, one that occurred Aug. 8 and two Aug. 11, was not available at press time.

A one-year-old girl escaped death Monday, July 30, after nearly drowning in Lakehills.

Clarissa Pigon was in a swimming pool in 4 feet of water suspended in the water by a flotation device, says Bandera County sheriff's deputy James Popham, who arrived on the scene first.

Pigon's mother looked away and the girl got out of her float and went under water. The infant was blue and gasping for air, says Popham. "She was crying in three minutes," after the mother got her out of the water, he said.

Cardio-pulmonary resuscitation was not needed, but EMS transported her to Medical Center Hospital, he says.

Pigon and her family from Florida were visiting her aunt in Lakehills.

A San Antonio woman escaped serious injury when she was assaulted Sunday, Aug. 5, near Pipe Creek.

Darlene Ochoa Romo came to Medina Lake with two men Saturday to spend the day, and in the early-morning hours of Sunday they went to a spot on Bear Creek Road.

One of the men got into the back seat with Romo and tore her clothes with the apparent aim of sexually assaulting her, says investigating sheriff's deputy Sal Obledo.

Romo got away from the man and stopped a passer-by in a car to get help.

Romo had not filed charges as of Tuesday.

Diana Greven, 21, of Pipe Creek was arrested on California warrants of child abduction by constable Ernest Reich.

Robert Dale Kalka, 20, of Bandera was arrested July 26 and Letcher Carol Kelly, 52, of Pipe Creek was arrested July 28 for DWI by a Department of Public Safety troopers.

Seabe Larry Baker, 36, of Pipe Creek was arrested for DWI Aug. 5, by a sheriff's deputy.

A man, reportedly in a drunken state, left Pop's Place in Pipe Creek July 28 and was arrested for public intoxication, possession of less than two ounces of marijuana and no driver's license after a sheriff's deputy found his truck backed into a ditch on Alamo Beach Road.

John Allen Kinnebrew, 20, of Bandera and Arnulfo Cardenaz, 18, were arrested by sheriff's deputies for disorderly conduct resulting from a fight Saturday, Aug. 4.

A San Antonio man was arrested for possession of 3.3 grams of marijuana and public intoxication at the state boat ramp on Medina Lake July 28 by Popham.

A Dallas man and a Louisville woman were arrested on possession of marijuana charges Tuesday, July 31.

Jeff Thompson, 24, of Pipe Creek was arrested Thursday, Aug. 2, on grand jury indictments by constable Bill Ellis.

The owner of a home near English Crossing reported that three of his buildings had been entered on or before July 24, and a video recorder, shotgun, and other electronic equipment had been taken.

The owner of a home in Bandera Falls south of Pipe Creek reported camera equipment stolen from his residence on or before Friday, July 27.

The Lake Medina Shores sales office reported a copier, office materials, watches, and kitchen appliances stolen on or before Sunday, July 29.

There were also burglaries reported Saturday, July 28, and Friday, Aug. 3.

Summer is swiftly passing, football practice is beginning and school supply lists are foremost in mother's minds. In spite of the advancing season, however, this comely lass found time to catch a few rays Monday, Aug. 6, in Bandera City Park.

Just when dreamers were envisioning paying off the S&L debt or housing the homeless around the world with the peace dividend, here went the 82nd Airborne and Associates scrambling into the wild blue yonder of the Middle East.

Just when we thought that our deepest worry was whether Phil and Bodie's windrows of hay were going to get rained on again, we're worrying about people close to us being involved in air force missions — and whether our summer neighbor in Ireland, Canadian Kathy Cudihy, is trapped in Saudi Arabia or is safe in her farmhouse on Bantry Bay.

Last time we saw Kathy, she was sitting cross-legged on the floor typing off a final draft of a book she was writing on daily life among the Arabs as the wife of an Irish engineer there. She loves the Middle East, she said, and has made many friendships there among the so-often misunderstood people. Her book was to be a distillation of weekly newspaper columns she has written which have been syndicated in several countries of the region.

What has happened? Kathy was mourning the fact that her husband might be transferred to Spain and that she would have to break her ties with Arabia. Perhaps she lives in Barcelona by now and worrying about others left behind.

Thinking about all this and listening to the news reverberating around the world as it affects markets and lives everywhere, we realize that more and more, no matter how much we would like to come home and pull the cattle-guard in after us, no one can escape personal involvement with everyone else all over the earth.

It is a tragic fact that sometimes force is necessary to maintain the order which must exist to keep the human sins of greed, vanity, lust for power, and love of invidious comparisons in check.

But with countries everywhere more and more interdependent for all the material necessities of life — needing to exchange everything from crude oil to the plastic gadgets made of that oil — it would seem that it might be time to "cool out" some of the prejudicial emotions which too often color the view one group has of another. While the USA is heading across the water with the big stick, we can only pray that it will at the same time be speaking softly. And people need to maintain ties with people, no matter what governments do.

A roundtable discussion among Arab-Americans on McNeil-Lehrer might be summed up in the flippant motto, "Ragheads need love too." The participants on the program justly complained of the stereotypes in our minds of their people as sub-human butts of endless jokes who are cluttering up the landsdcape and getting in the way of Western control of all that oil.

Meantime back in Texas, oil-field hands home from South America and the Middle East, are hard at work near Pearsall and Dilley bringing in wells as productive as some in the Persian Gulf. But Texas will never gain back the world dominance lost to the Middle East. Funny. We're going to fight and die for super unleaded. (Yes, I know I'm driving a car into town to turn in this column.)

Back-to-school costs may be slightly lower

Sharp increases in the cost of clothing were seen this spring, but parents may find back-to-school prices slightly lower.

"Prices were up this year on clothing for women by 5 percent and toddlers and infants by as much as 10.2 percent," said Dr. Ann Beard, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "But overall, prices have dropped within a year by 1.7 percent for boys and 1.5 percent for girls."

Since clothing prices for boys and girls have dropped, bargains may be easier to find, Beard said. However, style is costly and very important to young people who like to dress similar to their peers.

To get the most for your money when shopping for clothes, Beard suggests following these tips:

- Make a list of specific items needed before you go shopping. Also, include the quantity of items needed.
- Take your child shopping with you. Before you go, prepare him or her for what you are looking for, and shop only for the child since children get tired easily.
- Consider the child's growth patterns. Don't buy more than what is needed. Children grow rapidly and may outgrow what you buy before the school year is over.
- Consider purchasing two or three outfits that can be mixed and matched for a more useful wardrobe.
- Consider the special activities your child will be involved in. If special clothing will be needed for each activity, consider these as a share of the clothing budget. Decide if parts of these garments could be worn with regular school clothing as a wardrobe extender. Less expensive tops such as brightly-colored t-shirts can add variety to a wardrobe.
- Choose styles and fabrics that will grow with the child. Raglan sleeves, cuffs on pants, adjustable straps and waistbands, large hems in dresses and tops are features that can add to the wear-life of a garment.
- Also, consider the care factors. Knits, especially cotton or cotton/polyester, are easy to care for and stretch for comfort. Choose durable fabrics such as denim and corduroy to withstand children's abuse and repeated laundering.

"Take special care when buying shoes for children," Beard said. "Don't ask for the size you think your child needs, have both feet measured by a reputable shoe salesman."

Shoes should be sturdy and provide support, she said. Buy at least two pairs that can be interchanged for longer wear and comfort.

"Your child should never wear hand-me-down shoes," Beard said. "Hand-me-down shoes force the child's feet to conform to the footprint already in the shoe."

Lunch programs offered at schools

Bandera and Medina schools serve meals every school day for $1 for lunch and 50 cents for breakfast under the National School Lunch and Breakfast Program.

Qualified students may eat free or at a reduced rate, says Medina school superintendent Jerry F. Huie.

Students whose families receive food stamps or Aid to Families with Dependent Children get free meals and students whose family income range from $11,600 to $39,331 get meals at reduced prices.

Foster children may be eligible for benefits regardless of the household income of the home they are in.

Applications are available at the schools, says Huie. Information on the application will be kept confidential, but it may be verified by school officials at any time, the administrator said.

Hill Country Young Woman of the Year is Patricia White of Harper. She won a $500 scholarship in the special program in New Braunfels. Area representatives from Bandera, Medina and other area communities are currently being sought to search for next year's Young Woman of the Year. Interested persons may call Wendy Smith in Boerne at 868-7555.

Pauline Robinson and Francis Hicks, both of Utopia, join Patty Adamson of Bandera in exhibiting dolls, dollhouses and doll furniture at the Frontier Times Museum this month.

Dolls, miniature homes on exhibit at museum

Patty Callahan Adamson of Bandera and Pauline Robinson and Francis Hicks of Utopia are exhibiting their collections of dolls during August at the Frontier Times Museum in Bandera.

Adamson, a native of Bandera, has been a collector of miniatures for more than 17 years and is involved in all aspects of the hobby, including designing, building and finishing dollhouses and display rooms.

She collects both antiques and the works of contemporary artists in the miniature field and is a 13-year member of the National Association of Miniature Enthusiasts.

Robinson has been in ceramics for a number of years, and took lessons in ConCan to create porcelain dolls.

"I pour liquid porcelain into doll molds, fire them, chine paint, and make clothing," she says. "Since I have had all boys and no girls, these are just my 'babies' and 'little girls'."

Hicks says she never lost her interest in dolls that she acquired as a child. "I still have some of my favorites," she says.

Her collection includes some that are old, some that are new, and quite a few from other countries of the world. "For the past four years, I have been pouring, firing and painting porcelain reproduction dolls," she said. "We dress them as authentically as possible in the period of time they were first manufactured."

Scholarships were presented to four students at the group's July meeting. They are Rickie Skaggs of Junction, Justin Marschall of Harper, Cody Allen Peese of Fredericksburg and Kimberly Burr of Boerne.

The group's next meeting will be in Fredericksburg on Oct. 29.

The Bookshelf

Jimmie Hughey, Library Director

The summer reading program at the Bandera County Library drew to a close recently with some 40 children attending the last three sessions. They celebrated the event with a treasure hunt, creating a disguise for themselves for the morning, and by helping Sherlock Holmes solve a mystery. Certificates of participation were given to each participant along with Dairy Queen sundae coupons courtesy of DQ manager Scott Middleton. We are indebted to Middleton and the Dairy Queen operation for their support of this important community effort.

- The library still has a good collection of best sellers: "September," by Rosamunde Pilcher of "The Shellseekers" fame; "The Stand," by Stephen King (the very, very long first version of the book); Wambaugh's "The Golden Orange;" Ludlum's latest Bourne episode. "The Bourne Ultimatum;" Cussler's "Dragon;" and Dunne's "An Inconvenient Woman," among the fiction offerings.

Non-fiction best sellers include "My Life In Three Acts," by Helen Hayes; "Megatrends 2000" by John Naisbitt; Norman Cousins' "Head First;" and both of Fulghum's books of inspirational essays.

On order, but not yet received is Tony Hillerman's new Navajo offering, "Coyote Waits" and Margaret Truman's latest "Murder In..." - this one in the National Cathedral.

- Volunteers are still needed at the library- for all sorts of tasks. If you are interested, please call us ay 796-4213.

Remember- the fine for overdue videos is $1 per day including Sundays, and they should not be returned in the book drop.

Notice of Effective Tax Rate

1990 Property Tax Rates in Bandera Independent School District

This notice concerns 1990 property tax rates for Bandera Ind. School Dist. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

	Last year's tax rate:
	Last year's operating taxes	$	2,344,881.

=	This year's effective operating rate	$	0.635787 /$100
×	1.08 = this year's maximum operating rate	$	0.686650 /$100
+	This year's debt rate	$	0.117778 /$100

(A school district must insert the following lines)

=	This year's rollback rate before adjustment	$	0.804428 /$100
+	Rate to recoup lost state funds	$	0.012903 /$100
=	A. Adjusted rollback rate	$	0.817331 /$100

Nursing home has new name

Bandera's long-time nursing home has undergone a change of ownership, and as of Aug. 1, the establishment formerly called Purple Hills Manor, Inc. is now Bandera Nursing Home.

The business, formerly owned by Preston and Florence Gray of Houston, was bought by Richard Martin of California. Dennis Barringer of Dallas has been named interim administrator until a full-time administrator is hired.

Barringer, a licensed administrator originally from Louisiana, said he was not yet familiar enough with the nursing home's situation to comment on any complaints that may have surfaced in the past.

"There will be some changes- there's always room for improvement," said Barringer. "We're going to improve the physical plant."

Gospel Meeting

Do You Know: The CHURCH OF CHRIST, located at the intersection of Hwy. 16 and Vanderpool Road 337, Medina, Texas, has scheduled a Gospel Meeting to be conducted by Jimmy Vannoy from Corsicana, Texas. He will speak only on bible subjects, including what a person Must Do To Be Saved. He will cover subjects not understood by many people.

Do You Know: When the Bible says to worship God in Spirit and in Truth (John 4: 23-24) it is clear that there is a false way? (Rev. 22: 18-19) Some are quick to say it doesn't matter how we worship just as long as we believe. No sane person would go to the airport and say it doesn't matter what plane you get on, they will all take you to the same place.

Do You Know: That the Bible teaches what we are to do when the Church comes together? i.e. (1) Bible Study — (1 Cor. 14: 14-40; Col. 4: 16; 2 Tim. 2: 15). The Church is called together in one undivided assembly, that all may hear, learn and judge in the things that are being taught. Do You Know that nowhere in the Bible "Sunday Schools" are mentioned? Robert Raikes in 1783 started the first one. (2) Singing — acapella, without musical instruments, singing praises to God (Eph. 5: 19). Do You Know that the first instrument of music was used in the year 666? (3) Prayer — (Rom. 12: 12; Eph. 6: 18). (4) Lord's Supper (Communion —the use of one loaf and one cup). Please read (Mt. 26: 27; Mk. 14: 23, Lk. 22: 19-20; 1 Cor. 10: 16; 1 Cor. 11: 23-28). Do You Know that nowhere in the Bible individual cups (drinking vessels) are used in the Lord's Supper? In 1884, J.G. Thomas invented the individual communion cups. Do You Know that there are congregations all around the world which believe and practice the use of One Loaf and One Cup in the Lord's Supper? (5) Contribution — (1 Cor. 16: 2; 2 Cor. 9:7). Each member gives as prospered.

Think about these matters and COME HEAR this sincere speaker of the Truth, God's Word. "...choose you this day whom ye will serve;...but as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." Joshua 24:15.

A Thought For The Week
By John M. Grimes

Silence is a talent as greatly to be cherished as that other asset — the gift of speech.

Someone once said that it ain't a bad plan to keep still occasionally even when you know what you are talking about...

Listening may be passive and active. Passive listening is wondering when the other person will finish; one stares around the room, looks at his watch, and shuffles papers on the desk...active listening is putting oneself in the place of another, as a mother suffers and rejoices with a child. Maeterlinck once described a friend as "one in whose presence you can keep silence."

A good listener not only refuses to interrupt but also leaves time at the end of the recounting for a little reflection. Quick responses are not often good counsel. Silence is the generator of the best of thoughts. Speech is of time; silence is of eternity...

Your reaction and comment either in person, by phone or letter is ALWAYS welcome, on this or any other thought you read here...

'Review' program at St. Stanislaus

Bandera's St. Stanislaus Catholic Church is in the final planning stages of a process of church membership renewal.

The program, "Renew," has been planned for several months and will reach all parishioners by October, says publicity chairman Bill Krampert.

Monsignor Michael McManus, pastor of St. Stanislaus, explains that focus has been placed on four areas of parish activity in the Renew program. They are the Sunday Mass celebration, prayer network of large group events, home activities, and small sharing groups. The long-range goal is to build up parish life, says Krampert.

Roger Bolduc is chairman of the Renew core group, which includes ten committees.

St. Stanislaus had its beginning on Feb. 2, 1858, and is the second oldest Polish Catholic Church in the United States.

Tuberculosis on increase among minorities

Although tuberculosis (TB) infects many people, those who develop the disease's symptoms sometimes fail to seek health care, according to reports from the Texas Department of Health. Officials attribute that fact to a lack of understanding about how serious untreated TB can be.

The same officials cite that lack of knowledge about TB as one of the main reasons for a current increase of TB among Texas minorities.

Dr. Michael Kelley, of the TDH Bureau of Disease Control and Epidemiology, said that until recently TB was declining nationwide.

However, TB cases among Texans increased in 1988 and 1989, especially among the black population. Dr. Kelley said that last year 529 blacks contracted tuberculosis, compared with 479 in 1988.

Reports also show increased TB cases among Hispanics and persons infected with HIV, the virus that causes AIDS.

"Before TB can be treated or cured, it first must be recognized. Years ago, when tuberculosis was a leading cause of death, the disease was often suspect in a patient. Today, though, doctors and nurses inexperienced with tuberculosis may overlook the disease, thus delaying a diagnosis."

Tuberculosis is an infectious disease primarily affecting a person's lungs and may spread to other organs causing severe complications or death.

The disease usually is spread by exhaled airborne bacteria from someone with the disease who may infect family, friends and co-workers.

Medina Scrimmage

The Medina High School football team will have their first scrimmage of the season against the Lytton Springs Warriors Friday, Aug. 24, at 6 p.m.

Notice of Effective Tax Rate

1990 Property Tax Rates in MEDINA ISD

This notice concerns 1990 property tax rates for MEDINA ISD. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

	Last year's tax rate:
	Last year's operating taxes	$ 453,388
+	Last year's debt taxes	$ -0-
=	Last year's total taxes	$ 453,388
÷	Last year's tax base	$ 75,721,144
=	Last year's total tax rate	$ .60	/$100
	This year's effective tax rate:
	Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$ 453,388
÷	This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting value of new property)	$ 68,946,703
=	This year's effective tax rate	$ .657591	/$100

(In the first year a city or county collects the additional sales tax it must insert the following lines unless it made its first adjustment last year.)

—	Sales tax adjustment rate	$ n/a	/$100
=	Effective tax rate	$ n/a	/$100
×	1.03 = maximum rate unless unit publishes notices and holds hearing	$ .677317	/$100
	This year's rollback tax rate:
	Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$ 453,388
÷	This year's adjusted tax base	$ 68,946,703
=	This year's effective operating rate	$ .657591	/$100
×	1.08 = this year's maximum operating rate	$ .710198	/$100
+	This year's debt rate	$ -0-	/$100

(A school district must insert the following lines)

=	This year's rollback rate before adjustment	$ .710198	/$100
+	Rate to recoup lost state funds	$ .013850	/$100
=	A. Adjusted rollback rate	$ .724048	/$100
	B. Rate that would result in maximum state funds	$ .920157	/$100
	Rollback Rate (greater of A or B)	$ .920157	/$100
=	This year's rollback rate	$ .920157	/$100

(A city or county that collects the additional sales tax (including one that collects the tax for the first time this year) must insert the following lines:)

—	Sales tax adjustment rate	$ n/a	/$100
=	Rollback tax rate	$ n/a	/$100

SCHEDULE B: 1990 Debt Service

The unit plans to pay the following amounts for long-term debts that are secured by property taxes. These amounts will be paid from property tax revenues (or additional sales tax revenues, if applicable).

Description of Debt	Principal or Contract Payment to be Paid	Interest to be Paid	Other Amounts to be Paid	Total Payment
NONE

	Total required for 1990 debt service	-0-
–	Amount (if any) paid from funds listed in Schedule A	-0-
–	Excess collections last year	-0-
=	Total to be paid from taxes in 1990	-0-

SCHEDULE C: Expected Revenue from Additional Sales Tax

(For counties and cities with additional ½ cent sales tax)

Wearing helmets can help prevent injuries to bicyclists, young or old

Each year about 1,200 bicyclists are killed nationwide and more than half a million bicycle-related injuries are treated in hospital emergency rooms. According to the Texas Department of Health (TDH), some of these deaths and injuries could have been prevented if the rider had been wearing a helmet.

"It makes a lot of difference," said local physician Royce McAnally. "Statistics certainly are in favor of wearing any type of protective gear, whether you're riding a motorcycle or a bicycle.

"It also makes a difference depending on which type of helmet you wear," McAnally continued. "The old suspension-type helmet can cause a lot of injuries. If a person's head is slammed against the ground, it can cause a contra coupe type injury."

Contra coupe injuries occur when the head is jolted so hard that the brain impacts against the inside of the skull. Injuries to the opposite side of the head from where the impact occurs are also common, he said.

"The newer helmets are made all in one piece, and they provide much better protection," McAnally said.

David Zane, director of the TDH Injury Control Program, said about 1/3 of the deaths and 2/3 of the injuries involve children under the age of 15. Three-fourths of the deaths are because of head trauma and about 1/3 of the injuries are to the head or face.

"Helmets are worn by fewer than one out of 10 bicyclists," Zane said. "The purpose of a helmet is to absorb the energy of an impact to minimize or prevent head injury. Crushable foam generally is used for this purpose. Many helmets also have a hard outer shell that provides additional protection to the head in the event of a collision with a sharp object," he added.

Zane noted that about 90 percent of bicyclists' deaths result from collisions with motor vehicles, while most non-fatal injuries result from falls.

"Bicycle death rates rise rapidly from the age of four and peak for 13-year-old males. Bicycle deaths, like motorcycle fatalities, occur more frequently during the spring and summer months," Zane said.

"Parents can help stop tragic bicycle mishaps by buying their child an approved bike helmet that meets the standards of the Snell Memorial Foundation and/or the American National Standards Institute," Zane said.

Other safety tips include:

• Let your child help pick out the helmet and insist that it must be worn every time your child rides. Set a good example and wear one yourself.

• Teach your child that bicyclists should ride single file on the right side of the road and should signal their intentions to other road users.

Folk singers gather Labor Day in Kerrville

For the second year, many of the folk singers who have played the big Kerrville Folk Festival each Spring are getting together at Rod Kennedy's Quiet Valley Ranch on Labor Day Weekend, Friday to Sunday, Aug. 31 to Sept. 2, to play a final fall folk fling which producer Kennedy calls, "Kerrville Folk Festival, Too!"

Playing both the main stage and the Threadgill Memorial Theater at Kennedy's Quiet Valley Ranch, 15 miles north of Medina on State Highway 16, more than two dozen artists from Texas, Arkansas, Colorado, Tennessee, Michigan, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania will perform at three six-hour evening concerts, beginning each night at 6 p.m., and a couple of 1 p.m. two-hour special concerts, says a spokesman for the festival.

In addition, the crafts and food and beverage booths will all be open and there will be a folk song service on Chapel Hill Sunday morning and campfire singing every night.

It is a mini version of the festival that draws 28,000 people over 18 days in the spring. "It is a chance to feel once again that spiritual optimism that typifies the Kerrville ambience," says the spokesman.

A pile of pot

Deputy Lynn Holt (left), Sheriff Steve Forest (center) and Lt. James Kimbrell display some of the 247 marijuana plants seized from a pot farm south of Pipe Creek Tuesday, Aug. 14. Bruce Wayne Patton, 35, of Pipe Creek was arrested for second degree felony possession of more than five pounds and less tha 50 pounds of marijuana in connection with the haul. The case might go to the grand jury as early as Monday, reports Kimbrell.

'Lay off the sheriff,' says narcotics officer

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

A narcotics officer from the Rio Grande Valley told Bandera County commissioners Monday that they needed to let the sheriff get as much money from drug dealers as he could and not try to restrict the way he wants to spend the money.

But the lawman said he agreed that the sheriff should give a full accounting of how he spends his cash seizure fund, the so-called "drug money."

John Wood, who identified himself as a narcotics officer with the Combined Government Drug Enforcement and Criminal Task Force in Hidalgo County, told commissioners that the seizure law that Bandera County Sheriff R.S. "Steve" Forest has used to collect over $420,000 from drug criminals was designed by the legislature to give local law enforcement agencies the money they needed to fight drugs. "Local agencies don't have the money to fight drugs," he says.

Wood, who Forest introduced to commissioners, says that his agency, which works closely with the Hidalgo County sheriff's department, has grossed $1 million in seized funds this year.

But he says that there should be a complete accounting of all the money in the cash seizure fund, something that until a few months ago commissioners hadn't received from the sheriff. "There must be a paper trail through the county commissioners and the county treasurer's office," he says.

Wood recommended to Bandera County commissioners that they give Forest all the support he needed, as the Hidalgo County commissioners do for his agency and sheriff. "Our commissioners are bending over backwards to help us." His commissioners told his agency, "Get us all you can while you can," he added.

The Hidalgo County sheriff's department has been able to add raid gear and special weapons to its arsenal, which it needs because they are close to where drugs come across the border. "We added vehicles and equipment, we've always wanted," says Wood.

And it's all "done at the expense of the people who are breaking the law," says Wood.

Being able to use the drug dealer's assets to purchase vehicles and equipment is an "opportunity for something we've never had the chance before," says Wood. "We turned into the (county) coffers $1 million of spendable income we'd never had."

Wood says the work he and other members of his team do in Hidalgo County and surrounding counties helps reduce the amount of marijuana that comes to Bandera County.

But one county is not cooperative at all, Brooks County, where the commissioners have tried to Search for Heidi here turns up negative

A frantic Tuesday night search of Bandera County highways for a girl police thought may have been Heidi Seeman turned up negative.

A young girl that looked similar to missing Heidi Seeman, 11, of San Antonio, who has been missing since Aug. 4, was reported by a Bandera citizen Tuesday about 8:30 p.m.

A man was looking at a map for directions in Bandera while a 10- or 11-year-old girl was in the back seat of his Chevrolet with lots of clothes, the citizen reported.

The man drove north out of Bandera.

Bandera County sheriff's deputies scoured the highways to Medina, Tarpley, and Hondo, but never found the vehicle.

The sheriff's department made a diligent search, says Lt. James Kimbrell, but with negative results.

The description of the man and the vehicle was forwarded to the Kerrville Department of Public Safety and sheriff's departments in Kerr, Uvalde, Medina, and Kendall Counties.

The man who reported the girl wasn't sure it was Seeman, but Kimbrell says police treated the matter as though it was. "You have to treat every one (report) with the possibility that it is a missing person. We can't ignore the report. We have to check it out."

The vehicle described was not like the one described in San Antonio, he says.

This is the first report in Bandera County of a possible sighting of the girl, missing for almost two weeks.

The sheriff's department reported the incident to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which is standard procedure, says Kimbrell.

Essary thinks commission will OK longer meet

By Nick Johnson
Bulletin Editor

Bandera Downs co-owner Don Essary said Thursday he sees no reason why the Texas Racing Commission would reject his bid to extend the current meet until Dec. 1 or Dec. 8, but race fans will have to wait until Sept. 12 to find out for sure.

That's when the commission will consider Bandera Downs' request for as many as 18 additional days of racing in 1990. The current meet is scheduled to end on Oct. 28.

Meanwhile, they'll try to keep the habit of setting wagering records week after week, and track spokesman Don Rhine says the lineup this week is the kind that attracts the interest of bettors. "It's probably the best-balanced field we've had," he said Thursday after setting the morning-line odds for Friday and Saturday.

There's 108 horses scheduled to run in Saturday's 11 races, a full field of 10 in all of the races except one. The fields in both features Friday and Saturday are also very evenly matched and the best 10 of 33 horses nominated for Sunday's featured Lakehills Handicap may all have a chance at the winner's share of that race's $10,150 purse.

No one hit the twin trifecta last week, and the carryover exceeds $19,000. It could approach $50,000 by Sunday if no one wins it on Friday or Saturday.

The weekend feature will be Sunday's Lakehills Handicap, which will have $6,000 added to the entry and nominating fees to bring the total purse to more than $10,000.

It's a quarter-mile test for quarter horses 3 years old and upward, and Lakehills residents will be invited to the winner's circle for a photo with the winner in honor of Lakehills Day at the Races.

Friday will be Hondo Day, and the featured event is a quarter horse allowance race of 350 yards for 3-year-olds, and Rhine says as many as six of the entries have a good chance at winning.

My Lady Special may be the morning-line favorite, but the public is certain to throw a lot of action toward Sunday's Money, a horse that has been running against some very good houses at Remington Park in Oklahoma and should be strong here.

My Lady Special, with Joe Quintanilla up, finished second to Mr. Six Ace by three-fourths of a length on July 20, finishing that 400-yard test in 20.55, a speed index of 90. Sheisabedouin finished third in that race and will have another run at My Lady Special Friday.

In Saturday's featured event, a 350-yard allowance for fillies and mares 3 years old and older, Fancy Lorene will probably be the betting favorite. She's won more than $76,000 in her career

School bonds draw little interest

There seems to be little interest in the Sept. 15 school bond election that would authorize the sale of $5.1 million in bonds to finance a far-reaching school building program that will include a new elementary school in the Lakehills-Pipe Creek area and extensive renovation at the high school and junior high.

No organized opposition has surfaced and even school board members are keeping a low profile, though the voting on the matter is only four weeks away.

An identical bond issue was rejected by voters on May 26, but school trustees blamed the defeat on a lack of awareness by voters and decided to submit it for approval again without changing so much as a comma.

School officials say it will require a tax rate of 10.87 cents per $100 valuation in the first year to pay off the bonds. They say that an expanded tax base in subsequent years will reduce the rate in succeeding years.

A tax rate of 10.87 cents will cost the owner of a $50,000 home $54.30, though home owners 65 years of age or older won't have to help pay off the bonds.

The plan for spending the $5.1 million the bonds will raise includes a 500-student elementary school on FM Road 1283 about halfway between Pipe Creek and Lakehills.

It will cost $2.4 million and will include 28 conventional classrooms and three special education rooms plus the usual restrooms, storage areas, administrative offices, work area, and custodial facilities.

In all there will be 46,050 square feet of enclosed area, including a 6,180-square-foot kitchen and cafeteria, a 2,200-square foot media center, and 2,700 square feet devoted to physical education.

Architects say the school can be constructed at a cost of $32 per square foot.

Work at the junior high campus inside the city limits of Bandera will result in a 20-classroom facility that includes science and computer rooms that will cost just over $1 million, school officials said, and renovation of existing facilities there will cost an additional $482,000.

The junior high renovation will include work both inside and outside the sixth-grade building; renovation of the gym, cafeteria and band hall; fixing up and expanding the third-grade wing to include a weight room, band area and health classroom; construction of a physical education dressing facility and air conditioning the tax office and library.

The proposed work at the high school campus will be primarily to provide more room to accommodate a growing enrollment and additional state-mandated educational programs.

Five additional classrooms would result from the work there and there'll be some work on redirecting bus traffic, parking lots and drives and additional security lights.

A sum of $60,000 is included to build four tennis courts and $22,000 is included for improvements at Bullodg Stadium.

If the bond issue is approved, the school's central office will be in the Merrick Building at the junior high campus, and the proposed renovation there will cost $23,100, school officials said.

School budget indicates 48-percent tax hike

Anticipating a whopping 48 percent tax increase, Bandera Independent School Board Tuesday passed a $5,250,089 budget that will "just balance the budget," according to board president Charlotte Salzman.

BISD's budget for the 1989-90 school year was $4,957,421, up more than $1 million in three years from the $3,863,500 budget in 1986-87.

"The biggest part of the increase is salaries," Salzman said Thursday. "If you remember last year, we used the fund balance to hold back the tax increase, and having to use all of it (last year) is what's hurting us."

Citing the state legislature's recent actions (SB1), Salzman explained that state mandated salary increases and other funding measures have really hurt Bandera as well as other school districts.

"The new funding they've implemented isn't helping us a bit," Salzman said. "And it's not just us. It's every district around us and all over the state.

"According to state standards, we're considered a 'rich district,'" she said.

"We're going to have to borrow money just to open the doors this year."

...ses that shouldn't bring money in court.

Brooks County was the perfect place to do narcotics work because it is past the border check point, where the demand is higher, says Wood. But with the Brooks County judge's ruling, his narcotics officers and other law enforcement officers that would have tried to set up drug cases there are bypassing Brooks County.

That county would have also received $1 million in revenue last year from the seizure law, if Brooks County would operate like other counties, says Wood. "If he's (the judge is) going to treat us that way, we're not going to do it (drug deals in Brooks County)," says Wood.

"We're the ones without weapons, dirty clothes, and dealing with people (drug dealers) we don't know," says Wood.

Commissioners cannot keep the sheriff from buying with his cash seizure fund something he needs to buy, says Wood.

Bandera County Judge Ray F. Mauer told Wood that the commissioners wanted some control because, for example, when Forest buys vehicles, it raises the automobile insurance premiums which the county pays. "We should have approval (of a budget for the cash seizure fund) so we can see if it effects the county budget," he said.

Mauer told Wood it wasn't the county's desire to keep Forest from spending his money. "We're not telling the sheriff how to run his business."

The cash seizure fund could be used to pay for anything except employee salaries, allowances, and fringe benefits, and even then the law allows the salary-related expense if it okayed by county commissioners, says Wood.

Wood agrees that the funds used to make payroll must come through the payroll department, which in Bandera County is in the county treasurer's office. "The more checks and balances that can be put into the system, the better it is," says Wood. "I would demand a paper trail," he adds.

"That's all we want," Mauer said.

There is almost no possibility that a criminal may try to get his property back after the seizure through the court system, says Wood.

First, the narcotics officers make sure they have a tight case. "We have a good solid narcotics case before we ever do a seizure," says Wood.

Then the drug dealer is filed on in criminal court for his offense and in civil court for the seizure.

Over 90 percent of the drug dealers plead guilty, says the narcotics officer. With video tape and other evidence, the criminals know there is no way out except by a jury, says Wood.

The criminal case is expedited in court, so the civil case normally follow the criminal trial, says Wood. "We know the disposition (of the criminal case) by the time the civil case comes up," he says.

Also, civil cases are easier to prove, since the determination in a civil case is made by "preponderance of the evidence," rather than "beyond a reasonable doubt," Wood explained. "It's a different burden of proof," says Wood.

The drug cases are normally started when an informant finds a possible buyer for 500 and more pounds of marijuana, which at low-end price of $400 a pound would be a minimum $200,000 deal.

The undercover narcotics officer then contacts the drug dealer to set up a "buy."

The methods used by the narcotics agents are not entrapment, says Wood. "The intent to buy must be in the defendant's mind," he says.

Undercover law enforcement officers can't harass or call the possible buyer many times then it becomes entrapment because the potential drug buyer is trying to get rid of the narcotics officer, says Wood.

But entrapment is hard to prove because of the size of sale. "No one releases $200,000 if they didn't want it (the drugs)," says Wood.

Wood told commissioners that most of the expense information could be released, but actual data on confidential informants can't be made public.

and could add the winner's share of Saturday's $2,415 to that figure.

But Fancy Lorene will have some fancy competition in the form of Hips So Fine, a horse that has acquitted herself well against some excellent fields at Delta Downs and at Goliad.

A dark horse may be Feintastic Pass, who ran off form in seventh place at Bandera Downs on July 28, but it was her first out after coming from Remington Park and her sub-par performance could have been due to the change of scenery.

Last Sunday's handle of $451,136 was the second single-day state record handle in eight days at Bandera Downs, and the weekend handle exceeded $1 million for the second consecutive week. The total handle for the season now stands at $5.6 million.

Students from the San Antonio area who will attend Baylor University in the fall will be honored at a student send-off by the San Antonio Baylor Club from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. Friday, Aug. 17, at The Ruble Center, 419 East Magnolia Ave., in San Antonio.

Lakehills mobile home fire threatens several others

Three missing boys kept rescuers in suspense while firefighters fought a house fire in Lakehills that threatened mobile homes in the area. The boys turned up elsewhere.

An unoccupied house measuring about 30-foot by 30-foot on the Medina Lake front between 18th and Elmhurst went up in flames Wednesday afternoon about 1 p.m. and the first responder on the scene reported he heard screaming, reports Medina Lake Volunteer Fire Department fire chief Ralph Dresser.

Three neighborhood boys were reported missing by their grandmother and rescuers had to contend with the possibility that they might be in the burning house.

The children were reported found in the neighborhood while firefighters fought the fire.

Once the boys were found, the firefighter's main concern were mobile homes up on a hill from the house.

The wind carried flames up a steep hill toward the occupied mobile homes, says Dresser. "The structure fire ignited some of the brush and trees near the dwellings," he says.

The house was almost inaccessible to fire trucks, compounding the problem. Only one winding road led to the house, and most of the fire trucks had to stay up on the hill with the threatened mobile homes.

Fire fighters were on the scene for about four hours, estimates Dresser.

The house is total loss, reports the fire chief. The house was up on stilts (foundation legs) and all that was left standing was a chimney and appliances. The house would have been near the waterfront if the lake level wasn't so low.

There weren't many furnishings in the home, Dresser adds.

Firefighters had to respond again Wednesday night to the scene for about 1½ hours to retreat the area when wind blew up some embers, says Dresser.

"In our judgement we found indications of arson," says Dresser, but he cautioned, "We're not experts."

Dresser says they couldn't tell in which room the fire started. The structure was, "pretty well engulfed when got there."

The sheriff's deputy who investigated the fire was not available for comment at press time.

Haley's band plays what they dance to

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

"We play what will keep the dance floor full," says Mark Haley of the band Mark Haley and the Dusters, who perform a broad spectrum of music from Old-Time Texas Swing to Top 40 Country.

The band will even play 1950s music if the crowd wants to jitterbug, says Haley. "Whatever they ask for, we can play."

The six member band plays old standards, such as "One Six Pack to Go" and "Milk Cow Blues," but also plays current hits, such as "Quitting Time," "Cried My Last Tear for You," and "The Dance."

The band also gets quite a few requests while they're on stage. "It's normally the ones we're going to do any way," Haley says.

The band will be at Bandera's Cabaret Saturday and at Bandera Downs Labor Day. It has played at the Cabaret several times before and was the infield band at Bandera Downs opening weekend.

The first time the band played at Crider's in Hunt there were 600 to 800 people, and the next time there were a 1000 plus people with 500 on dance floor, says Haley. Crider's is "fun to play at," he says. "It's the only outdoor gig we do."

The band has also played at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Seguin and the YO Hilton in Kerrville.

Haley, 25, is a native Wimberley and the rest of the band hails from Austin. The band has been playing seriously for three years.

Haley sings the male vocals and plays rhythm guitar.

Mandy Lomax sings Patsy Cline songs and some top 40 songs and plays the piano.

The other four members play steel guitar, bass guitar, drums, acoustic guitar and lead guitar.

The band primarily plays music people hear on the radio, but the band is starting out to write its own original songs.

"We're in preliminary negotiations with a record label to release a single of our own material," says Haley. However, they normally only perform their own songs by request.

As far as the top 40 country songs are concerned, "We try to do them just like it's on the radio," says Haley. But for some of the older material, "we'll do a little different arrangements," he says.

Excursion planned to Pecos River

Ancient Indian rock shelters and 4,000 year-old rock art will be explored in the Witte Museum's Texas Camel Corps expedition to the Lower Pecos, Friday to Sunday, Sept. 7-9.

Itinerary includes a 5-6 hour boat ride down the Pecos River Saturday, where participants will view ancient cave paintings.

Sunday's schedule includes a drive to Seminole Canyon State Historical Park for a private tour of Fate Bell Shelter, which contains some of the oldest pictographs, dating to 2,000 B.C.

Cost of the weekend trip is $190 for Camel Corps members and $210 for non-members, including hotel accommodations and many meals. For reservations, call 1-266-5544, ext. 215.

Historic Polly's Chapel worth a tourist's visit

Auto race or before experience the serenity of the site of a 100-year-old chapel erected by pioneer Jose Policarpo Rodriguez east of Bandera.

Sometimes spelled "Poll's Chapel," the hand-hewn native rock place of worship is just a few miles off State Highway 16 east of Bandera. Turn north on Privilege Creek Road and follow the signs.

It was a spring day on the blossoming Texas frontier, April 17, 1882 to be exact, when a small group of neighbors gathered on a little rise above Privilege Creek to lay the cornerstone for a little stone church.

It was a strong building and handsome, some said in the image of its strong and good-looking builder, Jose Policarpo Rodriguez. The carefully-dressed limestone blocks show the care with which they were hewn, the kind of care a man takes while creating a dream.

Some historians identify Jose Policarpo Rodriguez as possibly the most towering figure in the history of the Hill Country. All identify him as a dreamer and a fearless doer.

Born in Mexico in 1829, he came to Texas as a very young and very brash man to become, amount other things, an Indian fighter, scout, frontier guide and surveyor.

He was most prominently associated with the U.S. Cavalry and its bizarre camel corps at Camp Verde near Bandera Pass north of Bandera, now on State Highway 173. When the Civil War ended the camel experiment, Polly decided to stay in the area, having acquired land on nearby Privilege Creek in 1856.

Raised as a Catholic, he was converted to the Methodist denomination and became devoted to the well-being of the Privilege Creek community and to the church he built there.

Before he died in 1914, he wrote the history of his life and his church in a book originally published in 1906 by the Methodist Board of Missions. A fictionalized book of his life, written for the younger reader, was published in 1989 by Corona Publishing Company of San Antonio ("Poli, A Mexican Boy in Early Texas," by Jay Neugeboren, available in hardback for $13.95 at The Bandera Bulletin and other book stores).

Polly's Chapel has a medallion and plaque designating it as an officially recorded Texas landmark. It has been recommended and is a candidate for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Sites of the U.S. Department of Interior.

Read about this and the many other attractions of Bandera County in the Bandera County Visitors' Guide, available free from most Bandera businesses.

Bandera Downs jockeys to be featured at seminar

Four Bandera Downs jockeys will participate in a handicapping seminar on Friday, Aug. 31, at the Finish Line racing publication store on State Highway 16 at Polly Peak Road.

Jockeys Danny Lavergne, Jesse Sauceda, Chad Frederick and Danny Bobbett will join Don Thompson of the Finish Line in presenting the program designed to aid bettors in handicapping races. The event is co-sponsored by Thompson's store and Monte's Pizza in Bandera.

Thompson said the workshop will run from noon to 2 p.m. Post time at Bandera Downs on Aug. 31 is 4 p.m. Refreshments and hors d'oeuvres will be served, Thompson said.

About racing

by Bill Lakey

Bill Lakey is a professional handicapper. His column will appear here regularly.

Two weekends in a row now that Bandera Downs has handled over $1 million speaks well for Texas people and the commitment they made when they voted in pari-mutuel betting. I look for another big week this week.

And of course, ownership and management of Bandera Downs has done a great job, continuing to make improvements as the meet goes on.

It was true in Oklahoma and I've heard it is true in Texas, that it was the quarter horse people who were the major influence in getting parimutuel betting passed. I used to say that Oklahoma is the quarter horse capital of the country but I have changed my opinion and believe Texas to be able to claim that distinction.

There is no question that we are seeing some of the best quarter horses in the country at Bander Downs with more coming in every day. The Friday and Saturday overnights show only three thoroughbred races scheduled for those two days with one of them being a 1,000-yard race. It will be interesting to see if the handle holds up with that many fewer thoroughbred races.

Two of the best races I saw last week were thoroughbred races. One was Pap Chico winning Saturday with Landolt aboard. Miss Landolt put a ride on that horse that would have had Pat Day drooling with envy.

The other was Sunday's 10th race when Kevin Mouton brought Live Animation from a position that I thought was "out of it" to nip Sara Klevins at the wire. Of course, my having a bet on Live Animation got me a little more emotionally involved than I normally would have been. Probably ought to admit that I had a bet on Papa Chico, too. But, that doesn't take anything away from the rides these two horses got.

I like it when the twin trifecta starts building a pot to go for. I don't think anything brings people out to the track more than the dream of lucking out and "hitting the big one." The carryover into Friday is just under $20,000, and I'll bet that Friday's crowd will reflect that.

Just to show you how easy it is to win the pot, I will pick it off the overnight for you and you won't even have to buy a race form. The fifth race will be 3,2,8 and the second 4,3,9. Now, while I have your attention I have a little place in Villa Acuna that I would make you a real good deal on.

If you are smart, you won't believe me but, larger pots have been hit off of dumber methods. Hell, having said that, I will probably be just dumb enough to go out there and bet those numbers, you know, just in case.

I heard that the management of Bandera Downs is thinking of having a Pick Three where you have to pick the winners in three races. I hope they do, but I don't see any reason to limit it to three. The more races, the larger the pot you can build.

Something else I heard they are going to do is to keep the betting odds shown at all times on the TV monitors that are located behind the mutuel tellers. I especially hope they do that because it is very important to a lot of bettors to watch the odds. By the time I get in line to make my bet, I have no desire to watch the post parade, I want to know what the odds are doing. I applaud Don Rhine for his commitment to see this done.

As you probably know, next weekend Bandera Downs will be dark while they run their weekend meet at Fredericksburg.

Good luck this weekend and I will see you at the track.

Track record set

A 400-yard track record of 19.62 seconds was set last month at The Downs of Santa Fe by Domestique, a filly owned by Steve Rivera of Santa Fe.

25-year suspension

A South Dakota jockey, Enselmo S. Padilla, has been suspended for 25 years by the South Dakota Racing Commission for possession of an electrical device. He had been suspended for a year in 1983 for the save offense.

Dallas track planned

An application for a $110 million race track near Dallas with a grandstand and clubhouse to accommodate 30,000 will be presented to the Texas Racing Commission on Sept. 28, developers said.

Developers are businessmen Gary Havener of Fort Worth and Jerry Baker of Dallas. It will be named Mountain Creek Park.

To be built southeast of Dallas, the track will include a 1¼-mile track, stalls for 1,440 horses, a golf course, hotel and office complex.

Baker said the track could begin racing in three years.

Prices increases

The average price paid for a yearling at last Friday's Ruidoso Horse Sales Company thoroughbred yearling sale rose almost $600 over a year ago, Ruidoso Downs officials said.

Top price of $26,500 was paid for an unnamed colt by Full Choke out of Flying B.G. by W.M. Gallaway.

A total of 103 head were sold for a total of $426,800.

Trials scheduled

Richard Parrish's Talent Connection, the leading candidate for Ruidoso Downs' Thouroughbred of the Meet, heads a list of 29 entries in the Ruidoso Thoroughbred Futurity trials Friday, Aug. 17.

Hubbard seeks track

R.D. "Dee" Hubbard, owner of The Woodlands and Ruidoso Downs race tracks and partowner of Los Alamitos in California, is seeking control of Hollywood Park, also in California.

Hubbard also owns a training farm east of Bandera which has a Realtor's "for sale" sign erected by the gate.

The plastics mogul seeks to take control of Hollywood Park from Marge Everett, the largest shareholder who has run the track for 18 years. Hubbard announced he has purchased enough shares to give him 9.9 percent ownership in the track. Purchase price was $11.1 million.

State suggests pipeline from Medina Lake to SA

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Two separate plans are calling for the transfer of Medina Lake water to San Antonio's drinking water system.

The Texas Water Development board will hold a public meeting Wednesday to update the state water plan, which calls for building a $45 million pipeline from Medina Lake to San Antonio.

Separately, the San Antonio city council Monday gave a tentative OK to a proposed water plan for the city that calls for purchasing surface water from outside the county in addition to building four reservoirs of its own and reusing the city's wastewater.

The city of San Antonio plan assumes that San Antonio will need 670,000 acre-feet of water annually by the year 2040. The city currently uses about 320,000 acre-feet, according to San Antonio's water planning committee chief Ken Rector.

The plan includes building the controversial Applewhite reservoir on the Medina River south of San Antonio, the proposed Cibolo reservoir, and two reservoirs near Cuero on the Guadalupe River as well as buying water from two other water systems, reports the San Antonio Express-News.

But the plan also calls for the city to acquire the rights to 15,000 acre-feet of water from the Medina Irrigation Canal, which is currently controlled by the Bexar-Medina-Atascosa Water Improvement District. The water in the canal comes from Medina Lake.

Support for the San Antonio purchase of Medina Lake water may be coming indirectly from the Texas Water Development Board.

The TWD's state-wide water plan designed to identify water supply solutions throught the year 2040 calls for a $45 million pipeline Medina Lake to San Antonio.

By the year 2040, TWD assistant director of planning Tony Bagwell, estimates 10 billion gallons of water per year would be used from Medina Lake, out of a firm yield of 12 billion gallons.

The current estimated water use in 1990 is 7.8 billion gallons, says Bagwell. Most of that use is irrigation for Bexar, Medina, and Atascosa Counties.

The pipeline is one part of an overall solution for the city of San Antonio, says Bagwell.

Other measures to ensure a water supply for San Antonio include the construction of the Applewhite reservoir at a cost of $93 million; two reservoirs at Cuero, the Lindenau (called Cuero II), at a cost of $315 million and Cuero (Cuero I), at a cost of $346 million; and one at Goliad for $296 million.

The plan also calls for construction of a pipeline from the Cuero reservoirs, at an estimated cost of $174 million, and at Goliad, at an estimated cost of $159 million.

The draft plan shows that the proposed Cibolo reservoir has been considered as a reservoir site for San Antonio drinking water, but no figures were given.

The plan says the Medina Lake-San Antonio pipeline, the Applewhite reservoir and one of the Cuero reservoirs is needed in this decade, the second Cuero reservoir is needed in 2010 and the Goliad reservoir is needed in 2030.

The plan is a "50 year look at the state" and is a "flexible guide," cautions Bagwell.

Bagwell stresses that the TWD is only proposing the pipeline from Lake Medina and the other

Water plan meeting Friday

The Springhills Water Management District will hold a public meeting Friday, Aug. 24, at 7 p.m. in the Old Jail Building on the Texas Water Development Board's "Water for Texas Plan" discussed in San Antonio Wednesday.

The board will receive public input from citizens and governmental agencies on the plan which may divert water from Medina Lake to San Antonio, says district general manager Ray Buck.

School 'daze'

Bandera school trustees Anne Samuel, Ken Vakey and Emmett Dalton serve up lunch Monday to welcome teachers for their first day on the job for the new school year. Board members Charlotte Salzman and T.H. "Bob" Keese were also on hand for the back-to-school event. Teachers will work this week preparing for Monday, Aug. 27, when students return to school. School's 'bare bones' budget means 42.8 percent tax hike

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

A 5.9 percent budget hike means 42.8 tax rate increase because there's no fund balance left to balance the budget.

Citing total salary increases of about $235,000, Bandera Independent School District superintendent Ted Dockery said Monday that trustees cut the budget "to the bare bones and beyond" to try and hold down an imminent tax increase this year.

Before passing the school district's budget that is in excess of $5 million, trustees pared the budget in areas including teacher professional salaries, instructional resources, instructional computing, office machine repairs, computer supplies, and repairs and expenditures in band and other co-curricular activities.

The main increase in the $5,250,089 budget, which is 5.9 percent higher than last year's, came in the form of salaries, but the number of personnel has only increased by one bus driver and a half-time aide, Dockery said. The school district had to meet state-mandated salary increases, and cuting the number of personnel would have a definite effect on programs, he said.

"We could use additional teachers, but (the board) decided to hold the line," said board president Charlotte Salzman. Enrollment numbers in the elementary might make hiring at least one more teacher a necessity in order to meet the state-mandated student-to-teacher ratio in elementary grades.

According to Dockery, Senate Bill 1 (SB1) puts Bandera and lots of other school districts in an awkward position. Suddenly the state expects school districts to tax locally at the rate of $1.18 per $100 valuation. Last year, Bandera's tax rate was 74.21 cents, and this year it is expected to jump to $1.0599, a 42.8 percent increase.

A 5.9 budget increase causes a 42.8 percent rate hike becase last year the board used its $764,301 fund balance to meet last year's $4,957,421 budget. In 1988-89, it used $589,114; in 1987-88 it used $380,963; and in 1986-87 the board used $279,966 to balance the budget.

Over the last four years, the board has exhausted $2,014,344 in fund balance in order to meet its budget, and this year, there was no more fund balance to fall back on, Salzman said.

"(The legislature) is saying their goal is even higher," Dockery said. "In order to qualify for full state funding four years from now they expect districts to be taxing at a rate of $1.18 per $100 valuation. Their intent is for all districts to meet that figure."

Bandera is considered above average in wealth, Dockery said. The criterion to determine a district's wealth is based on the number of students in a district divided by the value assigned to property by the State Property Tax Board.

Dockery said local property values decreased by about $3 million last year, and with sales down and even more exemptions being given, the local effective tax rate was bound to increase.

For example, Dockery said, there was a total of $124 million in local property tax value lost due to agricultural exemptions.

The school district this year decided to stop taxing non-business personal property, which represented some $17,275,258 in tax values, Dockery said.

"That eliminated an unpopular local tax, but it also eliminated approximately $183,100 in taxes that must be made up," Dockery said. "That means property taxes must go up."

"Also, we must meet state mandates, and the board was hoping for a (state) funding bill that would benefit all school districts," he said. "They increased the basic allotment per student, but they also changed the local share (of funding) from a 33 percent to a 41 percent factor."

The school expects to receive $3.6 million from local sources, including the property tax, and $1.5 million from the state.

The budget calls for spending $143,000 for principals' salaries; $64,600 for bus drivers' salaries; $75,000 for gas, oil and parts; $66,000 for athletic department salaries; $35,000 for new vehicles; $130,500 for superintendent's and assistant superintendant's salaries; and $140,000 for appraisal district expenses.

Bandera Downs to take recess after latest record weekend

Bandera Downs officials hope bettors won't break their good habits after taking a week off — the habit of setting wagering records week after week.

There was another single-day betting record Sunday, the third in a row, that fueled the third $1 million weekend in a row, and that left track officials with smiles on their faces wide enough to last two weeks when racing will resume Friday, Aug. 31.

And they are confident of another weekend record because Labor Day weekend will be the first four-day set at Bandera Downs since pari-mutuel racing began on July 5.

Bettors risked $264,503 Friday, $368,730 Saturday and $431,592 Sunday, a weekend total of $1,064,825, and residents of Hondo were honored Friday and residents of Lakehills posed for a group photo Sunday.

The Lakehills crowd watched Texas Hurrah, an 8-year-old who went off at odds of 21 to 1, win the $10,000 Lakehills Handicap, the featured race of the weekend.

Texas Hurrah, with Raul Ramirez in the saddle, surprised the bettors by beating an evenly-matched field to pay $44.40, $18.40 and $10.40. The public's favorites, Racin' Vike, who went off at odds of 6 to 5, finished dead last, and a couple of 5 to 1 shots, Repro Man and Midnight Magnate, finished out of the money.

The Texas Hurrah-Especially Effort exacta paid $2 bettors $283.80.

Saturday's feature was a 350-yard allowance for fillies and mares, and One Handy Miss won by a neck over Hele's Dream to win the $1,449 winner's share of the $2,415 purse. She paid $26, $13.60 and $6.80.

Friday's feature was also a 350-yard allowance that was won by Straight Six, with Terry Layton in the saddle in 17.84 seconds, a speed index of 100.

Biggest longshot in the winner's circle over the three-day weekend was Shesaspecktoo in Friday's fourth race, an 870-yard claiming race for maidens 3 to 5 years of age. It went off at odds of 24 to 1 and paid $50.20, $33.60 and $6.60.

Bandera jockey Nicky Wilson had only one winner, aboard Bravoh Forever in Sunday's ninth race, but he kept the leaders position among jockeys with $28,887 in winnings, including 16 winners in 50 trips to the post. Joe Quintanilla is in second place with earnings of $23,991 with 14 winners in 97 starts.

Phone snafu renders city speechless

For about 2½ hours Tuesday afternoon, Bandera telephone subscribers were rendered virtually incommunicado while phone service in the entire 796 area failed.

About 1,000 phones were affected during the crisis that began at approximately 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 21, according to Southwestern Bell public relations spokesman Doyle Bebee. The problem was caused when a ringing machine in the central Bandera office failed, and apparently the back-up machine also failed, according to Bebee.

The phone system was still connected, he said, but there was just no audible ring.

"If you call somebody and they happen to pick up the phone when you call, then they will answer, and you can talk to them," Bebee explained. "This was a real fluke, one of those things that you hope just doesn't happen."

Phone service was restored shortly after 5 p.m., and Bebee said that if the crisis had continued, it would have been possible to manually monitor emergency numbers and intercept calls to the sheriff's office or to police.

Tuesday, Deputy James Popham said there were no problems reported as a result of the telephone crisis.

Straightening some curves

Dear Editor,

There were two letters to the editor last week, Aug. 15, with some curves in them that need to be straightened out. Mr. J.R. Turner asked if commissioners were not in debt for $1.222 million. That debt was over a period of several years. It is a result of having to borrow money after county reserves were wiped out to repair flood damage to our roads and bridges throughout Bandera County. A sizeable portion of that amount is for the existing jail and sheriff's department. The debt is being paid through careful budgeting rather than increasing taxes, as in most counties, and I think commissioners (past and present) should be commended for those efforts. Mr. Turner expressed concern that commissioners might gain control of the drug money and use it for purposes other than law enforcement. Relax. The law says it can only be used for law enforcement purposes. The drug money must be properly accounted for through the country treasurers office, the same as all other public funds. Commissioners court must approve a budget for the drug money and that was done recently.

Mr. Gerald Long also had some concerns about spending in his letter, saying that commissioners win it hands down in reference to existing debt for replacement of aging road equipment in each precinct. The remaining total was $161,915.00 and was carefully budgeted with annual payments so that we may have the equipment necessary to maintain our roads properly. I suppose if we are going to compare apples to oranges, it looks small compared to the sheriffs department spending of over $750,000.00 to modernize his department also. No one is against a modern, well-equipped sheriff's department. Sheriff Forest is working toward that goal and, contrary to what you hear from some, the commissioners court is helping him to do it. The sheriff exceeded his budget, but that doesn't make him a bad guy. Budgets usually turn out to be "guesstimates" in most cases and have to be amended. The sheriff has shown good faith by offering to compensate for the difference from the drug money to keep from wiping out the county's reserve fund.

We will get there folks. We may disagree in some areas, but we are not disagreeable and we all have the same goals. The commissioners court and the sheriffs department will continue to try and insure that you have the protection you need with taxes that you can afford.

Don't wait

Dear editor:

Bandera taxpayers, we cannot afford the tax increase required if the school district passes the bond issue on Sept. 15.

We voted this down once, but the school board is quietly trying to slip this not-needed bond issue through. We must just say no; no tax increase, no bond issue.

Don't wait until voting day on Sept. 15; vote absentee at your convenience, but vote "no!"

Teacher gets an Apple

Dear editor:

It is good to know that the spirit that built America is not dead. This spirit was, in essence, that anyone who tried hard enough could succeed without any interference or hindrance from the government. This is true in our world, except for small roadblocks like taxes, wage and hour laws, governing standards and inflation. These minor roadblocks, however, make it very hard for a small business to sink roots that will weather the storms and squalls that are inevitable in any new business.

Our business, the Imagination Station Learning Center in Pipe Creek, is weathering its fourth year of storms. We have sunk some deep roots and are beginning to bud and flower. We may even bear fruit in a year or two. But we would have washed out to sea in the first heavy storms without the staunch support of the parents of our children in care and the faith and support of the local businesses. The local businesses, with whom we do most of our business, have hung in there with us at bill time and passed our name and fame out to new and welcome arrivals to our country. Only in America!

In particular, a commendation needs to go to Super S Foods and its local manager, Larry Atchison. Talk about the American way! This giant business takes the time and effort to provide a way for schools to earn computers for their children. You know what a headache and loss of logistics of this program must be, but Super S is willing to do this for our children. In this day and age of everyone looking out for himself, where businesses claw their way to the top by leaving permanent wounds on their competitors, it renews my belief in people to find a corporation that is willing to take the time and make the effort to support their local school systems and, in my case, the pre-school children.

Our school earned an Apple computer this year from Super S Foods. It was a long row to hoe with our enrollment at that time of only 38 children. Lots of time I was ready to quit and donate our receipts to the local schools. Larry supported us, encouraged me and kept the kids enthused with free Apple parties and donations to the children. We didn't reach the $70,000 goal, but came close enough to claim the charity leftovers of some San Antonio schools. This was in large part due to the help of Mark Deiterle from the San Antonio office (of Super S Foods). He scrounged and parlayed us a computer. Our small business and our preschool children would have been years without the experience of computer technology without the help from Super S. Only in America!

A sigh of relief

Dear editor:

The weekender edition for Friday, Aug. 17, with a bold, black headline, "Lay off the sheriff, says narcotics officer," sold me my first edition of the weekender.

I hastily purchased the edition with a deep, boiling anger only to find after reading the item the headline meant stop giving the sheriff a hard time. Lay off, not layoff. I must admit you could feel a cool wind blow throughout the Hill Country as everyone breathed a big sigh of relief. We just happen to love and respect our Sheriff Steve Forest.

Since reading the weekender edition, I must say I like it. Both editions take a great deal of work and effort to publish, mail out and deliver. Most folks do not realize that, so I wish to say "thank you" for a job well done to each and all at the Bandera Bulletin.

Water

reservoirs and pipelines. The plan is a roadmap of how San Antonio should address its water situation," he says.

However, he says the plan will be submitted to the Texas Legislature in 1991.

The public meetings in San Antonio Wednesday is the first public exposure of the over 100-page plan. "It's also the public's last opportunity to comment," says Bagwell.

The meetings are scheduled for 3 p.m. at The University of Texas at San Antonio and 7 p.m. at the Institute of Texas Cultures Auditorium.

Written comments on the draft water plan will be received through Sept. 14 at the TWD's Austin office.

There will be other regional meetings across the state to receive comments on the draft plan during August and September.

With the public input, the plan will be revised and presented at a public meeting of the Texas Water Development Board for adoption Oct. 19, says Bagwell. He advises that the Austin meeting may be delayed to November.

Once the six-member panel approves the plan, it will be submitted to the state legislature in 1991.

San Antonio must have new sources of water coupled with water reuse in order to cut down on the pumping of the Edwards Aquifer, says Bagwell. Pumping of the Edwards adversely effects the spring flow in the San Marcos and Comal springs, which in turns effects the economy of San Marcos and New Braunfels as well as threaten endangered species with extinction.

The plan addresses Bandera County and the surrounding area as the South Central Texas region, which consists of 48 counties located in portions of the Nueces, San Antonio, Colorado, and Guadalupe River Basin. The Medina River is considered part of the San Antonio River Basin.

In 1980, the regional population totaled 2.16 million people, with Bexar and Travis Counties accounting for more than 65 percent of the total. Currently, the regional population is estimated at 2.87 million residents and is projected to range between 5.6 and 7.1 million residents by the year 2040.

Currently, the total annual water use of the region is estimated at almost 514,000 million gallons with the two major water uses being for irrigation and municipal purposes. Municipal water requirements are projected to be almost 62 percent of total water use by the year 2040.

Approximately $2.2 billion would be required for identified water and wastewater infrastructure in the South Central Texas Region within the next 10 years and an estimated $4.3 billion within the 40 years that follow.

A significant feature of the 1990 draft water plan update is an emphasis on the maintenance of adequate in-stream flows to support Texas' abundant and varied fish and wildlife population, and to supply the fresh water needs of bays and estuaries along the Texas coast.

The draft plan projects the need for an investment of over $37 billion by the state's 2,400-plus entities for water and wastewater facilities, and an additional $1.9 billion to address those flood protection needs which have been quantified to date.

The draft plan also proposes a number of policy initiatives, including:

- Efficiency and management of available water resources.
- Protection of water supplies for future generations.
- Continuing investment in water resources as federal funding for these purposes decreases.
- Education so that Texans can learn more about water resources.

State law directs the executive administrator of the board to prepare and maintain a comprehensive water plan for the orderly development and management of the state's water resources in order that sufficient water will be available at a reasonable cost, to further the economic development of the entire state.

Plan development began in the spring of 1989 when the board conducted 28 meetings across the state to receive public comments on the board's projections of population and water needs. The draft plan projects an annual state-wide water demand of about seven trillion gallons by the year 2040, to meet the needs of Texas' population which is projected to increase from about 16 million in 1985 to 35 million persons in 2040.

To meet these increasing needs for water, the board is recommending phased-in conservation initiatives that can reduce water usage by as much as one trillion gallons annually by the year 2040, along with the development of new surface water supplies, including 13 new surface water reservoirs, four salinity control projects, reallocation and modification of existing reservoir storage, and 29 major water conveyance systems. Also recommended is a more intensive re-use of water.

In the meantime, negotiations between the owners of the majority water rights to Medina Lake, the Bexar-Medina-Atascosa Water Improvement District and the Edwards Underground Water District are stalled.

Bandera County's Springhills Water Management District has entered the picture by proposing to purchase the some of the water rights from the BMA.

The BMA controls 66,000 acre-feet per year of water in Medina Lake and the Edwards Underground Water Distrjct has been negotiating with the BMA to buy that water right for at least two years.

If a purchase agreement could be arranged, the Edwards would ask the Texas Water Commission to convert the irrigation right to a recharge right and pump the lake water into Edwards Aquifer, which is currently the sole source of drinking water in San Antonio.

The Edwards district currently represents people in Bexar, Hayes, and Comal Counties. Medina and Uvalde Counties left the district last year by popular vote.

The negotiations between the Edwards and BMA are currently stalled, as the Edwards wants to postpone a decision to buy the water and the BMA has let two deadlines requiring the Edwards to reply "yes" or "no" on the purchase decision go by without acting.

The Springhills Water Management District has also entered the picture, asking the BMA to sell part of their right to the Bandera County water management district as a possible source of drinking water for Bandera County.

Some 22 official student holidays, and a total of three teacher workdays, are on the student calendar this year. Bandera students will start back to school Monday, Aug. 27, and they will attend school through Thursday, May 30.

Enrollment figures are up again this year, according to school officials, and registration figures have already topped last year's numbers. The area of the most growth is in the elementary grades, as it has been in the past.

Students start their days of "rest" with a Monday, Sept. 3 Labor Day holiday. Their next student holiday falls on Monday, Oct. 8, with the second grading period starting Tuesday, Oct. 9.

With a traditional early release the day before Thanksgiving, students will have Thursday, Nov. 22, through Sunday, Nov. 25 to enjoy the Thanksgiving holidays.

School will be dismissed early Thursday, Dec. 20 for the Christmas holidays, and students will be off from school until Monday, Jan. 7.

Early release is scheduled Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 9 and 10, and Friday, Jan. 11, students will have another holiday, for the Bandera County Junior Livestock Show.

Friday, Feb. 15 will be a teacher inservice workday.

Students take off Monday, March 18, through Friday, March 22, for spring break. Good Friday, March 29, is also a school holiday, with a possible weather make-up day scheduled that day.

No more holidays are scheduled until the end of the school year, Thursday, May 30. Teachers have another work day Friday, May 31.

Foods to go should be nourishing and portable

"Food to go should be nourishing and filling, yet easily portable," says Irene Elizondo with the Texas Dept. of Agriculture. "Sure plain sandwiches, chips, cookies and other sweets are probably more desirable and convenient for packing, but with a little thought and preparation, lunch can be more than that. Lunch can be packed with nutrition, which means the body will be satisfied with the right fuel."

When a person eats right they won't be tired and hard to get along with, the expert says.

A lunch packed with nutrition should include one serving from each of the four basic food groups.

Proteins include fish or poultry, eggs, peanut butter, cooked dried beans, peas, or lentils, milk or cheese.

Grains and cereals include bread, crackers, muffins, ready-to-eat cereal, cooked grains such as noodles, macaroni and rice salad.

Dairy products include milk, cheese and yogurt.

Fruits and vegetables include fresh or canned fruits and vegetables or juices.

"By making lunch at home, one can control the amount of fat, salt, sugar and preservatives used," Elizondo says. "Instead of salty chips try a trail mix of popcorn, bite sized shredded wheat, rice cereal, nuts and dried fruit bits."

Unsalted pretzels, pumpkin seeds or popcorn make a tasty item, she says, and candy or sugar laden desserts can be replaced with fresh or dried fruit.

"Fresh fruit makes the best dessert," she says. "It's sweet but nutritious. With the wide mouth thermos, gelatin with chunks of fresh fruit can be enjoyed at school or work. Dried fruits such as raisins, apricots, banana chips and dates make a nice change from fresh fruit."

To ease hectic mornings, fix lunch the night before, or make a week's worth of sandwiches, Elizondo advises.

"A lunch can be tastier if it looks attractive," Elizondo says. "Invest in a supply of colorful paper napkins. Pack two and use one as a place mat."

Your Basic Bandera — Peggy Tobin

The show of blooms put on by the cenizo recently around southwest Texas was a hard act to follow, but to anyone looking about the dooryards of town and ranch, it is apparent that the crape myrtles have actually outdone themselves as well as out-doing the cenizo. The rain-inspired second flush of bloom on these favorite cultivars has been truly spectacular. The tall trees planted years ago are especially beautiful, with their clouds of bright flowers and their age-smoothed trunks. Drive around and look!

Annette Kalka-Schulte says that the panoramic view of Bandera from Rugh Hill—sorry, newcomers, Silver Spur—is orfe of a composition of pink, red, and green with the older crape myrtles rising above a dark background. Wow!

Here let us join the garden show experts in protesting the needless cutting back of crape myrtles in early spring. The undulating form of trunks and branches allowed to grow naturally makes for a much more interesting effect than does the lopped off dumpy look of a mere shrub. There are so many varieties of crape myrtle, there is a king available whose maximum height will be suitable for any given spot in the landscape.

Crape myrtles are like live-oaks. If they are allowed to grow as they will, they take on individual character and are so remembered. Some stand-outs: The truly ancient trees at the gable end of the Poinsard Building at the Old Ursuline Convent in San Antonio, now Southwest Craft Center. A single twisting tree, set off by a curving stone wall, at Trinity Baptist Church in SA, probably planted soon after the church was first built in the 1850's. The very old tree at the corner of the soon-to-be 150-year old ranch-house of Carmen and Speedy Hicks.

Carmen says, though, that the Hicks tree, for some inexplicable reason, has not joined in the second go-round of flowers with other local crapes this year.

While crape myrtles not well-established suffer damage in a winter freeze like the one of last December, they are so typical of the Texas landscape that we flave come to think of them as natives. Almost every single yard has at least one, and in surveying old hill country graveyards a few years ago, when we were doing research for Dr. Terry Jordan of UT-Austin, we reported the obvious fact that they are traditional in the decoration of graves.

But this favorite tree of the quick and the dead is not of our part of the world, nor even of this hemisphere. It is "Lagerstramia indica", a native of China and of the East Indies. Bless the roving Brit or the returning missionary who first brought it to the western world and to us! Or was it Marco Polo?

One last memory: The avenues of crape myrtles, planted as street trees, which turn Jackson, Mississippi, already a dreamy city, into a summer paradise. They were there when we lived in the oil patch on the edge of town a long time ago. They were still there when we took a bus-load of Bandera's Children of the American Revolution to a regional meeting years later. (That famous expedition is a whole 'nother story!)

Efforts under way to save remote ranch

The canyon headwaters of Seco Creek in western Bandera County were the focus of tours last summer Thursday, Aug. 9 as outdoor enthusiasts and botanists gathered for a field trip to view what they consider one of the most significant natural areas in the hill country.

Dorothy Matizza of Tarpley and Peggy Tobin, of Bandera are serving as local liason in efforts being initiated by Natural Area Preservation Association of Dallas, assisted by Texas Nature Conservancy, to purchase the ranch formerly known as Maple Valley.

Some 25 members of the Dallas group, plus Conservancy and Native Plant Society members from San Antonio, Abilene, El Paso and Bandera, as well as professional naturalists, archeologists and botanists joined Tobin and Matizza for a day-long tour on foot and 4-wheel vehicles of the trails and draws of the remote ranch.

"Prominent conservationist Ned Fritz of Dallas, head of NAPA, was unable to be present," said Tobin. "On previous trips to Bandera County he had pronounced the ranch he proposes to rename Bigtooth Canyons as a unique survival of virgin hill country wilderness which should be preserved for its ecological significance."

Tall stands of maples, chinquapin oaks, lindens and escarpment black cherries shade the canyons and encourage the growth of such rare plants as scarlet clematis, an uncommon anemone, and the crossvine usually seen only in East Texas, according to studies by Matizza reporting at the meeting of Thursday.

Matizza also reported confirmed sightings of black-capped vireo and golden cheeked warbler among the many birds present. A scientific bird census is planned.

Joining the assemblage for a picnic lunch at the site of an old settler's headquarters on the place was Ron Bownds, representing his Utopia Spring Water Company, present owner of the ranch. Bownds in conversation stressed his company's awareness of the fact that the virgin condition of the place contributes to its value as a protection of the water of the Edwards Aquifer zone downstream.

"The entire Seco Creek watershed has been designated for study by the federal government as a prime source of recharge for the Edwards," said Tobin. "This fact has been recognized by Texas Nature Conservancy in expressing its willingness to assist in assuring preservation of Bigtooth Canyons."

Pat Paradies of Dallas, an officer in NAPA, will take a key part in the statewide effort being launched by Matizza and Tobin to raise funds for the purchase of the ranch.

"If the drive is successful, title to the place will rest with Texas Nature Conservancy and will be maintained as a preserve available to hikers, bird-watchers, botanists and other study groups interested in the flora and fauna of the Texas Hill Country," said Tobin.

Any person interested in taking part in the preservation of Bigtooth Canyons can call Tobin at 796-4420, or Matizza at 562-3225.

"Contributions in any amount are urgently needed to guarantee the success of the major fund drive slated for fall, when the maple colors are in the news and drawing visitors to Bandera County," Tobin said.

Bertram/Oatmeal to hold festival

Oatmeal foolishness including a "Run For Your Oats," Oat-A-Thon, and an oatmeal cookoff will highlight the Oatmeal Festival in Oatmeal and Bertram Aug. 31 through Sept. 2. Other featured activities include a grand parade with aerial escort by the Oatmeal Air Force and a grasshopper parade where kids under 33 enter any cold-blooded critter or insect with legs that does not bite or sting painfully.

Oppose prison

Medina County commissioners may withdraw their support of a proposed 1,000-bed state prison at the Hondo Airport in the wake of protests by about 150 residents.

"We need to put it on the agenda so we can decide if we want to rescind our support," said County Judge Donald "Butch" Campsey after about 30 citizens expressed their opposition to the proposed prison.

Hondo was selected July 10 as a site for a minimum- to medium-security state prison that will mean 260 new jobs and an annual economic impact of about $6 million.

Annual labor Day rodeo is showcase for steer roping

Because of the large size of historic Mansfield Arena in Bandera, the annual Labor Day weekend Cowboy Capital PRCA Rodeo in Bandera has become a steer roping showcase and an annual preview of the world steer roping finals.

Last year virtually all of the top 10 steer ropers, including five world champions who won 11 titles, competed in the rodeo, and this year should be no exception.

But it was a team roper that won the steer roping title here last year, as Tee Woolman of Llano roped two animals in 23.0 seconds, one-tenth of a second faster than home-town favorite, Jim Davis.

Woolman won the world team roping championship in 1980 and 1981 and was second in steer roping last year. "I want to try to win a team roping and steer roping championship in the same year," he said. "That's a goal I've set for myself."

The world steer roping champion in 1966 and 1982, Jim Davis calls Bandera his home, and he'll compete here on Labor Day weekend, of course.

Davis has been in pro rodeo since 1975 and has competed in calf roping and team roping and has made the national finals steer roping 10 times. A native of Ponca City, Okla., Davis trains horses at his Bar-D ranch and trades rodeo steers.

Last year's world champion, Guy Allen of Lovington, N.M., is also expected here during the Labor Day weekend. He turned in the best time here last year when he roped a steer in 9.9 seconds, but he failed to make a connection in the other go-round.

Allen is actually a five-time world champion, having won in 1977, 1980, 1982 and 1984 as well as 1989. A native of Louisiana, he attended college at Ranger Junior College and Sul Ross State University in Alpine. He was only 17 years of age when he won the world title in 1977, the youngest ever.

He won one go-round here last year in 10.0 seconds but had trouble in the second and failed to place in the average.

Arnold Felts, the 1981 world champion from Houston, was here last year and in 1985 and is a good bet to return. He has won $372,915 over a lifetime and has been in the national finals steer roping 11 times.

Felts was third here last year behind Woolman and Davis, averaging 11.8 seconds.

Two-time world champion Shaun Burchett of Pryor, Okla., competed in Bandera last year and is expected to return again this year. He's earned $214,411 over a career that started in 1981 when he was the PRCA's steer roping rookie of the year.

Burchett was runner-up to Davis in both of his world champion years and their rivalry is among the most spirited in professional rodeo. He was third here in 1985.

Roy Cooper of Childress holds eight world titles, including the steer roping championship of 1983. He was all-around champion in 1983 and has been the top calf roper six times. His 11.1-second effort was the best turned in here in 1985.

Hall of Famer Phil Lyne of Cotulla is a two-time world all-around champion specializing in calf roping, but he was third in steer roping last year and may be entered here Labor Day weekend. He won a short go-round here in 1985.

Roy Angermiller of Uvalde is also expected in Bandera. He holds a master's degree and is rodeo instructor and rodeo coach at Southwest Texas Junior College in Uvalde. He's married to the former Melinda Ann Scarborough Adams.

Angermiller was sixth in steer roping last year with total earnings of $20,517. He was Texas Circuit steer roping champion in 1983 and has earned $85,704 in his career. He was champion here in 1988 with a total time of 47.0 seconds.

Allen's sidekick, Lionel Burns of Lovington, N.M., is also expected to compete in Bandera. He was a qualifier last year with earnings of $18,159.

Another headliner that could compete here is Dan Fisher of Andrews. He attended The University of Texas at Austin and Sul Ross State University, where he earned a degree in chemistry.

Tutt Garnett of Elgin will be here Labor Day weekend. He was fourth in the world last year.

Rod Hartness of Pawhuska, Okla., is a possibility here. He recorded a 10.3-second time in the national finals steer roping last year, the fastest. He splits his interest between rodeo and horse racing.

Jeff Wheelis of Goliad was seventh last year and may be in Bandera this year.

Stan Scruby, left, and Don Essary, co-owners of Bandera Downs, will be grand marshals of the Cowboy Capital PRCA Rodeo Parade on Saturday, Sept. 1. "They have contributed so much to the economy and well being of Bandera that we felt this is one of the ways to honor them," said parade chairwoman Bungy Grant-Ellington. They will head the parade riding in county attorney Sam Darden's white convertible, traditional transport for grand marshals. The parade will also include the Bandera High School Bulldog Band, a group of bag pipers, miniature horses, queens, trailriders, polihcians. The parade will start at 10 a.m.

Richards blames Gov. Clements for late start of racing

Ann Richards blamed Gov. Bill Clements for the late beginning of pari-mutuel racing in Texas at a San Antonio reception last week, says Bandera County Democratic Chair Mary B. Autry of Pipe Creek.

The Democratic nominee said that the election of Clayton Williams will result in four more years of state government like Bill Clements conducted.

"I can think of no better example of what it's been like in the past four years to be in Austin, Tex., than to talk about horse racing," Richards told the gathering of supporters. "We, the voters of Texas, approved horse racing in Texas and it took Bill Clements one year even to make the appointments to the Racing Commission."

Autry visited briefly with Richards after the meeting and she said she was pleased with the help she is getting from her supporters in Bandera County, Autry said.

Blanco County Fair to celebrate 60th

The 60th annual Blanco County Fair Thursday through Sunday, Aug. 23-26, will include homemaking competition, wool and mohair judging, junior and open rodeos, a parade, a washer pitching contest, and Friday and Saturday night dances.

'Winnie-the-Pooh' playing in Ingram not only for the children

Kristian Sergel's dramatization of A.A. Milne's timeless tale, "Winnie-the-Pooh" continues in Ingram through Aug. 25, Wednesday through Saturday nights.

Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. and the show lasts until 10 p.m.

The production will be performed at the Hill Country Arts Foundation's Smith-Ritch Point outdoor amphitheater on the banks of the Guadalupe River.

According to the show's designer and director, David Cockerell, "Winnie-the-Pooh" was written for children but this production will have a charm of its own for all ages. "The story is a simple one and we've stayed true to it, but the actors have shown a lot of creativity in their characterizations. And while Pooh, Piglet, Owl, Eeyore, Kanga, Roo and Rabbit are still 'cute,' they all have a humorous bent," he says.

One of the most magical scenes in the whimsical children's tale is when Pooh, thinking that the honey bees will mistake him for a cloud, holds on to a big blue balloon which will float him up to the honey tree. Everyone who is familiar with A.A. Milne's creation knows the story, but theater goers may not be expecting to see the chubby bear actually fly up into the trees...which he does.

The man behind the air-borne bear is Point Theater master carpenter Rick Steadham. Steadham has been responsible for the lion's share of the Point's most memorable special effects. he headed the crew that made it possible for Peter Pan and the Darling children to whiz around the ceiling fixtures and then out the window in the 1988 production. In 1986, Steadham conjured up the method for the "Wizard of Oz's Wicked Witch to melt into a steaming puddle of goo right before your eyes. Last season's "Cinderella" had audiences amazed as the Fairie Godmother was seen to disappear, poof, in the window one second, and standing in the room in a puff of smoke the next.

"He is an excellent craftsman," Cockerell says, "and has taught me to design a set with the size of the materials in mind. May times, after consulting him with the first draft of a set design, he can show me how to build it more easily and cheaply and still get the effect I want."

"All I have to do is tell him what I want to happen onstage and he figures out how to do it," he says.

Preston Hyde, a 20-year-old college student, stars as the title character, Pooh, Christopher Robin's teddy bear come-to-life.

Piglet, Pooh's porky compadre, will be played by Gregbry S. Hulett, a Starkey Elementary School fifth grader.

Kit Werlein, senior vice president and trust officer with First National Bank of Kerrville, will play Owl, who is prone to advise.

Don Andrews has the role of Rabbit, the hyper-energetic bunny who wants action, action, action.

Tickets are on sale at the box office and may be reserved by calling 1-367-5122. Ticket prices are $10 for adults, $8 for HCAF members and $5 for children 12 and under.

Group rates are available for parties of 20 or more who come Wednesday or Thursday nights. Call the box office for more information.

Cowboy art exhibit ends Labor Day

'Meals on Wheels' needs volunteers in Lakehills

The "Meals on Wheels" program for the Lakehills area lacks only enough volunteers and a way to get the food closer to Lakehills for the program to begin.

President Dorothy Webber brought the cooked meals supply program to the attention of the Medina Lake Chapter of the American Association of Retired Person executive board meeting Monday, Aug. 20.

The program, which supplies a hot meal once a day to people that are in need has nine volunteers, but Webber says 15 are needed.

The program could be run with 10 volunteers, but that would leave the program short if one of the volunteers got sick or went out of town.

In the program as proposed, the volunteers need to dedicate part of two days a month, says Webber.

Volunteers for the program don't have to be members of the AARP, says Webber. "We just need people with a good heart," she says. Volunteers can be younger people that are not working during the day, she says.

Webber says she also intends to contact some of the other organizations in the Lakehills area to see if they'll help find volunteers.

She says there are 21 people that want to participate as recipients in the program.

The food comes from the Dietert Claim, the Kerrville senior citizen center. "Kerrville is ready for us to get it going," she says.

The Kerrville center delivers the meals currently to Bandera's Silver Sage Corral, and the Lakehills volunteers could pick up the food there.

But they'd like to get the food brought to Lakehills, or at least as close as Pipe Creek.

Margaret McGuire of Kerrville donated $20 toward the Lakehills Meals on Wheels. "These donations are greatly appreciated," says spokeswoman Edith Evans.

Other organizations have offered donations to pay for insulated coolers, says Webber.

The AARP Christmas Party is scheduled for Dec. 10 at the Lakehills American Legion Hall.

There were 11 people in attendance Monday.

There are 104 paid up members in the organization.

The next executive board meeting will be Monday, Sept. 17, and the next regular membership meeting will be Monday, Sept. 24.

Lake area firefighters plan annual barbecue Sept. 1 and 2

The Medina Lake Volunteer Fire Department will hold its annual Labor Day barbecue Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 1-2, at the new fire station on Park Road 37 in Lakehills.

Serving starts at 11:30 a.m. and continues until about 6:30 p.m. or until the food runs out, says fire chief Ralph Dresser. Meal donations are $4.50 for adults and $2.50 for children.

There will be general workdays for department members and supporters Wednesday, Aug. 29, and Friday, Aug. 31, beginning at 8:30 a.m. Volunteers are also needed to work the serving areas the days of the barbecue, says Dresser.

Volunteers are also needed to boil potatoes and bake cakes and pies, says auxiliary president Dolly Dresser. Call 751-3335 to volunteer.

"The fire department belongs to the people of the community and is dedicated to the protection of lives and property without any tax or government money," says the fire chief. "Please volunteer your time or money to help in any way possible," he says.

About 40 Lakehills residents had their picture taken at Bandera Downs as part of Sunday's Lakehills Days at the Races at Bandera Downs. Residents attending included Peace Justice Preston Boggs and his wife Barbara, commissioner Dan C. Alanis, and artists Ted and Linda Jacobson. They saw 13 to 1 longshot Pinaud Clubman, ridden by David Muirhead, win the five-furlong race. Other local days at the races are Pipe Creek Day Sunday, Sept. 9; Medina Day Sunday, Sept. 16; Kerrville Day, Monday, Sept. 3; and Boerne Day, Friday, Sept. 7.

Weathers, Barnet wed in river boat ceremony

Kerrie Weathers and Gene Barnet were married Saturday, April 14, aboard the Granbury Queen, a river boat in the north Texas town of Granbury, with the Rev. Frank T. Harris officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Paula Riker of Hamilton and James Weathers of Clifton. The bridegroom is the son of Della Staples of Phoenix and George Barnet of Bandera. The couple resides in Bandera.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory taffeta, Southern style gown with a fitted V bodice, bouffant peplum, with a long skirt flowing into a train. The bodice was enhanced by lace, embellished with seed pearls, crystal beads and sequins.

Cyndy Walther of Glory Rose was maid of honor and the flower girl was Jaime Staples, the groom's sister. Mike Landers of Granbury was the best man and ushering was Josh Weathers, nephew of the bride.

While on board the river boat, wedding guests were served a traditional tiered cake and punch by Pam Pearce of Hamilton. When the Granbury Queen docked, guests went to the Pavilion of the Fairgrounds where they attended a wedding dance of country and western music.

The bride is employed at The Bandera Bulletin and the groom is employed by North American Intelecom in San Antonio.

Quilts, bedcovers on exhibit at San Antonio's Witte Museum

Ornate quilts and bedcoverings made of luxurious and intricate patchwork will continue on display through Nov. 26 at San Antonio's Witte Museum, 3801 Broadway.

The exhibition, entitled "Bedtime Beauties: Crazy Quilts and Slumber Throws," features handmade American creations of wool, cotton, silk, taffeta, velvet and brocade dating from the 19th century.

Popular in late 1800s, crazy quilting is characterized by a lack of decorative restraint-a textile scrapbook which follows no set pattern. Pieces of fabric were collected from family and friends, then combined in striking random-patterns and embellished with intricate embroidery. A common thread of sentimentality and reminiscence, and a love of rich, encrusted textures runs through the quilts and bedcoverings that were finely crafted by women of the Victorian era.

Objects on display include a slumber throw made by a group of admirers in 1852 to honor Kentucky statesman Henry Clay, following his death.

Another highlight is a quilt with a kaleidoscopic, jewel-like pattern illustrative of a fad popular during the 1800s. Godey's Lady's Book sold similar patterns and instructions, as well as swatches of fabric, for the novice quiltmaker.

A velvet, satin, silk and taffeta throw made in 1885 by Jane Lyons won first prize in the Textile Division of the San Antonio International Fair of 1906.

A quilt from Floresville is thought to be the combined creative effort of the Crowe family, early settlers in the area. Names and initials of family members adorn the quilt and an array of unusual motifs feature a horseless carriage, rocking chairs, birds and animals and a girl feeding chickens.

Prompt changing can prevent the heartbreak of diaper rash

Diaper rash can be as frustrating for parents as it is painful for babies. Prompt diaper changes and proper cleansing can help prevent irritating rash, says the Texas Medical Association.

Diaper rash occurs when the skin is exposed to too much water, which breaks down the skin's protective layers and causes natural oils to be lost. Friction between the diaper and the wet skin results in chafing. Once damaged, the skin can be attacked by yeast in the stool, leading to an infection and a more severe rash.

With many mothers working outside the home, parents often must rely on disposable diapers and trust that caregivers will follow proper diapering procedures. If necessary, parents should discuss diapering with the caregiver and ask that diaper changes be recorded on a daily log.

To help prevent diaper rash, follow these steps:

• Change diapers promptly when the baby urinates or has a bowel movement.

• Wash the diaper area gently with mild soap and warm water and dry with a soft towel. Avoid using too much soap or wipes containing alcohol, which can dry and irritate the skin.

Cool foods can help ice August's dog days

Many consumers offset the August heat by changing their eating habits, and supermarkets respond with some special discounted hot-weather foods, reports a food marketing expert with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Dr. Dick Edwards of Texas A&M University said family dishes that require lengthy preparation and heating up the oven and consequently the kitchen are generally saved for cooler weather.

"Popular food choices for August are meals that include meats cooked on the grill, salads, frozen desserts, frozen vegetables and other foods that can be microwaved," Edwards said.

"Most cookies, cakes and pies that are consumed during August are purchased rather than baked at home," he said.

Supermarket managers will discount many of these favorite summer foods during August's "dog days."

Edwards said this month has both good and bad news for consumers when it comes to meats.

"Beef and pork prices will continue their upward trend of the past several months," he said. "The good news for beef consumers is that there will be price reductions on round steak, chuck steak and ground beef."

Some supermarkets also will feature beef loin, T-bone or rib eye steak, Edwards added.

"But don't look for much price dip when it come to pork," he warned. "Advertised specials, however, will focus on pork chops, shoulder roasts and ribs."

Consumers who enjoy catfish will get a break in August, said Dr. James T. Davis, Extension Service fisheries specialist at Texas A&M.

"Catfish producers have designated August as national Catfish Month, and promotional efforts and an annual increase in production will bring some product price reductions," he said.

"Texas catfish producers will join in observing the month, Davis said. State production should increase dramatically this season, he added.

"Fish fillets at $2.69 to $2.99 a pound will be matched by prices around $1.99 a pound on whole fish," Edwards said. "Other good buys will include fish steaks and nuggets."

Chicken and turkey prices continue to favor consumers, with turkey expected to range from 75 to 79 cents a pound during August. Edwards said the chicken leg-thigh combination will be priced about 45 cents a pound, making it an excellent buy.

"With whole birds priced about 59 cents a pound, many consumers will want to stock their freezers," Edwards said.

In produce sections, best buys will be sweet corn, tomatoes, cantaloupes and honeydew melons. Items that will be leaving the marketplace during the month will be watermelons, blueberries, okra and strawberries, white table grapes, mangos, nectarines and plums will be available through the entire month.

Farmers can get low-cost loans if freeze damaged their crops

Agricultural producers in Bandera County who sustained freeze damage to horticulture nurseries, turfgrass or ornamentals may get loans at below-market interest rates, the U.S. Farmers Home Administration announced this week.

The FHmA allowed U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm to make the announcement.

The loans are available to farmers who are unable to obtain credit through normal channels.

The loans are specifically for farmers in Bexar, Erath, Matagorda, Montgomery, Nueces, Rains, Smith, Van Zandt and Wharton counties, but are also available for farmers in Bandera County and 37 other counties near.

The bank lowered its discount rate to production credit associations by 30 basis points in May and by 25 basis points in April, according to senior vice president Marsha Martin.

"The reduction will help farmers and ranchers improve their operating income, thereby strengthening the agricultural economy throughout the district," said Donald R. Rogge, the Farm Credit Bank of Texas' chief executive officer.

The maximum amount to be loaned is $500,000, Gramm said.

In a related matter, the 10th Farm Credit District said the Farm Credit Bank will reduce interest rates to nearly 60,000 member borrowers because of a 63-percent increase in net income during the first six months of the that are contiguous to the nine primary counties.

The loans are for up to 80 percent of the actual production loss farmers sustained during the hard freeze of Dec. 11 through 24.

Episcopal church honors cowboys

St. David's Episcopal Church in San Antonio celebrated the area's country-western culture in a Eucharistic liturgy Sunday, Aug. 19.

Approximately 150 people were present for the services celebrated by the Rev. Ralph Shuffler using a variety of symbols evoking the country-western theme.

Shuffler's vestments, specially made by parishioners for the occasion, were in blue denim with white fringes and the altar's floral centerpiece was a cactus.

"This is simply one of the ethnic bases of Texas culture," Shuffler explained. "We've seen mariachi Masses, Polish Masses, jazz Masses and so on. "Nobody has used this part of our culture to honor God, and we decided we ought to celebrate it," he said.

Ornamental crops important in Texas

Texas produces a wide range of ornamental crops from greenhouse-grown bedding plants to field-grown shrubs and trees. Production of ornamental crops is scattered across the state with concentrated production areas primarily in East Texas, along the Gulf Coast, and the Rio Grande Valley.

Tremendous growth and expansion in ornamentals can be anticipated because, at present, only 25 percent of the plants retailed in Texas are actually produced here, Cotner says.

"The annual wholesale value of our nursery crops in combination with greenhouse crops, which includes flowering, foliage, and bedding plants, is about $1 billion," he says.

125 'cousins' on hand for Smith family reunion

Some 125 "Smith cousins" gathered at Bandera's Mansfield Park Aug. 11 for the 12th annual reunion of the descendants of Robert Mays and Rebecca Dorn Smith.

Bobby P. Weed of Dallas served as emcee, and the prayer before the meal was offered by the Rev. Claus Rohlfs of Medina. Two poems written by Kristie Cadena of Buda, when she was seven years old, about Seco Smith were read. The memorial service was presented by Mrs. S.E. Skelton of Conroe.

Youngest in attendance was Christopher Ryan Jenkins, the 15-month-old son of Curtis and Jan Jenkins of Shertz. Oldest in attendance was Elma Lane, 98, of Kerrville. The oldest direct descendant was Leah Smith Cook of Pearsall.

Traveling the furthest distance were Marie Lewis Guerrero and her son, Robert, of Quito, Ecuador. Attendees came from 39 towns across Texas; from Independence, Mo.; from San Diego, Cal.; and from Canon City, Colo.

Legionnaires salute students who attended Boys, Girls State

The students who represented Bandera American Legion Post 157 at Boys State in Austin and Girls State in Seguin were dinner guests of Legionnaires Thursday, Aug. 16.

Carrie Fellows and Trevor Hull of Bandera High School and Jackie Alyston and Branden Gamblin of Medina High School told Legionnaires about their experiences.

"I ran for city health office, but was defeated," said Alyston "But (I) had the fun of doing it.

"Then I got serious, running again for Friendship County tax assessor-collector and was elected," she said. "I enjoyed meeting with others and made many new friends."

Fellows said she was a member of the Nationalist Party and participated in the senate debating and passing bills. "I enjoyed the experience very much and would go again if I could," she said.

Gamblin noted that even in mythical elections such as those at Boys State, candidates change when they become officials. "After they were elected, the officials seemed to get out of touch with the citizenship by doing what they wanted to do and not what the voters wanted."

And sometimes candidates are able to fool the electorate, Gamblin said he was defeated in an election by someone who appeared not to know what he was doing.

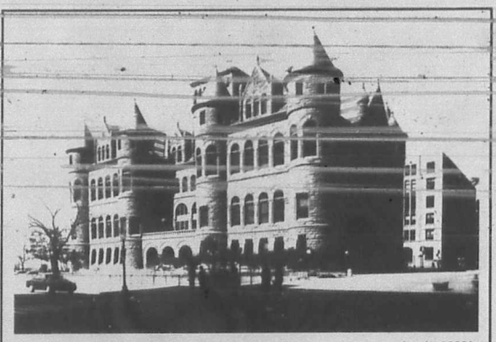
Hull was defeated for the office of county sheriff by a margin of just two votes. "I learned much more about myself and other people," he said.

The boys told Legionnaires that Gov. Bill Clements met with Boys State delegates and complimented them on their accomplishments.

On dean's list

David E. Kelley of Bandera is among the 1,587 students whose semester grades earned them places on the dean's list at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos.

To qualify for the dean's list, an undergraduate student must earn a grade point average of at least 3.5 while taking at least 12 semester hours of course work.



The fifth such structure built for Dallas County, the Old Red Courthouse was completed in 1892 by architect M.A. Orlopp. The red sandstone structure exemplifies the Romanesque Revival style rounded arches, turrets and massive scale. Originally, a clock tower with a 4,500-lb. bell topped the courthouse, but it was removed in 1919. Texas Dept. of Commerce photo.

The Stagecoach Inn in Chappell Hill is a restored Greek Revival structure built in 1850. The old inn was a favorite stop for Texans traveling by stage coach from Houston to Austin. Renovated in recent years by Harvin and Elizabeth Moore, the 14-room inn is listed in the National Register of Historic Places. Chappell Hill is approximately 60 miles west of Houston, near U.S. 290. The century-old frame structure where the 36th president grew up in Johnson City is now part of Lyndon B. Johnson National Historic Park. His birthplace, school, ranch and gravesite in Stonewall are also part of the park. Texas Dept. of Commerce photo.

Bandera Nursing Home

The Rev. B.J. Rogers from Lakehills United Methodist Church was the speaker at church services Sunday afternoon. Ray Shaw was the pianist.

The Rosary group enjoyed an end-of-summer party on the patio.

Residents Christine Kalka, Ada Sehon, Elvira Sgrignoli, Mae Eidenshink, Stella Warakaa and Evelyn Hostelter joined these St. Stanislaus Catholic Church parishioners for prayers, singing and refreshments: Joyce Selberg, Mrs. John Perry, Katherine Perry, Aggie Batto, Fannie Caffall, Jeanne Evans, Jean Evans and Annette Kalka-Schulte. Guests included Claudia Warakaa and Patty Conn and son Andy of Pflugerville.

Stella Philapy's visitors have been Roxasnna Cobb, Julie and Tom Hodges and Lindsey, Mark Allen Cobb, Melanie and Rebecca Mills, Martha McDuffie and Horace Hines.

Mary O'Bryant visited her mother, Nell Miller.

Luther and June Mathis' guests included their son and daughter-in-law Arthur and Mary Francis Mathis, and Irene Smith.

Mitchell Anderwald and Joe Anderwald visited their cousin Nola Baldock. Also visiting Nola was Roland Thallman.

Freida Moseley celebrated her birthday Monday with cake, flowers and gifts. She spent the day with her daughter Margie Keese.

Also celebrating a birthday was Edith Greene. She had cake, flowers, presidential greetings and gifts. Several family members came by to help her celebrate.

Leon and Lillian Ray took Jack Holloway to services at the Church of Christ.

C.C. Rankin is home from the hospital and he reports he is feeling much better.

Claire Thaman of Kerrville visited her mother Agnes Fortinberry.

Cleo Taylor and Iris Durham of Lakehills American Legion Auxiliary served refreshments at the games party Wednesday afternoon.

Martin Smith from the Bandera Church of Christ had Bible reading Wednesday morning for the residents.

Ramah Whiteside had Bible study for the residents Thursday

Thelma Rankin of Kerrville visited her husband C.C. Rankin.

Other volunteers this week included Aggie Batto, Rosemary Ford, Lois Hayes, Lillian Ray, Fran Pue and Overa Jones.

Father John Matocha of St. Stanislaus Catholic Church had communion for the Catholic residents Friday morning.

Clean glasses may be cloudy

Glasses washed in a dishwasher can be clean, but they may still be cloudy. Cloudiness is due to build-up, a film of matter on the glass, and etching, according to Bandera County Extension Agent, Jan Bryson.

"To identify the type of cloudiness, try scratching the surface of the glassware with a pin or other sharp object. If the pin scratches off some of the cloudiness, film build-up is the problem," Bryson says. "Or drop vinegar on the glass and rub with your finger. If the surface is clear when it has dried, then film build-up is the problem.

"If the surface of the glass seems pitted or remains cloudy after rubbing with vinegar, the cause of cloudiness is probably etching," she explains.

"The most common cause of filming is hard water. Hard water mineral drops dry on the glassware and continue to build up with each dishwashing.

"Food films can form on glassware and dishes when hard water minerals combine with protein in the residue of milk, soft cooked eggs or rare meat," Bryson says. "Hot water sets these proteins."

A hard film build-up can be removed by treating with white vinegar rinse followed by chlorine bleach, then another white vinegar rinse in a dishwasher cycle, she says. Commercial products also are available.

"Remove all metalware during the process," Bryson says.

"For antique and other glassware difficult to replace, hand washing and drying may be best."

Youths, seniors plan intergenerationally

A plan to build bridges across the generation gap in 20 South Plains counties and improve the quality of life for both youths and rural senior citizens has come off the drawing board and gone into construction in Lubbock.

The project is Youth Exchanging with Seniors (Y.E.S). The goal is to promote positive intergenerational relationships between youth and senior by providing assisted-living services that allow senior citizens to maintain independent lifestyles in rural communities.

Y.E.S. is a cooperative effort of the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center, the Texas Tech College of Home Economics and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, an agency of Texas A&M University System.

The effort will link members of 4-H Clubs and Future Homemakers of America with senior citizens in 20 South Plains counties.

It is a model program, funded principally with a grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, the nation's largest health care philanthropy. It is intended as a pilot effort that can be duplicated across the nation.

Co-directors of the project are Dr. Sheryl Boyd, assistant chairman for development in the Department of Internal Medicine and associate professor of health organization management at Texas Tech; Dr. Betty Stout, assistant professor of home economics education at Texas Tech; and Dr. Kathy Volanty, district director with the Extension Service.

The program was initiated this summer with two-and-a-half days of training for adults and a day-and-a-half for teens. More than 100 high school home economics teachers, extension service agents for home economics and senior citizens and some 20 4-H Club and FHA members from the 20 counties took part.

"This institute is not just about the Y.E.S. Project, it's about aging," Volanty told the participants. It included such topics as understanding aging processes, myths about aging, the project structure, existing services involving youth and seniors, strategies for community involvement and support, fostering business skills of participants, county planning and program implementation.

"The two best resources we have in our rural communities are our youth and our elders. This is matching them up," Boyd said.

Institute trainees form the nucleus of county resource teams that will coordinate efforts in each county. Teams will include an Extension Service home economist, a high school home economics teacher and a health care professional or senior citizen.

In the next two months, these teams will enlist a variety of community volunteers from business, health care and civic organizations to teach the youth service providers and match them with seniors requesting services. Seniors will also work with youths to carry out a joint activity that will benefit the community or county.

The projects and services selected in each county will begin in January and continue throughout 1991. Possible services might include routine housekeeping assistance, lawn care, personal services and minor home or auto care.

Some chemicals too user friendly

Recent furor in some consumer circles about the dangers of lawn chemicals may be a case of certain products being too "user friendly," a Texas A&M University scientist said.

Consumers have a host of products available today to make life easier and to deal with a wide range of problems, be they weeds in the lawn or bugs in the home.

All these products have gone through extensive, costly testing, and the manufacturer is putting its name on the line, saying that the product is safe if used according to label instructions.

That's the clincher — used according to label instructions, said a turfgrass scientist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

The Meals-On-Wheels program in Bandera County is in great demand, and priority is given to those who are frail, home-bound, and have inadequate means to maintain their daily nutritional needs.

In the weeks to come, persons will be contacted to determine eligibility for the program. Those currently receiving this service that have been scheduled for an assessment, will be notified in advance as to the date and time of interviews. Documentation may be required to substantiate need, and cooperation is requested.

• If you haven't dined at the center for lunch recently, we remind you that you're welcome to come join us for a nutritional, well-balanced meal served Monday through Friday. If you plan to eat lunch with us, please call the center before 9 a.m. on the day you will be eating there.

• Speaking of food, the cooking class, which meets each Thursday afternoon, will have a special guest instructor this week. Kim Mehaffey, who along with husband Fred, owns Zeke's restaurant in Bandera, will demonstrate her method of preparing stir-fried chicken with vegetables.

Kim will share some of her cooking "secrets" with us and show us how really simple the stir-fry method is. And yes, guests are invited to attend.

• Thursday, Aug. 23, there will be a health screening at the Classes sought

The director of a Uvalde library urged Utopia senior citizens to contact Uvalde County commissioners to protest the proposed cuts in funds for the El Progreso Memorial Library in Uvalde at the Aug. 10 meeting of the Sabinal Canyon Senior Council.

Susan Anderson said the proposed cuts will cause the library to lose its membership in the Texas State Library System which provides statewide loan service, materials for children's programs and large-print Spanish books, Anderson said.

Silver Sage Corral from 8 a.m. to noon. The screening is sponsored by the Sid Peterson Memorial Hospital in Kerrville.

Free screenings will include hemocult (colo-rectal cancer detection kit); blood pressure; legalert, a screening to determine risk factors of peripheral arterial disease, a serious circulatory condition (Women are requested not to wear panty hose); weight; cancer risk factor analysis, offered by Kerrville Radiation Therapy Center, a computer analysis of possible cancer risk factors; and pulmonary function, to measure lung capacity and screen for possible respiratory problems.

Complete cholesterol, at a cost of $5, or the health profile, at a cost of $20, will also be offered. The health profile includes complete cholesterol, blood sugar, kidney, liver and cardiac function and chemical balance. Both of these "blood draw" procedures require an eight-hour fast (water and black coffee only), with the results sent to the patient's local physician or SPMH medical staff physician.

The health screening clinic is offered as a public service.

• Friday, Aug. 10, the morning exercise class had their breakfast at a local restaurant. The class meets three times a week at 8:30 a.m. The class members say the workouts can really work up a hearty appetite.

• Congratulations go to Charles and LaVern McClosky on their 60th wedding anniversary.

• Wednesday, Aug. 29, the Hearing Aid Center of Kerrville will conduct free hearing tests at the Silver Sage Corral from 1 to 5 p.m.

Additional free services offered will include cleaning and testing of all makes of hearing aids, minor repairs, tubing replacement for behind-the-ear aids and consultation on hearing aid and hearing loss. All Bandera County residents are invited to take part in these free services.

• The birthday luncheon this month will be Tuesday, Aug. 28 at noon. It is a covered dish lunch, and everyone is invited to come, bring your favorite covered dish, and help us celebrate the August birthdays.

A Thought For The Week
By John M. Grimes

It has been said that successful people rarely consider work as just so much labor; they regard it in the nature of an opportunity for service and feel enjoyment in and derive pleasure from it.

Success is not a thing to be acquired; rather it is a spirit. It is not a matter of position or possessions. Success is the satisfying feeling of a life spent in a worthwhile way and a feeling of service rendered. Yet success is a frame of mind.

Success is in the way you walk the paths of life each day. It's in the little things you do, and in the things you say. Success is not in getting rich or rising high to fame. It's not in pursuing winning goals, which all men hope to claim. Success is being big of heart, and clean and broad in mind. It's being faithful to your friends, and to the stranger kind. It's in the children whom you love, and all they learn from you. Success depends on character, and every thing you do.

Car dealership moving out of town

Construction at Bandera's Thoroughbred Chevrolet new site halfway between Pipe Creek and Bandera is set to begin this week after groundbreaking ceremonies involving Bandera County Chamber of Commerce members Friday, Aug. 17.

Diane Fults, owner of Thoroughbred Chevrolet and Hillstar Chevrolet in Kerrville, said Friday that the slab for the new building at Kings Ranch Road east of Bandera and east of Bandera Downs on State Highway 16 should be poured this week with building construction slated for 30 days hence.

"Dec. 1 is our tentative move-in date," said Fults.

Fults says she decided to move Thoroughbred because the lease is up on the current property inside the city limits of Bandera and she'd rather build on her own site than release.

She says she picked the property near Bandera River Ranch because at the time they decided to purchase a site, "there was no other property closer to town for sale at the time for a price we could afford to pay."

The site was purchased two years ago. "People (with property for sale) were waiting for the track to open and had their prices up," she says.

The new building will be approximately 30 percent larger than the current building in town and the lot will be approximately 50 percent bigger. "We have more property to display cars," says Fults.

The "Little Lady," as she refers to herself in her television ads, says that Thoroughbred provides 50 percent of her business, with the other 50 percent coming from her Kerrville dealership. Fults says she had owned a third dealership, but has sold that site.

While the Hillstar dealership is "basically local (Kerrville) business," she says that Thoroughbred does "a lot of out of town business."

The move outside the city limits means the city of Bandera will not receive its 1-percent sales tax on the sale of automobiles by the dealership.

Local ranch has champ at 54th Angora sale

A Bandera Ranch had the champion and reserve champion doe at the 54th annual Hill Country Fair Association Registered Angora Goat Sale, according to Kimble County Extension Agent Dale C. Brandenberger of Junction.

The champion and high-selling doe consigned by Pember and son of Bandera sold for $1,000. The doe was purchased by Hutchinson Ranches of Bandera.

The reserve champion doe sold for $650. Jerry Haby of Floresville purchased the doe from Pember and Son.

"Overall buck average was $602," Brandenberger said. "The champion buck consigned by Dick Herndon of Uvalde brought $1,900 from Glennyth and Ronald Medart of Puremia."

Reserve champion and high selling billy also consigned by Dick Herndon sold for $2,800. The billy was purchased by Dean Dickerson of Goldthwaite.

Billy Upton of San Angelo purchased eight head for $3,175. Keene Ranch of Sonora paid $5,450 for five head and Bill Pfluger of San Angelo bought four head for $4,200.

Overall doe average was $331.08.

Hutchinson Ranch of Bandera purchased nine head for $3,150. Barbara Bounds of Sonora paid $2,325 for six head and Klose Ranch of Lometa bought three head for $875.

Threat of killer bees may be exaggerated

The threat of Africanized, or "killer" bees may not be as dramatic as some people think, unless that person is allergic to bee stings, according to the Texas Department of Health.

Bobby Davis, an entomologist and director of the TDH General Sanitation Division, explained that the insects may pose an increased danger to individuals who are highly allergic to bee stings, but "should not be considered a hazard to most people.

"We want the public to know what makes the AHB (Africanized honeybee) different from other bees. We also want to caution people who are allergic to insect stings that bee stings can be fatal," Davis says. Two or three Texans, stung by common honeybees, die each year.

Davis explained that the AHB is a hybrid species, a cross-breed between common European honeybees and a more aggressive African species. The African bees were accidently released in Brazil about 30 years ago. Even to scientists, these bees look almost identical to common honeybees, but their behavior can be drastically different.

"What concerns us most about AHB is that it is more likely than other bees to attack and sting in large numbers if anyone threatens its colony or swarm. Although the venom of Africanized bees is no more toxic than that of other honeybees, the number of stings a person might suffer may be much greater. If the person is already allergic to bee stings, or if he is stung by large numbers of bees in a swarm, it can be fatal." Hence the name, "killer" bees.

Davis says he thinks the name "killer" bee is a misnomer. "They are hard-working honeybees, and if you don't disturb their colonies, chances are they won't bother you."

As many as 10 deaths in Mexico may have resulted from AHB stings in the past four years. Other Central and South American countries have recorded increased bee sting deaths as the AHB swarms have spread northward from Brazil.

Another characteristic of AHB is its tendency to abscond — to separate into new swarms to start new colonies. "Whereas most common honeybees are content in beekeepers' hives, the AHB swarms sometimes seek more unlikely places to hide, such as old barrels, vacant buildings — nearly anything that offers shelter. That creates the danger that someone might stumble upon them," says Davis.

Davis says that the most likely persons to have serious problems with the Africanized bees are beekeepers and farmers, particularly in the Valley, where nearly all crops are dependent upon bee pollination.

Tarpley

Intense heat both day and night are creating what is commonly called the "dog days" of summer. Rain is sorely needed.

- Last week, it was left out that H.E. Haner is the great-grandfather of Sephra Lynn Zinsmeister, born July 30 to Tara and Daniel Zinsmeister of Jourdanton.

Haner's granddaughter, the former Tara Haner, has visited in the Tarpley area many times.

- Tony Tatach of Fredericksburg, aunt of Marilyn Haner of Tarpley, died last week. Services were held Thursday, Aug. 16 at Fred Beckmann Funeral Chapel, and burial was in the Der Friedhof Cemetery. Anton and Marilyn Haner attended the funeral services.

She is survived by one brother and sister-in-law, Richard and Eleonora Tatach, nieces Marilyn Haner and Gloria Sweeney; and numerous neices and nephews.

- Jeri Richards was honored on her birthday and also on her daughter Harla's birthday Aug. 17 at her home. Those helping her celebrate included her parents Mr. and Mrs. A.B. "Skeets" Singleton, her aunt, Madge Chambers, and Mrs. M.J. Ralph, all of Tarpley; and Emily and Dale Keith and sons Stanley and Dale of Bandera.

- Mr. and Mrs. A.B. Singleton and granddaughter Harla drove to San Antonio Saturday to celebrate her mother Virginia Terrell's birthday Aug. 18. It was also her sister Dorothy Maness' birthday. Others there included the Singleton's son and his family, Byron and Amy Singleton and daughter Amber. They had a special dinner.

- Also celebrating a big day were Ray and Mary Hietalahti, celebrating their 45th wedding anniversary Aug. 21.

- Celebrating birthdays recently are Arthur Erfurt, Artie Erfurt, Ella Sandidge, Roxy Sandidge, Sara Erfurt, Anton Haner and Evie Mae Kinsey.

Exchange students find 'homes'

Among the students expected at Medina High School when classes begin Monday will be exchange students from Japan, Finland and Switzerland.

Benoit Challand is a French-speaking student from Switzerland. Marina Johanna Hemolainin is a 17-year-old from Helsinki, and Takaaki Kaneoya is a trumpet player from Chiba, Japan, who will be part of the Bobcat Band.

Kaneoya will be living in the home of Ray and Linda Barton. Hemolainin is being hosted by the Rev. and Mrs. Gerald Evans. Challand is in the home of Louis and Sandee Vannatter.

Challand likes to be called Ben. He's from Farvargny, a town of about 900 souls in southwestern Switzerland.

He says the homes in his hometown "are much more concentrated" than homes in Medina.

He has studied six languages, including French, Italian, German, Latin, Greek and English. Although his command of English is very good, Mrs. Vannatter says he still has a lot of Texan English to learn.

Challand is a musician who plays the cello seriously and the piano for enjoyment. He says he's looking forward most to meeting the young people in Medina, but also enjoys swimming in the Medina River. Rivers in Switzerland are too polluted and too cold for swimming.

He said many of his friends in Switzerland have been exchange students and each reported the experience as a good one.

Hemolainin was born in Helsinki, but now lives with her parents and a brother in a town called Vantao. While she will be a senior at Medina, she will have to complete two additional years of secondary schooling before receiving a diploma. This school year will not count toward graduation in Finland.

She has traveled extensively and this is her third visit to the U.S., but it will be her longest.

She has studied three foreign languages, Swedish, English and German. She plans to become a veterinarian and is interested in biology and physical education in school. Outside of school, she loves animals and sports, including horseback riding and water skiing.

Her brother was also an exchange student, studying in Santa Monica, Calif., last year.

Kaneoya, who likes to be called Takaa, took the plunge in the Medina River aboard an inner tube on his first day in Medina. "Coming from a Buddhist background, a full week of revival at the First Baptist Church was a (culture) shock in itself," said his host Linda Barton.

He is learning to play football and to drive a tractor and plow the garden, and he will play the trumpet in the Bobcat Band this fall. He also enjoys playing the piano, Barton said.

A city boy in Japan, he likes the friendliness of the rural people of the Medina area, Barton said.

Medina

Kindergarteners, new students and any high school students who have not registered at Medina School may do so on Friday, Aug. 24, from 8 a.m. to noon and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., school officials said.

Students who attended Medina School last year and will enter any grade from one through eight do not need to register.

School will be dismissed early at 3:20 p.m. on the first day of school, Monday, Aug. 27. Classes will begin at 8 a.m.

Attend reunion

Three Medina persons attended the Stansell School reunion at Edmondson on July 28 and 29.

Former Stansell School students Bill and Medina Moore Goodenough and Bill's wife Laverne attended the gathering at the school, which was a 3½-mile ride by horseback for the Moore children.

Among the others at the gathering were Helen Moore Hicks of Austin and her daughter, Nancy Raumaker, also of Austin.

100 at reunion

More than 100 persons attended the Medina School reunion Saturday, Aug. 18.

Electronics aid hearing impaired

The school nurse inserts a microphone into a pupil's ear, turns on the computer and determines that the student has a hearing loss. An infant "tells" a computer of hearing damage it suffered while in its mother's womb.

Such scenarios may not be far off as ear specialists at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston study the new area of otoacoustic distortion emissions testing.

"It's a new procedure developed at Baylor that has exciting possibilities," said Dr. Brenda Lonsbury-Martin of the department of otorhinolaryngology and communicative sciences. "Through measuring otoacoustic emissions, we can diagnose hearing loss in infants, which has always been a problem because they cannot respond to standard "sound-answer" tests. We could then offer treatment to prevent further damage or hopefully, to reverse the damage."

Lonsbury-Martin compares acoustical emissions to the natural action of surf on the seashore as it hits the beach and then pulls back. When the sound "wave" reaches the tiny hair cells in the ear, a "backwash" or reverse wave is created that can be detected with a special microphone placed in the ear canal.

"It is like running your fingers down a piano keyboard," she said. "The wave enters the ear as one distinct sound but it is actually composed of many different frequencies of sound from the highest to the lowest."

And just as a piano tuner listens to reverberations in the piano's console, Lonsbury-Martin listens to the reverse wave, determining which sounds are missing or lessened.

A special computer program developed at Baylor compares the patient's hearing capabilities with what a normal human ear should be able to detect. Although Lonsbury-Martin must rely on a larger scientific computer at present, plans are being made to convert the test to a personal computer software package to be used by nurses and hearing specialists in their offices.

Acoustic emissions testing can also determine hearing loss caused by medications or by loud noises in the workplace. The procedure could substitute for the standard audiogram test, especially for patients who find it difficult to signal when they have heard a sound. The audiogram has a built-in limitation since it relies on the patient's honest response.

Hard water creates laundry problems

Minerals, organic matter and other impurities can be the cause of dingy, stiff and even stained laundry. Solving the problem, however, must start with diagnosis.

"Some laundry problems have similar symptoms and more than one possible cause, so to determine if water quality is the culprit, consider your equipment, water, products and procedures," said Dr. Ann Vanderpoorten Beard, a clothing and textiles specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

For example, the symptoms of hard water problems include dinginess or yellowing, a general soil build-up, a stiff, harsh feel and white or gray streaks on colored fabrics.

In hard water, much of the detergent added to the washer must go to softening the water, so little is left to clean the clothes. Beard said. Simply adding more detergent is expensive and phosphate detergents contribute to water pollution.

One way to prevent the problem is to use an adequate amount of low-sudsing phosphate detergent or heavy duty liquid detergent in as high a water temperature as is safe for fabrics, the specialist said.

Another solution is softening the water with either nonprecipitating water conditioners or installing a water softening system in your home.

To undo damage already done, fill the washer with the hottest water the fabric will tolerate, add four times the normal amount of phosphate detergent and one cup or water conditioner, Beard said.

Repeat the process as needed until no suds appear in the rinse cycle. It may be necessary to launder the clothes with one cup of the water conditioner and bleach that is safe for the fabrics.

Electronics aid hearing impaired

The school nurse inserts a microphone into a pupil's ear, turns on the computer and determines that the student has a hearing loss. An infant "tells" a computer of hearing damage it suffered while in its mother's womb.

Such scenarios may not be far-off as ear specialists at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston study the new area of otoacoustic distortion emissions testing.

"It's a new procedure developed at Baylor that has exciting possibilities," said Dr. Brenda Lonsbury-Martin of the department of otorhinolaryngology and communicative sciences. "Through measuring otoacoustic emissions, we can diagnose hearing loss in infants, which has always been a problem because they cannot respond to standard "sound-answer" tests. We could then offer treatment to prevent further damage or hopefully, to reverse the damage."

Lonsbury-Martin compares acoustical emissions to the natural action of surf on the seashore as it hits the beach and then pulls back. When the sound "wave" reaches the tiny hair cells in the ear, a "backwash" or reverse wave is created that can be detected with a special microphone placed in the ear canal.

"It is like running your fingers down a piano keyboard," she said. "The wave enters the ear as one distinct sound but it is actually composed of many different frequencies of sound from the highest to the lowest."

And just as a piano tuner listens to reverberations in the piano's console, Lonsbury-Martin listens to the reverse wave, determining which sounds are missing or lessened.

A special computer program developed at Baylor compares the patient's hearing capabilities with what a normal human ear should be able to detect. Although Lonsbury-Martin must rely on a larger scientific computer at present, plans are being made to convert the test to a personal computer software package to be used by nurses and hearing specialists in their offices.

Acoustic emissions testing can also determine hearing loss caused by medications or by loud noises in the workplace. The procedure could substitute for the standard audiogram test, especially for patients who find it difficult to signal when they have heard a sound. The audiogram has a built-in limitation since it relies on the patient's honest response.

Hard water creates laundry problems

Minerals, organic matter and other impurities can be the cause of dingy, stiff and even stained laundry. Solving the problem, however, must start with diagnosis.

"Some laundry problems have similar symptoms and more than one possible cause, so to determine if water quality is the culprit, consider your equipment, water, products and procedures," said Dr. Ann Vanderpoorten Beard, a clothing and textiles specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

For example, the symptoms of hard water problems include dinginess or yellowing, a general soil build-up, a stiff, harsh feel and white or gray streaks on colored fabrics.

In hard water, much of the detergent added to the washer must go to softening the water, so little is left to clean the clothes, Beard said. Simply adding more detergent is expensive and phosphate detergents contribute to water pollution.

One way to prevent the problem is to use an adequate amount of low-sudsing phosphate detergent or heavy duty liquid detergent in as high a water temperature as is safe for fabrics, the specialist said.

Another solution is softening the water with either nonprecipitating water conditioners or installing a water softening system in your home.

To undo damage already done, fill the washer with the hottest water the fabric will tolerate, add four times the normal amount of phosphate detergent and one cup or water conditioner, Beard said.

Agitate just long enough to wet the clothes and soak the load overnight or for about 12 hours. Drain and spin without agitation further and then launder the clothes, using the regular cycle with no detergent, but with one cup of the conditioner.

Repeat the process as needed until no suds appear in the rinse cycle. It may be necessary to launder the clothes with one cup of the water conditioner and bleach that is safe for the fabrics.

Trot line fisherman takes shot at water skiing TV man

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

A Mico fisherman shot at a San Antonio television personality skiing on Medina Lake last week as an apparent act of revenge for damage to his trotlines.

Leonard Hamilton, 85, shot a .22 caliber rifle at San Antonio television news anchor Bob Salter and his friend, Larry Lidgren, while they were skiing Medina Lake Wednesday, Aug. 15.

Hamilton has not been arrested by the Medina County Sheriff's Department as of one week later, though he was caught red-handed with the rifle at the scene by Deputy James Postert and Medina Lake Game Warden Ernest Lerma.

"The alleged perpetrator has been identified and due to his age, he was not taken into custody at the time of the incident," Postert said Wednesday.

However, Hamilton will be arrested if the Medina County grand jury indicts him on aggravated assault charges, said Postert.

Hamilton's case was heard before a Hondo grand jury Tuesday, Aug. 21. Both Salter and Lidgren testified.

A spokeswoman in the Medina County District Clerk's office wouldn't say if the grand jury had no-billed or indicted the Mico man, indicating only that the "defendant had not been served."

District Attorney Rogelio Munoz of Uvalde had not returned The Bulletin's call as of Wednesday in the matter.

The shooting attack stems from at least three incidents in which Salter and friends were skiing a slalom course they had set out near a bluff between Red Cove and Cherry Cove on the Mico side of Medina Lake.

On the day of the shooting, the first indication of trouble came when Hamilton steered his boat across the bow of the ski boat containing Lidgren, Salter, and friends as they prepared to make a skiing run through the slalom course. "I couldn't tell if he was angry at the time, but in retrospect he must have been angry," says Salter.

"We continued using the slalom course and the fisherman left before we completed using the slolam," says Salter.

The group left the area in their boat for at least 15 minutes to ski in the open lake, says Salter. They then dropped their friends in the boat off on land.

Salter and Lidgren returned to the slalom course and Salter says they saw the Hamilton waving. Assuming it was a friendly gesture, they returned the wave. With Lidgren driving the boat and Salter skiing, they went through course and then returned to open water.

"On a second run through the course, I pulled wide to the boat and heard two loud bangs - like a paddle hitting the water. It was a curious sound, and at 34 mph with the sound of the boat and the waves, you don't hear many other noises," says Salter.

"I looked to my right and saw the man in his boat lowering his hand. I didn't see a gun," he says.

But Lidgren did and he stopped the boat. "I scrambled into the boat and we headed to the middle of the lake," says Salter. They then headed for land and called law enforcement authorities.

"Larry saw the gun leveled at us. He was shooting in our direction. Not into the air," says Salter.

"We returned to the site (with Lerma and Postert) and the man (Hamilton) was still tending his trotlines. He had the rifle in his boat and at least two spent .22 long-rifle shells in the boat," says Salter.

Postert confirmed Wednesday that Hamilton had a gun in his boat.

Salter said that the shooting incident was probably due to encounters with Hamilton that started three weeks earlier.

The first time they encountered the man, "We were in the process of putting the slalom course into the lake and (we) fouled the trotline," says Salter.

The slalom course uses temporary anchors that can be removed.

Salter and Lidgren discovered too late that the man had one bouy and several trotlines strung out radially from the bouy and

First-day students may don shorts

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

Carefree summer days come to a screeching halt Monday morning, Aug. 27, when local students start back to school.

When the first class bell rings at 8:05 a.m. at the elementary campus and at 8:10 a.m. on the junior high and high school campuses, though, there will be at least one major change in Bandera's student policy: Shorts!

This month, the BISD administration and school trustees approved additions to the dress code that will allow junior high and high school students to wear shorts to school.

"Last year, there were no shorts allowed," said assistant superintendent Gus Pfeiffer. "Occasionally the junior high students got to wear them on the really hot days.

"The dress code has been changed to allow walking shorts and split skirts or culottes. The policy specifies they must be modest in appearance," he said. "The intent (is that the wearing of shorts) is not to detract from the educational process."

Pfeiffer said the shorts policy was implemented on a trial basis, and if the new rule creates a problem, or if students "push" the limits, they will do away with the dress code change.

By Tuesday, Aug. 21, 43 more students than started school last year had enrolled in Bandera schools, Pfeiffer said. Tuesday's total of 1,461 students will probably grow even more before school starts. Last year, 1,418 students, a record number, began the first day of school in Bandera.

By Tuesday, 114 kindergartners were enrolled, while 124 started school last year; 147 first graders, while 116 started last year; 104 second graders, 103 started last year; 113 third graders, 115 started last year; 133 fourth graders, 105 started last year; 121 fifth graders, 120 started last year; 113 sixth graders, 115 started last year; 97 seventh graders, 121 started last year; 125 eighth graders, 93 started last year; 107 ninth graders, 131 started last year; 116 10th graders, 100 started last year; 85 11th graders, 95 started last year; and 86 12th graders, 66 started last year.

At least 11 new teachers will be walking the halls of Bandera schools, and some familiar faces will no longer be around, as the board accepted the resignations of several teachers this summer.

In July, the school board accepted resignations from Sally Hendrix, Robin Stanfield, Marilyn Wiles, Elaine Mehaffey, Linda Wall, Stan Anderson, Marcia Marcantonio and Billy Nabours.

Bandera High School has a new boys athletic director and head football coach, Chris Storer. His team will have its first game of the season Friday, Sept. 7 when they play Dripping Springs here.

Lynn Gilbreath is the new head volleyball coach. She also will be teaching science at the junior high school.

Doris Reeh will teach physical education and coach at the junior high level.

Monica Spray will teach junior high reading and also coach.

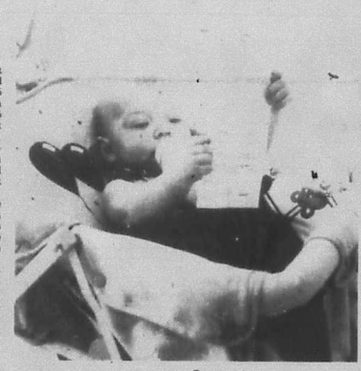
Brett Morris is the high school's new assistant head coach. He will also be teaching driver's education.

Duna Morris and Annette Nowell will each teach kindergarten, Lori Wall will teach second grade, and Lori Werckle will teach first grade.

Robert Shearhart will teach high school English and will also coach at the junior high level.

Cindy Woodland will teach high school Spanish.

Lofton Kline will teach physical education and coach at the junior high level.



Starting young at Bandera Downs

Paul Jacob Liebig, left, appears to be studying the racing program prior to last week's twin trifecta and Renee Bear, 8, of Fredericksburg, right, consults with her grandfather, Glenn Brooks, on her first trip to the track. Liebig is the son of Karyl Liebig, a horse trainer, who furnished the picture and the grandson of another horse trainer.

Horse racing venue moves to Fredericksburg

A special stakes race established to encourage thoroughbred racing is building toward a record purse for the 102nd Gillespie County Fair in Fredericksburg, which runs through Sunday, Aug. 26.

Racing got under way at Fredericksburg Thursday.

The Mally Keller Memorial Stakes Race Saturday at the Gillespie County track will have a purse in excess of $7,500. It is a one-mile race for 3-year-olds and older, and certified Texas-bred horses are preferred, the track says.

The race is sponsored by the family and friends of Mally Keller in recognition of his lifelong devotion to thoroughbred racing in Texas. "This race is a way of continuing his work to encourage thoroughbred racing in Texas," says Demarious K. Frey, a Fredericksburg veterinarian who is helping sponsor the event.

Frey said he hopes the race will have the highest handle ever bet on a single race in Texas and the highest purse paid to thoroughbreds in Texas.

There are 11 races scheduled in Fredericksburg on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Thursday's card consisted of 10 races.

The featured race on Sunday is the 350-yard Gillespie County Handicap for accredited Texas-bred quarter horses 3 years of age and older. A total of $5,000 will be added to entry fees for the purse.

The weekend race meet wraps up the first summer of pari-mutuel racing at the Gillespie County Fair Grounds.

It is being held in conjunction with the 102nd Gillespie County Fair, the oldest continuous fair in Texas. Among the fair activities are a parade, sheep dog trials Friday, livestock judging, commercial and educational exhibits, a petting zoo and a carnival.

A Saturday night dance features songwriter and recording artist Earl Thomas Conley. Other entertainment lined up for the weekend includes the People's Choice Friday night and Scott Hofmann and Southern Image Saturday night.

Bandera track takes week off

Bandera Downs will not have racing this weekend, but stay tuned for next week, when the excitement of thoroughbred and quarter horse racing will continue with a few changes. Post time Friday has been moved up to 2 p.m., and next weekend will be the first four-day racing weekend at the Downs. The featured event will be the Kerrville Handicap on Labor Day, Sept. 3.

Last weekend was the third record-setting weekend in a row at Bandera Downs, but no one picked the twin trifecta and $54,194.40 will be carried over

Shinin' Pride plays their own material

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Many country and western standards, a little progressive country and as much as 25 percent original material, describes the music of Shinin' Pride.

The five-member country and western band will appear at Bandera's Cabaret Saturday, Aug. 25.

Band leader David Berry says the San Antonio-based group plays the standards such as "Silver Wings" and the "Westphalia Waltz" at their appearances.

But they also perform newer country music including Alabama's "I'm your move to stay in Texas," and Exile's "Nobody's Talking."

Original music also will be played at their gigs, though.

The five-member band includes Berry, who is the lead singer and plays fiddle and mandolin, and the other members play piano, guitar, bass, and drums. Three of the five write songs and four of the five sing.

The big news is a record in the offing. "The group has been contacted by a producer to record some of our original material in Nashville," says Berry. "We're going up to Nashville in November to listen 1,500 songs and to pick out three from well known writers. We will record them and two of our own and the producer will pitch the tape to a major record label," he says.

The band plays major clubs in Corpus Christi, Houston, Austin, Navasota, Bryan, and Uvalde.

The band has also played radio listener promotional parties for radio stations including the KKYX River Fest and the Y100 birthday party with hot and up-and-coming artists Garth Brooks and Robin Lee.

The band has won the True Value GMC Country Music San Antonio showdown contest at Texas Country Downunder and will compete in the state finals at Sea World Oct. 14.

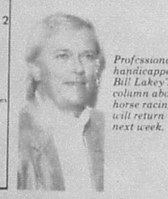
Shinin' Pride has opened shows for many major and up and coming artists including Clint Black, Eddie Raven, Doug Stone, Robin Lee, Lionel Cartwright, Travis Tritt, and Exile, says Berry.

Berry says the band has its own sound. "You can't get anywhere in this business if you sound like someone else," he says. "We have our own sound. There is not one band that we try to sound like."

But when they play other people's music, he says the band does that material like the group on the radio.

All band members are from San Antonio and range in age from 26 to 33. They have been together for 3½ years, says Berry.

Shinin' Pride will be at the Cabaret



Professional handicapper Bill Lakey's column about horse racing will return next week.

shot had dropped their slalom course anchor across his line accidentally.

Salter says he told Hamilton that I was sorry we cut his trotline."

When they returned on another outing, they installed a permanent anchor for the course 150 feet from his trotline.

The next time out, they found a trotline on their slalom bouy and had to cut the trotline to get it off the bouy. "You can't use (the slalom course) with trotlines tied to them," he says.

Salter says when they found the trotline, they were going to tie it to another bouy but accidently lost the trotline in the process. "We had the intention not to trash his trotline," he says.

"But that's no excuse for taking the law into your own hands," comments Salter.

Persons fishing with trotlines cannot use more than 100 hooks total on all their trotlines, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife laws.

The mainline length of the trotline can be no greater than 600 feet and must have valid gear tags attached within three feet of the first hook at each end of the trotline. The gear tags are valid for only 30 days after the date they are set out.

Trotline hooks must be spaced at least three horizontal feet apart and cannot have metallic stakes.

18th Musicians Reunion expected to draw hundreds of pickers

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Music and more memories are bringing hundreds of traditional country and western musicians and friends to the shores of the Medina River for the 18th annual Musicians Reunion.

Organizer Chester Pike "Buck" Sloane of Houston and at least 30 other musicians and friends have arrived already at Pop's Place in Pipe Creek for a four-day weekend of music, reminiscing, and a vacation at the end of summer.

No formal concerts or dances are planned, but Sloane says two major jam sessions are planned Friday and Saturday night and will provide dancing music at the outdoor dance floor at Pop's.

"There will be a little bit of picking going on all over the grounds," says Sloane. "Everybody that picks can get into the act," he says.

So far fiddlers are dominating the musician vacationers at the Pipe Creek river site. Fiddler Cotton Moore of Houston, Duck Shuffiel of Rockdale, Leon "Pappy" Self of Houston, and Jesse Beaumont of Vider.

Other musicians include Tack Carroll of Houston, who plays with Sloane, Marvin Walston of Vider, and vocalist Bobbie Dennis of Woodville.

Jack Buis of the Neatherlands, who plays harmonica (French harp) and guitar, is also on the site.

Their music is what they term, "traditional country," music without fancy chords that "anyone can play."

Caesare Masse, 79, of Wharton's Dock is one of the expected musicians at the gathering. He plays fiddle, guitar, piano, viola, and vibes.

Masse learned to play music by ear rather than written notes on a page, he says.

He was hired to play in the Shep Fields Orchestra early in his career. The ensemble included six violins, three violas, and two cellos, of which Masse played, plus other instruments. Masse learned the written music from his neighboring musician. "The clarinet man taught me the book."

For 14 months Masse toured with the band playing Lawrence Welk-type dance and popular music in hotels in cities such as Washington D.C., New York, Chicago, and St. Louis. When Fields finally found out that Masse couldn't read music, he kept him for six months more, anyway. "He was impressed that I fooled him for so long," says Masse.

Masse considers his family, originally from Currie, near Ft. Worth, traveling Gypsies. "It wasn't as glamorous as people think Gypsies are," says Masse. His father was from Egypt and his mother was from Rumania and leaned fiddle playing from his father when he was 10.

And memories and foolishness is a major part of the weekend.

The musicians reunion began back in 1975, when Masse borrowed James Calvin "Tack" Carroll from Buck's band to play in the Bandera area. Sloane waited several weeks, but Tack didn't return, so he came to Bandera to find him.

Sloane, his wife Shirley and son Coy and Jack and Ina Thomson and their son Mark came in a camper and found Carroll playing with Randy Thaylor at the Flying A Ranch.

Finding Carroll, they camped out at the "Alligator Hole" on the Wharton's Dock side of the Medina River, and played music marking the first event.

We liked it so much, we came back the next year and invited more musicians," says Sloane. People from Copper Lantern and other places would come down and listen he adds.

The event kept growing and two years ago, the event moved to Pop's Place.

Friends are a big part of the weekend, also. Friends of the musicians include Jay and Jem Fussell of Ft. Worth, Lois and LV "Low Voltage" Jones from Pleasanton, Fred and Ruby Adam from Tivoli, Ray and Lucy Brashears of Rockport, Ken and Claudel Venard from Concord Calif., Bob and Elaine Majors from San Antonio, Herman Barm and his wife from San Antonio, and Jack and Judy Tripp of Bandera.

The public is invited to come to Pop's for the event. No gate admission is charged.

Champs at the post

The world champion quarter horses from each of the past two years, See Me Do It and Merganser, both compete in Friday's All American Gold Cup time trials at Ruidoso Downs.

Twenty-seven horses will vie in three different heats for 10 spots in the prestigious Grade I race, which will have its ninth renewal Sept. 1.

School numbers in Bandera show slight increase

Opening day goes smoothly on all campuses in county

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

Numbers were up slightly at Bandera schools and down slightly in Medina and Utopia compared to last year's first day totals, according to officials from those schools.

Some 1,461 students, including five foreign exchange students, showed up at Bandera Schools Monday, Aug. 28, when doors opened, compared to 1,418 on the first day of school last year. Attending BHS in the 12 grade are five students from five foreign countries: Japan, Sweden, Holland, Finland and West Germany.

Many students have shown up wearing shorts thanks to an addition to the student handbook that allows students to wear "walking shorts or split skirts." Administrators report that students are staying within the guidelines, and that there have been no problems reported with the new shorts rule.

Principals and office staff reported that things went pretty smoothly the first days of school, though there was quite a traffic jam reported on the highway near Alkek Elementary School the first morning of school. Debbie Wehmeyer, who works in the elementary school office, reported that traffic is usually pretty heavy the "first and last day of school, and on party days."

Things went "pretty smoothly" at Bandera High School according to principal Richard Delmain, who reported that there were some of "the usual problems with students forgetting their schedules and some locker mixups." He said there were about 30-40 new high school students in the district, a number he said was unusually high.

"And it's 172 days until graduation," he said, laughing.

School officials say that attendance will probably increase until after the Labor Day holiday.

Students at all three schools will be off for the Labor Day holiday Monday, Sept. 3, and classes will resume Tuesday, Sept. 4.

Monday, Medina had 263 students in attendance for the first day of classes, just two short of their 265 first-day figure last year. Medina has two foreign students this year.

Tuesday, when Utopia students began school, there 152 present, compared to 168 last year.

Bandera began the 1988 school year with 1,343 students. In 1987, the total was 1,349; in 1986, 1,317; in 1985, 1,241; in 1984, 1,207; in 1983, 1,173; in 1982, 1,104; and in 1981, 1,039.

In 1988, Medina had 286 and Utopia had 157 students recorded the first day of classes.

In 1987, Medina began the year with 270 students, and Utopia began with 172.

This year, first-day enrollment figures for Bandera schools were

Pot plot raided in Pipe Creek

By Larry T. Williams
Bulletin Staff Writer

A 37-year-old Pipe Creek man was arrested at his home in Castle Lake sub-division Thursday afternoon, Aug. 23, after a combined force of 12 officers from three counties moved in and nabbed him with a crop of 204 marijuana plants.

Terry Neal Maxfield was charged with possession of over 50 pounds of a controlled substance, a first-degree felony.

Members of a combined drug investigation, including the 216th Drug Task Force of Kerrville, the Department of Public Safety Narcotics Division and the Bandera County Sheriff's Department, converged on Maxfield's rented small stone house on Oil Well Road and confiscated his crop of marijuana plants that police said had an estimated processed street value of $360,000.

"This is high quality stuff," said a DPS officer. "Some of the biggest plants I've seen in a long time."

The plants ranged in size from three feet to seven or eight feet tall. The officer explained that a plant of such size could produce a pound of leaves and each pound was worth $1,800 on the street.

The crop of 204 plants was concealed from view within a thick growth of Ash Juniper (cedar) behind the suspect's house. After the officers pulled up the plants and chopped off the root balls, the pile of pot filled the beds of two pickup trucks used to haul it away. The dried weight was "slightly over 80 pounds," said an officer.

"We've been watching this guy for a long time," said Bandera Deputy Lynn Holt. "This arrest was the result of a lengthy investigation by all of the units."

Holt said that Maxfield has one previous conviction for dangerous drugs and is being held under a $50,000 bond.

Holt described the arrest as routine. "We all converged on the house and confronted the suspect," Holt said. "The DPS men went in first. The suspect did not resist. He made no attempt at all to escape. We found a loaded, 12-gauge shot gun just inside the door, but he (Maxfield) made no move toward it."

Holt quoted Bandera County sheriff Steve Forest as saying he has committed the Bandera County Sheriff's Department in the war on drugs and he has encouraged cooperation with all law enforcement agencies to combine resources, manpower and expertise to combat the growing drug problem at all levels.

According to the sheriff's statement, the combined effort has resulted in the arrests of 35 persons and the seizure of more than $1 million in illegal drugs in Bandera County since the first of the year.

Rodeo, racing, barbecues top Labor Day weekend list

Four days of racing, PRCA rodeos, a parade, barbecues and the Pipe Creek Junction birthday bash are among the many activities planned in Bandera County over the upcoming Labor Day weekend, starting with post time at Bandera Downs at 2 p.m. Friday, Aug. 31.

Bandera Downs will have a four-day racing weekend for the first time, and there will be feature races to spotlight the Labor Day event.

A Saturday morning parade celebrates a weekend of PRCA rodeo competition at Mansfield Park rodeo arena.

Tarpley Volunteer Fire Department will have its annual barbecue fund-raiser Sunday, Sept. 2 starting at noon. There will be a fun parade just before the barbecue in downtown Tarpley. An afternoon of fun in Tarpley on the community center grounds will include live entertainment by the Sheriff's Posse Band.

As many as 15 vendors will display oil paintings, stained glass, ceramics, jewelry, clothing, folk art and wood craft at the first annual Labor Day Weekend Arts and Crafts Fair at the Pipe Junction Cafe Saturday and Sunday, from 10 a.m. to dark.

In Lakehills, the Medina Lake Volunteer Fire Department will hold its fall barbecue at the new central fire station on Park Road 37 Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 1-2. Serving begins at 11:30 a.m.

The Kerrville Folk Festival Too will be held Friday through Sunday at the Quiet Valley Ranch between Medina and Kerrville. Scheduled entertainers include Butch Hancock, Gary P. Nunn, Ray Wylie Hubbard, the Maines Brothers and Jimmie Dale Gilmore.

Evening concerts begin at 6 p.m. at Quiet Valley Ranch and special daytime concerts Saturday and Sunday begin at 1 p.m. A Sunday folk song service begins at 11 a.m.

General admission is $5 in advance and $7 at the gate for each of the evening performances that begin at 7:30 p.m., but there is no charge to watch the "slack" performances that begin at 7:30 p.m. Thursday evening and at 8 a.m. Saturday morning.

In all there will be 283 entries in eight events competing for $6,000 that is added to entry fees paid by cowboys.

The biggest night for world champions will be Friday when spectators will be able to see reigning champion Richard "Tuff" Hedeman of Bowie in bronc riding. Hedeman, who attended Sul Ross State University in Alpine and has been a professional cowboy since 1983, also won the world championship in 1986 and has ridden broncs in the National Finals Rodeo six times.

Friday evening spectators will also watch 1986 and 1987 steer wrestling champion Steve Duhan of Opelousas, La.; three-time (1974, '76 and '82) saddle bronc champion Monty "Hawkeye" Henson of Mesquite; and 1988 bull riding titlist Jim Sharp of Kermit.

The winningest cowboy of them all will be in action Sunday. He's eight-time world champion Roy Cooper of Childress, the man who won titles as best all-around cowboy and as best steer roper in 1983. He also won world calf roping titles six times (1976 and '80-84) and he'll compete here in that event and in team roping.

Reigning world calf roping champion Rabe Rabon of San Antonio, Fla., will compete during the slack performance Thursday night.

Spectators who seek sheer numbers of world champions will be out early Saturday morning to watch six titlists compete for the steer roping title here, but the squeamish among us might do well to stay away.

A mini-controversy erupted this week over omitting steer roping from all the evening performances, but a Cowboy Capital rodeo spokeswoman defended the scheduling as an attempt to shield the spectators from seeing steers seriously injured or killed.

"Steer roping is really rough on stock," said Sheila Fries, the Cowboy Capital Rodeo Association's publicity chairman. She said the event is outlawed "because of humane reasons" in at least 42 of the 50 states.

"If you ever kill one (steer) during a rodeo, you've just about killed your rodeo as far as spectators are concerned," said Fries, who is the wife of CCRA president Scooter Fries.

She said the omission of steer roping from the evening sche-

Let's stand together

Dear editor:

You are right. There is no organized opposition to the proposed, ludicrous tax hike or bond issue by our illustrious school board.

My guess would be voter apathy and disgust! Mainly disgust!

The general idea is, "If you can't educate the kids, why pay into the system?" Sad, isn't it? Within the last year the news has been constantly predicting doom and gloom—bad economy, budget woes, S&L bailouts, war, housing market down, and on and on.

Every year it gets harder and harder to make ends meet, yet schools, counties, cities and government in general continue to hold their hands out. The government is You and Me. Our tax dollars support everyone with their hand out. Every time the school says, "the state will give us...," you and I cough up more money. It has got to stop somewhere and now is as good a time as any.

I simply do not have it to give, nor do I want to. If the taxing entities can't do any better with their budgets than they have in the past, then we need to consider people who do know how to budget and how to squeeze the dollar.

Does carpeting, weight rooms, covered play areas and more coaches (just to name a few) increase the learning of our children?

If our elected officials wanted to really help the kids and their parents, they would have looked at renovating the junior high, adding on to Alkek School and cutting out the frills. Evidently the school doesn't care if they lose a large part of their big taxpayers. If we allow our elected officials to continue in this direction, the dream of owning a home or ranch will be extinct and those who do own property will have to pay monthly instead of years, just to pay the taxes.

Just for public information, I called Mrs. (Barbara) LeStourgeon at the school business office and Mrs. (Margrit) Guenther at the school tax office, and the following is the information I was given:

Last year, the school tax on a $50,000 home without homestead exemption was $371.05, and the school tax on a homesteaded house was $333.95. This year (with tax hike and bonds) the tax on a $50,000 home without homestead exemption will be $607.25, and the tax on a homesteaded house will be $554.25. These figures are strictly school taxes. They do not reflect taxes for the state, county or city.

Voters, please go vote "no." Bandera operates its school like a big city instead of a small town. We simply have to stand together and vote no to higher taxes. Remember, together we stand, divided we fall. Please go vote. Voters over 65 (years of age), please help the rest of us and get out and vote no.

Live within the budget

Dear editor:

When are the taxpayers of Bandera School District going to have enough?

The appraisal board keeps raising the value of property every year. The value of property in Bandera County has at least tripled and more in the last few years while in surrounding counties and the state values have decreased. Can this be explained?

The job market in Bandera County is not all that great. If you have a job at all, it will probably be minimum wage.

The school board states it held taxes down in 1989 (by using fund balances). The tax rate in 1988 was 69.352 cents (per $100 of 100 percent of market value) and 74.21 cents in 1989. (The proposed rate for 1990 is $1.06.)

This year they want to raise taxes by 48 percent, plus 10 more percent if the bond issue passes. That is 58 percent in one year! How many people have received a raise like that in their lifetime? If you paid $300 in school taxes in 1989, you will pay $474 in 1990—just for school taxes and not including other taxing entities, some of which we do not need (such as the Springhills Water District).

We have to live within budget, and so should taxing entities without whopping increases. If you do not do something now, wait until next year. The school board does not want you to think along these lines. They also state this increase does not effect you if your are 65 (years of age or older). This is wrong if you made improvements in 1989 or own property that is not exempt.

You as taxpayers should attend the school board meeting on Thursday, Aug. 30, at 7 p.m. at the high school and voice your opinion. If the board does not listen, then try to force a rollback election.

Are they mad at taxpayers?

Dear editor:

I have some questions for you and your readers:

The (Bandera County) commissioners recently passed out some badges for deputy constables. One badge went to ex-Sheriff (Guy) Picket. Are they mad at the taxpayers? With possible millions (of dollars) already spent on lawsuits to defend him, can we afford him representing Bandera County any more? Will we see the rise of a fourth Reich in which people are arrested in jest, and it turns into a joke on the taxpayers? Couldn't we settle all pending lawsuits before we give him another badge?

Will what happened to Mr. (Tony) Jennings happen to me or my loved ones? We we be making more criminals rich with more undisclosed lawsuit settlements?

How is the constable's office able to pass out badges to relatives and political bigwigs when another law enforcement agencies have been slashed to the bone?

We'd better support police

Dear editor:

Enclosed is my check for another year's subscription to The Bulletin. Now that I have chosen to retire in my old home town, it is good to have the local paper to keep me informed as to the goings-on each week.

Bandera is not the sleepy little village it was about 65 years ago. Back then we never locked the doors when we left the house. We boys went skinny-dippin' in the river without the girls intruding. I remember the time when a small boy friend came out from San Antonio for a visit. I took him swimming at the Boys' Swimming Hole on the Medina River near town. None of the boys had suits. That's why we called it the Boys' Swimming Hole. The kid told me it wasn't nice to go swimming without a bathing suit, and he asked what we would do if some girls came along. I told him to just duck under (the water) until they passed on by. "But, Marvin," he asked, "what if there was a funeral?"

The little village is not as sleepy as it once was. The flow of traffic streams endlessly from San Antonio now that horse racing is going on. Our jail is crowded with breakers of the law. Reports of thefts, drug-related crimes, etc. are frequent. We depend on The Bulletin to keep us informed as to news of the week. We'd better support our law enforcement officers — city, county and state — in every way possible. Life and property is worth more than a few tax dollars.

Hopes city will reciprocate

Dear editor:

This letter is in response to an article published in the Aug. 22 edition of The Bandera Bulletin pertaining to the eminent relocation of Thoroughbred Chevrolet to a site outside the city limits of Bandera. The circumstances surrounding the decision to purchase land and construct a new dealership are purely of an economic nature.

In today's economic environment, every decision involving overhead expenses is critical to the continued existence of a business. The decision to move was prompted by the unwillingness of the current owner of the building that currently houses Thoroughbred Chevrolet to renegotiate an acceptable rent. Because rent is one of the most expensive items of overhead, we were forced to search for a viable alternative.

An error in the article's final paragraph requires clarification. The article states that "the city of Bandera will not receive its 1-percent sales tax on the sale of automobiles" due to the move outside the city limits. According to Jim Samples of the state comptroller's office, of the total fees assessed on the purchase of a motor vehicle, 95 percent goes to the state and five percent is retained by the county. In other words, a municipality such as Bandera receives no tax money from the sale of motor vehicles. Further, the continued economic impact of the construction of a new facility in the county may be measured by multiplying the taxing entities' tax rates by the assessed value of the new facility. The value of the existing facility will continue to be taxed, thereby creating approximately one-half million dollars of newly taxable property in the county without any concurrent reduction in tax base due to the move. Clearly, our construction of a new facility will be a benefit, not a detriment, to the local economy.

We believe Thoroughbred is now, and will continue to be, an important element of the Bandera community. In the spirit of this continued relationship with the Bandera community, it should be noted that the general contractor for the construction project has been instructed to employ local contractors whenever possible, thereby creating hundreds of thousands of dollars of inflow to the local economy.

We sincerely believe in the "buy at home" concept and hope that the local citizenry, specifically local city and country officials, will reciprocate by giving Thoroughbred the opportunity to sell vehicles in our own market before going to another city to purchase.

Diane E. Fulte
Owner, Thoroughbred Chevrolet

(Editor's note: The letterwriter is correct in that the city does not participate in the proceeds of the sales tax on automobiles, but it does participate in sales taxes on parts and other items sold by dealerships inside the city limits.)

Lake-area fire said started by children

The fire that destroyed a Medina Lake waterfront house Aug. 15 was apparently started by children, reports a Bandera County sheriff's deputy.

And the investigation of that case cleared up two Lakehills burglaries, he says.

A Aug. 15 afternoon blaze destroyed an unoccupied house in Lakehills between 18th Street and Elmhurst Drive and threatened the destruction of several nearby mobile homes.

"During the investigation of the fire, I developed that three boys, ages 8, 10 and 11, were found to be prime suspects in the starting of the fire," reports investigating sheriff's deputy Lynn Holt.

The youngsters also apparently were responsible for two house burglaries in the Lakehills area Sunday, Aug. 26, says Holt.

"The Bandera County sheriff's Department has obtained oral and written statements concerning the fire and the burglaries," says Holt, "The same juveniles that were implicated in the fire have been implicated in the burglaries," he says.

"The sheriff's department has returned property stolen (in the burglaries) to the sightful owners," says Holt.

The complete investigation has been turned over to the Bandera County juvenile authorities for further action," says Holt.

Two of the juveniles are from the Houston area and one is from Lakehills, he adds.

11 burglaries, 11 arrests reported by law enforcement agencies here

Eleven burglaries were reported last week and 11 persons were arrested on various charges last week in Bandera by law enforcement agencies.

Burglaries last week included three building burglaries and eight burglaries of habitations Monday, Aug. 20, through Sunday, Aug. 26, two of which were solved this week.

The sheriff's department is shifting its manpower duty alignment so there will be more deputies on duty during the day, when the vast majority of burglaries occur, says Bandera County Sheriff's Deputy Lynn Holt.

In the Monday, Aug. 20, burglary of a building, three saddles were stolen from the tack room at the Silver Spur Ranch, says Holt. The three saddles have a combined value of $1,200.

In one of the Tuesday, Aug. 21, burglaries of a habitation, burglars took merchandise valued at $700, including circular saws, tools, a portable telephone, and wine from a home near English Crossing Road, reports Bandera County sheriff's deputy Sal Obiedo.

Two house burglaries in the Wharton's Dock area were apparently the work of children, probably from the area, speculates Holt. Snack foods were taken and in one case, a pizza was cooked in the house's oven and then taken in another case.

Radie Bellamy and Jerry Earl Adams of North Carolina were arrested on three counts of possession of marijuana, unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, and an illegal investment, Friday, Aug. 24, by sheriff's deputies.

Two San Antonio men were arrested Friday, Aug. 24, and one Bandera man was arrested Saturday, Aug. 25, for public intoxication by Bandera city police.

A Pipe Creek man was arrested Monday, Aug. 20, for misdemeanor possession of marijuana.

Thomas Anthony Lacario, 27, of San Antonio was arrested for driving-while-intoxicated by a Department of Public Safety Trooper Saturday, Aug. 25.

A Bandera man was arrested Sunday, Aug. 26, on outstanding Department of Public Safety warrants by a DPS trooper. A Lakehills woman was arrested Friday, Aug. 24, by sheriff's deputies on outstanding failure to appear in court and driving with license suspended warrants.

Other cases handled by the Police report

Bandera County Sheriff's department include two thefts, two family disturbances, two cases of criminal trespass and mischief, two cases of harassment, one case of tampering with public utility, and one prowler reported.

Five cases of suspicious circumstances, three suspicious vehicles, two cases of suspicious activity, two suspicious persons were also reported.

Kerr County sees 911 service soon

An emergency 911 phone system for Kerr County may be operating by late October, officials said, "if everything falls into place."

Though Bandera County phone customers have been paying 61 cents per month, including a 11-cents "911 equalization surcharge to AT&T," since January for the service, there is no word on when it will be in operation here.

Medical examiner calls Tarpley death suicide

The death of a Tarpley man may be suicide, a Bexar County Medical Examiner reports.

The body of Vincent Morris, 19, was discovered Sunday morning, Aug. 26, outside his Tarpley home on the Topad Ranch, reports investigating sheriff's deputy Sal Obiedo.

According to the Bexar County Medical Examiner Tuesday, Morris had an apparently self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head, reports Obiedo. The medical examiner "does not see any evidence of foul play," says the deputy.

But there will be no official ruling until Obiedo presents the evidence to Peace Justice Bonnie Towers, who will rule on the case Wednesday. Towers pronounced the man dead at 9:25 a.m. Sunday, says Obiedo. Towers was out of town Tuesday.

Bandera County Sheriff R.S. "Steve" Forest says that the investigation is "open" and the justice of the peace must have the "reports from the lab and medical examiner before the classification of death can be determined."

Morris was found by his parents, Jon and Cynthia Hanna, with a .357 magnum pistol by his hand, says Forest. "It looks like a gunshot wound to the head was the probable cause of death," the sheriff says.

Obiedo says there were no notes left to explain the incident.

Morris was born March 9, 1971, in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, and came to Bandera County 13 years ago. He attended school in Bandera and Medina and was a member of Living Waters Church in Utopia.

He is survived by his mother and step-father; his father, Berle Gene Morris of Devine; grandparents, Veoma Parkins and Lorene and Alex Conrad of Devine, and James and Frances Lewis of San Antonio; three sisters, Kimberly Anderwald of Tarpley, Tina Johnson of Ft. Worth, and Kim Sellers of Austin; two brothers, Gene Morris of Devine and Mark Hanna of Bandera.

Services will have been held Wednesday, Aug. 29, at 2 p.m. at Living Waters Church, Utopia, with the Rev. Randy Needham officiating.

Burial will be in the Oak Rest Cemetery in Medina.

Alanis waits

Bandera County Commissioner and U.S. Army reservist Dan C. Alanis of Lakehills may be ordered into active service as early as next week.

Alanis, who is a lieutenant colonel in the Army's Adjutant General's Corps, says the Army branch has the individual mobilization order that may call him to Alexandra.

His Army superiors told Alanis that they had the funds and authority to call him into active service, where he would serve in a military postal service agency for as long as 29 days. "But I don't know when I'd get the call," he says. "Though I might hear from them this week."

The unit he would be assigned to would oversee the transportation of Army mail overseas, says Alanis.

"My job would be to take someone's place (that went to Saudi Arabia) or be additional help," says Alanis.

Alanis says he will have served 33 years in the reserve next month.

Edward Ortiz

Ortiz in Arabia

U.S. Marines Cpl. Edward Ortiz, 24, left New York City Friday, Aug. 24, on a flight bound for Saudi Arabia, says his mother, Delia Ortiz of Medina.

Cpl. Ortiz is assigned to the Ninth Supply Support Group, says his mother. He has been in the Marines for six years.

"I would like to ask any Bandera County person who has a relative, a son or daughter, who is now in the Mid-East or who is on alert to possibly go there, to call me if they're interested in forming a support group," says Mrs. Ortiz.

Ortiz was apprehensive about going to a hot-spot, said his mom, and she feels a local group that keeps in contact with the service personnel would do a lot of good toward boosting their morale. "We could send letters and 'care packages' to them," said Ortiz. "We need to let them know we're thinking about them," she said.

People who want to contact Ortiz may do so by calling 512-589-2561.

Edwards urges BMA to clear the way for water rights purchase

In a formal resolution Tuesday, the Edwards Underground Water District board of directors urged the Bexar-Medina-Atascosa Water District to clear the way to allow the EUWD to make an offer to the 1,850 BMA landowners who currently hold irrigation service rights at Medina Lake.

The two groups have been trying to establish a process for the purchase of the water for more than two years. The EUWD wants to use the water to recharge the Edwards Aquifer through a series of injection wells.

"Since there is no established precedent for this type of water rights purchase, a process has had to be developed and agreed upon before a purchase agreement could be negotiated," said EUWD spokesman Kelly Morris.

The Springhills Water District in Bandera County has also inquired into the possibility of purchasing some of the water in Medina Lake and the Texas Water Development Board has urged the city of San Antonio to build a $45 million pipeline to deliver Medina Lake water directly into the city's water system.

Those moves apparently helped spur the EUWD into urging the BMA to clear away stumbling blocks that has prevented it from making a firm offer.

The BMA rejected an EUWD plan in July and submitted a counter proposal that the EUWD says is unacceptable and would lead to unnessary lawsuits.

The BMA owns the water rights, but can only use the water for irrigation purposes in its district. The landowners own the irrigation service rights, but cannot separate those rights from their land to sell them to anyone else, the EUWD says.

An advisory group composed of landowners and other community representatives was formed by the BMA, and that group has worked closely with the EUWD to establish a set of principles that would protect all interests and serve as a guideline for the process by which the irrigation rights could be sold, Morris said.

The advisory group established a set of principles based on a "willing buyer/willing seller" philosophy. These principles were readily adopted by the EUWD and were outlined in a letter from the BMA board to the landowners in February.

These guidelines stated that every landowner should have the right to accept or reject an offer from the EUWD to acquire their individual irrigation service rights independent of other landowners.

They also stated that continued irrigation service should be provided for those landowners not wishing to sell their irrigation rights, that a phase-out period should be instituted for those wishing to sell their irrigation rights, and that a set price offer per acre should be established for all landowners.

In May, the EUWD submitted a formal proposal asking the BMA board to formally agree to the process, but the BMA rejected it on July 9 and offered a counter proposal which Russell Masters, general manager of the EUWD, called "totally inconsistent with all the guidelines established by the advisory group."

"If the BMA board had agreed to the process when it was submitted, the landowners would have price offers by now as planned," Masters said.

"This (BMA) counter proposal does not allow the opportunity for a 'willing buyer/willing seller' arrangement, takes away price considerations from individual landowners, and does not allow for a phase-out period for the irrigation service," Masters said.

"Clearly, this counter-proposal would render the process unfair to landowners and leave it open to legal challenge," the general manager said.

The EUWD wants to make a price offer to each individual landowner. If about 80 percent choose to sell their irrigation rights, the EUWD will pursue the necessary financing and legislative and Texas Water Commission approvals, Morris said.

Masters said the EUWD remains committed to successfully completing the Medina Lake recharge project. He said the EUWD's enthusiasm stems from the fact that they view it as "a truly win/win scenario."

"In addition to the economic incentives that will be provided by the opportunity to sell their irrigation rights, the BMA landowners would escape the tremendous financial liability presented by the $12 million in dam improvements that the Texas Water Commission has determined are necessary to make the Medina Dam hydraulically stable," said Masters.

"And, of course, everyone will benefit from the improved public safety provided by the dam improvements and every single user in the entire Edwards Aquifer region, including Bexar, Medina, Uvalde, Comal and Hays counties will benefit from the increased water supplies," he said.

DPS estimates 40 will die on highways

The Texas Department of Public Safety has estimated that as many as 40 persons could be killed in traffic accidents across the state during the 78-hour Labor Day holiday period.

"Last year during this end-of-the-summer holiday, 48 persons died in traffic accidents, with another four persons dying later of injuries received during that time," said DPS director Col. Joe E. Milner. "Our estimate for this year is below that final count of 52, and we hope the actual number of deaths this year will be much lower than this estimate."

The holiday counting period begins at 6 p.m. Friday, Aug. 31 and continues until midnight on Monday, Sept. 3. As it does each Labor Day, and on certain other major holidays, the DPS will have all available troopers on the highways to ensure that motorists have as safe a holiday as possible.

"Since drinking and driving, along with speeding, are the leading causes of traffic fatalities, we hope we can hold the Labor Day deaths down by our increased presence on the highways," Milner said. "We certainly don't want to discourage people from having a good time during the Labor Day holiday, we just want motorists to drive safely."

"Something else our troopers will be watching for during the Labor Day holiday period is whether motorists are wearing their seat belts," said Dudley Thomas, chief of the DPS Traffic Law Enforcement Division. "Last Labor Day, 77 percent of those victims who were occupants of cars or light trucks had not been wearing restraints when they were killed. The message is obvious: seat belts save lives.

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of ten women will develop breast cancer sometime in her lifetime. It is currently estimated that over 37,000 women die each year as a result of breast cancer.

Ninety percent of breast cancers are diagnosed by women or their physicians finding a lump in the breast. Women who are diagnosed with a lump large enough to feel have a 50 percent five year survival rate. A woman who is diagnosed as having breast cancer by mammography, before a lump can be felt, has a 97% five year survival rate and a 90% 10 year survival rate. The cost is only $64.50.

A mammogram can detect a cancer this small, even before it can be felt.

Rodeo

dules was suggested last year by stock contractor Bedford Ivy and approved by the CCRA's rodeo committee early this year.

The sponsors of the event took a half-page ad in The Bulletin inviting spectators to the Saturday morning event. Sponsors are Speedy Hutcheson, Tony Downing and the Gillespie County Livestock Association. Hutcheson is also a competitor in the event and Downing is the immediate past president of the CCRA.

Hutcheson will have his hands full in the arena Saturday morning when his opponents include the winner of every steer roping championship in the decade of the '80s.

Included will be the reigning champion, Guy Allen of Lovington, N.M. He's actually won five world titles, but has never repeated. He was champion in 1977, 1980, 1982 and 1984.

No one has ever won three consecutive steer roping titles, but two cowboys who won a pair of championships in a row will be competing here, including Bandera's own Jim Davis, who won in 1985 and 1986, and Shaun Burchett of Pryor, Okla., who won in 1987 and 1988.

Calf roper Roy Cooper won the steer roping title in 1983, but he won't rope the big fellows here, opting instead to rope calves Sunday. But Arnold Felts of Houston, the champion in 1981, will be in the saddle Saturday morning.

And the old man of steer roping, 43-year-old Phil Lyne of Cotulla, the world all-around champion and calf-roping champion of 1971 and 1972, will also compete in steer roping.

In all there will be 30 competitors in steer roping in action Saturday, one of the largest and certainly one of the best fields at any rodeo this year. Fries said only 45 of the 800 rodeos sanctioned by the PRCA include steer roping.

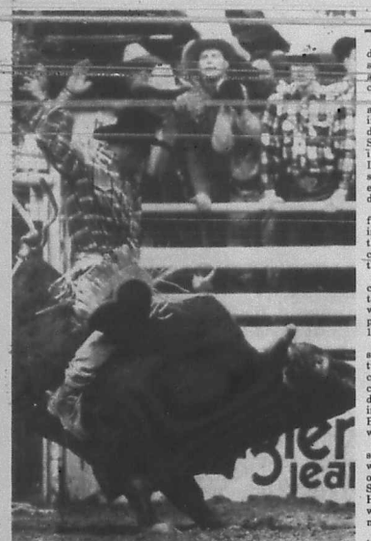
There is a full list of competitors in all the events, Fries said. There are 58 calf ropers entered, 47 steer wrestlers, 45 bull riders, 38 teams in team roping, 28 barrel racers, 23 bareback bronc riders and 18 saddle bronc riders.

They'll be competing for $6,000 that will be added to entry fees.

Veteran rodeo announcer Tom Hadley will be behind the microphone and bullfighter will be Allen Nelson Jr. Nelson is the nephew of Rena Sandidge Scott of Tarpley and Vern King and Lillian Ray, both of Bandera.

Only two non-PRCA members entered under the rule that allows local entries to compete as nonmembers. Bubba and Claude Lohmann of Utopia will compete in team roping as local entries.

Tickets will be available at the gate and in advance at Bandera Ice House, Boyle's Market, Super S Foods, the Econo Lodge, First State Bank, OST Restaurant, The Bandera Bulletin, and the Bandera County Chamber of Commerce. Advanced ticket sales will run through 5 p.m. Friday, including box seat ticket sales.



World champion Tuff Hedeman shows his world championship form aboard this one-ton package of bucking beef. He's only one of 12 world titlists entered in Bandera's weekend rodeo.

Schreiner College's Logan Library gets 20-million volume connection

Schreiner College's William Logan Library can look forward to connection with an international computer network of 2,000 libraries and 20 million volumes, thanks to a grant from the Hoblitzelle Foundation of Dallas. This recent $35,000 commitment is one of four charitable foundation grants the college has received this summer.

The Hoblitzelle Foundation's grant will provide approximately half of the funding needed over three years to connect the Logan Library with On-Line Computer Center (OCLC), an Ohio-based computer system which includes the Library of Congress, the Canadian national Library, the British Museum (Library), and major university and municipal libraries in English-speaking countries throughout the world. Expected to require 18 months to complete on-site analysis, computer installation and training, the OCLC system will be implemented as soon as the college matches the Hoblitzelle Foundation's grant with additional funding of $35,000. The college hopes to secure these gifts by January of 1991 in order to have the system operating for the 1993 academic year.

Foreign costumes shown at Witte Museum exhibit

Foreign Costumes from the Collection of Elizabeth H. Maduck, an exhibition of 15 male/female costumes including regional folk dresses will remain on display through Nov. 30.

Folk dresses on display at the Witte Museum, 3801 Broadway, SA, are from Greece, Morocco, Turkey, Norway, Switzerland, India, Hawaii, Peru, Sicily, Portugal, Japan and Sweden dating from the 19th century.

Interest in folk dress is growing as folk costumes continue to disappear from the international scene. Urbanization, westernization, the growth of industry, the beginnings of universal education and World War II have had a crippling impact on regional costume, destroying the condition in which folk dress could naturally survive. Since that time, most folk costumes are used for festive occasions or by dance and folklore groups.

Dresses on display include a woven costume from Peru uses colors and patterns that suggest a strong Inca influence. An ensemble from the Minho region of Portugal features a brightly embroidered peasant-style blouse and starched white apron with woven decoration.

The dresses from Norway made from old Viking patterns, the embroidery on the bodice or skirt reveals the wearer's region, and a wool costume from the district of Hardanger is characterized by a blouse and apron of open-weave double-thread canvas and embroidery, with designs reminiscent of enlarged snow crystals.

A Russian costume with Mongolian-tribes influences has a tunic that features a mandarin-type collar and striking stitchery, with a turban reflecting a Turkish influence. The unique hat has a boater-like crown decorated with gold cords and tassels. Tied from behind, long ribbons reach to the hem of the dress and are embroidered with black silk thread.

Other exotic costumes on display include a kimono from Japan, a silk-crepe and velvet Middle Eastern garment from Morocco and a harem costume from Turkey with voluminous pantaloons, and a cotton dress from Salzburg.

State Park beaches oil-free and open

Neither the Galveston Island State Park's beach nor its environmentally sensitive salt marches have been threatened by the Galveston Bay oil spill, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials.

"The three phones are ringing constantly with inquires about the condition of our beaches," says Park Superintendent Jake Dameron. "Overall, visitation is down at the park and on the island because people have heard about the oil spill and think our beaches may be impacted," he says.

An estimated 700,000 gallons of oil spilled into Galveston Bay near Redfish Island July 28 when two barges and a tanker collided.

The park is on the far west end of the island and is about 10 to 15 miles away from the oil spill, Dameron says.

This is the second time this summer visitors have stayed away from state park beaches because of an oil spill. Visitation was down at Sea Rim State Park near Port Arthur following the June 9 oil spill from the tanker MegaBorg. That accident occurred about 57 miles southeast of Galveston, giving rise to fears that some of the oil would contaminate Sea Rim's extensive coastal marshlands.

Volunteers sought

Applications are being accepted through Sept. 14 for new tour guides and outreach volunteers at the University of Texas Institute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio.

Training begins Monday, Sept. 24 in the institute's auditorium, and trained volunteers are asked to contribute a mini mum of three hours of volunteer work weekly.

Outreach volunteers make presentations on Texas history and cultures to schools, nursing homes, libraries, senior centers and other community groups.

Feather fest set

A parade, games and a chicken cook-off will be among the highlights of Feather Fest, to be held Sept. 1 and 2 in Nixon, a top poultry and egg producing area in the state.

Foods, crafts, contests and dances are also scheduled for the Labor Day weekend celebration.

FmHA seminars set

A series of guaranteed lender seminars will be conducted by the Farmers Home Administration, the closest to Bandera being one in Corpus Christi on Sept. 19.

English flower garden can be created for $150

The beauty and bounty of an old-fashioned English flower and vegetable garden needn't cost a fortune nor require a professional landscaper. With a little inspiration and dedication, a lovely edible oasis can be created for $150 or less.

Price alone doesn't make this garden stunning: the combination of fragrant herbs with leafy salad greens, sweet peas with colorful pansies, plus the casual elegance of daisies, sunflowers and zinnias, adds zest and romance to the suburban home.

Though the plan is organized on a fairly generous scale, with a little ingenuity it can be easily adapted to smaller yards.

Preparing the bed

Before rushing out to buy the recommended plants, stop and consider the soil. Good soil is the root of all healthy plants, whether flowers or vegetables. Unfortunately, soil isn't usually born perfect; it must be nurtured to excellence. a good way to build up the soil is by working in a two- to three-inch layer of organic matter, such as Canadian sphagnum peat moss.

Prepare a plot 12 to 14 feet in width by 18 feet in length, or proportionally smaller, by working in peat moss with a roto-tiller or light weight cultivator until it is churned into the soil to a depth of six inches. All-natural and environmentally safe, peat moss adds bulk to light sandy soils and helps aerate heavy clay. An added plus is that it holds up to 20 times its weight in water, then releases it to roots slowly, so that plants need less frequent watering.

Organize the garden

The garden is organized into 10 triangular shaped beds measuring three feet on each side with a 12-foot fence at the north end. Each bed is arranged in four alternating rows of three and two triangles each. The rows are separated by 18-inch wide pathways. to adapt the plan for smaller properties, reduce the number of beds and maintain the 18-inch space between them. Vegetables and flowers are given equal prominence, occupying borders and beds alike. Follow the accompanying illustration, which clearly delineates which plant is to be placed where.

Next, off to the garden retailer to purchase materials, plants and seeds. $150 should cover the cost of the whole garden; prices will vary, however, depending on where you shop. Follow the directions for each plant, and the back yard will be bursting with color, texture and edible beauty.

Oil company offers $250,000 in grants

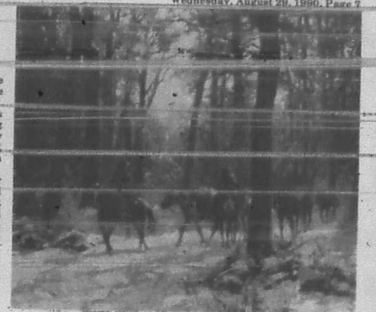
More than $250,000 in college scholarships, including one $10,000 award is available to high school seniors through the Shell Century Three leaders program.

Now in its 16th year, the program selects an outstanding student leader in all entering schools. They compete at the state level for two $1,500 scholarships and an all-expense paid trip to the national conference. During the four-day meeting delegates hear nationally-recognized speakers pose solutions to national and international challenges and compete for the top award, a $10,000 college scholarship.

The premier leadership development/scholarship program in the United States, Shell Century Three Leaders is funded by the Shell Oil company Foundation and administered by the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Shell Century Three Leaders is open to high school seniors who have a proven record of leadership and academic success, along with a vision about the challenges America will face in the next century.

Students are judged on a combination of factors, including school and community involvement.



"Early Snow" by Ray Anderson of Cave Creek, Ariz., is one of 46 pieces of art on exhibit in the Cowboy Artists of America Museum's major exhibit for the summer in Kerrville which closes after Labor Day, Sept. 3. Called "Cowboy Artists Silver," the show is a look at 25 years of western art.

Motorcycle event results in $800 grant to firefighters

The Bandera Volunteer Fire Department is $800 richer today, thanks to a donation by Kawasaki Motors Corp., sponsors of last month's "Get Together for Good Times" motorcycle day in Bandera.

More than 1,000 motorcyclists' descended on Bandera on July 14 for the event. Some had ridden for hours to beat the heat and get a seat for breakfast at the OST Restaurant, a popular gathering spot for motorcyclists that is featured in a Kawaski television commercial that is part of the motorcycle company's national advertising campaign currently in its second year.

Carol Teich, president of the Bandera Volunteer Fire Department's Auxiliary, gladly accepted the $800 donated by Kawasaki. the money was raised by selling souvenir pins and caps to the crowd at the event.

"We hope Kawasaki comes back next year," Teich said. "This is a big donation for the fire department, and everyone seemed to have a really good time."

Prize winners were announced following a drawing from entries collected at the event and from participating Kawasaki dealers.

Walter Wykes of Houston won the grand prize of a Kawasaki EX500 motorcycle. Other prize winners included Vanessa Habib of San Antonio, who took home a motorcycle helmet; George Olvera of Bulverde, who won some leather gloves; Peter Morgan of Beeville, who received a jacket; and Zane Moore of Duncanville, who won a rainsuit.

Female honey bee a hard worker

No wonder women are called honey...there is no harder worker in the world than the female honey-gathering bee. In six weeks, the average life of a worker bee, its wings are literally worn to shreds from flying and then it dies from exhaustion. "I can relate to this -- I work myself to death and my husband calls me honey," says Irene Elizondo of the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Filling the hive with honey is intense work. According to information in "The City of the Bees," a brochure from the A.I. Root Company, manufacturers of beekeepers' supplies, actual weighings have shown that it takes about 20,000 bees to bring in a pound of nectar, which will make about one-fourth as much honey. It would therefore take 80,000 bees to bring in enough nectar, when evaporated and modified by bees to equal a pound of honey.

With the average flying distance of a mile and a half for a bee-load, it would take one bee to fly the distance of three times around the world to collect a pound of honey. Poor honey bee!

Thanks to all the hard work of millions of little honey bees, Americans enjoy an average of 285,000,000 pounds of honey every year, says Elizondo.

Last year Texas honey producers contributed 8.66 million pounds to the national total of 212 million pounds. The state's production was valued at $3.99 million in 1988.

For those cool fall mornings that we've all long awaited, try honey orange tea. Prepare honey butter for those hot biscuits in the morning and honey pecan syrup to serve warm over toast.

Honey orange tea

2 C. water, divided
10 whole cloves
1-stick cinnamon, broken
1/3 C. honey
1 C. freshly squeezed orange juice
4 tea bags

Combine 1 cup water, cloves and cinnamon. Simmer, covered, for 10 minutes. Add honey, 1 cup water and orange juice; bring to a boil. Remove from heat; add tea bags. Let steep covered, 5 minutes. Remove tea bags and spices. Serve in cups with floaters of quartered orange slice.

Honey butter

Blend:
1/2 C. butter or margarine (softened)
1/3 C. honey
Refrigerate and use as desired.

Honey pecan syrup

2 T. butter
1/2 C. chopped pecans
1 1/2 C. honey
1 tsp. vanilla

Saute pecans in butter over medium heat. Stir in honey and vanilla; serve warm over toast: Makes 1 2/3 cups.

The first-Saturday-of-the-month community dinner will be held Saturday, Sept. 1, beginning at 8 p.m. at the Copper Lantern. Goulash will be served. Attendees are asked to bring a covered side dish.

• Ethel Smalley, 88, of Lake Medina Shores traveled 4,000 miles alone, via plane, auto, and her wheel chair, to visit her relatives recently, with the climax of the trip being a family reunion in Paton, Iowa.

Approximately 90 members of the family made it to the gathering including Smalley's aunt, Nellie Carlson, who is 108 years old.

Carlson has appeared in Willard Scott's Today Show weather report on television.

Smalley's son, Lake Medina Shores resident Al Smalley and his wife, Bernice, and their daughter, Christi, drove up to Boone to join Ethel jean, Ethel's daughter from Corpus Christi, also made the trip.

From Boone, they drove to Paton, Iowa, for the family reunion.

Al has worked on his family tree, tracing the genealogy of the family back to the 16th century. Al sold printed copies of his facts at the reunion.

Ethel got to brag about her six sons who have served in the U.S. Air Force.

One of her sons was in a plane crash and lost his memory. his daughter finally located him after a 30-year search, but he does not remember anything prior to the crash nor is he able to recognize any of his family.

• Over 50 people heard the message Chaplain Karen Reed of the Baptist Medical Center gave at Walker Memorial Baptist Chapel Sunday, Aug. 26. Reed told the gathering her experiences as a missionary in Guadalajara, Mexico.

After the morning service, most of the gathering regrouped in the fellowship hall for dinner and took part in a short songfest with Reed playing the guitar.

• Mariette Overholser started a busy weekend Friday by helping Pat Coffey preparing for a Saturday yard sale.

Overholser's daughter, Debby, and her husband, Bill Cody, arrived from San Marcos Saturday morning. Also arriving were Debby's son, Dewey and his wife, Elizabeth, and their son D.J. from Bastrop. They brought items for the yard sale, also.

The ladies and D.J. attended morning church services and the men stayed with Jay at home.

• Elorine Eckhardt of the Wharton's Dock area recently spent two weeks in Zionsville, Pa., visiting Mrs. Rene Beitler and family. She attended Beitler's family reunion.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Maye and children, Tres and Alexis, were weekend guests of Eckhardt. The Mayes went to Bandera Downs and their children played in the river under the guidance of Eckhardt.

• Tresa Blume, granddaughter of the late Harold and Marie Bentley of Wharton's Dock flew in from Tulsa, Okla., to visit for the weekend with Betty and John "Bud" Ciarlo.

She was met at the airport in San Antonio Friday night by a very good friend, PFC Stan Rowe, who Tresa knows from college. Stan is in San Antonio attending the Academy of Health Science at Fort Sam Houston taking Preventive Medicine course.

While staying in the Wharton's Dock area, they traveled to San Antonio and took a ride on the San Antonio River and took a canoe trip down the Medina River from the Ciarlos' to Medina Lake. They had to pull the canoe back upriver most of the way.

Both will be attending Baptist Bible College in Springfield, Mo.

Blume returned to Tulsa Monday.

• The final retirement party for Juanita "Sister" Shaeffer will be held Friday, Aug. 31, at the Copper Lanter. "Everyone is invited to come and wish Juanita happiness and good luck to her as she enters retirement," says a spokesman for the Copper Lantern.

Breast cancer unit to be here Sept. 9

A mobile breast cancer detection unit will be parked at Dr. James Womack's office in Bandera on Sunday, Sept. 9. Appointments may be made by calling 796-7713.

The engagement of Diane Elaine Forhetz and Robert Jay Bolduc, both of San Antonio, has been announced. The Sept. 22 wedding will be performed at Randolph Air Force Base. The prospective groom is the son of Roger and Olga Bolduc of Bandera and is a 1978 graduate of Jefferson High School in San Antonio. The bride-to-be is a 1976 graduate of Mary Carroll High School in Corpus Christi and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Forhetz of San Antonio.

Wharton's Dock fire department to conduct tanker training

The Lakeshore Volunteer Fire Department will have a hands-on orientation session covering operation of the department's newly-acquired 3,000 gallon International tanker Thursday, Sept. 6, at 7 p.m. at the Lakeshore firehouse. "At least six drivers should be at ease in maneuvering this mobile reservoir," says training officer Marion Birch.

The training session will also include a practice session with the self-contained breathing apparatus, says Birch.

The department now has two tanker trucks, one pumper, and two brush trucks.

Diabetes group

The Diabetes Support Group of Kerrville will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 4, at the First Christian Church, 1180 Junction Highway.

Fish survey under way at Medina Lake

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department is conducting a survey of Medina Lake's fish population, reports the Medina Lake Chamber of Commerce.

According to a letter Bob Zerr, Fisheries Biologist with TPW, sent to the chamber, the state wildlife department is "currently in the process of surveying Medina Lake. The data collection phase should be completed after fall 1990, and following data analysis, we will be better able to provide you with an assessment of the condition and fisheries potential of Medina Lake."

Medina Lake was last stocked in 1988 and over the course of the last 23 years TPW has placed 1,687,386 fish of eight different species in the lake.

The most recent stocking involved small mouth bass when 106,672 were stocked in 1988, 22,630 were stocked in 1987, 51,725 in 1979, and 60,850 in 1977.

According to another TPW biologist, small mouth bass should do well in the lake, as they like the rock drop-offs that exist all over Medina Lake.

Other stocking includes 70,000 largemouth bass in 1971 and 7,500 in 1967.

Florida largemouth bass were stocked over three consecutive years starting in 1976 and totaled 224,851 fish.

A total of 55,450 hybrid striped-white bass were stocked in 1983, 59,968 in 1979, and 60,400 in 1977.

A total of 189,750 blue catfish were stocked in 1974-5, 90 channel catfish in 1984, and 2,750 channel catfish in 1967.

A total of 47,000 warmouths were stocked in 1967 and 774,750 walleyes were stocked in 1973-4.

A copy of the stocking history of Medina is available at the chamber's office and at Jim's Rebait Shop in Lakehills. "As soon as new data is available, the chamber will try to have copies made available to those who are interested in fishing Medina Lake," says chamber spokeswoman Louise Mays.

The chamber's number is 751 FISH.

Heisler, White to vie in cemetery election

Two directors will be elected when the Pipe Creek Cemetery Association holds its election Saturday, Sept. 8 at 7 p.m. at the cemetery grounds.

Two residents have announced their candidacy, according to cemetery association trustee Jay Edwards.

"Joe Heisler is running for a full three year term to fill the expired term of (the late) Milton Lewis and Douglas White is running for the remaining one year in the term of Luther Edwards Jr., who has moved to northern California," Edwards said.

"If you cannot attend the meeting on Sept. 8, you may vote absentee by mailing your ballot in to the Pipe Creek Cemetery Association, P.O. Box 63024, Pipe Creek, Tx. 78063, or by taking your ballot to the Edwards Ranch Realty office in Pipe Creek.

"Criterion for membership in the association and thus voting is the same this year as last," Edwards explained. "Anyone may vote or be a candidate for office who lives in the Pipe Creek-Lakehills area, which is anywhere in Bandera County east of the Medina River and Privelege Creek or who has moved away from Pipe Creek but has family members who are buried in the Pipe Creek Cemetery.

"The yearly membership dues of $15 do not have to be submitted with your vote but would be appreciated," Edwards said. "Please remember to vote."

So often in the course of human events, somebody gets the last laugh or at least some vindication. After years and years of heavy price regulation of natural gas, imposition of windfall profits taxes which devastated small landowners more than the so-called "greedy oil barons", snobbish put-downs of redneck millionaires, and fun-poking through TV characterizations such as that of J.R. Ewing—the Eastern seaboard planners have now come back a-begging to the Texas Railroad Commission. After playing such a key part in sending our economy into the basement and dismantling the nuts and bolts of the oil industry, they now want us to get to work and produce the oil necessary to make up the threatened major shortfall in the Middle East.

We tried to tell those guys, but they wouldn't listen.

• Meanwhile back in the hills, some of the spent cenizo bushes are putting out blooms again. Margaret Shiner says that her late husband, Cot Shiner, kept careful records and could prove that rain always comes seven days after the cenizo produces flowers. We're counting the days.

• Frank Jennings, free-lance historian and writer of San Antonio, checked in this week with questions on sources of information, other than their memoirs, of Amasa Clark, Bandera's first permanent settler, and Policarpo Rodrigues, the old guide. We referred him to Bessie Clark Schmidt the and Sarita Soto Pollock, both of whom committees on their illustrious male ancestors. Mr. Jennings asked if there was information on file in the "archives" of the Frontier Times Museum. We hated to have to tell him that there is no organized information at the museum nor anywhere else in the county such as is available to researchers in most counties with as colorful a history as Bandera's.

When are we going to give ourselves our just due, folks?

• Everyone who enjoys a quiet meal out now and then, away from the kitchen but also away from the hub-bub of local pubs or fast food establishments, is sorry to hear that The Orchard restaurant in Medina has been closed. The place represented a great idea and deserved to make it. Let's hope it will try again one of these days.

Till then, this food critic recommends the pleasant Country Spirit in Boerne if you're in the mood for a civilized good time without expensive frills. The food is good, and the atmosphere in the setting of one of Boerne's tall stone buildings is country without being corny.

• We miss the sophisticated small eating places scattered about the countryside in Ireland. We also miss Ireland. This is the kind of place it is. Last year, faced with "nittles" and brambles in our roadside border, we asked Mary O'Brien if she would help us this summer in getting some perennials started in addition to the one hydrangea at the knee. We stayed in Texas this year but just received photos of the riot of flowers Mary went ahead and planted, weeded and tended just because she is a friend and good neighbor. She wrote that she wanted us to see the beautiful garden-enjoyed this summer only by passing dairy cows and French bicycle riders before the gales of September did it in.

The country people of Ireland are the truest Christians in the world.

Fredericksburg will be the site of the annual observance by Hill Country Council, Daughters of the American revolution, of Constitution Week.

The five member chapters of the council, including Bandera Chapter DAR, will meet at a luncheon Sept. 19 at noon at Pardi's Restaurant, Highway 290 East, in Fredericksburg. Guest speaker for the occasion will be Judge Katherine Peake. Chairman of arrangements for the host chapter, Captain Ephraim Andrews of Fredericksburg, is Mrs. Mary Rothband of Harper.

Interested DAR members should send their reservation along with a check for $10.50, no later than Sept. 5, to Mrs. Anne Whetstone, Rt. 2 Box 209, Fredericksburg, Texas, 78624. For information, Bandera Chapter members may call chapter vice regent and program chairman, Peggy Tobin, 796-4420, or treasurer, Peggy Alanis, 796-3875.

Cheryl Carrales of Bandera was among the 26-member vocational nursing class at Schreiner College that graduated Monday, Aug. 20.

Biological control preferred against insects

Reliance on pesticide control of pests has created formidable problems including environmental contamination, health and safety risk, increased production cost and pesticide residue, says a Texas A&M University professor.

Farmers, ranchers, industry, and homemakers have come to rely more and more on pesticides to control insects and mites, which without those pesticides, cut the quality and yield of America's agriculture.

But organisms that will destroy the insect pests and genetic research are providing alternatives to what is potentially polluting and dangerous pesticides, says to Dr. Fowden Maxwell, head of the Department of Entomology at Texas A&M University.

The use of biological controls offers numerous advantages over dependence on chemical insecticides, according to Maxwell.

Maxwell, who guides entomology research in the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station says, biological organisms are environmentally safe, non-polluting and preserve endangered species and biological diversity.

Use of biological control minimizes pesticide use, thereby prolonging the useful life of chemical pesticides by slowing the development of pesticide resistance in the insects being controlled.

Biological control uses living organisms (predators, parasites and pathogens) to kill pest organisms, Maxwell says. It utilizes a complex system with multiple interactions between living organisms, each with unique characteristics and behavior.

Significant success in biological control has resulted from reuniting natural enemies and introduced or exotic pests.

Based on research and extension success in integrated pest management during the last decade, the American public has come to expect alternative approaches to pest control.

"To those of us engaged in entomology research, our responsibility is clear. We must develop viable, biological and cost-effective tactics and systems for biological control of key pests for agriculture and the urban environment," Maxwell says. "I believe we can do this, if we achieve seven objectives," he says. Those seven objectives are:

• Use biotechnology to improve the efficacy of biological control agents, through application of the tools of molecular biology and other emerging technology.

• Develop the biological and physiological data necessary to provide for inexpensive mass production of beneficial organisms.

• Develop operational and practical biological control programs.

• Enhance bio-systematic efforts to identify existing biological control agents and to develop an understanding of species and host relationships.

• Assemble a more complete data base on biological control organisms, their sources, biological and environmental constraints.

• Identify the behavioral attributes and stimuli that regulate the action of beneficial insects.

• Develop an improved regulatory framework that will enhance, not inhibit, incorporation of biological control agents into plant and animal production systems, and protection requirements in urban and suburban environments.

A Thought For The Week
By John M. Grimes

Every generation of Americans owes a debt to the past. This is a country of freedom only because the men and women who lived in the years past had the courage to fight and the will to sacrifice. They won and held the freedom we enjoy. Without their vision, their hard work and their faith we would not be the nation we are today.

Because of this debt to the past, every generation in America has an obligation to the future. It is to pass on to those who follow us the freedom and opportunities we inherited. This means that no generation has a right to live for itself alone. No generation has the right to squander the nation's resources...To live beyond its own earnings and to eat up the earnings of generations yet unborn. ...It is not good for the present to rob and enslave the future. Rather, if there is such a thing as a natural moral law, every generation must, pay to the future the debt that it owes to the past.

The Captivatin' Hills

Here in these hills of thrills and spills,
Where the magic of some uncultured source, traps man against his will.
Drawn without shame, like the moth to a flame,
In the face of strife, he fights for his life, in a battle that's all uphill.

A man I knew, who was passing through,
Took the rural path perchance to see, what the natives held in store.
Why these men so brave, would be a slave,
To the rugged harshness here within, and stay forevermore.

His search brought him luck, as he spotted this truck,
As it rumbled on by and into the field, stirring a big cloud of dust.
The cowpoke he saw, wore a big sweaty straw,
His truck was dented, the cab full of holes, and held together by rust.

I don't want to be crude, came the voice of the dude,
As he bade him good day, he heard the cowboy say, 'howdy', and amble on by.
Could I have a word, for you see sir I've heard,
You work hard every day, for very little pay, please sir, could you tell me why?

With an audible sigh, he searched the sky,
His grizzled beard and weary eyes, said all there was to tell.
His eyes would strain, for some sign of rain,
As the sun bore down and parched the ground, with all the wrath of hell.

A wrinkled leathery brow, seemed out of place somehow,
His hardened features seemed to hold, some underlying truth.
Perhaps a harried life, borne on the field of strife,
Belied his age, and took its toll, as it robbed him of his youth.

As the cowboy drawled, and deliberately stalled,
He cussed and spat, 'neath the brim of his hat, as he stirred the dirt with his toe.
I reckon it's just me, want'n to be free,
Mebbe it's the American dream, if it ain't, I don't rightly know.

God only knows, it ain't fer the prose,
Tain't fer th' post, they already know it, ticks and chiggers don't rhyme.
There's that time with the snake, down by the brake,
Or the time when th' ants got 'n my pants, and the scorpions crawl all the time.

There's cedar and rocks, sand in my bed, 'n holes in my socks,
When it rains, if it does, there's that swimmin' hole down by the oak.
That was always fun, when the day's work was done,
'Sides a bath calms yer wrath, 'n it's the only thing left when you're broke.

There's plantin' oats, an' smelly goats,
Ya gotta rise early so you don't miss th' fun, an' stay up way too late.
Then just when you knew, you wuz surely 'bout through,
You find that somehow, that ornery ol' cow, got hung in th' fence by the gate.

I know there may be pretty shores by the sea,
Mountains so high, they reach the sky, with beautiful snow-covered caps.
Some day I know, I sure wanna go,
But fer now I gotta bring in the hay, an' patch th' broke water gate.

I'm ready to go, but the banker says no,
You gotta stay here and work, to pay off the overdue bills.
Just my luck, seems like I'm stuck,
The Lord went away, 'n left me to stay, a prisoner of these desolate hills.

Bandera not only school district facing healthy tax increase

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

Bandera Independent School District is not the only school in the area facing an imminent tax increase due to state funding difficulties. Schools such as Fredericksburg, Comfort, Medina Valley and San Antonio's Northside have seen proposed tax rates increase as much as 35 cents, according to Bandera ISD superintendent Ted Dockery.

Dockery said Monday that tax rates will jump from 74.21 cents to $1.0599 per $100 valuation, a 42.8 percent increase. He indicated that the state legislature is attempting to hike all local school tax rates up to about $1.18.

Bandera's $5,250,089 budget is 5.9 percent higher than last year's.

A 5.9 budget increase causes a 42.8 percent rate hike because last year the board used its $764,301 fund balance to meet last year's $4,957,421 budget. In 1988-89, it used $589,114; in 1987-88 it used $380,963; and in 1986-87 the board used $279,966 to balance the budget.

Over the last four years, the board has exhausted $2,014,344 in fund balance in order to meet its budget. Bandera is considered above average in wealth, Dockery said. The criterion to determine a district's wealth is based on the number of students in a district divided by the value assigned to property by the State Property Tax Board.

Dockery said local property values have risen by about $9 million last year, and with sales down and even more exemptions being given, the local effective tax rate was bound to increase.

"We must meet state mandates, and the board was hoping for a (state) funding bill that would benefit all school districts," he said. "They increased the basic allotment per student, but they also changed the local share (of funding) from a 33 percent to a 41 percent factor.

Parents must help improve nation's schools

Parents and community members must play a greater role in education if schools are to improve, according to a report from the National Governors Association (NGA).

Governors who have developed national goals for education with President Bush for the first time in American history believe that various segments of society must come together to improve schools.

"The challenge is simply too big to be addressed exclusively by our education system," according to an early draft of an NGA report to implement the education goals. "We cannot ask the schools to compensate entirely for deficiencies elsewhere in society."

"As long as 23 percent of six-year-olds live in poverty, as long as seven percent of all live births are low-birth-weight babies, 23 percent of children live in single-parent families, 12 percent of births are to teenage mothers, and 20 percent of all high school seniors have used an illicit drug in the last month, no school in America will be able to address the enormous challenge," according to the draft document.

While parents have greater responsibilities today than ever before, it's essential that they support their child's education, according to Dr. Timothy J. Dyer, NASBP executive director.

"Certainly, time demands on parents are immense, but their influence on student attitudes also can be immense," Dyer said. "It's essential that parents emphasize the importance of an education to their youngsters. That message can be delivered in only a few minutes a day.

"Parents need to become involved in learning at an early age with students. Reading with children for a few minutes each day when they are very young will pay dividends throughout their lives."

Dyer urged parents to continue to be involved as youngsters progress through school.

"Students should understand that studying is an investment in their future," he explained. "That's an important message to share. The amount of time students spend reading or doing their homework will determine their quality of life as an adult."

Dyer suggested additional ways parents can help their students:

- Know the principal and teachers where your children attend school. Check with them in an unthreatening manner regarding problems or rumors.
- Ensure that interruptions to your youngster's class/school time are kept to a minimum.
- Compliment your youngsters when they achieve successes in school. Recognition and moral support pay dividends.
- Make sure that your youngsters have an appropriate place to study and that they complete homework assignments.
- Limit the viewing of television on school nights.

Bandera's June retail sales up by 10 percent

Eight-month total down from 1989, however.

By William Wall
Bulletin Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — June monthly retail sales in the city of Bandera increased more than 10 percent, according to the latest figures released by the state Comptroller's office.

Texas cities that levy the 1 percent city sales tax and state sales tax have been sent their share of $135 million collected statewide, 11 percent more than last August's payments, officials said.

Bandera's check was $17,107.53, 10.79 percent higher than last August, for a 1990 year-to-date total of $89,646.54 — 1.56 percent less than for the first eight months of 1989.

"Bandera's June increase can be attributed to a jump in sales and late payments made by several local merchants," said Sharon Hogan, a public information officer with the comptroller's office. "The latest allocation reduced the year-to-date difference (between 1989 and 1990) by 3.5 percent, compared to last month, and it's possible that Bandera could be on the plus side next month if the monthly trend continues." July's figures will include any increase caused by the beginning of pari-mutuel racing on July 6.

This month's checks include taxes collected on June sales and reported in late July by businesses filing monthly tax returns. Also included are sales taxes reported by quarterly filers, whose collections reflect sales made in April, May and June, said Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Boerne, in Kendall County, reported June retail sales revenues of $40,946.10, 6.51 percent higher than last year. The city's 1990 year-to-date total was $277,031.88, 8.56 percent more than last year.

Two cities in Kerr County reported combined June retail sales revenues of $191,050.14, 9.37 percent less than in 1989. Their 1990 year-to-date revenues are $1,153,343.22, 1.73 percent more than last year at this time.

Five cities in Medina County reported combined June retail sales tax revenues of $73,600.42, 4.03 percent less than last June. Their 1990 year-to-date revenues were $465,874.02, 3.32 percent less than for the first eight months of 1989.

Retailers in two Real County cities reported combined June city sales tax revenues of $5,102.19, .35 percent more than last June. Year-to-date revenues to those cities were $25,161.07, 2.71 percent higher than last year.

Two cities in Uvalde County reported combined June retail sales revenues of $103,638.29, 15.93 percent higher than last June, with year-to-date revenues of $598,783.52, 9.65 percent more than last year.

Statewide, June city sales tax revenues totaled $135 million, an increase of 11 percent, compared to last year. Total payments to cities have increased 8 percent, according to Bullock.

"This is further confirmation of a recovered Texas economy and of a state that's in economic expansion," said Bullock.

Rebate checks to counties totaled $13 million for an increase of 18.4 percent over last August's payments and an increase of almost 16.04 percent over last year's total payments. That jump is due largely to more counties collecting sales tax now than last year, Bullock said.

Bandera County's share of this month's checks is $8,961.63, 13.94 percent higher than for last July. The county's year-to-date payments total $62,552.47, 7.56 percent higher than last year.

Kendall County's share is $21,891.11, 6.4 percent higher than last July's payment. The county's year-to-date total is $166,852.12, 9.42 percent more than last year.

Kerr County received $62,688.00, 7.24 percent less than last July. The county's year-to-date payments are $492,818.80, 4.13 percent higher than for the first eight months of 1989.

Medina County received $22,736.93, 1.12 percent more than last July. Its year-to-date payments were $184,427.94, 2.64 percent higher than last year. Uvalde County's share is $40,046.89, a 28.74 percent increase over last July, with a year-to-date total of $256,416.58, 5.86 percent more than it received last year.

Real County has no county sales tax.

Bandera County's economy improving, says Texas Employment Commission

AUSTIN — Bandera County's economy is "improving," despite an increase in its monthly unemployment rate in July, according to an official of the Texas Employment Commission.

The monthly Texas Labor Market Analysis reported the county's July jobless rate to be 3.3 percent, compared with June's 2.1 percent. Bandera county's unemployment rate in July 1989 was 2.7 percent.

"The local jobless rate in July is higher than in June because of an increase of the number of late entries into the summer work force," said Ruth Goebler, an employment commission labor market analyst. "Despite the higher rates, the local economy is improving."

"Compared to last July, the Bandera County job market has experienced a significant rise in the number of employed workers." The statewide unemployment rate for July was 6.3 percent, unchanged from June. Texas' jobless rate in July 1989 was 7.3 percent. Much of the Bandera County increase in employment was caused by the beginning of pari-mutuel racing at Bandera Downs on July 5.

Three of the five surrounding counties reported lower July jobless rates: Real County by 2.4 percent to 4.1 percent; Kerr County by eight-tenths of one percent to 2.9 percent; and Uvalde County by six-tenths of one percent to 5.1 percent.

July unemployment increased in Kendall County by nine-tenths of one percent to 3.1 percent and in Uvalde County by two-tenths of one percent to 9.3 percent.

The commission's July summary reported 4,374 persons employed in Bandera County out of a total labor force of 4,525. The county's work force in June was 4,489, with 4,395 employed.

The July 1989 summary showed the county's total work force to be 4,031, with 3,923 employed.

Statewide statistics for July showed that 7,990,300 persons were employed in Texas out of a total civilian labor force of 8,527,900. In June, the state's total work force was 8,548,800, with 8,009,700 employed.

The July 1989 summary reported the Texas labor force to be 8,427,700, with 7,813,200 employed.

"In years past, the June rates were higher," said Goebler. "This year, instead of joining the summer job market in June, some job seekers waited until later."

Solar energy may answer sun belt power needs

Only 10 years ago, many people thought solar energy was going out of style like pet rocks and mood rings.

But in the 1990s, solar is in a new dawn. People across the nation in a spirit of environmental consciousness are finally realizing solar's vast potential.

In sunny climates everywhere, people are using the sun to heat water, generate electricity and even cook meals. The best part is that solar energy is as limitless as the sun — and environmentally benign.

"The efforts of a handful of solar researchers and enthusiasts who remained committed to the prospect of energy from the sun seem to be paying off," says Larry Degelman, an energy specialist with the Texas Energy Extension Service.

Today, many architects are incorporating solar energy into their design. Degelman says. Greenhouses and atriums are now common additions to homes and commercial buildings, both for daylighting and passive heating.

"Solar is now regarded as being more versatile than ever," Degelman says, "with applications for space heating, water heating and electricity generation. Cost, of course, has always been an obstacle, but it is being overcome."

Thanks to improved solar technology, solar energy is now competitive with the cost of traditional energy sources in many applications.

Solar water heating, for example, is the most cost effective use for solar energy in Texas, especially in areas without easy access to natural gas. Solar water heaters have saved many families hundreds of dollars in electricity by heating up to 80 percent of their hot water with the sun alone. In fact, solar water heaters can pay for themselves within only four to six years.

The technology of photovoltaics — the use of solar cells to convert sunlight to electricity — is now a cost-effective power option for remote applications. As conventional energy prices rise, photovoltaic systems are being used to power golf carts and to operate railroad switches and communications relay stations.

In the future, solar-powered electric plants and residential rooftop solar collectors may be an important part of the energy picture in Texas. A research center in Austin is currently using thousands of square feet of a solar cell array to provide power.

Passive sunspaces also are becoming popular for heating homes during the winter. Sunspaces work like greenhouses, which heat the air in the sunspace and then distribute the air to the rest of the house via natural convection.

Like greenhouses, they make an excellent place for plants any time of the heat. Well-designed roof overhangs, exterior landscaping and solar screens are used to prevent excessive solar gain in the summer.

Texas Energy Extension has recently published a series of free factsheets on solar energy, and copies may be obtained by calling 1-800-643-SAVE.

War in Mid-East blamed for beef price increase

As though the rising price of gasoline wasn't enough, the word from Union Stock Yards in San Antonio is to expect the Iraqi war to cause a dramatic increase in the price of meat.

"The price of beef will continue to rise and may reach the highs of the early 1980s," says Tom Porter, spokesman for the stockyards. He said his source was experts in the beef industry.

"They came just short of saying the threat of war with Iraq could bring drastic changes in prices, but (they) agree the threat of war in the Middle East would keep the demand for beef steady," Porter wrote in a release distributed Thursday.

Porter said the price of beef in the Panhandle of Texas has already reached 79 cents per pound, almost equalling the high of 80 cents that it reached in the 1980s due to short supply, high demand and high interest rates.

But fewer farmers and ranchers are bringing their cattle to market, according to Union Stock Yards vice president Bill New. "Higher prices usually mean the market picks up, but people are keeping their heifers to build back their herd," New said.

The Union Stockyards, which celebrated its 100th anniversary in 1989, moved about 158,000 head last year. New said 250,000 is about normal, though the yards have seen as many as 300,000 head.

New said he expects it to take two years for South Texas farmers and ranchers to re-build their herds.

Kenneth Gladney of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Market News Office at the stockyards building in San Antonio said he did not detect any significant change in beef prices caused by the war with Iraq. According to his statistics, South Texas beef prices rose from $76 to $78 per hundred-weight in February to $78.50 to $79.50 in April before dipping to a low of $75 in June and rebounding to the present price of $77.50.

Gladney believes growing fast-food chains are one of the major reasons the demand for beef should remain steady.

Bobcats eager, says coach

Medina's Bobcats were "enthusiastic" against the Class AA Ingram Warriors Friday, Aug. 24, during the 'Cat's first scrimmage of the football season, according to Medina athletic director Joe Winchell.

"We made lots of little mistakes, lots of wrinkles that need ironing out, but nothing that can't be fixed," said Winchell. "The guys were really enthusiastic about getting to play. Ingram is big and strong, but we made good efforts. We moved the ball some and really had good tackling on defense," he said.

Winchell said that he felt his team could stay with Bracketville whom Medina will visit for a final scrimmage Friday, Aug 31, at 6 p.m. The Bobcat's regular season will begin on Sept. 7, when Medina hosts Junction. Game time is 8 p.m.

Soccer signup continues through Wednesday, Saturday

Only about 25 registered so far for the fall youth soccer leagues, but spokeswoman Debbie Hutcheson said Tuesday that registration after school Wednesday and again on Saturday should boost the number of registrants considerably.

"So far we have only about 25 signed up, but registration after school at Alkek Elementary School Wednesday from 3 to 4 p.m., and registration Saturday from 9 to 11 a.m. at First State Bank should increase those numbers a lot," Hutcheson said. "We ask that everyone please remember to come sign kids up on these days."

Last year, about 130 youths participated in the soccer program, she said. Boys and girls from ages 5 to 11 years are eligible to play, and the registration fee is $20 ($25 for late registration). The maximum amount charged per family is $50 ($55 for late registration).

Bandera loses two in Jourdanton

Bandera's Lady Bulldogs lost to Frio, 15-5 and 15-8, and to Jourdanton, 15-9 and 15-4, in the Jourdanton Volleyball Tournament Saturday, Aug. 25.

The tournament was won by Frio, which defeated George West, 15-0 and 15-6, in the championship game. Lisa Ortiz of Frio was named most valuable player.

No Lady Bulldogs were voted to the all-tournament team.

Fredericksburg season handle tops $2.7 million

A total of 3,469 race fans at Fredericksburg's Gillespie County Fair Grounds Sunday swelled the season's attendance to 47,480, an average of 3,957 for 12 days of racing, and the betting handle to $2.7 million, an average of $225,887.

Track officials were pleased with the results of the track's first year of pari-mutuel racing and said they would ask the Texas Racing Commission for up to 16 days of racing in 1991. They hope to start racing in April.

Ignacio Bustamante piloted Miss Southerner to victory Saturday in the weekend's feature, the $9,475 Mally Keller Memorial Stakes for Texas thoroughbreds.

A total of $46,393 was wagered on the race, the largest handle for any single race ever at the Fredericksburg track.

A 4-year-old filly owned by Clarence Friar of Brady, Miss Southerner has been racing at Ruidoso Downs. She beat the betting favorite, Master Princely, the winner of a handicap race Aug. 11 at Bandera Downs, and Bob's Bambino, which finished second.

Miss Southerner paid $2 bettors $18.40, $7.40 and $4.20 after finishing the 1-mile race in 1:43.80.

Bet Gala Can won Sunday's featured race, beating the favorite, Nava's Bolder Girl, by a nose at the wire in the $10,000 Gillespie County Handicap.

A true long shot won the 11th of 12 races Sunday when Brazos Fol paid $2 bettors $42.40, $10.60 and $8.80 after winning a 350-yard test in 18.32 seconds. The 3-6-4 trifecta paid $2,191.60.

Admission is $5 for general admission and $1 for children 6 to 12 years of age. General admission after 6:30 p.m. Saturday is $6.

New Mexico eyes 'shocking' jockeys

Horses in New Mexico will be scratched if stewards find that jockeys use electrical devices to stimulate their mounts to run faster, the state's racing commission said.

The penalty against horses as well as the jockeys is designed to ensure that owners and trainers do not become involved in the use of the illegal devices.

There have been two recent cases made public in which jockeys were using the shocking devices, according to the Quarter Horse Racing Council.

Austin track now saying Sept...maybe

The on-again, off-again race track near Austin is apparently on again.

Manor Downs has postponed start-up dates three times this year, citing financial problems as the reason.

But owner Francis Carr Wednesday told Texas Racing Commission examiner Susan Henricks that she now has enough money to open the facility to pari-mutuel horse racing by the end of September. It had been scheduled to open Aug. 30.

Carr's latest announcement came after, she was apparently warned by the TRC staff that the commission may revoke her license if the track failed to open soon.

Carr testified at a TRC hearing Wednesday.

Hearing examiner Henricks said she will make a recommendation to the commission in the next two weeks on whether Manor Downs' license should be renewed through 1991, apparently in time for the commission to act on it on Sept. 12.

That's when commissioners will hear a request from Bandera Downs to extend its current meet through the first part of December.

A spokesman for the track, Bob Fox, told the Austin American-Statesman last week that the track planned $1.3 million in construction to prepare the track for accepting pari-mutuel wagers, work he called "a whole facelift." He said work began on Aug. 13.

The money for the construction was raised by selling partnerships, but they fell about $1 million short of their goal, Carr told the hearing commissioner.

Manor Downs officials plan to conduct quarter horse races through Dec. 16, and they plan to add thoroughbred racing next year.

Non-pari-mutuel racing has been conducted at Manor Downs for years.

In a separate matter, a hearing on whether to renew the license of Trinity Meadows was recessed Wednesday to give track investors time to try to secure financing for what is planned as a $30 million facility.

That track, near Fort Worth, was scheduled to open Sept. 1, but owners said they delayed the start to further improve the facility. It is now scheduled to open March 1.

Austin track now saying Sept...maybe

The on-again, off-again race track near Austin is apparently on again.

Manor Downs has postponed start-up dates three times this year, citing financial problems as the reason.

But owner Francis Carr Wednesday told Texas Racing Commission examiner Susan Henricks that she now has enough money to open the facility to pari-mutuel horse racing by the end of September. It had been scheduled to open Aug. 30.

Carr's latest announcement came after she was apparently warned by the TRC staff that the commission may revoke her license if the track failed to open soon.

Carr testified at a TRC hearing Wednesday.

Hearing examiner Henricks said she will make a recommendation to the commission in the next two weeks on whether Manor Downs' license should be renewed through 1991, apparently in time for the commission to act on it on Sept. 12.

That's when commissioners will hear a request from Bandera Downs to extend its current meet through the first part of December.

A spokesman for the track, Bob Fox, told the Austin American-Statesman last week that the track planned $1.3 million in construction to prepare the track for accepting pari-mutuel wagers, work he called "a whole face-lift." He said work began on Aug. 13.

The money for the construction was raised by selling partnerships, but they fell about $1 million short of their goal, Carr told the hearing commissioner.

Manor Downs officials plan to conduct quarter horse races through Dec. 16, and they plan to add thoroughbred racing next year.

Non-pari-mutuel racing has been conducted at Manor Downs for years.

In a separate matter, a hearing on whether to renew the license of Trinity Meadows was recessed Wednesday to give track investors time to try to secure financing for what is planned as a $30 million facility.

That track, near Fort Worth, was scheduled to open Sept. 1, but owners said they delayed the start to further improve the facility. It is now scheduled to open March 1.

Water Heaters

Why are water heaters costing so much these days? New government regulations require all heaters to be more energy efficient than before. While a new water heater will cost more now, its lower operating cost will save you lots of money later.

Water Heaters

Why are water heaters costing so much these days? New government regulations require all heaters to be more energy efficient than before. While a new water heater will cost more now, its lower operating cost will save you lots of money later.

Medina Lake Dam needs $12 million in repairs

The Medina Lake Dam is in danger of being washed out in a 100-year flood and modifications necessary to bring it up to existing safety standards will cost $12 million, the Edwards Underground Water District says.

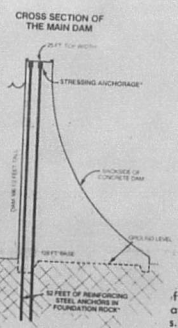
"It's really not an alarming situation, from a public safety standpoint," Greg Rothe of Hondo told the Bulletin this week. "But the bottom line is that the dam does not currently meet state criteria for stability," he said.

The problems with Medina Dam are not unusual in Texas. "Most of the dams constructed prior to (development of) the standards face this same problem, the engineering consultant said. "Though (Medina Dam) was built before the standards, it has to be brought up to standard, according to the Texas Water Commission," Rothe said.

Rothe is the project manager of the EUWD's Medina Lake Recharge Project, the effort to purchase water rights from downstream irrigators to recharge the Edwards Aquifer. The Bexar-Medina-Atascosa irrigation district, which owns the irrigation rights, broke off negotiations with the EUWD Tuesday.

Rothe said the EUWD is prepared to make the $12-million investment it would take to bring the Medina Lake Dam up to state standards, if it is successful in obtaining most of the rights to the water in the lake.

"The cost of these modifications can be integrated into the acquisition cost of the recharge project without significantly impacting the feasibility of the project," the EUWD said.



The stability problems at the dam were discovered during the EUWD's feasibility studies to determine whether it wanted to purchase the water in Medina Lake. They apply both to the Medina Dam itself and the so-called Diversion Dam four miles downstream.

The studies were performed by Hensley-Schmidt, Inc., and W.E. Simpson Company, Inc.

"The Texas Water Commission has reviewed the engineering report prepared for the EUWD, has concurred with the findings, and has concluded that Medina Dam is hydraulically inadequate," the EUWD said in a fact sheet it compiled on the dam.

Rothe said the problem with the dam is that it is not adequate, under current criteria, to withstand a 100-year flood. "The dams must be modified to withstand overtopping or to pass the probably maximum flood," the EUWD said.

The modifications recommended involve installing a series of cable-like reinforcing steel anchors from the top of the dam to the foundation rock beneath the dam. Two of the anchors would be installed every six feet across the 1,580 foot width of the dam.

Strengthening the dam in this way is not an experimental project. "Concrete gravity dams have been upgraded across the nation," the EUWD explains. "Medina Dam, like many other older dams, was built before there were any state criteria for dam design. Olmos Dam (in San Antonio) was also built before the criteria were set, and it had to undergo the same general upgrading in 1979."

The Medina Dam was constructed between 1911 and 1913 to provide irrigation to farmland west of San Antonio. When completed, it was the fourth largest dam in the United States. Its overall length at the crest is 1,580 feet and its height is 164 feet.

Three reigning world champions will be among the cowboys in the seventh annual Cowboy Capital PRCA Rodeo Friday through Sunday. They are, from the left, calf roper Rabe Rabon of San Antonio, Fla., bull rider Tuff Hedeman of Bowie; and Guy Allen of Lovington, N.M. Rabon shows his world championship form in the action photo.

Bandera weekend includes Saturday-morning parade

A parade featuring Bandera High School marching band, miniature horses, rodeo queens, bagpipers, over 300 horses, and the owners of Bandera Downs Race track will begin Saturday morning at 10 a.m. as Bandera celebrates four days of racing, PRCA rodeos, barbecues and lots of other activities over the upcoming Labor Day holiday weekend.

Racetrack owners Don Essary and Stan Scruby will be the grand marshals for the parade extravaganza that begins at 10 a.m. in front of Bandera Nursing Home. The parade will go south on Main Street and end up by Bandera Bank on the other end of town.

"The youngest parade participant will probably be little three-year-old Sarah Kay Kline of Tarpley," said parade organizer Bungy Grant Ellington. "She's going to be dressed as an Indian and will be riding a paint pony."

Racing this weekend at Bandera Downs will start Friday, Aug. 31 with post time at 2 p.m.

The Bandera race track will have its first ever four-day racing weekend, and there will be feature races to spotlight the Labor Day event.

There will also be a weekend of PRCA rodeo competition at Mansfield Park rodeo arena.

Tarpley Volunteer Fire Department will have their annual barbecue fund-raiser Sunday, Sept. 2 starting at noon. There will be a fun parade just before the barbecue in downtown Tarpley. An afternoon of fun in Tarpley on the community center grounds will include live entertainment by the Sheriff's Posse Band and an auction.

In Pipe Creek, members of the Bandera County Artists Association will be among those exhibiting at the first annual Labor Day Weekend Arts and Crafts Fair at the Pipe Junction Cafe Saturday and Sunday.

As many as 15 vendors from Pipe Creek, Lakehills, and outside Bandera County will display oil paintings, stained glass, ceramics, jewelry, clothing, folk art and wood craft Sept 1 and 2, from 10 a.m. to dark.

In Lakehills, the Medina Lake Volunteer Fire Department will hold its fall barbecue at the new central fire station on Park Road 37 in Lakehills Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 1-2.

Serving begins at 11:30 a.m. both days and will continue until about 6:30 p.m. or until the food runs out. Meal donations are $4.50 for adults and $2.50 for children.

Firemen will barbecue beef brisket and plates will be served with potato salad, beans, and all the trimmings.

Tea, coffee, soda water, and beer will be available.

The Kerrville Folk Festival Too will be held Friday through Sunday at the Quiet Valley Ranch between Medina and Kerrville. Scheduled entertainers include Butch Hancock, Gary P. Nunn, Ray Wylie Hubbard, the Maines Brothers and Jimmie Dale Gilmore.

Evening concerts begin at 6 p.m. at Quiet Valley and special daytime concerts Saturday and Sunday begin at 1 p.m. A Sunday folk song service begins at 11 a.m.

World champs plentiful in weekend rodeo

Twelve world champions will perform in slack and performances that begin at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

With 12 world champions, including three reigning titlists, among the 283 entries in this weekend's seventh annual Cowboy Capital PRCA Rodeo at Mansfield Arena, officials look for record crowds.

Performances are scheduled nightly Friday through Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

Current champions scheduled to compete here include bull rider Richard "Tuff" Hedeman of Bowie, who will ride during Friday's performance; calf roper Rabe Rabon of San Antonio, Fla., who will rope during Thursday evening's slack; and steer roper Guy Allen of Lovington, N.M., who will compete in Saturday morning's slack along with five former champions.

Steer roping won't be on the card during any of the evening performances because rodeo officials say they don't want spectators to witness incidents which cause serious injury to the steers, but the seven top-ranked competitors in current standings and 10 of the top 12 will compete Saturday morning beginning at 8 a.m. in a slack session that is free to the public.

Four present or former world champions will be in action during Friday's evening performance and the winningest champion of them all, eight-time titlist Roy Cooper of Childress, will perform during Sunday night's performance. Friday night performers include reigning bull riding champion Richard "Tuff" Hedeman of Bowie; former steer wrestling champion Steve Duhan of Opelousas, La.; former saddle bronc champion Monty "Hawkeye" Henson of Mesquite; and 1988 bull riding champion Jim Sharp of Kermit.

General admission tickets may be purchased at several Bandera locations through 5 p.m. Friday for $5, and those who wait to buy their tickets at the gate will be charged $7.

Veteran announcer Tom Hadley of Mason will be behind the mike and the clowns and bullfighters will include Allen Nelson of Comanche, who performs with two pre-school sons, Cuatro, 4, and Brodie, 2.

Nelson has been a professional bullfighter since 1988 and won second place in the Michael Horse Benefit Bullfight and is known for his distinctive butterfly face. Hadley has been public address system announcer since 1944 and has been National Finals Rodeo announcer three times.

Among the 283 entries, 58 are entered in calf roping, 47 in steer wrestling, 45 in bull riding, 38 teams in team roping, 30 in steer roping, 28 in barrel racing, 23 in bareback bronc riding, and 18 in saddle bronc riding.

Tickets are available through 5 p.m. Friday at Bandera Ice House, Super S Foods, Boyle's Market, the Econo Lodge, First State Bank, OST Restaurant, The Bandera Bulletin, and the Bandera County Chamber of Commerce.

West Texas fiddler returns to Cabaret

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Jody Nix, the man with Bob Wills' fiddle, has been with his own band for four years and the number of concert dates he plays has risen from 148 days in 1986 to over 180 in 1990.

Nix will return to Bandera this weekend and play the Cabaret Saturday, Sept. 1, in conjunction with the PRCA rodeo this weekend. Nix was in Bandera May 27 for the Memorial Day weekend.

Nix kicked off 1990 in San Antonio at the Go Western Gala. He opened with Shenandoah, Red Steagall, Bottle West, and Glen Campbell.

"I've been playing all over the great state of Texas and I'm just starting to break in on the Austin music scene. James White took a liking to us at the Broken Spoke first time May 4," says Nix.

Nix says he and his band played a lot of rodeos in May including the Santa Rosa Roundup. He's also played at the world's largest honky tonk Billy Bob's in Ft. Worth. Nix also opened for Paul Revere and the Raiders and George Jones.

Other rodeo dates was the Western Heritage Classic Ranch Rodeo in Abilene May 12 as well as the Big Spring PRCA.

The band has also played the Texas Cowboy Reunion in Stamford. He also played the Bob Wills celebration in Turkey Texas in April.

"We play all the time," says Nix. His band is booked or promised all the way to 1992.

"In 1990 we'll close to 180 dates or better," says Nix. "We have 19 dates in September."

"The night I leave Bandera, I have to be at Six Flags over Texas at 8 a.m. the next morning to play the first show 10:15 a.m. The bus will be rolling non-stop."

He says he plays a lot of western swing and traditional country. "We also play some dance music," he says.

This will be the band's third year to play on Labor Day weekend at the Cabaret. "We played the Cabaret since 1987 and every major holiday in between Hunters Weekend and Memorial Day," he says.

Nix makes his home in the sandy plains of West Texas where the pure lyrical strains of country swing continue from the legendary style created in the 1940s and 50s by two great talents, Bob Wills and Jody's father, Hoyle Nix.

Jody inherited his father's love of music and his talent. By four, Jody was playing drums in the music sessions his father held. At eight, when most children are learning the music scales, Jody began his professional career, playing five nights a week for his father's band, The West Texas Cowboys. He learned the soft swing of country music as only an insider can.

Nix's years of music education were rewarded. In 1973, at 21, he was honored by being one of the performers who was not an original Texas Playboys, to perform on Bob Wills' "For the Last Time" album.

After the death of his father, Nix moved from the drums to the fiddle, from the back of the stage to the front. His natural talents and total dedication to western swing fiddle have dazzled audiences ever since.

As band leader, Jody has created a mix of pure traditional western swing and true country music which blends to produce a unique sound that appeals to the educated listener of today. His high energy stage shows and easy dance music have excited audiences and the band has developed a local following of fans of all ages.

Realizing the importance of his band, Jody carefully chose members whose music philosophy and talents mirror his own. The style and experience blend to form a unique "family". Ken Kelly is an accomplished drummer, not only in country western, but in western swing. Mark Douglas is new to the group and plays bass. Ricky Boen, 1980 Texas State Champion Fiddler and 1983 World Champion Fiddler, plays twin fiddle and mandolin. Gary Carpenter is an outstanding steel guitar player, who has played with greats, such as Ray Price and Red Steagall.

As family men, each band member understands and abides by Jody's policy (for both himself and his band members) of no alcohol or drug usage.

Jody Nix is a family man who lives in a small friendly West Texas town with his wife, Cindy, a talented singer who performs with the band occasionally.

He has a daughter, Brooke, and two step-sons, Ross and Royce. Nix believes success is due to hard work, determination, and the use of a God-given talent. He plans to continue offering good clean family entertainment in concerts and solid Texas dance music – a combination he feels will become only more popular in the 1990s.

Danger a way of life but paycheck never sure for rodeo cowboy

By the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association

The sport of the rodeo cowboy is a sport so unique and powerful that, almost without exception, it also is his way of life.

[illegible] to be sure, but like no other. The risks of professional rodeo are greater and the security less than perhaps those of all other competitive sports.

Physical danger is a fact of life, yet a paycheck is never guaranteed. It's a rugged road built for a special breed.

Rodeo remains the only sport in the world in which success comes from the skills required in a work situation. However, today's rodeo cowboy may come from almost any background — from educator to ranch hand, lawyer to horse trainer.

While golf, tennis and other sports give participants an athletic outlet, rodeo cowboys rely on rodeo competition as their sole means of support, many more compete when and where their "real" job allows. In either case, the odds are great that his skills, though perhaps discovered in a corral, were perfected at a rodeo school.

While the vocational trend of [illegible] ized education and job security, rodeo continues to attract talented young athletes by the score. Often these future arena stars play football and other sports during their school years; only to leave these traditional sports for the dust and sweat of the rodeo arena.

Why?

Certainly, it isn't the money that pulls these cowpokes onto the backs of bucking broncs or raging bulls. Financial risks have always been just as big a part of the rodeo as the physical dangers.

With a winning ride, a rodeo cowboy can make $10,000 in eight seconds. But just as easily he can be tossed to the arena floor and seriously injured.

And behind every cowboy who wins there stand hundreds who did not. It is their entry fees and their willingness to put it all on the line that make the win both meaningful and profitable. A championship is the combined result of luck, skill and dedication. The absence of any of these key ingredients will send the cowboy down the road with an empty pocket or worse, yet not without eagerness for another try.

It is unlikely that the prospect of fame compels the cowboy to ride, rope or wrestle. The life of today's rodeo cowboy, be he champion or wide-eyed rookie, is anonymous and often lonely. Miles of highway stretch between every rodeo, and the cowboy spends much more time at the controls of a truck than in control of a bronc.

Rodeo truly is a part of this country that should not and will not die. It is man against animal versus man against animal — an unlikely scenario, both unique and inspiring.

About racing

by Bill Lakey

Bill Lakey is a professional handicapper. His column will appear here regularly.

I went back to Oklahoma during the down time at Bandera Downs, saw the folks, saw the kids, and talked to some of my old buddies.

Sounds like the investigation of the gate crews is over at Remington Park and the findings have been submitted to the proper authorities. I don't know much about it other than someone thought that someone was paying off someone to be a little slow in letting certain horses out of the gates during the last quarter horse meet.

If you know anything about handicapping quarter horses, you know that a good horse getting out of the gate slow can be beat. Doesn't take much.

It is good to know that these kind of investigations go on because it is so important that the integrity of horse racing be maintained at all costs. I assume that I feel the same as most bettors in that I don't look favorably on the idea of losing my money because of the dishonesty of another person.

I am glad to say that I have heard of no such gripes or accusations here at Bandera Downs.

To those here that are inquiring about me through the Oklahoma Race Commission, here is what you will find. I have an Oklahoma horse owners license and have had since 1989. I have an interest in a horse called Smashed Straw.

I have to admit that it is a bit embarrassing in that I believe that I could outrun Smashed Straw, one of the few horses sired by Easily Smashed that can't run. The times he ran at Remington Park you sure didn't see me saying anything about it. I hid out on the backside and watched the disaster on TV.

Smashing straw and eating is about all this horse is capable of.

Bandera Downs will go into Friday with the twin trifecta having a pot of $54,000. It is good for the track to be going into this four-day racing week with that kind of pot. Draws crowds.

A lot of things are planned for this Labor Day weekend with the rodeo, parade and good horse racing. Bandera Downs has even opened a restaurant, open for dinner Friday and Saturday after the races, and the Cabaret will be open Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights with different entertainment every night. Most of the restaurants in town are having specials, good food for the right prices.

I am sure that this weekend will bring in some folks who haven't been to the races before. I believe you will have a good time if you are one of those. Especially if you use a little judgement, such as bringing the amount of money you can afford to lose and leaving the rest at home. I'm not saying you will lose what you bring, but just in case.

I have seen first-time track goers do quite well because they don't know enough about it to have become stupid yet. They haven't been tainted yet by knowledge and the "hot tip" syndrome. They don't know about overlays, speed indexes, track bias, track variance, leading jockies, leading trainers, washed out horses, false favorites, reading race forms, buying tip sheets, breeding, or any thing else the so called "expert" knows about.

They just know that they have a "housepayment" due, that they are "addamint" about winning, that "Rebel Pearl" was what some relative called Aunt Pearl, that "Sweet Excess" can't be all bad, and they really are kinda "High on Jack."

Maybe I will just follow one of them around and bet what they bet. Couldn't do much worse. See you at the track.

Voters will turn out at three locations Saturday, Sept. 15 for a second chance to pass a $5 million school bond that, if passed, will fund the construction of a new elementary school near Pipe Creek and finance major renovations at other Bandera school sites.

Voters defeated the same bond in a district-wide election May 26. The vote was close in both the Pipe Creek and Lakehills precincts, but Bandera voters overwhelmingly rejected the school bonds.

Some members of the school board tried this summer to separate the bond issue in hopes that part of the spending package would be accepted by voters. Trustees T.H. "Bub" Keese and Emmett Dalton voted to separate the Lakehills/Pipe Creek area elementary school package from the Bandera Junior High School renovation plan, but other trustees voted the proposal down.

Voters are again being asked to vote for or against "the issuance of bonds in the amount of $5,110,000, and the levying of the tax in payment thereof."

Absentee voting began Monday, Aug. 27 and will last through Tuesday, Sept. 11.

By the end of the day Wednesday, some 37 absentee voters had already cast their ballots, and before 10 a.m. Thursday, the total had risen to 40, according to Bettie Peters in the school superintendents' office.

There were 19 votes cast in Lakehills, 20 votes cast in Bandera and one vote cast in Pipe Creek.

Absentee voters can cast their ballots at the BISD school superintendent's office between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday from Aug. 27 through Sept. 11.

Branch absentee voting sites include Bandera Junior High School (Room 9), Barrel House at Pipe Creek, and Lakehills Ice House, located at the intersection of Hwy. 1283 and Park Rd. 37.

Voting takes place at the alternate locations between the hours of 5 and 8 p.m. Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday Sept. 1 and Sept. 8, and from 1 to 3 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 9.

Sept. 15 voting sites will be at the Bandera Junior High School campus for voters in precincts 1,5,7, and 8; at Pipe Creek Community Center for voters in precincts 2 and 3; and at Lakehills Civic Center for voters in precinct 4.

Because the citizens residing in a school district have taxpaying responsibility, the bond election must be held to determine whether the citizens feel the construction and/or renovation is important enough to the community as a whole to warrant an increase in the debt service tax.

The 1965 bonds financed an addition to the football stadium complex, and construction of a building that currently houses school business offices, a classroom, junior high library, and a science lab.

In 1975, bond money was raised to build a new high school. However, "the new high school didn't last taxpayers anything to build," say school officials. School-owned land in Maverick County was sold to pay for the construction of the school, and proceeds from that sale cover payments.

In 1980, a bond election put before voters failed, but in 1985, BISD voters said yes to the construction of what is now Alkek Elementary School. Land for the school was donated, and money raised was used solely for construction.

When the 1975 BISD school board determined that a new high school was necessary, it sold land in Maverick County which was owned by the school districts of Bandera County to pay off the bonds that were issued. The purchaser was Albert Alkek, and the districts retained 50 percent of the mineral rights, that is, 50 percent of the amount of money a company would pay to lease the land for oil exploration is paid to the schools of Bandera county. In addition, the amount paid to the schools for mineral extraction may vary between 1/16th and ½ of all royalties, depending on the conditions of the lease.

The money is paid into a fund called the Bandera County permanent school fund and the fund is currently available to the Bandera and Medina school districts for use in building improv

F'burg handle $2.7 million

Bulletin Staff Writer

The four days of racing during the 102nd Gillespie County Fair climaxed 1990's 12 days of racing in Fredericksburg with a total of $2.7 million bet and almost 48,000 persons passing through the gates.

And Gillespie track officials say they plan to ask for at least two additional days of racing days next year.

According to records maintained by the Gillespie County Fair and Festivals Association, which runs the track, the total handle was $2,710,647 for 1990 and 47,480 people passed through the gates during the 12 days of racing this year.

So far, a total of $6,740,455 has been wagered at Bandera Downs and 90,103 persons have passed through the gates in the 20 days of racing held so far.

The average attendance at the Gillespie track was 3,957 and the handle averaged $225,887.

The average attendance at Bandera Downs is 4,291 and average handle is $320,974.

Overall, attendance at the Fredericksburg track is more than what was expected, says Milton Jung, president of the Gillespie County fair association. "We felt if we could draw an average crowd of 2,500 people per race day and average a $140,000 handle, we could make money," he says. "But we've averaged better than 4,000 people per day and had an (approximate) $240,000 average handle" before August's races, says Jung, who is also the Gillespie County sheriff.

The four-day meet during the Aug. 23-26 weekend, when Bandera Downs did not run races, started with the lowest attendance of the year, when 1,051 persons attended Thursday, Aug. 23, and bet a handle of $80,158 and 1,821 persons Friday, Aug. 24, with a handle of $161,680.

However, the per capita betting was the highest achieved at the Class III track, at $76.29 Thursday and a Fredericksburg record of $88.79 Friday. "We expected a small crowd Thursday, but had an excellent handle," says Jung.

The record per capita betting for Bandera Downs and the state of Texas is $110.21, achieved Aug. 3 when 2,400 persons bet a total of $264,503.

But Saturday's attendance and handle figures came back to what the Fredericksburg track has been achieving with the 6,211 fans betting $343,715 for a per capita of $55.34 and Sunday's 3,469 crowd betting $294,337 for a per capita of $84.85.

Bandera Downs' best attendance was 7,260 on Saturday, July 7, of opening weekend and the best handle was $472,463 bet Aug. 19.

The Gillespie fair association will decide between now and the next racing commission meeting (Sept. 12) whether to expand or change the 14 days of racing Gillespie County Fairgrounds Track currently has, says Jung. "We may go to 16 days, but I doubt it," he says.

The association would like to go with three-day racing instead of four for their fair in August, 1991. "Four days of racing means five days of the county fair, and that's hard to do with volunteer help," says Jung.

But Gillespie County Fairgrounds Track will have four days over the July 4th weekend.

Other dates will include the Memorial Day weekend and the third weekend in July when the Night in Old Fredericksburg is held.

6,211 Gillespie County Fair goers watched three thoroughbred horse races among the 11 run Saturday, Aug. 25.

First-ever four-day racing card set at Bandera Downs this week

Bandera Downs will hold its first four-day weekend of pari-mutuel horse racing on a reconditioned running surface. Racing starts Friday at 2 p.m. and 12 race cards are on tap for the first time on Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Friday's post time will be 2 p.m., two hours earlier than usual, and the first race will start at 1 p.m. on the other three days of the holiday weekend.

The racing climax Monday, Labor Day, will include a live country and western band, clowns, and face painting for the children.

Workman have been busy reconditioning the track all last week and this week.

Friday's featured race will be a quarter horse allowance over 350 yards for 3-year-olds and up with a $1,575 purse.

Track handicapper Don Rhine says there are two horses in the sprint that "could run a tough race."

Cashcades, with Robert Bard in the irons, is coming from Ruidoso Downs in New Mexico where she made her first start of the year and ran third against good allowance-quality horses, says Rhine.

Another horse to watch, says Rhine, is The Big Force, with W. Eugene Clower in the saddle. The 3-year-old broke its maiden in its first start here Aug. 19 with Friday's jockey on board. "The horse won easily by 1¼ lengths and will probably run a big race Friday," says Rhine. The time of the race was 18.28 seconds.

Five 2-year-old quarter horse trials of 350 yards will dominate the day. Finalist from the trails will race in the Freshman Allowance race within 10-14 days.

Friday's thoroughbred feature will be a five furlong, $5,000 claiming race for 3-year-olds and up.

The twin trifecta pool could reach $75,000 Friday, predicts director of marketing Mike Zlaket. The carryover pool from Aug. 20 is $54,194.40 and it took six racing days to reach that level.

Post time Friday, Aug. 31, will be two hours earlier than the past Fridays as the sundown that day will be 8 p.m. In previous Friday races, the last race went off at between 8 and 8:30 p.m.

The now once a month workout show returns Saturday, Sept. 1, at 9 a.m. in the Jockey Club. The show offers interviews and a handicapping seminar, specifically tailored to the first race. Admission is free and the morning participants can remain at the track and not pay a parking and gate admission fee.

A free handicapping seminar will be held at the Finish Line east of Bandera Downs at 10 a.m. Friday. It is sponsored by the Finish Line racing publication store and Monti's Pizza, not by Bandera Downs. Several jockeys are expected to make an appearance at that event.

Quarter horses will dominate Saturday's card again, with 10 of the 12 races sprints of 330 to 550 yards.

In Saturday's featured race, Cash Asset trained by Bandera's Dave Correll, may be the horse to beat. "The horse ran against tough competition July 20 against Texas Hurrah when that horse had a big win," says Rhine. Cash Asset ran third, but only 0.04 seconds behind Texas Hurrah in that 350-yard heat.

Cash Asset ran a disappointing race Aug. 19, when it came in sixth place in a 400 yard race. But Rhine thinks the horse may be "ready to win this time."

Another horse to watch is Swayne's Pride. The horse has won 30 out of 50 career starts. "The 8-year-old still runs against good competition," says Rhine.

The thoroughbred races include a six furlong heat for maidens and a $5,000 claiming race at 7½ furlongs.

Sunday's card will also feature 12 races, one of which will be an overnight quarter horse handicap of 550 yards.

One favorite will be TA Advantage. "The horse started twice here and won once in a handicap race and second in another race of 870 yards," says Rhine.

Toby Keeton's Mito Beudino ran in California last year against Grade I horses, says Rhine. "The horse ran in the Grade I Los Alamitos Derby and the Grade I Los Alamitos Championship," he says. "In 1989, the horse earned $60,000 in purses, winning 5 of 12 starts. If he's ready run, it'll be a big race."

Twelve races are scheduled Monday, but the race field will not be set until Friday afternoon, reports the track's racing office.

The infield is scheduled to be open and there will be face painting for the children, clowns, and live music by the country and western band, Shinin Pride, who played opening weekend at Bandera Downs.

Racing fans crammed the area underneath Bandera Downs' grandstand Monday, Sept. 3, as they watched the horses parade to the track from the paddock and lined up to place their money on a favorite or a longshot.

County tax rate may increase by 8.56 percent

Bandera County Commissioners will solicit public input on the yet-to-be finalized county budget and a proposed 8.56 percent county tax rate increase Monday, Sept. 10.

Commissioners will vote on the budget and the tax rate increase which will raise the county tax to 33.48 cents per $100 property valuation Thursday, Sept. 13.

Last year's rate was 30.84 cents per $100 property valuation.

The county's taxable property value is $518,050,948, as opposed to last year's $520,686,586.

Monday's meeting will convene at 5 p.m. at the courthouse.

The current budget is expected to be close to last year's $2.85 million budget, but the final figure is not known as the budget is still being hammered out in the county judge's office and has not been given the final approval by commissioners.

Commissioners may not be inclined to hike taxes, however, as commissioner Roger Raser has put at least his preliminary vote against the tax rate Monday at a meeting designed to OK the county's tax office advertisement of the proposed tax rate.

Even with the tax rate increase, taxes will "bring in about the same money as last year," said Bandera County Judge Ray F. Mauer, because of lower property values.

County treasurer Elizabeth James is less optimistic. The tax rate will probably bring in "less money than last year," she estimated.

The county will have to skim by with similar services as last year. "Even with the rate increase, we'll have a tough time with the budget," said Mauer.

This year's proposed tax rate of 33.48 cents per $100 would cost a taxpayer with a $50,000 home and with a $5,000 exemption $150.66. Last year's taxes on the same home was $138.78.

Most commissioners Monday considered not hiking taxes.

"The school district has done all the damage it can," said commissioner Dan C. Alanis. The Bandera Independent School District has proposed a $1.06 per $100 property valuation rate, above last year's 74.2 cent rate.

The school is also proposing a $5 million bond issue that commissioner Bennie Barker says he sees as another tax hike and the public oppose.

But Raser was the only com-

Labor Day weekend race crowds shatter records

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Fueled by a twin trifecta jackpot that almost tripled to $156,214, attendance and betting records were broken each day of the four-day Labor Day weekend, despite a thunderstorm that caused jockeys get track officials to cancel one race Saturday.

Track president Don Essary, delighted with the weekend attendance, confirmed Monday that he'll ask the Texas Racing Commission on Sept. 12 to extend the current meet to Dec. 9. Racing is currently scheduled to wind up Oct. 28.

The state record 7,814 crowd at Bandera Downs Sunday exceeded opening weekend's 7,260 attendance set July 7. The previous record was the Gillespie County Fairground's 7,574 on July 4.

The record crowd Sunday did at times tax track operations, with longer lines at the pari-mutuel windows than race fans had grown to expect. "There were some delays because some of the clerks we'd expected didn't show up," says director of operations Alison Hines.

Parking was also cramped Sunday because Saturday's rain did not allow the track to use all of the overflow parking. By Monday, most of the overflow area was available.

The state single-race handle record was broken three times this weekend, and each time on the race with the twin trifecta wager.

Monday's record was $127,648, surpassing Sunday's $112,085, which smashed Saturday's $72,538 record.

The previous record was $64,788 in the fifth race Sunday, Aug. 19, also a twin trifecta race.

The twin trifecta pool accounted for $94,240 of Monday's record. Other pools were the win, place, and show pool at $22,884 and the quinella pool at $10,524.

Of the $94,240 poured into Monday's twin trifecta pool, at least $27,000 was used to pay off approximately 70 winners of the first half of the twin trifecta and the remaining approximately $18,000 paid for the state tax on pari-mutuel betting, the track's commission, and horsemen's purses.

The twin trifecta jackpot first went over $100,000 Sunday, with a total of $118,518.40.

The state single-day handle record was broken twice this weekend when bettors laid $618,316 Sunday and $652,361 Monday.

But Bandera Downs has been breaking that record every weekend in August.

Friday's 2,343 crowd set its own record when the crowd, average in numbers for a Friday, bet $335,828 in 10 races for a record $143.33 per capita, says Hines. The last record average per person bet was $110.21.

Hines attributes the high betting level to the twin trifecta and the larger than usual number of horsemen that came to see there horses run in five freshman allowance quarter horse trails Friday.

The four days of racing had 21,780 persons betting a total handle for the Labor Day weekend of $2,036,786, almost double Bandera Downs last three days of racing Aug. 17-19, when a total of 12,516 persons bet $1,128,913 over three days.

Saturday's handle was $430,281.

But while the unprecedented levels achieved Labor Day weekend may not be reached again this year, track president and co-owner Don Essary does expect the excitement of pari-mutuel horse racing to continue and in fact, "escalate to Dec. 9," he says.

Bandera Downs' current meet is scheduled to end Oct. 28, but the track has filed a request with the Texas Racing Commission to add six weekends of racing to the track's schedule, extending racing season through Dec. 9. "I hope they see fit to let us continue," says Essary. The hearing will be held Sept. 12 in Austin.

Even the beginning of school and the start of high school, college, and professional football, Essary doesn't expect racing's appeal to level off.

"As far as horse racing is concerned, fall is the most popular times, especially in the five-state Southwestern U.S. area," says Essary.

Bandera's Indian Summer will contribute to the good weather. "We're actually looking forward to the fall. It'll be cloudier and cooler. The people will be more comfortable," he says.

The Bandera-area will also put on its usual fall color leaf show, attracting people to the area. "The Texas Hill Country just gets more beautiful in the fall," says Essary.

Essary says the economic impact of horse racing will continue to be felt. "We've proved what we said in 1987 is true, horse racing is a great thing for the horse industry and great for the Texas economy," he says.

Former Texas Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, who was at Bandera Downs Sunday, agrees with Essary about the economic impact on Texas. He says some ranch land in Texas, such as around Bandera, San Antonio, and Austin, could be priced like land in Kentucky. "Agriculture land converted to horse raising will help stabilize the price Texas ranch land where that land is suitable for horse breeding," says Barnes.

"Texas is already a breeding ground of quarter horses and thoroughbreds. In the next 20 years, with the development of tracks in the major metropolitan areas, Texas will become the number one horse breeding state," he said.

Millionaires have local connection

Alkek, John Jay Moores among 'richest'

Two millionaires with Bandera connections appear as the 39th and 40th on the list of "The 100 Richest Texans" in the September issue of Texas Monthly magazine now on newsstands.

They are oilman Albert Billy Alkek of the Flying A Ranch south of Bandera and John Jay Moores, son of former Bandera residents Katherine and C.W. "Red" Moores. Texas Monthly estimates each of their worth as $270 million.

Alkek is a regular on any list of "richest," including Forbes magazine's list of the 400 richest Americans, but Moores is making his first appearance on the Texas Monthly list.

He is from Sugar Land, near Houston, and the founder of a computer software company that caters to IBM users. A former programmer at IBM, Moores discovered that individual companies needed specialized software to make their IBM megacomputers run more efficiently, Texas Monthly magazine says.

"So he designed it and then founded BMC Software in 1980 to market it," the magazine said. He started the company with $1,000.

Red Moores is a former news photographer for the Corpus Christi Caller-Times and a former [illegible] Bandera, and both his mother and father were active in Bandera County activities until they left to establish a home near their son's in Sugar Land. Red was especially active with the Bandera Optimist Club.

The younger Moores was raised in Houston and earned a law degree from the University of Houston, but never practiced.

"(He) owns homes in Colorado, California and Sugar Land," Texas Monthly says. "(He) collects 1960s and 1970s Corvettes, Ferraris and Mercedes."

The magazine says he's currently phasing himself out of BMC. "I'm taking my time to catch my breath and decide what I want to do when I grow up," the magazine quotes him.

The magazine traces Alkek's relationship with partner Harry Sinclair and his rise to one of Texas' largest oil independents. Born in Houston and educated in Victoria, Alkek told The Bulletin

Guy Allen leading rodeo money winner

World champion steer roper Guy Allen of Lavington, N.M., won $1,482 to become leading money winner in the seventh annual Cowboy Capital PRCA Rodeo that played to crowds of up to 750 Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Allen tied for the steer roping championship Saturday morning, but won third-place money on both go rounds to out-pace Rod Hartness of Pawhuska, Okla., in money earned.

They each roped two steers in a total elapsed time of 21.8 seconds Saturday to tie for first place. Allen roped his first steer in 11.9 seconds and took 9.9 seconds to tie his second. Hartness had difficulty in the first go round when he took 12.1 seconds to secure his animal, but came back with the second-best time of the day, 9.7 seconds, to gain a tie.

Fastest time of the day was turned in by DeLynn Jones, who roped his steer in the second go round in 8.9 seconds. He managed to win third place in combined time, winning $1,271.

Last year's leading money winner was steer roper Tee Woolman of Llano who earned $1,391.

A final accounting of attendance was not available by press time Tuesday, but rodeo spokeswoman Sheila Fries says the Saturday night attendance approached 750 and the sponsoring rodeo association managed to make a slight profit on the weekend.

Calf roper Jim Bob Mayes became the fourth-highest money winner when he cashed a $1,191 check for winning his specialty in 11.2 seconds. Steer wrestling champion Steve Duhon of Opelousas, La., won $958 for 3.3 seconds of work, and team roping mates Tommy Emmons of Alvarado and Tom Riddle each earned $735 for winning their event.

Other winners and their earnings included bareback riders Larry Godwin and Chris Guay, who tied with identical scores of 75 and each earned $488; saddle bronc rider Joe Dan Brambelow, who scored 73 points and earned $512; bull rider Monty Penney, who scored 83 points and earned $712; and Sherry Johnson, who

Cheaper to close it

Dear editor:

The recent article about the school tax increase is ridiculous. A budget of $5 million to educate approximately 1,500 students for one year is outrageous. That averages to approximately $33,000 per student. Since when does it cost $33,000 to teach a child in kindergarten? The taxpayers are being ripped off, as well as the students. After spending all that money, the students still can not read or write sufficiently.

If the school board is spending $5 million for three campuses, it's because we have to have three of everything. How much will the budget be if they build another school, $8 million? We have too many campuses now for just 1,500 students.

The school board keeps saying that people over 65 do not have to worry about tax increases, but they do. If they ever want to sell, they will have a hard time if the tax base is so high. What about the widows and senior citizens not yet 65, who live on a fix income, how are they going to afford to li

The school board has got to get i ane with reality. Some $33,000 to teach one udent for one year is beyond belief. it would oe cheaper to close the school system and charter buses to take the children to private schools in San Antonio. It's time for a rollback.

County spending

To the Editor:

Hopefully we do not need a C.A. Stubbs type monitor of county spending activities here in Bandera. But I do feel it would be helpful to all county tax-payers to have a person, group, commission, whatever to monitor tax dollar spending in Bandera County.

A few weeks back a letter was written commending the county commissioners for paying attention to the spending of the tax dollar and commenting on the utter disregard the school board takes when considering spending of the tax dollar. So true.

We have been property owners in Bandera County for 21 years. During that period of time there never has been a plan by the school board to cope with what everyone knew could happen and is happening now. Get in a bind, spend more money, pass another bond issue. Not sound business; not sound basis for education.

Certainly the school program needs attention. First let us have a program. As I see it, it is in such utter chaos now that it shall never get straight.

Let us work on it and let us use prudence.

Sign their name

Dear editor:

I read your paper with interest every week. I don't understand people who write letters and won't sign their name.

We can still express our views without being taxed or arrested for doing so. We still have these privileges.

The person who asked if they were mad at the taxpayer's and criticized Constable Ernest Reich's appointment of a lady to his staff, if he has to arrest a female for any reason, that would be her job.

Ernest Reich has done an excellent job at Lakehills since he was elected to office.

He answers all calls promptly and courteously. Firing weapons in a residential area is a big complaint out here, and he handles that very well and doesn't shrug his shoulders when asked a question. He polices the area very competently.

Also, James Popham and Sal Obedio are doing a very good job of helping our lake residents.

As far as Ex-Sheriff Guy Pickett being appointed to serve with Constable Reich, I would say that's a good choice.

Guy Pickett did an excellent job as sheriff. When he received a call from the school, he handled it well. Students were controlled and put back to class. A call to a beer joint and they had to use force taking a drunk to jail. What else could he do?

I don't know any case where Pickett put anyone in jail that did not deserve it.

If a law-enforcement officer has to worry every time he goes out on a call, there wouldn't be any arrests and every case would turn into a law-suit.

Taxpayers Win

Dear editor:

For a while it looked like us taxpayers had finally won the battle against the liberal politicians who got a lot of support from militant homosexual and lesbian groups which some observers (myself included) feel has gained control of the arts community. It now appears that some congressmen are working on a parliamentary procedural move to refund the National Endowment for the Arts without reauthorizing it. Such a move would allow members of the House & Senate to continue to provide tax funds for the NEA without having to vote directly on the issue. Members of Congress can then tell us that they did not have an opportunity to vote on the NEA but that funds for the NEA were part of another bill which they had to support, and if they had had an opportunity to do so, they would have voted against the NEA. This procedure would appropriate $180 million for the NEA budget for 1991. That's a mere $9 million more than they received last year!

In a letter I wrote last May, which you published, I described some of the works of "art" that were funded with tax dollars. Here are two more examples: The NEA...

1. Gave $15,000 to Andres Serrano to fund his exhibit which included a photo of Jesus Christ submerged in Serrano's urine. It was entitled Pi Christ.

2. Gave $15,000 to Illinois State University to fund an exhibit of David Wojnarowicz which included scenes of men having sex with animals as well as performing perverted sex on each other.

The list goes on and on. The "arts" community has been screaming "censorship." I believe they are confused. There is a great difference between censorship and sponsorship. If these people want to continue their "arts" exhibits, I say let them pay for them and let's use our tax dollars to balance the budget or feed hungry people or to ease some of the other hurts in this world gone mad.

The only thing we can do to stop this parliamentary move is to write or call our congressman and senators. The Bulletin does us a great service by printing the names, addresses and phone numbers of these elected officials on the "Letters to the Editor" page. I urge everyone to do something before it's too late.

Steer roping not illegal

Dear editor:

I am writing in regard to your front-page story in last week's paper (Aug. 29) about the rodeo. I find parts of it pertaining to steer roping false and untrue.

Sheila Fries (Cowboy Capital Rodeo Association publicity chairwoman) says "the event is outlawed because of humane reasons in at least 42 out of 50 states." This is very untrue and not correct. It is actually outlawed in very few states, if any. The reason (steer roping) is not held in more states is because most of your steer ropers are from the Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma area. There were eight states that had PRCA steer roping this year, which probably confused Sheila. Those states are Oregon, Washington, Wyoming, Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Kansas and Oklahoma. Last year Nebraska and Montana (also) had PRCA steer roping and large jackpot steer roping events were held in Miles City, Mont., and Ogalla, Neb.

If I can count, that adds up to at least 10 states that have steer roping. This can be verified by calling James Allen, PRCA steer roping director, at (918) 256-3303. All steer roping in the PRCA must be approved by him.

I would also like to say that I have been around lots of steer ropings in the last 15 to 20 years and have yet to see a steer killed. I went to about 50 steer ropings last year and did not see a steer killed, and we ran 60 steers at Bandera and did not kill or cripple any of them.

Some may think that we steer ropers have complained too much about steer roping not being included during the rodeo, but that's because they do not understand the event and have been misinformed by people like Sheila that also do not understand the event. More than 100 years ago when they held the first rodeo at Pecos, the main two events were saddle bronc riding and steer roping, because that's the way the stock was handled at the ranch.

I'll close by saying that we had a very good PRCA rodeo and Mr. Bradford Ivy and the committee did a good job. But it would have been a lot better had they included steer roping in the rodeo instead of during the slack.

Racing

"It is great for Bandera Downs and the community to be first to prove quarter horse and thoroughbred racing could be successful," former Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes.

the example for other tracks throughout Texas to open. This is a great success story of racing not just for Texas, but in the United States," said Barnes.

"It is great for Bandera Downs to prove quarter horse and thoroughbred racing could be successful," said Barnes. "It is something for Bandera to be proud of," he said.

And horse racing has the potential of surpassing even high school football to create excitement for people, he philosophized. "I never thought that I'd see people more excited than at a high school football game," he said.

A severe thunderstorm canceled a thoroughbred race Saturday and caused an hour-and-a-half delay before the running of the next race.

The wind and rain that whipped the Bandera track about 4 p.m. Saturday caused minimal damage, knocking down the smallest of three spectator tents and covering the race track course with water. No one was under the tent at the time, says director of publicity Don Rhine.

No one was injured during the storm, though people in the infield park were soaked when rain blew underneath the large tent. Three of the eight marker poles along the race track were blown over, though not onto the track surface.

Threatening lightning prevented the jockeys from giving spectators the chance to run for cover.

The wind was so severe that stewards and photographers left the saddling paddock when the rain hit. The downpour continued for 30 minutes, though the rain continued at a slower pace for the rest of the afternoon.

Some of the jockeys hesitated and didn't want to run the 7½ furlong thoroughbred race. "The jockeys said they were concerned about too much water in the turns in the race," says Rhine.

While other race tracks run races in similar conditions, some of the jockeys at Bandera Downs were not familiar with running in wet conditions, says Rhine. "A lot of the riders are not used to riding thoroughbreds," he said.

After the thunderstorm had passed, jockey Chad Mason and outrider toured the track on horseback to inspect the track.

"The main straightaway isn't that bad," Mason said Saturday. "The worst part is on the backstretch. There are some rocks in the turn and there's a hole in the middle of the track coming out of the turn."

Track management and the jockeys agreed to cancel the race and run the rest, which were without turns and only involved straightaways, if the conditions were not safe.

Rhine explains that the track takes every precaution for the safety of the riders and the horses. "Their safety is our priority," he says.

"We wouldn't want to have the jockeys out there if it was not safe." Essary told the Express Saturday. "This race track can handle a lot of rain. There is a 2½-inch cushion (of dirt and cedar shavings) on the track, and it isn't going to move. So I don't think there will be any problems the rest of this week."

And there weren't any apparent problems with the track Saturday and the next two days.

No horse was scratched because of track conditions Saturday and there were no breakdowns.

Rainfall measured 0.91 inches inside the city limits of Bandera, but the rainfall total at the track, which took about 30 minutes to pour out of the sky, may have been higher.

Saturday the track condition started out sloppy, which means there is water on the surface, but went to muddy by the sixth race, and good by the 10th race.

The track condition Sunday was fast all day.

Sunday's featured race, a quarter horse allowance for 3-year-olds and up with a $1,575 purse, Significant Miss, with Raul Ramirez aboard, was the unexpected winner in the 350-yard heat, paying $13, $4.40 and $4.20.

The 6-5 favorite, Cashcades, with Robert Bard in the irons, finished second.

In Saturday's feature race, Casiree, ridden by Isaac Chapa, won with a time of 18.54 seconds in 350 yards on the water topped course. The 5-1 favorite paid $12.20, $4.40, and $3.40.

St. Convenience, which had finished second, steered towards the inside of the track sharply just out of the gate, bumping Hops for Gold, causing jockey Mary Bacon to loose her footing in the stirrups. St. Convenience was disqualified and placed second.

The longshot of the weekend went off in the first race Saturday when 25-1 Gables Love, ridden by Jimmy Robbs, bounced from the gate and charged down the 350-yard distance to pull clear in the stretch. The 2-year-old sorrel filly paid $54.20, $21.60, and $10.80.

Favorite 7-5 Coco Ego had the early lead, but fell behind and did not place.

In Sunday's featured race, 6/1 favorite Runaway Bud, ridden by jockey David Muirhead, won the 550-yard quarter horse heat. The 6-year-old sorrel stallion paid $15.80, $9, and $4.80.

A 10-1 longshot, Dealin Essys Moon, placed second and paid $14 and $7.40.

In Monday's Kerrville Thoroughbred Handicap, Dr. Jive, ridden by Gerard Gaidosch, surprised race fans with a winning time of 1:46.2 to take the winner's share of the $9,600 purse. He paid $16.20, $6.20, and $2.80.

The 4-year-old gelding beat out 9/5 favorite Papa Chicho, ridden by Anna Landoit and favorite 9/5 Miss Southerner, ridden by Ignacio Bustamante, came in third.

Richest

a year ago that he now spends one-half of his time in Bandera and the other half in Houston.

The magazine says Aikek was once a billionaire, but his many philanthropic activities have pared his fortune to its present size. "So many people have money and don't give it away," the magazine quotes him as saying. "I enjoy doing it."

The major thrust of his giving has been toward internationally significant institutions like Baylor College of Medicine, to whom he gave $25 million, and statewide facilities like Texas A&M University, Texas Military Institute, and the University of Houston. But, he has also been generous to Bandera County institutions, including the school system and the emergency medical service.

The Bandera elementary school is named in his honor.

The magazine did not mention Bandera in its description of Aikek's "Hill Country ranch," and said that hunting is not allowed on the sprawling acreage. He told The Bulletin a year ago, however, that while he does not hunt, he does allow his friends to hunt on occasion.

"(He) shares a 30,000-acre Hill Country ranch with 5,000 head of exotic game (no hunting allowed), 200-foot-wide waterfall, and numerous spring-fed lakes," the magazine said. It quoted this description of his fishing habits: "We fish a little bit, throw them back in. Then when we get hungry, we'll keep one."

Tax

missioner of the four to vote against advertising the 33.48 cents tax rate Monday, indicating he was inclined to leave the rate at last year's 30.84 cents.

Both Alanis and Barker defended voting for the tax rate advertisement in order to bring the budget and tax-rate setting process to a conclusion. "This vote is the basis for the public to come to the hearing," said Alanis.

But the county judge told commissioners that keeping the county's tax rate at last year's level would reduce the county's total budget by $400,000. "If we stay where we are at (the tax rate), we'll have to cut deep into the budget," he said.

The same tax rate would also hit commissioners where they could recognize it most, in their road and bridge budgets. "We'll be short $190,000 in the road and bridge fund if we don't raise taxes," said Mauer.

Barker expressed concern over the ever-increasing price of fuel attributed to the Iraq crisis, which will effect the county's road maintenance and sheriff's budget. "We don't know where the oil and fuel charges are going to end," he said.

James told commissioners there was no reserve fund in this year's county budget to be carried over to next year, and in fact, "There are two precincts in the red, and Mansfield Park (budget) is in the red," she said. "We don't have $192,000 in surplus like last year."

The 8.56 percent tax rate increase is a half percent over the eight percent level that triggers a possible rollback election, says county tax-assessor collector Marguerite Stevens. "If they want to fight us for that little bit, let them," she said.

But she defended the rate, saying that "when the final figures come in, the tax rate may be a little less than eight percent or a little more than eight percent."

Commissioners will set the tax rate at 6 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 13, and will vote on the county budget at 7 p.m.

Four measles cases reported in county

Four cases of measles have been reported in Bandera County, reports the Bandera Family Practice Clinic.

Four cases have shown up in the office of Dr. James Womack, reports a spokeswoman for the clinic.

Womack encourages everyone to get their measles vaccine and if they are 12 years of age or older, then should have their second measles vaccine, if they haven't had it," says the spokeswoman.

Beginning Jan. 1, children will have to have a measles vaccination before they can enter school, Womack says.

Last year, Womack's clinic reported one case of measles in Bandera County.

LCRA rate case may not end soon

Public Utility Commission action on a $34 million rate increase requested by the Lower Colorado River Authority, now in its fourth week of hearings in Austin, may not come until October, the PUC's chief hearings officer said Tuesday, Aug. 28.

The LCRA is the Bandera Co-op's sole supplier of wholesale electricity.

Some of the other wholesale users and the PUC staff have called for a cut in rates, but the Bandera Co-op says it favors a $20 million increase.

The Co-op reiterated its support of a $20 million rate increase Tuesday by re-issuing a news release that was originally distributed by the Pedernales Electric Cooperative of Johnson City.

"The first three weeks of the proceedings were required for LCRA witnesses to present their testimony and respond to cross-examination," the Bandera and Pedernales Co-ops said. "Because several intervenors have yet to present their witnesses and LCRA will be allowed rebuttal testimony, we expect the hearings to continue into October."

The wholesale customers group that includes the Bandera Co-op is advocating a plan that emphasizes "rate stabilization" to go along with the rate increase which they hope will cause LCRA to not seek additional rate increases for at least three years.

This is the fourth LCRA rate increase request in the last three years.

In a related development, the LCRA announced this week that Standard and Poors has reaffirmed the LCRA's "A" bond rating.

Local police report quiet weekend

The Labor Day weekend netted no accidents and no major crimes in a quiet week, highlighted by six residential burglaries.

"It was a nice, quiet weekend," says Bandera County Sheriff R.S. "Steve" Forest. "I'm glad we didn't have any trouble," he says.

There were no major automobile accidents reported through Sunday, Sept. 2, with only two minor accident reported early last week.

There were a total of six cases of burglary of a habitation reported by the sheriff's department.

Two were south of Pipe Creek. A residence on Rio Rancheros Road entered through a window apparently broken by the burglars Tuesday, Aug. 28, reports deputy James Popham. The thieves took approximately 15 pounds of meat.

A burglary the same day in the Lake Forest Subdivision netted burglars a VCR and a gun.

Two 17-year-old girls, Tracy Lorraine Jones and Helen Apostolidis, both of Medina were arrested on August-dated warrants for theft of a motor vehicle owned by a Medina person, whose name was not available, reports arresting officer Popham.

Robert L. Butts, 49, of San Antonio was arrested for assault Sunday, Sept. 2, after he beat his ex-wife at Kelley's Shamrock Tavern in Pipe Creek, says Deputy Sal Obiedo.

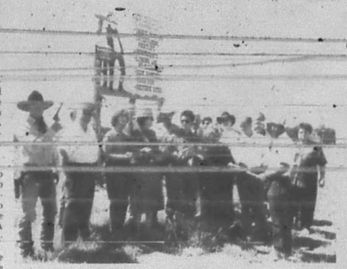
A Helotes man was taken from the race track at the request of Bandera Downs security Monday, Sept. 3, by a sheriff's deputy and was arrested for public intoxication. The man was transferred to Humana Hospital in San Antonio after it was discovered he was diabetic.

There were two other arrests for public intoxication last week.

Arrested for driving-while-intoxicated were Matthew Bryan Berger, 23, of Angleton Sept. 1, James Floyd Moore, 33, of Helotes Sept. 1, and Aubrey Lee Sanders Jr., 40, of Adkins Sept. 2.

Warren Lew Wiede, 31, of Medina was arrested by Bandera police Aug. 28 on an outstanding warrant for terrorist threat.

Dennis Bruce, 29, of Bandera was arrested by a deputy Aug. 28 on an outstanding warrant for harassment.



Bandera County Chamber of Commerce members and other community boosters gather at the new sign near Bandera Downs on land donated by Howard and Joe Canellis, Cathy Corley and Deborah West. Among those present were Bandera County Judge Ray F. Mauer, Mayor Raymond Adamietz, Dorothy Darden, Charlie Eckhart, Ross Bailey, Joel Evans, Jannet Moore, Billy Walker, Frank Anderwald, Sheila Fries, Nancy Hopes, Robert and Marilyn Stubbeman, Klayton Seeland, Kevin Fitzpatrick, Linda Romjue, Rey Garcia and artist Merrilee Swinford.

Editor named to statewide committee

Bandera Bulletin editor Nick Johnson has been appointed to the legislative committee of the Texas Press Association.

The committee is chaired by former TPA president Roy Eaton of the Wise County Messenger in Decatur, and TPA directors on the committee include Tex Rogers of the Edna Herald, Jim Hudson of the Perryton Herald, and Linda Scarbrough of the Williamson County Sun in Georgetown.

Water district's budget calls for 2.62-cent tax rate

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

The newly-formed Springhills Water Management District will hold a public hearing on their budget and water management plan Thursday, Sept. 6, beginning at 8 p.m.

Directors will vote on a budget of $141,037, over twice the budget of its predecessor, the Bandera County River Authority, which had a $60,039 budget last year.

But directors say duties of the district have at least doubled.

By setting the budget, directors will also be setting the tax rate, says general manager Ray Buck, which will be 2.62 cents per $100 property valuation, if no reserve funds from the Bandera County River Authority, which the water district replaces, are used.

The tax on a $50,000 home without exemptions, would be $13.10.

However, if the district uses the approximately $29,000 projected surplus in this coming fiscal year's budget, the district could reduce the taxpayer's budget burden to $112,000, thus requiring a 2.08 cents per $100 property valuation.

On a $50,000 home without exemptions, the tax would be $10.40 at 2.08 cents.

The tax rate of the river authority last year was 1.15 cents per $100 property valuation.

The budget includes a $50,000 consultant fee for research on a water requirements assessment survey that is being mandated by the Texas Department of Health. The new budget item is 62 percent of the increase.

At their meetings, directors have said they don't necessarily intend to spend the entire amount, but need to have the amount available. The district is planning to pursue grants from the state and funds from other counties to help pay for the required study.

Directors have also said that the district's duties may double with the underground water district responsibilities.

Other expenses is in the budget is $38,323 for salaries for the general manager, a part-time secretary, and social security payments on the salaries. There was no secretary budgeted last year.

Other expenses include $5,000 for environmental samples and $6,000 for equipment, both expenses up from previous years.

Directors will also vote on a water management plan that will contain long-term goals for the district and short-term strategies for water protection, says Buck.

Today's teenagers live in sexier world

The sixth grade is a landmark year for a child's sexual awareness. Texas Medical Association urges parents to provide children correct information to help prevent teen pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases.

When children enter middle or junior high school, their bodies are maturing. That new-found sexuality brings questions, and, for some, experimentation.

"They live in a sexier world than their parents," says James C. Hoyle Jr., M.D., chair of TMA's Adolescent Health Task Force.

"Teen boys are just as vulnerable as teen girls," says the Houston pediatrician, because girls are becoming more aggressive.

"We would like for our children to remain sexually inactive while young, but they probably won't," he says. Studies show that by age 14, one of four boys and one of five girls is sexually active. By age 17, half of boys and girls are sexually active.

"If a child elects to be sexually active - against our better judgment - they need to know about contraception and how to protect themselves against sexually transmitted diseases," he says.

Actually, sex education starts in infancy. "Children are sexual people," says Dr. Hoyle. "They have sexual feelings literally from day one - both physical and emotional."

Their sex education consists of the way they are touched, talked to, bathed, and potty trained. Also influencing children are the way their families handle nudity, the affection parents show each other, and the way they are told about a friend or relative's pregnancy.

When preschoolers ask questions about their bodies and where babies come from, parents should answer honestly. But parents should only give as much information as the child can handle, says Dr. Hoyle.

Sexual misinformation usually begins when children enter elementary school. Children tend to pick up "facts" from other children on the playground. Elementary school also often is a time to try out dirty words and tell jokes about body functions.

"Parents need to make sure their kids know what they're talking about," says Dr. Hoyle. When children find a box of tampons or condoms, parents should answer questions on the spot, he adds. "Children want to know what it is, how it's used, who does it - the nitty gritty."

Parents should avoid overreacting, laughing, or putting children off. When finished talking, parents can say, "I'm glad you asked that."

What children have not asked by seventh grade, parents, or their doctor, need to supply. Parents and physicians can offer children books on the subject, "Children may say they won't read it, but they will," says Dr. Hoyle.

Reading material depersonalizes the subject and makes it easier to talk about. In discussing the facts, parents should add information about their ethics and values.

The family doctor or pediatrician also can be a source of information. "Girls need to hear from their doctor about menstruation and breast development."

When a roomful of water rights owners of the upper Guadalupe and Sabinal rivers gathered recently in Kerrville to discuss the new South Texas watermaster program with the watermaster himself, Toby Cisneroz, there were many questions and challenges but no sense of urgency. After all, it had been raining throughout the month of July and nobody was hurting for moisture.

Now a few weeks later, while the grass is still green, streams are going down fast and we realize again why all the programs to control and allocate water in our area are being cranked in. Miller Creek running through our place, after a happy rush of flow for a while, is back down to a listless trickle.

It is part of the water which some suspicious landowners think is being doled out to irrigators here upstream so that San Antonio may continue to enjoy its fountains and water parks. But Toby Cisneroz warmly reiterated that the stated policy of Texas Water Commission is to make sure that the sometimes-scarce hill country water is shared equitably by all users from source to mouth of each stream.

We'll see, won't we? As of now, when we need to turn on the pump, we call an old friend, Bandera's Connie Taylor, now assisting Cisneroz in the San Antonio office of the South Texas Watermaster, to state the estimated water use for the week. Soon all permit-holders will be installing meters and paying for water just like city folks. So far only those pumping from rivers and streams are subject to this added cost of operation. One of these days, there will be meters on Texas water wells. A meanclent Spanish rule will apply: El subsuelo es del rey. The subsoil belongs to the king. Wells are already controlled in New Mexico.

Among Bandera County citizens at the Kerrville meeting were Susan Crawford Tracy and Clarence Lautzenheiser of Medina, along with Ruth Ann and Craig Tips and Peggy Tobin of Bandera. At the head table with Taylor and Cisneroz was the deputy watermaster rapidly becoming well-acquainted with our neighborhood, Luis Aguirre.

Aguirre recently investigated numerous complaints that water was being taken illegally from Bandera Creek for a nearby major construction project. He and Cisneroz assured those present at the meeting in Kerrville that a temporary permit was issued to the violator, who ceased withdrawals just before lowered daily average stream level would have dictated that he cease and desist by orders from the watermaster.

Meanwhile the thrashings about of San Antonio officials trying to hold on to a lion's share of area water are at times piteous. Wier Labatt said just now that agricultural water-users would have to come around to compromise. He must think, as it seems so many do, that California can feed the country, that farmers elsewhere must defer to city lawnwaterers. Has he not heard that major food-growing areas of both northern and southern California are in a major drouth and are rationing water? P.S. The yellow conservation flag is still flying in front of Bandera City Hall.

Watercolorist exhibits at Frontier Times Museum

Susie Short was born and raised in the Hill Country, and the influence of her beautiful surroundings is apparent in the wildflowers and wildlife in her transparent watercolor landscapes.

Her work will be on display in a one-artist show at the Frontier Times Museum in Bandera through Sept. 30.

The influence of her rural background and country lifestyle add a certain flair and atmosphere to the quality and realism of her watercolor paintings.

The Kerrville artist began her art career under the watchful eye of her great-uncle, Warren Hunter, at the Hunter School of Art in San Antonio. She continued to study art at Sul Ross State University in Alpine, Schreiner College in Kerrville, the Hill Country Arts Foundation in Ingram, and the Coppini Academy of Fine Arts in San Antonio.

She has studied under Daihart Windberg, Clay McClaughy and Naomi Brotherton, in addition to her great-uncle and others.

This is not Short's first one-artist show, and she has also participated in many juried shows. She was the recipient of several art awards and her work is displayed in museums, universities, homes and offices throughout the country.

The artist, who is a member of Bandera County Artists, currently divides her time between painting and teaching in special classes, workshops, demonstrations and seminars.

Medina Lake Volunteer fire department president Marion Heisler tests the brisket at the department's fall barbecue Sunday, Sept. 2. "If "the point slides through easily, it's ready to cut," he says. The department barbecued 1,640 pounds over two days.

Medina Lake VFD serves BBQ to 1,100

The Medina Lake Volunteer Fire Department served over 1,100 persons Labor Day weekend during their two-day fall barbecue.

The department served 1,120 adults and 123 children, reports department treasurer Bill Mooney.

A total of 1,640 pounds of brisket was barbecued, says department president Marion Heisler.

Also cooked were 200 pounds of beans and 400 pounds of potato salad was prepared, says Mooney.

Attendance at the affair was less than the April barbecue. "There was so much else going on," says Mooney. Tarpley held its barbecue Sunday, the PRCA rodeo was in town, and the San Antonio Grand Prix was held, reducing the department's attendance.

"Our September barbecue was not that good as compared to the spring, but that's been the usual for the fall (event) for the past two or three years," he says.

A new radio tower and fence are planned for the firehouse, says Heisler.

A 50-foot tower and cable have been donated by Dan Alanis and the department will host the tower on a concrete block. "Our low band (fire department frequency) and CB band antenna will be on the tower," says Heisler.

A fence will be installed around the barbecue area and fans installed, he says. Inside the firehouse, the overhead storage area above the office and restrooms will be screened.

The flag pole from long-time supporter Lillie Stufflebean's residence has been moved to the fire house and the flag that draped the coffin of her late husband, Glenn L. "Stuffy", will be flown above the station.

Election set next week

The Medina Lake Volunteer Fire Department and its auxiliary will hold its annual election of officers Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 10 and 11.

The fire department will hold its annual election for all posts Tuesday, Sept. 11, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the new central fire station.

Posts up for election are president, vice-president, treasurer, secretary, sergeant-at-arms, four board of directors posts, fire chief, and three assistant fire chiefs, says current fire chief Ralph Dresser.

At the meeting, department members will also review the results of the fall barbecue. The department will furnish dinner for the evening.

The Medina Lake VFD's auxiliary will hold its election of officers Monday, Sept. 10, beginning at 10 a.m. at the new fire station. Posts up for election include president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer, reports current president Dolly Dresser.

Boulben ordained deacon at LH

Robert Allen Boulben was ordained a deacon at Faith Chapel in Lakehills at an ordination service as part of the Sunday, Aug. 26, regular worship.

Boulben is the only deacon the non-denominational church currently has, says the Rev. Adrian C. Rains Jr., but he is not the first deacon.

A deacon helps and supports the pastor with administrative and operational duties in the church. "The deacon is the right hand man of the elders," but operational.

Benefit set to pay medical bills for local man

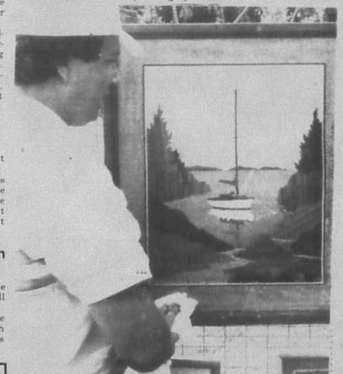
A benefit dance to raise money to help Bill Baker pay his medical bills will be held beginning at 2 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 16, at Shirley's in Lakehills.

Music will be provided by area musicians, barbecue plates will be sold at $4 starting 2 p.m. and there will an auction.

Persons wishing to donate items to the auction should call Shirley's at 751-9929.

Baker is the leader of the lake area band, the Outlaws, which has played at numerous benefits in the past.

Herb and Barbara Young of Bandera show off their carved woodcraft at the first annual Labor Day arts and crafts fair at Pipe Creek Junction Cafe Sunday, Sept. 2. Herb says he does the carving out of bass wood and Barbara says she does the painting with acrylics. Barbara also says she paints Texas-shaped knick knacks, T-shirt ties and wall hangings. Herb holds a Mallard Drake and Barbara holds a Meadowlark. Both are members of the Bandera County Artists Association, which was the primary displayer at the two-day fair. Also pictured is a painting by Verna Lee Schaefer.



Paul Gray of San Antonio polishes one of his inlaid wood works of art, that he calls, "marquetry." The picture is constructed of cut pieces of a variety of woods without paint or stain. "It's like a puzzle out of different types of wood," says Gray. He says he uses about 50 types of wood including myrtle, maple, ebony, koa, and oak. Gray says he studied painting and print making and has been working in his curent medium for 10 years. It can take as along as 35 hours to complete one piece and they may sell from $35 to $400. Creating marquetry is his full-time job and he does shows every week. He was driving through Pipe Creek Sunday, saw the show, and asked to join.

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of ten women will develop breast cancer sometime in her lifetime. It is currently estimated that over 37,000 women die each year as a result of breast cancer.
Ninety percent of breast cancers are diagnosed by women or their physicians finding a lump in the breast. Women who are diagnosed with a lump large enough to feel have a 50 percent five year survival rate. A woman who is diagnosed as having breast cancer by mammography, before a lump can be felt, has a 97% five year survival rate and a 90% 10 year survival rate. The cost is only $64.50.
A mammogram can detect a cancer this small, even before it can be felt.

NOTICE OF EFFECTIVE TAX RATE

1990 PROPERTY TAX RATES IN BANDERA COUNTY

This notice concerns 1990 property tax rates for Bandera County. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

TDH says heart disease, cancer still top Texas killers list

More than 54 percent of the 124,561 deaths of Texas residents last year resulted either from heart disease or cancer, according to the 1989 Report of Selected Health's (TDH) Bureau of Vital Statistics.

The number of deaths from heart disease decreased slightly by 641, from 40,803 in 1988 to 40,162 in 1989. However the number of cancer deaths increased by 1,438 from 25,880 in 1988 to 27,318 in 1989.

Cerebrovascular disease ranked third among the leading causes of death, claiming 8,343 Texans in 1989, while accidents caused death with 8,341 lives.

Completing the list of 10 leading killers were: (5) bronchitis, emphysema, asthma and allied conditions— 4,337; (6) pneumonia and influenza— 3,869; (7) diabetes mellitus— 2,872; (8) homicides— 2,086; (9) suicide— 2,073; and (10) chronic liver disease and cirrhosis— 1,606. The remaining 25,357 deaths of Texas residents in 1989 were attributed to other causes.

Dr. Robert Bernstein, Texas Commissioner of Health, said, "Death for whatever cause is always tragic, but since heart disease, cancer and some of the other leading killers are largely preventable, it is even more saddening."

The commissioner said that individuals can dramatically reduce the risk of heart disease and cancer by developing healthful lifestyles.

Young people should be aware that many diseases in older people are the result of years of bad habits, such a smoking," Dr. Bernstein said.

He said that physicians usually can help patients to manage diabetes, high blood pressure and tendencies towards obesity, all of which contribute to heart problems. Individuals can learn to correct their high cholesterol levels, and add needed exercise to improve their overall health.

Cancer prevention includes: not smoking, having regular checkups, maintaining a proper diet, using a sunscreen and protective clothing in the sun, and limiting exposure to chemicals and other cancer-causing substances.

A Thought For The Week By John M. Grimes

September is back to school time. From every part of the country, boys and girls, young men and young women will be starting school.

In today's world, the sum total of man's knowledge is exploding upward at an accelerating pace. It takes many more years of schooling to become well-trained in any field and further to become a well-educated human being with the established, permanent desire and ability to continue the learning process throughout life.

Let us remember that the real promise of the future lies in the vast majority of hardworking young people who look forward to the reopening of school this next month, not only for the social companionship, excitement, and fun of activities, but also because they feel the stimulation of learning about their heritage and opportunities and exploring the vast fields of knowledge now being unfolded to man's mind. As the school bells ring again, let us wish them well.

School bond issue will fill 'definite need,' says superintendent

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

Bandera's Alkek Elementary School is not only nine years old this year, but overflow problems are already causing two teachers to have to share a classroom, according to BISD superintendent Bob Dockery as he discussed overcrowding as one of the major needs for a $5.1 million bond issue that will go to the voters on Sept. 15.

"The bond issue is being presented to the public at this time because there is a definite need," said Dockery Tuesday. "There are 40 regular classrooms, all filled, and in one special education classroom, two chapter one (special education) teachers have to share a classroom for reading and math."

Dockery said that even with 40 regular classrooms the art room this year is being used for a fifth-grade classroom. There are also four special education classrooms and a music room. He indicated there might have been more of a problem if the elementary bond program had not been discontinued this year.

Fifth grades and pre-k discontinued because not only was there a lack of room, but he said there is now a trend among schools to wait until middle school level to start students in a band program. He also explained that there were not enough instruments to go around, and that some instruments were being transported between the schools on a daily basis, causing a great deal of wear and tear.

With a maximum of 22 students in each class in the lower five grades, most elementary classes are full or close to the maximum level allowed by state law, Dockery said. There are six kindergarten classes; seven first-grade classes (including one developmental class); six each of the second-, thirdand fourth-grade classes, and five fifth-grade classes.

Nine buses travel to the Pipe Creek and Lakehills area, Dockery explained.

In 1980, just 10 years ago, there were only two or three buses that went to that area," he said. At least 50 percent of the students that ride on those routes are elementary age, Dockery said.

School administrators and experts have recommended against expanding the Alkek Elementary facility for a variety of reasons, Dockery explained.

"First, the core facility was planned for 800 students," he said. "That includes the cafeteria, auditorium, rest rooms and septic facilities.

"Also, educationally, it's not a good idea to put more than that on an elementary campus," Dockery explained. "With many more youngsters than that, it gets harder to manage, and with more than that, you're going to start duplicating staff and facilities anyway.

"Also, when you're transporting that many students every [illegible] it makes sense to build a facility closer."

Dockery said the school district has planned for years to eventually build a school facility closer to the lake area when the need became great enough.

Also at the junior high campus, plans include renovation of the library wing for art and theatre arts, at an estimated cost of $5,000; replacing the roof on the Main," $40,000; replacement of windows and exterior doors in Old Main, $30,000; installation of carpet throughout Old Main $20,000; renovation of Old Main restrooms, $20,000; air conditioning Old Main, $50,000; construction of covered walks and covered bus loading areas, $85,000; pavtrol, $40,000; rock retaining walls and additional fencing, $10,000; exterior security lighting, $20,000; and the grading of outdoor, free-time areas.

His House provides needed items to Lakehills poor

Faith Chapel's His House community center continues to be a center of support for the poor in the Lakehills area as well as a place for the youth.

The house on Eighth Street, which used to be the church's parsonage, is still the place where Lakehills area residents can drop off food and clothing donations that the church will in turn give to those people in need.

"We serve one family a week with items such as food and clothes," says the Rev. Adrian C. Rains, pastor of Faith Chapel.

Donations in the aluminum can drop at the church has enabled the church to raise $195 and the church has used that money to buy food for the poor. "We thank the community for their continued support and donations," says Rains.

The Lakeshore Volunteer Fire Department will hold its quarterly general meeting Saturday, Sept. 8, beginning at 11 a.m.

A committee will be appointed to nominate officers for the annual elections to be held in December. "All members are urged to attend as there are many things to discuss," says a spokesman for the department.

The fire department will hold a fire training session at 7 p.m. Saturday. "This training session will include practice with self-contained breathing apparatus, a must for any fireman entering a structure fire, and a hands-on orientation on the 3,000 gallon tanker," says the spokesman.

• Ronnie Richards of Wharton's Dock Richards Sales and Service, has donated a pipe for a flag pole at the Walker Memorial Baptist Chapel.

• A large crowd turned out Friday, Aug. 31, at the Copper Lantern to send Juanita "Sister" Shaffer off on her retirement.

Nearly everyone asked Sister how long this retirement would lastand she says she is standing by her statement that this is the last one.

Mary K. Andreas is now managing the Copper Lantern for the owners, Dickie and Dana Simmons.

Donated clothes that can't be used locally is given to the mission churches in poor areas of San Antonio, says Rains. "We never we get too many clothes, we call them and they come out and get it," he says.

However, the food remains in the Lakehills, because the poor here "have a need," says Rains.

The His House location is still being used as a youth center every Wednesday and Friday night, says Rains. Wednesday nights youth use it for study and church related meetings. Friday it is a place to gather to play games such as ping pong and have other recreation. Friday night's activities are under guidance, says Rains.

Clinics planned

The Medina Community Hospital in Hondo will establish medical clinics in Hondo and Devine, the hospital's board said last month.

The clinics, passed under U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's Rural Health Clinics Services Act, are designed to expand Medicare and Medicaid treatment facilities. They are scheduled to be opened after completion of a nine-month feasibility study, the Medina Valley Times reported.

Few changes noted in student handbook

A policy allowing students in Bandera schools to wear shorts is the most dramatic change in the BISD student policy handbook approved in August by school trustees. There are, however, a few more policy changes in the dress code and other aspects of the policy mapual.

"Beginning in 1990-91, students may wear walking shorts, split skirts or culottes to school if they are modest in appearance and do not detract from the educational process," the handbook states. "The school board is implementing this policy on a trial basis for the comfort of Bandera's students.

"If inappropriate clothes are worn to school, offending students will be sent home, and if the policy creates an undue burden on the administration, it will be eliminated. Students may not wear spandex clothing and boys may no longer wear earrings."

Bandera County 4-H set meetings

Four 4-H Clubs in Bandera County have started their new year, according to county extension agent Warren Thigpen. Each of the clubs meet on the third Tuesday of each month at 7 p.m., except the Hill Country 4-H Club in Medina, which meets the third Monday at 7 p.m.

The Bandera 4-H Club meets in the Bandera Bank Community Room. Club managers are Emily Keith (796-3563) and Michelle Godfrey (796-7145).

Pipe Creek 4-H Club meets at the Pipe Creek Volunteer Fire Department's fire house. Club managers are Leanne Miller (535-4014), John Sorrell (535-4524) and Patti Floyd Smith (535-4454).

Medina 4-H Club meets at the Medina Children's Home. Club managers are Glen and Kay Long (589-2815) and Darrell Fudge (589-7745).

The Hill Country 4-H Club meets at the Medina United Methodist Church's Youth Center. Managers are Ann Wells (589-2542) and Carol Schmidt (796-4631).

Wedding planned

Ilse Jacklyn Marie von Hoffmann and Frank Rhea Kirchgraber will be married Oct. 26 at the Mansfield Ranch in Bandera.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Karl and Maureen von Hoffmann of Ingram. She is a graduate of Taft High School in San Antonio, and formerly lived in Bandera.

The prospective groom is the son of Gerald and Bonnie Kirchgraber of Kerrville and the grandson of Rhea and the late Luelba Mansfield of Bandera.

Tuesday, high school principal Richard Delamain reported that so far, students have been doing a pretty good job of staying within the guidelines of the new rules.

Under the heading of dress and grooming on page 17 of the student policy manual, it states that dress and grooming "shall not create a health or other hazard to the student's safety or to the safety of others. Boys may not wear earrings for this reason."

Some highlights of some of the more significant changes made in the student handbook are listed in the front of the new student policy handbook. Highlights listed include:

• For students interested in taking advance placement examinations, two specific dates per year have been set in which the examinations may be taken. They must be taken in San Antonio at the Education Service Center.

Social security numbers key to service mail

Parents of service men and women can find out their offspring's mailing address by contacting their child's service branch recruiter, says Medina military mom Delia Ortiz.

"Just call the recruiter of your son's or daughter's branch of service and give him your kid's social security number," said Ortiz. "The recruiter won't tell where your child is, but he will give you an address to mail letters to," she said.

Ortiz stressed that a parent must have their offspring's social security number to get a mailing address. She also said that packages must be limited to 12 ounces or less.

"The troops really need lip balm and eye drops," she suggested.

Ortiz' son, Marine Cpl. Edward Ortiz, is in Saudi Arabia, and she has initiated a campaign to organize a local support group for parents and spouses of U.S. service members in the Middle East.

• A new bus regulation no longer allows animals on the bus for any reason.

• Students wishing to take correspondence courses must now gain approval in writing from both the counselor and principal and may take only one correspondence course at a time.

• In order to try out for high school cheerleader, a student must be a current member in good standing of the band, pep squad or flag corps.

• Bandera ISD's attendance policy is very detailed and comprehensive, and parents and students are asked to read the entire policy.

School bond issue will fill 'definite need,' says superintendent

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

Bandera's Aikek Elementary School is not only full to capacity this year, but overflow problems are already causing two teachers to have to share a classroom, according to BISD superintendent Pat Carlson. However, the overcrowding as one of the major needs for a $5.1 million bond issue that will go to the voters on Sept. 15.

"The bond issue is being presented to the public at this time because there is a definite need," said Dockery Tuesday. "There are 40 regular classrooms, all filled, and in one special education classroom, two chapter one (special education) teachers have to share a classroom for reading and math."

Dockery said that even with 40 regular classrooms the art room this year is being used for a fifth-grade classroom. There are also four special education classrooms and a music room. He indicated there might have been more of a problem if the elementary band program had not been discontinued this year.

This program was discontinued because not only was there a lack of room, but he said there is now a trend among schools to wait until middle school level to start students in a band program. He also explained that there were not enough instruments to go around, and that some instruments were being transported between the schools on a daily basis, causing a great deal of wear and tear.

With a maximum of 22 students in each class in the lower five grades, most elementary classes are full or close to the maximum level allowed by state law, Dockery said. There are six kindergarten classes; seven first-grade classes (including one developmental class); six each of the second-, thirdand fourth-grade classes, and five fifth-grade classes.

Nine buses travel to the Pipe Creek and Lakehills area, Dockery said.

In 1980, just 10 years ago, there were only two or three buses that went to that area," he said. At least 50 percent of the students that ride on those routes are elementary age, Dockery said.

School administrators and experts have recommended against expanding the Aikek Elementary facility for a variety of reasons, Dockery explained.

"First, the core facility was planned for 800 students," he said. "That includes the cafeteria, auditorium, rest rooms and septic facilities.

"Also, educationally, it's not a good idea to put more than that on an elementary campus," Dockery explained. "With many more youngsters than that, it gets harder to manage, and with more than that, you're going to start duplicating staff and facilities anyway.

"Also, when you're transporting that many students every day it just makes sense to build a facility closer."

Dockery said the school district has planned for years to eventually build a school facility closer to the lake area when the need became great enough.

Also at the junior high campus, plans include renovation of the library wing for art and theatre arts, at an estimated cost of $0,000; replacing air conditioning at Main," $40,000; replacement of windows and exterior doors in Old Main, $30,000; installation of carpet throughout Old Main, $20,000; renovation of Old Main restrooms, $20,000; air conditioning Old Main, $50,000; construction of covered walks and covered bus loading areas, $85,000; pavement, $40,000; rock retaining walls and additional fencing, $10,000; exterior security lighting, $20,000; and the grading of outdoor, free-time area.

His House provides needed items to Lakehills poor

Faith Chapel's His House community center continues to be a center of support for the poor in the Lakehills area as well as a place for the youth.

The house on Eighth Street, which used to be the church's parsonage, is still the place where Lakehills area residents can drop off food and clothing donations that the church will in turn give to those people in need.

Donations in the aluminum can drop at the church has enabled the church to raise $195 and the church has used that money to buy food for the poor. "We thank the community for their continued support and donations," says Rains.

Donated clothes that can't be used locally is given to the mission churches in poor areas of San Antonio, says Rains. "Whenever we get too many clothes, we call them and they come out and get it," he says.

However, the food remains in the Lakehills, because the poor here "have a need," says Rains.

The His House location is still being used as a youth center every Wednesday and Friday night, says Rains. Wednesday nights youth use it for study and church related meetings. Friday it is a place to gather to play games such as ping pong and have other recreation. Friday night's activities are under guidance, says Rains.

Social security numbers key to service mail

Parents of service men and women can find out their offspring's mailing address by contacting their child's service branch recruiter, says Medina military mom Delia Ortiz.

"Just call the recruiter of your son's or daughter's branch of service and give him your kid's social security number," said Ortiz. "The recruiter won't tell where your child is, but he will give you an address to mail letters to," she said.

Ortiz stressed that a parent must have their offspring's social security number to get a mailing address. She also said that packages must be limited to 12 ounces or less.

"The troops really need lip balm and eye drops," she suggested.

Working On A Killer Tan?

This year, over 7,800 Americans will die of skin cancer. And over 500,000 new cases will be detected.

That's a tragedy. But those numbers could be easily reduced if more people would use sunscreen, cover themselves, wear hats, or simply reduce their exposure to the sun.

Help put an end to America's most common form of cancer. Play it safe — and don't get burned.

Tarpley — Nettie Dean 852-5164

Tarpley

Late Saturday afternoon the Tarpley area had quite an electrical storm complete with thunder and lightning and up to an inch of rain in some areas. The rain helped settle the dust and cool things off in preparation for the VFD's annual barbecue cook-off.

• Many former Tarpley folks came from far and near to enjoy barbecue and fellowship Sunday, Sept. 2 at the Tarpley Volunteer Firefighters annual barbecue on the community center grounds.

"It's just a little street where old friends meet."

• Saturday, old friends Topsy and Billy Jarbeaux came from Corpus Christi to visit Harold and Viola Jackson. The Jarbeaux left Sunday morning on their way to Denver.

Other visitors Sunday afternoon of the Jacksons were the Rev. and Mrs. Vernon Andrews of San Antonio. The Andrews also attended church services and the Tarpley barbecue.

• Tarpley Baptist Church reported some 36 present in worship services Sunday morning.

The Rev. W.M. "Bill" Patterson of Kerrville will be holding Sunday morning services at Tarpley Baptist Church. The Rev. Gale Long of Hondo has been supply pastor since the Rev. Vernon Andrews resigned in June.

• Visitors Monday of Harold and Viola Jackson were his daughter and her family, Pat and Kenneth Callaway and daughters Sandra and Michelle, all of Nixon.

Friends in the Tarpley area have also visited Harold since his recent hospital stay.

• Birthdays observed recently have been Viola Jackson, Sept. 1 and Bill Morris, Aug. 30.

• Bill and Willie Morris's families were here from San Antonio Saturday, also Billy and Tori Morris from Austin. They were all here to help Bill celebrate his birthday.

• Visitors of Mr. and Mrs. W.W. Riley over the weekend were their son and daughter-in-law, Dennis and Judy Riley of Corpus Christi; and grandchildren Jennifer Riley and Woody Riley and Woody's friend Lillian Riojas, all three from Baylor University.

• Friends were happy to hear that Mary Hietalahti was able to bring her husband Ray home after recent stay at Audie Murphy VA hospital in San Antonio.

Ray reports that he is happy to be home.

• Dorothy Maness of San Antonio visited her sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. A.B. "Skeets" Singleton.

She left Monday and Bobby returned with her for a while to have a medical check-up. While in San Antonio, Bobby also plans to visit her mother, Virginia Terrell.

• Visitors of Bill Thompson and sister Bobby Brosius over the weekend were his nephew Scott Brosius and wife and son Eric of San Antonio.

• Madge Chambers' daughter and a friend from San Antonio visited her Saturday.

• Elzie and Nettie Dean visited former neighbors Frank and Mary Kolos and Margaret King at Divot Monday. The occasion was Mary's 86th birthday. They report it was very hot and dry there.

GOP justice candidate will speak here Sept. 14

Karen Angelini, Republican candidate for associate justice, Fourth Court of Appeals, will speak at a luncheon hosted by the Bandera County Republicans Friday, Sept. 14, in the Bandera Bank Community Room.

The Bandera County Republican executive committee and the Bandera County Republican Women will host a soup and salad luncheon beginning at 11:30 a.m. in honor of Angelini's trip to Bandera.

The public is invited to attend and meet and talk with the candidate, Republican spokeswoman Claire Johnston said.

Angelini received the Republican nomination in June when the associate justice Blair Reeves decided to run for the unopposed position of justice of the fourth court of appeals. Her Democratic opponent is Orlando Garcia.

Angelini is a practicing attorney residing in Comanche. She is a former member of the law firm of Brock and Mathis. She has been with the firm since 1981, and has handled a personal injury litigation docket. For the past few years, however, she has concentrated her practice in the appellate area. She is currently the shareholder in charge of the appellate section in the firm.

Karen Angelini graduated from The University of Texas in 1972 and St. Mary's University School of Law in 1979. Following graduation from law school, she was a briefing attorney with the Fourth Court of Appeals.

Angelini is a native of South Texas, and presently resides in Bexar County. She is married and has one child.

Bulldogs look promising at pre-season scrimmages

The Bandera Bulldogs looked promising during their pre-season scrimmages against Hamilton and LaVernia as the offensive line made holes in the middle, something that didn't happen last year.

Against LaVernia, Bo Mansfield had the most carries from the backfield and led in tackles with 36 percent of the total.

Chris Hensley caught three of Jason Schneider's passes for 70 yards and Linden Stricker had a 47-yard touchdown pass reception.

Jimmy Johnson rushed for a total of 134 yards and had a 47-yard touchdown run up the middle.

Against Hamilton, Johnson rushed up the middle after breaking through the line of scrimmage, made three excellent cuts to avoid contact during a 30-yard touchdown scamper.

Although the Bulldogs aren't favored in district games this year, their play in the pre-season tests indicate they will definitely be fun to watch.

The Bulldogs open their season Friday, Sept. 7, at home against Dripping Springs at 8 p.m.

3-on-3 basketball tournament set in San Antonio Sept. 8-9

In a volleyball contest against Ingram Tuesday, Aug. 28, the Utopia junior varsity girls team defeated Ingram 15-8 and 15-6, but the Utopia varsity team was bettered in two games out of three.

Scores for the varsity game were 15-2, 14-16 and 15-5.

"Our varsity put forth a tremendous effort, enjoying many successful moments, but we were unable to beat Ingram," said Coach Johnny Bland. "The girls played hard, but just did not display the aggressive quickness required to beat them."

Utopia's volleyball girls defeated Sabinal's varsity and junior varsity Saturday, Aug. 25.

Varsity scores were 15-1 and 15-6; junior varsity scores were 15-11 and 15-11.

Saturday, Sept. 8, Utopia's Lady Buffaloes volleyball team will host a tournament. Teams scheduled to participate include Sabinal, Medina, Leakey, Comfort Brackett, Center Point and Asherton.

Utopia's Lady Buffaloes has 18 team members, including seniors Lisa Baskin, Stacy Manning, Julie Jordan, Tori Couch, Kathy Davila and Dina Weinman; juniors Kathy Hobbs, Cindy Journey, Diana Duke and Stephanie Kring; sophomores Ragan Redden, Amy Jones, Sherrie Orbison, Sugar Moore, Robin Mangum and Crystal Olsen; and freshmen Sabryna Bland and Becky Lessing.

Bandera Independent School District
Invest in Our Children
PLEASE VOTE!

1. How much money will be invested in Bandera ISD's children? $5,110,000

2. What is included in the bond package? Elementary School for 500 students in Pipe Creek/Lakehills area, $2,431,960. Junior High Construction/Renovation of Classrooms, $2,066,350. High School Construction/-Renovation of Classrooms, $566,500. Stadium and Central Office Renovation, $45,100.

3. Why is the bond package needed? In November, 1989, the Board created a committee of about 40 citizens to study the present facilities and to determine the needs of the three campuses. Their recommendations are shown here:

Alkek Elementary
Alkek Elementary, constructed in 1985 and occupied for the first time in 1986-87, has reached its capacity. About half of the 700+ students at the school live in the Pipe Creek/Lakehills area. The elementary subcommittee recommended that the Board construct a new elementary school in the Pipe Creek/Lakehills area on land that the district already owns.

Bandera Junior High
The Bandera Junior High campus, which has served, at one time or another, as the elementary campus, junior high campus, and high school campus, or all three at once, was constructed in piecemeal fashion to take care of immediate needs that existed at the time the construction took place. The Board accepted the recommendation to construct a multi-classroom building and renovate existing buildings to provide the most efficient use of the campus to meet the needs of the students in the Junior High now and in the foreseeable future.

Bandera High School
The High School buildings were constructed in 1976 and first occupied in 1977-78. The High School subcommittee determined that, although the present facilities are in very good physical shape, the enrollment is approaching capacity and some improvements and additions are necessary.

4. How will the bond package affect taxes? The increase in Debt Service Tax for the first year is $0.1545. To illustrate: The increased first year cost on a $50,000 piece of property would be approximately $77.25, or $6.44 per month (less than a quarter a day).

In subsequent years, as new residents move into the community, thereby increasing the district's tax base, the Debt Service Tax will decrease. To illustrate: Note what happened to the tax rate following the last bond election when Alkek Elementary School was built:

	Debt Service Tax Rate
1986-87	14.8 cents per $100 valuation
1987-88	13.6 cents per $100 valuation
1988-89	11.5 cents per $100 valuation
1989-90	11.1 cents per $100 valuation

5. How will the bond issue affect senior citizens? The bond issue will NOT increase taxes on homesteads for senior citizens. Property owners age 65 and older are not subject to a tax increase on their homestead unless major improvements are made on the property.

General Information About the Bond Election

Election day is Saturday, Sept. 15, 1990. The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Polling places for Bandera ISDs precincts are as follows:

$5.1 million school bond issue continues to draw little interest among voters

Only eight days still remain before building program balloting winds up

While only eight days remain before voters go to the polls to approve or reject a $5.1 million bond issue to finance a far-reaching school construction program, the campaign has generated very little interest in the community.

No organized opposition to the bonds has emerged and even school board members haven't hit the campaign trail in support of their plans.

A small ad explaining what the school officials see as the need for the $5.1 million building program was inserted by Bandera Independent School District in The Bulletin on Wednesday, Sept. 5, and a few isolated letters to the editor have appeared in opposition to the increased taxes the bonds will generate.

The bond issue is identical to one rejected on May 26, but school board members blamed the defeat on a failure of the voters to understand the need. Yet, they have done little change the minds of the voters during the past three months.

Only a slight increase in school enrollment and a whopping 42.8 percent increase in the school district's tax rate have dimmed the prospect for passage of the bonds, political observers say.

School superintendent Ted Dockery said BISD has been planning for years to eventually build a school facility in the Pipe Creek-Lakehills area when the need became great enough.

"That time has come," he said. Numbers have risen dramatically in the last ten years, he explained, adding "the property was bought by the school district in the late 1970s for just that purpose."

Voters will decide Saturday, Sept. 15 whether to authorize $5 million in school bonds that would fund, among other things, the construction of a new elementary school near Pipe Creek and major renovations at other Bandera school sites.

Voters defeated the same bond in a district-wide election May 26. Voters will again be asked to vote for or against "issuance of bonds in the amount of $5,110,000, and the levying of the tax in payment thereof."

Absentee voting began Monday, Aug. 27 and will last through Tuesday, Sept. 11. By the close of the day Wednesday, Sept. 5, there had been 184 absentee ballots cast, including 82 at Bandera High School, 14 at Bandera Junior High School, 70 in Lakehills and 18 in Pipe Creek.

Absentee voters can cast their ballots at the BISD school superintendent's office between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday from Aug. 27 through Sept. 11.

Branch absentee voting sites include Bandera Junior High School (Room 9), Barrel House at Pipe Creek, and Lakehills Ice House, located at the intersection of Highway 1283 and Park Road 37.

Branch absentee voting sites include Bandera Junior High School (Room 9), Barrel House at Pipe Creek, and Lakehills Ice House, located at the intersection of Highway 1283 and Park Road 37.

Voting takes place at the alternate locations between the hours of 5 and 8 p.m. Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday Sept. 1 and Sept. 8, and from 1 to 3 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 9.

Sept. 15 voting sites will be at the Bandera Junior High School campus for voters in precincts 1,5,7, and 8, at Pipe Creek Community Center for voters in precincts 2 and 3; and at Lakehills Civic Center for voters in precinct 4.

If the bonds pass, a 500-student elementary school will be built in the Pipe Creek-Lakehills area at an estimated cost of $2,406,960. It is the costliest single item on a short list of proposals that will be financed by the bonds.

A paved play-bus storage area and an underground diesel storage tank are also scheduled to be built at the elementary facility, at an estimated cost of $25,000. Total estimated cost of the new elementary school construction is $2,431,960.

If the bond passes, the elementary school will be built on land the school already owns on Highway 1283 between Pipe Creek and Lakehills. The junior high construction will be on the present junior high campus.

A 16-classroom junior high facility, estimated to cost some $1,036,500, is also on the agenda.

Junior high campus plans include the construction of 16 classrooms, three science rooms with storage space, computer room, administrative offices, teachers lounge workroom, and restrooms.

Other plans for the junior high campus include renovation of the exterior of the sixth grade building, at an estimated cost of $20,000; renovation of sixth grade building's first floor for library use, $67,000; renovation of gym-cafeteria structure, $156,000; renovation of band hall, $20,000; air conditioning and renovating third grade wing to accommodate a weight room, band area, and health classroom, $24,000; construction of a P.E. dressing facility adjacent to the third grade wing, $180,000; and air conditioning the library wing, and tax office, $15,000.

Also at the junior high campus, plans include renovation of the library wing for art and theatre arts, at an estimated cost of

Twin T jackpot stands at $156,000

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

The twin trifecta jackpot starting at $156,214.40 will be offered at Bandera Downs when racing resumes Friday, Sept. 7, at 2 p.m.

Featured races this weekend will include the Saturday Governor's Cup $2,500-purse overnight with 10 thoroughbreds set to travel 5½ furlongs.

Pipe Creek Day at the races will be Sunday, with the Pipe Creek Handicap with Pipe Creek residents be able to get free admission to the race track.

The twin trifecta jackpot almost tripled over the four days from $54,194.40 available going into the fifth race Friday to some $156,214.40 after the sixth race Monday.

Director of publicity Don Rhine said this week the jackpot could reach a quarter-of-a-million dollars by the end of the weekend. "People will come for the twin trifecta. It's a big drawing card," he said.

Each day of the four-day Labor Day weekend session, over 100 persons had exchange tickets giving them the winning possibility, but the horses in the sixth race apparently fooled the bettors.

Friday will host 10 races with post time at 2 p.m. The eighth race will be a six furlong thoroughbred race and the tenth race will be a 1,000 yard race with five quarter horses and five thoroughbred entered.

Saturday's feature race will be the Governor's Cup, a 5½ furlong thoroughbred overnight handicap with a minimum $2,500 purse.

Sara Klevens is a likely favorite in the race, says Rhine, who is also the track handicapper. Sara Klevens, a five-year-old mare trained by Larry Martinez, won the ninth race at Bandera Downs July 15 in a five furlong race. In her second out at Bandera Downs, the horse was second by a neck to Live Animation Sunday, Aug. 12 in a six furlong race with a time of 1:12 1/5.

Cost of Peace is also a favorite. The five-year-old mare ran second to Gent Away in the opening day, July 6, feature race. Cost of Peace beat Ours and Yours, entered in Saturday's race July 6.

There will be three other thoroughbred races and seven quarter horse races running Saturday. Post time will be 1 p.m.

One of the races featured Sunday will be the 350-yard Freshman Allowance, with a minimum $2,500 purse.

At least ten horses were qualified in trial heat races Friday, Aug. 31 for two-year-old quarter horses.

Horses with the fastest times are Zoya at 17.87 seconds, Cayenne Smith at 17.98 seconds and Mystic Mission at 17.99 seconds. Other horses with the best times include Mr. Mystical Warrior (18.01), Dashin Kipty (18.03), Mail Call's Bunny (18.08), Risk Code (18.14), The Copper Bullet (18.15), Lambs E Divey (18.20), and Toro Lady (18.20).

Thirteen horses have been entered for the Pipe Creek Handicap to be run Sunday, Sept. 9, though the maximum number that will be able to run is 10. Starters were to be named Thursday.

Master Princely, if he starts, will carry the highest weight of the race at 122 pounds. Itoldu will carry 121 pounds and Snowjaws will carry 119 pounds.

Other horses entered include Happy Boss (118), Street Tuff (118), Snowy Commander (118), My First Comet (116), Don B There (116), Vivid Memory (116), Texas Proud (114), Justra Lark (114), Unlock Jaw (112) and Volcanic Flush (110).

Some 40 members of the Association of Racing Commissioners International, meeting in San Antonio, will be at Bandera Downs Saturday to look the facility over, says Rhine. Members from Texas, Oklahoma, Alabama, Louisiana, Arkansas, and Kentucky will visit the physical plant of Bandera Downs, he says.

Bandera Downs passed a milestone Saturday, Sept. 1, when John Lisenbe of Killeen was the 100,000 fan to pass through Bandera Downs' gate. "Lisenbe was awarded several prizes including a special day at Bandera Downs with a table in the Jockey Club

Pipe Creek Day at the Races scheduled Sunday, Sept. 16

Pipe Creek Day at the Races will be held at Bandera Downs Sunday, Sept. 16, and Pipe Creek residents will be treated to free admission to the track and the opportunity to be in winner's circle photograph.

Any Pipe Creek patron displaying a valid driver's license or other photo I.D. with a Pipe Creek address will be given free general admission to Bandera Downs.

Pipe Creek residents will be able to purchase discount grandstand reserved and Turf Club Terrace tickets. Pipe Creek residents may purchase their tickets in advance at the Pipe Creek Junction Cafe through Friday, Sept. 7. Grandstand reserved tickets are just $2 (regular $4), and Turf Club Terrace tickets are only $5 (regular $7).

"Thus far, we've been really pleased with the number of people that have attended each 'City Day,'" says Michael Zlaket, Bandera Downs' director of marketing. "But even more impressive has been the enthusiasm shown by those people, especially for the giant winner's circle photos."

In keeping with the 'City Days' tradition, there will be a special feature race named for Pipe Creek Sept. 9.

Pipe Creek representatives will present a commemorative blanket to the winning connections of the race. Immediately following the presentation, all Pipe Creek residents will be invited down to the winner's circle to join in a giant group photo.

Over 100 representatives from Bandera filled the frame on Bandera Day Aug. 10. "Bandera Day was a tremendous success," says Zlaket. "We're hoping for the same kind of turnout for these two days."

Gates open at 11 a.m., with post time set for 1:00 p.m.

Bandera Downs officials have also announced a Medina Day at the Race Sunday, Sept. 16.

Medina residents can pick up their tickets at the Old Timer through Friday, Sept. 14.

Bonds

$5,000; replacing the roof on "Old Main," $40,000; replacement of windows and exterior doors in Old Main, $30,000; installation of carpet throughout Old Main, $20,000; renovation of Old Main restrooms, $20,000; air conditioning Old Main, $50,000; construction of covered walks and paved bus loading areas, $65,000; paving and drainage erosion control, $40,000; rock retaining walls and additional fencing, $10,000; exterior security lighting $20,000; and the grading of outdoor, free-time area, installation of play equipment, landscaping, and exterior miscellaneous painting, $55,000.

Fees of $187,850 bring the total cost of proposed renovation and construction at the junior high campus to $2,066,350.

High school campus renovations include adding four classrooms plus an art storage room, at an estimated cost of $188,000; adding renovating science classrooms labs, $130,000; redirecting bus traffic, $28,000; construction of covered bus loading area to cafeteria and academic wing, $40,000; addition of security lights to faculty parking lot and entrance and exit drives, $20,000; complete seating in auditorium (536 seats), $29,000; addition of four tennis basketball courts, $80,000; and addition of a baseball field, no cost listed. Total cost of the high school project would be $566,500.

Football stadium renovations approved by the board include relocating the visitors bleachers, moving the field, painting the stadium, and renovating the concession stand, at a cost of $22,000.

The school's central office would be located in the Merrick Building, if the bond issue passes. The board voted to spend $10,000 renovating the Merrick Building for central administration offices. They also voted to construct a tax office storage area, estimated cost $8,000, and entrance ramp and walk way to the Merrick Building, at a cost of $3,000. Fees bring the total proposed cost for central administration renovation to $23,100.

Grand total for all construction and renovation is $5,109,910, according to school administration figures. The proposed bonds would finance the total cost of the projects.

When an area's population increases steadily, and schools become full to capacity, school officials and trustees are faced with a tough dilemma. How to provide adequate facilities in a district where taxpayers already feel their burden is too great to bear.

One of the most common solutions to the dilemma is for the district to sell bonds to large investors to obtain money for construction, according to Dockery.

These bonds earn interest for the investors and the school district must pay off the bonds in yearly increments," Dockery explains. "This is done by establishing or increasing a 'debt service' tax in which the district raises enough money to pay off the yearly increments.

"Usually, the rate of tax decreases each year after the first because the district's property values increase each year."

Medina Lake fishing report

Medina Lake's water is clear, but 35 feet low, according to a report by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. Black bass fishing is good to six pounds on top-water early, worms late.

Striper fishing is slow and crappie fair, with no limit on minnows and small jigs.

White bass fishing is fair, but no limits caught in 40 feet of water on chrome jigging spoons.

Catfish are good to six pounds on nightcrawlers and stink bait.

County sets marathon budget session

Public hearing scheduled at 5 p.m. Monday

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Bandera County Commissioners will finalize the county's 1990-91 budget just hours before a scheduled public meeting on the budget and the proposed 8.56 per cent county tax rate increase Monday, Sept. 10.

Commissioners will begin their marathon meetings Monday at 9 a.m. when their regular monthly meeting is gaveled to order by County Judge Ray Mauer. That meeting's agenda concerns road closures and subdivision replatting and individual requests for development.

After the regular business is concluded Monday, commissioners will start into a budget workshop on a budget that as of Wednesday still had no final price tag.

Working budget documents in the county judge's office show a possible operating budget of $1,971,605, up from last year's $1,623,850 by $347,755 or 21 percent.

But that's not the total picture, as there are still the road maintenance budgets for the precincts, ambulance fund, Mansfield Park fund, indigent health care, sanitary landfill, and the maintenance shop. That part of the budget added $1,229,925 last year.

However, a spokeswoman for the county judge's office cautioned that the figures are still very preliminary.

One large increase is the county courthouse building budget, which could climb from $117,886 to $183,077. The largest single increase is for building repairs and maintenance, which was budgeted at $50,000 last year and is proposed to go to $100,000 this year.

The $50,000 was budgeted to pay for repairs in the courthouse roof that are causing leaks. The contract to repair the roof has not been let by commissioners.

In fact, only $35,618 has been paid out of that budget line item as of March 31.

The $100,000 in next year's budget is slated to put an elevator in the courthouse, in order to comply with federal regulations concerning handicapped persons, and to add office space.

One of the largest increases is in the proposed $225,405 non-departmental budget, up $84,759 over last year's $240,710.

Increases in the county budget include the county judge's office, with a proposed budget of $70,944, versus last year's $60,345.

Other budget increases are in the clerk's office with a proposed budget of $143,694, as opposed to last year's $125,730; the county treasurer's office at $85,200, up from last year's $79,040; and the tax office at $130,098, up from last year's $124,540.

Justice courts have proposed budgets of $37,052 for precinct 1, $31,078 for precinct 2, $3,220 for precinct 3, and $16,640 for precinct 4. The increase for all the peace justices' offices is $10,589.

The largest increase is in W. Preston Bogg's court, where a $31,078 budget is proposed, an increase of $8,222 over last year's $22,856. Boggs defends his budget, citing a 33 percent increase in his workload. The increase is primarily for a clerk for his court. JP Bonnie Towers has a clerk, also.

Peace Justice Tom Grant's budget does not show a budget increase or decrease.

Constable budgets are proposed at $6,180 for precinct 1, $9,611 for precinct 2, $3,220 for precinct 3, and $2,320 for precinct 4, totalling $21,637. Last year's budget for all four constables totalled $23,253.

The largest increase is in Ernest Reich of Lakehills budget, from $6,385 to $9,611. His budget document shows a proposed purchase of a portable radio that can unscramble the sheriff's department scrambled messages at $3,000.

Constable Bill Ellis shows a reduction from $7,513 last year to $3,526 this year, in part because he is using a sheriff's department car.

Constable Donnie Walker's budget is about $855 lower than last year and constable Tom Fielder's budget is the same as last year.

The sheriff's department budget is currently proposed at $775,526, down from the original $524,837 proposed and up from last year's $384,640.

The county attorney's office, and the county court budget is up to $50,527, a $5,965 increase. In county attorney's Sam Darden's budget, revised by the county judge, Darden's salary remains the same, at $16,537. But $12,000 was added to pay for an assistant county attorney, who Darden has already appointed.

Moderate increases in the budget include District Court at $39,808, up $998 from last year's $38,810; civil defense at $2,900, up $400 from last year's $2,500; and the county veterans service office at $5,415, up $440 from last year's $5,075.

Commissioners's budget, which include their salaries and expenses is down in the proposed budget, $69,950 this year from last year's $70,745.

The public hearing on the county budget hearing will be Monday, Sept. 10, at 5 p.m. and the proposed the tax rate increase which will raise the county tax to 33.48 cents per $100 property valuation will follow at 6 p.m.

Last year's rate was 30.84 cents per $100 property valuation.

Commissioners will set the tax rate at 6 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 13, and will vote on the county budget at 7 p.m.

and all the amenities that come with it," says Rhine.

The total attendance for Bandera Downs is 111,883 for the season. The total handle for the season is $8,777,411 and the year-to-date per capita is $78.45.

Purses at Bandera Downs will be increase by 10 percent effective Sept. 14, says Rhine. "This is the second purse increase Bandera has instituted since the opening July 6," he says.

"Once again we are dedicating our efforts to improving the quality of racing in the state of Texas," says track president Don Essary. "We would like to reward the horsemen who have stood by Bandera and Texas racing and, but increasing purses 15 percent since opening day, we hope they will realize our intentions to do just that," he says.

New records for attendance and handles were set during the Labor Day weekend when a total of 21,798 fans bet $2,036,786 over the four-day period.

A record 7,574 persons attended Bandera Downs Sunday, Sept. 2, exceeding the track's 7,260 opening weekend attendance July 7. The previous state record was set at the Gillespie County Fairground track when 7,574 persons attended July 4.

The state single-race handle record was broken three times this weekend, and each time on the race with the twin trifecta wager. The record now stands at $127,648, set Labor Day.

The state single-day handle record was also set Monday when $652,361 was bet in 12 races.

The state record average-per-person wager was set Friday at $143.33. The 2,343 crowd bet $335,828 in 10 races. The previous record was $110.21.

Multiple wagers are the general rule for betters trying to hit the twin trifecta

The twin trifecta wager continues to draw the interest of the betting crowd, as evidenced by the ever increasing amount of money wagered in the twin trifecta race.

But people don't just bet the wager one time, they place multiple bets in the first half of the twin trifecta race.

The twin trifecta was a major player when the state single-race handle record was broken three days in a row Sept. 1-3, and each time in a twin trifecta race.

Saturday the record was set at $72,538, followed by $112,085 Sunday and finally $127,648 Monday.

The twin trifecta pool of the total race handle was $45,662 Saturday, $72,032 Sunday, and $94,240 Monday.

The single-race handle record had been $64,788, set Sunday, Aug. 19, at Bandera Downs in a twin trifecta race.

To win the twin trifecta, a person must pick the first-, second-, and third-place horse in the race designated as the first half of the twin trifecta, usually the fifth race of the day.

If the bettor gets a winning ticket, he or she picks their choice for the first-, second-, and third-place horses in the next race, termed the second half of the twin trifecta.

Many bettors use a technique called "boxing" to increase their chances of winning the twin trifecta.

In the fifth race, a bettor with three favorite horses will tell the pari-mutuel clerk they want a $2 box on the twin trifecta and give the numbers of their three horses in any order. The $12 the bettor then hands the clerk will pay for a ticket giving all the mathematical possibilities for those three horses to come in first, second and third.

If a bettor has four horses they think might win, a four-horse twin trifecta box can be wagered, but the bet will cost $48.

Additional box amounts are possible with a five-horse box costing $60, six-horse box costing $120, seven-horse box costing $210, and a eight-horse box costing $336.

However, even if three of the horses a bettor boxes win, the bettor will only get one exchange ticket because there is only one first-place, one second-place, and one third-place finishing horse.

If the bettor wins the first half of the twin trifecta right, they must give their three horses for the sixth race to the pari-mutuel clerk when they cash in their fifth race twin trifecta ticket.

A bettor winning the first half of the twin trifecta will get a payoff, such as the $388.60 paid Monday, Sept. 3, to over 100 people, even if he or she doesn't win the second half.

State's take reaches $768,000, Bullock says

Texas Comptroller Bob Bullock said this week the state has earned $767,807 from its 5 percent share of legalized horse race betting in Texas since it began in October 1989, more than one-half of which came from Bandera Downs.

"Since that time, the state's three tracks have reported a net total of $15,353,947 in pari-mutuel pools," Bullock said. "About 219,059 visitors went to the races during the first year of legal wagering at Texas tracks."

Racing continues only at Bandera Downs, and track officials are seeking Texas Racing Commission permission to continue to operate through Dec. 9. Gillespie County Fair's Class III track in Fredericksburg has closed its 1990 season and Brady's Heart of Texas Class II track has closed indefinitely.

Fredericksburg's track netted $2,279,947, with the state's share coming in at $1,35,532. With 12 racing days since the beginning of its season in May 1990, Gillespie County's racing handle is $55.14.

Betting at Brady's track netted $3,866,059 with the state's portion totaling $193,302 during 24 racing days between October and December 1989.

To date, wagers at Bandera Downs have totaled $8,777,211 with the state's share amounting to $438,862. The Bandera track has operated 25 racing days since July and the per capita bet has been $78.45.

Pari-mutuel horse racing taxes are placed in the general revenue fund to be used as the legislature directors, Bullock said.

SA-born Meyers' music difficult to categorize

No one has ever been able to classify Augie Meyers music as fitting any of the major musical categories that have been adhered to by radio stations and booking agencies. It was difficult to get air play on his records because the country stations thought it was too rock and rock content, the rock stations said the accordians gave it a Spanish conjunto flavor, and the Spanish stations wanted the lyrics in Spanish.

Like so many artists, Meyers had to leave home to achieve any kind of success. Although he has always had a loyal following on the South Texas and Louisiana club circuit, it wasn't until he and friend Doug Sahm formed the Sir Douglas Quintet that it included other music fans with a similar bent for doing their own kind of music that things began to happen for them on the national and international scene. Their extremely popular tours of Scandinavia and central Europe were instrumental in getting their careers moving back in the US.

Radio stations keep broadening their range of music aired and the strict dividing lines of music classification are beginning to disappear, which can only mean wider acceptance and exposure of their kind of music. Meyers says, "Hell man, I just sing and play what I feel. I don't care if you call it rock, jazz, country, conjunto, or Tex-Mex, just so it turns you on."

When Meyers plays, live or on vinyl, his music is delivered with a wide open, charismatic flair that is unpretentiousness and has been his trademark for years.

Meyers is remembered recently for his single "Keep Fat So" released off off his eighth solo album, "My Main Squeeze."

Kerrville businesses funding scholarships

A kickoff breakfast is scheduled Friday, Sept. 7, in Kerrville to start the drive for funds to pay for scholarships for students from Bandera and seven other counties.

The kickoff of Schreiner College's Hill Country College Fund campaign will be at 7:30 a.m. at Schreiner College's student center.

Hill Country College Fund grants are awarded to students who can demonstrate financial need from Bandera, Kerr, Kendall, Gillespie, Kimble, Real and Edwards counties. Students from those counties account for almost half of Schreiner's enrollment, the college said.

About racing

by Bill Lakey

Bill Lakey is a professional handicapper. His column will appear here regularly.

I will be honest, I have never been to a race track anywhere that I have had as much fun as here at Bandera Downs. The atmosphere that is being created, the crowds of people who are [illegible] ponies, the friendliness of the general public, trainers, owners, jockies and track employees that I have met all have gone together to make this an unforgettable experience.

I have had my problems with track management but that had faded into the background as I have gotten more and more involved with you Texas people. I even have a T-shirt now that says "Life is too short to not live it in Texas."

My folks got a little miffed at me because I haven't mentioned in any of my articles that they were both born in Texas, my mother outside of Wichita Falls and my dad in Shamrock. I got the feeling that they are proud of that fact. Don't blame 'em.

The twin trifecta pot continues to grow and now sits at $156,200 going into Friday's races. I expect it to go over $250,000 by Sunday, if no one hits it. If it gets to that point, you will probably see some of the "big money boys" come in to try to knock it over.

I don't like that, because I would much rather see the money wind up in local hands. Matter of fact, I would like to see several folks hit winning tickets. Unless, of course, I were to be the one to hit it and, in that case, my altruism would take a back seat to my greed, and I would want it all. I can be as big a hypocrite as anyone.

The betting handle last weekend reached an all-time high. Would have done it anyway even without the extra fourth day. I wondered how much money was left on the table because of people being unable to get to the betting windows. I don't think the state of Texas needs to worry anyone about the success of pari-mutuel betting in Texas.

Trackgoers here seem to me to be more interested in learning the ins and outs of handicapping the horses and betting them than any place I have been. There is no question that people are learning a lot about it at a fast clip just because they are interested.

I am amazed at the number of women that are taking such an interest and I am not too sure but what they make better handicappers than men do. I think they are blessed with a little more intuition.

My male ego used to be inflated when a woman asked me which horse I was going to bet on. That was until I figured out that what they really wanted to know was which horse not to bet on. If I had the horse picked, they would throw him out.

I don't know how many times my girlfriend has said, "Give my some money, I am going to put it on so and so." I look at so and so and say, "Why do you want to throw your money away; we have already made our bets."

As I watch the horse she liked daylight the field, I know I am in for a rough time the rest of the day. I have had it happen as many as three times in a day and that's when I order my first beer for the day and things really go to hell from there.

You see, I don't like drinking at the racetrack because I start getting a little less conservative. I have a hard enough time doing the right thing without that little push toward what I call "The Twilight Zone." The Twilight Zone being, of course, those times when one is out of touch with good sense. OK for me at times, but not at the racetrack when a certain amount of concentration is called for.

So, if you see me with a beer in my hand at the track you will now know that, once again, I didn't give that blonde money with which to bet her "gut feeling," and, once again, she was right, and, once again, I am feeling the need to fortify myself for the "I told you so, dummy" lecture that is coming later.

See you at the track.

Telephone company says area code will be required for long distance

Long distance telephone calls in the 512 area must be dialed with the area code (1-plus-512 or 0-plus-512) beginning at midnight Sunday, according to Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

"We're nearing the point where we will be running out of phone numbers," says Ma Bell spokesman Doyle Bebee. He explained that the company plans to create new local dialing prefixes and these numbers cannot resemble area codes.

"The new prefixes will have an 0 or a 1 as a middle digit, as do area codes," Bebee said. "Local number prefixes in this area do not have such a configuration at this time. As we create such prefixes," he said, "it's necessary to dial 512 to avoid confusing telephone switching equipment.

"This means preprogrammed local distance numbers within the area, such as those used with speed dialing or call forwarding, must also include the 512 area code," he said. "Without dialing 512, you'll reach a recording saying you must dial 512 to complete your call," Bebee warned.

Setting it straight

The average cost of educating 1,500 students in the Bandera schools is $3,300, not $33,000 as charged in a letter to the editor from Don Davis of Pipe Creek.

Setting it straight

It was Crystal Lynn Terral who was born in June to Dyan and Kenneth Terral, not Crystal Lynn Ferral.

Trees offered

Ten free live oak trees will be given to each person who joins the National Arbor Day Foundation during September, the foundation said.

Membership fee is $10 and may be sent to Ten Live Oaks, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, Neb. 68410.

Bandera hosts Dripping Springs, Medina entertains Junction

The storms of high school football will resound throughout the Hill Country Friday as most teams make their 1990 debut, although both Bandera and Medina are underdogs in their 1st tilters, both new coaches exude confidence.

Bandera has found 3 new running back to go with veteran Bo Mansfield, and first-year Bulldog Coach Chris Storer's reputation as a defensive specialist gives rise to new optimism that the Dogs can surpass last year's 3-7 record.

Mansfield, a punishing runner one junior is bigger and stronger this year, and the presence of junior Jimmy Johnson in the backfield should add to the balance of the Bulldog's running attack. Those hosses, coupled with a new-found ability by the offensive line to block effectively, could add vital punch to Bandera's attack.

Veteran quarterback Jason Schneider is also back and improved with age.

But it was his defense that led Storer to a 34-10-1 career record and 12-2 at Frost last year. If he can shore up the Bulldogs in that phase of the game, there may be reason for optimism.

First-year Medina coach Joe Winchell also expresses confidence over his Mobcats' chance in the season's opener with Class AA Junction. "According to what I've seen in their scrimmages, if we jump on them early and take charge of the game, they'll back off and we'll win," he said this week.

The Bobcats are a 17-point underdog by the Harris rating, but that doesn't deter Winchell. You can reduce that to about 11 points because of Medina's home-field advantage.

"They've lost 18 in a row," Winchell notes, "and we won 2-8 last year. We both need to win this game real bad to get off to a good start."

Winchell says he go with Cody Wells as quarterback, but may alternate him with senior Sloan Baker.

Junction's Eagles are expected to throw a basic 4-3 defense at Medina.

Bandera is rated six points behind Dripping Springs in the Harris ratings, but that may be completely neutralized by the Bulldogs' home-field advantage.

The Tigers are new members of District 3-AAA, the league Bandera played in last year. The return only six starters, including four on offense, from a team that finished 6-4 last year.

They are paced by senior fullback Jeff Hall, a 5-10, 185 pounder who gained 887 yards last year and scored seven touchdowns, but look for some fireworks from junior wingback Ryan Street, the son of former University of Texas quarterback James Street.

The Tigers also have some experience at the signal-calling position, which will be haggled by senior Michael Lindeman.

Polish-American calendar to be issued

A calendar for Polish-Americans containing traditional Polish namesdays, feast days, national holidays and information on Polish folklore, history and culture will be published by a Detroit man who says he visited Polish sites in the Bandera area last December.

The 1991 calendar will be illustrated with 12 black-and-white photographs of Poland's religious shrines.

Its publisher is Don Samuil who wrote a personal note on publicity material sent to The Bulletin indicating he had visited here late last year. "Visited Polish sites in your area last December, including St. Stanislaus," he wrote. St. Stanislaus Catholic Church in Bandera is the second oldest Polish-American Catholic church in Texas.

The calender may be obtained for $4.75 from Don Samuil, 6261 Artesian St., Detroit, Mich. 48228.

Parents night planned at Alkek Elementary School

Parents of Alkek Elementary School students can visit their child's classroom Tuesday, Sept. 11, beginning at 7 p.m.

"Parent's Night" has been planned to acquaint parents with their child's school setting; schedules, class rules, reading and promotion requirements and other goals for the school year, says principal Al Kindla. "We want the parents to meet the teachers and get to know the class room routine," he says.

The schedule of presentation will be staggered so parents can attend two or more grade level presentations, he says.

The first grade session lasts from 7 to 7:15 p.m., second grade form 7:20 to 7:35 p.m., third grade from 7:40 to 7:55 p.m., fourth grade from 8 to 8:15 p.m., and fifth grade from 8:20 to 9:00 p.m.

The sessions were staggered so parents can attend more than one grade, Kindla says. Parents should go directly to their child's classroom, he says.

Texas revolutionary history and Mayan deciphering to be demonstrated

An opportunity to learn to decipher ancient Mayan writings and a living history exhibit will be part of this weekend's activities at San Antonio's museum.

Members of the San Antonio Living History Association will take museum visitors back to the days of the Texas Revolution with outdoor demonstrations, from 1-4 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 8, at the Witte Museum, 3801 Broadway.

Dressed in period, 1830's costumes, these afficionados of history will roam the museum grounds, telling first-person tales of the Texas fight for independence. Volunteers from the group will perform military drills and demonstrate the handling and firing of frontier weapons, such as old muskets and the famous Brown Bess rifle.

Visitors will experience the lifestyle of Texas' founding fathers, as they watch a blacksmith working over a fiery forge, or observe costumed characters performing domestic chores of the day including sewing, tending wood and making leather moccasins.

The demonstration is free with museum admission.

Deciphering ancient writings from the Mayan language will be presented by specialists Dr. Katharyn Josserand and Dr. Nick Hopkins at a weekend Mayan Hieroglyphic Writing Workshop, from 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 8 and 9, at the Witte Museum.

Josserand and Hopkins, whose research has been supported by grants from the National Science Foundation and the National Endowment for the Humanities, will begin Saturday's session with a slide lecture on the remarkable Mayas, a Pre-Columbian society in southern Mexico and Guatemala. Participants will explore the surprisingly accurate Mayan calendar and uncover the origins of Mayan writing - a language without an alphabet. The class will examine the style and content of hieroglyphic carvings found on centuries-old monuments, temples and tombs.

Sunday will be spent translating and studying ancient glyphs and stelae. Through hands-on analysis, participants will decode mysterious inscriptions from the classic Maya ceremonial site of Palenque, Mexico.

Cost of the two-day program is $45 for museum members and $57 fro non-members, including lecture, hands-on analysis and accompanying workbook.

Witte changes hours

Fall hours at the Witte Museum and the San Antonio Museum of Art go into effect Saturday, Sept. 1. Both museums will be open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. except Sunday, when they will be open from noon to 6 p.m., and Tuesday, when they will be open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Exhibit set in SA

"64 Beds Project," an exhibit, will be showing at the Blue Collar Gallery in San Antonio Friday, Sept. 7 from 6-9 p.m. revolutionary history and Mayan deciphering to be demonstrated

...ity to learn to ...Mayan writings ...tory exhibit will ...weekend's activi- ties at San Antonio's museum.

Members of the San Antonio Living History Association will take museum visitors back to the days of the Texas Revolution with outdoor demonstrations, from 1-4 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 8, at the Witte Museum, 3801 Broadway.

Dressed in period, 1830's costume, these afficionados of history will roam the museum grounds, telling first-person tales of the Texas fight for independence. Volunteers from the group will perform military drills and demonstrate the handling and firing of frontier weapons, such as old muskets and the famous Brown Bess rifle.

Visitors will experience the lifestyle of Texas' founding fathers, as they watch a blacksmith working over a fiery forge, or observe costumed characters performing domestic chores of the day including sewing, cording wood and making leather moccasins.

The demonstration is free with museum admission.

Deciphering ancient writings from the Mayan language will be presented by specialists Dr. Katharyn Josserand and Dr. Nick Hopkins at a weekend Mayan Hieroglyphic Writing Workshop, from 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 8 and 9, at the Witte Museum.

Josserand and Hopkins, whose research has been supported by grants from the National Science Foundation and the National Endowment for the Humanities, will begin Saturday's session with a slide lecture on the remarkable Mayas, a Pre-Columbian society in southern Mexico and Guatemala. Participants will explore the surprisingly accurate Mayan calendar and uncover the origins of Mayan writing - a language without an alphabet. The class will examine the style and content of hieroglyphic carvings found on centuries-old monuments, temples and tombs.

Sunday will be spent translating and studying ancient glyphs and stelae. Through hands-on analysis, participants will decode mysterious inscriptions from the classic Maya ceremonial site of Palenque, Mexico.

Cost of the two-day program is $45 for museum members and $57 fro non-members, including lecture, hands-on analysis and accompanying workbook.

Witte changes hours

Fall hours at the Witte Museum and the San Antonio Museum of Art go into effect Saturday, Sept. 1. Both museums will be open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. except Sunday, when they will be open from noon to 6 p.m., and Tuesday, when they will be open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company has filed an application with the Texas Public Utility Commission to introduce new optional services – Call Control Options. The initial service areas will be Laredo, McAllen and Austin. Expansion into other service areas will be based on availability. Customers in other areas will be notified when these services become available.

Call Control Options include six new services – Call Blocker, Call Cue, Call Return, Priority Call, Call Trace and Selective Call Forwarding. The features will be available to single-line residence and business customers.

Call Blocker – enables the customer to block incoming calls from a maximum of three specified telephone numbers and/or to block the last incoming call.

Call Cue – enables the customer to automatically redial the last outgoing telephone number dialed. If the recalled number is busy, equipment will monitor the line for a maximum of 30 minutes and will let the customer know when the call can go through.

Call Return – enables the customer to automatically redial the telephone number of the most recent incoming call. If the number is busy, Call Return will continue to dial the number for up to 30 minutes, or until it completes the call.

Priority Call – provides the customer with a distinctive alerting signal, ring or Call Waiting Tone (if the customer has subscribed to Call Waiting), when the customer is called from a maximum of three preselected telephone numbers.*

Call Trace – enables the customer to initiate a trace of the last incoming call received. The number, date and time will be recorded by Southwestern Bell Telephone so that the call's origin can be identified.

Selective Call Forwarding – enables the customer to forward incoming calls from specified telephone numbers (maximum of three) to another telephone number.

Bond issue draws increased interest as voting looms

Absentee numbers indicate heavy turnout for Saturday balloting

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

Just days before voters return to the polls to decide for a second time whether to pass more than $5 million in school bonds, community interest has grown considerably concerning the bonds and their impact on the school's financial position.

By the close of voting Monday, there were more than twice the number of absentee ballots cast than were cast absentee in May's election. Monday, with one more day of absentee balloting left, some 350 voters had cast their ballots. In May, when the bond issue came before voters for the first time, there were a total of 133 absentee ballots.

Of the 350, 192 voted in Bandera, 42 voted in Pipe Creek and 116 in Lakehills.

Voters will decide Saturday, Sept. 15 whether to authorize $5 million in school bonds that would fund, among other things, the construction of a new elementary school near Pipe Creek and major renovations at other Bandera school sites.

Voters defeated the same bond in a district-wide election May 26 by a vote of 627 to 466. Voters will again be asked to vote for or against "the issuance of bonds in the amount of $5,110,000, and the levying of the tax in payment thereof."

Sept. 15 voting sites will be at the Bandera Junior High School campus for voters in precincts 1,5,7, and 8; at Pipe Creek Community Center for voters in precincts 2 and 3; and at Lakehills Civic Center for voters in precinct 4.

The total amount of the bond election is $5,110,000. If the bond issue passes, the tax rate on a $50,000 home, for example, would be $4.53 a month or $54.30 a year.

"These bonds earn interest for the investors and the school district must pay off the bonds in yearly increments," school superintendent Ted Dockery explains. "This is done by establishing or increasing a 'debt service' tax in which the district raises enough money to pay off the yearly increments.

"Usually, the rate of tax decreases each year after the first because the district's property values increase each year."

Another factor that may play a part in whether the bond issue passes is a recent tax increase in BISD. Tax rates for the upcoming year have jumped to $1.0599 per $100 valuation, compared to 74.21 cents last year.

If the bonds pass, a 500-student elementary school will be built in the Pipe Creek/Lakehills area at an estimated cost of $2,406,960. It is the costliest single item on a short list of proposals that will be financed by the bonds.

A paved play/bus storage area and an underground diesel storage tank are also scheduled to be built at the elementary facility, at an estimated cost of $25,000. Total estimated cost of the new elementary school construction is $2,431,960.

If the bond passes, the elementary school will be built on land the school already owns on Highway 1283 between Pipe Creek and Lakehills. The junior high construction will be on the present junior high campus.

A 16-classroom junior high facility, estimated to cost $1,036,500, is also on the agenda.

Junior high campus plans include the construction of 16 classrooms, three science rooms with storage space, computer room, administrative offices, teachers lounge/workroom, and restrooms.

Other plans for the junior high campus include renovation of the exterior of the sixth grade building, at an estimated cost of $20,000; renovation of sixth grade building's first floor for library use, $67,000; renovation of gym/cafeteria structure, $156,000;

County may cut some jobs: Mauer

Commissioners continue to wrestle with budget

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Bandera County Commissioners cut $126,000 from next year's proposed $3.256 million county budget, but County Judge Ray Mauer says more cuts will have to come and he held out the possibility Tuesday that some county jobs may be cut.

About 10 people attended the county budget and county tax rate increase public hearing Monday, Sept. 10, and found commissioners, the judge, and staff still trimming the budget.

Commissioners scheduled another round of budget cutting Wednesday, Sept 12, at 9 a.m. and will vote on the 33.48 cents per $100 property valuation tax rate increase Thursday, Sept. 13, at 6 p.m. at the courthouse.

The county is faced with an income of $2,614,297 in the coming year and the proposed budget that first went to commissioners was set at $3,255,787.

One reason the county has less money is the appraisal of property in the county, which is $518,050,948, down $2,635,638 from last year's $520,686,586.

Some $110,000 has been cut from the road and bridge budget and $126,343 from county departments.

That reduction of 3.9 percent is insufficient, however, as the revised proposed budget stood at $3.02 million, still $405,147 over a balanced budget.

Commissioners have agreed to an overall cut of $110,000 from their road and bridge budgets, the money commissioners use to maintain and repair county roads, says Mauer. The combined four-precinct budgets were at $769,570 and the $110,000 cut will leave $659,570 for the commissioners to divide up.

But the cuts so far "are not

Bandera Downs hits $10 million mark

The total betting at Bandera Downs exceeded the $10 million milestone after a weekend crowd of 10,341 persons wagered $1,302,833.

And a group of six men won over $206,609.60 in the twin trifecta with a single winning exchange ticket Friday.

The year-to-date handle at Bandera Downs soared to $10,080,074 Sunday, Sept. 9.

Race fans have been betting $350,000 to $400,000 each race day recently and that trend is "above our projections," director of publicity Don Rhine said Sunday. "We didn't expect the $10 million handle this early," he said.

Total betting this weekend was $472,379 Friday when the $206,609.60 twin trifecta was won, and stayed intense with $405,768 wagered Saturday and $424,686 risked Sunday.

The per capita record was broken Friday, Sept. 7, when average per person betting for the day was $169.01. There were 2,795 persons in attendance that day.

The previous record was set last Friday, Aug. 31, at $143.33 when 2,343 persons bet $335,828 in 10 races.

The per capita stayed above $100 all three days this weekend. Saturday's per capita was $109.87 and Sunday's was $110.23. "The key is the per capita. We want to keep it over $100," Rhine said. Race fans also broke the state single-race handle record with $145,000 bet in the fifth race, due to the twin trifecta.

The previous record was Labor Day's $127,648.

The twin trifecta was won Friday after a group of six men from Houston, San Marcos and San Antonio bet extensively on the fifth race in order to come up with 12 winning exchange tickets that they turned into one winning ticket in the sixth race.

Only one of the men revealed his name, Charlie E. Lewis of Houston, who acted as spokesman and broker for the group.

Lewis did not reveal how much they bet, but did say that they bet "quite a bit of money" in the fifth race. "It wasn't cheap."

They bet an unnamed number of horses in various combinations and then bet some of those combination multiple times. From their combined betting, they had 12 winning exchange tickets from the fifth race. "There were 135 (total) exchange tickets," says track director of operations Alison Hines.

They then named 12 sets of horses in the sixth race and were awarded one winning ticket when Red Storm Rising came in first, Shiney Example ran second, and Fashion Request placed third.

He's still undecided, Fitzsimmons says

Texas Racing Commission chairman Hugh A. Fitzsimmons Jr. said Saturday he wasn't sure whether he'd vote for or against Bandera Downs' application to add at least 18 racing days in 1990.

The issue will be settled Wednesday, Sept. 12, at the Texas Racing Commission meeting when Bandera Downs will ask to expand their racing calendar to Dec. 9.

But he said there might be some opposition presented at the meeting to the track's proposal.

Fitzsimmons, who was at Bandera Downs with as many as 25 members of the Association of Racing Commissioners International meeting in San Antonio, said he'd "have to hear the arguments" on the merits of extending the racing dates.

"I haven't the foggiest idea how I'll vote," Fitzsimmons said. "Our job is to listen to both sides and make a decision," he said.

"I assume there will be some opposition," he added.

Fitzsimmons said he was pleased that the track's handle had exceeded expectations. "Bandera Downs is doing a super job," he said. Bandera Downs passed the $10 million dollar year-to-date handle Sunday.

"I don't see how it can do anything but keep improving," he said.

But in the future, Fitzsimmons said he'd like to see Bandera expand its dates to also include more days in a week. "I would like the track to eventually expand the racing week - race more days per week."

Currently Bandera Downs only races three days a week, except the four-day Labor Day weekend. "With a good marketing program, they can get good crowds during the week - it's good for the horsemen and good for the state," said Fitzsimmons.

But he cautioned that an expansion to four or five days a week should be gradual. "It doesn't happen overnight," Fitzsimmons said.

And while Fitzsimmons said he was pleased that the track's handle had exceeded expectations, he also said, "I'll be happier when they can increase purses and race more thoroughbreds. But that will come with time," he said.

The track has announced its intentions to increase the winning purses by 10 percent effective Sept. 14. This will be the second increase since opening day. The track previously increased purses five percent.

In the overall Texas pari-mutuel picture, more betting opportunities and higher purses at Texas pari-mutuel horse racing tracks will improve Texas' horse industry and the Texas

Don't send wrong message

Dear editor:

Any good household budget planner understands that when future spending is projected, one must ask: What can we afford? Hard choices must be made, particularly on expenditures that might be termed "luxuries." Making decisions concerning expenditures for public education should be no different. We need to face some difficult questions.

When competition for employment in professions and even unskilled positions is growing steadily, can we afford to send our youth into the job market with less preparation? When Japanese and European interests are making progressively stronger inroads into industries once dominated by U.S. companies, can we afford to tell our students that we are unwilling to pay the costs to help them compete? When greater numbers of students are choosing to stay in school (as we've always urged them to), can we afford to have them infer that we as a society no longer value education? Can we, as a community, afford to give the impression to potential home buyers that this community does not support its schools? Can we, in short, afford the luxury of selling our children's futures down the river simply because we don't want to pay the costs of providing the educational tools they need?

Bandera ISD does not spend extravagantly, as some of your readers would have you believe. If the district really planned to spend over $30,000 per student, taxpayers would and should be outraged (one decimal point makes a huge difference). If district funds rather than donations from backers of the athletic program built the high school weight room, teachers would and should be outraged.

The value that students in Bandera schools place on academics will be affected by the attitude that local voters take toward education spending. We cannot afford to sent our students the wrong message. I urge you as editor to take a positive position in support of public schools; I urge your readers to consider the vital needs of the students of this district.

Build storage shed instead

Dear editor:

I grew up in Bandera County and went to school here, my four children graduated from Bandera High School, and my grandson is now attending Alkek Elementary School. So I am very interested in the students getting a good education. The schools were overcrowded in 1972 and the school board dealt with the conditions by purchasing seven portable buildings, which gave them 14 extra classrooms.

In 1974 and 75, I was on a committee appointed by the school board to help pass a bond issue for a new high school. As part of the agreement, the board promised and recorded in their minutes that the next school would be built in the Lakehills-Pipe Creek area. Gussie Hiesler donated 12 acres on FM Road 1283 for that purpose.

Mr. (Ted) Dockery stated in last week's Bulletin that there were only two or three buses going to the Pipe Creek-Lakehills area in 1980. This is not true. There has been at least six buses going to this area since 1974-75. Building a new school in the Pipe Creek-Lakehills area would not mean fewer buses, because most of the elementary students would still be bussed and the junior high and high school students will still be bussed to Bandera.

In 1975 taxpayers were told our taxes would not increase to pay the bonded indebtedness for the new high school because of the sale of school land in Maverick County. But our taxes did go up, greatly, to pay for the added expense of maintaining a new campus. Has anyone ever checked to see how much the utilities alone are on each campus?

The school administration is already estimating that our taxes may go up 45 percent to replace funds the state has taken away from us. The taxes will go up another 10 to 15 percent for the construction of a new school, to say nothing about how much it would cost to maintain a fourth campus.

The attendance in the new elementary school has increased by only 75 to 80 students in the two years since it was built. Does this warrant building a new school? I say, no! If we need more classrooms, then I suggest we use the portable buildings we still own, of which five are being used for storage. I think it would be a lot cheaper to build a good storage building.

Consider the people involved

Dear editor:

Why do we need a new elementary school?

• Space and schedules. As our enrollment grows, we will not only require additional classrooms for homerooms, but we'll also need additional resource rooms to meet the number of students with special needs (special education, speech therapy, Chapter I math and reading).

Our current facility would need an additional music room, a larger indoor physical education area which could accommodate increased class loads on bad weather days and all-school assemblies. We already need expanded staff lunch/work/restroom area and additional parking for all-school functions.

The cafeteria currently serves the first lunches at 10:45 a.m. and the last ones at 12:30 p.m. Increased enrollment would mean earlier and/or later lunch periods.

• Location. According to the '89-'90 residence survey, 42 percent of the elementary student body came from the Pipe Creek-Lakehills area. Some students spend 1¼ hour (one way) riding the bus to and from school each day.

• Size. We already have an enrollment of over 700 students. How large are we willing to grow? Does it make any difference that a 5- to 12-year-old child is merely one of 800, 900 or 1,000 students?

Forced growth at Alkek (School) is more than parking a portable building. Please stop to consider the people involved.

An easy answer for him

Dear editor:

Just what is wrong with our public school system? For those of us who remember the 1960s, this question is very easy to answer. That's when we allowed the public education system to ban God from the classroom and following that move they banned all prayers in schools. The word God or Jesus could not be used unless you were cursing a teacher or an official.

Now, with the devastation of the system, those in charge are blinded with the illusion that more and more tax money is the answer to this horrendous problem.

We taxpayers have given them everything but our shirts and the problem is not being solved, only getting worse! It is time to say, "enough is enough" and stand up and be counted. It is time to get back to basics and stand on the beliefs we had when this country was founded.

Let's start with no more bonds, no more tax increases and, above all, stop these liberals from spending and spending to cover their failures. Let's have a rollback, if we are forced to.

Citizens over 65 (years of age) shouldn't be kidded that their taxes are frozen. Anything they own above and beyond their homestead, car or (personal) property will be taxed the same as those under 65.

Let's have the largest voting turnout we have ever had and send a warning to the big spenders in our school district that we mean business.

C.W. Rhodes
Bandera

We're already paying

Dear editor:

"War in Mid-East blamed for beef price increase." "Government says recession more than possible." "LCRA asks for $20 million rate increase." "Homeowners insurance to increase by 22 percent." "Sin tax imposed on alcohol and cigarettes." "Gasoline prices soar at the pump." "Heating fuel prices to increase." "Massive layoffs put thousands out of work." "Springhills water management districts ask for 127.8-percent tax hike."

On top of all this, the Bandera ISD is asking us to dig even deeper and pass a $5.1 million bond issue. Oh, I almost forgot to mention they have already agreed to increase our school taxes by 42.7 percent and the county is also asking for increases, and (employees of) almost every taxing unit have received raises. Did your boss give you a raise?

This is totally staggering. What on earth do these people we elect do when they get into office? Don't they know what STOP means? Maybe we aren't asking enough questions before we vote. Maybe electing educators to the school board is a "no-no." How about electing people who only have a sincere desire to educate kids and serve the taxpayer?

I don't know the answer. I just know it has to stop somewhere, and now is as good a time as any. I was told today that if the bonds didn't pass, there is a good chance they couldn't even open the doors (of schools) next year. Well, my answer is, "If you are truly interested in the children and you really care about eduction, you will find a way even if it means becoming an "essential school" that are used in other parts of the country. Essential schools do not have electives. They teach the basics and they teach them well.

Here is some incidental information of interest: Not all of the 40 or so people on the study committee were in favor of the school (building) proposal. However, it is evident their opinions didn't count. The partial cost to the taxpayers of the school bond election (source: Ted Dockery) includes $592.50 for election judges on May 26, $255 for legal advertising, $592 for election judges on Sept. 15, $216 for conducting a voter roll for later hours, $109 for an ad on page 16 of last week's newspaper, unknown cost of printed material given to children and others to take home to parents and passed out at Friday's football game. Believe it or not, you and I are paying dearly just to get this shoved down our throats again.

By the way, what happened to the ¼-cent sales tax increase passed to fund schools?

Rilla Stephens
Bandera

(Editor's note: The sales tax increase was to equalize education in richer and poorer schools. Bandera, not being a poor district when total tax valuation is divided by number of students, apparently received none of that.)

We must pay fair share

Dear editor:

The Aug. 29 issue of The Bulletin contained articles stating the increased enrollment and the tax rate as it compares to other districts in our area. Granted, the tax increase is hefty (42.8 percent), but it only brings us into line with what other districts have been paying for years. The school board has used the fund balance for the past four years to fund the school and not put a heavier burden on the taxpayer. This money is now gone. We must assume our responsibility to the children and pay our fair share.

Some people are saying that the facilities proposed in the bond issue are unneeded. I doubt that they have been to the schools to look around lately. Alkek is filled to capacity. The well, sewer system, gym, library and cafeteria just will not accommodate additional classrooms. The renovation of the junior high would be more costly than a new building. The new facilities are desperately needed.

Question opinions we hear

Dear editor:

It is the responsibility and privilege of each registered voter to cast a ballot at election time, and that includes the school bond election Sept. 15.

It is very important that the voter understands the issues, not relying on what may be half-truths and misleading statements from people who profess to have the community's best interests at heart.

The first question a voter should ask when talking to someone who speaks for or against a proposal should be: "Is this information a fact or an opinion?" Facts can be found at the school administration offices, the tax office, the Texas Education Agency in Austin and other offices which bear this responsibility. These should be the sources of information, not the rumor mill at the OST Restaurant where opinion is often offered as fact. It is appropriate to be very wary of views offered in letters to the editor in newspapers, since these contain opinions which are frequently based on the rumor-mill method of arriving at a decision about an issue rather than on the "search-out-the-facts" method.

A perfect example is found in a letter written by Don Davis in the Sept. 12 issue in which he stated the cost to educate a student averages $33,000. (Editor's note: The actual cost is $5,300 per student. The corrected information appeared in the Sept. 14 issue of The Bulletin.)

Another question a voter should ask is: "What does this person have to gain through the position he is taking?" Will he benefit from a contract that will be let? Is he looking to reduce his taxes? Is he looking to shift the burden from his shoulders to yours and mine? Is he unwilling to support improvements needed at our schools because his own children have already graduated?

It is apparent that some opponents of the school bond issue feel justified in making misleading statements, as long as their opinion is served. For instance, some people would have the voters believe the new weight room at the high school was paid for with tax dollars. The fact is that the BACIT Committee, an independent group of concerned people, raised the entire cost of this project through donations. The carpet used in two high school offices is used carpet which was given free of charge to Mr. Belamain when USAA, the insurance company in San Antonio, recarpted its 1-million-plus square-foot facility.

This comment is frequently heard: "They tried to 'sneak' the bond issue by us." The fact is that the bond issue has been thoroughly and accurately covered by The Bandera Bulletin on numerous occasions. In addition, hundreds of phone calls were made by members of the Citizens' Advisory Committee to urge people to vote. Numerous organizations and gatherings were addressed by this group for the purpose of sharing information about the bond issue. Information was made available through a brochure. Yet, apparently, some people didn't get the word about the bond issue.

This statement makes me think about the rodeo held last weekend in Bandera. I didn't know about it until it was over with, so would it be truthful to say they tried to "sneak" it past me? No. The fact is that I did not bother to become informed.

So voters, let's inform ourselves of the facts and closely question the opinions we hear. Let's base our vote on fact, not opinion, on truth, not fiction.

Volunteerism — what it's about

Dear editor:

The recent Labor Day effort was a wonderful showing of what Bandera is all about -volunteerism.

So many people volunteered to put on the rodeo and the parade it was like they came out of the woodwork to do the necessary tasks. It also brings to mind the other organizations where the executives and crews work long, hard hours to accomplish so much for the quality of life in our fair county, including the chamber of commerce, the Optimists, Medina Lake Betterment Association, Keep Bandera Western, the PTO, Helping Hand, the churches, American Legion, VFW, and many, many more.

Rodeo a team effort

Dear editor:

On behalf of the Cowboy Capital Rodeo Association, I would like to express my thanks and appreciation to the local businesses and the people of Bandera County who contributed, either time or financial assistance, to the production of our outstanding Labor Day Rodeo last weekend.

The rodeo was a great success and a good time was enjoyed by all, in spite of the heavy downpour on Saturday afternoon. A special thanks to the Bandera Co-op crew for their prompt response in repairing the two transformers damaged by lightening about 5 p.m. Saturday. There was a good variety of food and beverage vendors on hand and business was brisk. The crowd was in good spirits and I hope they enjoyed visiting the Bandera merchants throughout the weekend.

Again, thanks to everyone, members, non-members and merchants, who helped put the rodeo together, and to those of you who came out to see the exciting performances. Needless to say, we could not have a successful rodeo weekend without the participation of all of you.

Vice President, CCRA

City council delays finalizing budget

Preliminary tax rate same as this year

By Nick Johnson
Bulletin Editor

Bandera City Council Monday delayed action on the city's 1990-91 budget, instead scheduling a special meeting for Tuesday evening to discuss the proposed tax rate, a public hearing on Friday at 4 p.m., and a meeting to set the tax rate on Monday, Sept. 17, at 7 p.m.

Though their budget is not yet finalized, the council voted 4 to 1 Tuesday to propose a tax rate of 18.91 cents per $100 valuation, which is no change from last year's rate.

Council member Geneva Dowell voted no, saying she favored lowering the rate.

A preliminary budget calling for expenditures of $662,650 that required a $70,000 property tax levy was shelved Monday when councilman Bob Abbey called for actual spending figures for 1988-89 and a projection of spending in 1989-90 based on the first nine months of the fiscal year.

The budget document furnished council members for consideration Monday night contained only estimates of spending last year and this year that were taken from projections arrived at prior to the years in question.

"I think the budget ought to be summarily rejected and done again using accurate figures based on experience," Abbey said.

Ross Bailey abstained from voting on Abbey's motion, but Charlie Eckhart, Geneva Dowell and Dorothy Darden voted to postpone adoption of the spending plan.

The delay requires the council to meet three times this week in order to conform to state law regarding public notice in order to enact a budget and set a tax rate by the designated date.

The preliminary budget issued Monday night called for a spending $662,650, an increase of $62,550 over preliminary estimates of this year's spending. Current figures, however, show that the city spent $632,000 in the first 11 months of the current fiscal year that ends Sept. 30.

The preliminary budget projected income from the property tax at $70,000, up from the $65,176 collected in the first 11 months of the current year.

It forecast sales tax income of $140,000 compared to $124,353 received in the first 11 months of this year.

The preliminary budget called for spending $200,000 on salaries, training and bonuses for employees, $42,000 on insurance, $50,000 on utilities, and $30,000 on police department expenses.

The council rejected funding $10,000 as its share for estaulishing an economic development office in the Bandera County Chamber of Commerce. Linda Stein asked the city to pay for one-half of the expenses for the new office that will include a $14,000-per-year director and $6,000 for his or her expenses. The county has been asked to provide the other $10,000, but it has not included the item in its preliminary budget.

All the council members expressed support for the principle of a vigorous economic development effort to create jobs in the Bandera area, but balked at hiring someone at $14,000-per-year to do the job.

Stein said Tuesday morning that there is a possibility that the item will be reconsidered and included in the city's budget that is enacted Friday.

In other action Monday, the council approved use of city streets for the fourth annual Longhorn Cleveland Cattle Drive from 23rd Avenue to Hackberry Park. Chipped in an extra $700.50 pay for additional expenses incurred in installing a "welcome to Bandera" billboard near Bandera Downs, rejected a proposal to sell a lot at Main and Hackberry streets, authorized advertising for bids for garbage service and insurance, and gave preliminary approval for a housekeeping amendment to the city's sign and historical district ordinance.

Cattle drive organizers said a herd of longhorn cattle will be driven down Main Street at about 5 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 20. They will be penned on the First State Bank lot at Main and Sycamore streets overnight and driven to Mansfield Park Sunday morning where the event will be concluded.

The city gave Garbage Gobbler the required one-year's notice that it will seek bids for the service to begin Jan. 1, and it authorized the city staff to advertise for bids Monday.

It also authorized advertising for bids for property and liability insurance, workers' compensation, errors and omissions insurance, and law enforcement liability insurance. Current coverage in those areas expires Oct. 1.

The council scheduled a public hearing for Oct. 8 on various amendments to the sign and historic district ordinances. The Planning and Zoning Commission has recommended changes eliminating the certificate of review in the sign ordinance, which is not being required by current practice, and making other minor changes.

The council authorized public works director Rey Garcia to contact the Federal Emergency Management Agency in Denton to see if current FEMA guidelines would affect any proposed changes at city park to eliminate the undertow beneath the dam that is dangerous to swimmers. Geneva Dowell opposed talking to FEMA, suggesting instead that the city dump the problem in the lap of the state, which owns and controls all inland waters in Texas.

Every council member signed a letter stating opposition to proposed rules that councilman Eckhart said will require the city to raise taxes to pay for the operations of the Texas Water Commission and the Texas Water Development Board.

Re-surfacing State Highway 16 may be completed this week

Paving of State Highway 16 east of Bandera could be done in five days, if the weather stays dry, says a state highway engineer.

And the work should have little effect on race track traffic, though it will back up traffic other days.

The resurfacing project will reseal 17 miles of highway from Bandera to the Medina County line, but completion of the project depends on the weather, says assistant resident engineer Garland Galm of the highway department's Hondo office.

Bruce Eliker, assistant foreman of the Bandera County Section of the Texas Highway Department, says, "As long as the rock (used in the paving) is wet, they can't put it down. It has to be dry."

The state engineer said that without interruption, the contractor could finish the job in four to five days. "The contractor will use 170,000 gallons on the job and can use 40,000 gallons of asphalt a day if he has good weather and can work from daylight to dark," says Galm.

The contractor is stopping two lanes of traffic on the highway while they resurface one lane, says Galm. The contractor then uses a truck to a one lane of traffic down the highway.

On Fridays, when Bandera Downs has horse racing and the highway will have a larger than normal amount of traffic, the contractor will do driveway work and other jobs that can be done without stopping traffic, says Galm. "If they do stop traffic, it will just be for short while," he says.

It is the highway department's policy to repave driveways that have been surfaced in the past, says Galm. Driveways that will not be paved will be dirt and loose gravel roads, he says.

The highway will be striped for four 11-foot wide lanes from the race track to Privilege Creek, says Galm. "The four lanes are trying to alleviate the traffic build up right out of race track," says Galm.

From Privilege Creek to Pipe Creek the road will be two 12-foot wide lanes with 10-foot shoulders and have climbing lanes where necessary.

The road will be four lanes in Pipe Creek proper and the highway will return to two lanes with climbing lanes east of Pipe Creek.

'A tree caused the whole thing,' Bandera co-op employee says

A fallen tree limb during an electrical storm caused a major power outage in Bandera Sunday evening, plunging restaurants such as the OST, Hacker's and the Cabaret and Sonny's Corral into darkness for nearly 45 minutes shortly after 9 p.m.

"A tree caused the whole thing," said Bandera Electric Co-op spokesman Henry Heinen. "A tree limb got on the (power) line close to 9th and Hackberry (streets) and it burned, causing an outage."

Heinen said the affected area extended from the Co-op's substation through the Mayah Ranch, around the Medina River "loop" area, down Main Street all the way out to near the Flying L Ranch off Hwy 173 south.

Heinen said the power was off for a brief time in the extended area, then it came back on everywhere except in an isolated two-block area near the 9th and Hackberry location. He said power was off in that isolated area for about an hour.

The OST restaurant was full of people, according to employee Dot Monroe, but there were no problems reported there.

"We have some real good customers," Monroe said. "Everybody was patient and just waited. We got candles out and everybody just sat and talked.

"After the power came back on, everything was back to normal and people were laughing about (the incident)."

Though there were "several tables of people," at Bandera's Cabaret, nobody panicked and there weren't any problems reported, according to Pat Farr.

Super S just had to shut down for a few minutes, according to Arnulfo Campos. The front (electrical) doors were closed, and no customers were let in until the power came back on, he said, but the doors could be opened manually to let people inside the store come out.

"Fortunately, there were very few people in there at the time," Campos said. "We just had to shut down for a few minutes, but there weren't any problems." Flashlights are brought out during such emergencies, he said.

agriculture industry, said Fitzsimmons.

Horse racing could be one of the top five agricultural enterprises in Texas and agriculture is one of the major sources of income in the state of Texas, Fitzsimmons said. "If racing could reach its full potential in Texas, we'd have a bigger horse industry than any state in the union except Kentucky," he said.

One way to increase handles is to allow a limited form of off-track betting, currently illegal under the Texas Racing Act.

"The Texas Racing Commission will do whatever is necessary, under the circumstances, to maximize the handles, maximize the size of the purses, and create the biggest state-bred program that is possible," said Fitzsimmons.

Fitzsimmons said the Texas Legislature could add inter-track betting within Texas to increase handles and thereby purses by 15 to 20 percent. "We could utilize all our licensed facilities to bet between tracks into a common pool," he said.

The simulcast inter-track wagering, and common pool betting was not foreseen when the Texas Racing Act was written and other advances in electronic betting are coming. "No one can foresee the changes that are coming as fast as electronic betting is advancing," says Fitzsimmons.

Another change the legislature could make would be to convert the five percent state tax on the pari-mutuel handle with a sliding scale, similar to what Oklahoma has, said Fitzsimmons. "Couldn't be anything but good," he said.

But the take needs to shift in the horsemen's favor. "You can't afford to raise and race horses without large enough purses," he Fitzsimmons.

Costs of raising horses are increasing. "If we are going to have horse breeding, we have to have large enough purses to give the hope of a potential profit to those potential breeders.

The legislature has to make changes of "they want to create a viable horse racing industry," said Fitzsimmons.

If the legislature leaves the racing act alone, Texas horse racing "will deteriorate," he said.

secrets to ourselves," said Lewis.

Some of the men were horsemen and some not. "It's a group of people who have known each other all our lives who got together and pooled our money and our ideas and got lucky," he said.

A racing commission investigator said he recognized one of the men as Robert Kruse.

No plans for the money were revealed, but Lewis did say he planned to buy a horse for his daughter on her birthday. "She's wanted a horse and I told her she couldn't have one until March. She'll have a nice surprise tomorrow (Saturday)," he said.

Lewis said he and his friends had been to Bandera Downs before chasing the twin trifecta and finally won it.

The twin trifecta excitement continued Saturday, though less intense as there were two winning tickets, paying $4,313.20 each.

Henry Toepperwein of Helotes and Roy Baker of San Antonio bet $60 each and won four winning exchange tickets and Temecula Rose, Lilyette, and Broke Neck then paid off on one of those tickets.

Baker says he almost had Friday's $206,609.60 jackpot. "I just barely missed it yesterday" when 12-1 Matthew Fein ran fourth instead of third as he'd hoped.

Dude and Nancy Biggs of Blanco won with one $2 bet. Nancy says she placed the bet, but Dude picked the horses.

"I raise horses. I knew how far they would go," said Dude. He says he looks for balance and power in a race horse.

"When they need to go far, they need to be loose, but well balanced. They need a long stride in the longer races," said Dude.

Previous twin trifecta winners, Steve Talanco and Danny Fragoso, who won $56,773.60 Aug. 5, were at the track this weekend. They said they were going to invest their money in a car dealership after they won, and Friday confirmed that they had bought and sold two cars and were working on the car lot now.

There were no winners in the twin trifecta Sunday and the carry-over jackpot will be $9,505.60 Friday.

In Saturday's featured race, the Governor's Cup, even-money favorite Sara Klevens was beat out by Bonaparte, ridden by Ricky Walker, who pulled ahead of in the final 100 yards of the stretch to win the five-furlong race in 1:05 flat.

In Sunday's races, Cayenne Smith with jockey Paul Ramirez in the saddle won the Freshman Allowance for two-year-olds. The race carried a purse of $22,500.

In Sunday's featured race of the day, the Pipe Creek Handicap, 5-2 favorite Master Princely, ridden by Joe Quintanilla, pulled ahead in the stretch to take over from Snowy Commander, who had set the pace for the Texas-bred thoroughbreds.

In the third race Easy Sale won his sixth of seven races this year.

Lifetime the horse has 23 wins, 8 places, and 11 shows in 56 starts for total winnings of $43,268.

Track conditions Sunday were rated as "sloppy" from Saturday night's thunderstorms. There were no apparent problems at the track due to the wet track.

The rain came again Sunday after the seventh race, but the short downpour delayed racing for about 10 minutes. No other problems were apparent.

Jockey Issac Chapa was thrown from his horse, Raise Up And Run, in the last race Sunday when he was rounding the turn in the 870-yard race. He was pitched over the horse's head and was not trampled by other horses.

Both Chapa and his horse were apparently not seriously injured, though the ambulance was brought out for Chapa and the veterinary ambulance was brought out for Raise Up And Run. The stewards ruled the unseating of Chapa unavoidable.

The longshot of the weekend was Hold Native Tight, ridden by Ricky Walker in the first race. The 25-1 longshot paid $53.20 to win, $22.80 to place and $8.40 to show.

Beach Pilot set a 1:04 track record in the 5 ½ furlong second race Saturday, beating Ivor's Misskey Aug. 18 1:06 2/5 time.

Bryson wins home ec award

Bandera County extension agent Jan Bryson received the Florence Hall Award as a member of a team of 12 area extension agents from the Texas Association of Extension Home Economists at its annual meeting recently in Houston.

The Florence Hall Award is presented for an outstanding program that recognized new concerns and interests of families, and involves people in planning and implementing programs that have benefitted families, says Bryson.

The team received the award for their child care provider training program that has been held on an annual basis for the past three years.

These trainings provide quality information and skills at a low cost for child care workers and helps fulfill their requirement for training credits to maintain state licensing, says Bryson.

Weekend accidents injure five

One victim still hospitalized, two released

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

A Friday afternoon two-car accident seriously injured a San Antonio man in front of Bandera Downs after most of the parking lot had cleared from the day's races.

But those were three other accidents at familiar site for law enforcement and ambulance crews - Red Bluff Creek and State Highway 46 west of Pipe Creek.

Robert Lee Smith, 47, of San Antonio, suffered facial abrasions and internal injuries after his car was broadsided by a Bandera-bound vehicle in front of Bandera Downs.

Smith, the sole occupant of a Datsun 280ZX, apparently pulled out of the horseman's entrance onto State Highway 16 about 7:20 p.m. and was struck by a Ford Bronco II driven by Virginia Jordan, 25, of Bandera heading west into Bandera, says investigating Department of Public Safety Trooper Dan Butts.

Smith was thrown from the car according to witnesses, says Butts.

Most of the 2,795 race fans that had attended the track's races had left the parking lot by the time of the accident. Post time of the last race was 6:45 p.m.

Smith was treated at the scene by Bandera Downs EMTs and Bandera EMTs and taken to Methodist Hospital.

He was listed in serious condition Monday having suffered facial abrasions and internal injuries, reports hospital spokesman Steve Finley. Smith's condition was upgraded to fair Tuesday.

[illegible] and [illegible] Vital, 30, of New Braunfels was also injured, and according to Butts was taken to Methodist Hospital. The hospital did not have a record of treating him, however.

There was an accident Monday at the same site, but there was no information available on the accident at press time.

Staff photo by James H. Frazar

Law enforcement and witnesses wait while EMTs stabilze Robert Lee Smith of San Antonio after Friday's accident on State Highway 16 near the Bandera Downs entrance. Smith was coming out of the horsemen's entrance, not the main gate, and his car was struck by a Bandera-bound vehicle which had just passed the main entrance.

Polish photos featured at GA institute Sept. 23

The heritage of Polish Texans will be celebrated during "Polish Pioneer Day" at the Institute of Texan Cultures from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 23.

The afternoon of free activities, entertainment and information for the entire family is being held in conjunction with the exhibit "Panna Maria: An Image of Polish Texans," a photo essay by Joseph Jaworski. The exhibit is on display in the lower gallery of the Institute through Oct. 21.

Panna Maria was the site of the first Polish colony in Texas. The second colony was at Bandera.

Jaworski, a photojournalist whose work has been praised for its sensitivity and gentle approach to his subjects, will begin the salute to Polish Texans with an informal lecture about his exhibit at 1 p.m. in the auditorium.

Children can visit the sharecropper's cabin from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. where they will be enchanted by the tales of a Polish storyteller. They can make various crafts, such as paper flower hair wreaths, Christmas angels, and muslin dolls from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., and observe craft demonstrations by the Polish Arts and Culture Foundation.

Entertainment will be provided at 2:30 p.m. by the Panna Maria Polish Choir and at 3 p.m. by the San Antonio Polish Dancers in the Dome Theater.

An added feature of the afternoon will be a photo clinic designed to collect and preserve photographs of early Texas Polish history.

People who own photos of their Polish ancestors in the work place, at home, or involved in religious or leisure activities are encouraged to bring them to the clinic. Copies of selected photos will be added to the Institute's collection of almost 2 million images.

The photos will be copies as owners wait, so they will not have to be left at the Institute. Copies can be made from albums without removing photos from the pages, and reprints will be available at very reasonable fees, an Institute spokesman said.

Boerne band in 130th year

The Boerne Village Band, the oldest German Band outside Germany, will celebrate its 130th anniversary Sunday, Sept. 16, at the garden at Po-Po's Family Restaurant north of Boerne.

The band will give the first-time public performance of "Grusse an Texas," a march dedicated to the Boerne Village Band by Peter Fihn, one of Germany's outstanding folk music composers, says a spokesman.

Other bands participating include The Arthur Hillert Orchestra from Converse.

Both bands will play traditional German music for dancing and listening.

Robert Thonhoff, in his persona of "Professor Katzenjammer," will emcee the event.

Gates open at 2 p.m. Admission is $2.50 for adults and children are free.

Food, beer, and wine will be available.

Po-Po's is located seven miles north of Boerne, off Interstate Highway 10, at exit 533.

Your Basic Bandera — Penny Tobin

Cot Shiner was right. Just exactly seven days after some of the cenizo started blooming again, rain came creeping up around the county. Then a few days later, a most welcome inch-n-a-quarter fell upon the very plants we had been watching.

• Each day in the mailbox there is a plea for help from one organization or another. In these hard times, most worthy causes have to struggle for support. Having made a decision to buy Texas and help Texas with the few quid at our command, we toss most catalogues and most appeals from national groups. Here is a Texas call for assistance worth passing on. So many Bandera High School graduates have gone on to college at Southwest Texas State University, there should be response.

Carroll Hall, built in 1907-08 as the first building of San Marcos Baptist Academy, is a Georgian building still in good structural condition currently slated for demolition in connection with the university's master plan for future expansion.

Built with money raised by local citizenry and named in honor of pioneer Baptist minister, Dr. J.M. Carroll, the building is one of the historic structures maintaining the traditional integrity of the campus and the town despite incursions of Big Macs and hideous 1950's architectural monstrosities.

Hays County Historical Commission, along with the Heritage Associating of San Marcos, implores your help in raising the $45,000 necessary to hang on to the building until a rehabilitation plan can be worked out. The two groups have set up a "Nothball Fund," care of Hays County Historical Commission, Box 376, San Marcos, 78667. Your donation in any amount is urgently needed.

• We can't help noting, ruefully, that the amount bet on the ponies the last few weekends saved Carroll Hall, built the river park around Bandera, acquired Bigtooth Canyons, and set up a county records archives. Plus some other things. Like housing the homeless.

• Perhaps one of the spin-off effects from the Middle East crisis will be that the American people will be shocked out of their "bread and circus" preoccupations. The film footage coming now showing the unspeakable miseries of the third world wars trapped at the Iraq-Jordan border should make us stop and think. The world has become one world, despite the protests of isolationists and narcissistic-minded only pursuers of trivia. Every action has a major reaction.

If we keep our Carroll Halls instead of goofing off millions on new structures with built-in obsolescence, we may have money left over to send at least bread to the starving "pelados" of the earth. The poor things may never get to the point again of going to the circus.

Mayor seeks help in saving streets

Mayor Raymond Adamietz this week urged homeowners in Bandera to place their garbage closer to the streets to prevent heavy Garbage Gobbler trucks from driving on the edge of streets, which causes streets to break down.

He said the trucks drive as closely to the trash cans as they can to ease the burden of hand-carrying them, but damage occurs when the the heavy trucks drive off the streets.

By simply placing the cans close to the street, homeowners may save the city taxmoney it takes to repair the streets.

Jimmie Rodgers Jubilee set Sept. 14-16 in Kerrville

The 9th Annual Jimmie Rodgers Jubilee will be held Sept. 14-16 on the campus of Schreiner College in Kerrville.

The festival celebrates traditional music of Rodgers' era - blues, country, jazz, bluegrass and gospel. Friday night at 8 p.m. the Cowboy Artists Museum hosts a tribute to the American cowboy in song at the as a Jubilee's kickoff.

Buck Ramsey, a cowboy poet and songwriter, will perform Friday along with Don Hedgpeth, Roland Davis and Wilton Crider. Other artists on the weekend bill will be at this reception-Patsy Montana, Rodgers' grandson, Big Bill Lister, Tom Swatzell and Roy Harper.

Saturday's bill features Patsy Montana ("I Want to be a Cowboy's Sweetheart"), Peter Rowan (played with Bill Monroe), Katy Moffatt, Texana Dames, Jimmie's Texas Blues (Rodgers' grandson), Johnny Nicholas (formerly with Asleep at the Wheel), Sons of the Pioneers (traditional blues), BT Wilson (jazz), The Poverty Playboys (bluegrass), Big Bill Lister (toured with Hank Williams), The Texana Dames (Austin), Tom Swatzell (dobro), Troy Hess (Houston), two elementary school choirs, Maggie Montgomery (Kerrville), Roy Harper (Tennessee) and others. Moderated by John Wheat, director of the Sound Archive of the Barker Texas History Center, the festival showcases traditions in music that are not only important in the development of Texas music but also important in the growth of American music.

Peter Rowan will perform songs from his new album, "Dust Bowl Children", on the Sugar Hill label. He began his career playing with Bill Monroe, and his songs have been recorded by Ricky Scaggs, George Strait and Michael Martin Murphey.

Katy Moffatt, a Ft. Worth native, has recorded recently in Europe on Red Moon which is distributed by Rounder Records. Her vivacious interpretation of a Rodgers tune brings down the house each time.

The Texana Dames, on Amazing Records, recently signed with Sonet for European distribution.

Originally the Supernatural Family Band from Lubbock, the Texana Dames now include Charlie Prickett and other members, Traci and Conni. Their eclectic sound includes songs in Spanish, played on the accordion by Traci; Western Swing with Conni on steel guitar and mom on keyboards; Texas rock and roll with John Reed on guitar.

Patsy Montana, on Flying Fish Records, is the original cowboy's sweetheart. The first female country singer to sell one million records, Patsy began her career in the early 30's by winning a talent contest singing a Jimmie Rodgers' song.

County

enough", says Mauer. "We'll have to cut some more.

The budget calls for revenues in more than the $1,614,307 projected income this coming year. "We have less money than we had last year and we have to cut just to get back to where we were and then cut, from there," says Mauer.

Last year, the county's $2.804 million budget exceeded its tax revenue of $2,573,930. The deficient of $229,845 was made up from unencumbered funds from the permanent improvement bonds sinking fund, sanitary landfill fund, previous year's general fund, indigent health care fund, juvenile probation fund, Mansfield Park fund, and the road bonds sinking fund.

The "unencumbered" funds are targeted to support the county budget, and so far the county has not discussed using those funds. However, the funds do not have a big balance this year.

While commissioners will take their cues to the budget again Wednesday, Mauer says, "I'm not sure how we're going to do it. It could possibly come down to cutting some county jobs."

The cuts in the county budget have been made by requiring county department heads to justify increases and reducing those increases and other budget line items where necessary, says Mauer.

Some of the eight to 10 people attending the public hearing told commissioners not to raise taxes as they couldn't afford the

Linda Stein did ask the commissioners to raise their budget by funding a paid employee to work for the chamber of commerce's economic development committee to help bring new businesses to Bandera County. While not turning Stein down, commissioners haven't included the item in the county's budget.

Cuts the commissioners have made to the proposed budget include reducing the county clerk's budget by $1,938 from $145,089 to $143,151; county treasurer by $6,985 from $86,220 to $79,235; all four constables by $2,163 from $24,485 to $22,322; all four peace justices by $7,277 from $86,075 to $78,792; tax assessor-collector by $1,455 from $129,468 to $128,013; and the sheriff's department by $43,431 from $500,469 to $457,038.

The courthouse custodial and maintenance portion of the county budget was cut almost in half, from $136,037 to $73,739.

Some of the cuts were made by dropping payment of overtime in county department budgets, says Mauer.

There will be no pay raises for county employees this fiscal year. Earlier this year, commissioners voted to raise the county's employee health insurance payment from $20 to $100 and requiring all county employees to be in county-sponsored medical plan.

Commissioners considered the added $80 a month as salary increase enough.

That's also part of the budget battling commissioners must do, as under the $20-a-month system, less than 20 persons took advantage of the benefit. Now over 60 people are in the system, requiring at least $72,000.

The county tax rate last year was 30.84 cents per $100 property valuation.

This year's proposed tax rate of 33.48 cents per $100 would cost a taxpayer with a $50,000 home and with a $5,000 exemption $150.66.

Last year's taxes, which were at a 30.84 cents per $100 property valuation level, would have had a $138.78 tax bill on a $50,000 home with a $5,000 exemption.

Opponents of LCRA hike take stand in Austin Friday

The group that is calling for a $4.3 million reduction in Lower Colorado River Authority electric power rates is expected to begin testimony Friday, Sept. 14, before the Public Utility Commission in Austin.

The LCRA, only supplier of electric power for the Bandera Electric Cooperative, has asked for $34 million rate increase. The Bandera Co-op has supported an increase in rates that is lower than the 9.2 percent hike the LCRA wants.

The group calling for a decrease that will begin testimony Friday, however, calls any rate increase "unthinkable."

"The LCRA must tighten its belt," said Robert H. Sohn of New Braunfels Utilities and spokesman for the group. "This is the fourth rate increase they have sought in the past three years over bad management decisions that have resulted in reduced assets of more than $450 million."

Sohn's New Braunfels Utilities is a member of a consortium representing 25 percent of total electric power revenues of the LCRA.

"In light of past mistakes by the LCRA, such as the abandonment of the Cummins Creek lignite mine project after sinking $200 million into it and the questionable spending of $62 million in gas exploration, we believe a rate increase is unthinkable," Sohn said in a release distributed this week.

The PUC staff, in an action separate from the request of Sohn's New Braunfels Group, has recommended that LCRA rates be reduced by $18.4 million, or 5.78 percent.

The final interment was held at Ft. Sam Houston National Cemetery with military honors.

Jay passed away late Thursday afternoon after many years of pain and suffering.

Jay was a friend to many as was evidenced by the number who attended the service.

Allen brought a most meaningful eulogy, departing from the usual mention of important facts or accomplishments and stressing personal comments he had drawn from family members about what Jay had meant to them.

Allen through his sermon pictured "death" as God's gift of sleep.

Friends gathered with the family immediately following the service in the fellowship hall for "food and support."

Jay's wife, Marietta, related to Allen before the funeral, "Of all the lessons he taught, Jay finalized his efforts with a lesson in dying. He died valiantly, knowing full well where he was going and anxious to go be with his Lord and friends. He was ready."

The precinct 2 constable's office will also fingerprint children. "The non-police fingerprint cards remain in the care of a parent should future circumstances require positive identification of the child," says Reich.

Cats compete in Kerrville

Household cats as well as purebred cats from all over the country will be able to compete for prizes in the annual Hill Country Championship Cat Show Sept. 22-23 at the Kerr County Agricultural Building in Kerrville.

Show hours will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, says spokesman Bill Haden.

Admission is $2 for adults, $1 for senior citizens and children under 12, and children under six are admitted free.

There will be a special judging division for household pets. "These are mixed breed cats that local owners are encouraged to show," says Haden. Ribbons and rosettes will be awarded to class division and final awards.

All adult entries (over eight months of age) must be neutered or spayed. Kittens (under eight months of age but at least four months old) may not be neutered or spayed, says Haden.

As is the case with championship cats, household pets may not be declawed.

"Since there is no set standard by which to judge a mixed breed cat, they are merited for their beauty, health, condition, uniqueness, and temperament," he says.

Anyone interested in entering their cat or kitten in the show may obtain an entry blank from Kerrville vet offices or by calling Betty or Bill Haden in San Antonio at 698-1628.

The deadline for entering household pets in the Hill Country Show is Sept. 15. The entry fee for household pets is $20. Payment must accompany entry.

The exhibition site is on State Highway 27 South of Kerrville.

A Thought For The Week
By John M. Grimes

THOUGHTS ON SUCCESS OR FAILURE—THE AMERICAN WAY...

We all know what it means to be American--the good stuff like apple pie, mom, the flag, and oh, yes, success. If you're in school or just out, you have heard it from your parents and your teachers. If you are a bit older, you've learned that success can be the savior or the demon, or maybe both.

Success is critically important, but so is failure. In its first year of business, Coca-Cola sold a stunning sum of 400 Cokes! In its first 28 attempts to send rockets into space, NASA had 20 failures! Dr. Seuss' first children's book was rejected by 23 publishers; the 24th publisher accepted his manuscript and sold 6 million copies! His list could go on and on, but I think you get the point. Each of these failures was a major setback for someone. It's great to succeed, but it's also O.K. (maybe even a bit desirable, to fail) False starts are a way of learning something about yourself--what's important to you, what really does matter. It teaches you what to do when you get knocked down...You get up, brush yourself off and go on.

Yes, success means it's O.K. to fail, to have a false start as long as you learn in the process. Success means developing the grit and character to persevere, to never give up, EVER! Success also means savoring the quality of how you achieve your success, not just whether or not you make it.

NOTICE

OF EFFECTIVE

TAX RATE

NOTICE OF EFFECTIVE TAX RATE

1990 PROPERTY TAX RATES IN SPRINGHILL WATER MGN. DIST.

This notice concerns 1990 property tax rates for SPRINGHILL WATER MGN.DIST. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

	LAST YEAR'S TAX RATE:
	Last year's operating taxes	$ N/A
+	Last year's debt taxes	$
=	Last year's total taxes	$
÷	Last year's tax base	$
=	Last year's total tax rate	$ /$100
	THIS YEAR'S EFFECTIVE TAX RATE:
	1990-1991 Budget AMOUNT	$ 141,037
÷	This year's tax base	$ 539,138,684
=	This year's effective tax rate	$ .02615/$100
x	1.03 = maximum rate unless unit publishes notices and holds hearing	$ .02693/$100
=	This year's rollback rate	$ .0282/$100

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON TAX INCREASE

The City of Bandera will hold a public hearing on a proposal to increase total tax revenues from properties on the tax roll in 1989 by 4.52% percent. Your individual taxes may increase at a greater or lesser rate, or even decrease, depending on the change in the taxable value of your property in relation to the change in taxable value of all other property.

The public hearing will be held on 9/14/90 at 4:00 p.m.

FOR the proposal: Bob Abbey, Ross Bailey, Dorothy Barden and Geneva Dowell

AGAINST the proposal: Charlie Eckhart

PRESENT and not voting: none

ABSENT: none

The statement above shows the percentage increase the proposed rate represents over the Effective tax rate that the unit published on September 12,1990. The following table compares taxes on an average home in this taxing unit last year to taxes proposed on the average home this year. Again, your individual taxes may be higher or lower, depending on the taxable value of your property.

	Last Year	This Year
Average home value	$40,000	$40,000
General exemptions available (amount available on the average home, not including senior citizen's or disabled person's exemptions)	-0-	-0-
Average taxable value	$40,000	$40,000
Tax rate	.1891	.1891 (proposed)
Tax	$75.64	$75.64 (proposed)

Under this proposal taxes on the average home would not increase by $ 0.00 or .0000 percent compared with last year's taxes.

Comparing tax rates without adjusting for changes in property value, the tax rate would increase by $(.0452¢ increase .0000) per $100 of taxable value or percent compared to last year's tax rate. These tax rate figures are not adjusted for changes in the taxable value of property.

Junction Eagles bomb Bobcats

By Larry T. Williams
Bulletin Staff Writer

"How sweet it is," said Junction head coach Gary "Butch" Lewis after his Eagles ended a 19-game losing streak Friday, Sept. 7, when they rolled over Medina's Bobcats in a 24-0 victory. "It's been a long time coming. These kids deserve a win, they've been working real hard."

The season-opening win was particularly pleasing for Lewis since it was his first game as coach at his old alma mater.

"I'm an old home-town boy who came back," he said. "This win is a perfect way to start the season."

The Eagles scored twice in the second quarter, once on a Kelly Simon run and then again on a toss from quarterback Scott Mathis to Shannon Bynum. The six yard pass was one of only four thrown by Mathis all evening, two of which resulted in TDs.

Carl Stapp scored both second-half TDs, one each in the third and forth periods, and the Eagles used the 2-point conversion on all but their final TD to round out their 31-0 victory.

The game livened up early in the second period when a bobbled punt left the 'Cats mashed against their own goal line. Three plays later Medina was still trapped on their own two-yard marker and Junction prepared to awarm punter Brandon Casburn on fourth down.

The junior kicker managed to boot the Bobcats out of trouble with a 37 yard punt that went over the receiver's head, and the Eagles took over on Medina's 34.

A roll-out pass from quarterback Scott Mathis to running back Carl Stapp moved the Birds to the 18 and three plays later a personal foul gave the Eagles a ride to the Bobcat seven.

From there, Stapp carried to the three and then tail back Kelly Simon took Mathis' handoff and plunged across the goal line for Junction's first score.

Fullback Tony Boone blasted in for the 2-point conversion and the Eagles led 8-0 with 5:02 showing in the half.

Penalties and incomplete passes hampered the Bobcats and Junction again threatened later in the half when Stapp ran 35 yards to the Medina six-yard stripe.

Quarterback Mathis, with 19 seconds left, passed a 6-yard strike to tight end Shannon Bynum in the end zone for the Eagles second TD. Simon carried the 2-pointer across to make the score 16-0 at the half.

Junction ruled the third period, allowing Medina only four downs and about as many yards before adding another six points.

This time Mathis hit Stapp on a 36-yard pass play for the touchdown and Shannon Bynum added two more to give the Eagles a 24-0 lead.

Junction continued to control the ball and with less than two minutes left in the game, underlined their dominance with a 30-yard TD run by Stapp.

Mathis chose to boot the point after and the game ended 31-0.

The Eagles rolled up 247 yards rushing in 68 carries for the game and gained 52 in the air. Carl Stapp led his team with 95 yards on the ground and most of the aerial yardage. Kelly Simon followed with 66 yards rushing.

Medina gained 111 yards in 30 plays, all on the ground. The 'Cats did complete one pass out of 10 attempts but for no yardage. Wingback Norman Hurt led the Bobcats' rushing with 95 yards.

Medina will have a week off to regroup before traveling to Cotulla on Friday, Sept. 21. The Bobcats will be at home again on Sept. 28 when they host Antonion. Game times are 8 p.m.

Bo's blocked boot clinches Bulldog victory

By Bob Hopper
Special Corespondent

Running back Bo Mansfield rushed for three touchdowns and blocked a field goal try to lead the Bandera Bulldogs to a 21-20 victory over Dripping Springs' Tigers Friday night at Bulldog Stadium.

The season's opener for both teams was a close struggle between evenly-matched teams, and the eventual margin was provided by a pair of blocked extra points. Mansfield's field goal block preserved the victory in the waning minutes.

The Tigers were effective on the ground, gaining 242 yards, but their passing game was disrupted all night long by constant pressure by the Bulldog line and three interceptions by Chris Hensley.

Mansfield, who gained 113 yards on 16 carries, rambled into the end zone from the 8-yard line over the left side in the opening minutes of the first period after a bad snap caused a Tiger fumble that was recovered by Joe Lopez.

Hensley kicked the point to give the Bulldogs a 7-0 lead.

The Tigers took advantage of a series of Bulldogs penalties to march down to score minutes later, but Mansfield and Ethan Timmons teamed up to block the extra point try and preserve Bandera's lead.

But the visitors took the lead in the second quarter on a 60-yard drive featured by a couple of long runs and key passes of 10 and 3 yards from quarterback Micheal Lindeman, the second of which was a touchdown strike to Blaine Peterson.

Lindeman's 2-point pass to Kevin Dydalewicz gave Dripping Springs a 14-7 advantage, which it built upon on a 73-yard third-quarter drive that ended with a 2-yard run touchdown by Jeff Hall.

But Ethan Timmons blew through the Tiger line to block the extra point attempt and provide what turned out to be the winning margin.

Trailing 20-7, the Bulldogs began the long road back as first-year Coach Chris Stoers began mixing his ball carriers with good effect. Mansfield kicked off the comeback with a 28-yard run around the right side and Hensley followed with a 15-yard gainer off left tackle.

Leroy Brown came off left tackle for a 15-yarder to the Tiger 20 and then came right back with a 7-yarder before Mansfield crashed 13 yards for the touchdown.

Hensley's kick made it 20-14 and set the stage for the final act of the Bulldog's comeback.

Bandera got its chance when its defense stopped the Tigers on fourth down at midfield.

Mansfield and Brown took turns carrying the ball for 49 yards to the 1-yard-line where Mansfield burst into the end zone to knot the score at 20.

Hensley's third perfect conversion gave Bandera its 21-20 advantage, but the Tigers were not through for the night.

They promptly drove into Bulldogs territory, but Hensley's third interception stopped that drive on the Bulldog 38. Two plays later, however, quarterback Jason Schneider fumbled to put the visitors in scoring position at the Bulldog 23-yard line.

But the Bulldog defense stopped the Tigers for three yards on three plays before linebackers Brown and Mansfield broke through to block a field goal that would have given Dripping Springs a win.

The Bulldog pass defense had to stop the Tigers one more time to preserve the victory.

Somerset beats Memorial

Somerset lightening struck twice in the first half Friday night to fuel the Bulldogs to an opening season victory over Memorial's Minutemen.

The Bulldogs scored in the first quarter on a 51-yard pass from Bobby Gutierrez to John Morrow in the first period and on a 32-yard aerial from Javier Guerra to Tony Riles as time was running out in the first half.

Gutierrez added injury to insult in the final quarter when he sneaked over the goal line from the 1-yard-stripe.

D'Hanis coasts

Ryan Rothe threw for two touchdowns and ran for another as D'Hanis' Cowboys downed Natalia 30-6.

Blanks leads Hondo

Ronald Blanks scored four times and gained 228 yards as Hondo's Owls overwhelmed Pearsall, 28-6.

Blanks scored on runs of 10, 12, 4 and 44 yards.

Glen Van Damme kicked a 21-yard field goal in the first quarter, to open Hondo's scoring.

Racing to continue through Dec. 9

But TRC balks at extending 1991 Bandera Downs racing season

By William Wall
Bulletin Austin Bureau

Racing commission chairman Hugh Fitzsimmons casts only dissenting vote on extending current meeting by 18 additional days.

AUSTIN — The Texas Racing Commission granted Bandera Downs 18 additional 1990 racing dates Wednesday, but postponed until Oct. 1 a vote on 67 additional 1991 dates track officials also had requested.

The board ruling passed 4-1. It allows Bandera Downs to hold races every Friday, Saturday and Sunday through Dec. 9. The 1990 racing season at Bandera Downs originally had been scheduled to end the last weekend in October.

Don Essary, principal owner of Bandera Downs, said he was pleased with the commission's approval of the 1990 dates and pointed to the benefits that racing at Bandera Downs had brought to the local and state economies.

"We're very pleased...and certainly believe we deserved them," he said. "We're $30,000 above our projected pro-forma daily average handle. We're sending about $20,000 a day to the state, to say nothing of about another million dollars to the county and the cities. I certainly think it's good for us and for Texas horse racing that the dates were granted."

Commissioners cited several factors that led to them to postpone approval of the additional 1991 dates. Chairman Hugh A.Fitzsimons Jr., who cast the lone dissenting vote for extending the 1990 meet, said he would like to see more 1991 horse racing dates scheduled in January, February and December.

Commissioner Glenn Blodgett expressed concern that possible concurrent 1991 racing dates at Bandera Downs and other tracks in the state might adversely affect handles, and John Moore, representing ex-officio member state Comptroller Bob Bullock, said further review is needed before granting Bandera Downs the additional 1991 dates.

Essary said the commission's immediate refusal to grant Bandera Downs permission to add the 1991 dates left him "a bit confused."

"Since there is...nothing in the state except Bandera Downs, I would certainly think that the thing that's going to make the state do well and the horse industry do well is that Bandera Downs keeps running and keeps being successful," he said. "Otherwise, we're back where we were pre-1987 and that is nowhere.

"I also understand that the commissioners are trying to take the overview of what may be there (in 1991)," Essary said. "Personally...I would want to address it when it happens...but they're commissioners and I'm not."

Other commissioners voting for the extension of dates at Bandera Downs included James H. Clement Sr. and Robert B. Holt representing the Department of Public Safety.

Bandera Downs passed the $10 million handle mark last weekend when 10,341 bettors bet $1,302,833 in three days, pushing the year-to-date total to $10,080,074.

Last weekend the per capita, the amount bet person, stayed above $100 each day.

Friday's per capita was a state record $169.01. Saturday's per capita was $109.87 and Sunday's was $110.22.

The attendance at Bandera Downs has reached 122,224 for the year.

Voters to make bond issue decision Saturday

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

Absentee voting increased by almost 320 percent in the school bond election, and voter turnout is expected to be heavy Saturday, according to superintendent Ted Dockery.

By the close of absentee voting Tuesday, 427 absentee ballots had been cast, or some 319 percent more than the 133 absentee ballots cast in May's election.

Of the 427, 176 voted in the superintendent's office at Bandera High School, 69 voted at the junior high school, 57 voted in Pipe Creek, 123 voted in Lakehills, and two voted by mail.

Voters will go to the polls Saturday, Sept. 15 to decide for a second time whether to pass more than $5 million in school bonds. Community interest has grown considerably concerning the school's financial position, and in light of the school district increasing taxes by more than 40 percent, there has been much discussion and disagreement on the subject of the bond election.

Voters defeated the same bond in a district-wide election May 26 by a vote of 627 to 466. Voters will again be asked to vote for or against "the issuance of bonds in the amount of $5,110,000, and the levying of the tax in payment thereof."

Sept. 15 voting sites will be at the Bandera Junior High School campus for voters in precincts 1,5,7, and 8; at Pipe Creek Community Center for voters in precincts 2 and 3; and at Lakehills Civic Center for voters in precinct 4.

The total amount of the bond election is $5,110,000. If the bond issue passes, the tax rate on a $50,000 home, for example, would be $4.53 a month or $54.30 a year.

"These bonds earn interest for the investors and the school district must pay off the bonds in yearly increments," school superintendent Ted Dockery explains. "This is done by establishing or increasing a 'debt service' tax in which the district raises enough money to pay off the yearly increments.

"Usually, the rate of tax decreases each year after the first because the district's property values increase each year."

If the bonds pass, a 500-student elementary school will be built in the Pipe Creek-Lakehills area at an estimated cost of $2,406,960. It is the costliest single item on a short list of proposals that will be financed by the bonds. A 16-classroom junior high facility, estimated to cost $1,036,500, is also on the agenda.

The elementary school will be built on land the school already owns on Highway 1283 between Pipe Creek and Lakehills. The junior high construction will be on the present junior high campus.

"To say there is an immediate need to recommend a capital improvements initiative at the junior high campus is readily justifiable," said Larry Upton, who served as chairman of the junior high sub-committee appointed by the board to investigate and report on needs within the school system.

"In fact the areas for these improvements are in a large part visually identifiable," he said.

He married Cora Pope in Bourdanton in 1924. She died in 1967.

He was a member of the Bandera Methodist Church.

Survivors include a son, Billy Judd Clark of Bandera; a daughter, Goldie Mae Schoenfeldt of Reno, Nev.; 15 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Services will be Sunday, Sept. 16, at 2 p.m. in Grimes Chapel with the Rev. B.J. Rogers officiating. Burial will be in Bandera Cemetery.

Pipe Creek man gets 99-year prison term

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

A Pipe Creek man was convicted this week of aggravated kidnapping of a young Boerne girl and the Kendall County jury sentenced him to 99 years in jail.

Jeff Daniel Thompson will face charges of indecency with the same girl in Bandera district court because he took her to his Pipe Creek home.

Thompson, 24, was convicted Tuesday of the April 24 kidnaping of Rebecca Rose Harris, 14, of Boerne.

The Kendall County district court jury sentenced Thompson to 99 years in jail and fined him $10,000 Wednesday.

The jury returned a verdict of "guilty of the offense of aggravated kidnapping and the victim was not voluntarily released alive and in a safe place."

The jury agreed with the grand jury indictment and "found Thompson had committed sexual abuse and released the girl in an unsafe place," says district court judge Steve Ables.

"Since it was an aggravated case, he (Thompson) will be eligible for parole in 15 years," says district attorney Bruce Curry, who prosecuted the case.

In Curry's opinion, the jury gave him a sentence comparable to a life sentence because of the "heinous nature of the crime." Thompson's actions justified the sentence because of the age of child and because he kept her for "24 hours of nightmare," he says.

"It takes a special person to cope with it (the ordeal). She (Harris) coped more than most people are willing," says Curry.

Apparently the jury sent a message, speculates Curry. "If you're going to do it, you're going to pay the price," he says.

Thompson snatched Harris on her way home from school in Boerne and took her to his Pipe Creek home where he induced her to cooperate with him by saying that he wouldn't harm her.

Harris testified in the case for

Letters to the editor

Questions for board

Dear editor:

I have been on the tax roll of Bandera Independent School District for 18 years, however, I have lived in the school district for only one year. These comments and questions are directed to the school board, not the school superintendent. Mr. (Ted) Dockery has fulfilled his obligations of preparing a budget for school year 1990-91 and has submitted it to the board. Mr. Dockery is responsible to the board and in turn it is responsible to the taxpayers. It disturbs me when a budget matter is referred by the board to the school superintendent. Board members should be well-versed in all phases of district operation, particularly in the budget and the yearly audit.

For you to better understand my comments and questions, this is my position and beliefs:

- The highest paid person in the Bandera ISD should be the most qualified classroom teacher.
- The No. 1 priority in the district is supporting the classroom teacher.
- The school board should realign budget priorities to hire the best qualified teachers available.

Comments:

- A quote from Mr. Dockery saying it will cost $21 per student per day for the 1990-91 school year.
- Using that $21 times the number of school days (172) equals $3,612 per student per year.
- A class of 22 students at $3,612 student per year equals $79,464 per class per year.
- The average cost per teacher per year is $26,488. (This figure is from a district similar to Bandera ISD. The national average is approximately $35,000.) At $26,488 per teacher with 22 students, (the cost) comes to a mere $7 per day per student.
- This leaves a balance of $52,976 per class per year.
- Folks, this is double the amount used directly for the classroom teacher.

Questions:

- Overhead expenses are a necessary evils, but can the school board members assure themselves that $52,976 is an acceptable overhead expense?
- What happened in 1986-87 that resulted in a need for an additional $279,966 to balance the budget? In 1987-88 an additional $380,963? In 1988-90 an additional $589,114? In 1989-1990 an additional $764,301?
- How did the school district accumulate $2 million-plus surplus and then in 1986 to 1990 run a deficit for four straight years?
- Does the district have a yearly audit? If so, who conducts it and what are the results?
- The board at its Aug. 30 meeting was asked what monies were available from the state. The answer was, "Don't know." What monies are available from oil royalties. The answer was, "Don't know." Mr. Dockery was quoted in the paper that the tax base is $3million less this year. How can this be since property values went up?
- How was the 41.7 percent (tax increase) figure determined?
- Have board members reviewed this budget proposal in sufficient detail to assure themselves and the voters who elected them of their present position that a 41.7 percent increase is really justified?

Bobby Jones
Bandera

Editor's note: We're certain that school board members feel the tax increase they propose is justified. Certainly they would not subject themselves to the criticism the higher tax rate has brought unless they felt it was needed.

Assistant superintendent Skip Pfieffer explains that the board does not know how much state money will be available because it is based on the average daily attendance which has not yet been determined and because sometimes the state does not give the district the amount of money it says it will, as it did not last year. Money from oil royalties are based on the amount of oil produced in the coming months.

In answer to some of the other questions the letter writer raises, the school administration furnished the following:

"Our total general fund budget is $5,250,089. Of this total general fund budget, $3,990,961 (76 percent) is budgeted for salaries and benefits (defined as the money the district must pay for actual salaries, workers' compensation, medicare and teacher retirement).

"Forty-seven percent ($2,482,410) of the total general fund budget is budgeted for professional teacher salaries. No administrator's, nurse's, counselor's, bus driver's, cafeteria worker's, teacher aide's, or custodian's salary is included in this amount.

"Bandera ISD has 194 employees, of which only 94 (48 percent) are professional teachers. Salaries for professional teachers alone are 62 percent of the total amount budgeted for salaries.

"A great deal of the funds the district receives from the state are based on the average number of students who attend our schools on a daily basis. We estimated that average daily attendance to be 1,385, which is a 93-percent attendance rate for our present enrollment of 1,488. Therefore, when figuring costs per pupil, we use 1,385 pupils. In reality, the district must provide classrooms, teachers, desks, materials and other services for the total enrollment of 1,488.

"Our total general fund budget per pupil is $5,250,089 divided by 1,385, or $3,790.68 per pupil for the 175-day school year. If we considered costs for all students enrolled, per pupil costs would be $3,528.29.

Our per pupil per day budget is $3,790.68 - 175 school days + $21.66 per pupil per day. Again, considering costs per pupil per day for each student enrolled would be $3,528.29.

If 76 percent of the total budget is budgeted for salaries, then $16.46 is budgeted for salaries to be spent on each child in the school system per day, of which about $10.20 is budgeted for professional teacher salaries.

What can you expect the school district to offer each child each for $16.46 in salaries ($2.35 per hour)? He or she may receive quality services from a professional, certified teacher or teachers; a registered nurse; a professional, certified librarian; a professional, certified counselor; a trained, certified bus driver; a nutritious breakfast for under $1 and a hot lunch for under $1.50; a clean and safe campus; and an administrator to coordinate all of these services.

If the child has special identified needs, he or she may expect further services from a professional diagnostician, a teacher professionally educated to meet special needs; a professional speech therapist; a professional occupational and physical therapist; and a professional counselor for children with special needs.

Vocal opposition heard at school board meeting

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

More than 30 voters, some with very vocal opinions, showed up at Tuesday's meeting of the Bandera Independent School District board of trustees and for more than an hour and a half the board opened the floor for a discussion of the upcoming bond election and the proposed tax increase.

Local residents including Rilla Stephens, Opie Boyle, George Hamilton, Gene McCullough, Robert Skinner, Billy Walker, Larry Reagan, Robin Shaw and Dee Causey, showed up at the meeting to listen, ask questions and express their viewpoints to the board.

After the discussion, the board voted unanimously for a 41.7 percent tax increase.

"We can't take any more (tax increases) and I don't think we're going to," Rilla Stephens said from the front row of spectators. "Teach under a tree if you have to.

"There will be a rollback," she predicted.

"We know the kids need an education, and there have to be some solutions. Unfortunately hiring more coaches is not one of them," she said.

Stephens accused the board of having not done enough long range planning, and several others from the audience made comments ranging from suggesting ways to collect money from the race track to criticism of the school for naming the present elementary school after Alkek.

Members of the audience criticized the school district for building the present elementary school at Bandera rather than in the lake area where the most growth has been. The school was constructed on property donated by oilman-philanthropist Albert Alkek.

"Albert Alkek is not the great messiah of Bandera County," said George Hamilton. "He has only been here for about 25 years, and my family and lots of others have been here for over 100. We fought the Indians and the droughts so the Alberts could come here."

Other audience members suggested using temporary classbuildings to alleviate overcrowding, and criticized the reasoning used by the board and administration that building a school in the lake area would keep many students from riding the bus for more than two to three hours daily.

"Are we all going to run in hysteria so the little dears won't have to ride the bus?" asked Gene McCullough.

Stephens told the board she hadn't come to meetings in the past because "we're treated shabbily when we do come here." She demanded that the board answer questions, and told them that if they couldn't answer the questions, or find a solution to the problems that they should step down from the board.

"I've personally had it," said Stephens. "These people want answers and I want answers."

Board member Anne Samuel told the group that Bandera has "comparatively modest facilities," and that because Bandera is considered a wealthy district by the state, BISD does not receive as much state funding for programs the state mandates.

"We're understaffed, according to most other districts," said board member Ken Vakey.

"There is a system (mandated by the state) that we have to follow," said board member Bub Keese. "We have no choice. If we do not fulfill the state's requirements, we could lose our accreditation and all our state funding."

"We don't consider it 'overhead' to provide the basics for our students," superintendent Ted Dockery said. He explained that Bandera is a "rich" district because of the amount of property available to tax per student. He said other schools, such as Hondo, get lots of federal aid that Bandera does not qualify for, and that Bandera has to abide by decisions made in Austin.

"Oh, bull," was Stephens' reply to the explanations offered by Dockery and board members.

Audience member Mickie Bloxham told Stephens "we need to go to Austin. Chewing them (the BISD board) out is not going to do us any good."

"The state sends us program mandates, without the funding to implement them," said Keese.

Red Storm Rising wins by the hair on his nose in Friday's sixth race aganist Shiney Example. The distance may have been the difference in the $206,609.60 twin trifecta payoff.

Death ruling still pending, peace justice Towers says

A ruling on the gun shot death of a Tarpley man is still "pending," reports the Peace Justice Bonnie Towers.

The death of Vincent Morris, who was found outside his home in Tarpley with a gun shot wound to the head and a pistol by his body Sunday, Aug. 26, is still under investigation.

Towers says she has not made a ruling in the 19-year-old man's death and will not do so until the paper work from the Bexar County Medical Examiner's office arrives.

It normally takes three to four weeks for the medical examiner to finish the report.

Meanwhile, the sheriff's department is still investigating the case and there is a Texas Ranger from the San Antonio office looking into the death, reports Bandera County Sheriff R.S. "Steve" Forest.

Handicapping seminar set

Bandera Downs will host three beginning handicapping seminars next week and will start weekly seminars in San Antonio next week.

The track will offer beginning handicapping seminars Thursday at the Lakehills American Legion post, Tuesday in Austin, and Wednesday in Bracketville, says track director of publicity Don Rhine.

The track will start alternating between beginning and advanced betting seminars at the Cold River Cattle Company beginning Tuesday, Sept. 25.

Rhine says the track is trying to put together an advanced handicapping seminar for Bandera to be held soon.

Pipe Creek open house

The Pipe Creek EMS Support Team will sponsor a video taping of children at the Pipe Creek EMS barn Friday, Sept. 21, as part of their open house.

The support team will video tape any parent's child for identification purposes, says EMT Eric Stutes.

The tape can tell the height of the child, mannerisms, favorite clothing, and how they talk in case they need to identified in the future, such, as if they are abducted, says Stutes.

The open house will last from 6 to 10 p.m.

$20,000 twin trifecta pot up for grabs

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Bandera Downs will begin racing again Friday at 2 p.m. with a $20,000 twin trifecta jackpot possible and the promise of the five thoroughbred races Saturday and the Medina Handicap Sunday.

After two wins of the twin trifecta last weekend, including the record $206,609.60 win by a single winning ticket, Friday's crowd will have a $9,505.60 carryover in the twin trifecta to start with.

But it won't stop there, as director of publicity Don Rhine expects the jackpot to climb to $20,000 after the fifth race. "That's our usual biggest per capita day (for a weekend)," says Rhine.

Last Friday, 2,795 persons bet a total of $472,379 for the state record per capita of $169.01.

Friday's race card will have one thoroughbred race of 5½ furlongs, one mixed thoroughbred-quarter horse race, and eight quarter horse races.

In Friday's feature race, a 350-yard allowance race for quarter horses three years old and up, Rhine, who is also the track handicapper expects Dream of Colleen to be a strong contenter.

Dream of Colleen ran against some of the best horses on the track Labor Day, says Rhine. The horse ran eighth in that race that included Go Little Poggo coming in fourth.

St. Convenience ran second by nose to Casiree in his last start, Saturday, Sept. 1, but was disqualified and placed seventh when the horse bumped other contenders, says Rhine. The horse has drawn the rail position. "The horse likes the inside," he says.

Cash Asset is another horse to watch in the race, says Rhine. Cash Asset ran fourth in his first start at Bandera Downs Sept. 1, with Joe Garren in the saddle.

But Nicky Wilson will be back in the saddle Friday, "Nicky fits the horse very well," says Rhine.

Saturday will be Texas thoroughbred breeders association day at the track with members of the TTBA among the crowd.

There will be five thoroughbred and one thoroughbred and quarter horse race in the 11 race card.

"Director of racing David Frizzell has made a special effort to put as many thoroughbred races together as possible," says Rhine.

Savories in the featured race of the day, a 870-yard thoroughbred-quarter horse race, are Broken Circle and Six Fours Honey.

Sunday will be Fiesta Day at the races in honor of Mexican Independence Day, says Rhine. [illegible] will be [illegible] from 12:30-3:30 and will feature margaritas, nachos and fajitas.

There will 11 or 12 races that day, says Rhine. Sunday's entries were not drawn at press time.

The Medina Handicap will a quarter horse feature and as of Sept. 6, there were a total of 23 horses nominated for the race including Hopes Strike trained by Dave Correll, Navas Holder Girl trained by Lisa Martin, and Mito Beduino trained by Toby Keeton.

Other horses nominated are Broken Circle trained by Jernesto Torrez, Chip O Chocolate trained by Lawrence Foster, Doctor Bright trained by Bob Young, Follow the Fox trained by Jesse Yoakum, Ms Easy Truxton trained by Jim Etheridge.

Other horses nominated are No Tell Hotel trained by John Boegner, Osettra by Iris Buchanan, Physical Boy by David Aguilar, Olney by Bobby Willis, Redi Jet Go by Ray Torbert, Runaway Bud by Shea Jones, Sailing Wrangler by Walter Smith, Sube Dube by Allen Wilmoth, and Wishing Wrangler by Don Maines, and Zevistator by Larry Keiter.

Dealin Easy Moon and Gopen, both trained by Ricky Brown have been nominated, as well as Mighty Avenger and Streakin Moon, trained by Ron Smith.

Jockey Chad Mason won't be running this weekend, as he received a weekend suspension for careless riding last weekend, reports clerk of scales Ron Moorhouse.

The status of the betting crowd's favorite jockey, Jesse Saucedа, is not clear, however.

Saucedа was picked up for public intoxication by Bandera County police Saturday and was released from jail Sunday. He did not race Saturday or Sunday.

Moorhouse says Saucedа hasn't reported in yet, so he doesn't know his status for this weekend's races.

Medina Day at the Races Sunday, Sept. 16

Medina Day at the Races at Bandera Downs Sunday, Sept. 16, will treat Apple capital residents to free admission to the races and the opportunity to be in winner's circle photograph.

Any Medina patron displaying a valid driver's license or other photo I.D. with a Medina address will be given free general admission to Bandera Downs Sunday.

Discount grandstand reserved and Turf Club Terrace tickets are available to Medina residents at the Old Timer through Friday, Sept. 14. Grandstand reserved tickets are $2 (regular $4) and Turf Club Terrace tickets are only $5 (regular $7).

In keeping with the City Days' tradition, there will be a special feature race named for Medina Sept. 16.

The people of Medina will present a commemorative blanket to the winning connections of the race. Immediately following the presentation, all Medina residents will be invited down to the winner's circle to join in a giant group photo.

Gates open at 11 a.m., with post time set for 1:00 p.m.

Bandera Downs officials have also announced a Castroville Day at the races Friday, Sept. 14.

$20,000 in equipment taken from high school

A total of $20,000 of cafeteria equipment was taken from the Bandera High School cafeteria Tuesday, Sept. 11, in a afternoon raid by thieves who officials said must have known what they were looking for.

Heavy kitchen equipment, including two mixers weighing as much as 300 pounds was taken as well as a microwav, bowls and pans.

The total loss has been set at $20,000, says Bandera County Sheriff R.S. "Steve" Forest.

The items stolen were equipment used "for cooking that someone wouldn't want unless they had a reason to use it or knew where to sell it," says high school principal Richard Delamain. "No one would steel a 300-pound mixer without a buyer," he speculated.

From the preliminary investigation, the thieves apparently entered through the window and left materials in the cafeteria which the department will now use as evidence, says Forest.

Two mixers were taken, says food service director Edell Estenson. One mixer is a floor model complete with a food chopper that is valued at $6,700. The second mixer taken is a 30-quart model valued at $6,900, she said.

All the bowls, whips, and other equipment that are used with the mixer were taken, says Estenson. "One (large) bowl with a dollar was worth $400," she says.

Other items taken include a $3,000 milk shake machine and 300 long-sheet pans valued at $1,000.

Other items taken was a microwave, fan, and numerous stainless steel pots, says Estenson.

The kitchen also disposed of $100 worth of prepared foods and salad items that was apparently "messed with" by the thieves, says Estenson. "We threw it out to be safe," she says.

Even without the equipment, the high school cafeteria managed to get the cooking done on Wednesday. "We still have enough equipment to manage through the coming days," he says. "We can use equipment at our other facilities," he says. There are separate and fully equipped kitchens at the junior high and Alkek Elementary.

The equipment stolen is school-owned, says Delamain. "Superintendent Ted Dockery will have to look at the (school's) insurance before considering buying new equipment," he says.

But if the equipment is not recovered, "We're going to have equipment sooner or later. Until then we'll have to make do," he says.

The other school kitchens have been and will continue to help to mix the dough and grind the cheese for the high school until the equipment can be replaced, says Estenson.

[illegible] and she was handcuffed and [illegible] When she was released.

Since Harris was released by Thompson, the jury could have found that "the defendant (Thompson) voluntarily released the victim (Harris) alive and in a safe place," according to the jury's charge from Ables.

[illegible] Thompson could have received from two to 20 years imprisonment and up to a $10,000 fine on the second degree felony.

Thompson had filed a statement with the court asking for probation, but the jury sentenced him to jail instead on the first degree felony charge of kidnaping.

Bandera County charges against Thompson are a second-degree felony, says Curry. He could face an additional sentence of two to 20 years in jail if convicted, he says.

Three trees at Vanderpool park listed in 'Register of Big Trees'

Three trees in Lost Maples State Natural Area near Vanderpool are listed in the 1990 National Register of Big Trees," according to Parks and Wildlife Department officials.

The trees are an escarpment cherry, a Texas ash and a bigtooth maple.

The Texas ash can be seen easily from the Maple Trail into the park, said park superintendent Roy Heideman. "In fact, two are only a few feet from the trail."

The Maple Trail leads from the park's parking lot along a small stream and through a wooded canyon.

The escarpment choke cherry has a 64-inch circumference, 40-foot crown, and is 65 feet tall.

The 3 Texas ash has a 54-inch circumference, 47-foot crown, and is 66 feet tall.

Bonds

[illegible] tions our committee [illegible] how to accomplish a long-term fix. Specifically, the facilities needs at the junior high campus relate not only to enrollment growth but are also affected by [illegible] factors.

The junior high was not designed as a single campus but was erected over a span of at least 40 years as the result of [illegible] construction of the various buildings which now comprise the junior high," he said. That because of growth, in addition to new construction, the facilities use of the junior high includes extensive renovation of the existing facilities."

Buildings on that campus include a two-story rock structure built in about 1917, that was used for many years as an elementary school, and "old main," a structure built in 1932 and used for many years as a high school.

In a nutshell, months of work went into our committee's final recommendation," said Upton. "We traveled from a hand-and approach to what would be an final recommendation. It was concluded that a short-term, patchwork approach to facilities needs would only delay the inevitable and would not be money well spent.

"The final plan is to include a new core facility for the junior high, renovate and use existing buildings along with utilizing the Merrick Building for administrative offices for the district," he said. "It made more sense to achieve the maximum new construction, more centrally locate the core activities of the campus by putting classrooms under one roof with ancillary rooms incorporated or nearby as opposed to cross campus as is the case now.

"It was concluded this recommendation would meet current and future needs at a comparable cost using more economical construction techniques that would be possible by not having to try to match-up existing buildings with additions," he said.

"The new core facility approach will also allow construction and rehabilitation with a minimum of disruption of present facility needs and shuffling around to vacate buildings during the remodeling and construction phases."

Junior high campus plans include the construction of 16 classrooms, three science rooms with storage space, computer room, administrative offices, teachers lounge/workroom, and restrooms.

Other plans for the junior high campus include renovation of the exterior of the sixth grade building, at an estimated cost of $20,000; renovation of sixth grade building's first floor for library use, $67,000; renovation of gym/cafeteria structure, $156,000; renovation of band hall, $20,000; air conditioning and renovating third grade wing to accommodate a weight room, band area, and health classroom, $24,000; construction of a P.E. dressing facility adjacent to the third grade wing, $180,000; and air conditioning the library wing, and tax office, $15,000.

Also at the junior high campus, plans include renovation of the library wing for art and theatre arts, at an estimated cost of $5,000; replacing the roof on "Old Main," $40,000; replacement of windows and exterior doors in Old Main, $30,000; installation of carpet throughout Old Main, $20,000; renovation of Old Main restrooms, $20,000; air conditioning Old Main, $50,000; construction of covered walks and covered bus loading areas, $85,000; paving and drainage/erosion control, $40,000; rock retaining walls and additional fencing, $10,000; exterior security lighting, $20,000; and the grading of outdoor, free time area, installation of play equipment, landscaping, and exterior miscellaneous painting, $55,000.

Fees of $187,850 bring the total cost of proposed renovation and construction at the junior high campus to $2,066,350.

High school campus renovations include adding four classrooms plus an art storage room, at an estimated cost of $188,000; adding/renovating science classrooms/labs, $130,000; redirecting bus traffic, $28,000; construction of covered bus loading area to cafeteria and academic wing, $40,000; addition of security lights to faculty parking lot and entrance and exit drives, $20,000; complete seating in auditorium (336 seats), $29,000; addition of four tennis/basketball courts, $80,000; and addition of a baseball field, no cost listed. Total cost of the high school project would be $566,500.

Wharton's Dock

John Ciarlo 796-3225

The Chuck and Maradelle DeWitt returned home after a lengthy absence.

In early summer they took off in their van with their boat and trailer following behind. They headed for Eugene, Oregon where Chuck's mother lives.

Chuck's mother, Sara Stephens is 102 years old. The DeWitts were there for her birthday. They comment that "it was quite a gathering."

One of Stephens' grandsons with his two children and one of her granddaughters with her children all flew in from San Antonio. Relatives also came up from California.

Stephens was here at DeWitt's home in Wharton's Dock for her 99th birthday and she was honored by morning television weatherman Willard Scott on her 100th birthday.

Despite her age, "Stephens is able to attend to her personal care and is feeling fine. She does now use a walker to steady herself," says the DeWitts. Chuck's sister lives with her and watches over her.

While there two trailer friends, who belong to the same trailering club the DeWitts do, visited them and the three groups took their trailers to a lake nearby and did some fishing:

• Arthur Alexander from San Antonio was up checking on Mildred and Randolph Alexander's property and visited with friends at the Copper Lantern.

• Bill Stevens has moved back to Sabinal with his daughter Donna and Red Evans.

• The Lakeshore Volunteer fire Department held its quarterly meeting Saturday, Sept. 8.

President Bill Holmes appointed a nominating committee and asked that its report be ready for December's annual elections.

Bids are anticipated soon for mounting the pump, plus plumbing, on the newly acquired 3,000 tanker.

The 30-foot by 30-foot foundation and floor slab for the new Lake Medina Shores substation is completed.

Plans are progressing well toward the next fund raiser, the annual Turkey Shoot set for Oct. 20.

LH Benefit for musician Sunday

Local musicians and an auction of at least 30 items will be featured at the benefit for Bill Baker beginning at 2 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 16, at Shirley's in Lakehills.

Music will be provided by area musicians. Musicians expected include Chet Reeves, Grady Mann, Randy Thaler, Dusty Britches, and Phil Trimble.

Barbecue plates will be sold at $4 starting 2 p.m. and the auction will take place between band sets. Mann will conduct the auction.

Items for the auction include a weed-eater, radio, automatic oil filter, electric car vacuum cleaner and lots of cakes and pies.

Lots of musicians are expected since Bill has been playing music in the area for a long time.

Persons wishing to donate items to the auction should call Shirley's at 751-9929.

Many fire department members are expected at the Walker Memorial Baptist Chapel's "Firemen's Appreciation Sunday," Oct. 21, which will be followed by a free fish fry after noon.

The department may purchase decals, which would identify homes of members of the Lakeshore VFD if the price is reasonable.

The department will respond to all fire calls in the community irrespective of membership standing. However, some department officials are considering a service fee that will be charged home owners who are not paid up members of the local fire department when the firemen respond to their home.

Memberships are $25.00 annually.

Bulldogs host Ingram at 8 p.m. game

By Nick Johnson
Bulletin Editor

Pleased with a victory in his first game as a Bulldog coach, Bandera Coach Chris Storer says on the eve of his team's second game with Ingram that it still has a long way to go, especially on defense.

But he doesn't plan on changing things much.

"We're going to do what we did last week, only a little bit better," he said Thursday. "If we play well, it should be a good ball game."

Kickoff is at 8 p.m. in Bulldog Stadium as the Bandera team plays its second home game of the year. To win, Coach Storer says his defense will have to play better.

"We're going to have to play better (on defense)," he said. "We didn't slow them (Dripping Springs) down very much." His Bulldogs surrendered three touchdowns in the first 2½ quarters and fell behind Dripping Springs by 20-7 last Friday, but shut them down in the last 1½ periods while the offense mounted a comeback that gave Bandera a 21-20 victory.

"We've been doing a lot of group work, doing things over and over again in practice," he said. "We work in groups — linebacker group, down linemen group, defensive backfield group."

Dripping Springs gained 242 yards on the ground against the Bulldog defense and ran up 16 first downs in all against only nine for Bandera.

The Tigers passed 16 times, completing one-half of them for 49 yards, but a strong rush and the ball hawking abilities of Chris Hensley, who intercepted three passes, stopped the visitors.

Coach Storer expects Ingram to present a different challenge this Friday. "Ingram is a good defensive team; a strong running team," he said. "They'll pass, but not as much as Dripping Springs."

Ingram fullback James Carson, a 210-pounder, rushed for more than 600 yards in five district games last year and teams with running back Paul Strey to give Ingram a potent running game.

Linebacker James Mayberry is the Warriors' secretary of the defense. He set a school record for tackles as a junior last season.

Bo Mansfield carried the ball 16 times for Bandera Friday, gaining 113 yards.

Volleyballers lose

Comfort defeated Bandera in volleyball Tuesday, Sept. 11, by scores of 15-4, 13-5 and 15-2.

• Bill Stevens has moved back to Sabinal with his daughter Donna and Red Evans.

• The Lakeshore Volunteer fire Department held its quarterly meeting Saturday, Sept. 8. President Bill Holmes appointed a nominating committee and asked that its report be ready for December's annual elections.

Bids are anticipated soon for mounting the pump, plus plumbing, on the newly acquired 3,000 tanker.

The 30-foot by 30-foot foundation and floor slab for the new Lake Medina Shores substation is completed.

Plans are progressing well toward the next fund raiser, the annual Turkey Shoot set for Oct. 20.

Many fire department members are expected at the Walker Memorial Baptist Chapel's "Firemen's Appreciation Sunday," Oct. 21, which will be followed by a free fish fry after noon.

The department may purchase decals, which would identify homes of members of the Lakeshore VFD if the price is reasonable.

The department will respond to all fire calls in the community irrespective of membership standing. However, some department officials are considering a service fee that will be charged home owners who are not paid up members of the local fire department when the firemen respond to their home.

Memberships are $25.00 annually.

LH Benefit for musician Sunday

Local musicians and an auction of at least 30 items will be featured at the benefit for Bill Baker beginning at 2 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 16, at Shirley's in Lakehills.

Music will be provided by area musicians. Musicians expected include Chet Reeves, Grady Mann, Randy Thaler, Dusty Britches, and Phil Trimble.

Barbecue plates will be sold at $4 starting 2 p.m. and the auction will take place between band sets. Mann will conduct the auction.

Items for the auction include a weed-eater, radio, automatic oil filter, electric car vaccuum cleaner and lots of cakes and pies.

Lots of musicians are expected since Bill has been playing music in the area for a long time.

Persons wishing to donate items to the auction should call Shirley's at 751-9929.

Bulldogs host Ingram at 8 p.m. game

By Nick Johnson
Bulletin Editor

Pleased with a victory in his first game as a Bulldog coach, Bandera Coach Chris Storer says on the eve of his team's second game with Ingram that it still has a long way to go, especially on defense.

But he doesn't plan on changing things much.

"We're going to do what we did last week, only a little bit better," he said Thursday. "If we play well, it should be a good ball game."

Kickoff is at 8 p.m. in Bulldog Stadium as the Bandera team plays its second home game of the year. To win, Coach Storer says his defense will have to play better.

"We're going to have to play better (on defense)," he said. "We didn't slow them (Dripping Springs) down very much." His Bulldogs surrendered three touchdowns in the first 2½ quarters and fell behind Dripping Springs by 20-7 last Friday, but shut them down in the last 1½ periods while the offense mounted a comeback that gave Bandera a 21-20 victory.

"We've been doing a lot of group work, doing things over and over again in practice," he said. "We work in groups — linebacker group, down linemen group, defensive backfield group."

Dripping Springs gained 242 yards on the ground against the Bulldog defense and ran up 16 first downs in all against only nine for Bandera.

The Tigers passed 16 times, completing one-half of them for 49 yards, but a strong rush and the ball hawking abilities of Chris Hensley, who intercepted three passes, stopped the visitors.

Coach Storer expects Ingram to present a different challenge this Friday. "Ingram is a good defensive team; a strong running team," he said. "They'll pass, but not as much as Dripping Springs."

Ingram fullback James Carson, a 210-pounder, rushed for more than 600 yards in five district games last year and teams with running back Paul Strey to give Ingram a potent running game.

Linebacker James Mayberry is the Warriors' secretary of the defense. He set a school record for tackles as a junior last season.

Bo Mansfield carried the ball 16 times for Bandera Friday, gaining 113 yards.

Volleyballers lose

Comfort defeated Bandera in volleyball Tuesday, Sept. 11, by scores of 15-4, 13-5 and 15-2.

July sales here up dramatically

By William Wall
Bulletin Austin Bureau

Austin -Sales of taxable goods and services in Bandera County in July, the first month of parimutuel racing at Bandera Downs, were more than 37 percent higher than last July, state comptroller Bob Bullock said Monday, and sales inside the city limits of Bandera were nearly 20 percent ahead of last July.

Sales in the county include concessions at the race track.

Bandera County received $11,661 as its portion of sales taxes collected in July, up 37.25 percent from the $8,496 it received a year ago, the comptroller's office said.

The city of Bandera received $12,248 as its portion of the taxes collected in July, up 19.12 percent from the $10,282 it received for a comparable period in 1989.

The increased payments brought Bandera's year-to-date total to $101,894, one-half of 1 percent higher than the $101,349 it received during the comparable period of 1989.

The figures reflect taxes collected on July sales and reported in late August by businesses filing monthly tax returns, the comptroller's office said. The county collects one-half of 1 percent on sales throughout the county and the city collects 1 percent on sales inside the city limits.

Bandera County merchants collect the state and local sales taxes and send them to the comptroller's office with their tax returns. The state keeps its 6¼ percent share and each months sends cities and counties their portion of the sales tax.

"The considerable increase in July sales resulted from a combination of three factors," said Sharon Hogan, public information officer with the comptroller's office. "Total sales in Bandera have increased, several new businesses have been added to the tax roles since last July and there were a number of late filers."

Statewide, gities and counties received $84 million in rebates, an 8-per-cent increase for cities and an 18-percent increase for counties over rebates a year ago.

Houston received $12.8 million, the state's largest payment, while Dallas received $7.8 million and San Antonio $4.5 million.

Rebates for area communities were down as compared to last year, as a rule.

Boerne, in Kendall County, reported July retail sales revenues of $31,049.29, just .01 percent higher than last July. The city's 1990 year-to-date revenues were $308,081.17, 7.63 percent higher than last year at this time.

Two cities in Kerr County reported combined monthly retail sales revenues of $121,967.97, 8.51 percent less than last July. Their year-to-date revenues are

Early census shows county among fastest-growing in Texas

Bandera County is the ninth fastest-growing county in Texas, according to preliminary 1990 census counts released this week.

The preliminary figures show that Bandera County's 1990 population was 10,514, up 3,430 or 48.4 percent from the official 1980 count.

The preliminary tally will require an adjustment to accurately reflect the size of the state's population, says state comptroller Bob Bullock. Statewide, the number of Texans has grown by 2.6 million, or 18.2 percent.

Counties that have experienced faster growth than Bandera County include Denton County, up 88.8 percent; Collin County, 81.3 percent; Williamson County, 81.0 percent; Rockwall County, 74.9 percent; Fort Bend County, 71.8 percent; Hood County, 62.9 percent; Hays County, 60.6 percent; and Bastrop County, 53.5 percent.

Preliminary counts in neighboring counties show Kendall County's population is up 36.4 percent to 14,508; Gillespie County, up 26.5 percent to 17,117; Kerr County, up 25.5 percent to 36,110; Bexar County, up 19.1 percent to 1.18 million; Medina County, up 17.4 percent to 27,198; Uvalde County, up 3.5 percent to 23,226; and Real County, down 2.5 percent to 2,408.

School bond issue rejected here by landslide vote

With more than 1,500 voters turning out, a $5.1 million school bond package failed by an overwhelming margin of 1,033 votes Saturday, Sept. 15. The same bond package was defeated in May by a vote of 627 to 466. Voters were asked to vote for or against "the issuance of bonds in the amount of $5,110,000, and the levying of the tax in payment thereof."

Of the 1,570 total voters, 437 or 27.85 percent voted for the bonds while 1,132 or 72.15 percent voted against them.

Absentee voting increased by almost 320 percent in the school bond election, and total voter turnout was some 43.6 percent higher than in May's election. There are 5,005 registered voters in BISD, according to Bandera County tax assessor-collector Margrit Guenther.

In Bandera, 173 voted for the bonds while 647 voted against them; in Pipe Creek, it was 136 for, 272 against; and in Lakehills, the vote was 128 for, 213 against.

By the close of absentee voting Tuesday, 427 absentee ballots had been cast, or some 319 percent more than the 133 absentee ballots cast in May's election.

"I'm sorry that (the election) didn't go better," said board president Charlotte Saltman. "Our only concern is for the better education of our children.

"I guess now it's back to the drawing board."

Bandera school trustees met Monday night to canvass votes and to declare the election results "official." According to superintendent Ted Dockery, the meeting was very brief, and the board members had very little to say.

"It was one of the shortest meetings we've had in months and months," Dockery said. "I think the board has decided to wait, and not decide what to do for now.

"In the last 10 to 12 months, a lot of time and energy was spent on the bond issue," he said. "We looked at the returns and we just decided to let it be for now."

Dockery said that the school will have to get a temporary bank

Rollback effort mounted by Bandera group

After the resounding defeat of the $5.1 million school bond, a tax rollback election may be in the offing for the Bandera Independent School District, if a group of tax protestors has its way.

In a statement issued Tuesday, Rilla Stephens and Bobby D. Jones have called a meeting of taxpayers to organize a petition drive to call an election to roll back the 41.7 percent tax hike that the Bandera Independent School District passed this year.

"This is an urgent call to all taxpayers to stand up once more and let's make sure our elected officials get the message. 'Let's have a Rollback'," says Stephens.

The group will meet Thursday, Sept. 27, at 7 p.m. at the Bandera Bank Community Room, says Stephens.

If the tax protest group wants to get a rollback election, it will have until Dec. 10 to get 10 percent of the registered voters in the Bandera Independent School District to sign their petitions.

The school would then review the petitions for validity, says Estes.

But if the rollback is successful, the district does not have to roll back tax rate at that time. "The law allows them to keep the tax rate that they just adopted. The school district is rolled back in the following year and has to calculate the new rate via a formula," says Estes.

So even a rollback election will not immediately reduce the $1.06 tax rate. "They get to maintain their tax rate they just adopted."

"Next summer the district will use a special formula to calculate the rollback rate," says Estes.

And while the rollback rate is set out at 81.7 cents per $100 property valuation now, the actual tax rate the district would adopt in 1991-92 may be different depending on how the state funds the school district and other factors, says BISD tax assessor collector Margrit Guenther.

Chinese group tours apple capital

By Janna Sandidge

When a group of visitors from China toured Medina's Love Creek Ranch recently, they were quite impressed with what they saw, according to Texas Extension Service horticulturist Loy Shreve from Uvalde.

The group toured several orchards and farms in the area on Wednesday, Aug. 15, and while they were here they gathered some plant samples to take back to their country for study.

"I made a plant collection trip to China in 1986, and this was sort of a 'return visit,' " Shreve said. He returned from China with some "special" apple plants, and the visitors were delighted to see that some of the plants Shreve brought back (from China) had been planted.

"They were excited about what they found (here)," he said. Some of the objects of their study included different varieties of apples. They also studied the prickly pear for the purpose of human consumption and native pines.

"They collected seeds from pinyon pine groves in Uvalde, Edwards and Real counties," said Shreve. He said China has already got a large pine nut industry, and the variety found here produces a larger nut than the variety they already have.

The group was interested in Texas' pecan industry and their native black walnuts. Just as Texas has a Pedding walnut industry, China has been trying to establish a pecan industry, Shreve said.

"China is a very large nation, with many types of soil and climate," he explained. "Parts of China have a very similar soil type to the one found in this area, with a very high ph-level."

Love Creek apple orchard owner Baxter Adams said the group's visit to his orchard was exciting as well as educational.

"They asked a lot of very intelligent questions," Adams said. He explained that because of the highly alkaline soil found in both the Texas Hill Country and parts of China, many types of apple do not grow well in either place. He said the Chinese visitors were interested in learning more about the use of sulfur to correct the soil's ph-level.

"They were very interested in learning, and they were pleased with the high density apple orchard," Adams said. "The dwarf orchard is not something they had seen a lot of."

The group of visitors came from all over China, and included an engineer, a researcher, a university president and pomologists (apple specialists). The group's leader was Xi Sheng Ke, associate professor of the Chinese Academy of Forestry in Beijing.

While they were in this area, the group toured apple, almond and walnut orchards, a grape vineyard, and a pinyon pine stand. They toured sites in Somerset, Hondo, Castroville, Quihi, Uvalde and Medina. They left Aug. 17

Xi Sheng Ke, associate professor of the Chinese Academy of Forestry in Beijing, left and Baxter Adams, owner of Adams' Apples in Medina, talk during a tour of Chinese foresters in South Texas. The foresters toured pecan and apple orchards and pinyon pine stands in this area recently.

Let's have a rollback

Dear editor:

The people have spoken. Let this (defeat of school bonds) serve as a warning to the Bandera Independent School District: Do not use our tax money to put another bond (issue) before us anytime within the next two years.

This is an urgent call to all taxpayers to stand up once more and let's make sure our elected officials get the message — let's have a rollback.

Taxpayers, let's not stop here. We have won one victory, but we need to stand together once more. If you want to help us with the rollback, please attend the meeting Thursday, Sept. 27, at 7 p.m. in the Bandera Bank Community Building.

Taxpayers/citizens, this is your country and your city, and these are people (school board members) you elected and they are supposed to work for you — not against you. There are two more things we must do, and we must do them as a unit:

- We must go to the next school board meeting on Oct. 9 at 7 p.m. at the high school library. Be sure to call the superintendent's office ahead of time and ask to be able to speak, if you wish to do so. When you get to the meeting, sign in. This is to make sure your being on the agenda to speak when we attend this meeting, the topic of discussion will be, "Do not use our money for anyone else's) to put another bond before within the next two years.
- We must, as a unit, attend a taxpayer's meeting to organize our rollback against the 41.7 percent tax hike the school has heaped upon us. Please attend this meeting. I promise you it will be the most enlightening and informative meeting you have ever attended. If we are to ever accomplish anything, we must stand together, and we need your help to do this. If you really care about your taxes, be there.

These San Antonio men had a sticky — and stinging — problem on their hands Friday afternoon when about one-fourth of their truckload of bee hives, complete with bees and honey, dumped on Hackberry Street. The bees were on their way to San Antonio from Slaton in West Texas when they dumped on the Bandera street. The workmen were pretty tight-lipped about the whole affair. It's unknown why they were in Bandera in the first place.

No one to lose county job as commissioners slash budget

County freezes salaries and hiring, cancels part-time and temporary employees, and eschews overtime.

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Bandera County commissioners made several "sacrifices," including cutting overtime and new-hires, in the $2.922 million county budget, but stopped short of laying off any current county employees.

Commissioners voted 3 to 1 to raise the tax rate from 30.84 cents per $100 property valuation to 33.48 cents Thursday, Sept. 13.

The same 3 to 1 split voted to fund the new fiscal budget, which starts Oct. 1, at 2.4 percent above last year's $2,853,775 budget.

Commissioner Bennie Barker was the only "nay" vote on both the budget and the tax rate increase.

Cuts made by the county to balance the 1990-91 budget include freezing all employee salaries, hiring freeze, cancellation of all proposed part-time and temporary employees, and paying no overtime, says Bandera County Judge Ray F. Mauer.

The county library's request for an additional part-time employee was dropped. Mansfield Park will be run by one man, the current manager, and his assistant will be transferred to the road and bridge department.

The third secretary in the county judge's office, a temporary summer employee who continued to work through the budget process, will also be leaving this month, as she had planned.

"We did not dismiss any employee on the payroll. We just eliminated new positions," says Mauer.

The hiring freeze includes present positions. "If anyone leaves during the budget year, that position will be left vacant," says Mauer.

The 12-percent cuts in the initially proposed $3.255 million budget required sacrifice, said Mauer. "A lot of people had to make sacrifices," he said.

Even the proposed repair to a leaking courthouse roof and the addition of an elevator to make the district courtroom accessible to the handicapped have been cut. "All funds allocated in the past for courthouse roof repair and elevator construction has been zeroed out," says Mauer.

Initially $183,077 was proposed for custodial, maintenance, and repairs in the courthouse, including the roof repair, elevator, and converting part of the district court room to office space. That part of the budget was slashed to $73,739.

The duties of the permits and inspections department will reverted to each commissioner, with the exception of flood plain searches, says Mauer, when Raymond "Spot" Wright retires Jan. 31 at age 72.

However, Wright will work on a fee basis to do flood plain searches, says Mauer.

The only county department that will be allowed overtime will be the sheriff's department. Sheriff R.S. "Steve" Forest will have to reimburse any sheriff's department personnel's overtime from his cash seizure fund, the so-

But his initially proposed $500,469 budget was trimmed 8.7 percent to $457,038 through the budget cutting process.

In the road and bridge portion of the budget, commissioners will share $576,003 to maintain roads in their precincts.

Barker's precinct 1 and Dan Alanis' precinct 2 will each have $150,130 to spend. Roger Raser's precinct 3, the smallest precinct in area, will have $110,613. N.P. "Bud" Thompson's precinct 4, the largest precinct in area, will have $165,130.

Some precincts may have additional funds due to a carryovers in their budgets.

A proposal to finish paving English Crossing Road so it could become a diversion for local traffic during Bandera Downs racing days was not funded.

Barker objected to the distribution of the funds to each precinct for road maintenance based on the what he termed "unequal" treatment.

In a letter to other commissioners, Barker pointed out that his precinct had 140 miles of roadway and was given $1,072 per mile for maintenance. Precinct 4, however, with $165,130 and 199 miles of road "must maintain their roads at a miserly cost of $829 per mile," said Barker.

Barker pointed out that precinct 3, with 68 miles of road and lower-than-any-precinct $110,612 budget, was still budgeted at $1,627 per mile. Precinct 2 with 90 miles of road received $150,130, or $1,668 per mile rate.

"Simply put, the largest precincts got less money to maintain more roads," he said.

Commissioners were able to fund one new item.

"The only good thing that came out of this budget was to be able to furnish a van for the Meals on Wheels program in Lakehills," says commissioner Dan Alanis.

The county will allow one of the county vans to be used by the Medina Lake Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons to transport cooked meals from the Silver Sage Corral in Bandera to the Pipe Creek and Lakehills area. The meals are prepared in Kerrville.

Commodites from the federal government's surplus food program will also be transported by the van from Bandera to Lakehills where they will be distributed.

While the majority of commissioners voted for a 8.56 percent tax rate increase, the county will actually realize less money from the ad valorem tax this year than last because of a drop in property values. "We're getting less this year than last," says Mauer.

Last year's property tax take was $1,164,644 and this year it will be $1,134,863.

Other county tax income includes $80,660 from the county indigent health care tax, $175,149 from the county special ad valorem road tax, $85,050 from the road district tax, and $58,333 from the county road bonds tax that is built into the 33.48 cents tax rate.

The county expects to earn $110,010 sales tax revenue, which can only be used to offset the property tax rate; $64,900 from the $10 motor vehicle license fee; $332,900 from the motor vehicle license and title fees; $17,270 from the state for lateral roads maintenance.

Other income includes $18,050 from license and permit fees, $247,890 for charges of services, $104,400 from fines and forfeitures, $7,350 from Mansfield Park rental fees, $21,400 from garbage collection fees, and $41,590 from interest earned on funds collected.

An estimated $103,000 will be collected from the ambulance service provided by Bandera County EMS.

The commissioners hiked the rate charged for the ambulance service from $125 per run to $150 per run. At a 73 percent collection rate, the additional $25 was needed to pay for the service, said Mauer.

The ambulance mileage fee was upped from $2.50 per mile to $3 per mile. "When we started this (fiscal) year, we paid 53 cents per gallon for gasoline and we paid $1.13 a gallon yesterday," said Alanis.

"Whenever fuel costs go up, everything goes up," said Raser.

Total estimated income for the county is $2,663,693 and the county will use $258,967 from funds not spent in 1989-91 to balance the $2,922,660 budget.

Barker said he opposed any tax ihcrease at this time. "I think that we could have done a much better job in cutting costs in several areas that would have prevented having to consider a tax increase this year," he said.

Commissioners voting yes said they realized the burden on the taxpayer. "It is difficult to support a tax rate increase," said Raser. "But unfortunately, we had to have an increase along with the other tax increases (by the school districts) in the county," he said. "We had no choice.

"We scraped the bottom of the barrel and cut every corner," he said.

This year's proposed tax rate of 33.48 cents per $100 would cost a taxpayer with a $50,000 home and with a $5,000 exemption $150.66.

Last year's taxes at 30.84 cents per $100 property valuation, would have had a $138.78 tax bill on a $50,000 home with a $5,000 exemption.

OST building in Hondo selected for mental health service center

The OST Building in Hondo [illegible] selected as community service center to serve up to 100 patients per day from boarding homes located throughout Medina County, says the Medina Valley Times in Devine.

The boarders are housed in private boarding homes, mostly near Devine, by the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation. "The facility will serve the [illegible] tration of boarded schizophrenics in the world," the newspaper said.

Some 120 persons per day will use the facility for training and entertainment. It will employ 18 to 20 persons.

Drug task forces may be eliminated

U.S. Rep. Lamar Smith says the next battle in the war on drugs may be waged on the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives when an amendment to the 1990 Crime Bill will be debated that could eliminate funding for the 216th Judicial District Drug Task Force.

"Drug task forces in San Antonio and most of West and South Texas would be completely cut off from federal funding," says Smith.

U.S. Rep. Romano Mazzoli, a Kentucky Democrat, has introduced an amendment to the Crime Bill that would change the existing method of paying for drug task forces by giving the money to a limited number of cities instead of to the states, Smith said.

"The closest Texas city to receive funding would be Austin," Smith says. "El Paso would be the only border town to receive the federal drug-fighting funds. Eight border towns now receive federal anti-drug funds.

The Hill Country task force is one of 49 in the state that resulted from 1988 anti-drug legislation. "If the Mazzoli Amendment should pass, 42 of those task forces risk extinction," Smith said.

The congressman who represents Bandera County in Washington said the 49 task forces have made 19,272 arrests, confiscated $1.2 billion in illegal narcotics, and seized $27 million in assets.

"These are results we cannot ignore," said Smith. "It is imperative that these multi-jurisdictional drug task forces remain intact, so they can continue to wage their war on drugs."

Grants funded

No criminal justice grants for projects in Bandera County were among 34 area projects funded for 1991, says the Alamo Area Council of Governments.

Eighteen of the projects funded are in San Antonio and Bexar County. Others are in Converse, Leon Valley, Universal City, Guadalupe County, Kerr County, Kendall County, Gillespie County, Comal County, Medina County, and the cities of Fredericksburg, Pearsall, New Braunfels and Boerne.

Bandera County's juvenile services are included in a $41,000 grant that also benefits seven other counties.

Business counseling offered in chamber program

One-on-one business counseling for Bandera area small business owners and persons interested in starting a business will be offered beginning Wednesday, Oct. 3, in a program coordinated by the Bandera County Chamber of Commerce.

The University of Texas at San Antonio Small Business Development Center will provide the confidential one-on-one counseling every other month on the first Wednesday beginning Oct. 3, said chamber secretary Nancy Hopes.

"Counselors at the UTSA SBDC are well-qualified to provide assistance in a variety of areas," said Hopes. "Having operated their own businesses, the counselors have a wealth of resources and experiences from which to draw."

She said the counselors are equipped to offer suggestions and outline specific alternatives to help the small business owner be a more effective manager.

The SBDC has already established a successful program in Kerr County and Hondo, Hopes said. "The center's goal is to have programs operating in all 12 counties covered by the Alamo Area Council of Governments by the end of the year," Hopes said.

An appointment for confidential counseling may be scheduled by calling the chamber at 796-3045. After Oct. 3, the sessions will be available on Dec. 5, Feb. 6, April 3, June 5 and Aug. 7.

Fans for the high school dressing rooms, donated to the athletic department, will be installed by booster club members.

The group's next scheduled meeting will be Monday, Oct. 29.

Schreiner program features study in central part of Mexico

Life in a small, artists' colony and the chance to study Spanish, writing and other subjects are part of Schreiner College's winter term session Jan. 4-25 in San Miguel de Allende, Mexico.

In the mountains of Central Mexico, San Miguel de Allende has the largest collection of artists -painters, writers, poets and musicians — in the world. Centuries-old colonial buildings and cobblestone streets testify to the town's history.

Winter term students live with Mexican families and choose among courses including Spanish enrichment -taught at the Instituto Allende —, creative writing, the role and power of culture, and the aesthetic experience.

Field trips will take students to nearby pre-Columbian sites and to Mexico City, where they will see Ballet Folklorico and the Teotihuacan pyramid.

"San Miguel de Allende gives students a tremendous exposure to Mexican culture," said Schreiner Spanish instuctor Raphael Venegas. "You get a total immersion in the language and customs."

Cost of the three-week session is $940 and area residents interested may register before Nov. 1.

Highway agency warns against campaign signs

Political campaign signs may be beautiful to candidates and their supporters, but they're litter to the highway department, the transportation agency reminded this week.

"The highway beautification act prohibits most campaign signs within sight of the main lanes of any federally-funded highway in Texas," the highway department said in a news release issued this week.

In addition, safety rules ban the signs from all highway rights-of-way in the state, the agency said.

"Campaign sings, like any advertisement, can be posted on private property if they are licensed and permitted under current billboard guidelines," the news release explained. "However, most campaign signs don't qualify."

Signs are allowed on private property along farm-to-market roads and other state-funded roadways as long as they can't be seen from federally funded roads and don't violate local laws against such signs. There are no federally-funded roads in Bandera County.

Workshop set

An orientation for persons from Bandera and five other area counties who want to become foster parents will be held Tuesday, Sept. 25, at 7 p.m. at Zion Lutheran Church in Kerrville.

Classes will continue weekly for four additional weeks.

Foster parents must be 21 years of age, single or married at least two years, and able to make at least a six-month commitment to a child, says Cindy Sykes of the Texas Department of Human Services.

"We have two very legitimate concerns regarding these campaign signs," said highway department engineer-director Arnold Oliver. "Safety concerns and litter control laws dictate that we keep the rights-of-way free of clutter, whether it's for political candidates, real estate companies, or anyone (else) displaying advertising on the highways."

State highway maintenance forces are busy notifying political organizations to remove unauthorized signs. If candidates don't remove the signs, the highway department says, maintenance workers will, leaving the candidate subject to a fine under the litter abatement act.

"This can be an expensive activity for us and the candidates," says Oliver. "We're asking their help to save both of us time and money."

loan of $250,000 to pay salaries this month, and because there is no fund balance for BISD to "fall back on," the school will have to wait until it gets a partial insurance payment before it can begin to replace kitchen equipment that was stolen recently.

A 500-student elementary school in the Pipe Creek/Lakehills area at an estimated cost of $2,406,960 was the costliest single item on a short list of proposals to be financed by the bonds. A 16-classroom junior high facility, estimated to cost $1,036,500, was also on the agenda.

Junior high campus plans included the construction of 16 classrooms, three science rooms with storage space, computer room, administrative offices, teachers lounge/workroom, and restrooms.

Fees of $187,850 bring the total cost of proposed renovation and construction at the junior high campus to $2,066,350.

High school campus renovations include adding four classrooms plus an art storage room, adding/renovating science classrooms/labs, redirecting bus traffic, construction of covered bus loading area to cafeteria and academic wing, addition of security lights to faculty parking lot and entrance and exit drives, complete seating in auditorium (336 seats), addition of four tennis/basketball courts, and addition of a baseball field. Total cost of the high school project was to be $566,500.

Football stadium renovations approved by the board include relocating the visitors bleachers, moving the field, painting the stadium, and renovating the concession stand, at a cost of $22,000.

The school's central office would be located in the Merrick Building, if the bond issue had passed. The board voted to spend $10,000 renovating the Merrick Building for central administration offices. They also voted to construct a tax office storage area and entrance steps and a walk to the Merrick Building.

Grand total for all proposed construction and renovation was $5,109,910, according to school administration figures. The proposed bonds would have financed the total cost of the projects.

Aid available for small businesses seeking loans

Applications are being accepted for long-term small business loans through Cen-Tex Certified Development Corporation, a new group formed by the Lower Colorado River Authority to help applicants through the paper maze.

The corporation received full certification from the Small Business Administration Friday, Sept. 7.

Businesses in Bandera County who receive electric service from the Bandera Electric Co-op are eligible for the program since the Bandera Co-op's sole source of power is the LCRA.

The loans are for fixed assets only, including land, buildings and major equipment. They are part of the SBA's 504 loan program, which is available for small businesses that contribute 10 percent in cash or assets.

The SBA provides 40 percent of the loan at a fixed rate for an extended period and commercial lenders handle 50 percent at the market rate. Commercial lenders have first lien on the assets involved.

Cen-Tex, "sponsored" by LCRA, is governed by a 10-member board of directors and is headed by Mark Sheffield of Smithville, the group's president. Vice president is Robbie Moses of Kerrville.

Persons interested in applying for the SBA 504 loans may write Randy Cosson, LCRA, Box 220, Austin 78767.

The classes run from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and provide the full eight-hour program prescribed by the Texas Education Agency, the National Safety Council and the Texas Safety Association, a spokesman said. A fee of $25 will be charged.

Jockey rides five winners Sunday

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

"Five horses" were the key to jockey Robert Bard's five wins Sunday at Bandera Downs, tying Jesse Sauceda's track record for the most wins by one jockey in a single day.

Bard's horses in Sunday's Bandera Downs races were in the money seven out of eight times, with five wins, one place, and one show. "Seven of the eight mounts I rode were live," he said.

Bard's first winning ride was in the third race with Beduinos Fire, but the 14-year veteran of race tracks was looking back at Going Places Fast, who finished second. "I've ridden that horse before and I know she's fast," Bard said.

Bard rode Going Places Fast at Remington Park July 1 when the horse ran third by a neck to Smashed To A T.

When he's winning, Bard said he does look back, but it's just a turn of the neck and a glance. "I look back just enough so I don't throw myself off balance," he said.

In Sunday's only thoroughbred race, Bard took 11:1 longshot Bara Texan from behind to win and pay $25.00 to win, $8.80 to place and $4.60 to show.

Perfect Reaction, ridden by Hector Paez, led from the gate and down the backstretch of the six-furlong race.

But coming out of the hook, Paez let his 5-year-old go wide and Bara Texan came charging from third place to take the lead.

Down the stretch, Perfect Reaction couldn't keep up and finished third while My Flight zoomed down the stretch to capture second, 2¼ lengths behind Bara Texan.

Thoroughbred racing depends on the right position in the field of horses going around the track and only running them the distance they are able, said Bard. "They can only run so far," he said.

Rain began to pour three minutes before post time of the seventh race Sunday, but the noise and wind of the storm didn't affect Bard's winning mount, a 7-year-old gelding. "Streakin Saint is a veteran and we ran in a hard storm, but it (the weather) didn't make any difference (in the race)," he said.

The rain, which had been threatening all day, changed the track condition from "fast" to "muddy" by the ninth race. But that didn't bother Bard's horses, and if anything, contributed to his wins, he said.

Bard's winning mounts in the ninth and tenth race, 6-1 favorite Here Comes Poggo and 8-5 favorite Go Little Poggo, "like the mud," he said.

Track announcer Don Alexander described Here Comes Poggo's start as "a bullet from the gate" and Bard must have known he already had the race in his pocket.

Bard said he knows he's won when his quarter horse "gets away from the gate good and clean - then you can't beat them."

And as if to confirm it, Alexander called the finish, "Here Comes Poggo takes it from the gate to the wire."

Both Here Comes Poggo and Go Little Poggo are conditioned by leading money-winning trainer Toby Keeton. Both horses are foals of Go Poggo and R.H. Clarke of Kingsville owns both horses.

Bard said he'd rather ride the better quarter horses, like Here Comes Poggo and Go Little Poggo. "I like quarter horses, but in Texas, we also have to ride thoroughbreds," he said.

To win a quarter horse race, which lasted only 17.76 seconds with Go Little Poggo in Sunday's 350-yard heat, "everything has to go right with the race," said Bard.

Each quarter horse ride is different, too. "Some you just sit and be as still as you can and let the horse run and others you use the whip. It depends on the horse," said Bard.

Bard, a native of Dallas, started as a jockey in 1976 and raced for 12 years in California.

He came to Bandera two years ago to race at Bandera Downs. "When you stay at home, you don't have the traveling expenses."

Over the Aug. 24-26 weekend, when Bandera Downs was dark, Bard rode Tee Roy Reb at the Woodlands Quarter Horse Championship in Kansas City and took second in the $30,000 race to Raisn Indupendent.

"Sometimes you have to go all over (the country) to ride the money horses," said Bard.

Tee Roy Reb had won 3 stakes races at Remington Downs.

Bard took Doctor Bright to second place in the Medina Handicap Sunday, losing to Zevistator, which ran 1¾ lengths ahead of the rest of the nine-horse field.

Bard rode third in the eighth race with Fleet N Man. He also rode Azure Baby in the 12th race to a fifth-place finish.

Sorry, but your sometime Polyanna is still brooding this week over the misplaced values of the so-called civilized world which are hourly being called to question by events in the Persian Gulf. We can only continue to pray that the suffering being felt already by the poorest of the poor will give the rest of us pause.

A Dallas pen-pal, Carolyn Norgaard, quoted Margaret Drabble when she wrote, "Sometimes it seems the only accomplishment my education ever bestowed on me was the ability to think in quotations". Did she mean us?

Guilty as charged, we present a quotation summing up our current mood, tediously copies from the blackboard in Maple and Bob Cowan's working dining room, while we were at the same time carrying on an interesting conversation with Maple.

"Little of our effort goes for survival. Most of it, in some complex way, goes to satisfy or stimulate our fantasies toward feeling good. Yet we spend less effort making where we live beautiful and good-feeling than we do traveling to other places to get away from our bad feelings. Travel less. Give more to making where you are a paradise."

Thanks, Bob, for helping us think!

With the millions of third-worlders, whom we continue to treat with militant misunderstanding, bearing the painful brunt of the maneuvers of leaders operating from their Mesopotamian palaces and New England golf-carts, it seems the least we can do is to work to make the place where we are more like paradise.

We're reminded again of the sermon at St. Stanislaus months ago by Archbishop Patrick Flores, who told of his question to Mother Teresa as to how he could help save the world. Here we go thinking in quotes again. Mother Teresa answered that it is impossible to save the world, therefore you must help ease the pain of those closest to you. Bishop Flores, to go on quoting, said, "You can't save the world. Save Bandera."

So here are some small things to do around here.

1. Pick up the trash. Hwy. 16 looks worse each week. Clean your house and send all thatstuff that you don't need to Helping Hand.

2. Find a way to construct affordable rent housing. People coming to work here can't afford the motel more than a night or two. People taking the minimum-wage jobs in the services offered to tourists don't make enough to pay high rent.

3. Buy everything you can from local merchants, still fighting for their independence and very lives. The Wal-Mart trucks are all over the road, killing towns.

4. Invite subdivision-trapped kids for a day in the real wild. Children living here now don't have the freedom, fondly imagined, of living in the country. (The YMCA Camp did a great job this summer offering scholarships to Bandera teen-agers.)

5. Keep smiling and saying howdy. The city Texans have forgotten how to be nice. Yankees never learned.

Shea and Greg Butler

Shea Hicks, Greg Butler wed in Bandera rite

Shea Hicks and Greg Butler were married Sunday, Aug. 26, by the Rev. Rob Runke at St. Stanislaus Catholic Church in Bandera.

The wedding Mass was followed by a reception at the Mayan Ranch where music was provided by Clay Blaker.

The bride is the daughter of Don and Judy Hicks, owners and operators of the Mayan Ranch in Bandera. The bridegroom is the son of Wallace and Albina Butler of Pipe Creek.

The bride's dress was ivory peau de soir beaded with seed pearls and aurora borealis sequins cascading down the front and sleeves. The v-back of the gown had a detachable bustle and sequined train. The headpiece was complemented with satin, rhinestones and pearls to match the dress. She carried a fresh callalilly arrangement.

Bridesmaids included the bride's five sisters, Kelly Orion, Tracy Mack, Shannon Schmidt, Tracy Hicks and Judy Hicks; the sister of the groom, Teri Butler; and Christie Potsavich, Dorothy Duff and Sarah Kalaski. Junior bridesmaids were Heidi and Breanne Hicks and Keri King. Flower girls were Tara and Kassie Hicks, nieces of the bride.

Bridesmaids wore peach, off-the-shoulder dresses accented with pearls on the collar. Each carried a bouquet of fresh calla and tiger lillies.

The matron of honor, the bride's sister Shawna Lowrie, wore a peach peplum, off-the-shoulder dress accented with pearls at the collar and the kick pleat. She carried a bouquet of callalillies.

The best man was Tim Butler, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Scot Butler, brother of the groom; Daniel Schmidt; Enrique Yurita; Abe Caruthers; Frank Montague; Owen Weaver; John Oppelt; Craig LeStourgeon; and Jimmy Jennings.

Brett Hicks, nephew of the bride, was the ring bearer, and ushers were George Montague, Charles Newcomer, Henry Salzman and Robert Tschirhart.

After a honeymoon trip to the Hawaiian Islands and San Francisco, the couple will live at the Whispering Winds Ranch near Bandera.

Wier appointed

Orville Wier of Medina will coordinate the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital "Wheels for Life" bike-a-thon in Medina on Saturday, Oct. 6.

The bike-a-thon is dedicated to 5-year-old Brooke Simon of Delcambre, La., who developed a Wilms Tumor in 1988 and has under gone the removal of her left kidney and radiation and chemotherapy treatments.

Bike-a-thon participants get sponsors to contribute a set amount to St. Jude's Hospital for each mile they ride.

The engagement and approaching marriage of Charlene Dianne Adams and Kenneth Allen Mays of San Antonio, have been announced by Mr. and Mrs. H.M. Adams Jr. of San Antonio. Mays is the son of David and Gwen Weaver of San Antonio. The bride-to-be is a graduate of Bandera High School and the granddaughter of Annie and Henry M. Adams Sr. of Medina. An October wedding is planned at the Adams' Bar Seven Ranch in Medina.

The engagement and approaching wedding of Tracey Ruth Hicks and Thomas Edward Duggan have been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Hicks of Bandera. The couple plans an Oct. 6 wedding Mass at St. Stanislaus Catholic Church in Bandera.

Hicks' essay wins first in contest

"What a sixth grade student can do to help keep drugs out of his/her school, and why these ideas are important" was the topic of a winning essay written by sixth grader Heidi Hicks in response to the televised "S.A. Crackdown on Drugs" shown on television Aug. 29.

"Junior high students were asked to watch the program and be prepared to answer an essay question," said teacher Jacque Loeffler. "The sixth grade essays were judged at the junior high and Heidi Hicks' essay was chosen to be entered in an Express News contest.

"Chris Davis and Regina Montague were second place winners at the junior high."

Tarpley

Nettie Dean 562-3464

Scattered showers fell in the Tarpley area during the week. It looks to be a good winter season if the rains continue.

• The Tarpley church service was held by the Rev. Arthur Burch of Stonewall. He was accompanied by his wife Charlene and daughter Shea of Austin.

The Burches and Elzie and Nettie Dean were dinner guests of Bill and Willie Morris Sunday.

Linda Chiaolm of Dilley was also a church guest Sunday. She was spending the weekend with the Don Karrs.

• The Rev. and Mrs. Glenn Rhines are back home for church services, after spending the summer months doing mission work in Alta Frio Baptist Encampment.

• The Rev. Larry Downum of San Antonio will be the supply pastor for the Tarpley Baptist Church services Sunday, Sept. 23.

• Thursday, Sept. 13 the Williams Creek Extension Homemakers met in the home of Lorene Billings with eight members and two visitors present.

Visitors included Dolores Heeg of Bandera and Dorothy Mattiza of Tarpley.

Mattiza brought the program on landscaping and also a subject many of us dread- wilt disease of our beautiful live oak trees.

She showed slides on how a friend of hers is treating trees with the disease, in hopes of saving them.

The next extension club meeting will be Oct. 9 at the home of Nettie Dean.

The program will be about "fats in the diet."

• Harold Jackson returned home Sunday after spending several days in Methodist Hospital in San Antonio. He reports he is much improved, and happy to be home.

Girls ages 9-12 years will navigate their way through "First Encounters," an exhibition on Spanish exploration, where they will view an actual 2/3 replica of Columbus' ship, the Nina.

Cost of the overnight program is $28 for museum members and $35 for non-members, including an evening snack and hot breakfast. For reservations, call the Education Department at 226-5544, ext. 160.

Wharton's Dock

John Ciarlo

Boots and Perry Johnson have returned from a six-week tour of the Western United States.

Their first stop was in the mountains of New Mexico where the temperatures fell to the mid-30s at night.

The Johnsons next journeyed to Colorado and Wyoming. "The fire damage to Yellowstone Park was very extensive, much more than was reported," observes Perry.

The mountains of Utah, Idaho, Oregon, Montana, Nevada were cool, green, and beautiful, says Perry.

On the way home, they stopped in Lago Vista.

"The weather was hot, but the grandchildren were there so that made the visit one of the highlights of the trip," says Perry.

• Faye Wells and Ollie Reinhart of Bandera visited friends Sunday and attended service at the Walker Memorial Baptist Chapel.

• Frank and Ola Harrell of Wharton's Dock are celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary in Hawaii.

• Laura Townsley, 3½, of Austin visited her grandparents, the Rev. Ken and Gwyn Allen, this past weekend.

Allen explained his strained voice in service Sunday morning was "the result of the never-ending questions and seemingly non-satisfying answers he and his granddaughter exchanged," he said.

Allen jokes that anyone with the "key" that turns 3½ year olds off, they should come forward and let him in on the secret.

Renee Townsley, Laura's mother and the Allens' daughter, accompanied Laura on her weekend excursion.

• Laurie Cherry's father, Jack Boyer, died Saturday morning.

Laurie and Bruce went to Corpus Christi to visit the family.

• Bill Baker remains in the Audie L. Murphy Memorial Veterans Administration Hospital and started his cancer therapy Tuesday morning.

• Former residents Bob and Linda York from Garland have been visiting in the area for a few days. Her brother is in the Brooks Army Medical Center.

• The First Saturday of the month Community dinner will be held Oct. 6 at the Copper Lantern. Tamales and chili will be served. Those coming are asked to bring a covered side dish.

• The Lake Medina Shores Owners Association (LMSOA) met Sept. 1 and elected a new board of directors.

Clarence Spangler and Arnold Fulmer were elected directors; B.T. Chavarra, president; Edward Brewen, vice president for finance; Larry Sims, vice president for maintenance; Bonnie Heuer, vice president for swimming pool operations; Ruben Villalobos, vice president for security; and Olga Chavarria, secretary.

Al Smalley was selected as chairman for social activities.

A monthly covered dish dinner will take place every second Saturday of the month beginning in October. It will be held at the subdivision's pool and cabana area at 6 p.m.

"Members are urged to participate," says Smalley.

• Those attending Walker Memorial Chapel Sunday heard an unusual lesson, "How to defeat your son at golf even though he is a better player."

The lesson was, "Take your wife along and when the son is ready to drive off the tee, she will yell there is a small bird or something living creature, so he ends up shanking or hooking his drive. No son will tell his mother to keep quiet."

• Bud says, "You know you're getting older when you need a fire permit to light all the candles on your birthday cake."

Employee of the month

The Thousand Trails Medina Lake Preserve recently named Rogers Oliver as its employee of the month.

Tenth Cajun festival will feed, entertain

The tenth annual Cajun Festival will offer gumbo, music, and more food than most people can pronounce Saturday, Sept. 29, at the Lakehills Civic Center.

It's the tenth year for the Medina Lake Betterment Association's gumbo cookoff fundraiser.

But the scope of the festival has expanded so much that the event was renamed the, "Cajun Festival."

Professional and amateur gumbo cooks from all over Texas and Louisiana will still be at center stage, but more Cajun foods have been added for the pleasure of the festival patrons.

Cajun foods authentically prepared will include crawfish pies, jambalaya, barbecue shrimp, shrimp etouffee, bread pudding with whiskey sauce, French donuts, and pralines.

Other foods available will include Texas favorites chicken and beef fajitas, sausage and hot dogs.

But the Cajun Festival is more than just food, it's also music.

The Band-Aids jazz band will lead off the day at noon followed by the Whoosits Good Time Big Pile Garbage Band at 2 p.m.

Fiddlin' Frenchie Burke will play with the Dusty Britches Band beginning at 6 p.m. and continuing until 10 p.m.

Admission is $2 for adults and children under 12 are free.

All proceeds will benefit the Medina Lake Betterment Association.

PC EMS open house Friday

The Pipe Creek EMS will host an open house Friday, Sept. 21, from 6 p.m. until 10 p.m. at the ambulance barn and will offer video tapping of children for identification purposes.

Parents can bring their children and a VHS video-tape to the ambulance barn Friday and members of the Pipe Creek unit of the Bandera County EMS will video tape their children so parents will have a video record of their children in case they are kidnapped or turn up missing.

"These tapes will be given back to the parents so that these tapes can be used for search team bulletins, television broadcasts, and community flyers in the case that their children disappear," says spokesman Eric Stutes.

Persons without children are also welcome to attend the open house, says Stutes. "In celebration of EMS Awareness Week (Sept. 16-22), we will offer free blood pressure checks, first-aid tips, and refreshments," he says.

"Please come join us so that we can meet with you and share a piece of the EMS family's heart," says Stutes.

Betting seminar at Legion Thursday

Bandera Downs will offer a handicapping seminar at the Lakehills American Legion Thursday, Sept. 20, beginning at 7 p.m. for American Legion and auxiliary members.

While the seminar is just for Legionnaires and auxiliary members, the Legion and auxiliary members can be from any post, not just the Lakehills post, says spokesman Tony Kruse.

Sunday will be American Legion Day at the races and Legion members will get to have their picture taken in the winner's circle, says Kruse.

Youth at Hermann Sons camp

"Seventeen youths from Bandera County were among 3,099 junior members who attended the 37th annual Sons of Hermann Youth Summer Camp at Comfort," Leroy Muehlstein, president of the Order, announced.

Campers from Bandera County were Jamie Carlile, Nina Faia, John Bloxham, Bart Byerley, Timothy Gard, Patrick Hubbard and Charles Montague of Bandera; Cody Cravatt, Scot Dunn and Randy Halsey of Lakehills; and Angela Culver, Shannon Gaffney, Kelly Rigsby, Tammy Timmons, Selah Tramell, Roger Gunderman and Justin Stade of Pipe Creek.

The number of campers, who are boys and girls age 9 through 13, was the greatest since the camp opened in 1954, exceeding the previous record of 2,828 set in 1989.

Due to steadily increasing attendance at the camp, the Grand Lodge in San Antonio has initiated plans to construct a second youth camp on the southeast quadrant of the Order's 333-acre property in the Hill Country.

The 79,500 member statewide fraternal benefit society also has 15 youth chapters and sponsors 44 tuition-free schools of dance in cities and towns across Texas.

A camp director, assistant camp director and some 45 carefully-chosen staff members with expertise in sports and crafts work at the camp. At the 11 weekly sessions campers receive instruction in a number of activities, including tennis, horseback riding, swimming, volleyball, soccer, softball, golf, canoeing, archery and outdoor living skills, as well as arts and crafts.

Six weekly sessions for girls, plus a mini-camp prior to June 3, and five for boys were held, with 1,813 girls and 1,286 boys attending this summer, both topping previous records.

Located in the southeast corner of Kerr County in a typical Hill Country setting, the camp is near the Guadalupe River. Campers live in air-conditioned masonry dormitories and enjoy a modern swimming pool, tennis courts, and soccer and softball playing fields.

Cost to Hermann Sons junior members this year was a maximum of $30 for the week. However, members could earn credit points during the year prior to the camp by attending junior chapter meetings and by recommending new members to the Order so in some cases they could reduce their camp cost to zero.

Shaw, Kaiser wed

Genevieve Shaw and Earl N. Kaiser of San Antonio were married Saturday, Sept. 1, at St. Victor's Chapel in Lakehills with the Rev. Blasen officiating.

Attendants were Jack and Katherine Williams of Lakehills.

After the ceremony, the couple was treated to dinner at the Lakehills Fire Department's annual barbecue where their marriage was announced.

VFW starting new post in Pipe Creek area

Veterans are invited to an organizational meeting of a new eastern Bandera County post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 25, at the Pipe Creek Community Center.

The agenda will include the selection of temporary officers and choosing an eastern Bandera County site for the post, according to Dr. Brenda S. Caldwell, district commander.

The mission of the VFW is to aid veterans and to fight for veterans benefits, said Dr. Caldwell.

"The VFW also believes in the American tradition of people helping people and actively engages in community services activities."

There is currently a VFW post in Bandera.

Members are currently being recruited in the Pipe Creek and Lakehills communities, Dr. Caldwell said.

To be eligible, veterans must have completed honorable military service outside the continental limits of the U.S. that authorizes a recognized campaign medal or ribbon.

Senior Citizens

Silver Sage

Manuel Flores 796-4969

Some nine persons representing Bandera's Silver Sage Corral will attend the 32nd fall annual meeting of the Volunteer Services State Council meeting in San Antonio Sept. 20 through 22.

• The Silver Sage Corral will host a quilt show Oct. 13 and we need a volunteer who is well versed in hosting such an event. If you have experience in organizing a quilt show, please contact Marie Holland at the Center.

• The Silver Sage Corral is inaugurating a support group for the men and women of this community who are caring for seriously ill or terminally ill family members in their homes. The group will be called a "Caretakers Support Group" and will be held at the center on Thursdays from 2:30 to 4 p.m. beginning Oct. 9. There is no cost.

Many of you know that caretaking is a stressful and back-breaking experience, and the support of others living through a similar experience can be very helpful. The Caretakers Group will depend on your support and we hope you will refer friends and relatives to the group. You do not have to be a senior citizen to avail yourself to this service.

• The Resonate Deo Handbells of San Antonio will be in Bandera Sunday, Sept. 30. This popular group, comprised of young people from 9-17 years of age, are from Aldersgate United Methodist Church.

As guests of the Grace Lutheran Church, the Resonate Deo Handbells will present music at the worship service at 10:45 a.m. Later in the day, at 1 p.m., Mr. Bill Ahlman, Director of the group will present a workshop for beginning handbell directors and ringers.

If you need more information concerning this program, please call the Grace Lutheran Church at 796-3091.

• Our regular birthday luncheon will be Tuesday, Sept. 25 at noon. Please bring a covered dish and come help us celebrate with those who had a birthday during the month.

• The Hill Country Clinic will be at the center Thursday, Sept. 17 from 10 to 11 a.m.

Family and friends of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Davis will honor the couple Friday, Sept. 21, at their home in San Antonio on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary. They are the parents of Arnold Davis of Bandera.

Octoberfest for seniors planned at Lake Brownwood facility

Hundreds of persons 55 years of age and older are expected at the 10th annual Octoberfest for "mature adults" at Texas 4-H Center on Lake Brownwood in October, says the Bandera County Extension Service.

Five separate four-day sessions during October will cover topics including exploring insurance options, cooking demonstrations, new tax laws, and floriculture.

Learning centers will offer "hands-on" experience in a variety of areas such as oil painting, wind chime making, needlecrafts, furniture refinishing, country crafts, collectibles and more.

Recreational activities include boat rides and fishing on Lake Brownwood, tennis, horseshoes, billiards, volleyball, shuffleboard, dominoes, card and table games.

A special theme of "Bringing In The Clowns" will provide a festive atmosphere to the facilities. Thursday nights theme party will be held "Under the Big Top."

Each weekly event is limited to the first 165 participants at a fee starting at $94 for the week. The fee covers lodging meals, and activities, says Bandera County Extension Agent Jan Bryson.

All the facilities are air conditioned and there is dorm and semi-private lodging facilities available, she says.

Pre-registration forms can be picked up at the Silver Sage Corral in Bandera and the county extension service office. A person can pay a non-refundable $10 fee and mail in the application, says Bryson. The pre-registration fee will be applied to the event's cost.

Bryson urges those that want to go to pre-register early. "They're always full," she says.

Camp registration will be at the Lake Brownwood site each Tuesday of the camp from 2:30 to 4 p.m. Departure time will be about 9 a.m. each Friday.

For more information, call the Silver Sage Corral at 796-7431 or the extension office at 796-7755.

The event is sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Audience part of entertainment in Schreiner College program

Watching the power of suggestion work on Schreiner College students from the audience will be among the highlights of Tom Deluca's appearance on campus beginning at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 2.

Part comedian and part magician, Deluca is returning to Schreiner's Dietert Chapel Auditorium after a successful performance last year when students unknowingly sang, danced and entertained the audience.

Deluca's two-hour show includes a slide show that takes his audience to strange sights at sites across the country. That portion of the program showcases Deluca's brand of humor.

The audience is a major part of ened state of awareness where volunteers participate in a blend of fantasy and the power of suggestion.

Deluca's "imaginism" has students believing they are the world's greatest dancers or they return to the age of five to sing their favorite TV show theme song. Few later remember their antics under imaginism.

Sponsored by Schreiner's Student Services Office, Deluca has been voted the most popular entertainer on college campuses.

Free exams offered to detect cancer

A toll-free telephone number will be available during Prostate Cancer Awareness Week, Sept. 16-23, to give callers directions about scheduling a free prostate screening and mailed literature about prostate cancer prevention, the Cancer information Service says.

The number is 1-800-4-CANCER (422-6237).

This year 106,000 American men — enough to fill each seat in the Houston Astrodome twice — will be diagnosed with prostate cancer, the most common and second-most deadly type of cancer among men.

Prostate Cancer Awareness Week has been designated by the National Cancer Institute of Bethesda, Md., and the Cancer Information Service at The University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center is one of 21 NCI informational operations helping promote the special week.

A Thought For The Week
By John M. Grimes

Someone once said, "Blessed is the man who has the gift of making friends, for it is one of God's best gifts. It involves many things, but above all the power of going out of one's self, and seeing and appreciating whatever is noble and loving in another man."

An Anonymous Writer puts it this way: "Life is sweet because of the friends we have made." And the things which in common we share. We want to live on not because of ourselves...But because of the ones who would care...It's the living and doing for somebody else...On that all of life's splendor depends."

The best way to have friends is to be one. If you see a friend slipping away from you," wrote David Grayson, "Stop whatever you are doing and bring him back, for friendship is one thing you can not afford to be without."

Yes, friendship must be a two way street...Think about it!

Bulldogs celebrate second win
Bandera wins in spite of numerous fumbles and penalties

By Bob Hopper
Special Correspondent

Bandera's Bulldogs remained unbeaten in non-district play Friday night with a 14-3 victory over Ingram's Warriors at Bandera Stadium in a game in which fumbles and costly penalties plagued both teams.

Ingram took advantage of the first of four Bandera turnovers, a fumble at midfield, to score with 6:30 minutes left in the first quarter on a 28-yard field goal by James Mayberry.

Bo Mansfield, Bandera's leading gainer with 65 yards on 19 carries, broke three tackles to score from the 8-yard line with 7:29 left on the second quarter clock.

Mansfield's touchdown was set up by Ethan Timmons' recovery of a Warrior fumble on the Ingram 45-yard line. Chris Hensley's point-after kick gave the Bulldogs a 7-3 lead they never relinquished.

After a scoreless third quarter, Bandera got an insurance touchdown in the final stanza. The touchdown was set up by a 15-yard infraction by Ingram with 4:20 left in the game that put Bandera on the Warrior's 17-yard line.

Three carries by Leroy Brown brought the Bulldogs to Ingram's 3-yard line where Bandera Coach Chris Storer decided to go for a touchdown rather than settling for a field goal.

Quarterback Jason Schneider slipped around right end for the score, and Hensley's fifth consecutive kick set the final score at 14-3.

Bandera's kicking game combined with a solid defense limited Ingram to a single penetration after the opening-minutes field goal. The Warrior's only other excursion across the mid-field stripe was stopped by J.B. Neuenschwander who stripped Ingram's receiver Chris Lyons of the ball on Bandera's 30-yard line. Brown recovered for the Bulldogs.

Still, the Ingram offense outgained Bandera's by 171 to 149.

Punter Brown continued his good kicking by booting five punts an average of 37 yards each. He averaged 33 yards on six punts last week.

The passing game was nearly as close as the names of the quarterbacks are similar. Bulldog Jason Schneider completed 3 of 9 attempts with one interception for 31 yards, while Warrior Jason Arntfield completed five of 14 for 47 yards and one interception.

Schneider was picked off in the closing minutes of the first half by Arntfield, and T.R. Andreas returned the favor by intercepting Arntfield in the opening minutes of the second half.

Ingram's defense, keying on Mansfield, allowed Jimmy Johnson room to run. He finished the night with 46 yards on 15 carries.

Bandera's 2-0 record matches last year's record at this point when the Bulldogs started the season by defeating Pearsall and Ingram and then skidded to a 3-7 finish. The Bulldogs will try to get their third in a row at Marble Falls Friday at 8 p.m.

Meet the coaches program set

Parents can meet the Bandera Junior High School coaches at the Bandera Junior High Athletic Booster Club Tuesday, Sept. 25, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the junior high cafeteria.

New staff members including Doris Ray and Monica Spray, who teach seventh- and eighth-grade girls' basketball and track, and Lofton Kline and Bob Shearhart, who teach seventhand eighth-grade boys' football, basketball, and track, will be present, says a spokesman for the booster club.

Mike Lewis will also be attending. He assists in the football program and off-season training.

Nikki Rainey, 9, and 17-year-old Shayne Felten were each winners of an all-around saddle at the Johnny Nix Youth Rodeo finals in Kenedy over the Labor Day weekend. Pee Wee entrant Rainey says she enters 20-30 rodeos a year. This saddle is the first of her 4-year career. Felten rides in the senior division and has now won two saddles and "many" buckles in 12 years of competition.

Twin trifecta returns $7,000 each for seven bettors

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

At least one Bandera group won a part of the twin trifecta that paid $48,781.60 to seven winners at Bandera Downs Sunday.

The payoff yielded each person or group with a winning ticket $6,968.80 a piece.

The betting handle at the local race track reverted to what could be called "normal" as a total of 9,375 persons bet $1,090,762 over the three days of racing in the sixth, consecutive over-$1 million weekend. The average handle for a weekend is $1,051,848.

But important to race track officials, the per capita stayed above $100 each day for the second weekend in a row with a three-day weekend per capita of $116.35.

The twin trifecta jackpot started the weekend at $9,505.60 and almost doubled Friday to $18,765.60.

Saturday's carryover pool was $32,793.60 and Sunday's crowd wagered an additional $39,970 in the twin trifecta before the fifth race.

Clems Rocket, Viking Ben, and Drifting World came in first, second and third and yielded 540 exchange tickets in the fifth race, said director of operations Alison Hines. The payoff on the first half of the twin trifecta was $29.60 a ticket or $15,984 total.

Four to 1 favorites Never Say Goodby and Kitty Sinn, and 9 to 5 Vanettas Editorial crossed the wire in order in the sixth race, to give the largest number of twin trifecta winners the track has experienced in one day.

All the winners were not identified, but one winning ticket was held by a Bandera group of seven persons, including professional handicapper Bill Lakey of Bandera; Don Henderson of the Finish Line; Don Thompson and Sharon Summers of Bandera; Ernest E. Ewald Jr. of Lockhart; and Bob Spicer of Kerrville.

Another winner was previous twin trifecta winners Steve Talenco and Danny Fragoso of San Antonio. They won the $56,773.60 twin trifecta Aug. 5 with one ticket off $12 of original bets.

By the time the winnings from the fifth race and the cuts for the track, state, and horsemen's purses had been taken out of the twin trifecta pool, each person or group with a winning ticket was paid $6,968.80 at the end of the sixth race.

The twin trifecta will start from zero Friday.

Friday's attendance was the lowest of the year at 1,737 persons, but the handle remained high at $259,696 with a per capita of $149.51.

Attendance Saturday climbed to 3,724, short of the Saturday-average $4,498 persons. The handle was $413,323, above the $358,055 average for Saturday. The per capita was $110.99.

Attendance Sunday was similar to Saturday's, with 3,914 passing through the gates. The day's handle was $417,745, giving a per capita of $106.73.

No one picked third-place longshot 20:1 Miss Oakie Te in the regular trifecta in Friday's sixth race, so the bettors who picked first-place longshot 15:1 Chancellor Stonewall and second-place 8:1 Send in the Clowns and any other horse for third place won $311.

That's the first time for a third-place "all" winner in a trifecta at Bandera Downs.

Pari-mutuel may begin at Goliad by February

Pari-mutuel horse racing at Class II tracks won't be a Bandera exclusive if La Bahia Downs track officials can arrange financing. Wagering could start as soon as Feb. 1 in Goliad southeast of San Antonio, a track official said Saturday.

The South Texas Racing Association, which owns the existing LaBahia Downs, has a scheduled pari-mutuel opening of Feb. 1 for 101 days of racing in 1991, said Leonard Von Dohlen, chief executive officer of the association.

LaBahia track officials were at the Bandera Downs Friday looking over the local facility.

"I'm impressed with the way they're (Bandera Downs) doing," said Von Dohlen. "It's very positive for Texas," he said.

The track's opening and license is still contingent on the association arranging financing. "We have our Class II license (from the Texas Racing Commission) contingent on making the necessary improvements," said Von Dohlen.

"We're still optimistic that we're going to make the date," he said.

Under the current proposal, LaBahia would begin racing the first weekend in February and continue until April, said Von Dohlen. The track would then go "dark" for three months and reopen in late August and continue racing through November, he said.

The track closed in June of this year, ending its non-pari-mutuel era, said Von Dohlen.

As part of the improvements to secure the TRC license, LaBahia Downs will enlarge the grandstand area and build new concession stands, restrooms, and pari-mutuel windows.

Other improvements include "building new barns, and improving some existing barns," he said. The administration office and jockey's room will be enlarged and a new back-of-the-track office will be added, said Von Dohlen.

The association will also build three veterinary barns, including a post-mortem barn, an isolation barn for sick horses, and a treatment barn, he said.

The track currently has seating for 3,000, but that seating is "general admission," said Von Dohlen. A clubhouse will be added and the track's general admission seating will be replaced with reserved grandstand seating.

The improvements will net the track an extra 500 seats, but Von Dohlen said the track would have room to expand to a total of 5,500 seats later.

The track has a five furlong oval track and Bandera has a seven furlong oval.

Bandera JV wins

The Bandera junior varsity held off the Ingram junior varsity Thursday, 12-6, upping their record to 2-0.

All three touchdowns in the game were scored in the second quarter.

Bandera's first touchdown was set up by an Ingram fumble midway through the second quarter. Cody Woodland's 3-yard touchdown run capped Bandera's 17-yard drive. The extra point attempt was blocked.

Ingram's John Mosty broke loose on the next series of plays for a 67-yard touchdown run, but the junior Warriors failed to take the lead when their 2-point conversion try failed.

A second Ingram fumble just before halftime led to what turned out to be the winning touchdown, which came on a 12-yard scoring strike from Bulldog quarterback Ricky Gard to Trey D'Spain. The extra point attempt was blocked again.

Fast track due as action resumes Friday at races

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Pari-mutuel horse racing starts Friday at Bandera Downs with a post time of 2 p.m. with a race track surface projected to be rated as "fast" and a twin trifecta pot that will begin from scratch.

The running surface is expected to be "fast" at Bandera Downs for this weekend's races, despite almost 1½ inches of rain that has fallen around Bandera since Sunday.

If the track is off at all, it will be rated as "slow," says director of publicity Don Rhine. "The rain hasn't effected the track. Horses were galloping this morning (Thursday) and the track was rated fast," he said.

The twin trifecta will start from zero after seven winners shared $48,788.60 Sunday.

Friday is expected to continue as the day of heavy bettors. "Fridays appear to draw our heaviest gamblers," says Rhine. "The per capita Friday is usually very strong and I believe our patrons are becoming more confident of their ability to make better wagers," he said.

Eight quarter horse one thoroughbred, and one thoroughbred-quarter horse mixed race will fill Friday's ten-race card.

Friday's featured race pits 3-year-old quarter horses in a 330-yard heat and will host a rematch of three horses from the seventh race Sept. 1.

Proper Fuel is the expected favorite, but the horse sometimes bumps other horses, which causes him to be disqualified, says Rhine, who also serves as track handicapper. "The horse is tough and breaks good from the gate. The toughest thing for the horse to do is to run straight. If he runs straight, he'll be very tough," says Rhine.

Jockey Scott Luce has the call on Proper Fuel Friday.

Jet City Gent is another horse in the rematch. Jet City Gent won his last race Sept. 8 easily with a time of 17.40 seconds in 330 yards.

But Proper Fuel beat Jet City Gent Sept. 1 in 17.33 seconds. Rhine says that Jet City Gent also breaks very fast.

Another horse in the rematch will be Whatasignature, trained and ridden by the winning team of Dave Correll and Nicky Wilson. Correll was leading money-winning trainer as of Sept. 12 with $20,179.56 and Wilson won the most money among jockeys at $38,231.40.

"Whatasignature didn't run well last time, but before that won a $7,500 claiming race," says Rhine. Whatasignature ran seventh Sept. 1.

Friday's eighth race, a two-year-old quarter horse race of 350 yards, may be of special interest today, with four entries from the Freshman Allowance Trails Aug. 31. Horses entered include Rich Prestige, The Pie is Dun, Jody Ohs Nip and Cypress Crystal.

Saturday's races will include three thoroughbred races and one mixed thoroughbred-quarter horse race out of 11 races.

The featured event is a 400-yard quarter horse heat with Cashcades as the likely favorite.

Cashcades, ridden by Robert Bard, is just off a win Sept. 9. "She's tough," says Rhine. The horse was bred by Dash for Cash and "breaks quickly and goes for the lead every time," he says.

County prepares for general election

Only two local races on Nov. 6 ballot

By Nick Johnson
Bulletin Editor

While the Nov. 6 general election is still seven weeks away, activity began picking up this week as election officials announced absentee voting dates and prepared for the biennial purge of the voting list.

Qualified voters who are now absent from the county or expect to be absent on Nov. 6 may now make application at the county clerk's office to have a ballot mailed to them, says County Clerk Vera King.

One constitutional amendment and a full list of individuals from U.S. Senator and governor to justices of the peace will be on the Nov. 6 general election ballot. Anyone may vote during absentee voting Oct. 17 through Nov. 2.

The biennial process to remove from registration lists the names of voters who have moved and failed to notify their local registrar has been completed in most areas of the state, but Bandera County registrar Marguerite Stevens said the purge has been delayed here because her office has been loaded down with work related to establishing new tax rates.

The names of an estimated 900,000 registered voters have already been removed from voter rolls statewide, says secretary of state George Bayoud.

At the same time, Bayoud announced that phase 2 of a statewide voter registration campaign is under way. Local officials of both major political parties have joined in that drive to register voters and the Bandera County Chamber of Commerce is also helping sign up voters.

There are currently 6,066 registered voters in Bandera County. The deadline to register for the Nov. 6 election is Oct. 7 in person and Oct. 9 by mail.

To have a ballot mailed to him or her, the voter must state that he or she is absent or expects to be absent from the county on Nov. 6 as well as during the period of absentee voting.

The address to which the ballot is mailed must be an out-of-county address, if voting absentee on the grounds of expected absence from the county, the clerk cautions.

Voters may make application by writing the county clerk's office at the courthouse, if they are already out of the county. They may also go to her office and complete the necessary application forms, if they expect to be absent, King said.

Qualified voters over 65 years of age or those who are limited by illness or physical disability may also request to have a ballot mailed to them by writing the clerk.

U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm of College Station and his Democratic challenger, state Sen. Hugh Parmer, will be atop the general election ballot. Democrat Ann Richards of Austin faces Republican Clayton Williams of Midland for governor.

There has been little interest so far in Bandera County in the election, but some local candidates began advertising this week. Even statewide campaigns have been low key, so far, with Comptroller Bob Bullock and Republican Rob Mosbacher Jr. generating more interest in their race for lieutenant governor than the others on the ballot.

Karen Angelini of San Antonio, Republican nominee for associate justice of the Fourth Court of Appeals, campaigned in Bandera last week, speaking at a luncheon arranged by local Republicans. She is opposed by former state Rep. Orlando Garcia of San Antonio.

Several local Republicans attended a meeting in Castroville Wednesday, Sept. 19, to hear the president's son, George Bush Jr., campaign for Republican Jim Jenkins of Hondo, the GOP's nominee for the state House of Representatives. His opponent Jim Tate of Lytle, has made several trips to Bandera County and his supporters are scheduled to erect signs here this week.

There are few contested races for Bandera County offices as County Judge Ray F. Mauer does not have a Democratic challenger and county treasurer Elizabeth James, the dean of county officials, did not draw a Republican opponent.

The contested races include a contest between Democratic incumbent Vera King and challenger Bernice Bates for county clerk and between party switcher Bennie Barker of Whataburger Deck, now a Republican, and Democrat Tommy Miller of Pipe Creek for county commissioner in precinct 1.

The only Democrat left on commissioner's court, N.P. "Bud" Thompson of Vanderpool, has no Republican opponent, nor does the dean of the court, Dan C. Alaniz III of Lakehills.

None of the four incumbent justices of the peace have opposition. The nominees are Democrats Bonnie F. Towers of Pipe Creek, H.W. Rogers of Medina and Tom Grant of Bandera and Republican W. Preston Boggs of Pipe Creek.

The single constitutional amendment on the ballot would stipulate that governor's appointees may serve in office only until the next regular session of the Legis-

Work almost done on 'Suicide Hill'

By Carol L. Smith
Special Correspondent

The infamous road behind the Medina Dam, sometimes called "Suicide Hill," should be open late next week or the first part of October as road crews look to Tuesday to make their last dynamiting of rock.

And that will mean that the road across Medina Dam will be closed once again to public vehicle traffic.

Medina County road crews have been working most of this year to cut down the extremely steep 22-percent grade that has caused local residents to give the hill its macabre moniker.

Medina County Commissioner Marvin Bendele, who is in charge of the project, has found a ridge of rock across the center of the road which will require one more day of blasting. Bendele has set his blasting date as Tuesday, Sept. 25.

Road crews have already removed approximately 30,000 cubic yards of material from the hill and reduced the grade to 15 percent in the middle section and 11 percent at either end, says Bendele.

Once the last blasting is done and subsequent material is removed, Bendele's crew will do all the preparation necessary to begin paving.

He will open the road to vehicular traffic and close the road across the Medina Dam causing residents to use the road and thereby hardening the roadway even more. "The BMA (Bexar Medina Atascosa Water District that owns the dam) has been really, really good to me," remarks Bendele.

The actual paving will take place after the road has "set," for several weeks, and is estimated to begin in late October or early November, says Bendele. "This depends solely on the weather," he states. "I can't pave in cold weather. The asphalt doesn't cure right. Hopefully, we'll get a warm spell.

"The actual paving doesn't take long at all, but if I don't get the right weather conditions, it may be next spring before we pave it. In any case, it's an all-weather road that should give anyone any problems."

Traffic will be allowed to cross the dam again as soon as it is paved, about one day.

Although Medina County is not really stockpiling for use as road base, some local residents and businesses are using as it as fill. Cedar Point Landing, next to the dam, has used some of the material to rebuild it's boat ramp and St. Francis Catholic Chapel has increased its parking area.

City relaxes mandatory conservation measures

The city of Bandera has switched to voluntary water conservation after being at the yellow caution stage for most of the summer.

The city's water well level rose one foot this week to 324 feet below the surface, reports Director of Public Works Ken Garcia, which prompted the change from yellow to blue.

The water level had been at 325 feet below the surface for several weeks, which still calls for the yellow stage, but Garcia says with the one-foot increase and "we're midway in September, so we can go back to the voluntary conservation stage. I don't expect it the water level to do anything but climb."

The city started the summer with a 280-foot water well level and went to the blue stage when the level dropped to 290 feet. Once the level hit 300 feet, the city went to mandatory and progressive measures.

The water level declined slowly. "People conserved a lot of water and the water level never went below 325," Garcia said.

Garcia says he also considered the rain that is still coming into the city well's recharge area. Garcia says he polled city council members and raised the blue flag.

Horse group calls for lower tax rate

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

The Texas Thoroughbred Breeders Association called again to reduce the state's take on the pari-mutuel tax and raise the percentage for purses at Bandera Downs Saturday.

That single change to the Texas racing law will help improve the state's horse industry and the overall economy by bringing many would-be track investors into the race to build more tracks in Texas.

Jeff Hooper, executive director of the TTBA, said Saturday that Texas' five percent pari-mutuel tax is "twice as high of any of the neighboring states" and that figure should be lowered to give potential Texas race tracks a chance to start.

Of the money bet by race fans at Bandera Downs or any other pari-mutuel race track in Texas, five percent goes to the state, five percent goes to finance purses for the winning horsemen, and eight percent goes to the race track for its expenses.

But the tracks need more than eight percent to finance their costs in the first few years of existence, Hopper said. "Five percent at the start up phase is not going to service the debt on the track," he said. "Texas tracks are hamstrung by a pari-mutuel tax which is as high as any in the nation."

The association backs the bill that will be introduced in the next session of the Texas legislature by state Sens. Ike Harris of Dallas and Gonzalos Barrientos of Austin, says Hooper.

The bill would provide a sliding scale with the state's pari-mutuel handle take-out tax starting at one percent and rising to five percent while the percentage for purses would stay at seven percent.

The track would begin with a 10 percent take from the handle and drop to six percent as the state's take increases. That initially high amount is needed when a track owner is "looking at his banker every day to service the debt," says Hooper.

Hooper says Texas tracks compete with tracks in neighboring states where the state's takeout is half as much as Texas'. The takeout is 1½ percent in New Mexico, 2 percent in Oklahoma, 2½ percent in Louisiana, and 2½ percent in Arkansas.

New Mexico recently lowered its takeout. "They saw the number of Texas license plates in their parking lot" and realized they had to change, once Texas legalized pari-mutuel horse racing, says Hooper.

Even though the state's take in taxes would be less when a track first starts, the economic benefits would rise as the track prospered.

"Texas is sitting on a gold mine. Five percent of nothing is still nothing," says Hooper.

"It's not how many dollars are going into the general fund, but what the tracks and the horse industry is doing for the state's economy," says Hooper.

"We just want a level playing field for Texas tracks so we can keep Texas dollars in Texas," says Hooper.

And higher purse money is needed to encourage Texas horse owners to breed more horses and run them in Texas.

Currently, 2,500 thoroughbred foals are registered each year in Texas, says Hooper. "Texas ranks fourth nationally in thoroughbred foal production behind Kentucky, California, and Florida," he says.

"Last year, Texas-bred horses earned $11 million in purse money at pari-mutuel tracks throughout America," says Hooper. That doesn't count Texas-owned horses such as thoroughbred racing's all-time leading money earner Alysheba, he adds.

Bandera Downs has shown that Texans want to go to the races," says Hooper. "And the track is doing a super job."

But more tracks, including Class I tracks, such as those allowed by law for San Antonio, Houston, and the Dallas-Ft. Worth metroplex, are needed to encourage Texas breeders to raise and race Texas horses in Texas. "It's going to take Class I tracks to get the industry growing like we know it can so it can reach its potential," says Hooper.

If #4 Fairly Wealthy, ridden by Jerry Lee Yaakum, had his nose extended, Friday's seventh race could have had a three-horse dead heat for second place in the 330 yard quarter horse race. Second-place finishers #1 Strawberry Gold Mine and #2 Tabasco Piney Jet forced paying of two exactas and two quinellas, the first dead heat for place position at Bandera Downs. A dead heat for show, third place, has occurred before. Isorequest, the #10 horse, won the race. Payoffs in the quinellas was $122.40 for the 1-10 and $23.20 for the 2-10 combination. Exactas paid $132.60 for 10-1 and $37.20 for 10-2.

Correll-Wilson trainer-jockey combination, will also be a favorite, predicts Rhine.

Toast A Streaker moved into first through a disqualification in its last race Aug. 10, says Rhine. Jockey Jerry Vaughn took the horse to a 17.80 second finish in the 350-yard heat.

Post time Friday is 2 p.m. and the gates open at noon. Post time Saturday and Sunday is 1 p.m. and the gates open at 11 a.m. In last week's races, stewards declared the seventh race Friday a "dead heat" for second and the track paid two winning quinella and two exacta tickets.

The 2-to-1 longshot, Strawberry Gold Mine, and 5 to 2 favorite Tabasco Piney Jet tied for second place behind first-place finisher Isorequest in a four-horse photo finish.

The quinella paid $122.40 for tickets with Strawberry Gold Mine and $23.20 for tickets with Tabasco Piney Jet. Exacta tickets paid $132.60 and $37.20, respectively.

In the eighth race Saturday, Let Me Dance ran an impressive six-furlong race, scoring his sixth win in a row and setting a new track record of 1:11 flat.

Master Princely, who ran second in the same race, had held the previous track record of 1:11 3/5, set Aug. 11.

Let Me Dance has won his last five outings at Bandera Downs and the Gillespie County Fairgrounds track this year, making the horse six out of eight for the year.

Hardley Man, a 4:1 favorite, set a new track record Friday in the 1,000-yard thoroughbred-quarter horse tenth race with a time of 53.30 seconds, beating Out Front Runner's 54.12-second Sept. 8 performance.

Poetry event planned

A monthly poetry reading series, which organizers say will also include occasional prose, will be held the first Sunday of every month beginning Oct. 7 at 2 p.m. at the Leon Springs Cafe.

Cold front Saturday may end rainy spell

Rainfall that has amounted to over 1½ inches this week should come to an end when a cold front is predicted to pass through the Hill Country Saturday.

Rainfall for the month has totaled 3.25 inches through Sept. 19, which is close to the 40-year monthly average for September of 3.72 inches, reports the Bandera County Soil Conservation Service.

Rainfall this week includes 1 inch Sunday, Sept. 16; 0.24 inches Tuesday; and 0.1 inches Wednesday. It was still raining Thursday and 0.2 inches had already fallen.

In the town of Medina, 1.25 inches have fallen this week, with 0.6 inches coming Thursday morning and overnight Wednesday. A total of 3.87 inches have fallen in September.

Along the North Prong of the Medina River 1.2 inches have fallen.

The river has remained "normal" with the gradual showering of rain with a river level of 4.9 feet Thursday, 0.3 feet below last week's 5.2 measurement when 1.38 inches of rain were received.

But that level is within the normal range of 4½ to 5 feet, says conservationist Billy Griffin of the soil conservation service.

Through Sept. 19, the rainfall is 30.41 inches for the year, just 2.28 inches short of the annual average rainfall.

Two dry spells and periods of high temperatures have given the impression of a dry year, but the exceptional 7.16 inches received in July broke the dry spell that started in mid-May and continued through June. Average rainfall for July is 2.03 inches.

August was another dry month with 1.22 inches received, as opposed to the average of 3.01 inches.

Farmers and ranchers are just now finishing their second cutting of hay, says Griffin. "It's still green and growing," he says. "Most people have had two hay cuttings. They had one in May or June and as a result of the good July rains, and many people got a second cutting."

A third cutting of hay is unlikely, since the frost will probably come before the hay is tall enough.

Farmers are getting an advantage with their small grain crops, such as wheat and oats, however. The recent rain has put moisture in ground, which will give small grains planted or that will be planted a good chance this year, he says.

Brush management seminar set

Range specialist will discuss methods and herbicides

Area ranchers will be able to view the latest technology in brush management Wednesday, Sept. 26, at 1 p.m. at the Senesa Ranch near Yancey.

As part of the Seco Creek Water Quality Project, Texas Agricultural Extension Service personnel will be establishing result demonstration sites using several methods and brush herbicides, according to Warren Thigpen, Bandera County agent.

Dr. Tommy Welch, range specialist from Texas A&M, and Dr. Larry White, range specialist from Uvaide, will be on hand to discuss brush management methods and herbicides. They will use a carpet roller which mounts on the front of a tractor and wipes herbicides on brush, and a brush robot which applies a foliar spray to plants tall enough to trip a spray device on the rear of a tractor, says Thigpen.

They will also demonstrate broadcast spraying using a ground rig with a cluster sprayer. The new streamline basal treatment for individual plant treatment will also be shown.

Car wreck ends cowboy's season

Eight-time world champion Roy Cooper of Childress, third-place winner in calf roping at Bandera's Cowboy Capital PRCA Rodeo, was seriously injured in a one-vehicle accident Sunday, Sept. 9, while en route from Guthrie, Okla., to the Will Rogers World Airport in Oklahoma City.

It is unlikely that he will be able to compete for at least four months, said Steve Fleming, the PRCA's director of media relations.

Cooper, who holds the record for the highest career earnings in professional rodeo, sustained a fractured left wrist, a concussion and facial contusions.

Cooper and two companions had left the Lazy E Arena in Guthrie and were just a few miles from the arena when their Chevrolet Blazer pickup left the highway on a severe turn and pitched down a 10-foot embankment.

Cooper was flown to the Baylor Medical Center in Dallas where surgery was performed to repair his fractured wrist and torn ligaments, Fleming said. The reconstructive surgery required four steel pins.

Autumn is the time for homeowners to be good to their yards

The summer's over, so you can forget about your yard until spring, right? Wrong.

In fact, fall is an excellent time to put in many kinds of plants, trees, shrubs, and bulbs. These plantings add beauty to your yard and value to your home, and the winter days and nights give them time to develop roots without expending energy on above-ground growth. Plan your trees off to a stop, healthy start in spring. So hold on to that trowel and discover the pleasure of gardening this fall!

Now that you know the season's right for planting, the first steps to be sure your landscape provides optimum enjoyment. And that involves six major benefits of well-landscaped property: sight-screening, comfort, beauty, convenience, safety, and easy maintenance. Be sure to consider them as you plan your plantings.

Most homeowners want their yards to afford some privacy. A hedge of trees and shrubs can provide that benefit while screening out unsightly views at the same time.

With proper planning, your yard can provide outdoor rooms for comfort and relaxation. The temperature in a tree's shade, for instance, may be 15 to 20 degrees cooler than in the sun. A row of trees and shrubs can protect against bothersome winds. Thick foliage can muffle city noises and cleanse a polluted atmosphere.

Maintenance doesn't have to be a burden; it can be a pleasure, and wise planning, will help make it so. Flat borders of brick or stone between flower beds and lawn can minimize edging and trimming around beds. Planting in containers can make gardening easier by avoiding the need for stooping. The use of mulches and ground-covering plants can relieve some lawn-mowing, watering, and weeding chores.

One more piece of advice from the AAN: Once the plan has been made for your yard - either on paper or in your mind don't feel the installation must be accomplished immediately. If the design is sufficiently flexible, it can take shape over the course of months or years, as circumstances dictate whether you do it yourself or call on the services of landscape professionals. The important thing, though, is to begin with a plan that will provide you with pleasure in your outdoor rooms.

And remember: Now is one of the best times to plant much of what you'll want to have growing in your yard.

Plan before you plant shade trees

The trees you add to your landscape may very well turn out to be one of the most important aspects to your home surroundings. Even aside from the beauty they contribute, what they give to the environment is highly significant.

Their roots help stabilize the soil; their branches provide cooling shade in summer, protection from winds in winter. Their foliage replenishes the air by consuming carbon dioxide and manufacturing oxygen. And these are just some of the gifts nature has in store from the trees growing in your yard.

A word of advice from the American Association of Nurserymen: plan carefully before you plant. The sapling you plant this spring may one day be the tree that supports a swing for youngsters two or three generations from now. Consider the mature size of the variety you've chosen...and be sure that you don't locate a young tree where it may outgrow the space available.

Many varieties can grow to a height of 75 feet or more; at that size, spread will be as much as 25 feet. This means that such a tree should be planted at least 30 feet from the nearest structure.

Specific information about the right kinds of trees for your location and planting and care instructions should come from your local retail nursery or garden center. The important thing to remember: the tree you'll be adding to your surroundings now, then plant them - or have them planted for you - when you're ready.

'Dogs face Mustangs in stern test Friday

By Nick Johnson
Bulletin Editor

Ranked 10th in the San Antonio Express-News' sub-6A ratings this week, the unbeaten Bandera Bulldogs will receive their sternest test of the year Friday in Marble Falls when they take on the Mustangs of District 8-AAA.

It may be a titanic defensive struggle, as Bandera's first two games were highlighted by good defensive efforts and Marble Falls' hopes are pinned on a well-fortified defense.

However, the Mustangs allowed 27 points last Friday in a heartbreaking 27-26 loss to the wishbone attack of Goldthwaite of District 8-AA.

There should be a good matchup of linebackers this Friday as Bandera's Bo Mansfield leads the Bulldogs and William Young, a 6-footer who weighs 200 pounds and can run the 40-yard sprint in 4.7 seconds, leads the Mustangs.

Both are also their team's leading rushers on offense. Williams scored 7 touchdowns last year behind the blocking of guard David Abbott, a 260-pounder. Mansfield has scored four times in Bandera's first two games and was the leading ground gainer in both games.

Linebacker Jason Strahan adds strength to the defense behind guard Ronnie Taylor and end Kenneth Daily.

While Bandera hasn't relied on passing in its first two victories, quarterback Jason Schneider will probably find tough resistance this week from the Mustang pass defense, which is led by three returning starters in the backfield, including Cliff Reimers, Mark Grieske and Cork Ribera.

The Bulldogs have climbed into the top 10 of the Express-News ratings, behind only three other District 25-AAA teams, third-ranked Randolph, fourth-ranked Medina Valley and ninth-ranked Somerset.

The Harris rating system, however, ranks Bandera 12th among 25 selected area teams, up from 15th the previous week. Marble Falls is rated fourth among the same 25 teams, 18 points ahead of Bandera.

Medina, ranked dead last among the 25 area teams, this week takes on Cotulla after a week off to lick the wounds sustained in a 31-0 opening-day loss to Junction. Harris ranks Cotulla 23rd among the 25 selected teams, 17 points ahead of Medina.

Junction blanked

Sonora's Broncos rolled up 336 yards on the ground to humiliate Junction, 33-0.

While Bandera hasn't relied on passing in its first two victories, quarterback Jason Schneider will probably find tough resistance this week from the Mustang pass defense, which is led by three returning starters in the backfield, including Cliff Reimers, Mark Grieske and Cork Ribera.

The Bulldogs have climbed into the top 10 of the Express-News ratings, behind only three other District 25-AAA teams, third-ranked Randolph, fourth-ranked Medina Valley and ninth-ranked Somerset.

The Harris rating system, however, ranks Bandera 12th among 25 selected area teams, up from 15th the previous week. Marble Falls is rated fourth among the same 25 teams, 18 points ahead of Bandera.

Medina, ranked dead last among the 25 area teams, this week takes on Cotulla after a week off to lick the wounds sustained in a 31-0 opening-day loss to Junction. Harris ranks Cotulla 23rd among the 25 selected teams, 17 points ahead of Medina.

Junction blanked

Sonora's Broncos rolled up 336 yards on the ground to humiliate Junction, 33-0.

Parenting group to meet Oct. 2

Parenting education classes are just one of the focuses of a newly formed parenting coalition, according to Bandera County extension agent Jan Bryson.

The coalition will have its first meeting Tuesday, Oct. 2 at 7 p.m. at the Bandera Bank meeting room.

"Parents today crave information on how to raise their children," said Bryson. "Classes can be offered to help parents deal with the responsibilities of parenthood. These skills do not come naturally for everyone."

Among the goals of the newly formed coalition are to identify both parenting education needs, goals and objectives, and resources. According to Bryson, the coalition will develop a budget and marketing strategies, implement programs and evaluate and report changes made.

Coalition members include city and county officials, school officials and representatives, business people and parents.

Proceeds from tickets purchased on his behalf support the National Wheelchair Sports Fund.

The Mass celebrates the kick-off of Renew, a spiritual renewal process that calls on Catholics to deepen and develop their spiritual lives.

Football, band, buses and one period daily would be cut: trustees

Rollback proponents schedule meeting to continue effort in Bandera Thursday

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writers

Bandera school trustees issued a pre-emptive strike to a possible tax rollback election by voting Monday night to cut out "all extracurricular school activities" and most bus routes if the election succeeds.

The Bandera Independent School District board adopted the stance unanimously before the first organizational meeting of the rollback movement was held.

The meeting of organizers of a tax rollback election will be held Thursday, Sept. 27, at 7 p.m. at the Bandera Bank Community Room, and be chaired by Bobby D. Jones of the Wharton's Dock area, who is expected to have petitions ready to be signed.

Before a large crowd of teachers, staff members and community members, the BISD trustees voted unanimously in favor of a five-point plan to make up the possible shortfall of more than $800,000 in lost revenue if taxes are rolled back.

School officials figure that if taxes are rolled back, the tax rate per $100 valuation would be approximately $1.732 cents. School superintendent Ted Dockery calculated that the shortfall for the 1991-92 school year would be $866,904. The current rate is $1.0599, up from 74 cents last year.

"We explored lots of options, none of them positive, before we finally came up with this list of budget cuts we would have to implement for the 1991-92 school year," said Dockery. He explained that the five changes would not make up for the entire amount, and that "some other things would have to be done to take care of the shortfall."

The first provision of the policy the board adopted would cut out all extracurricular activities, including band, football, basketball, track, cross country, volleyball and UIL literary events. The anticipated savings would be $176,860, Dockery said.

The second provision would "eliminate all bus routes except what is required by law." Dockery explained that the only routes the school district is required to continue are "two or three short routes required for handicapped students in the special education program." The district would save about $111,196 from this measure, he said.

Third, the district would go back to half-day kindergarten, at an estimated savings of $62,500.

Ten percent of all capital outlay would be cut, under the fourth provision, at a savings of $10,400.

"This would include (the purchase of) desks, tables, chairs, filing cabinets, typewriters, computers and other equipment," Dockery said.

Fifth, Bandera Junior High and Bandera High School would be cut back from the current seven-period day to a shorter, six-period school day. Anticipated

Cyclist Laura Johnston-Rhine was jacketed against the early morning 55-degree chill Tuesday, Sept. 25, as she rode her daily 18-mile circuit around Bandera. Meteorologist Jud Ashmore of Lakehills says the comfortable temperatures won't last. He says they're caused by a lingering high-pressure center in the area that he expects to move on soon.

Refreshing cool weather won't last long, meteorologist says

The cooler weather that came into the Bandera County area Sunday probably won't last long, according to Pipe Creek meteorologist Jud Ashmore. San Antonio temperatures dropped to 58 degrees Sunday, and in parts of the Hill Country, temperatures dropped even lower.

"It's kind of an unusual weather pattern for this time of year," Ashmore said Monday. "But it doesn't set up any kind of a trend."

Apparently, instead of the "typical blue norther" that blows lots of cold air out of Canada and "pours it right down here on top of us," a cold front came from Canada across the Great Lakes, and a high pressure center stalled over much of Texas.

Predicting that the weather will warm up as soon as the high pressure center moves on, Ashmore said that "nature's way" is sometimes, but not always, accurate.

"Nature doesn't always conform to us," he said. "Sometimes when the groundhog sees his shadow, it just means the sun is shining."

A recently-released forecast from the Farmers Almanac does, however, predict a particularly cold winter.

Temperatures this week dropped as a cool front moved into the area, but meteorologist Jud Ashmore said temperatures were not as low as last year at this time, when the mercury dropped into the mid 40s. Cool temperatures won't last, Ashmore says, and warmer days will probably return before the week is through.

Ashmore discounted theories from "all these weirdos that predict early freezes," adding that the early cool spell may or may not indicate what upcoming weather trends might be.

"Well, I claim to be 97 percent right three percent of the time," Ashmore said with a laugh.

Bandera Downs to seek 39 racing weekends in 1991

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Bandera Downs will ask the Texas Racing Commission on Oct. 1 to move its 1991 opening day to March 1 and to increase the number of days of racing in 1991 to 115.

The TRC has already approved 79 racing days for Bandera Downs starting Saturday, June 1, and continuing on Thursdays, Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays of most weekends through Oct. 27.

But Bandera Downs officials will request that its season be started earlier and continue later in 1991 with racing on most weekends Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays. Essary says flatly he does not intend to race on Thursdays.

"I can't see any reason why they (the racing commissioners) won't approve those dates," says track president Don Essary.

Wagering at Bandera Downs has surpassed $1 million on every weekend since Aug 5. Total wagering through 34 days, or 11 weekends, has reached $12,182,158.

Attendance at the track has been 139,920, an average of 4,115 per racing day or 12,345.

"We expect the trend and momentum to continue," says Essary. "There is no reason to believe that we won't have a better year, next year." Bandera Downs' current season will end Dec. 9.

Essary says the track will be able to double its contributions to state and local taxes if it gets the 115 dates next year.

If a $1 million dollar handle can be maintained on 38 weekends of racing, the five percent state pari-mutuel tax could reach $1.9 million for 1991. If the racing schedule remains as currently approved, a $1 million handle each weekend on the approved 20 weekends would yield $1 million in state revenue.

The combined county and city gate admission fee of 30 cents per person would yield $30,000 for the county and $30,000 for the city in 1991, based on a 10,000 person attendance each of the 20 weekends. If the TRC approves racing on 38 weekends, the county and city would receive $57,000 each.

Bandera Downs has paid $609,108 in state pari-mutuel tax through 34 days of racing, according to track records. Five percent of the handle, the amount bet by the public, goes to the state's general fund.

The track alone paid $148,058 in state and county sales taxes through Sept. 23, Essary said.

The track has accrued a total of $40,024 of admissions tax payable to the city and county.

The total state, city, and county tax has averaged $23,447 a day.

In addition, the track has paid $564,868 in purses to horsemen and $508,024 in salaries to track personnel this year. At least 339 job opportunities have been created within the facility itself, track officials say.

Racing at Bandera Downs has also had an indirect impact on state, county and city sales taxes by increasing sales at other businesses in the county.

During July, the latest month for which figures are available, taxes on retail sales of all merchandise subject to the state sales tax in Bandera County was up 37.25 percent from last July, the state comptroller's office reported last week. Retail sales were up 19.12 percent from last July

10th Cajun Festival on tap in Lakehills Saturday afternoon

It may not seem that it's been going that long, but that Lakehills music and gumbo festival will celebrate its 10th year Saturday, Sept. 29, at the Lakehills Civic Center.

Dubbed, "The Medina Lake Cajun Festival," the Medina Lake Betterment Association sponsored event will once again draw thousands with its unique blend of jazz, country and western music, Cajun food, and gumbo cookoff.

Gates open at noon and the entertainment starts with the Band-Aids Jazz Band, a group of San Antonio and Kerrville area physicians that play Dixieland Jazz.

The music continues at 2 p.m. with the folk guitar-washboard-wash tub bass sound of the Whoosits Good Time Big Pile Garbage Band.

The San Antonio-based group sings active folk, country, and old-time rock and roll songs, but is known primarily for its foolishness. "Scratch" may come out into the audience at any time and dance around the crowd, all the time playing his washboard.

The band has played the Cajun Festival before and at many Lakehills American Legion holiday functions.

The band regularly plays at the Texas Folklife Festival because of their "unique" sound.

Fiddlin' Frenchie Burke will appear on stage with Bandera's own Dusty Britches and the Rhythm Ranch Hands starting at 6 p.m.

But also featured will be Cajun style food including crawfish pies, jambalaya, barbecue shrimp, shrimp etouffee', New Orleans bread pudding with whiskey sauce, pralines and French donuts.

Other Texas-style food and drink include hot food chicken fajitas, sausage, hot dogs, beer, soft drinks and tea.

Other activities will include a arts and crafts fair and carnival-style games. Hot air ballons rides will be offered at 6 p.m.

Longtime Bandera County folks know the festival as "The Great Gumbo Cookoff," but the name was changed this year to the "Cajun Festiv. l" to reflect the greater scope of the event, says chief organizer Bob Caswell.

Longtime Bandera County folks know the festival as "The Great Gumbo Cookoff," but the name was changed this year to the "Cajun Festival" to reflect the greater scope of the event, says chief organizer Bob Caswell.

And gumbo is still the main menu item for festival goers as over 30 gumbo cooks will compete in the cookoff.

"We'll have from 30 to 35 cooks preparing gumbo," estimates Caswell.

"Numerous past winners have already entered including last year's amateur champion, Alice Harper of San Antonio, the People's Choice winner, Ida Miles of San Antonio, and the professional winner Water Street Oyster Bar of San Antonio," says Caswell.

Other cooks registered include Bandera County's own Si Turner representing Viking Enterprises and Gene Smith and Barbara Engel of the Quiet Day Beauty Salon, Fresh Young Things Res-

to the editor

We can't, and we won't

Dear editor:

Surely our people will not let our school system be decimated by a tax rollback. Already Bandera independent school system is broke. All savings are gone, spent to keep the tax rate low. The bear has eaten all the jelly beans, and now he is after our kids.

People need to realize that supporting this tax rollback will mean tearing the heart out of our community. Our schools will die from a loss of adequate transportation for students, from loss of all sports and academic competition, from loss of adequate maintenance for our school buildings, from loss of classes for our students. Our schools will bleed to death.

We will be known as the community that doesn't care.

If our people support a rollback, pride will become a thing of the past in Bandera. We will suffer a terrible loss of spirit. All over the state people will hear bad things about Bandera. People will move away. Property values will plummet. Businesses will close. Parents will not send their children to school in this district. Some people will not want to admit to being from Bandera. We will be a laughing stock all over the state.

One wonders where all the people are who want a better life for their children? Are they all buried in the cemetery? Where is the pioneer spirit inherited from those who fought hard to carve out a better life in Bandera? Where is the spirit of cooperation, of pulling together? Surely, that spirit still lives, and will soon assert itself.

For how can we sit idly by and watch our schools be torn apart? We cant, and we won't. We will refuse to sign the petition, because to sign it means we don't care about the quality of our schools. The good people of our school district won't stand for a rollback.

A drive we'll be proud of

Dear editor:

I've driven up and down Bandera's Main Street just about every day for three years now. Every time I make the drive I end up wishing someone would do something about the dilapidated buildings that our visitors have to look at.

In the past year, though, Johnny Boyle and his family have renovated four buildings in the "old west style" on our Main Street. These buildings now lend color and charm to our town, and I'd like to publicly thank Johnny and the Boyle family for their well-planned contributions to a town which will probably see more and more tourists every year.

If we can just get some of the other business owners to spiff up their buildings, Bandera's Main Street can be a drive we'll all be proud of.

Encourage teenagers

Dear editor:

To celebrate EMS Week and try to give something back to the community, the Pipe Creek emergency medical technicians sponsored an open house and video taping and fingerprinting of the children.

We owe a debt of gratitude to the Bandera Bulletin for their articles in the paper; Ernie Reich and Tommy Leifester for doing the fingerprinting; Paula Stutes, the principal and teachers of Alkek Elementary School for getting our flyers to the students; and Vera King, Aundee Kirkindall and Anna Faye Bausch for copying our flyers. To all of them and to all of you who came out and supported our efforts, thank you.

The open house was a huge success with approximately 30 families attending and about 65 kids fingerprinted and video taped. We had so much fun filming and talking to the kids. For those who were unable to participate and would like to see us do it again, please let us know by dropping us a note at Box 63100, Pipe Creek 78063 or calling Eric Stutes at 535-4811. We would like to encourage you to get your teenagers involved also, as these tapes can be invaluable to law enforcement agencies should the child be kidnapped or disappear.

Think about it

Dear editor:

Reference is made to an article in the Sunday San Antonio Light (Sept. 23) on page B6 titled, "Atheist leader happy with Boy Scout win." The article indicates that Madalyn Murray O'Hair "hopes the United Way's suspension of funding for a Boy Scouts of America organization is a sign of things to come." It goes on that she is just delighted to have won her first victory against the Boy Scouts, because — get this, folks — their oath of duty "to God and country" discriminates against atheists.

It seems that a member of a United Way board in the Genoa-Kingston, Ill., community (who is also a member of American Atheists) objected to the funding and the agency simply suspended the support.

In the midst of gangs, drugs, crime and etc. in our communities, the Boy Scouts is an organization that teaches responsibility, leadership and values.

When you are asked to sign up for donations of money through the United Way, think about what you are supporting.

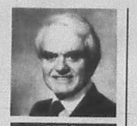
Movie-Rating System Effective?



YES

Jack Valenti is president and chief executive officer of the Motion Picture Association of America.

Is the current rating system for movies effective?

The purpose of the rating system, its only purpose, is to offer cautionary warnings to parents to help them guide the moviegoing of their young children. Yearly nationwide surveys by the Opinion Research Corporation of Princeton, N.J., reveal that over the last decade the vast majority of parents with young children find the ratings Very Useful to Fairly Useful. In fact, the results of our 1990 survey show that an all-time high of 75 percent of parents with children under 18 find the system Very to Fairly Useful — an approval landslide. If someone describes this national parental support as evidence of a "broken rating system," that logic leaps beyond my ability to comprehend.

How would a revision affect the creative process for filmmakers?

The rating board can only rate what is on the screen, always trying to rate a film so that most parents would find that rating accurate and useful. It is up to filmmakers to decide what goes in their movie. It is their film, no one else's. The screen is free, and no one ought ever have the power to tell filmmakers how to tell their story. But the rating system is voluntary, and no one — filmmaker, producer, distributor — need take part in it who does not choose to.

How would this affect moviegoers?

If you are over 17 and have no children, the movie-rating system has no meaning for you. The rating system is designed solely for parents with young children. Its mission is to offer cautionary warnings to parents to help them determine what movies their children should or should not see. Therefore, any improvement in the rating system must be helpful to parents, but would not affect moviegoers in general.

NO

Mark G. Lipskey is president of Silverlight Entertainment, a distributor of independent films based in New York.

Is the current rating system for movies effective?

The present rating system does not work at all with respect to the "X" rating. The original intent of the X was to indicate a film contained scenes or images not suitable for children. Over the years, producers of pornographic films were given permission by the Motion Picture Association of America to self-rate their movies with the X, and virtually all of them eagerly accepted the invitation. The results are clear. The X rating has come to represent simply pornography. This has resulted in massive and arbitrary corporate censorship as well as prior creative censorship. For instance, thousands of cinemas will not exhibit X-rated films (whether pornographic or not), and hundreds of newspapers will not accept advertising for them.

How would a revision affect the creative process for filmmakers?

If an "A" rating, indicating "Adults only" content, replaced the X, directors and writers would be free to produce films reflecting their complete creative vision, films that may include harsh themes or images but that are clearly not pornographic. Until this happens, many films will never be seen in their originally intended form, and many others will never be seen at all in hundreds of communities nationwide.

How would this affect moviegoers?

Moviegoers would no longer be subjected to the opinions and mores of a small group of anonymous "parents." They would, at long last, be presented with the full range of choices that they could make not only for their children, but for themselves as well.

Judge calls for 'volunteerism'

Challenges people to get more involved in community

Alkek Elementary School kindergarten teacher Duna Morris and her class try out the seat of a Bandera Volunteer Fire Department pumper during a field trip to the station last week. Firefighter Scott Anderwald acted as guide.

Bandera County Judge Ray Mauer called volunteerism in the community one possible solution to spiraling tax increases in a speech to extension homemakers from Bandera, Kerr and Kendall counties at Mansfield Park Wednesday, Sept. 19.

The homemakers were gathered for the Tri-County Affair held annually by extension homemakers clubs in the three counties.

"Judge Mauer boasted about Bandera's EMS (emergency medical service), which makes great use of volunteer efforts," said Bandera County extension agent Jan Bryson. "He challenged people to volunteer more, and to get involved in their community instead of paying taxes to have someone else do it."

One example Mauer gave was highway clean-up programs, Bryson said.

"We have to ask ourselves, how do we prevent taxes from going up?" Mauer asked. "What can each citizen do?

"In San Antonio they are having problems with something as simple as a 'mama patrol,' " he said. "People are reluctant to volunteer to stand on a corner to help their own children cross the street.

"I think we have a choice — either pay the bills (taxes) or do something about it and volunteer, not just sit back and criticize.

"In the past, every able-bodied man would work eight hours a month on road maintenance. I'm not suggesting we go back to that, but some of that same spirit needs to be recaptured.

"People need to get involved, go back to the times when they did whatever they could to help," he said.

Mauer praised the volunteer effort in the EMS and fire department groups, but he said both groups need additional support if they are going to survive.

Also at Wednesday's event, Barbara Ann Holmes, member of the State Board of Insurance, presented "an encyclopedia of useful information about insurance regulations and ways to guard against fraud," Bryson said.

"She cautioned that when an insurance sales person calls, you should always ask for their insurance license number," Bryson advised, "and never write your check to the individual. Always write it to the insurance company to protect yourself."

Bryson said other program highlights included an adult and a teen who spoke on alcohol and drug abuse; a hat parade featuring antique, hand made and keepsake hats; and door prizes including art works and savings bonds.

"Everyone brought their favorite dish for a wonderful covered dish lunch," Bryson said.

Bandera County had 28 members registered; Kerr County had 26 members registered; and Kendall County had 14 members registered. Next year's event will be held in Kendall County, Bryson said.

"We really appreciate all the help we had setting up for this event," she said. "Especially, we appreciate the help from Billy Griffin, Warren Thigpen and all those who helped set up and decorate. Everything looked just great."

Lutherans to install bishop Saturday

The Rev. Henry Schulte of Kerrville will be installed as bishop of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America's Southwestern Texas Synod Saturday, Sept. 29 in Seguin.

Presiding at the installation will be the Rev. Dr. Herbert W. Chilstrom, bishop of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America. The Festival Eucharist service will be held in the Jackson Auditorium at Texas Lutheran College beginning at 2 p.m.

Schulte, who was serving as pastor of Zion Lutheran Church in Kerrville, was elected bishop at the synod's annual assembly on May 19 to succeed the synod's first bishop, Arthur E. Rode, who retired July 31. Schulte served as bishop-elect in August and began his four-year term Sept. 1.

From 1983 until his election as bishop, Schulte served as pastor of Zion Lutheran Church in Kerrville. He was assistant to the bishop and director for personnel in the ALC's Southern District from 1979-83, was pastor of Highland Park Lutheran Church in San Antonio from 1969-78, and pastor of St. Paul Lutheran Churches of Shelby and Fayetteville from 1965-69.

Racing

inside the city limits of Bandera, the comptroller said.

The 115 days the track is proposing excludes July 4-7 and Aug. 21-25 weekends when Gillespie County Fairgrounds in Fredericksburg will be racing. "We won't ask for days that conflict with Gillespie," says Essary.

Bandera Downs will run during Gillespie's two-day July 20-21 racing weekend, as it did in 1990, but Bandera track officials have not asked to race over the Memorial weekend when Gillespie is scheduled to race Saturday, May 25, through Monday, May 27.

Bandera will run over the Labor Day weekend, like it did in 1990. "The only holiday we're going to run is Labor Day," says Essary. Bandera is approved to run Thursday, Aug. 29, through Monday, Sept. 2, but the local track is expected to run four days, starting Friday, Aug. 30, over the Labor Day weekend.

The 115 days the track is proposing excludes the Thursday as the commission approved for Bandera this year.

The 79 days Bandera Downs has approved boil down to 60 racing days without Thursday and the track does not want to run on Thursdays. "We have not run on Thursdays and do not intend to run on Thursdays," says Essary.

"The dates we're asking for we would have run if we were ready to run construction-wise," says Essary. Bandera Downs started its 1990 meet July 6, as financing difficulties and springs rain delayed construction.

Since commission chairman Hugh Fitzsimmons Jr. voted against extending Bandera Downs' current meet from Oct. 28 to Dec. 9, there is the possibility that the overall vote won't be positive.

But that won't be good for horse racing in Texas, says Essary. "The effect would be a shock to the horse industry, devastating to the commission and people affiliated with horse racing," he says.

So far, only Gillespie County Fair and Festival Association and Bandera Downs have been able to run successful meets. "Nothing new is happening in the (Texas) horse racing industry, with the exception of our successful meet. But horse sales increased over 40 percent in Texas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico since we've opened. There is no reason to believe we're not responsible for it," says Essary.

According to the TRC approved pari-mutuel racing calendar, Del Rio Downs is expected to start racing Jan. 1 and continue on three-day weekends through March 31. Their meet would resume Nov. 29 and continue on three-day weekends through Dec. 29.

But Del Rio has requested a change in its license status from Class 2 to Class 3 and a reduction of its racing days to 16.

LaBahia Downs in Goliad is expected to open Feb. 1 and continue on three- and four-day weekends through April 28 and reopen Aug. 1 through Nov. 24.

Financing difficulties at LaBahia may delay the track's opening, however.

Longhorn Downs south of Marble Falls has approved dates starting March 2 through May 19, but it probably won't be ready to open in March.

Other Class 2 tracks include Lubbock Downs in Lubbock, which is still trying to finalize its financing, and Trinity Meadows in Weatherford, which is also experiencing financing troubles.

G. Rollie White Downs in Brady, which started pari-mutuel racing, is closed indefinitely.

Manor Downs south of Austin is looking to open for pari-mutuel horse racing at its Class 2 track the first weekend in October, reports track spokesman Bob Fox.

"We expect to open Friday, Oct. 5," says Fox.

The track is scheduled to continue racing through Dec. 16.

School

savings would be $100,000.

"These measures would cut back on teaching positions," Dockery said. Anticipated savings would be some $460,980.

In a statement issued last Tuesday, Rilla Stephens and Jones called a meeting of taxpayers to organize a rollback election petition drive of the 41.7 percent tax hike that the Bandera Independent School District passed Sept. 11.

Other plans announced by the group include an en masse attendance of the Tuesday, Oct. 9, school board meeting.

The group must get 10 percent of the registered voters in the Bandera Independent School District to sign the petition before Dec. 10, or about 501 of the 5,005 registered voters in the district.

If the rollback election is successful, the district does not have to roll back tax rate at that time and the cuts that the school board outlined Monday would not take effect until next year.

The rollback for school districts is explained in Chapter 26.08 of the state property tax code.

Other calls that keep Bandera County and city lawmen busy are calls to residences where burglar alarms go off, stolen vehicle, stolen dog, fight, keep-the-peace, shots fired, loose dog, thefts, arrests on warrants, runaway, assist EMS, criminal mischief, and suspicious persons, vehicles, and circumstances.

Meals-on-Wheels ready to roll in lake area

The "Meals on Wheels" program for the Lakehills and Pipe Creek will be beginning soon, as a county van has been furnished to help deliver the meals, a spokeswoman told the Sept. 24 meeting of the Medina Lake Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons.

Bandera County Commissioners recently voted to allow use of one of the county's van to be used by AARP to pick up meals at Bandera's Silver Sage Corral and transport them to Pipe Creek and Lakehills residents needing the hot, cooked meals.

Organization president Dorothy Webber reported that all regular and relief alternates drivers were signed up for the program. Currently 15 people will benefit from program.

Storage and upkeep of the van are also in place, said Webber.

Linda Tresp, an Alzheimers' disease expert, told the gathering that Alzheimers' is a disease that slowly kills the brain and destroys a person's short-term memory.

Noticeable changes in a person's behavior that could be due to Alzheimers' are when a very organized person does something out of the normal.

Persons interested in a support group for Alzheimers' families should contact Lila Ward.

Waldo Lamke gave a report on recent legislation on Medicare billing. The Medicare system should be paying a larger, fairer amount to be paid to physicians and cost older Americans less for out-of-pocket expenses.

Delmuth Wood reported that 124 families were helped when the federal government's supplied commodities were distributed recently.

A total of 14 AARP members took part in the fall highway cleanup along FM Road 1283. The group also spread wildflower seeds along the roadways to add to increase the number of flowers that will bloom in the spring.

The sunshine committee reported 10 "Get Well" and five "Sympathy" cards were sent out during the month.

Future events for the organization include a pie and ice cream social as part of the regular membership meeting Oct. 22 and a Christmas Party at Dec. 10.

Fire destroys Chesnut's mobile home in Pipe Creek subdivision

A trailer house in Medina River Ranch was all but destroyed but no one was hurt Friday night after an electrical wire started a blaze.

A trailer on the Chesnut property in the subdivision south of Pipe Creek caught on fire about 10 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 22. According to reports of one of the responding firemen, the lone occupant of the trailer at the time of the fire said the television caught on fire while she was watching a program.

The trailer was "pretty well burned up," says Pipe Creek Volunteer Fire Department fire chief Jack Trenkelbach. "One room was still standing," once the responding units finished, he says.

"We determined it (the cause of the fire) was electrical," says Trenkelbach.

Pipe Creek brought four trucks, Medina Lake VFD brought at least three trucks, and Bandera's fire department was turned back.

"We had good participation from Medina Lake VFD. They really helped," says Trenkelbach.

The fire units stayed at the scene about 2½ hours.

Other expected cooks are previous winner Ollie Kay of San Antonio, Bill Gavin of San Antonio, and two entrants from Pipe Creek's Kelley's Shamrock Tavern.

Samples of the gumbo cooks' efforts will be sold during the day beginning at noon for $1 a cup, says Caswell.

Gumbo will most likely be seafood, but chicken, turkey, sausage, game or other meat will be present.

And those judging the event will include three bona fide gumbo experts.

Barbara A. Chifici, president and owner of the nationally-recognized seafood restaurant Deanie's in Bucktown just outside of New Orleans, will be one of the judges.

Chrisei Anthony, president and owner of the Sea Island Seafood Restaurant in San Antonio will bring her expertise to the panel.

Rounding out the two-woman, one-man team, will be Erwin A. Caswell Sr., an 80 year old lifetime resident of New Orleans and generally accepted as the most knowledgeable gumbo expert in the home of Cajun cooking.

They will select one winner from the professional division and a first- and second-place winner in the amateur division. The professional division consists of restaurants and other individuals who cook for a living.

A showmanship trophy will also be awarded for whichever entrant in either division demonstrates the most flair, public appeal, entertainment, decorations, creativity or outrageous presentation of their gumbo.

A "People's Choice" trophy will be awarded to the contestant who receives the most votes from the cookoff goers for their choice as best gumbo, says Caswell.

The announcement of the winners begins at 4 p.m.

Each festival goer will be given a ballot when they enter the gate to be used for the People's Choice award, says Barbara Engel, one of the organizers.

The gate opens at noon for the general public with a $2 admission charge and children under 12 are free.

For further information call Caswell in San Antonio at 736-2017, Lakehills at 751-3401 or 751-2727 or by calling Peggy Ashmore in Bandera at 796-8302.

Lakeshore Volunteer Fire Department fire chief Charlie Hightnote, and four other firemen attended a seminar sponsored by the Texas Forest Service Sept. 15 in San Antonio.

The day-long course on the use of synthetic foams in fire fighting included practical demonstrations.

The firemen were impressed at the use of the foam for rapidly suppressing structure fires in addition to its use in fighting wildland fires.

The department will consider obtaining foam apparatus and modify at least one brush truck for its use.

Mums the word at Sea World during the month of October

Sea World of Texas will celebrate autumn's beauty with a showcase of approximately 28,000 blooming chrysanthemums during the San Antonio marine zoological park's second annual "Mum Festival" every weekend in October.

This four-weekend-long exposition of fall flowers — one of the largest of its kind in Texas — will showcase chrysanthemums of all shapes, sizes and colors planted and grown by Sea World landscapers especially for the festival. That includes 1,500 potted plants as well as many decorative hanging baskets.

Sea World of Texas will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays in October, however closing times will be extended for special events on Oct. 13, 14 and 27.

A 20-foot-high "tree" of mums, featuring hundreds of blooming chrysanthemums, welcomes Sea World of Texas guests to a colorful exposition of flowers during the second annual "Mum Festival."

Musical revue continues at 'Point'

The Hill Country Arts Foundation's Point Theatre production of "Sentimental Journey," a musical revue of jazz, blues and popular tunes of the 1940s, will continue each Saturday night through Oct. 14.

Performances are scheduled Sept. 30, Oct. 7 and Oct. 14 under the stars in the HCAF's Smith-Ritch outdoor amphitheater on the banks of the Guadalupe River. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Performers David Cockerell, Kimberly S. Davis, Dale E. Hardin, Elizabeth Hodges, Mark Hudson and Elizabeth Real, who teamed up to create the show, have included in their repertoire: "Sentimental Journey," "Lazy River," "Mean to Me," "Hard Hearted Hannah," "Satin Doll," "Me and My Shadow," "September Song," "Managua, Nicaragua," "A Couple of Swells," "Second Hand Rose," "Someone to Watch Over Me," "More Than You Know," "Tuxedo Junction," "Bei Mir Bist Du Shoen," "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy," "Blues for Yesterday," "Ain't Misbehavin'," "Won't You Play a Simple Melody," "Stormy Weather," "Rock-a-Bye Your Baby with a Dixie Melody," "Java Jive," "Operator," "Bill Baily," and a patriotic medley of all of the armed services songs.

The production's five-piece orchestra, Lone Star Jazz, is seated onstage, reminiscent of the era's popular night clubs.

Tickets for all performances are $5 each and are on sale at the Hill Country Arts Foundation offices, The Old Republic Inn, The Turquoise Door, Brehmer's Jewelers and The Hummingbird. Tickets also will be available at the door.

"Each session will help you sharpen your skills and enhance your enjoyment of watercolor painting," Short said. The course will include complete "how-to's to help anyone get started," she said.

"Cost for the six sessions will be $60," Short said. "First time painters will be provided with supplies at first lesson."

The Bookshelf

Jimmie Hughey, Library Director

The long-awaited Tony Hillerman novel, "Coyote Waits," has finally arived at the Bandera County Library and is available to check out or reserve.

Since it is a best seller, we are able to reserve it for you for a 24-hour period only, but that at least gives you a chance at it.

In addition to this offering, we now have Sidney Sheldon's new offering, "Memories of Midnight," which is a sequel to the earlier "The Other Side of Midnight." Both books are available at the library.

• At its September meeting, the Bandera County Library Board bade farewell to three members, Kathryn Thompson, Ruth Meador and Helen Bryant. These ladies will be sorely missed for their unstinting support of the library.

Three new members were welcomed to the board, Dr. Orton Frisbie, the Rev. Marion Birch and Marie Moore.

The library board meetings are held in the library on the first Monday of each month at 3 p.m. They are, of course, open to the public.

Wildlife gains turf in Conoco gift

A wide variety of nongame wildlife, including the roseate spoonbill, herons and egrets, soon will have an additional 152 acres of protected habitat thanks to a land gift from Conoco to the state of Texas, according to Chuck Nash, chairman of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department commissioners voted Aug. 30 to accept Conoco's gift of Atkinson Island, a "wildlife oasis" positioned in the heavily industrialized Houston Ship Channel.

"Conoco and our parent company Du Pont have been committed for decades to protecting and conserving our nation's wildlife, such as the Whooping Crane, and land resources such as Atkinson Island," said T.E. Davis, vice president of Conoco's Natural Gas and Gas Products department.

TPWD Executive Director Andrew Sansom said, "We soon will begin developing a management plan for the island, and we hope to allow limited access in the spring.

Individuals and groups such as the Audubon Society and Galveston Bay Foundation are expected to make use of Atkinson Island as a "natural classroom." Other outdoor enthusiasts will hike, bird-watch and take nature photographs, Sansom said.

No hunting or overnight camping will be allowed, and no docks will be constructed, he added.

CPR class set

An adult and infant CPR class will be held Saturday, Oct. 6 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in St. Joseph's Hall in Bandera.

"Young mothers and teenage babysitters are especially invited to attend," said spokeswoman Lynda Cook.

For more information, or to register, call Cook at 796-4941.

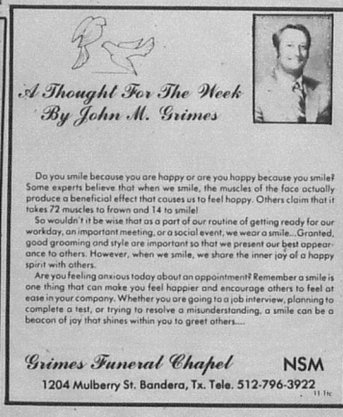
Life Can Be A Pickle When You Reach the Double Nickle



A Thought For The Week
By John M. Grimes

Do you smile because you are happy or are you happy because you smile? Some experts believe that when we smile, the muscles of the face actually produce a beneficial effect that causes us to feel happy. Others claim that it takes 72 muscles to frown and 14 to smile!

So wouldn't it be wise that as a part of our routine of getting ready for our workday, an important meeting, or a social event, we wear a smile...Granted, good grooming and style are important so that we present our best appearance to others. However, when we smile, we share the inner joy of a happy spirit with others.

Are you feeling anxious today about an appointment? Remember a smile is one thing that can make you feel happier and encourage others to feel at ease in your company. Whether you are going to a job interview, planning to complete a test, or trying to resolve a misunderstanding, a smile can be a beacon of joy that shines within you to greet others....

New Braunfels bettor wins $27,258 in twin trifecta

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Bandera Downs' twin trifecta paid off at $27,258.40 Sunday for a New Braunfels man but if a disqualification in the sixth race hadn't happened, there might have been several winners.

Melvin Wise was the sole winner of $27,258.40 in the twin trifecta Sunday.

Wise, president of New Braunfels' Winn's Stores, had two of the 514 exchange tickets from the fifth race Sunday.

The order of finish for the sixth race was 5-1 Hezapickyman, 5-2 Lambs E Divey, and 7-1 Spectacular Jets, which could have yielded many winning tickets.

But Lambs E Divey bumped Shiney Pearl coming out of starting gate, was disqualified and was placed ninth, which brought 13-1 Tinos Noise Maker into third.

Ironically, Wise says he might have won the $16,225.60 jackpot Saturday, except Custus Parr was disqualified and placed fifth in the sixth race.

Wise says his wife owns some race horses, and hence his interest in the sport. He says he comes out to the track about every other weekend, but he was "more successful today."

He says he uses the Daily Racing Form to determine what horses to bet.

The weekend handle climbed over $1 million again and the per capita betting remained over $100 each day.

The smallest crowd of the year, 1,423 persons Friday, bet $232,377 in ten races, yielding an impressive $163.30 per capita, just $5.71 short of the state record per capita set at Bandera Downs Friday, Sept. 7.

The per capita was $113.60 Saturday and $112.35 Sunday.

In Sunday's featured race, a mixed thoroughbred-quarter horse overnight handicap, the second-longest shot in the field, 22-1 Mr. Collier, went to the rail near the end of the race and then the wire to pay $46 to win, $20 to place and $10.60 to show.

Awful Lucky, ridden by David Muirhead, took the early lead in the 1,000 yard race, but that lead didn't hold as Peerless Way worked to the front and held it most of the turn.

But Walker says he saw a spot near the rail and took it coming into the stretch. "He doesn't have a lot of speed at the gate," says Walker. "A hole opened up in the back at the stretch and I took him to the rail to save ground," he says.

It was Walker's first race on the 4-year-old sorrel gelding. "I worked him twice and I like him, but I hadn't ridden (in a race) him before" he says.

Walker has encountered the quarter horse before, which had a lot to do with his decision to ride Mr. Collier. "He outran me once in another race."

Mr. Collier's only previous out at Bandera Downs was Sept. 7 when jockey Danny Lavergne took him to third in a 1,000-yard race.

In Saturday's featured race, jockey Issac Chapa took 6-1 Sundays Money to the finish in a 400-yard quarter horse allowance on a muddy track to pay $14.20.

The betting crowd's 5-2 favorite Toast A Streaker came in second, and the 2-1 morning line favorite, Cashcades only placed sixth.

In Friday's feature, 4-1 Whatasignature made a late run in the 330-yard quarter horse claiming race to pay $10, $3.60 and $3.40. The 9-5 favorite Proper Fuel, ridden by Scott Lace, broke slowly from the gate and jockey Nicky Wilson, ridding Whatasignature, moved his filly into the place on the track Proper Fuel would have run, automatically gaining a length on the horse.

But Proper Fuel was able to recover enough from the break to finish second.

Cotulla ends losing streak, defeats Medina Bobcats

A week off did the Medina Bobcats no good last Friday, Sept. 21. The 'Cats lost to the Cotulla Cowboys 24-7 in their second game of the season.

It was also the second team in a row with a two year losing record to defeat the Medina team this year. The Bobcats lost 14-7 to Ingram two weeks ago.

"We just were not ready to play," said head coach Joe Winchell. "They scored on the first play and we just never got in the game.

Cotulla, which had dropped 19 straight games scored on the first play from scrimmage when leading rusher Mike Lovell ran 44 yards for the touchdown. Lovell had 12 carries for 94 yards for the night.

The 'Pokes scored on two more runs and a pass interception but failed to add a single extra point during the game.

Medina's only scoring came when Norman Hurt returned a first quarter kickoff 80 yards for the touchdown and Chris Keiser booted the point after.

Medina will host Antonion Friday, Sept. 28. "They will be our toughest team yet," said Winchell, "but we can beat them, if we'll just get out there and play football."

Game time is 8 p.m.

Marble Falls scores twice in first half, downs 'Dogs

By Bob Hopper
Special Correspondent

Marble Falls — Marble Falls' Mustangs stunned the Bandera Bulldogs by breaking open a scoreless defensive struggle with two quick, second-quarter touchdowns Friday and then held off a furious fourth-quarter Bandera rally to hand the Bulldogs their first loss of the season, 13-6.

Mustang quarterback Paul Moore opened the second stanza with a 3-yard touchdown strike to running back Cork Ribera, and the Mustangs' other running back, William Young, followed that minutes later with a 78-yard explosion across the middle.

But that was it for Marble Falls as it lost the ball four times on fumbles and had one apparent touchdown called back because of a penalty.

Bandera made a late bid to pull the game out of the fire by scoring once in the final period and driving to the Mustang 12-yard line before the threat was snuffed out by an interception.

A fumbled exchange set up the Bulldogs's only touchdown. It gave the Bulldogs the ball on the Mustang 34-yard line. Coach Chris Storer used the one-two punch of running backs Bo Mansfield and Jimmy Johnson to drive up the middle for the score.

Mansfield, who gained 75 yards on the night on 15 carries, gained 11 yards to the Mustang 23-yard line, and Johnson carried to the 17 from his tailback position.

On the next play guard Roland Rodriguez and tackle Paul Mangold closed off the right side for Johnson, allowing him to slide in for the touchdown.

The fumble that set up Bandera's touchdown came just one play after Moore had apparently salted the game away for Marble Falls on a 56-yard pass to Barrett Boeing. A Mustang was caught holding, however, and Moore fumbled the ball on the next exchange.

Bandera wasn't through after its touchdown." Another fumble, this one at the Mustang 34-yard line, gave Bandera one last chance.

Behind the blocking of Scott Anderson, Stephen Church and Johnny Stroud, Bandera attacked the left side of the Mustang line. Mansfield and quarterback Jason Schneider combined for 22 yards to the Mustang 12-yard line as time ticked off the clock.

But Marble Falls' Greg Garrison picked off a Schneider pass at the 10-yard line to preserve the victory.

The statistics revealed that the game was as close as the score indicated. Bandera had a combined air and ground total of 239 yards to Marble Falls' 243, and the Bulldogs bested the Mustangs in first downs by just 14 to 13.

Chris Hensley recovered two fumbles and Bobby Hopper and T.R. Andreas recovered one each. The Bulldogs lost the ball twice on fumbles.

Bandera, now 2-1 in non-district play, faces Stockdale Friday at Stockdale.

BJHS to host tourney

Teams from Comfort, Natalia and Pleasanton will travel to Bandera Saturday, Sept. 29, for an eighth grade girls volleyball tournament.

"Bandera's teams will be hosting their tournament Saturday at the junior high gym," said parent and eighth grade girls' team coordinator Jean Ohlenburger. "Games are scheduled from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m."

A concession stand featuring homemade chili, beans, sausage, nachos, cookies and desserts will be set up in the cafeteria.

"Our girls need your support," said Ohlenburger. "Come out and enjoy the food and fun. Let's welcome our new coaches with pride and strength in numbers."

...'s featured race, a ...roughbred-quarter ...ight handicap, the ...st shot in the field, 22-1 Mr. Collier, went to the rail near the end of the race and then the wire to pay $46 to win, $20 to place and $10.60 to show.

Awful Lucky, ridden by David Muirhead, took the early lead in the 1,000 yard race, but that lead didn't hold as Peerless Way worked to the front and held it most of the jurn.

But Walker says he saw a spot near the rail and took it coming into the stretch. "He doesn't have a lot of speed at the gate," says Walker. "A hole opened up in the back at the stretch and I took him to the rail to save ground," he says.

It was Walker's first race on the 4-year-old sorrel gelding. "I worked him twice and I like him, but I hadn't ridden (in a race) him before" he says.

Walker has encountered the quarter horse before, which had a lot to do with his decision to ride Mr. Collier. "He outran me once in another race."

Mr. Collier's only previous out at Bandera Downs was Sept. 7 when jockey Danny Lavergne took him to third in a 1,000-yard race.

In Saturday's featured race, jockey Issac Chapa took 6-1 Sundays Money to the finish in a 400-yard quarter horse allowance on a muddy track to pay $14.20.

The betting crowd's 5-2 favorite Toast A Streaker came in second, and the 2-1 morning line favorite, Cashcades only placed sixth.

In Friday's feature, 4-1 Whatasignature made a late run in the 330-yard quarter horse claiming race to pay $10, $3.60 and $3.40. The 9-5 favorite Proper Fuel, ridden by Scott Luce, broke slowly from the gate and jockey Nicky Wilson, ridding Whatasignature, moved his filly into the place on the track Proper Fuel would have run, automatically gaining a length on the horse.

But Proper Fuel was able to recover enough from the break to finish second.

Marble Falls scores twice in first half, downs 'Dogs

By Bob Hopper
Special Correspondent

Marble Falls — Marble Falls' Mustangs stunned the Bandera Bulldogs by breaking open a scoreless defensive struggle with two quick, second-quarter touchdowns Friday and then held off a furious fourth-quarter Bandera rally to hand the Bulldogs their first loss of the season, 13-6.

Mustang quarterback Paul Moore opened the second stanza with a 3-yard touchdown strike to running back Cork Ribera, and the Mustangs' other running back, William Young, followed that minutes later with a 78-yard explosion across the middle.

But that was it for Marble Falls as it lost the ball four times on fumbles and had one apparent touchdown called back because of a penalty.

Bandera made a late bid to pull the game out of the fire by scoring once in the final period and driving to the Mustang 12-yard line before the threat was snuffed out by an interception.

A fumbled exchange set up the Bulldogs's only touchdown. It gave the Bulldogs the ball on the Mustang 34-yard line. Coach Chris Storer used the one-two punch of running backs Bo Mansfield and Jimmy Johnson to drive up the middle for the score.

Mansfield, who gained 75 yards on the night on 18 carries, gained 11 yards to the Mustang 23-yard line, and Johnson carried to the 17 from his tailback position.

On the next play guard Roland Rodriguez and tackle Paul Mangold closed off the right side for Johnson, allowing him to slide in for the touchdown.

The fumble that set up Bandera's touchdown came just one play after Moore had apparently sailed the game away for Marble Falls on a 56-yard pass to Barrett Boeing. A Mustang was caught holding, however, and Moore fumbled the ball on the next exchange.

Bandera wasn't through after its touchdown. Another fumble, this one at the Mustang 34-yard line, gave Bandera one last chance.

Behind the blocking of Scott Anderson, Stephen Church and Johnny Stroud, Bandera attacked the left side of the Mustang line. Mansfield and quarterback Jason Schneider combined for 22 yards to the Mustang 12-yard line as time ticked off the clock.

But Marble Falls' Greg Garrison picked off a Schneider pass at the 10-yard line to preserve the victory.

The statistics revealed that the game was as close as the score indicated. Bandera had a combined air and ground total of 239 yards to Marble Falls' 243, and the Bulldogs bested the Mustangs in first downs by just 14 to 13.

Chris Hensley recovered two fumbles and Bobby Hopper and T.R. Andreas recovered one each. The Bulldogs lost the ball twice on fumbles.

Bandera, now 2-1 in non-district play, faces Stockdale Friday at Stockdale.

BJHS to host tourney

Teams from Comfort, Natalia and Pleasanton will travel to Bandera Saturday, Sept. 29, for an eighth grade girls volleyball tournament.

"Bandera's teams will be hosting their tournament Saturday at the junior high gym," said parent and eighth grade girls' team coordinator Jean Ohlenburger. "Games are scheduled from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m."

A concession stand featuring homemade chili, beans, sausage, nachos, cookies and desserts will be set up in the cafeteria.

"Our girls need your support," said Ohlenburger. "Come out and enjoy the food and fun. Let's welcome our new coaches with pride and strength in numbers."

Cotulla ends losing streak, defeats Medina Bobcats

A week off did the Medina Bobcats no good last Friday, Sept. 21. The 'Cats lost to the Cotulla Cowboys 24-7 in their second game of the season.

It was also the second team in a row with a two year losing record to defeat the Medina team this year. The Bobcats lost 14-7 to Ingram two weeks ago.

"We just were not ready to play," said head coach Joe Winchell. "They scored on the first play and we just never got in the game.

Cotulla, which had dropped 19 straight games scored on the first play from scrimmage when leading rusher Mike Lovell ran 44 yards for the touchdown. Lovell had 12 carries for 94 yards for the night.

The 'Pokes scored on two more runs and a pass interception but failed to add a single extra point during the game.

Medina's only scoring came when Norman Hurt returned a first quarter kickoff 80 yards for the touchdown and Chris Keiser booted the point after.

Medina will host Antonion Friday, Sept. 28. "They will be our toughest team yet," said Winchell, "but we can beat them, if we'll just get out there and play football."

Game time is 8 p.m.

Bandera JV wins third victory

Bandera's junior varsity Bulldogs outlasted Marble Falls, 6-2, Thursday in the pouring rain at Bulldog Stadium to gain their third victory of the year without a setback.

Jese Edwards squished over from the 3-yard line late in the first quarter for the only touchdown of the game. A try for a two-point conversion failed.

The winning touchdown was set up by a 35-yard pass from quarterback Terry Robertson that J.B. Neuenschwander caught after it bounded off his body and into the air at the junior Mustang 20-yard line.

Marble Falls' best chance for a touchdown was stopped when the rain-slicked ball was fumbled on the Pups' 7-yard line and recovered by Emero Torrado.

The Ponies' only score came when Bandera's punter fumbled the slippery ball in the Pups' end zone for a safety.

An apparent touchdown on a 55-yard run by Michael Martinez in the fourth period was ruled to be an incomplete pass and called back.

The junior varsity will entertain Stockdale here Thursday.

'Dog game videos to be shown weekly

The video tape of each Bandera Bulldog football game will be shown to the public each Monday afternoon at 6:30 p.m. in the boys physical education room at the high school, says John Box, president of the Athletic Boosters Club.

Grid coach Chris Storer will review the film and discuss the next week's opponent, Box said.

The Bulletin last week incorrectly identified Box as the boosters club's vice president. Banker Sully Woodland is vice president.

Water Heaters

Why are water heaters costing so much these days? New government regulations require all heaters to be more energy efficient than before. While a new water heater will cost more now, its lower operating cost will save you lots of money later.

State finds major violations at landfill near Medina

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Recent state health department inspections of the county landfill near Medina turned up some serious health violations, a spokesman said Monday, and county commissioners ordered the digging of a new pit to bring the only operating landfill in Bandera County into state compliance.

It's almost certain that the landfill will have to be closed soon, at any rate when federally-mandated expenses will soon make it cost prohibitive, says Bandera County Judge Ray F. Mauer.

The only current option, a third trash compactor from Garbage Gobbler of San Antonio, may also be too expensive, he adds.

The Medina landfill, which is permitted by the state and continues to operate two days a week like the garbage compactor stations at Bandera and Lakehills, has drawn four warning violations from the state in the past five months.

At a recent inspection, H.W. Merritt, solid waste management engineer with Texas Department of Health in Uvalde, found two violations centering on too much trash in the landfill without the proper disposal.

The primary pit at the landfill was "filled to brim, exposed, and full," says Merritt.

The pit is required to be covered every 30 days, but the garbage in the pit was "more than 30-day accumulation," for "two days of operation," says Merritt.

"It really needs to be covered weekly, but the regulations don't require that," says Merritt. Covering the pit will stop house flies which infest the pit, says Merritt.

"A dose of insecticide would have alleviated the problem temporarily, but the county may need to resort to periodic spraying," says Merritt.

It is also required that the county compact the garbage in the pit periodically, such as with a front-end loader.

Commissioners made plans Monday to use equipment to compact the landfill and dig a new pit.

The inspector also found large metal items such as refrigerators held out of the garbage. "They had items that weren't in compliance with municipal solid waste disposal and constituted an appreciable accumulation of salvageable material," says Merritt.

County inspector, Raymond "Spot" Wright, who was at the garbage pit with Merritt, said that the metal was salvaged periodically.

In a May 7 inspection, Merritt said he inspected the site when it was closed and found garbage bags and trash floating in two to four feet of water that was standing in the pit, a direct violation of regulations.

"You can't put garbage in water — it generates methane gas, turns the water black, and gives off odor.

But worse, the pit was burning and still moldering. "The remnents of a fire were still in progress," says Merritt.

The Texas Air Control board does not allow burning without a permit, which they are reluctant to issue, and health regulations

City to spend $709,000 this year

The Bandera City Council Monday approved a budget calling for spending $709,300, including $70,000 expected to be raised by a property tax rate of 18.91 cents per $100 valuation.

The tax rate is equal to last year's rate.

The budget approved Monday calls for spending $200,000 in salaries and $29,700 in police department expenses. The city paid employees $157,866 in the first 11 months of the current fiscal year and spent $90,122 on police department expenses.

Next year's budget calls for spending $25,000 on street repairs, compared to $17,517 in the first 11 months of this year.

The budget forecasts $140,000 income from sales taxes, $36,000 from gross receipts taxes, $25,000 from fines levied by municipal court and 30,000 from the 15-cent racetrack admittance tax. The city received $124,353 from the sales tax in the first 11 months of this year, $15,537 from gross receipts taxes, $15,537 from fines, and 9,583 from race track taxes.

The city expects to receive $4,000 from the motel occupancy tax, which must be spent on advertising and other things to attract visitors. A total of $5,394 in occupancy taxes were paid in the first 11 months of this year.

Total revenue expected during the fiscal year which begins Oct. 1 is $674,300, and the council expects to balance the $709,300 budget with a $35,000 carryover.

Bandera Junior High School students in Jaque Loeffler's TARGET class try to "put it into words" for their Desert Shields pen pals in the armed services overseas.

Local students pen letters to soldiers in Middle East

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

Bandera junior high school students have joined the effort to correspond with thousands of men and women who are stationed on foreign soil in the Desert Shields Pen Pals Network program, according to BJHS teachers Jaque Loeffler and Mary Kling. The letter-writing effort is part of a new program at the school.

Students in Utopia schools are also participating in the Desert Shields program. "Classroom friends" Joy Davenport and D.J. Jordan provided specific names and addresses of soldiers wanting to correspond, and Utopia's fourth grades students have written letters of encouragement. School officials report the students are eagerly awaiting responses to their letters.

The Bandera students got first-hand reports from letters written by U.S. Marine Edward Ortiz to his mother, Delia Ortiz of Medina, and more than 360 students in BJHS wrote letters either to Ortiz, or addressed to "Dear American Soldier."

This is the latest class project in a new program at BJHS called TARGET (Teaching and Reteaching Gets Enriching Thought).

"The program was designed by a committee of Bandera Junior High School teachers who are trying to promote a more effective school," said Kling. "The program's aim is increase practical writing, reading and math skills, and to boost achievement test scores."

Each day sixth-, seventh- and eighth-grade students participate in a 30-minute lesson which covers a life skill. Lessons cover such areas as how to read a prescription label, figuring a restaurant tip, and writing letters to the military personnel in Saudi Arabia. Each lesson also "targets" writing, reading or math skills.

The seven-member Effective Schools Committee met this summer and designed the TARGET program. Besides Kling and Loeffler, other members include Ken Kling, Jan Pease, Tom Doebbler, Yvonne Fenner and principal Truman Donahoo.

"Ideas for activities are contributed by all the teachers," Loeffler said. "Participation in the pen pals program came from a suggestion by Sue Holloway."

"I had read about Eddie and Mrs. Ortiz in our Bandera Bulletin," Loeffler said. "I called her, and she shared some general comments from Eddie's letters with the students."

Teachers were asked to "brainstorm" with students during TARGET classes Sept. 17 and 18, asking the students:

"Have you ever been far away from home? What feelings did you experience? How would you feel if you were thousands of miles from your friends and family? In a culture that doesn't allow entertainment that you're used to? In a country that doesn't have adequate water? In a hot, hot country? In a country where cold sodas are very rare?"

Teachers then shared the letter from Ortiz with their classes, discussed the letter, then students began rough drafts for their letters.

The TARGET program will continue throughout the school year. TARGET classes will also be working for the reward of interclass competitive events in the spring, Kling said.

Pen pal letters can be sent to "Operation Desert Shields Pen Pal Network," FPO New York, 09848-0006. Letters can be sent to Army, Air Force, and Marine Corps in Saudi Arabia, and Navy and Marine Corps on board ships in the gulf.

Mail directed to sailors and Marines' home stations will be redirected to their Saudi location, military officials said.

Thoroughbred trials Friday

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Time trials for the upcoming San Antonio thoroughbred futurity will be featured when racing resumes Friday at Bandera Downs.

On tap for Friday will be the introduction of a "Lucky Seven" contest and wager that will give seven track patrons a chance to win a pickup truck each racing day.

And the twin trifecta will start from scratch, as the $27,258 jackpot was paid out Sunday.

Friday is also Senior Citizens Day at the races and senior citizens will be given free admission to the track, says director of publicity Don Rhine. Austin's KOOL 99 radio station will also play 1950-60s music.

There will be four thoroughbred races and one thoroughbred-quarter horse race in the 10-race card Friday.

Friday's races will host two races of time trials for the San Antonio Futurity race to be held Sunday, Oct. 14.

The 2-year-old thoroughbreds hoping to qualify for the $10,000-added purse six-furlong race will run in the seventh and eighth races Friday.

In the seventh race, Boldienne, has a good chance to win, says Rhine, who is also the track's handicapper. Boldienne started two times at LaMesa Park in New Mexico and won there once by ¾ of length and won the next race by nine lengths, he says. "No one has been in front of her yet," says Rhine.

Two other horses will be contenders in the seventh race, Dew Dit and Stacy's Princess, both in from Ruidoso Downs, says Rhine.

Friday feature race will bring back Justra Lark who broke his maiden by 10 ½ lengths Sunday, Aug. 19, at Bandera Downs. The horse "looks tough" says Rhine, despite his last two outs when he

Trash

don't allow burning in a landfill, says Roger Vaughan, an engineer with the solid waste surveillance and compliance office of the Texas Department of Health in Austin.

"Burning in the landfill could bring down severe financial penalties if burned again," says Merritt.

Commissioners N.P. "Bud" Thompson has been a vocal promoter of burning the pit to reduce the amount of garbage in the pit, as recently as Sept. 24, even though the action is illegal.

"You can't even burn the brush on the landfill site," says Merritt. Brush can be burned off the landfill site by private citizens and by county road crews on the side of the road. Other exceptions include training of firefighters and high school bonfires.

The Medina landfill will come under more regulations as new municipal solid waste regulations from the Environmental Protection Agency take effect at the end of the year.

The state is waiting for the EPA to release the new rules whose preliminary version was published in the federal register in August 1988.

Those rules may be released next month and theoretically Bandera County would have 18 months to comply with those rules.

"The new rules will effect all sites that are operating," says Vaughan.

The rules have been delayed almost a year and the word from Washington is that the final rules from the EPA have been approved and sent to federal budget board for review, says Merritt.

Originally, the federal rules would give the states 18 months to translate the EPA regulations into state rules and give people with landfills time to implement change, says Merritt.

The new regulations may require daily coverage, says Merritt. "That's what will drive smaller landfills to be uneconomical," he says.

But rural, arid areas like Bandera County may have less to worry about when the rules come down, but protection of ground water and the surface water supply and the elimination of flies and rats will continue to be important, the health inspector said.

The county may be required to drill monitor wells up stream and down stream in the ground water strata to show changes in quality.

The other problems that the county may face are 30-year post closure costs to landscape the area and maintain proper drainage, for which the county may have to put money up front in escrow, says Mauer.

"We won't know until (the rules) become final," says Merritt.

Castle Lake VFD changes dates

The Castle Lake Volunteer Fire Department will start holding their monthly meetings the third Saturday of each month at 5 p.m. at their fire house on Bear Creek Road.

The department had been holding its meetings the second Sunday of the month, reports president Ray Smith.

The department moved its meetings because they hold a monthly flea market the third Saturday of each month. "Since we're there already, it's easier to have the meeting afterwards," says Smith.

The next meeting will be Saturday, Oct. 20. The flea market starts at 9 a.m. continues until 5 p.m.

Spanish course

Spanish for practical situations will be emphasized in a beginning conversational Spanish course offered at Our Lady of the Lake University beginning Oct. 10.

Not Too Hot, Not Too Cold

The weekend forecast looks partly cloudy with isolated afternoon showers. Highs will be in the upper 80s and lows in the upper 60s.

These two photos are among several to be entered in an American Quarter Horse Association contest by Bandera Downs.

The name's changed, but gumbo cookoff's still the game

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

The Cajun Festival Saturday, Sept. 29, at the Lakehills Civic Center promises to offer a little bit of everything for festival goers, from gumbo to music and arts and crafts to games.

Even though the name's been changed, gumbo cookoff contestants such as Bart Gastor of San Antonio, who is planning to compete with alligator and crawfish meat in his entry, will continue to be a mainstay in the festival.

Also on display will be arts and crafts from Lakehills, Bandera, San Antonio, Utopia, Kerrville and Medina. The items will consist of lamp stools, banks, rockers, doll houses, knitted and crochet items, jewelry, painted and decorated T-shirts, wooden coyotes and ducks, leather and rattlesnake items, and jellies.

But when the gates open at noon, it's Dixieland jazz music by the Band Aide Jazz of San Antonio and Kerrville physicians people will hear.

The music continues at 2 p.m. with the folk and sing-a-long sounds of the Whoosits Good Time Big Pile Garbage Band.

At 4 p.m., the days will climax with the awards for winning gumbo entries and auction of the winning entries.

The day will be complete when Fiddlin' Frenchie Burke will appear on stage with Bandera's own Dusty Britches and the Rhythm Ranch Hands starting at 6 p.m.

Food available includes Cajun style crawfish pies, jambalaya, barbecue shrimp, shrimp etouffee, New Orleans bread pudding with whiskey sauce, pralines and French donuts. Texas-style food and drinks will also be available.

Samples of the gumbo cooks' efforts will be sold during the day beginning at noon for $1 a cup.

The gate opens at noon for the general public with a $2 admission charge and children under 12 are free.

For further information call Caswell in San Antonio at 736-2017, Lakehills at 751-3401 or 751-2727 or by calling Peggy Ashmore in Bandera at 796-8302.

Fiddlin' Frenchie Burke will contribute his Cajun flair to the Lakehills Cajun Festival starting at 6 p.m. at the Lakehills Civic Center Saturday.

"Scratch" of the Whoosits Big Pile Garbage Band will once again dance around festival goers at the Cajun Festival in Lakehills Saturday.

Setting it straight

Arthur Stevens, son of Winner Stevens whose obituary appeared in The Bulletin Sept. 26, operates a business in Kerrville but lives in Bandera.

Track seeks 115 racing days

Bandera Downs will ask for 115 days of racing, up from 79 days currently approved, at Monday's Texas Racing Commission meeting.

Opening date will be March 1 if Bandera Downs track officials get the commissioners to see their way with three days of racing most weekends through Dec. 8

The 115 days the track is proposing excludes May 24-27, July 4-7 and Aug. 21-25 weekends when Gillespie will be racing.

Bandera Downs will run during Gillespie's two-day July 20-21 racing weekend, like it did in 1990.

Bandera Downs has been the only operating class 2 track, but all that might change Oct. 5 when Manor Downs south of Austin is expected to open.

Also on the agenda for Bandera Downs is "approval of types of wagers" which may include new wagers to be tried at Bandera Downs.

Manor Downs 1991 license will be on Monday's agenda, also. Manor Downs 1990 license is approved.

Del Rio Downs is expected to apply again for a class 3 license.

Del Rio's class 2 license was denied earlier this year. The track then applied for a class 3 license, but withdrew that application.

About racing

by Bill Lakey

Bill Lakey is a professional handicapper. His column will appear here regularly.

Every race track has them. Hopefully, not too many, however, but it doesn't take too many to wreak the havoc they do.

Not all of them are named Cecil, either, and this makes them a little harder to spot. But then, on the other hand, most of them don't say their names anyway. It all happens too fast for such formalities as introductions.

Keep in mind that this guy is familiar to you. You have seen him at the track. In fact, wherever you have been at the track, you have seen him. He gets around, but never hangs around in one place very long. He exudes the confidence of one who "knows." Some part of you kind of wishes you could be like him, confident and apparently without self-doubt.

Forget it. You don't want to be like him. If you do, then I don't want anything to do with you. Here's why:

You have spent hours studying the Daily Racing Form, tip sheets, Bulletin Bob's selections, the picks in the Express News, and any other information you can get your hands on.

You have done well, so far. You've stayed away from the maiden claiming races, the daily double and the exactas. You didn't even bet the twin tri. You have been keeping your money in your pocket, waiting and biding your time. Today you are going to play it smart, waiting for the seventh race.

All your hard work the night before is getting ready to pay off. You have the 7 horse picked, and he looks like a cinch. You can hardly contain yourself; you just have a "gut feeling" that you are right, based on your hours of work.

You feel pretty good about your decision and about what you are going to do. It's a good feeling you have earned.

What you haven't earned is what is getting ready to happen.

It is time. Race 7 looms. Out comes your billfold or purse and out of it comes your money — all you brought with you today, because you only intend to make one bet and this is it.

You get about 10 feet from the mutual window and it happens. Someone is whispering something in your ear and obviously what he is whispering is just for you.

You glance around to identify the soft-spoken one. It's Cecil.

"The 4 horse," he says knowingly. "He will be there."

He repeats himself. "He will be there."

As he is walking off, he turns around, nods his head, winks and soundlessly mouths, "F-O-U-R."

Suddenly, your resolve is gone. Your hours of work is meaningless. You don't wonder why someone would pick you out to show you this "inside information." You don't wonder why he's limping when he gets on the track.

None of that matters. You have a "hot tip."

"Fifty dollars to win on number 4," you hear yourself telling the teller. She smirks, but you don't care. You are special. You have a "hot tip."

The 7 horse wins and pays $21. The 4 horse broke down on the backstretch and never finished the race.

Cecil is nowhere to be seen.

I learned about Cecil the hard way, too. I didn't like it either. It is not something you tell your friends about. Too embarrassing.

The bottom line is that a strong "gut feeling" comes from hard work and study. It is not communicating with the horses. Not precognition. Not magic.

Most of all, it is certainly not the guy named Cecil.

—Racing— (Continued from Page 1.)

Holly didn't run well in that outing, but has "destroyed" two other fields of horses in recent races.

Temecula Rose is another contender. The horse ran poorly Sept. 23, finishing ninth in a ten-horse field, but won his first time out at Bandera Downs, says Rhine.

A third challenger to the winner's circle is Ishton.

In the Lucky Seven contest, the names of seven track patrons 21 years of age and older who have a valid driver's license will drawn each day starting Friday and they can pick the top seven finishers in the seventh race, says director of publicity Don Rhine.

If one person correctly picks the combination, he or she will win a new truck.

If no one wins before closing day, Dec. 9, a winner will be drawn from all the names of the people who have entered. "The truck will be given away closing day," says Rhine.

The twin trifecta will begin from an empty jackpot as Melvin Wise of New Braunfels came away with $27,258.40 Sunday, Sept. 23.

To win the twin trifecta, a bettor must pick the top three finishers in order in both the fifth and sixth race of the day.

Future activities coming to the track include the beginning of a food drive for the San Antonio Food Bank Oct. 5. Track patrons that bring at least two cans will get free admission and the track will match the number of cans donated.

The Saturday morning workout show resumes Saturday, Oct. 6, and the tentative guest for the 9 a.m. event is jockey Ricky Walker, who will talk about thoroughbred racing and the difference between riding quarter horses and thoroughbreds.

Bandera Pass and present.

Today's traveler entering Bandera County from the north rolls over long-vanished footprints of other wayfarers who also appreciated the scenic views and abundance of the area.

About 11½ miles north of the city of Bandera near the interesection of State Highway 173 and FM Road 2828 drivers speed through a historic gateway to Bandera and old Mexico.

It's Bandera Pass, visible as a distinctive notch in the ridge that is sometimes called Bandera Mountain.

Long before the white man came to Texas, Indians used the pass to cross into one of their favorite hunting grounds along the Medina River. It is believed that Spanish Conquistadores used the natural passage through the hills on their way to search for gold, and settlers and their wagon trains rumbled through the passage on the way to their dreams.

A granite marker on the south side of the pass tells the observer he is on the same path as were the Comanche raiders, armored Spanish soldiers, Texas Rangers, and even Confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee.

There are several tales about how Bandera and the pass got their names. The most popular recalls a fierce battle in the notch around 1732 between Conquistadores and Apache Indians.

When the dust settled, a treaty was signed in which the Indians agreed to never come south of the pass and the Spaniards vowed never to stray north of it.

To signify their agreement, a red flag, or bandera, was placed atop the highest peak of the pass.

About three miles north of the pass is the site of The Great Camel Experiment of the 1860s in which camels were tried by the U.S. Army as a means of transportation through arid regions to the west.

The experiment was abandoned in 1869

The Bandera County Library is home to some 20,000 volumes, and has recently become completely automated, with an in-house computerized catalog.

The collection includes adult's and children's books, a large print collection, a Spanish language book collection, video tapes, and books on audio tape.

Bandera County residents may obtain a library card free of charge, and visitors may check out books on a temporary card with a $10 deposit, according to library director Dr. Jimmie Hughie.

Most materials are available for a two-week checkout period.

Books by mail and interlibrary loan are an added feature.

Library patrons can take advantage of a paperback book exchange, which allows a book to be traded for another in "approximately the same condition," says Hughie.

The library also offers 16-millimeter films and projector for use, a children's story hour, and it sponsors a summer reading program for children.

Hours: Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon.

For additional information, call the Bandera County Library at 796-4213.

They're off

at Bandera Downs.

Staff Photos by Larry T. Williams

Bandera Downs has proven that Texans like pari-mutuel wagering as an average of 10,000 persons bet $1 million each three-day weekend.

The track continues to offer from 10 to 12 quarter horse and thoroughbred races on Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays. The 1990 racing season ends Dec. 9.

Race fans have a good view of the horses as they are saddled by the trainer's crew and mounted by the jockeys in the saddling paddock just behind the grandstand.

The horses are led on a runway underneath the grandstands to the track itself, allowing maximum exposure of the horses to the betting public. The bugle signals the post parade.

Friday is the day for those that want to bet within a small crowd. The crowd averages about 2,500 and the betting ranges from $100 to over $150 a person.

Sunday tends to have the highest attendance with an average 5,300 persons and with the handle, the total amount of money bet by the crowd, easily topping the $400,000 mark.

Post time Friday is 2 p.m. and the gates open at noon. Post time Saturday and Sunday is 1 p.m. and the gates open at 11 a.m. Post time may be earlier as winter approaches. Races are approximately 25 minutes apart.

There are approximately 75 television monitors all over the track, so even people beneath the grandstand can watch the race.

Admission prices start at $2 for general admission or $1 for military persons and senior citizens. Seating for general admission is not reserved and consists of bleachers, theater-style seats, and picnic tables in all areas of the track, including at the rail, in the infield, and beneath the grandstand.

Available seating includes approximately 3,500 seats beneath the grandstands, at the rail, and under tents. Approximately 1,500 can be seated in the infield.

Reserved seating in the covered grandstand is $4 a person. Capacity of the grandstand is 1,800.

The Turf Club Terrace has covered, open air seating with a desk-like area in front of each chair. Tickets are $7 a person and includes food and cocktail service. Capacity is 650.

Find it:

Less than two miles east of Bandera on State Highway 16. Signs clearly point out the track.

The totally enclosed and air conditioned Upper Jockey Club offers reserved seats at restaurant tables, full food and cocktail service for $12 a person. Capacity is 350.

Reserved seating is also available in the Lower Jockey Club for $7 a person and includes full food and cocktail service. The area has restaurant tables, but is in open air beneath the Upper Jockey Club. Capacity is 120.

Group rates are available and persons interested in reserved seats should try to book their reservations in advance.

Parking starts at $1 for general, $3 for preferred, and $6 for valet service.

Programs are $1 each and are needed for the horse numbers in order to bet. Racing forms are $2.50. Tip sheets are from $2 to $5. Programs, racing forms, and tip sheets are available at the track and at various locations in the Bandera and Pipe Creek area.

The track is a ⅞-mile oval with a 550-yard straightaway and a six-furlong chute.

The lure of a big payoff is one of the attractions that keeps drawing bettors to Bandera Downs.

While a bettor can win hundreds of dollars in a longshot quinella or exacta or thousands of dollars in an unexpected trifecta, the twin trifecta, picking three horses in exact order of finish in two races, can have payoffs in the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

A partnership of six men from Houston, San Marcos and San Antonio chaired by Charles E. Lewis of Houston won $206,610 Sept. 8.

They bet an unspecified amount of money rumored to be in the thousands and won 12 exchange tickets on Queenie Dash, Exclusive Competition and Whole Shebang. One of the exchange tickets on Red Storm Rising, Shiney Example and Fashion Request netted the big payoff.

- For a Place bet, your horse must finish first or second.
- For a Show bet, the horse must finish first, second or third.
- The Daily Double consists of picking the winner of the first two races of the day. Payoffs range from $20 to several hundred dollars.
- The Quinella is won by picking the first two top finishers in a race, regardless of their order. The payoff typically ranges from $10 to a $100.
- The Exacta winners select the first- and second-place finishers of a race in exact order of finish. The payoff typically ranges from $20 to $200.
- The Trifecta is won when the bettor picks the first-, second-, and third-place horses in that order of finish. The payoff can be as little as $20 and has been over $4,000.
- The Superfecta is the newest wager at Bandera Downs and should be operating in October. The superfecta is won when the bettor picks the first-, second-, third-, and fourth-place horses in that order of finish. The wager will be offered on one race each day and the jackpot will be distributed that day. If there are no winners, the jackpot will go to the bettors with the first three horses correct.

at Bandera Downs.

Bandera Downs has proven that Texans like pari-mutuel wagering as an average of 10,000 persons bet $1 million each three-day weekend.

The track continues to offer from 10 to 12 quarter horse and thoroughbred races on Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays. The 1990 racing season ends Dec. 9.

Race fans have a good view of the horses as they are saddled by the trainer's crew and mounted by the jockeys in the saddling paddock just behind the grandstand.

The horses are led on a runway underneath the grandstands to the track itself, allowing maximum exposure of the horses to the betting public. The bugle signals the post parade.

Friday is the day for those that want to bet within a small crowd. The crowd averages about 2,500 and the betting ranges from $100 to over $150 a person.

Sunday tends to have the highest attendance with an average 5,300 persons and with the handle, the total amount of money bet by the crowd, easily topping the $400,000 mark.

Post time Friday is 2 p.m. and the gates open at noon. Post time Saturday and Sunday is 1 p.m. and the gates open at 11 a.m. Post time may be earlier as winter approaches. Races are approximately 25 minutes apart.

There are approximately 75 television monitors all over the track, so even people beneath the grandstand can watch the race.

Admission prices start at $2 for general admission or $1 for military persons and senior citizens. Seating for general admission is not reserved and consists of bleachers, theater-style seats, and picnic tables in all areas of the track, including at the rail, in the infield, and beneath the grandstand.

Available seating includes approximately 3,500 seats beneath the grandstands, at the rail, and under tents. Approximately 1,500 can be seated in the infield.

Reserved seating in the covered grandstand is $4 a person. Capacity of the grandstand is 1,800.

The Turf Club Terrace has covered, open air seating with a desk-like area in front of each chair. Tickets are $7 a person and includes food and cocktail service. Capacity is 650.

Find it:

Less than two miles east of Bandera on State Highway 16. Signs clearly point out the track.

The totally enclosed and air conditioned Upper Jockey Club offers reserved seats at restaurant tables, full food and cocktail service for $12 a person. Capacity is 350.

Reserved seating is also available in the Lower Jockey Club for $7 a person and includes full food and cocktail service. The area has restaurant tables, but is in open air beneath the Upper Jockey Club. Capacity is 120.

Group rates are available and persons interested in reserved seats should try to book their reservations in advance.

Parking starts at $1 for general, $3 for preferred, and $6 for valet service.

Programs are $1 each and are needed for the horse numbers in order to bet. Racing forms are $2.50. Tip sheets are from $2 to $5. Programs, racing forms, and tip sheets are available at the track and at various locations in the Bandera and Pipe Creek area.

The track is a ⅜-mile oval with a 550-yard straightaway and a six-furlong chute.

The lure of a big payoff is one of the attractions that keeps drawing bettors to Bandera Downs.

While a bettor can win hundreds of dollars in a longshot quinella or exacta or thousands of dollars in an unexpected trifecta, the twin trifecta, picking three horses in exact order of finish in two races, can have payoffs in the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

A partnership of six men from Houston, San Marcos and San Antonio chaired by Charles E. Lewis of Houston won $206,610 Sept. 8.

They bet an unspecified amount of money rumored to be in the thousands and won 12 exchange tickets on Queenie Dash, Exclusive Competition and Whole Shebang. One of the exchange tickets on Red Storm Rising, Shiney Example and Fashion Request netted the big payoff.

The winning combinations.

- For a Win bet, your horse must come in first to be paid.
- For a Place bet, your horse must finish first or second.
- For a Show bet, the horse must finish first, second or third.
- The Daily Double consists of picking the winner of the first two races of the day. Payoffs range from $20 to several hundred dollars.
- The Quinella is won by picking the first two top finishers in a race, regardless of their order. The payoff typically ranges from $10 to a $100.

The artifact is....

The Frontier Times Museum began as a private collection of journalist-historian J. Marvin Hunter, founder of the Bandera Bulletin

The Frontier Times Museum began as a private collection of old west and pioneer artifacts belonging to the late J.M. Hunter Sr. The 40,000 piece collection includes some rare artifacts and even some prehistoric items.

The museum has been jointly owned by the citizens of Bandera County since 1972, and depends solely on private donations for its support and receives no city or county funds. It is operated on behalf of the local citizens by a board of directors, 25 people from different backgrounds and different areas of the county.

In addition to the museum's permanent displays, rotating exhibits are presented in the Doane gallery, featuring a different area artist each month. Watercolors, leatherwork, needlework, quilting, oil painting and ceramics are a few of the types of art exhibited.

The Exhibits...

The Louisa Gordon Collection contains a full-size totem pole, many items of oriental art and a fabulous collection of 400 bells from all parts of the world.

The bells range from Russian sleigh bells, elephant and camel bells, and a Siamese dancer's collar and necklace to a Chinese gong from the Ming dynasty.

The oldest bell in the collection is a gong from China's Han dynasty, 207 B.C. to 220 A.D.

One of the more unusual items in the Gordon collection is a throne chair from the Doge's Palace in Venice, Italy. This ornately-carved chair of Circassian walnut is over 400 years old, and was used by the royalty of Europe when they visited the Doge, or chief magistrate of Venice, to pay their respects.

Perhaps the rarest item in the collection is a reincarnation plate which comes from the Krishna temple in Benares, India, the birthplace of Hinduism.

The plate, intricately carved in silver, copper and brass, was used by the Hindu priests to teach their followers the cyclic theory of reincarnation.

The Charles Fagan Collection includes many items of South American origin, including a 400-year-old pair of brass conquistador stirrups, a porcupine fish, a wooden idol from Easter Island, an iguana lizard, an alligator tooth necklace and two shrunken heads.

The heads were shrunken by the Jivaro Indians, a tribal people living in the jungles of southeastern Ecuador and northern Peru. They carry on blood feuds among themselves, and in order to prevent the spirits of their dead enemies from inhabiting their bodies, they perform an elaborate ceremony that involves the shrinking of their victim's head.

Many of the museum's artifacts come from Texas and the southwestern United States. Among the pioneer items are assorted tools, saddles, furniture, weapons and clothing.

Tarpley's old telephone switchboard, used from the 1930s to the mid-1960s, several early model telephones, music boxes from the 1880s, an early permanent wave machine, a primitive baby incubator and a full-sized replica steam engine are among the many artifacts at the Frontier Times Museum.

Find it:

Two blocks behind the courthouse on 13th Street.

The oldest artifact is a sample of fiber netting used by prehistoric man who lived in the Chisos Mountains of the Big Bend territory nearly 3,000 years ago.

A camel hair pillow that belonged to Bandera County pioneer Amasa Clark, who was a camel herder during the 1850s "great Camp Verde camel experiment" can be found at the museum.

Clark secured enough camel hair to stuff a mattress and two pillows. The mattress eventually fell apart, and one of the pillows was placed in Clark's coffin when he died at age 101. The other came to the Frontier Times Museum.

Frontier Times Museum is visited by over 12,000 people from around the world each year, and is open every day of the week. Hours are from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and 1-4:30 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $1 for adults, 25 cents for students, and children under age 6 are admitted free.

Tracking the past.

The tracks are on private property, but the owner doesn't mind folks visiting them. Just don's litter, so those after you can enjoy them too.

Evidence of pre-historic life including dinosaur tracks are found in several places in Bandera County.

The bi-pedal creatures that several million years ago left their imprints in Hondo Creek near Tarpley were placed there by a group of large, upright walking meat-eaters referred to as carnosaurs, according to a pair of amateur ichnologists R.J. Hastings of Waxahatchie and Glen J. Kuban of Ohio who studied the markings during the summer of 1989.

The tracks are located on the property of W.J."Willie" Schmidt who lives across the stream. Schmidt says he doesn't mind folks visiting the tracks, but he asks that they not litter his attractionso the next people along can enjoy it also.

Drive south from Tarpley on FM Road 462 for about a mile-and-a-half and follow the signs.

Park in the pull-off space provided and slip through the narrow opening in the fence and hike the few steps to the creek. There, stretched out to the south, is a veritable stampede of ancient prints, forever preserved in the stone bed of the watercourse.

On your way back to your car you might drop a friendly donation into the lockbox provided to show your thanks for the view into the past. The collections help with the upkeep and maintainance of the site.

Schmidt's tracks are not the only ones in Bandera County, but the others are not generally accessible to the public. Bandera is one of 13 counties in the state with marks left by the giant beasts, and the rock where the tracks are found is similar. It's all part of a huge ocean shore line that once ran from what is now west of Fort Worth to Austin and then down to San Antonio, Bandera, and Laredo.

Silver Sage Corral senior center.

It's not just for senior citizens, and visitors are welcome at most activities held there.

It is becoming known state-wide for its excellence, and has been studied as a model for other centers. Recent building additions have enlarged the center, and often there are several activities going on simultaneously.

One "big plus" of the Silver Sage Corral is the people and the friendly atmosphere. There is great diversity of backgrounds among the participants, and native Banderans and "old-timers" gather with recent retirees and visitors to the area.

Many younger people participate in activities at the Silver Sage Corral, though senior citizens are given first priority.

Bandera's senior center was founded almost 13 years ago, and in 1984 they broke ground for the facility where the Silver Sage Corral is currently located. It was dedicated in April of 1985.

A variety of available activities includes puzzling, quilting and games for drop-ins, and a wide assortment of classes such as conversational Spanish, needle crafts, weaving, drawing and sketching. A low impact exercise group meets three times a week, and there are several days when there are musical activities going on.

The Medina River is a popular avenue for canoeists and tubists

Float like a butterfly

The tree-lined Medina River in Bandera County has become an increasingly popular avenue for canoeists and is especially pleasant during the spring and fall seasons when water flow is sufficient for good paddling.

Under normal water flow conditions the spring-fed river provides a good mixture of class one and two rapids separated by deep pools of emerald green that are perfect for the water rat who wants to up his skill level and have a fun weekend paddling too. If the kids are not too small and can swim, the cool, cypress shaded glades and glass-smooth pools offer a fine opportunity for a family outing also.

Public access to the Medina River can be found adjacent to several bridges on State Highway 16 from approximately four miles West of Medina city to the park bridge in Bandera. The park is also a good place to take out should one enter the river further up.

Two of the more popular launch points upstream of Bandera are the bridge four miles east of Medina and the Camp Bandina crossing. These two points do not offer any camping space however, as both are surrounded by private property.

Another site with camping but no facilities is Moffit Park in Medina.

A good mid-way camp for a two-day trip is Ranger Crossing roadside park west of Bandera on 16. There are picnic tables and lots of space but again no facilities. A smaller roadside park is located about a mile further down on FM Road 470.

The river is full of exciting rapids.

Should canoeists want to venture below Bandera, exit points are limited to English Crossing and Ruede's camp near the mouth of Medina Lake.

In high water, the Medina River can be dangerous. Writers Ben Nolan and Bob Narramore state in their Texas Rivers and Rapids state that the Medina "should not be considered by a family group that has small children or by parties who haven't had white water experience, especially at above normal water levels."

They are well founded in their caution for the river is full of tight, swift, rock-filled rapids. Also, since the flood of 1978 the channels have a great many fallen trees that at times generate difficult obstacles.

More information, water conditions, shuttle service and canoe rentals can be found at Fred Collins Workshop just west of Bandera on Highway 16 or by calling 796-3553.

A Church in the wildwood.

The serenity of the site of the 100-year-old chapel erected by pioneer Jose Policarpo Rodriguez east of Bandera befits the historic and religious importance of the place.

Polly's Chapel has a medallion and plaque designating it as an officially recorded Texas landmark. It has been recommended and is a candidate for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Sites of the U.S. Department of Interior.

The hand-hewn native rock place of worship is sometimes spelled "Poli's Chapel."

• Built in 1882 by Jose Policarpo Rodriguez, a man identified by historians as a dreamer, fearless doer and possibly the most towering figure in the history of the Hill Country. He was also an Indian fighter, scout, frontier guide and surveyer.

He was a central figure in the U.S. Cavalry's bizarre camel corps at Camp Verde near Bandera Pass. When the Civil War ended the camel experiment, Polly decided to stay in the area, having acquired land on nearby Privilege Creek in 1858 where he became devoted to the well-being of the Privilege Creek community and to the church he built there.

The Medina River is a popular avenue for canoeists and tubists

Float like a butterfly

The tree-lined Medina River in Bandera County has become an increasingly popular avenue for canoeists and is especially pleasant during the spring and fall seasons when water flow is sufficient for good paddling.

Under normal water flow conditions the spring-fed river provides a good mixture of class one and two rapids separated by deep pools of emerald green that are perfect for the water rat who wants to up his skill level and have a fun weekend paddling too. If the kids are not too small and can swim, the cool, cypress shaded glades and glass-smooth pools offer a fine opportunity for a family outing also.

Country pedaling at its finest.

Bandera County has become an increasingly popular arena for recreational cyclists, and there's good reason for it.

The scenery here is unrivaled anywhere in the state, the Hill Country climate is cooler in the summer, and the air is as pristine as you'll find in the U.S.

Add to those advantages a good farm-to-market road and state highway system that is relatively little traveled by motorized vehicles and is a nice blend of fast-paced flats, challenging climbs and breathtaking descents.

The Branders Tour of Texas, the largest pro-am international bicycle stage race in the U.S., knows that. It picked the roads of Bandera County for two of its nine stages in 1990 and is now considering making the area an even more important part of the annual race.

The cycling is good in Bandera County the year-round. Maps are available at the Bandera County Chamber of Commerce and there are convenience stores, super markets, restaurants, RV parks, hotels and guest ranches to cater to your needs. There are no bicycle shops, however, so be prepared to make your own repairs.

Much of Bandera's charm can be experienced in short hikes around town. This one from courthouse to courthouse should please anyone on foot or on bicycle

1. The old jail building next to Bandera Ice House. The 1881 building was designed by noted English architect Alfred Giles and built by James A. Courtney. The building currently houses the Springhills Water Management District office and Bandera County offices. The jail portion of the building is used as a conference room, and the crudely-carved initials of prisoners are still visible. The building, a recorded Texas Historical Landmark and on the National Register, can be toured when it's open.

2. The old courthouse stands next to the jail. It was built by Henry White as a store in 1865 and purchased by Bandera County in 1877 and used as a courthouse up until a short 100 years ago. It currently houses the offices of a peace justice and the Bandera County Extension Service. Recorded Texas Historical Landmark and on the National Register.

3. The Carmichael and Hay Store, now the Bandera Ranch Store, was built in 1868 out of limestone by Henry White and operated as a general store. Building lays claim to the oldest elevator west of San Antonio.

4. Fred Thalmann Marker was placed at the site next to the pecan tree 1949 to honor the early leader in the local wool industry.

5. Huffmeyer Store was built in 1873 by B.F. Langford for Emil Huffmeyer. Currently houses the Trading Post and Shoe Biz. Recorded Texas Historic Landmark.

6. The two-story Old First National Bank at 309 Main Street was built in 1875 and currently houses Harvey's Old Bank Steak House. It was built of limestone by W.J. (Short Bill) Davenport and operated as a private bank for several years.

7. Lee Risinger Store was the second home of Bandera's First State Bank. It currently houses Everett's store, Bo's Rodeo and Ranch Shop, which is adjacent to Everett's, was Cox Hall and Bandera's first theater.

8. Stein's of Bandera at 306 11th Street was built in 1908 and first housed the feed store of Henry and Tom Stevens. Later was the B.F. Langford and Son Hardware Store. The Langfords also operated a funeral parlor there. Eleventh Street was the original Main Street of Bandera.

9. Old Blacksmith Shop at 305 11th Street was built in the 1850s and is one of the oldest stone buildings in Bandera. It was used by John James and Charles de Montel when they were laying out the town. It was used by the Methodist Church in the mid-1860s. It was B.F. Langford's cabinet shop during the 1870s. Later it became a blacksmith and wheelwright shop and a doctor's office. Currently houses Cactus Patch II.

10. M. Boyle Store was built in 1908 as a frame building with a false front. Established by Irish immigrant brothers, it was an active turn-of-the-century business. It currently houses the Bandera Hill Country Imports.

11. Bandera's first bank building, having originally housed the First State Bank building at the corner of 11th and Cedar streets, was built about 1860 on a Republic of Texas land grant and made from hand-cut native rock. The old two-story rock building was used for a school between 1860 and 1879. In the 1880s it was known as Bandera Institute operated by a Professor Ryan, thought by some to be fugitive John Wilkes Booth. Recorded Texas Historic Landmark. It currently houses financial offices and the upper story is Bandera's Old Main Street Bed and Breakfast.

12. Bandera United Methodist Church at the corner of Hackberry and 11th streets was originally a frame building built in 1867 and was later replaced by a stone structure that has been enlarged. Andrew "Fighting Jack" Potter was the first Methodist minister in this area. Recorded Texas Historic Landmark and United Methodist Church national historic site.

13. The Bandera Senior Citizens Center, or the Silver Sage Corral, is a modern building that houses a bustling of activity of Bandera's older set.

14. Carmichael Home at the corner of Hackberry and 10th streets was built in 1890 by H.H. Carmichael, a graduate of Columbia University. The Missouri man came to Texas, married Mary E. Risinger of Helena in 1876, and moved to Bandera too establish a business in the present Ranch Store building.

15. Bandera County Library at Main and Pecan was built in 1934 as a WPA project of the Great Depression era. Remodeled in 1970s, the bottom floor currently houses state offices.

16. Bandera County Courthouse at Hackberry and Pecan Streets celebrates its 100th birthday this year. It was designed by B.F. Trester Jr., work stared by Ed Braden and Son of San Antonio was completed by E. Huffmeyer, a local merchant and contractor. Stone for the building was quarried locally and laid by itinerant Russian stonemasons. The building has had a wing added on the Hackberry Street side. Recorded Texas Historic Landmark and on the National Register.

17. First Baptist Church at North Pecan was built in 1980, but originally the entire block was bought in 1883 and given to the church by F.L. Hicks in 1884. The old church was completed in 1908 and later replaced by the present structure.

18. Frontier Times Museum at 506 13th Street was built in 1933 by frontier journalist-historian, J. Marvin Hunter, to house collections of Texana. Maintained by Frontier Times Museum, Inc. a non-profit institution. A modest admission fee for a remarkable display of historic items. Local art is displayed with a new display each month. Recorded Texas Historic Landmark.

19. William J. Davenport House at 1506 Pecan was built in 1910 from wood vernacular with classical elements, two-story washerboard frame house; gable projecting bay on side; two-tier porch with simple Ionic columns.

You are now just a block from whence you began.

It's Utopia

Sabinal Canyon Museum.

The Sabinal Canyon Museum in Utopia preserves the history of the west end of Bandera County and Utopia dating back to its first permanent white settlers in 1852.

The 1,200 square-foot facility in Utopia on State Highway 187 exhibits pistols, farm implements, clothing, appliances, spurs, photographs, tools, household items, barbed wire, and knick-knacks, primarily from the 1850-1920s.

The museum is generally open on weekends.

While Utopia is in Uvalde County, much of the Sabinal Canyon area is in Bandera County, along the beautiful drive that is State Highway 187.

The museum displays a picture of the first store and post office in Waresville, the town that proceeded Utopia, and the old rock store, the first business built in Utopia.

An arrowhead and Indian artifact collection on permanent loan from The University of Texas at Austin is also part of the museum.

Lost, but not forgotten.

Three trees in Lost Maples State Natural Area near Vanderpool are listed in the 1990 "National Register of Big Trees," a Texas Parks and Wildlife Department official said.

The trees are an escarpment choke cherry, a Texas ash and a bigtooth maple.

"The trees can be seen easily from the Maple Trail (in the park)," said park superintendent Roy Heideman. "In fact, two are only a few feet from the trail."

The Maple Trail leads from the park's parking lot along a small stream and through a wooded canyon.

The escarpment choke cherry has a 64-inch circumference, 40-foot crown, and is 65 feet tall.

The Texas ash has a 54-inch circumference, 47-foot crown, and is 66 feet tall.

The bigtooth maple, the tree that gives the park its name, has a 64-inch circumference, 40-foot crown, and is 65 feet tall. The tree is also known as a canyon maple.

Lost Maples State Natural Area is a combination of steep, rugged limestone canyons, springs, plateau grasslands, wooded slopes and clear streams known for its unusual stand of bigtooth maples.

The species is believed to have survived in protected canyons in the park after the Pleistocene Ice Age.

Because the park is devoted to resource preservation, development has been confined to fields that had been cultivated and roads that had been cleared before the park was established. Campsites are clustered in an old meadow near the park's entrance.

The Maple Trail extends beyond the developed area of the park and is marked by wayside plaques that help hikers identify trees and other aspects of the canyon. Natural stepping stones cross the creek and benches are set among the trees.

Backpackers can hike 10 miles of rustic and, at times, strenuous canyon trails and can camp overnight at any of eight designated primitive camping areas.

RV campsites have water, electricity, a grill and a shaded table within walking distance of a restroom and hot showers.

Lost Maples State Natural Area has gained a reputation for its beautiful fall scenic splendor. Every year, from all across the United States and other parts of the world, people flock to the site near Vanderpool in hopes of catching the bigtooth or canyon maples as they create an extravagant display of color.

The trees are abundant, not only in the park but in the surrounding canyons. Spectacular hues ranging from fiery reds and oranges to muted yellow and gold draw scenery lovers from far and near.

Usually, the seasonal display of colors occurs sometime during the time from mid-October to middle or late November, and this year Heideman said cool, dry weather during the rest of September and October will increase the chances for a really spectacular fall foliage display.

"There's always some color change, but it varies from year to year in amount and intensity, depending on weather conditions," Heideman said, emphasizing the need for cool, dry weather.

Because of its unique features and biological significance, the area was designated a National Natural Landmark by the Heritage Conservation and Reclamation Service in 1980.

Development of the park has been consistent with conservation goals, according to Heideman. Recent improvements include electrical hookups added to the 30 campsites, and shade shelters built over the campsite picnic tables. Campsites are available for daytime and overnight use.

The park's headquarters are open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. weekends. Day use permits are $2 per vehicle and are good until 10 p.m. There is no charge to senior citizens for daytime use of the park.

Currently general camping is $9 per night, plus vehicle entrance fee. Primitive camping is $4 per night plus vehicle entrance fee.

Reservations are recommended, as campsites and facilities are limited. For more information, call 966-3413.

Lost, but not forgotten.

Three trees in Lost Maples State Natural Area near Vanderpool are listed in the 1990 "National Register of Big Trees," a Texas Parks and Wildlife Department official said.

The trees are an escarpment choke cherry, a Texas ash and a bigtooth maple.

"The trees can be seen easily from the Maple Trail (in the park)," said park superintendent Roy Heideman. "In fact, two are only a few feet from the trail."

The Maple Trail leads from the park's parking lot along a small stream and through a wooded canyon.

The escarpment choke cherry has a 64-inch circumference, 40-foot crown, and is 65 feet tall.

The Texas ash has a 54-inch circumference, 47-foot crown, and is 66 feet tall.

The bigtooth maple, the tree that gives the park its name, has a 64-inch circumference, 40-foot crown, and is 65 feet tall. The tree is also known as a canyon maple.

Lost Maples State Natural Area is a combination of steep, rugged limestone canyons, springs, plateau grasslands, wooded slopes and clear streams known for its unusual stand of bigtooth maples.

The species is believed to have survived in protected canyons in the park after the Pleistocene Ice Age.

Because the park is devoted to resource preservation, development has been confined to fields that had been cultivated and roads that had been cleared before the park was established. Campsites are clustered in an old meadow near the park's entrance.

The Maple Trail extends beyond the developed area of the park and is marked by wayside plaques that help hikers identify trees and other aspects of the canyon. Natural stepping stones cross the creek and benches are set among the trees.

Backpackers can hike 10 miles of rustic and, at times, strenuous canyon trails and can camp overnight at any of eight designated primitive camping areas.

RV campsites have water, electricity, a grill and a shaded table within walking distance of a restroom and hot showers.

Lost Maples State Natural Area has gained a reputation for its beautiful fall scenic splendor. Every year, from all across the United States and other parts of the world, people flock to the site near Vanderpool in hopes of catching the bigtooth or canyon maples as they create an extravagant display of color.

The trees are abundant, not only in the park but in the surrounding canyons. Spectacular hues ranging from fiery reds and oranges to muted yellow and gold draw scenery lovers from far and near.

Usually, the seasonal display of colors occurs sometime during the time from mid-October to middle or late November, and this year Heideman said cool, dry weather during the rest of September and October will increase the chances for a really spectacular fall foliage display.

"There's always some color change, but it varies from year to year in amount and intensity, depending on weather conditions," Heideman said, emphasizing the need for cool, dry weather.

Because of its unique features and biological significance, the area was designated a National Natural Landmark by the Heritage Conservation and Reclamation Service in 1980.

The right Angler.

By James Henry Frazar

Medina Lake's crystal clear water abounds with a variety of fish including black, white, and hybrid striped bass, and crappie, catfish, and perch.

Because Medina Lake's water is so clear, fishermen must work it a little harder to lure the fish to their hooks.

Fishing is generally best off the many points, places that used to be the beginning of a hill before the dam was built and water filled the reservior. Fish look for changes in the underwater landscape, and those changes are most likely around the points.

Coves are also another good place. Coves have brush that bait fish congregate around and where there is bait fish, there is game fish.

Depth is also an important consideration. Fish will feed at different depths, deeping on the seasonal temperatures as well as the daily temperature.

During the fall, fish are likely to be nearer the surface and at shallow depths as long as it is cool. When winter comes, they'll head deep again for the warmer water.

Largemouth bass

The largemouth or black bass remains the most popular fishing target in Medina Lake.

While a game fish, the largemouth bass is the largest member of the sunfish family. It is generally dark green in color and with its large mouth feeds on sunfish and shad.

The fish likes to hang around brush cover or along dropoffs between deep and shallow areas in the lake. The black bass is generally most active when the temperature is 65 to 75 degrees.

Spinner baits, crankbaits, and top-water lures all work to bring the largemouth into the fisherman or fisherwoman's hands, but the artificial worm remains the most popular lure with a plastic grub making inroads into tackle boxes.

Purple remains a popular color for plastic worms, but newer colors are being used for worms and grubs, including chartreuse (a yellow-green combination), creme (pearl or off-white), pumpkinseed (yellowish or amber with black flakes), motor oil (green that looks, appropriately enough, like motor oil), and June Bug (brown, like the insect, of course).

Smallmouth bass

Smallmouth bass are highly adapted to Medina Lake because of its deep water, rocky ledges, and clear water.

The smallmouth, which is not as deep-bodied as the largemouth and grow to only half its size, tends to stay away from vegetation is generally found in deeper water than the largemouth.

The smallmouth is not a native to Texas waters, but has been stocked by the Texas Parks and Wildlife in Medina Lake.

Hybrid stripers

The popular hybrid striped bass is in Medina Lake, but it strikes hard and quick, and unless an angler is prepared, the fish will get away before the he or she knows what happened.

Hybrid stripers are a cross between the female striped bass and the male white bass. The fish has a silvery-white coloration with narrow, ragged, black stripes.

Stripers are generally found in 25 to 35 feet of water near dropoffs in Medina Lake.

The fish feeds on shad, so any lure that looks like the silver bait fish should be good for stripers.

Stripers like the light and may become active around lights suspended over the lake, though they'll still be in deep water.

White bass

White bass range in size from one to three pounds in Medina Lake and can be recognized by the two-part dorsal fin.

White bass are caught mainly on minnows when they are not spawning.

White bass begin to spawn in late February and in March when the weather gets warmer. White bass normally head up stream, but this coming year, like last, the white bass may have to spawn around points in the Medina Lake and river levels remain low.

The white bass run, a product of breeding, begins when it starts getting warm in the spring, about mid March in 1989.

During the spawning season, the most effective combination is a top water lure and jig with a quick-jerk action retrieve. One usually successful angler removes the lower treble hook and propellor from a top water lure called "Ting Torpedo" and ties a line of about six to seven feet and a 1/32 ounce yellow-skirted, red-headed crappie jig.

He casts the lure-combination and reels it back with quick six- to ten-inch strokes. If the white bass are "running" in the area, 50 fish can be taken in a few hours.

Crappie

Medina Lake has white crappie, a member of the sunfish family with a silvery-green shading to a darker green along its back and several vertical dark bars on either side.

Crappie, like white bass, range in size from one to two pounds in Medina Lake.

To fish for crappie at night, shine a light into the deep, brushy water and drop a hook baited with a live minnow to about two feet above the brush pile. The light attracts bait fish, and the crappie will come up to catch them.

Catfish

Medina Lake has three types of catfish: blue, channel, and flathead cats.

Catfish can be caught from the bank using chicken liver, frozen shrimp, night crawlers, live minnows or stinkbait.

But most catfish are caught on trotlines in Medina Lake. Sunfish, or perch, are a good bait for trotlines, and they should be placed along a channel where catfish are likely to travel.

Sunfish

Medina Lake has red-ear sunfish, bluegill sunfish, warmouth sunfish, and the green sunfish. All are popularly known as perch.

While many anglers distain perch, they're good to catch in a family outing.

To catch perch, find a place where there's a "change," like a pile of rocks or brush. Perch have to be found, and fishermen have to try different areas. But once you find one, you'll almost always find more, because perch come in schools. Try worms and the traditional cane pole for perch.

Let's do launch.

A guide to getting your boat wet.

Medina Lake is very much a "boat" lake and many patrons of the freshwater waves haul their boats to Medina Lake and need a spot to launch their boats.

But there are ways to get to the water without a boat.

Goat Hill Camp, down Goat Hill Road (19th Street in Lakehills) off Park Road 37, boatsmen can launch boats straight down the shore's gradual decline to the water level. Fishing, camping and picnicking are also available. 751-2072.

Lakeside Lounge also offers a place to fish along Park Road 37. 751-2129.

The state boat ramp at the end of the Park Road 37 is open to the public, but it is to be used officially for boat launching only. Many people picnic, swim, and fish from its shoreline, however. Use of the boat ramp site for anything but boat launching is illegal and there are absolutely no facilities for a day's outing.

However, Bandera County is working with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to upgrade the ramp that is incorrectly termed the "state park" by many persons.

Past the state boat ramp and continuing on a winding county road is Bob's Cove. Boat launching is available along with camping, picnicking, swimming, bait, picnic supplies, and one covered and one open-air party pavilion. Phone 751-9923.

In Mico, Red Cove on the Medina Dam Road is launching boats. They have fishing supplies, bait and short orders. Boat launching is offered on a 24-hour basis. 751-2715.

Cedar Point Landing at Medina Dam has opened its boat launching facility in September after fill material was brought in to upgrade their old ramp. Picnicking and fishing are offered. Fishing supplies and bait are available. 751-3115.

The Lackland AFB Outdoor Recreation Center in Mico is limited to active and retired military, DOD civilians, reservists, and National Guard personnel. The low lake level forced closing of its two boat ramps. 751-3444 in Bandera County, 671-2366 from San Antonio.

Other places that will be able to launch boats once the water level comes up include Wharton's Dock (796-7445) south of Bandera, Pop's Place (535-4366) south of Pipe Creek, and Cedar Point Landing at Medina Dam in Mico.

Medina Lake abounds in game fish. The trick is finding them, of course.

There's a limit.

Largemouth black bass and smallmouth bass in Medina Lake must be a minimum of 14 inches long to keep. The maximum one-day bag limit is five, with 10 in possession in the aggregate.

Hybrid stripers must be at least 18 inches long. Daily bag limit is five and in the possession limit is 15 in the aggregate.

White bass and crappie must be at least 10 inches long. Daily bag limit is 25 and the possession limit is 50.

Channel and blue catfish must be at least 9 inches long. The daily bag limit is 25 and 50 in possession.

Flathead catfish also must be at least 9 inches long, but the daily bag limit is only five and the possession limit is 10.

To measure a fish, lay the fish on its side with the jaw closed, says the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. Squeeze the tail fin together or turn it in a way to obtain the maximum overall length. Measure a straight line from the tip of the snout to the extreme tip of the tail fin.

If a fish is too small, or if you are releasing fish today so there will be better fishing in the future, the TPW recommends these steps when practical:

- Quickly play the fish to the boat.
- Keep the fish in the water as much as possible.
- Remove hook with pliers or cut the line.
- After measuring, revive the fish by holding it upright in water and moving back and forth, forcing water through its gills. Then let it swim away.

Medina Lake is very much a "boat" lake and many patrons of the freshwater waves haul their boats to Medina Lake and need a spot to launch their boats.

But there are ways to get to the water without a boat.

Goat Hill Camp, down Goat Hill Road (19th Street in Lakehills) off Park Road 37, boatsmen can launch boats straight down the shore's gradual decline to the water level. Fishing, camping and picnicking are also available. 751-2072.

Lakeside Lounge also offers a place to fish along Park Road 37. 751-2129.

The state boat ramp at the end of the Park Road 37 is open to the public, but it is to be used officially for boat launching only. Many people picnic, swim, and fish from its shoreline, however. Use of the boat ramp site for anything but boat launching is illegal and there are absolutely no facilities for a day's outing.

However, Bandera County is working with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to upgrade the ramp that is incorrectly termed the "state park" by many persons.

Past the state boat ramp and continuing on a winding county road is Bob's Cove. Boat launching is available along with camping, picnicking, swimming, bait, picnic supplies, and one covered and one open-air party pavilion. Phone 751-9923.

In Mico, Red Cove on the Medina Dam Road is launching boats. They have fishing supplies, bait and short orders. Boat launching is offered on a 24-hour basis. 751-2715.

Cedar Point Landing at Medina Dam has opened its boat launching facility in September after fill material was brought in to upgrade their old ramp. Picnicking and fishing are offered. Fishing supplies and bait are available. 751-3115.

The Lackland AFB Outdoor Recreation Center in Mico is limited to active and retired military, DOD civilians, reservists, and National Guard personnel. The low lake level forced closing of its two boat ramps. 751-3444 in Bandera County, 671-2366 from San Antonio.

Other places that will be able to launch boats once the water level comes up include Wharton's Dock (796-7445) south of Bandera, Pop's Place (535-4366) south of Pipe Creek, and Cedar Point Landing at Medina Dam in Mico.

Medina Lake abounds in game fish. The trick is finding them, of course.

There's a limit.

Largemouth black bass and smallmouth bass in Medina Lake must be a minimum of 14 inches long to keep. The maximum one-day bag limit is five, with 10 in possession in the aggregate.

Hybrid stripers must be at least 18 inches long. Daily bag limit is five and in the possession limit is 15 in the aggregate.

White bass and crappie must be at least 10 inches long. Daily bag limit is 25 and the possession limit is 50.

Channel and blue catfish must be at least 9 inches long. The daily bag limit is 25 and 50 in possession.

Flathead catfish also must be at least 9 inches long, but the daily bag limit is only five and the possession limit is 10.

To measure a fish, lay the fish on its side with the jaw closed, says the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. Squeeze the tail fin together or turn it in a way to obtain the maximum overall length. Measure a straight line from the tip of the snout to the extreme tip of the tail fin.

If a fish is too small, or if you are releasing fish today so there will be better fishing in the future, the TPW recommends these steps when practical:

- Quickly play the fish to the boat.
- Keep the fish in the water as much as possible.
- Remove hook with pliers or cut the line.
- After measuring, revive the fish by holding it upright in water and moving back and forth, forcing water through its gills. Then let it swim away.

Good caliber Hunting.

Rifles, pistols or shotguns. They can all be used by bag a Bandera County buck or doe in season. Hunting Season open Nov. 3 and runs through Jan. 6.

Rifles, shotguns, and pistols can be used to hunt deer. Most work; some, like a .22 caliber, don't.

But by and large, the type of gun to use depends on the environment, which generally means short distances in the Hill Country. Also to be considered is windage and elevation on long shots.

The rifle a hunter uses depends on the range he needs to shoot. Shotguns are good at 35 yards, short-range rifles work at 50 yards, but beyond 100 yards, a large caliber, long-range rifle with a scope is needed.

For Hill Country hunting, a rifle suited for thick-cover is needed. Because of the numerous trees and brush, the distance of most shots is limited. Rifles such as a .30, .358, and .44 caliber have a larger bore and a slower speed of the bullet. But these guns are well suited to the Hill Country because they are light to carry and can be pulled up quickly for a shot, says Hill Country hunter Will Honeycutt.

A .22 caliber pistol or rifle should not be used for deer hunting, says Honeycutt. A .22 doesn't have instantaneous kill, he adds. "The bullet goes in, the hole (formed by the bullet) closes down, and the animal runs off and dies weeks later." Use of a .22 caliber will cause more wounded and maimed animals, he adds.

But there is no law to stop a person from using a .22, just good sense.

Long-range rifles are suitable when there is open country, such as up to a half mile. Rifles included in this range are magnums, such as .300, .270, and .264 calibers as well as 7 millimeter rifles, and .30-06 rifles.

Pistols can be used, but need to be of the larger caliber variety such as .357, .41, and .44 caliber. A scope is also recommended for handguns, says Honeycutt.

Shotguns with large size buckshot can also be used at close range.

According to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, shotguns are legal for hunting deer, but pellet guns or other air guns are not.

One other matter to consider when hunting is how much elevation a bullet drops over its range. A bullet starts to drops after 100 yards, theoretically, says Honeycutt.

After 300 to 400 yards, elevation and wind become critical factors, says Honeycutt. Factors to consider on long shots are the caliber of the weapon, length of the barrel, wind, terrain, and visibility.

Habit and instinct

Deer are creatures of habit and instinct like most other mammals. Just because you put deer corn out doesn't mean the deer will herd to that location. Other factors to consider are territorial instincts of bucks and how they run.

Deer need to feel confident that a feeding location is safe. On the first day of deer season is no time to convince a deer of security.

Starting at least a month prior to the season, decide your hunting location and set up deer feeders and deer blocks. The deer need to know where to come. It will take a while, but they'll discover it. Keep the site stocked with corn and deer a block.

The deer block, besides being a secondary feeding source, will continue if the feeder runs out of corn while you're gone.

Other observations to remember is the rut: when bucks chase does. Normally bucks are in fully into the mating season in November. In a rut, bucks will be fighting for a herd of does.

Note herds of does. Where there's a herd, there will be at least one buck in charge and another buck ready to challenge.

When deer enter a field, they will search for unusual scents. They are experts in detecting even the most subtle smells. They can detect cigarette smoke, deodorant, deodorant soap, aftershave lotion, toothpaste and breath mints.

A deer's hearing is also acute. Be it a camera or a rifle, once they hear that click, they're gone.

The seasons

Hunters in Bandera County can harvest up to four deer this hunting season that starts Nov. 3.

Long gone are the days when a hunter could only shoot does or antlerless bucks (spikes) without a special permit.

The current hunting regulations allow four deer to be taken by hunters from Saturday, Nov. 3, to Sunday, Jan. 6.

A hunter is limited to two bucks and no special permit is required for antlerless deer, that is, does or spikes.

The shooting hours for all game animals are one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset.

The turkey season is divided into two halves and hunters are restricted to a total of three turkeys in both seasons.

The fall season begins Nov. 3 and continues through Jan. 6, coinciding with the deer season. Two gobblers or bearded hens may be taken.

The spring season lasts from April 6 through May 5 and the hunter is limited to two gobblers. No bearded hens may be taken during the spring season.

According to the regulations, a hunter can only take three turkeys between Sept. 1, 1990 and Aug. 31, 1991, meaning that persons who hunt both seasons can only shoot one turkey in one half.

For those that hunt by archery, the deer and turkey season encompasses all 31 days of October.

The season is open on javelina all year long, but a hunter is allowed to take only two per year.

The squirrel season is also open all year long and there is no bag limit.

Quail season is Nov. 3 through Feb. 24 and the daily bag limit is 15 and the possession limit is 45.

The mourning dove season in Bandera County is from Sept. 1 to Oct. 24 and Jan. 5 through Jan. 20. Shooting hours are one-half hour before sunrise to sunset. Bag limit is 12 and possession limit is 24. Only shotguns of 10 gauge or smaller can be used to kill doves.

Hawks, owls, and eagles are off limits for hunting and are protected by state and federal laws. In fact, the only birds that are not protected by any state or federal law are the English sparrow, European starling, and the feral rock dove (domestic pigeon).

When hunting or fishing, persons 17 years of age or older must carry on their person a driver's license or personal identification certificate as well as their hunting or fishing license.

Before you go fishing or hunting, be sure to check your fishing license, because unless you possess a lifetime license or are a minor or a senior citizen, all annual licenses expire Aug. 31.

Fishing licenses are needed for most people from 17 years of age to 65. They cost $8 for Texas residents and are good from Sept. 1, 1990 to Aug. 31, 1991.

A hunting license is needed by everyone who hunts. Regular licenses are $10 and a special license is $6 for Texas residents younger than 17 years of age or 65 years of age and older, and certain disabled veterans.

A combination resident fishing and hunting license is available for $15. There are also licenses available for out-of-state visitors and lifetime licenses.

It is unlawful to fish under the license of another, or to allow another person to fish under your license, so each person must have their own fishing, combination fishing and hunting, lifetime, or other special license.

Several Bandera County businesses carry licenses as part of their trade with fishermen.

Before you go fishing or hunting, be sure to check your fishing license, because unless you possess a lifetime license or are a minor or a senior citizen, all annual licenses expire Aug. 31.

Fishing licenses are needed for most people from 17 years of age to 65. They cost $8 for Texas residents and are good from Sept. 1, 1990 to Aug. 31, 1991.

A hunting license is needed by everyone who hunts. Regular licenses are $10 and a special license is $6 for Texas residents younger than 17 years of age or 65 years of age and older, and certain disabled veterans.

A combination resident fishing and hunting license is available for $15. There are also licenses available for out-of-state visitors and lifetime licenses.

It is unlawful to fish under the license of another, or to allow another person to fish under your license, so each person must have their own fishing, combination fishing and hunting, lifetime, or other special license.

Several Bandera County businesses carry licenses as part of their trade with fishermen.

A 100-year courtship

Staff Photos by Larry T. Williams

County Commissioners in 1890 granted the petition to build a courthouse on a public square, and moved from a site near Cypress Street where the courthouse had been in operation since 1877. The old courthouse, beside the old Bandera County jail, still stands today.

Offices inside the main hall of the Bandera County courthouse include those of Bandera County and District Clerk Vera King, and Bandera County Tax Assessor and Collector Marguerite Stevens.

Upstairs is the courtroom where District Judge Steve Ables presides at least once each month.

The courthouse was completed in 1891, and it was not until 1967 that another wing was added. In that wing currently is the office of Bandera County EMS, and the offices of Bandera County treasurer Elizabeth James and Bandera County Judge Ray Mauer.

County Court meets each month in a small courtroom, and the judge has a private office off the courtroom. In the event of a jury trial, county court is held in the larger courtroom upstairs.

Bandera County Commissioners also hold their regular monthly meetings in the judge's smaller courtroom.

Begun in 1890 and finished in 1891, Bandera County Courthouse celebrates its 100th anniversary this year. A modern-style wing that currently houses the county judge's office, was added to the building in 1967.

The courthouse is built from cut limestone blocks quarried locally, with massive structural trusses made from cypress.

Recreation for military personnel.

Find it:

South on FM Road 1283 past Park Road 37. Take Medina Dam Road at the Cedar Point Landing sign.

Lackland Air Force Base Recreation Camp in Mico provides active duty military, retired military, and Department of Defense civilians a place to fish, boat, relax, and camp at Medina Lake.

The outdoor recreation facility offers picnicking, overnight camping, water activities, as well as indoor recreation. It is open for authorized users Friday through Sunday from 7 a.m. until 6 p.m. during the fall and winter season that began Oct. 1.

The facility has nine tent pads plus additional areas for tenting, all which include barbecue pits, picnic table, and water.

Three group picnic pavilions for events such as family or unit reunions and large group activities may be reserved. Each pavilion can accommodate as many as 50 in a group.

For those with their own RV, there are eight recreation vehicles slots with water and electrical hookups, but no sewage connections.

For more comfortable camping, there are five 24-foot RV trailers with air conditioning available for rent.

The camp has a store with snacks, picnic supplies, and bait including worms, shrimp, minnows, and artificial tackle.

Also available is an indoor recreation hall with a television area, pool tables, video games, and a game room for chess, checkers and other games. An outside covered patio compliments the building.

Water activities include skiing, boating, and fishing. Currently boat launching is not possible, but if the lake level rises, the two ramps will be available. Boats can be launched at other facilities on the lake.

Some 30 boat slips are available for private boat owners to leave their boat at the site, renting the docking position by the month.

There are 12 14½-foot aluminum fishing boats each equipped with a 10 horsepower motor for rent.

For skiing or running about the lake, there are 12 16-foot ski boats with 50 horsepower engines.

There are also two pontoon "party" boats each with 70 horsepower engines area available for sightseeing, fishing, cruising around the lake for day outings.

Two recently added pontoons boats have a driver provided.

Hill Country State Natural Area

Find it:

Ten miles southwest of Bandera at the end of Dixie Dude Road (FM 1077).

Staff photo by Larry T. Williams

The old Merrick Ranch is being allowed to revert to its natural condition. Incursions of man are kept to a minimum.

The Hill Country State Natural Area offers a unique opportunity for horse enthusiasts, hikers, and primitive campers. Here, a thirsty steed takes a drink during a competitive trail ride.

The Hill Country State Natural Area in Bandera County offers a rather unique opportunity for horse enthusiasts and hikers tired of being limited to trails alongside highways or back country roads with choking clouds of dust and exhaust fumes raised by passing vehicles.

This 4,753-acre park is perfect for primitive camping and just getting away from it all. And you can ride a horse or hike for miles unopposed by fences or keep-out signs.

Ranging from river bottoms to steep and rocky hill tops with a view worth the climb, the former Merrick Ranch has enough space and sights for several weekend visits.

Located 10 miles southwest of Bandera at the end of Dixie Dude Road (FM 1077), the park is maintained in a natural state, but does have water and toilets adjacent to the headquarters building.

A permit is required for use of the facility and information can be obtained by calling the park manager, Waymond "Potsie" Graff at 796-4413. Office hours are 8-12 a.m. and 1-5 p.m. Wednesday-Sunday. The park is closed Mondays and Tuesdays.

It's necessary to make reservations before planning an outing at the natural area, for many riding organizations make frequent use of it for distance and endurance competitions. These events themselves provide an exciting and entertaining day both for the spectator and entrant.

Water is not available except at the headquarters, and the primative campsites must be left with no evidence of occupation. No ground fires are permitted and camp stoves are required for cooking.

However, the few restrictions are only there to preserve the habitat and wildlife that abounds within the protective boundaries of the park and a quiet hiker or rider will see deer, turkey, and quail as well as an uncountable number of other forms of native animals and birds.

The ranch is being allowed to revert to its natural condition and the incursions of man are kept to a minimum. Visitors are encouraged to closely examine and sense the feels, smells and sounds of nature, taking only memories and photographs and leaving no perceptible trace of their passing.

Hill Country State Natural Area

Find it:

Ten miles southwest of Bandera at the end of Dixie Dude Road (FM 1077).

The old Merrick Ranch is being allowed to revert to its natural condition. Incursions of man are kept to a minimum.

The Hill Country State Natural Area offers a unique opportunity for horse enthusiasts, hikers, and primitive campers. Here, a thirsty steed takes a drink during a competitive trail ride.

The Hill Country State Natural Area in Bandera County offers a rather unique opportunity for horse enthusiasts and hikers tired of being limited to trails alongside highways or back country roads with choking clouds of dust and exhaust fumes raised by passing vehicles.

This 4,753-acre park is perfect for primitive camping and just getting away from it all. And you can ride a horse or hike for miles unopposed by fences or keep-out signs.

Ranging from river bottoms to steep and rocky hill tops with a view worth the climb, the former Merrick Ranch has enough space and sights for several weekend visits.

Located 10 miles southwest of Bandera at the end of Dixie Dude Road (FM 1077), the park is maintained in a natural state, but does have water and toilets adjacent to the headquarters building.

A permit is required for use of the facility and information can be obtained by calling the park manager, Waymond "Potsie" Graff at 796-4413. Office hours are 8-12 a.m. and 1-5 p.m. Wednesday-Sunday. The park is closed Mondays and Tuesdays.

It's necessary to make reservations before planning an outing at the natural area, for many riding organizations make frequent use of it for distance and endurance competitions. These events themselves provide an exciting and entertaining day both for the spectator and entrant.

Water is not available except at the headquarters, and the primative campsites must be left with no evidence of occupation. No ground fires are permitted and camp stoves are required for cooking.

However, the few restrictions are only there to preserve the habitat and wildlife that abounds within the protective boundaries of the park and a quiet hiker or rider will see deer, turkey, and quail as well as an uncountable number of other forms of native animals and birds.

The ranch is being allowed to revert to its natural condition and the incursions of man are kept to a minimum. Visitors are encouraged to closely examine and sense the feels, smells and sounds of nature, taking only memories and photographs and leaving no perceptible trace of their passing.

The apple of our eye.

The longer an apple stays on the tree and moves toward peak ripeness, the higher the sugar content and the richer its flavor. Imported types "can't even come close" when compared to the sweetness and taste of a home-county-grown Texas apple.

Bandera County's apple harvest season continues into the first days of October, and this year's harvest produced an estimated 20 tons of the fruit. Major producers are Love Creek Ranch west of Medina and Triple JD Ranch north of Bandera.

In July 1988 the town of Medina launched the first annual "Texas International Apple Festival" to publicizethe new industry and the town, and the town was officially designated the "Apple Capital of Texas" by the State Agriculture Department. Held each July since that beginning, the festival now draws more than 20,000 visitors.

• The Cider Mill and Country Store in Medina offers apples, cider and various apple products, including pie, strudel, cake and bread.

• Orchard tours. Free guided tours of Love Creek orchards are available from April through October. Meet at the Cider Mill and Country Store in Medina at 10 a.m. on Saturday and drive your own car in caravan to the orchard. Tours take about two hours.

In addition to the fruit sales, apple growers are finding a steady market for young trees in containers, ready for planting. "With container-grown trees, anyone can have an orchard...on his patio or in his back yard," says Jack Davis of Triple JD Ranch. Trees are available from the Triple JD Ranch's Home Orchard and at Love Creek Ranch's Cider Mill and Country Store in Medina.

There's other spin-off businesses that are products of the industry, including cider, jellies, baked goods and even the theme-curio trade that comes from a likeable subject such as apples.

Pipe Creek Texas

Once Lipan Apache country, the land where Pipe Creek Junction stands was first granted to a railroad company. William J. Hamilton, son of Sheriff Henry Hamilton, patented the land on August 29, 1878 building a cotton gin and grist mill on the north side of Highway 16 and a little to the west. The gin's large cistern can still be seen from the restaurant.

Felix and Harriet Newcomer later bought the small portion of the Hamilton ranch which extended south of Highway 16 and sold the one-acre store corner to E.B. and Carrie Keefe on March 3, 1911 for $150. The Keefes built the first store at this location in the spring of that year. It was a two-story frame building with the store on the first floor and their residence on the second floor. After only a few months, the Keefes sold everything back to the Newcomers. The Newcomer's son Jim then ran the store adding shed wings to both sides of the original building.

In 1914 Tom W. Deskin, Sr. offered Jim Newcomer and his widowed mother a 480 acre ranch north of Pipe Creek as an even trade for the store and the offer was too much to resist. The Deskins then ran the store for the next four years. After the Deskins, a number of other people — Dick Cox, Ernest Jump and Henry Dorrow, John T. Dixon, Elmer Pickens, and Lawrence Edwards —tried their hand at running the store. Dick Cox was the first of the owners to buy a motor-powered truck to haul supplies which he purchased in 1918.

In the spring of 1924 Adolph and Laura Schott took over the operation of the store. Laura was Jim Newcomer's daughter. In 1930 Adolph built the dance hall to the east of the store doing much of the building himself. Dancing, movies, and skating were held in the hall. For a while the Mormans met there on Sunday mornings when they had no place to meet. In 1936 when the road to San Antonio was widened for the paving of Highway 16, the current store building was built. Again Adolph did much of the framing with help from Jonathan Newcomer and Dumpy McCarthy. Henry Gombert of Boerne did the rock work. The store was the first place in Pipe Creek to receive electricity from the Bandera Electric Co-op being connected December 24, 1940. In 1944 Adolph and Laura leased the store to the L.M. Cloptons who built the cafe on the corner which Earl White later ran and where Hank Kruger has his real estate office.

In September 1951 Ed and Ann Jennings took charge of the store. After Earl White moved his cafe from next door, Ed began aiming more at the convenience market. The older natives continued to bring their eggs and some produce in to trade for needed staples until well into the 1960's. Ed made the store into a notable tourist attraction with his novel items and humorous signs posted around such as: the parking meter next to the real estate office with a sign that said "First and only parking meter in Bandera County", a post with a "City Limits" sign nailed to both sides of the post, a sign on the front door that said "No dogs or horses allowed", a coon skin cap placed on a mounted deer's head with a sign hanging around the deer's neck that said "Me too" during the Davy Crockett coon skin cap craze, a coconut hanging over the vegetable bin with a sign that said "Squeeze this, not the tomatoes," a large cracker barrel on the counter when Captain Gus was popular on T.V., and many more things. The "Marrying Oaks" in back of the store were a popular place to be married by Justice of the Peace Jennings. Ed operated the store for more than thirty years, retiring and closing the store in the fall of 1982.

—Jay Edwards

Don and Ginger, former owners of "Helotes Cafe," purchased the property in the spring of 1986, the corner where the old store and dance hall sits. Monumental features.

Five landmarks that stand on the courthouse square: rodeo cowboy champions' monument, the war heroes heroes monument, veterants' monument, Camp Montel monument and the Amasa Clark monument.

Find it:

On the grounds of the Bandera County Courthouse.

The rodeo cowboys champions' monument, topped by a bronze statue of a cowboy on horseback roping a calf, is placed in honor of Bandera County cowboy champions. It calls Bandera the Cowboy Capital of the World.

Cowboy champions honored include Toots Mansfield, Ray Wharton, Buddy Groff, Todd Whitewood, Scooter Fries, Clay Billings and Jimmy Adams.

The war heroes monument is a memorial to Bandera County men who sacrificed their lives in World War I. Some 23 names are inscribed on the granite monument that has stood since 1924.

The veterans' monument is the newest monument on the courthouse square, and is placed in honor and memory of all war veterans by the Bandera County veterans and auxiliaries. It is pledged as a "tribute to valor" in "patriotic allegiance to sanctify God and country."

The Camp Montel monument is a memorial to the Texans who served in the Confederacy. It commemorates Captain Charles DeMontel, and the Texas Civil War Frontier Defense. The monument was placed by the state of Texas in 1964.

"Texas had 2,000 miles of coastline and frontier to defend from Union attack, Indian raids, marauders, and bandits from Mexico," it says on the back of the granite monument. "defense lines were set to give... protection with the few men left in the state."

One line stretched from El Paso to Brownsville. Another, including Camp Montel, a day's horseback ride apart from the Red River to the Rio Grande.

The Clark monument is a huge granite boulder that was erected as a memorial to Bandera pioneer Amasa Clark, who died in 1927 at the age of 101.

Clark, the first permanent settler in Bandera county, came here in 1852. He was a veteran of the Mexican war, and the stone marker originally stood in the National Cemetery at Ft. Sam Houston.

In 1945, when Ft. Sam officials needed to move the marker to erect a building on the site, the granite monument was moved to Bandera.

Clark is buried in a little family cemetery about four miles west of Bandera.

Monumental features.

Five landmarks that stand on the courthouse square: rodeo cowboy champions' monument, the war heroes heroes monument, veterants' monument, Camp Montel monument and the Amasa Clark monument.

Find it:

On the grounds of the Bandera County Courthouse.

The rodeo cowboys champions' monument, topped by a bronze statue of a cowboy on horseback roping a calf, is placed in honor of Bandera County cowboy champions. It calls Bandera the Cowboy Capital of the World.

Cowboy champions honored include Toots Mansfield, Ray Wharton, Buddy Groff, Todd Whitewood, Scooter Fries, Clay Billings and Jimmy Adams.

The war heroes monument is a memorial to Bandera County men who sacrificed their lives in World War I. Some 23 names are inscribed on the granite monument that has stood since 1924.

The veterans' monument is the newest monument on the courthouse square, and is placed in honor and memory of all war veterans by the Bandera County veterans and auxiliaries. It is pledged as a "tribute to valor" in "patriotic allegiance to sanctify God and country."

The Camp Montel monument is a memorial to the Texans who served in the Confederacy. It commemorates Captain Charles DeMontel, and the Texas Civil War Frontier Defense. The monument was placed by the state of Texas in 1964.

"Texas had 2,000 miles of coastline and frontier to defend from Union attack, Indian raids, marauders, and bandits from Mexico," it says on the back of the granite monument. "defense lines were set to give... protection with the few men left in the state."

One line stretched from El Paso to Brownsville. Another, including Camp Montel, a day's horseback ride apart from the Red River to the Rio Grande.

The Clark monument is a huge granite boulder that was erected as a memorial to Bandera pioneer Amasa Clark, who died in 1927 at the age of 101.

Clark, the first permanent settler in Bandera county, came here in 1852. He was a veteran of the Mexican war, and the stone marker originally stood in the National Cemetery at Ft. Sam Houston.

In 1945, when Ft. Sam officials needed to move the marker to erect a building on the site, the granite monument was moved to Bandera.

Clark is buried in a little family cemetery about four miles west of Bandera.

...cat Gumbo!" These Cajun Festival participants were probably saying on their way home from the annual Lakehills event Saturday. For more on the Medina Lake festival, see Page 5.

Bandera High School students paint spirit slogans on the windows of the Texas Hill Country Rocker on Cypress Street near Main in downtown Bandera. The decorated windows are part of a homecoming contest with prizes of $100, $50 and $25 going to the winning organizations. There will be a pep rally and parade in downtown Bandera at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 4, to whip up spirit for the Bulldogs' Friday night homecoming battle with Comfort, and fans are welcome to follow the parade in automobiles from the parking lot of Bandera Bank to Koehler Park, where there will be a bonfire and the pep rally will continue. The Bulldogs take a 3-1 record into the kickoff at Bulldog Stadium Friday at 8 p.m.

School board's death list 'purely scare tactics,' says rollback leader

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

The leader of the proposed rollback of Bandera school taxes said Saturday that the school board's announcement that it would cut out extra-curricular activities and school bus service were "purely scare tactics."

Organizer Bobby D. Jones of Wharton's Dock said he already has 100 signatures on petitions to limit next year's tax rate.

And even though only 501 signatures are needed, he has set a goal of obtaining 2,000 signatures and expects to have them at his group's next meeting Oct. 15.

Over 150 people attended Thursday's meeting at the Bandera Bank Community Room, reported Jones.

"I'm not against taxes, but a 41 percent increase in taxes in anyone year is beyond reason," Jones said Saturday. "They can get by with a lot less."

If the rollback election is held and succeeds, school taxes will not be reduced this year but will be limited to a prescribed amount in 1991.

Jones declared that the Bandera Independent School District board's preemptive strike against the rollback forces last week was a familiar scare.

"In any controversy, whether it is school, city, county, they pick on the portion of the program that gets the most sympathy," said Jones. He cited the elimination by the San Antonio city council of the "Mama patrols" and the federal government's threat of cuts in social security and Medicare. In the schools, "they cut the youth," he said.

The Bandera ISD board voted Monday, Sept. 24, three days before the tax rollback group met, to cut student bus service, all sports, and band and all other extra-curricular activities if a rollback effort was successful. They also said they would cut by one the number of periods in junior high and high school and reduce kindergarten to half day.

"They never say anything about scaling back in areas such as administration," said Jones.

Jones said the people should call the board's bluff. "They won't cut back on school activities. There is no reason to, they'll have enough money. This year, they have over a $5 million budget," he said.

The school district does not know how much money it will have next year, so they can't project where they'll need to cut, he said. "The state's education financing system has been declared unconstitutional," Jones said. They have no idea how much money they will get next year."

The Bandera ISD board increased its 74.21 cents per $100 property valuation tax to $1.05999 at its Sept. 11 meeting. "There is not that much of a change (in their budget) to justify that big of an increase," said Jones.

"The people that came to our meeting are concerned," he said. "My taxes went up $150 this year." While he said he would be able to pay his taxes, there are those that won't. "There are a lot of people on fixed income. Some can get that much money, some can't."

He said there are 180 petitions in circulation and there is a place for 10 names on each petition. "Hopefully, we will have all the petitions signed and turned in at the Oct. 15 meeting," said Jones.

Jones says people that sign a petition should sign and print their names in the spaces provided. They should also put their addresses, voting precinct numbers, voter registration numbers and the date they signed the petition.

Jones said he sought advice from a recognized tax protest group to ensure that the petitions would be legal. "I went down to Mr. (C.A.) Stubbs (in San Antonio) and he gave me a petition that he's run through their city council and the (San Antonio) school districts.

"We will give them good, clean petitions with voter registration numbers to check and printed names," said Jones. "The only thing required (by the law) is a document that the school can verify has valid (signatures of) registered voters."

The deadline for submitting the petitions to the school board is 90 days after the district's vote to raise taxes, or Dec. 10.

School board members invited to leave rollback meeting

Ignoring a warning to leave because "some things were going to be said that would probably hurt your feelings," two school trustees and superintendent Ted Dockery sat through a meeting Thursday, Sept. 27, of supporters of a tax rollback.

But they were denied an opportunity to speak.

School trustees Anne Samuel and James Wagner attended the Sept. 27 meeting, and they said very little of the promised "eye-opening information" was distributed at the meeting.

"Mr. (Bobby) Jones invited those of us who were opposed to a rollback to leave before he began his remarks," said Samuel. "Then he began by stating that 'not one' school board member had answered the questions and charges he brought forward in his letter (printed in The Bandera Bulletin Sept. 14).

"I immediately stood up and challenged him," Samuel said. "I told him, 'Mr. Jones, that is not a true statement. I spoke to you on the phone at great length after the board meeting, trying to address your questions.'

"He cut me off immediately," Samuel said. "He said, 'lady, you're going to sit down and be quiet, or I'll have the sergeant-at-arms escort you out of this meeting.'"

Samuel said Jones appeared to change his mind, and not go any further into what he had to say, but instead he brought the meeting to a close very quickly.

"We were there to observe," Dockery said Tuesday. "They had planned and conducted a very structured meeting.

"(Jones) had announced there would be an open forum for discussion at the end, but he just closed the meeting down.

"We're all concerned taxpayers. There was no opportunity for anyone else (besides Jones), for opponents or proponents of the rollback, to speak," Dockery said.

Anti-rollback group to oppose move

A group the organizer called "concerned parents and taxpayers" met Monday, Oct. 1 to organize an anti-rollback effort.

"What we want to do is inform the citizens of Bandera (ISD) with accurate information," said spokesman Cliff Boren Tuesday. The group plans another meeting Monday, Oct. 8, at 7:30 p.m. at the Bandera Bank Community Room.

"Much controversy has arisen over the proposed rollback of the recent property tax increase," said Boren. "While nobody likes a tax increase, there is grave concern as to the detrimental impact a rollback would have on our schools and community."

Bandera Downs gets 39 more days

But TRC rejects plans for next fall

By William Wall
Bulletin Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Racing Commission Monday granted Bandera Downs 39 additional racing dates for the 1991 spring racing season, but denied the track's request for 18 additional fall 1991 dates.

The horse section of the racing commission had no quarrel with Bandera Downs concerning addition of 15 dates in March, 12 dates in April and 12 dates in May to next year's schedule — for a 1991 total of 97 dates, and voted 3-0 to approve that portion of the request.

However, they cited several reasons for refusing the 14 dates in November and four dates in December that Bandera Downs also had sought. Commission Chairman Hugh A. Fitzsimmons pointed to the need for Bandera Downs to allot sufficient time to upgrade the track to comply with Bandera's original application and questioned the track's ability to do so if racing was scheduled for 40 weeks during 1991.

Fitzsimmons has been a consistent critic of Bandera Downs and was the only TRC member to vote against extending the track's 1990 season to Dec. 9.

Fitzsimmons also expressed concern over the effect concurrent 1991 racing dates between Manor Downs and Bandera Downs would have on the quality of horse racing in Texas.

"I'm extremely proud of the excellent job Bandera has done... and we all owe you (the Bandera Downs management) a vote of thanks," Fitzsimmons said. "However, I do think that you owe it to the racing public in Texas to upgrade that plant and give yourself the time to do it."

Don Essary, president of Bandera Downs, told commissioners it would be difficult to finance upgrades, such as enclosing the plant, based on the 34 days of racing the track has under its belt.

"We intend to upgrade as cash is available," Essary said. "The original (plan) that we had was based on finances generated by these days that we are now requesting.

"Our original pro-form was based on these 130 race days. Therefore, in order to upgrade, we most certainly would have to have these dates." Essary also said Bandera Downs is in agreement with Manor Downs on the issue of same-day racing and that both tracks felt there was no direct competition since they are in two separate markets.

"The commission saw fit to grant nine licenses and allow six tracks to run head-to-head in competition," Essary said. "There has been an agreement by both parties concerned here.

"Certainly, there's no more conflict in 1990 or 1991 than there was in 1989."

Fitzsimmons said he believed there was considerable overlap in the Manor and Bandera markets and felt that if same-day race dates were awarded to both tracks in November and December of 1991, the quality of Texas horse racing would be "diluted."

"The prudent, safe way to go about this is to find out through experience what the market will bear," he said. "If we get some experience under our belt and find out that we can support head-to-head against each other, we can take another look at it."

Commissioner Glenn Blodgett agreed with Fitzsimmons on those issues but did not rule out the possibility of Bandera Downs getting the Fall 1990 dates at a later time.

"I think w. should leave the door open and give Bandera Downs the opportunity to come back and request the November and December days next spring or early summer," Blodgett said. "Surely, soon enough so that they would have enough time to start their sponsorship and advertising efforts." Essary said Bandera Downs would ask the commission for those fall dates as soon as possible.

"It's in our best interests and the horsemen's best interests to come back soon so that they can make their plans to be here (Bandera) next fall," he said.

Voter registration deadline looms Friday

The deadline to register to vote in order to be eligible to cast a ballot in the Nov. 6 general election is this weekend.

For potential voters to register in person, they will have to come to the tax-assessor collector's office in the Bandera County courthouse by Friday, says tax-assessor collector Marguerite Stevens, who is also the county's voter registrar.

The office will accept voter registration cards that come in the mail as late as Monday, Oct. 8, says Stevens.

There are currently an 6,066 registered voters in Bandera County.

Persons who believe they should be registered to vote and do not have the current salmon and white colored card, should contact the tax office this week in order the get a new one.

Also, persons who have moved or have incorrect information on their cards should also contact the office.

If the voter's address was incorrect on their card and the post office returned the card to the tax office, the tax office purged that voter from the approved roll, and the voter will need to fill out a new registration application to vote in November.

Absentee voting begins Oct. 17 and ends Nov. 2.

Persons needing a mail-in ballot can request those ballots from the county clerk's office, and the completed ballots must reach the county clerk's office by Nov. 6.

Three reasons to vote no

Dear editor:

I think many people don't realize that paying a little more tax money will help our school a lot. That is why I am writing this letter. I feel strongly against the rollback election, and I have come up with three reasons to support my opinion.

My first reason is there would be no school transportation system, except for the special ed buses. I think that this would probably result in many angry parents who do not want to take their kids to school every day. Some people live out in the country and have out-of-town jobs. If they had to drive to school each morning, they would probably be late for work.

Next, I would like to make you aware of how lucky the students are right now. They have a choice of being in the band, athletic programs, UIL (academic competition), art, and numerous other school contests and student electives. If these privileges were taken away, our school, I hesitate to say this, would not really be a school. These activities listed above help the students to enjoy learning.

My third and final reason is true also, but some people don't realize it. Our school would probably lose about 10 good teachers (at least). They would leave either because of no job, like band directors and art teachers, or they would stop teaching here and go teach at a different school. Some might leave because they have children in school and they want their kids to get a better education.

These are three reasons people should not vote for the rollback: no transportation, no special programs, and many teachers leaving. If you vote, please vote against the rollback.

Close ag exemption loopholes

Dear editor:

I would like to respond to Dave Hopkins' letter in the Sept. 26 issue of The Bulletin. I feel Mr. Hopkins has missed the point of the tax issue and the funding of our school system.

I do not believe you'll find one person in our community that doesn't support a first-rate educational program for our children. However, I feel you'll find a large number of the population that is tired of funding a bankrupt system that places nonacademic programs ahead of the pursuit of higher knowledge.

People are not leaving or coming to our community because of the school system. They are abandoning it (if they are) because our taxes are too high. The many people who want to build on the Flying L Ranch chose not to when they find out what their taxes will be. Bandera is a beautiful area, but do not be fooled into thinking that it is the only place to live. Many people here live on fixed incomes and when taxes are raised, it takes away from these people who have no way of making up the lost revenue, except to do without.

I personally feel if the school administrators expect the citizens to do without, these same administrators should lead the way by doing without some of the less productive school programs. Mr. Hopkins leads you to believe that if we do not cave into the tax increase, our hair and teeth will fall out, pestilence and famine will follow, and our children will run away and join the circus.

I feel there are other ways than a tax increase to ensure a quality education for our children. Teach the essentials of English, mathematics, history, geography and science. Close the cafeteria (I brown-bagged for 12 years and it didn't hurt me). Do away with interschool sports and develop an exercise and sports program that benefits all students, not just a few. Look into other means of increasing revenue. Do you know, and these figures are not absolutely correct but they are fairly accurate, that the gross value of property in Bandera is around $854.8 million? Are you aware that 38.5 percent, or $328.9 million, is exempted property? Of that amount, $316.5 is agriculture exemption, $19.3 million is disabled veteran and homestead exemptions. Those that get an agriculture exemption are also getting a homestead exemption. I'd bet that if some of the loopholes in the exemption regulations are closed and stricter requirements are made on who can claim them, we could increase our revenues without increasing taxes. I would almost guarantee that if someone researched it further, those who claim both an agriculture and homeowner exemption are paying less taxes than an individual who has the proverbial $50,000 house on a 7,000-square-foot lot.

Mr. Hopkins speaks of the pioneer spirit. Yes, we need pioneers to reverse the trends started in the late 1960s. We must rebuild the moral fabric of the country, reward hard work and excellence in school and place a stigma on failure and laziness. Yes, parents, show the pioneer spirit by getting actively involved in your child's education.

Questions on rollback meeting

Dear editor:

Could you please help find and publicize the answers to the following questions regarding the next rollback meeting:

- Will all new people in attendance be automatically declared members (of the rollback group) as was done at the first meeting?
- Are members allowed to ask questions at the meeting?
- If so, what procedures would they like us to follow?
- Are cassette and/or video recorders allowed at the meeting?

Answers to these questions could help prevent future misunderstandings.

Fix up Moffet Park

Dear editor:

A few weeks ago my family and I visited Medina. As former residents, we were very impressed by the new look the town seems to have. It seems so much more alive than it was a few years ago.

We were impressed by everything except one thing. We went to Moffet Park for a picnic, but found it completely overgrown with weeds and Johnson grass. We remembered this little park as a clean, well-kept place that was regularly used for picnics, fish fries, barbecues and even baptismal ceremonies.

My dad has a special interest in Moffet Park in that he was president of the Lions Club when they purchased the property from the Moffetts and donated it to the city of Medina. In fact, he told us he personally went to Mr. Moffet to make the deal and at the time offered to name it Moffet Park if the Lions were allowed to purchase the property. I can remember many, many times my dad was down at the park until dark mowing and trimming. He had a real personal pride in it.

We hope some club or organization in Medina will try to correct this.

United Way a "good cause?"

Dear editor:

I was not surprised when I read the letter to the editor in last week's paper regarding Madalyn M. O'Hair. I believe most of us tend to dismiss her as a crank, not realizing how powerful she really is. Ms. O'Hair is the founder of the American Atheists, which is a 38,000-member group with active chapters in 38 states. She publishes books and a monthly magazine and produces a weekly TV show seen on 90 cable systems.

Primarily, O'Hair would like to wipe out the use of God's name and any reference to it. She succeeded in 1963 in removing Bible readings and voluntary prayer from our schools. You can just about mark that as the year our school systems began to decline in this nation.

She has sued over churches' tax exempt status, White House religious services, and Biblical readings by Apollo astronauts. Currently she is working to remove "In God we trust" from U.S. currency and "under God" from the Pledge of Allegiance. What is even scarier is that the ACLU has the same goals.

When anyone or any organization dares to oppose O'Hair, she is notorious for lashing out through the most expensive and time-consuming method she can -the U.S. legal system. She ties her opponents up in frivolous legal battles designed to use up the funds they have to oppose her.

Finally, concerning the United Way, they are being boycotted as a charity in Spokane, Wash., because they provide funds to Planned Parenthood, which is the largest provider of abortions in this nation. The San Antonio chapter of the United Way assured me over the phone that none of their money supports Planned Parenthood.

I agree with last week's letter writers. We should all find out exactly what our donations are going to be spent on before we turn loose of it to "support a good cause."

Unemployment rate down slightly

By William Wall
Bulletin Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The August monthly unemployment rate declined in Bandera County by eight-tenths of one percent, according to figures released last week by the Texas Employment Commission.

The monthly Texas Labor Market Analysis reported the county's August jobless rate to be 2.5 percent, compared with July's 3.3 percent. The unemployment rate in August 1989 was 3.4 percent.

"The local jobless rate in August follows the decline in unemployment statewide," said John Cruz, an employment commission labor market analyst. "Compared to our figures for August 1989, the Bandera County job market shows signs of improvement, though we'll get a more complete picture when we conduct our end-of-the-year review."

The statewide unemployment rate for August was 5.8 percent, down from July's 6.3 percent. The Texas jobless rate in August 1989 was 7.2 percent. Four of the five surrounding counties reported declines in their August jobless rates.

Kendall County reported a four-tenths of one percent monthly decline to 2.7 percent; Kerr County recorded a one-tenth of one percent drop to 2.8 percent; Medina a six-tenths of one percent reduction to 5.1 percent; and Uvalde County a 1 percent decline to 8.3 percent.

The August jobless rate in Real County was 4.1 percent, unchanged from July.

The commission's August report said 4,395 persons were employed in Bandera County out of a total civilian labor force of 4,506. In July, the county's total work force was 4,525, with 4,347 employed.

The August 1989 summary reported the county's total work force to be 4,101, with 3,963 employed.

Setting it straight

Taxable values in Bandera Independent School District in 1990 is $394.4 million, down from $410.7 million in 1989, according to Bandera County's chief appraiser Larry Reagan.

The Bulletin quoted outdated estimate figures in its profile article in the Fall/Winter Visitors Guide.

Conservation meeting Saturday at Co-op

The annual Bandera County Soil and Water Conservation District meeting and election will be held Saturday, Oct. 6, at the Bandera Electric Cooperative starting at 9 a.m.

Seminars will also be presented on the Endangered Species Act, animal rights activists, the Seco Creek water quality project.

Two directors of the district's five-member governing board will be elected for four-year terms. Both current directors, Harvey Faris, a rancher and manager of the Bandera Ranch Store, and rancher Tony Jennings are eligible for reelection.

To vote in the election, a person must own land in Bandera County, be 18 years of age or older and a county resident.

A barbecue lunch sponsored by the Bandera County SWCD will be served at noon at Mansfield Park.

USDA commodities to be issued

USDA commodities will be issued Wednesday, Oct. 10 at the First Baptist Church in Bandera. Food will be distributed from 1 to 4 p.m., or until it runs out, says pastor Frank Pullin.

Lakehills and Medina clients will need to pick up their food in Bandera, Pullin said.

The program is now sponsored by the Bandera Counties Commodities organization, and the First Baptist Churches of Bandera and Pipe Creek.

"The program is the same, with guidelines as before and proof of income required and identification," Pullin said. "The food and the amounts are also the same, and it is for Bandera County residents only."

Water district to meet Thursday

A report on progress towards a grant for a water availability/water supply study for all of Bandera County will be presented at the quarterly board meeting of the Springhills Water Management District Thursday, Oct. 4, at 8 p.m. in Old Jail Building.

The department of health is requiring a study to be made on the availability and supply of drinking water in Bandera County and the Bandera County underground and surface water management district is exploring the possibility of obtaining a grant to pay for the study.

Other counties may be involved in the study, says general manager Ray Buck, but they will have to contribute to the cost of the study.

Directors will also renew the contract between the Springhills Water Management District and the Bandera County River Authority.

Directors will also consider authorizing a secretarial position.

Astrid Box, Mary Frisbie and Jimmie Hughey urge everyone to attend the Friends of The Library Sausage Barbecue Oct. 13 so the library can afford "lots more of these good books." Plates will be $3 per person, and the event at the Bandera Fire Station will also include entertainment and a bake sale.

Troops need paperback books

Donations of paperback books are needed by U.S. troops in Saudia Arabia, and Bandera County residents can make those donations at the county library and other county locations.

Other items are also needed by the troops and there is a Pipe Creek and Medina contact point for those donations.

However, not all types of paperbacks should be given, says Sheryl Jewett, one of the organizers. "People donating the books should realize that the Saudi Arabian government is very conservative and any book with a cover or pictures that could be considered the least bit provocative should not be donated," she cautioned.

Because of the content of most American magazines, magazines should not be donated, she said.

Paperbacks can be dropped off at the Bandera County Library, at Pop's Place in Pipe Creek, the Lakehills American Legion, and at Joe and Delia Ortiz's home in Medina.

The troops are also in need of other items that many Americans take for granted. "Other items that could be donated that the troops in Saudia Arabia are in desperate need of include Kool-Aid, Chap-Stick, eye drops, gum, hard candy that won't melt like Life Savers. Definitely no chocolate," she says.

Also sought are musical tapes. "They'll take anything (type of music) there is," says Jewett.

Other items needed include games, playing cards, and cheap cameras. "The sand destroys good cameras," says Jewett.

Persons interested in donating items other than books should call Jewett at 535-6511 or 535-4313, or Shirley McMullen at 535-4366 or 535-4384 or Delia Ortiz at 589-2561.

Whitehead serves

Navy Petty Officer 1st Class Robert A. Whitehead, son of Mr. and Mrs. C.D. Whitehead of Medina, recently returned from deployment to the Mediterranean Sea while serving aboard the destroyer tender U.S.S. Sierra, homeported in Charleston, S.C.

During the six-month deployment, Whitehead participated in various exercises and operations, including Operation Desert Shield.

Hines in Mid-East

Sgt. John Hines, grandson of John "Bud" and Betty Ciarlo of Wharton's Dock, is currently serving in the Middle East in the 82nd Airborne.

Hines, 29, is the son of former Bandera County Sheriff's Deputy Robert Hines and former Bandera restaurant owner Judy Hines. The Hines currently live in North Carolina.

Hines has served in the military for seven years and has served in Panama.

Other Bandera County "native sons" known to be serving in the Middle East are Navy Petty Officer 1st Class William R. McMullen, the son of George and Shirley McMullen of Pipe Creek, and Marine Cpl. Edward Ortiz, the son of Joe S. and Delia Ortiz of Medina.

BHS Homecoming Week Oct. 1 through 5 is filled with activities including a bonfire and pep rally Thursday night, however, the highlight of the week will be the half time crowning of the 1990 Mr. and Miss BHS and the homecoming dance following Friday's game against the Comfort Bobcats.

Homecoming court includes seniors Nikki Callahan, Amy Thompson, Tybor Cook and Jeff Pullin; juniors Amy Calder, Lisa Wharton, Jimmy Johnson and Ethan Timmons; sophomores Tandie Clements, Connie Mansfield, Jesse Edwards and J.B. Neuenschwander; and freshmen Sandra Grenet, Kathy Thompson, Kyle Everett and Richard Weaver.

Mr. and Miss BHS will be selected from this group, and they will be crowned by last year's winners, Brett Emmons and Amie Nightingale.

Homecoming week began with school organizations painting windows of the local businesses with "spirit scenes," and competing for prizes for the best window. Bucket Brigade competition between classes and the locker decorating contest both began Monday.

Thursday night, the Fighting Bulldog Band will head up a parade, starting at 7:30 p.m. at Bandera Bank, then continuing down Main Street to Koehler Park, the site of a pep rally and bonfire.

Friday night, the Bulldogs will take on the Bobcats in football action, with the traditional half-time homecoming ceremonies. After the game, a homecoming dance at the junior high school gym will last until midnight.

Book fair ongoing

Alkek Elementary School Library is sponsoring a student book fair this week, Oct. 1 through 5. Students will be able to browse and purchase books, and book fair hours are from 7:45 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

"All parents, students and visitors are invited to attend the fair," said librarian Leila Kindla. "The fair will encourage student interest in reading and in building home libraries, and will also contribute to a worthwhile project for the library."

Kindle and P.T.O. parent volunteers are sponsoring the event.

"The book fair display includes atractive new books from many major publishers in all popular price ranges," Kindla said. "These books are good to read or to give as gifts. All reading interests are represented, including classics, fiction, biography, adventure stories, science, nature, crafts and mystery books."

Seniors prepare

"Destiny is not a matter of chance, it is a matter of choice," was chosen as class motto when seniors discussed and voted on class song, colors, flower, motto and activities recently.

This year's senior class flower is the white rose, and their colors are blue and silver. The song "Hold On," by Wilson Phillips is currently under consideration, pending the submission of other songs.

T-shirts chosen were white with blue print. On the front is the number 91, with senior class members signatures inside the numbers, and on the back is the phrase, "We're Outta Here!"

The class is still discussing ideas for their senior class trip.

James R. Cassel III named Merit Scholarship semi-finalist

James R. Cassel III of Bandera has been named one of 15,000 semifinalists nationwide in the 1991 National Merit Scholarship Program.

Cassel is the son of James R. Cassel Jr., and Dorothy Cassel, both of Bandera. He is the grandson of Velma Cassel, and O.W. and Vernell Mullenax, also of Bandera.

Cassel and the other semifinalists represent about one-half of one percent of graduating seniors, and they have an opportunity to continue in the competition for 6,000 Merit Scholarships worth approximately $25 million. More than 1 million students in 19,000 high schools entered the merit program as juniors by taking the 1989 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test, which served as an initial screen of the large volume of entrants.

Cassel now advances to the finalist level of the competition. He was selected on the basis of his outstanding academic record, an endorsement by his high school principal, and a scholarship application that included a self-description and his educational plans and goals.

Gumbo goes Cajun at lake

Photos and story by James Henry Frazar

Christi Bennett of San Antonio and L.C. Kelley of Kelley's Shamrock Tavern in Pipe Creek add a little "Irish glow" to their "Irish Gumbo."

The Whoosits played the "Unicorn Song" for the Lakehills crowd and "Scratch" got the crowd into hand motions with help from Whoosits-fans.

Young children used stick horses provided by Gumbo Downs entrants to compete in short races. Some of the children were not familiar with stick horses.

Chef Frenchie Guidry of the Acadiana Cafe, winner of two awards, and one of the restaurant's "wait persons," Xanthe Johnson, were on hand for Gumbo fun.

People enjoy dancing to the western two-step no matter what music is playing.

The 10th annual Cajun Festival in Lakehills, formerly known as the "Great Gumbo Cookoff," was so successful, festival vendors sold out of everything and everyone stayed till late.

"If a had nickle for everyone that told me they'd be back next year, I'd be rich," says general chairman Bob Caswell.

Medina Lake Betterment Association president Peggy Ashmore estimates that there were up to 4,500 in attendance at the festival. The MLBA sponsors the event and uses proceeds from the event as major fundraiser.

Winners of the event included the chef Frenchie Guidry of San Antonio's Acadiana Cafe, who took both the people's choice award and professional division top honors.

Rod Lind of Llano, head cook of the L&P cookers from Llano took first place in the amateur division.

George Driffill, with the Lakehills American Legion Post 410 "Shotgun" Gumbo took second place in the amateur division. He was assisted by Vida Tindle and supervised by Kathleen Bradshaw, the first place amateur winner from 1989.

The showmanship trophy went to "Gumbo Downs", cooked by the Pipe Creek and San Antonio group of friends and relatives Gene Smith, John Sorrell, Scott Sorrell Jimmy Kuza, and John Renshaw.

Lifetime s&p collection to go on sale in Pipe Creek

A Bandera woman has decided to give up a 50-year hobby of collecting over 500 sets of salt and pepper shakers.

May Bachelor, 78, of Bandera has collected hundreds of salt and pepper shakers from Germany, Japan, Mexico, and several states in the U.S. since the 1940s. In all, her collection took up two storerooms at her house in Bandera.

She will offer her collection for sale this week in Pipe Creek.

Bachelor says she started collecting seriously in 1947 when her husband, the late Frank Bachelor, was stationed in Germany.

She would then buy some everywhere Frank happened to be stationed.

"I started with a few, not enough to brag about. But then I got bit by the (collecting) bug and started buying them," says Bachelor. The sets in her collection were either given to her or she says she bought them for as little as a dime or up to $3 or $4.

Some of the shakers are shaped like frogs, log cabins, frying pans, a boy and girl on the love bench, washing machine that the ringer makes the salt and pepper, and tricycles, says Helen McKandles, who will conduct the sale.

Most of the salt and pepper shakers are shaped like animals, vegetables, fruits and people, says McKandles.

Bachelor says if she saw a set that she liked the looks of, she sought to make it hers. "If I didn't think I had one (a set) like it, I bought it," says Bachelor.

Most of the sets in her collection are made of china or ceramic materials, and others are made of aluminum, glass, and wood, and there is one set made of brass, says McKandles.

Her collection will be sold at the Pecan Tree Store in Pipe Creek Saturday, Oct. 6, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday, Oct. 7, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Hank Amos practices one of his water skiing tricks on Medina Lake. He regularly uses the lake to practice for competition.

Ski champ trains at Medina Lake

By Carol Smith
Special Correspondent

Sea World skier, Hank Amos, who trains at Medina Lake, set a new ski world record in September.

Amos and his partner, Mike Crandell, also operate a ski instruction school at Medina Lake.

Amos set a new world record in the free-style jump category for the longest slalom mobius (back flip with a full twist on one ski) at Marine World in Vallejo California.

Amos' record 99-foot jump was set on the United States Tour of the Michelob Dry Water Ski Championships held Sept. 8 and 9. The championships were prerecorded and will be aired on the ESPN sports network.

Amos, 19, placed third in the first competition in his home state of Florida. He didn't qualify for a few competitions and then began to place second and third consistently.

In the next to the last meet, held in Wichita, Kan., he took second place. In Vallego, he placed second in the competition and set his 99-foot world record for the longest shalom mobius.

This placed him third overall for the tour.

Amos and Crandall run the Medina Ski School presently operating on Medina Lake.

Both men work in the ski show at Sea World doing trick skiing, which include slalom (skiing with one ski) free-style jumping, doubles (skiing with another person on your shoulders) and pyramids (building a "pyramid" of people while skiing).

Amos resides in San Antonio and Crandall lives at the lake. "Hank trained for the tour and his record jump out here on the lake," Crandall says, "the ski jump at work (Sea World) is 36 feet wide and you can't really miss it. The ski jump we use on the lake is an A.W.S.A. (American Water Ski Association) regulation jump, 14 feet wide. It makes it a lot harder to cut into."

Crandall has built several ski jumps for the Dallas Metroplex Ski Club which were used for professional ski tours and also jumps for Cypress Gardens. "I learned to ski when I was 10," Crandall explains, "but it wasn't until I was building jumps for Cypress Gardens that I decided I'd like to learn to trick ski. So I learned to do back flips, helicopters (360 degree turns) and jumps. The Sea World of Texas came along, I tried out, got the job and here I am."

The Medina Ski School will teach beginners or pros, age 6 to 65, just about any one who has the desire to learn. They also teach trick skiing and other water sports, such as kneeboarding. "We also stress boat safety, and safety in general," elaborates Crandall, "it's real important. We always stretch before skiing and we don't ski close to anybody else, and things of that nature."

Practice sessions are held anywhere on the lake where the conditions are favorable and the jump, which is currently stored, is available. Crandall and Amos are in the process of trying to refurbish a building in Mico for a ski shop/store to open in February 1991. The store will sell skis, water toys, wetsuits, gloves and ski paraphernalia.

New VFW post to elect

Ralph Raby of Pipe Creek was named acting commander of the new Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2030 in the Pipe Creek and Lakehills area.

An organizational meeting to elect permanent officers for the new post will be held Tuesday, Oct. 9, at 7:30 p.m. at Fiddlin' Phil's Barbecue on FM Road 1283 south of Pipe Creek.

Raby was named acting commander at the organization's first meeting Sept. 25 at the Pipe Creek Community Center, reports District 23 Commander Brenda S. Caldwell.

A total of 28 veterans have already joined the post, she says. "Veterans who join within 90 days of the institution of the post will be included as charter members," says Caldwell.

At Tuesday's meeting members will select the date for the institution of the post and membership cards will be distributed.

"Wives are invited to an organizational meeting to form an auxiliary," says Caldwell. "There will be a representative from the (district) auxiliary present to assist in the organization."

"If 100 new or reinstated members join before June 30, 1991, the post will receive a post flag and U.S. flag set free of charge from (the VFW) national headquarters," says Caldwell. The set is normally priced at over $700.

For more information, call Raby at 535-6509.

Legion auxiliary to sponsor 'Simple Life' musical farce

A variety show, "The Simple Life," will be presented Saturday, Oct. 27, sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary Unit 410, auxiliary officials announced Sept. 27.

Rehearsals for the musical farce, written and directed by Lucille Moore and to be held at the Lakehills Civic Center, will begin soon.

Admission tickets will be $2 in advance.

In other Legion news, auxiliary president Iris Durham, announced that the Legionnaires are presently negotiating for a new roof on a portion of the Post home in Lakehills. Auxiliary members voted to contribute towards those repairs, reports spokeswoman Jerry Mauer.

Colorful new kitchen curtains, made and installed by Mary Peterson, were displayed as well as a sampler quilt stitched by Durham to be quilted and offered as a prize during next year's July 4 Post activities, says Mauer.

The newly-framed unit charter, dated and signed in 1969, was presented. This project, begun by the late Elaine Mixon, unit chaplain, was completed in her memory by the past unit presidents who comprise the past presidents parley, says Mauer.

The 21st District convention will be held in Llano Oct. 6-7.

Auxiliary-sponsored Bluebonnet Girls State attendees, Amy Thompson, Bonnie Mallis, and Rachel Bosworth, reported on their activities at the June session of Girls State at the auxiliary's August meeting.

Raffles OKed for charity, but subject to limitations

For years, organizations in Bandera County and elsewhere in Texas have held raffles illegally to raise money for charitable causes. They are now legal, says attorney general Jim Mattox, but there are important limitations.

"The law allows a qualified organization to hold only two raffles per year and only one raffle at a time," says Mattox.

In general, organizations eligible to hold raffles in Texas include:

- Religious organizations that have existed in Texas for at least 10 years.
- Volunteer emergency medical or fire departments.
- Nonprofit organizations which have existed for at least three years and are exempt from federal income tax under section 501(c) of the Internal Revenue Code.

"Organizations that compensate members or officers, devote substantial resources toward influencing legislation, or participate in political campaigns are not eligible to hold raffles) under the law," Mattox said.

Only members of an organization may sell raffle tickets and tickets may not be advertised statewide or through paid advertising, the attorney general pointed out.

"No one may receive compensation for organizing or conducting a raffle or for selling raffle tickets," he said.

Raffle prizes may be of any value up to $25,000, but cash prizes may not be offered. The organization must have each raffle prize in its possession or must post a bond for the full amount of the money value of the prize with the county clerk, Mattox said.

"Before buying a raffle ticket, purchasers should examine the ticket carefully to make sure the raffle is legitimate," Mattox cautioned. "Each raffle ticket must state the name and address of the organization holding the raffle and the name of an officer of the organization."

The price of the ticket and a general description of each prize valued over $10 must also be printed on the ticket, he said.

"An unauthorized raffle is considered gambling under the Texas Penal Code and conducting such a raffle is a third-degree felony," Mattox said. Simply buying a ticket in an unauthorized raffle is a Class C misdemeanor.

He said the county attorney may bring action in a state court to stop an unauthorized raffle.

A free brochure on charitable raffles is available by writing the Texas Attorney General's Office, Box 12548, Austin 78711.

Events scheduled

Monthly events at the Utopia Senior Citizens' Center include a monthly birthday covered-dish luncheon on the second Friday and monthly bingo games on the second Tuesday at 7 p.m.

Bingo prizes consist of a can of fruit or other tempting food items brought by participants.

Hondo fest planned

Hondo's Market Trail Day Saturday, Oct. 13, will include "mucho food," arts and crafts, a free street dance, a queen's contest, games, a tamale "eat-off sponsored by the police department," and a chili cookoff.

Celebrating 100th

Uvalde's Grand Opera House will celebrate its 100th anniversary in 1991 with performances of "The Odd Couple" in February, "Inherit the Wind" in April, and "Camelot" in June.

Applications from potential cast members are now being accepted at 100 West North St., Uvalde 78801.

Responsible drinking attitude goal of BACCHUS

Creating a responsible attitude about drinking is the goal of a new Schreiner College student organization called BACCHUS (Boost Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students).

The new chapter drew attention to the problems of drinking and driving by displaying on campus a car destroyed in an alcohol-related crash.

The group hopes to make students who choose to drink aware of their responsibilities by such displays, a proposed designated-driver program, and events before Schreiner breaks to promote safe holidays, says Kathryn Harvey, BACCHUS sponsor and Schreiner's school nurse.

"My goal is to increase students' awareness of alcohol-related issues," said Harvey.

BACCHUS includes students who are Alcoholics Anonymous members and others who want to discourage abusive drinking.

"BACCHUS is more to educate students about responsible drinking and making decisions for a lifetime," said Harvey.

Early-day tractors in Meridian show

Three men who loved their own old tractors decided in 1971 they would put on a show. Though their first effort was less than successful, it led to the formation of the Texas Early Days Tractor and Gas Engine Association and its semi-annual shows in Meridian.

The group's 19th anniversary show will be held Oct. 6 and 7, and plans for the design and construction of a permanent heritage farm and museum will be discussed.

Back home again after another round trip up the cattle trail to Oklahoma and through Raton Pass to the granite overhangs of South Platte Canyon in Colorado, the first voice we heard on the telephone was that of a politely indignant lady.

Our caller was objecting to a recent flippancy of ours to the effect that Yankees never learned to be nice. She was a Yankee, she said, presenting credentials from Indiana, Canada, and other points north. She contended, with correctness, that everybody everywhere is really nice when you get to know them. She's right of course.

But having just spent a week wheedling the mountain village storekeeper's wife, whom we've known for only forty years, into the kind of friendly banter engaged in by strangers at the grocery in Texas, we wanted to argue with our friend on the phone.

Having spent several days making a game of saying "How're Y'all this morning?" to buttoned down and buttoned up Chicago businessmen just to watch their alarmed expressions as they hurried off the hotel elevator in Denver—we thought of using the findings of our "Howdy" survey to continue to defend our column remark.

Then we decided not to. After all, it had not been good Southern manners in the first place to chide Northerners for their taciturnity, reserve, bluntness, or silence especially in the face of the kind of chattering effrontery with which we had been attempting to thaw the Rocky Mountain ice.

So we said, well, we had Yankee credentials too, listing family antecedents in Maine, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois who converged in Kansas with strains from Georgia, Alabama, Kentucky, Mississippi and Texas.

And just as some of those ancestors fled from the battle fields of the Civil War and went home to help mama tend the crops, we in our internal melting pot here must raise the white flags also.

It doesn't really seem true that we're all still fighting the War between the States, as such, but thinking about it for a minute, perhaps we are. The struggle is not over freight rates and slavery, but over the subtle differences of attitudes toward life. The Southerner inherited from his Celtic ancestors a tradition of free hospitality to strangers, finding it easy to open the door when it was warm and sunny outside. The Yankee, working through the short summer to get together enough potatoes and onions and firewood to make it through the winter, hesitated to open the door to let in the cold—or a hungry traveler.

OK—let the calls come in. We know there are northern tales of kindness and charity as well as examples of Southern churlishness and exclusion. We'll retell every one we receive. Promise.

Meanwhile, some Denver citizens were recently protesting to us over the sending by Texas of Mayor Federico Pena, a Valley native, to ruin their city with his extravagances. We retorted with the reminder that Henry C.'s father is from Pueblo, Colorado. Tit for tat.

Hank Amos practices one of his water skiing tricks on Medina Lake. He regularly uses the lake to practice for competition.

Ski champ trains at Medina Lake

By Carol Smith
Special Correspondent

Sea World skier, Hank Amos, who trains at Medina Lake, set a new ski world record in September.

Amos and his partner, Mike Crandell, also operate a ski instruction school at Medina Lake.

Amos set a new world record in the free-style jump category for the longest slalom mobius (back flip with a full twist on one ski) at Marine World in Vallejo California.

Amos' record 99-foot jump was set on the United States Tour of the Michelob Dry Water Ski Championships held Sept. 8 and 9. The championships were prerecorded and will be aired on the ESPN sports network.

Amos, 18, placed third in the first competition in his home state of Florida. He didn't qualify for a few competitions and then began to place second and third consistently.

In the next to the last meet, held in Wichita, Kan., he took second place. In Vallego, he placed second in the competition and set his 99-foot world record for the longest shalom mobius.

This placed him third overall for the tour.

Amos and Crandall run the Medina Ski School presently operating on Medina Lake.

Both men work in the ski show at Sea World doing trick skiing, which include slalom (skiing with one ski) free-style jumping, doubles (skiing with another person on your shoulders) and pyramids (building a "pyramid" of people while skiing).

Amos resides in San Antonio and Crandall lives at the lake. "Hank trained for the tour and his record jump out here on the lake," Crandall says, "the ski jump at work (Sea World) is 36 feet wide and you can't really miss it. The ski jump we use on the lake is an A.W.S.A. (American Water Ski Association) regulation jump, 14 feet wide. It makes it a lot harder to cut into."

Crandall has built several ski jumps for the Dallas Metroplex Ski Club which were used for professional ski tours and also jumps for Cypress Gardens. "I learned to ski when I was 10," Crandall explains, "but it wasn't until I was building jumps for Cypress Gardens that I decided I'd like to learn to trick ski. So I learned to do back flips, helicopters (360 degree turns) and jumps. The Sea World of Texas came along, I tried out, got the job and here I am."

The Medina Ski School will teach beginners or pros, age 6 to 65, just about any one who has the desire to learn. They also teach trick skiing and other water sports, such as kneeboarding. "We also stress boat safety, and safety in general," elaborates Crandall, "it's real important. We always stretch before skiing and we don't ski close to anybody else, and things of that nature."

Practice sessions are held anywhere on the lake where the conditions are favorable and the jump, which is currently stored, is available. Crandall and Amos are in the process of trying to refurbish a building in Mico for a ski shop/store to open in February 1991. The store will sell skis, water toys, wetsuits, gloves and ski paraphernalia.

Legion auxiliary to sponsor 'Simple Life' musical farce

A variety show, "The Simple Life," will be presented Saturday, Oct. 27, sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary Unit 410, auxiliary officials announced Sept. 27.

Rehearsals for the musical farce, written and directed by Lucille Moore and to be held at the Lakehills Civic Center, will begin soon.

Admission tickets will be $2 in advance.

In other Legion news, auxiliary president Iris Durham, announced that the Legionnaires are presently negotiating for a new roof on a portion of the Post home in Lakehills. Auxiliary members voted to contribute towards those repairs, reports spokeswoman Jerry Mauer.

Colorful new kitchen curtains, made and installed by Mary Peterson, were displayed as well as a sampler quilt stitched by Durham to be quilted and offered as a prize during next year's July 4 Post activities, says Mauer.

The newly-framed unit charter, dated and signed in 1969, was presented. This project, begun by the late Elaine Mixon, unit chaplain, was completed in her memory by the past unit presidents who comprise the past presidents parley, says Mauer.

The 21st District convention will be held in Llano Oct. 6-7.

Auxiliary-sponsored Bluebonnet Girls State attendees, Amy Thompson, Bonnie Mallia, and Rachel Bosworth, reported on their activities at the June session of Girls State at the auxiliary's August meeting.

UMC youth change fellowship grouping

The Lakehills United Methodist Youth group will begin meeting in two separate groups starting at noon Sunday, Oct. 14.

A pizza lunch will be served Oct. 14.

The senior youth group will discuss "The End of the World," and will be led by McKay and his wife, Cindy. The junior youth group will discuss "The Beginning of the World," and will be led by Lynn Rogers, says McKay.

Raffles OKed for charity, but subject to limitations

For years, organizations in Bandera County and elsewhere in Texas have held raffles illegally to raise money for charitable causes. They are now legal, says attorney general Jim Mattox, but there are important limitations.

"The law allows a qualified organization to hold only two raffles per year and only one raffle at a time," says Mattox.

In general, organizations eligible to hold raffles in Texas include:

- Religious organizations that have existed in Texas for at least 10 years.
- Volunteer emergency medical or fire departments.
- Nonprofit organizations which have existed for at least three years and are exempt from federal income tax under section 501(c) of the Internal Revenue Code.

"Organizations that compensate members or officers, devote substantial resources toward influencing legislation, or participate in political campaigns are not eligible (to hold raffles) under the law," Mattox said.

Only members of an organization may sell raffle tickets and tickets may not be advertised statewide or through paid advertising, the attorney general pointed out.

"No one may receive compensation for organizing or conducting a raffle or for selling raffle tickets," he said.

Raffle prizes may be of any value up to $25,000, but cash prizes may not be offered. The organization must have each raffle prize in its possession or must post a bond for the full amount of the money value of the prize with the county clerk, Mattox said.

"Before buying a raffle ticket, purchasers should examine the ticket carefully to make sure the raffle is legitimate," Mattox cautioned. "Each raffle ticket must state the name and address of the organization holding the raffle and the name of an officer of the organization."

The price of the ticket and a general description of each prize valued over $10 must also be printed on the ticket, he said.

"An unauthorized raffle is considered gambling under the Texas Penal Code and conducting such a raffle is a third-degree felony," Mattox said. Simply buying a ticket in an unauthorized raffle is a Class C misdemeanor.

He said the county attorney may bring action in a state court to stop an unauthorized raffle.

A free brochure on charitable raffles is available by writing the Texas Attorney General's Office Box 12548, Austin 78711.

Homecare support group forming at Silver Sage Corral

A support group for persons caring in their homes for seriously ill or terminally ill family members will be formed at the Silver Sage Corral senior citizens center.

"Caretaking is a stressful, lonely and back-breaking task," said Heeg. "Being with others who are experiencing a similar situation is very helpful."

She urged interested persons to support the group by referring relatives, neighbors and friends. "It will make their task just a little easier," she said.

Bandera Nursing Home

The Rev. Gerald Evans of the First Baptist Church of Medina brought Sunday's message. Pianist was Shana Knueper and song leader was Chris Keiser. The church youth group sang several hymns, and the group included three exchange students, Marena Hemalainen from Finland, Talcaak Kameoyo from Japan and Ben Choilland from Switzerland; Cali Barton, Erin Keese, Shane Keese, Dusty Reed, Maya Lay, Charles Knueper, Nathan Vanstatter, Jordan Vannatter, Jason Small, Barbara Evans, and Sue Keiser.

The rosary group that met Monday evening for prayers and singing included residents Elvira Sgrignali, Ada Sehon, Evelyn Hostetter, Mae Eidenshink; and Christine Kalka; and Jeanne Evans, Joyce Sellberg, Fannie Caffall, Aggie Batto and Annette Kalka-Schulte from St. Stanislaus Catholic Church.

Lum and Lillian Holloway of San Antonio picked up his brother, Jack Holloway Tuesday, and went to Kerrville where they had lunch with Hoyt and Laverne Hamrick. They stopped by the Hamricks for pie and coffee before returning Jack to the nursing home.

Luther and June Mathis' guest were their son Artie Mathis of Corpus Christi, Johnnie Stitt and Irene Smith.

Ola Bell Allsup of Medina visited Louie Allsup.

Edith and James Greene celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary in September and C.C. and Thelma Rankin celebrated their 48th wedding anniversary on Oct. 1.

Nelson and Norma Evans visited Nola Baldock.

Mary Sue Black is a new resident at the nursing home.

Mada Wedgworth took Winnie Chaddock and Glenn English to the birthday dinner at the Silver Sage Corral last Tuesday. Glenn won a prize.

Lillian Ray visited Sue Black and Glenn English.

Lois King is in the hospital.

Ruth Cowley and Gertrude Dohrow from Lakehills AARP served refreshments at the games party last Wednesday afternoon.

They also received a corsage or boutonniere, flowers and happy birthday wished from staff and residents. Family members visited and wished them a happy birthday.

Presidential veto 'disappointment'

President George Bush's veto of the Family and Medical Leave Act has been called "a terrible disappointment" by the president of the National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare.

The U.S. House of Representatives failed to override the president's veto of the measure which would have mandated unpaid leave of absences for family members forced to be temporarily absent from their jobs to care for a sick spouse, elderly parent, sick child or a newly born or adopted child.

"This is a terrible disappointment for all American families," said national committee president Martha McSteen. "Nursing a family member through an illness is a tremendous burden. It should not be compounded by worries about one's job."

The bill would have applied only to the 5 percent of businesses that are the largest in the country, McSteen said. It would not have applied to any home-owned businesses in Bandera County.

It would have required businesses with more than 50 employees to grant up to 12 weeks of unpaid leave for workers to care for family members. Workers also could have taken leave for their own serious illness.

McSteen said supporters of the legislation have vowed to continue their efforts until family leave legislation is enacted. "It is imperative that family leave legislation, including elder and spousal care, be available to help the American family through troubled times," she said.

A Thought For The Week
By John M. Grimes

Too often children are familiar with and expect all the privileges of belonging to a family circle, but have not been trained in assuming the responsibilities which should always accompany privileges.

Children should be expected to share in the work of the home, thereby developing a sense of responsibility and experiencing the joy of co-operative effort which will extend to their outside relationships later.

To learn what it means to submerge one's own personal interests in the larger interests of the family develops in the children a proper sense of values and reduces his natural selfishness.

When a child has been deprived of the experience of taking his share of responsibility in the home, he invariably finds it difficult to make the necessary adjustments when he leaves home and gets out into the world on his own...

Ten thoroughbreds qualify for $30,000 futurity Oct. 14

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Ten two-year old thoroughbreds qualified in time trails Friday for the Oct. 14 San Antonio Futurity at Bandera Downs.

They will compete for a purse of $30,690, with some $10,000 of that amount added by the track. The first place finisher coming away with over $10,000 in the six-furlong race.

Qualifiers included winners of the two trail heats, Louie Moon, who ran 1:24.8, and Boldienne, who ran 1:13.4.

Other qualifiers include Pinaud Clubman, Trux Tex, Pigeon Flight, and Ancestral Gold, all with times of 1:13.6.

Additional qualifiers are Krissy Prissy (1:13.8), Beach Pilot (1:13.8), Delivery Girl (1:14 flat), and Stacy's Princess (1:14.2).

No one won the twin trifecta during the three days of racing and the carryover jackpot stands at $24,760 for Friday's races.

In Friday's fourth race, Hardley Mann, trained by top money winning trainer Toby Keeton and owned by Mike Tuckness, tied the track record for 1,000 yards set by Mr. Collier on Sept. 23 at 53.25 seconds. Ricky Walker had the mount.

The feature race Friday, a six-furlong thoroughbred claiming race, was won by Street Tuff.

Jockey Jerry Lee Yoakum ran the 4-year-old colt in third and fourth position through much of the race, but the horse took off into the stretch to flash moving into first.

In Friday's closing race, jockey Scott Luce was injured after he jumped off his winning horse, Zevi Moon.

Luce suffered a broken tibia and fibula and was taken by ambulance to Methodist Hospital in San Antonio.

Zevi Moon was also taken off the track by veterinary mobile barn with what appeared to be an injured front leg.

In Saturday's eighth race, jockey David Brown led trainer Brad Marcom's Vivid Memory to the winner's circle, but the 3-2 favorite may have not been the winner in the five-horse field if the three horses with the lowest morning line odds hadn't been scratched.

In Saturday's featured race, a 400-yard overnight handicap, Doctor Bright, ridden by Robert Bard, won with a time of 20.41 seconds.

In Sunday's feature, 9-1 Rigid Policy was the unexpected winner of the 550-yard quarter horse heat. Rigid Policy not run at Bandera, but has run at Remington Park and Gillespie County Fairgrounds.

The longshot of the weekend was 25-1 Air Jet Willie, ridden by Alex Baldillez, in the eighth race Sunday, who paid $60, $19.80 and $8.20.

Bandera Downs' next handicapping seminar will be held Wednesday beginning at 7 p.m. at the Cold River Cattle Company. Admission is free.

A team representing Clear Fork Medical Clinic consisting of Clay and Howard Billings and Chris Groff won first place in calf branding and trailer loading and placed third overall.

Bandera's junior high gridders won a pair of games at Stockdale Thursday afternoon, the seventh graders squeaking out a 18-16 win and the eighth graders winning, 20-6.

After Stockdale's seventh graders scored twice in the first three minutes of the game, Coach Bob Shearhart credited the defensive play of Ryan Pipes, Lee Winright and Arnold McKinney with holding off Stockdale for the remainder of the game.

Adam Diaz, taking hand-offs from quarterback Abe Garza, scored three times for the Bandera win, evening the seventh grader's record at 1-1.

Eighth grade quarterback Jimmy Stroud ran for two touchdowns and tossed a 20-yard strike to receiver Kyle Woodland for a third as Bandera went to 2-1 on the season.

Lorenzo Molina caught a two-point conversion pass from Stroud to complete Bandera's scoring.

The eighth grade's defensive team, behind the lineback play of Gilbert Cardenas, held off the Stockdale team until the final minute of play.

The junior high teams travel to Comfort Thursday for games starting at 5 p.m. and 6 p.m.

Apaches scalp Bobcats, 35-0

By Larry T. Williams
Bulletin Staff Writer

Medina's hapless Bobcats fell to a 0-3 record at the hands of the Antonian Apaches Friday, Sept. 28.

The Apaches scalped the Bobcats 35-0, scoring three touchdowns in the first half and one in each of the last two quarters. The win boosted Antonian's seasonal record to 4-0, which, according to new head coach John Ferrara, is "the best start we've ever had."

Tailback Carlos Esparza was the game's leading scorer with one touchdown and five extra points. Leading rushers were Hector Muniz, with 131 yards and Emilio Sanchez with 77 yards. Medina's Clayton Watts, playing with a crushed finger, rushed for 46 yards and Norman Hurt carried for 32.

Antonian took control of the game early when Hector Muniz received the opening kickoff on the Apache 15-yard line and fought his way to midfield. From there Antonian started an 11-play drive that ended when Emilio Sanchez rammed in from the one for the Apache's first score. Carlos Esparza booted the PAT and the score was 7-0 Antonian with 7:32 left in the first period.

Medina's first drive stalled on the 'Cats own 28 and Muniz returned Chris Keiser's punt to the Bobcat 6-yard line. From there quarterback Mike Lynd scampered across the goal for the Indians second score.

Medina's best drive of the game came after the 'Cats got tough on defense and sacked Lynd twice and Antonian was forced to punt. Starting on his own 33 yard stripe, quarterback Cody Wells rolled around end on a keeper that gained 18 yards, but an "inadvertent whistle" nullified the advance.

On the next play fullback Clayton Watts took the handoff and rambled 32 yards to the Apache 35-yard line. A late hit tacked on an additional 15 steps, and all of a sudden Medina was 20 yards from scoring.

Wingback Chris Lewis grabbed 14 yards on a handoff up the middle and the 'Cats had a first and goal on Antonian's 4-yard line.

That was as close as the Bobcats got to a score.

Two pass attempts from Wells to Norman Hurt failed to connect, and Medina's hopes died as the Apaches took over the ball on downs.

Antonian punched out to their own 16 and Muniz raced 64 yards to the Bobcat 16 and set up Antonian's next score. Tom Regan carried the ball over from the 1-yard-line for Antonian's third touchdown.

Late in the third stanza, Esparza scored on a 6-yard scamper and with five minutes left to play in the game, Brad Meyer snagged a Lynd pass in the end zone to cap off the Apache scoring.

"Antonian may be the toughest team we'll face," said Bobcat head coach Joe Winchell. "Things might have been different if we could have scored when we got so close in the second quarter. Not making a touchdown then really hurt us."

Medina will face another tough game with TMI next Friday in Medina at 8 p.m.

Bulldogs maul Stockdale, 26-18

Unusual recovery results in two points for 'Dogs

By Bob Hopper
Special Correspondent

An explosive first half of football had fans on both sides of the field looking for rule books Friday night at Stockdale as Bandera's Bulldogs captured their third win of the season, 26-18, over Stockdale's Brahmas.

Stockdale's Rodney Mayberry scored first with 9:47 to go in the first period from six yards out after the Brahmas recovered a Bulldog fumble on the 17-yard line of Bandera.

On the point-after try, Bulldogs Leroy Brown and Johnny Stroud teamed up to bring fans to their feet and questions flying.

Brown fired through the Brahma line to block the extra-point kick, and Stroud scooped up the ball and dashed 90 yards to score a pair of points for the Bulldogs.

Bandera's passing locked up the game late in the third quarter as quarterback Jason Schneider hit receivers Scott Anderson, Chris Hensley and T.R. Andreas for 51 yards to carry the Bulldogs to the 1-yard line where Bo Mansfield scored his third touchdown of the night with 2:38 left in the quarter.

Hensley, who booted a 34-yard field goal in the second quarter, kicked his third extra point in three tries to provide the Bulldogs with the points for a 26-18 win.

Schneider had his best passing night of the season by completing 8 of 11 aerials for 134 yards. Jimmy Johnson, behind the blocking of center Ben Samuel and guards Roland Rodriguez and Johnny Stroud, gained 72 yards on 18 carries and Mansfield, who scored two first-quarter touchdowns, produced 99 yards on 13 carries and a pass reception.

Defensive Coach Earl Byerley's line frustrated the Brahma offense most of the night.

After Stockdale's second touchdown, a 60-yard run by Mayberry with 2:18 left in the first quarter, the Bulldog defense held the Brahmas to a total of just 61 yards on the ground and 21 through the air.

Linemen Stephen Church, Paul Mangold, Bobby Hopper, Joe Lopez and Stroud stopped all of the Brahma extra point tries.

Defensive end Stroud shook Stockdale late in the first quarter with a pass interception that set up a 25-yard touchdown by Mansfield that came with 3:55 to go.

Mansfield's first score came with 6:49 left on the first-period clock on a play that fooled the Brahma defense and most of the fans in the stadium. On fourth-and-12 on the Bulldog 39-yard line, Coach Chris Storer called for a fake kick that worked.

Punter Leroy Brown rifled a pass across the field to Mansfield, who ambled 61 yards for the score with 6:49 left on the first-period clock.

Bandera had 280 yards of total offense to Stockdale's 179 and the Bulldogs led in first downs, 17 to 9.

The Bulldogs, now 3-1 in non-district play, will host Comfort in a homecoming game Friday at 8 p.m. in Bulldog Stadium.

Bandera girls volleyball teams lose to Somerset, San Antonio Cole

Bandera's Lady Bulldog volleyballers suffered their second district defeat Saturday, Sept. 29, losing in three sets to Somerset, 15-8, 8-15 and 15-11.

"We played a good match, but just could not pull out a win in the final stretch," said Coach Lynn Gilbreath. The Bandera team had 14 kills and eight stuffs, the coach reported.

Tandie Clements scored nine service points and Lisa Wharton had four kills.

The Lady Bulldogs dropped their district opener to San Antonio Cole, also in three sets, 15-10, 3-15 and 15-11. Carrie Fellows had 11 service points and Tandie Clements recorded six kills.

"The first game was close and we dominated the second game," said Coach Gilbreath. "In the third game, we played too cautiously, and Cole took advantage of our errors."

The defeats ran Bandera's season record to 4-11.

The junior varsity A team lost to Cole in straight sets, 15-4 and 15-10, despite eight service points by Amy Calder, who scored 10 service points in the team's 10-15, 15-6 and 15-11 victory over Cole.

The B team lost to Somerset, 15-2 and 15-6, and to Cole, 15-9, 1-15 and 15-12, despite 16 service points by Hope Gilbert.

The Lady Bulldogs played at Medina Valley Tuesday, Oct. 2, and will host Randolph Saturday, Oct. 6, with JV action starting at 4 p.m. and the varsity game getting under way at 5 p.m.

The eighth-grade A team lost to Somerset, 15-10 and 15-10, and the B team split a pair, 11-8 and 5-13.

JV gridders round up Brahmas, 32-0

The Bandera junior varsity remained unbeaten Thursday as they rounded up the Stockdale junior Brahmas, 32-0.

The Pups scored twice in the second period, on a 2-yard run by Marlon Santos and a 30-yard pass from Terry Robertson to Ramiro Tirado that came immediately after an identical 30-yard Robertson pass to Tirado.

Jess Edwards scored on a determined 42-yard run in the third period and on a 2-yard dive in the fourth.

Stockdale's lone score was called back on a clipping penalty early in the fourth quarter.

Ricky Gard, Gordon Bradford, Seth Ralph and Adam Alvizo kept the junior Brahmas from crossing the mid-field stripe for all but five plays during the game.

Cody Woodland, who had one touchdown run called back by a clipping penalty, kicked two extra points for the Pups.

The JV will meet Comfort's JV here Thursday at 6 p.m.

SCHOOL TAX ROLLBACK
Do You Want to Roll Back School Taxes?

Before You Answer that Question, Consider the Following:
* A rollback will decrease the 1991-92 budget by about $866,000. In order to operate the schools, many categories of the 1991-92 budget will have to be cut severely or entirely. In a public meeting held on September 24, 1990, in the high school library, the Board of Trustees unanimously agreed to take the following actions if voters vote AGAINST school taxes and a rollback is passed:

1. All extra-curricular activities will be eliminated. This includes FOOTBALL, BAND, VOLLEYBALL, BASKETBALL, CROSS—COUNTRY, BASEBALL, TRACK & FIELD, UIL ACADEMIC CONTESTS, CHEERLEADERS, PEP SQUADS, ETC. Currently, only $176,860 are budgeted on these activities and this amount will be cut from next year's budget.

2. All school bus transportation will be eliminated except that required by law. The law requires school districts to provide transportation for some special education students whose needs are such that transportation to and from school is necessary. Transporting other students is authorized by the state according to the Texas Education Code, Section 21.174, but is not mandated. Currently, the budget calls for $333,667 for transportation, but $222,471 is provided by the state. The elimination of all bus service will cut $111,196 from next year's budget.

3. Full-day, full-year kindergarten will be reduced to half-day, full-year status. Based on current enrollment, this action will cause a probable reduction in force of three certified teachers and would help alleviate the overcrowding of Alkek Elementary. Salary and supply cuts of about $62,500 could be made in the budget area of instruction by eliminating these three teachers.

4. Ten percent of all projected capital outlay needs will be eliminated. Capital outlay items are things that have a projected life of five or more years. They include COMPUTERS, DESKS, CHAIRS, TABLES, AUDIO—VISUAL MATERIALS, BOOKS, ETC. The 1990-91 budget calls for $104,241 in capital outlay (after depleting transportation and co-curricular budgets from consideration). A ten-percent reduction in capital outlay would result in a decrease of $10,424 in the 1991-92 budget.

5. The Junior High and High School will revert to a six period day. Currently, BISD secondary schools operate on a seven period basis. This allows students to avail themselves of elective courses such as vocational agriculture, office education, home economics, higher math and science courses, etc. Returning to only six periods per day would decrease the opportunity for students to take these electives, thereby causing a possible reduction in force of teachers who teach these courses. Also, each required class at these schools would become fuller (less periods in which to place students), meaning that more students could be placed in each class, possibly reducing staff even further. The exact number of teachers to be deleted cannot be determined at the present time, but the Board and administration estimate cuts for instructional personnel and supplies at about $100,000.

* These cuts, which the Board has unanimously concluded must occur as first priority cuts if a rollback is passed, only total $460,980. Further cuts must be made and will be made in order to open the school doors next year. The Board has not yet determined its second-priority cuts but will continue to study its financial situation to see where additional cuts might be made if voters vote AGAINST a school tax increase and pass a rollback.

(The School Board knows these programs are important to the education of the young people of this community. These are not actions that the Board would recommend except in a dire financial situation such as this rollback.)

Apaches scalp Bobcats, 35-0

By Larry T. Williams
Bulletin Staff Writer

Medina's hapless Bobcats fell to a 0-3 record at the hands of the Antonian Apaches Friday, Sept. 28.

The Apaches scalped the Bobcats 35-0, scoring three touchdowns in the first half and one in each of the last two quarters. The win boosted Antonian's seasonal record to 4-0, which, according to new head coach John Ferrara, is "the best start we've ever had."

Tailback Carlos Esparza was the game's leading scorer with one touchdown and five extra points. Leading rushers were Hector Muniz, with 131 yards and Emilio Sanchez with 77 yards. Medina's Clayton Watts, playing with a crushed finger, ruahed for 46 yards and Norman Hurt carried for 32.

Antonian took control of the game early when Hector Muniz received the opening kickoff on the Apache 15-yard line and fought his way to midfield. From there Antonian started an 11-play drive that ended when Emilio Sanchez rammed in from the one for the Apache's first score. Carlos Esparza booted the PAT and the score was 7-0 Antonian with 7:32 left in the first period.

Medina's first drive stalled on the 'Cats own 28 and Muniz returned Chris Keiser's punt to the Bobcat 6-yard line. From there quarterback Mike Lynd scampered across the goal for the Indians second score.

Medina's best drive of the game came after the 'Cats got tough on defense and sacked Lynd twice and Antonian was forced to punt. Starting on his own 33 yard stripe, quarterback Cody Wells rolled around end on a keeper that gained 18 yards, but an "inadvertent whistle" nullified the advance.

On the next play fullback Clayton Watte took the handoff and rambled 32 yards to the Apache 35-yard line. A late hit tacked on an additional 15 steps, and all of a sudden Medina was 20 yards from scoring.

Wingback Chris Lewis grabbed 14 yards on a handoff up the middle and the 'Cats had a first and goal on Antonian's 4-yard line.

That was as close as the Bobcats got to a score.

Two pass attempts from Wells to Norman Hurt failed to connect, and Medina's hopes died as the Apaches took over the ball on downs.

Antonian punched out to their own 16 and Muniz raced 64 yards to the Bobcat 16 and set up Antonian's next score. Tom Regan carried the ball over from the 1-yard-line for Antonian's third touchdown.

Late in the third stanza, Esparza scored on a 6-yard scamper and with five minutes left to play in the game, Brad Meyer snagged a Lynd pass in the end zone to cap off the Apache scoring.

"Antonian may be the toughest team we'll face," said Bobcat head coach Joe Winchell. "Things might have been different if we could have scored when we got so close in the second quarter. Not making a touchdown then really hurt us."

Medina will face another tough game with TMI next Friday in Medina at 8 p.m.

Bulldogs maul Stockdale, 26-18

Unusual recovery results in two points for 'Dogs

By Bob Hopper
Special Correspondent

An explosive first half of football had fans on both sides of the field looking for rule books Friday night at Stockdale as Bandera's Bulldogs captured their third win of the season, 26-18, over Stockdale's Brahmas.

Stockdale's Rodney Mayberry scored first with 9:47 to go in the first period from six yards out after the Brahmas recovered a Bulldog fumble on the 17-yard line of Bandera.

On the point-after try, Bulldogs Leroy Brown and Johnny Stroud teamed up to bring fans to their feet and questions flying.

Brown fired through the Brahma line to block the extra-point kick, and Stroud scooped up the ball and dashed 90 yards to score a pair of points for the Bulldogs.

Bandera's passing locked up the game late in the third quarter as quarterback Jason Schneider hit receivers Scott Anderson, Chris Hensley and T.R. Andreas for 51 yards to carry the Bulldogs to the 1-yard line where Bo Mansfield scored his third touchdown of the night with 2:38 left in the quarter.

Hensley, who booted a 34-yard field goal in the second quarter, kicked his third extra point in three tries to provide the Bulldogs with the points for a 26-18 win.

Schneider had his best passing night of the season by completing 8 of 11 aerials for 134 yards. Jimmy Johnson, behind the blocking of center Ben Samuel and guards Roland Rodriguez and Johnny Stroud, gained 72 yards on 18 carries and Mansfield, who scored two first-quarter touchdowns, produced 99 yards on 13 carries and a pass reception.

Defensive Coach Earl Byerley's line frustrated the Brahma offense most of the night.

After Stockdale's second touchdown, a 60-yard run by Mayberry with 2:18 left in the first quarter, the Bulldog defense held the Brahmas to a total of just 61 yards on the ground and 21 through the air.

Linemen Stephen Church, Paul Mangold, Bobby Hopper, Joe Lopez and Stroud stopped all of the Brahma extra point tries.

Defensive end Stroud shook Stockdale late in the first quarter with a pass interception that set up a 25-yard touchdown by Mansfield that came with 3:55 to go.

Mansfield's first score came with 6:49 left on the first-period clock on a play that fooled the Brahma defense and most of the fans in the stadium. On fourth-and-12 on the Bulldog 39-yard line, Coach Chris Storer called for a fake kick that worked.

Punter Leroy Brown rifled a pass across the field to Mansfield, who ambled 61 yards for the score with 6:49 left on the first-period clock.

Bandera had 280 yards of total offense to Stockdale's 179 and the Bulldogs led in first downs, 17 to 9.

The Bulldogs, now 3-1 in non-district play, will host Comfort in a homecoming game Friday at 8 p.m. in Bulldog Stadium.

Bandera girls volleyball teams lose to Somerset, San Antonio Cole

Bandera's Lady Bulldog volleyballers suffered their second district defeat Saturday, Sept. 29, losing in three sets to Somerset, 15-8, 8-15 and 15-11.

"We played a good match, but just could not pull out a win in the final stretch," said Coach Lynn Gilbreath. The Bandera team had 14 kills and eight stuffs, the coach reported.

Tandie Clements scored nine service points and Lisa Wharton had four kills.

The Lady Bulldogs dropped their district opener to San Antonio Cole, also in three sets, 15-10, 3-15 and 15-11. Carrie Fellows had 11 service points and Tandie Clements recorded six kills.

"The first game was close and we dominated the second game," said Coach Gilbreath. "In the third game, we played too cautiously, and Cole took advantage of our errors."

The defeats ran Bandera's season record to 4-11.

The junior varsity A team lost to Cole in straight sets, 15-4 and 15-10, despite eight service points by Amy Calder, who scored 10 service points in the team's 10-15, 15-6 and 15-11 victory over Cole.

The B team lost to Somerset, 15-2 and 15-6, and to Cole, 15-9, 1-15 and 15-12, despite 16 service points by Hope Gilbert.

The Lady Bulldogs played at Medina Valley Tuesday, Oct. 2, and will host Randolph Saturday, Oct. 6, with JV action starting at 4 p.m. and the varsity game getting under way at 5 p.m.

The eighth-grade A team lost to Somerset, 15-10 and 15-10, and the B team split a pair, 11-8 and 5-13.

JV gridders round up Brahmas, 32-0

The Bandera junior varsity remained unbeaten Thursday as they rounded up the Stockdale junior Brahmas, 32-0.

The Pups scored twice in the second period, on a 2-yard run by Marlon Santos and a 30-yard pass from Terry Robertson to Ramiro Tirado that came immediately after an identical 30-yard Robertson pass to Tirado.

Jess Edwards scored on a determined 42-yard run in the third period and on a 2-yard dive in the fourth.

Stockdale's lone score was called back on a clipping penalty early in the fourth quarter.

Ricky Gard, Gordon Bradford, Seth Ralph and Adam Alvizo kept the junior Brahmas from crossing the mid-field stripe for all but five plays during the game.

Cody Woodland, who had one touchdown run called back by a clipping penalty, kicked two extra points for the Pups.

The JV will meet Comfort's JV here Thursday at 6 p.m.

SCHOOL TAX ROLLBACK
Do You Want to Roll Back School Taxes?

* A rollback will decrease the 1991-92 budget by about $866,000. In order to operate the schools, many categories of the 1991-92 budget will have to be cut severely or entirely. In a public meeting held on September 24, 1990, in the high school library, the Board of Trustees unanimously agreed to take the following actions if voters vote AGAINST school taxes and a rollback is passed:

1. All extra-curricular activities will be eliminated. This includes FOOTBALL, BAND, VOLLEYBALL, BASKETBALL, CROSS—COUNTRY, BASEBALL, TRACK & FIELD, UIL ACADEMIC CONTESTS, CHEERLEADERS, PEP SQUADS, ETC. Currently, only $176,860 are budgeted on these activities and this amount will be cut from next year's budget.

2. All school bus transportation will be eliminated except that required by law. The law requires school districts to provide transportation for some special education students whose needs are such that transportation to and from school is necessary. Transporting other students is authorized by the state according to the Texas Education Code, Section 21.174, but is not mandated. 3. Full-day, full-year kindergarten will be reduced to half-day, full-year status. Based on current enrollment, this action will cause a probable reduction in force of three certified teachers and would help alleviate the overcrowding of Alkek Elementary. Salary and supply cuts of about $62,500 could be made in the budget area of instruction by eliminating these three teachers.

4. Ten percent of all projected capital outlay needs will be eliminated. Capital outlay items are things that have a projected life of five or more years. They include COMPUTERS, DESKS, CHAIRS, TABLES, AUDIO—VISUAL MATERIALS, BOOKS, ETC. The 1990-91 budget calls for $104,241 in capital outlay (after depleting transportation and co-curricular budgets from consideration). A ten-percent reduction in capital outlay would result in a decrease of $10,424 in the 1991-92 budget.

5. The Junior High and High School will revert to a six period day. Currently, BISD secondary schools operate on a seven period basis. This allows students to avail themselves of elective courses such as vocational agriculture, office education, home economics, higher math and science courses, etc. Returning to only six periods per day would decrease the opportunity for students to take these electives, thereby causing a possible reduction in force of teachers who teach these courses. Also, each required class at these schools would become fuller (less periods in which to place students), meaning that more students could be placed in each class, possibly reducing staff even further. The exact number of teachers to be deleted cannot be determined at the present time, but the Board and administration estimate cuts for instructional personnel and supplies at about $100,000.

Our 47th Year, No. 26

1990 The Bandera Bulletin

Deer plentiful, but they may be hard to find

White-tailed deer in Bandera County should be as plentiful as last year and in even better physical condition during the hunting season which opens Nov. 6, but they may be harder to come by for the hunter in traditional blinds, a state wildlife agency biologist said Thursday.

"The quality of deer in Bandera County will probably be better than last year because of the good weather conditions during most of the year," said Max Traweek, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department district leader in Kerrville.

"But that generally means they will be a little bit harder to come by, as far as the hunter is concerned," he said. The reason is that because of the plentiful supply of acorns on the ground, deer will be more apt to stay in the woods and away from feeding stations hunters maintain near their blinds.

"If acorns are still available when the season opens, and I expect they will be, the deer tend to move around less," he said. "Acorns is one of the things that keep them off corn." Most feeding stations are stocked with corn.

Hunting season opens in Bandera County on Nov. 3 and runs through Jan. 6. Archery season, already under way, closes Oct. 31.

Hunting rules and regulations remain unchanged from last year in Bandera County, though there are significant changes in some counties, including Medina County south of U.S. Highway 90 where hunters usually not allowed to hunt does will have "doe days" at the beginning and end of the season.

It will be open season on does and spikes during all legal hours in Bandera County as long as hunters don't exceed the overall limits of four deer, only two of which may be bucks.

Shooting hours begin one-half hour before sunrise and end one-half hour after sunset.

Turkeys will be legal game during the same dates and hours, and two gobblers or bearded hens may be taken by each licensed hunter.

Traweek said the wildlife department's surveys show the number of deer in Bandera County to be a little fewer than last year, but he attributes that to the same factors that may make them harder to bag from blinds. "A good acorn crop affects our count, because they don't move around as much," he explained.

Spring and late summer rains have provided Bandera County deer with plenty of cover and food. Antler growth should be average to better than average.

Traweek said hunting throughout the eastern part of the Hill Country should be good. "There will be more than enough deer as usual in the Edwards Plateau (roughly the same as the Hill Country), except some western counties, particularly Val Verde County," said a wildlife agency news release.

"Gillespie, Llano and Mason counties have a high density of deer, as well as Kerr County," said Traweek.

"Antlers look real good for the Hill Country because of the better range conditions," he said. "We had a period of dryness in June that affected the fawn crops in some counties. There are too many deer in most (Hill Country) counties for the habitat. Some of our fringe counties are pretty good as far as balancing the deer population and habitat."

In most of South Texas, deer are in better condition than they've been in a long time, the wildlife department reports.

The hunting prospects in the northern part of South Texas, which includes parts of Medina, Uvalde and Kinney counties, are probably the best in a long time, according to Rick Taylor, wildlife biologist from Uvalde. "It's absolutely fantastic," he said.

Bandera County precinct one workmen operate a newly-purchased gravel spreader while commissioner Bennie Barker checks the quantity applied during a paving project on King's Ranch Road Tuesday, Oct. 2. This machine and others recently purchased by the county will be used in paving projects in all precincts, says Barker.

New paving equipment in use on Bandera County's roadways

Future road paving projects in Bandera County will be completed by $35,000 worth of equipment purchased by commissioners earlier this year.

The first test of that equipment came this week on a county road between Bandera and Pipe Creek.

The use of the equipment and county road crews should reduce the cost of future county road paving, county officials said.

Commissioners purchased four pieces of used paving equipment from Uvalde County, including an oil distribution truck, a chipper (rock or gravel spreader), a steel drum roller, and a self-propelled broom, reports commissioner Bennie Barker of Wharton's Dock.

Uvalde County, beset with budget problems, sold the paving equipment on a bid basis to raise funds and Bandera County was the successful bidder.

Commissioners financed the purchase with a loan from First State Bank and will make seven semi-annual payments of $5,000 each plus interest beginning Nov. 17, reports county treasurer Elizabeth James.

After training from Uvalde County road crews, precinct 1 road crews were the first to use the equipment that will be shared by all four precincts. "The paving work begin done in (commissioners) precinct 1 is the first test of the county's ability to do our own paving," says Barker.

"We paved 8/10 of a mile in Mason Creek and a 11/10 of a mile in Bandera Ranch Acres recently," says Barker.

The current paving project is 3/10 of a mile on King's Ranch Road near Bandera Ranch Acres and 6/10 of a mile on Oilwell Road in Castle Lake Ranch.

Future work includes 6/10 of a mile on Shore Drive in Wharton's Dock and one mile in River Oaks next week, assuming the warm weather holds.

Paving on Madronna Ranch Road will be scheduled in May, says Barker, after extensive road base and culvert work is done on the road during the winter.

Other paving work will be conducted by commissioner N.P. "Bud" Thompson of Vanderpool in precinct 4 and Roger Raser of Bandera in precinct 3.

Commissioner Dan C. Alanis of Lakehills paved several miles in precinct 2 in the Pipe Creek and Lakehills area with a contrac-

Tax rollback issue debate continues to heat up

Interest continues to grow in the proposed rollback of Bandera school taxes, according to proponents on both sides of the issue, and meetings will be held in the coming weeks by both the pro-and anti-rollback forces.

Monday, Oct. 8, a group organized to counter the rollback effort will meet at the Bandera Bank Community Room at 7:30 p.m.

"Citizens interested in maintaining a sound educational system by combating a roll-back are invited to attend (the Oct. 8) meeting," said anti-rollback spokesman Cliff Boren.

Boren identified himself as a concerned parent and taxpayer, and stressed the importance of accurate information in the ongoing school district tax controversy.

Tax rollback organizer Bobby D. Jones of Wharton's Dock said only 501 signatures are needed, but he has set a goal of obtaining 2,000 signatures and expects to have them at his group's next meeting Thursday, Oct. 15.

If the rollback election is held and succeeds, school taxes will not be reduced this year but will be limited to a prescribed amount in 1991.

The deadline for submitting the petitions to the school board is 90 days after the district's vote to raise taxes, or Dec. 10.

"Once we submit the petitions, they (the school board) has 20 days to declare the petitions valid or invalid. The election date is up to the school trustees," said Jones.

The Bandera ISD board voted Monday, Sept. 24, three days before the tax rollback group met, to cut student bus service, all sports, and band and all other extra-curricular activities if a rollback effort was successful. The board meets again Tuesday, Oct. 9 at 7 p.m. in the high school library.

"They never say anything about scaling back in areas such as administration," said Jones. "They won't cut back on school activities. There is no reason to, they'll have enough money. This year, they have over a $5 million

New exotic wager on tap Friday

Bettors must pick first four to win

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

The "Superfecta" has been added to Bandera Down's list of exotic wagers and it should make the trifecta, picking the top three finishing horses in order, look simple.

Bettors wagering a minimum $2 bet must pick the first four finishers in the exact order to win. The wager will be offered once a day and only for the last race of the day.

The handle on a single race trifecta ranges from $10,000 to $20,000 and if a few or even one person wins, the payoff will be much larger than the $30 to $40 payoff for the trifecta, says Rhine.

The superfecta carries a possibility of a large payoff which will be distributed to winning ticket holders on each racing day," says track director of publicity Don Rhine.

There will be no carryover pool, unlike the twin trifecta whose jackpot is held by the track until someone wins it. So if no one picks the top four horses correctly, the pool will be paid out each day to those patrons with the first three finishers, says Rhine.

Friday's races begin at 2 p.m. and there will be two all-thoroughbred races, seven all-quarter horse races, and the last race of the day will be a 870-yard mixed thoroughbred quarter horse race.

Friday's featured race will be a 330-yard quarter horse allowance heat for three year olds and up with a purse of $2,100.

In the featured race, Whatasignature should be one of the favorites, says Rhine. The three year old filly has won three times at Bandera and will have the outside post with jockey Nicky Mitchell aboard.

Another horse to watch is Jet City Gent who's been running good, says Rhine. "He'll break on top and has a lot of speed." Robert Bard is set to ride the three year old colt.

But the surprise of the race may be filly Blisterin Win, to be ridden by veteran jockey Elbert Minchey. The horse was hurt in the gates in July and just now returning to race, says Rhine. If she's ready to run, she could beat the rest of the field, he says.

Friday's patrons can bring at least two cans of food to the track and receive free general admission as part of the track's Food Drive Friday. Donations will be given to San Antonio Food Bank's "Operation Care and Share," says Rhine. "The track has pledged to match the total number of cans collected," he says.

The monthly Saturday Morning Workout Show returns Oct. 6 at 9 a.m. with leading thoroughbred jockey [illegible] about his experience riding thoroughbreds.

There will be 12 races Saturday with a post time of 1 p.m. Four thoroughbred, seven quarter horse, and one mixed thoroughbred-quarter horse race are on tap.

Saturday's featured race will be a 1⅛ mile thoroughbred allowance race for three year olds and up with a purse of $2,800.

The contenders for Saturday's featured race will be Papa Chicho, Leafy, Bob's Bambino, Miss Southerner and Miss Foyt.

Leafy is just off a win, says Rhine, but jockey Ricky Walker will ride the colt Papa Chicho for the first time in a race Saturday and that combination could bring them across the finish line first.

Sunday's feature race will be the Bandera Challenge, with 3 year old and older thoroughbred and quarter horses racing 1,000 yards for a minimum $7,500 purse.

The first 3,000 paid admissions Saturday and Sunday will receive a free genuine leather wallet, filled with a bonus prize from KJ97-FM and Bandera Downs as part of the track's "$97,000 Weekend." "Over $97,000 in prizes

The festival opens each day at 10 a.m. at the Washington Civic Club's site next to the Washington-on-the-Brazos State Historical Park.

Activities include entertainment by the Sergeaders, the Moorman Family, and the Omas and Opas, a Miss Octoberfest Contest, horseshoes, ring toss, and volleyball.

There will be a parade Saturday at 11 a.m. and a street dance from 8 p.m. until midnight Saturday by Rick-O-Shay.

Admission is free.

The site is located between Brenham and Navasota on FM Road 1155 off State Highway 105.

State tax representative to be in Bandera Tuesday

A representative of the state comptroller's office will be in Bandera Tuesday, Oct. 9, to answer questions about Texas taxes and to assist taxpayers with paperwork and problems, comptroller Bob Bullock said Monday.

The representative will be at the Bandera County courthouse from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. The doors will be open to the public and there will be no charge.

Area taxpayers who can't get to the courthouse can still get individual tax assistance by calling the comptroller's toll-free telephone number, 1-800-252-5555.

budget," he said.

According to the BISD budget for the 1990-91 school year, almost $4 million of the district's $5.25/million budget is designated for payroll costs. Of the total $3,983,247 in payroll costs, $2,728,957 goes toward teacher professional salaries, including state-mandated benefits.

The state also mandates a strict pupil-to-teacher ratio in the lower grades, which means that as enrollment grows, the school must put additional teachers on the payroll.

Other payroll-related costs in the budget include instructional computing, $45,823; instructional administration, $31,187; instructional resources, $54,964; school administration, $214,842; guidance and counseling, $121,388; health services, $41,283; pupil transportation, $150,762; co-curricular activities, $94,732; general administration, $286,444; plant maintenance, $212,865.

The Bandera ISD board increased its 74.21 cents per $100 property valuation tax to $1.05999 at its Sept. 11 meeting. "There is not that much of a change (in their budget) to justify that big of an increase," said Jones.

The school district did, however, do away with the reportedly "very unpopular" personal property tax this year. According to school superintendent Ted Dockery, there will be many people who pay less in overall taxes because personal property taxes were dropped.

The county stopped collecting personal property tax several years ago, Dockery said.

Observed Columbus Day finds banks, one school closed

Banks, post office, federal offices, and the Bandera schools will be closed Monday, Oct. 8, to observe Columbus Day.

While the post office service desk will be closed, mail will be placed into boxes, but no rural mail routes will be run. Mail deposited in the outside collection boxes Monday will be picked up and taken to the San Antonio main post office.

Bandera school students will observe the holiday, but classes will be held as usual in Utopia and Medina.

The U.S. Agriculture offices will be closed, but the state Human Services office will be open.

County offices including the library and courthouse will be open. The Bandera County Helping Hand, Bandera Electric Cooperative and Bandera city hall will be open.

Traditional Columbus Day is Oct. 12.

Weekend weather

There will be a chance of rain for Saturday and Sunday with partly cloudy skies. Highs will be in the 80s and lows in the 60s.

Drug task forces saved in Congress

Rural drug task forces, including one that operates in Bandera County, were saved from the funding axe Wednesday when the U.S. House of Representatives passed a provision to continue funding rural task forces.

Legislators representing districts with major cities in them generally opposed the provision, which passed 236-189, and instead were backing a move to steer funding towards largely metropolitan areas.

The provision was sponsored by U.S. Rep. Albert Bustamente, D-San Antonio, and provides funding to 13 rural task forces in South Texas. His provision was backed by U.S. Rep. Lamar Smith, who said the funding was needed to fight methamphetamine production and narcotics trafficking, battles that are typical in border and rural regions.

"Rural America is on the front line in the war on drugs," Bustamente said. The provision is part of the Comprehensive Crime Control Act of 1990, a far-reaching anti-crime bill that would extend the list of crimes punishable by death.

President Bush has threatened to veto the crime bill, however, because of several of the death penalty provisions.

A proposed amendment, introduced by U.S. Rep. Romano Mazzoli, a Kentucky Democrat, threatened to eliminate funding for the 216th Judicial District Drug Task Force, which covers Bandera, Kerr, Kendall and Gillespie counties.

If the (Mazzoli) amendment had passed, "the closest Texas city to receive funding would be Austin," Smith said. "El Paso would be the only border town to receive federal drug-fighting funds. Eight border towns now receive federal anti-drug funds."

The 216th Task Force is one of 49 in the state that resulted from 1988 anti-drug legislation. Smith, who represents Bandera County in Washington, said the 49 task forces have made 19,272 arrests, confiscated $1.2 billion in illegal narcotics, and seized $27 million in assets.

"These are results we cannot ignore," Smith said. "It is imperative that these multi-jurisdictional drug task forces remain intact, so they can continue to wage their war on drugs."

Texas last year split $26.9 million in federal funds among rural and urban task forces statewide.

TSTA backs Richards

Stating that Ann Richards as governor is the best hope that the school children of Texas have, the Texas State Teachers Association this week committed $25,000 to her election campaign from its political action committee funds.

The cash donation was raised through the TSTA-PAC by individual volunteer contributions from members, mostly classroom teachers.

Middle East exhibit set at Institute

A special exhibit of original manuscripts and books about religion, literature and law in the daily and unique cultures of the Middle East will be on display at the Institute of Texan Cultures.

"Religion, literature, and law in the Middle East" will document some of the processes and testify to the ways those forces have intertwined in the history of that volatile part of the world. The display will be in the Lower Gallery of the Institute Oct. 9 to Nov. 15.

The exhibit was created by scholars at the Center for Middle Eastern Studies, UT-Austin, in conjunction with the November meeting of the Middle Eastern Studies Association in San Antonio.

Offered in the exhibit are samples from five different areas of study and research concerning the Middle East. One is devoted to examples of the Koran; another celebrates the twelfth century poet Omar Khayyam, with original Persian texts of his Rubaiyat; and yet another focuses on Islamic jurisprudence texts from 14th-19th century Morocco.

The exhibit also includes rara volumes from the collection of the 18th century linguist William Jones and a subscriber's edition of T.E. Lawrence's Seven Pillars of Wisdom with additional photos from the Lawrence collection.

The University of Texas Institute of Texan Cultures at San Antonio is located at Bowie St. and Durango Blvd. on HemisFair Park.

Admission to the exhibit is free.

Workshop on bird carving scheduled at Ingram's HCAF

The Hill Country Arts Foundation will hold a four-day workshop on bird carving Wednesday, Oct. 10 through Saturday, Oct. 13 in Ingram.

Robert Allen, of Austin, will feature the roadrunner and will introduce the beginner to the art of bird carving and painting.

Veteran carvers are also welcome to fine-tune their skills. Students will be led step-by-step from wooden blank to finished bird and will be instructed in the proper use of knives, burning tools and painting techniques.

Allen has been carving birds since 1974 and has taught bird carving at Austin Community School. Tuition for the workshop is $100 plus a $15 supply fee.

Call HCAG art director Betty Vernon for more information regarding Fall workshops at 512-367-5121. Deadlines for registration varies with each class.

The HCAF's Fall art workshops will be held at the Duncan-McAshan Visual Arts Center on Highway 39 West outside Ingram.

Artists invited

Artists and craftsmen have been invited to enter the Wurstfest Art Show Nov. 2-11 in New Braunfels.

Country-western singer's roots stem from Pentecostal minister's values

Not every country entertainer needs to be the son of a fiery Pentecostal minister to learn how to captivate an audience, but it was a lesson Jimmy Cribb, a new entrant to the national music scene learned early in life.

Cribb, 45, was born in Hemingway, S. C., but he got his musical start in his early teens when his father moved the family to Ferriday, La. where he learned to play gospel music on the organ and piano and sing in his father's church.

Cribb's musical roots began to broaden when he met a former minister by the name of Jerry Lee Lewis. "I got to know Jerry Lee real well. I toured with him and he took me to Sun Records in Memphis so I could watch him record. Jerry Lee has always been a big influence on my music," says Cribb.

During the early 1960s Cribb decided to move to the West Coast. He played in various country, rhythm and blues, and rock groups continually expanding his musical knowledge and experiences.

Then, during the middle 1970s, Cribb decided to follow his country music instincts and to really develop his own musical style. "It was that harmony between the country music artist and the country music fan that enlightened me and brought me back to my country music roots," says Cribb.

Cribb moved to San Diego to start his own country band, and it wasn't long before Tall Cotton began tearing up the San Diego night club scene. Within a couple of years Tall Cotton had become San Diego county's favorite country-western band, sweeping all the local music awards voted on by the music critics and fans. "We never campaigned for any of the awards we won. We were really into our music. It's a type of energized country music that really gets people moving, and that's what it's all about," says Cribb.

The popularity started to pay off for the group. Tall Cotton was booked to perform at the Southern California Expo and that gave the group the mass exposure that they needed. From there they began performing at various state and county fairs and touring extensively throughout the Western United States.

Another break came their way when San Diego-based Luckenbach Productions noticed their popularity. Luckenbach booked them as the opening act for their "Mountain Music Series" with stars like Merle Haggard, Waylon Jennings, and Earl Thomas Conley to name a few.

After several successful years of playing together Tall Cotton began to go through the typical growing pains that most bands experience. Two of the original members chose not to travel any more and left the band. At this time new members were added, the Tall Cotton name was dropped, and the Jimmy Cribb Band began.

Today the Jimmy Cribb Band is based out of Texas and continues to tour throughout the western United States. Since moving to Texas, Cribb has not only strengthened his band, but also his personal life, with the addition of singer-wife, Madge. Thus, contributing not only superb lead vocals but offering a great harmony blend between the two voices.

Cribb takes his concentrated success in stride. "My overall goal is to continue to grow musically and to keep entertaining and making people happy with my music," says Cribb.

About racing

by Bill Lukey

Bill Lukey is a professional handicapper. His column will appear here regularly.

I'm not one who believes that a person ought to go around talking about his problems with other people, because most of us already have more problems than we can ever lie our way out of.

But to heck with that. I have a problem, and when I tell you about it, you will wonder at the strength of a man who could go so long without telling about it.

I am sure that you have already guessed that the problem has to do with a woman. Easy guess. Because all us men know that there are few problems that don't have something to do with a woman.

But this woman is an exception. She is pleasant, agreeable, supportive, pretty, sexy, vivacious, and believes in serving a man breakfast in bed.

I know what you are thinking and that is that I am the problem. But you have never taken her to the race track.

Ever hear of Jeyki and Hyde? Ever hear of a split personality? Now you are getting the idea.

I violated the first rule of the "Horse Player's Guide:" Never take a woman to the race track with you. Whether it is your mother, wife, live-in or girl friend. But like the guy who puts his rent check on that 90 to 1 horse, I decided the gamble was worth it.

It wasn't.

I didn't notice anything different about her until we walked into the door at Bandera Downs. Nothing I could really put my finger on, just different. I should have turned around and left right then, whether she wanted to or not. Or just left her there.

We went up, found a table and started looking at our information, keeping in mind that I am a handicapper and am supposed to know those things.

As luck would have it, that day I was really on and had the ponies picked quite nicely, thank you.

I decided to let her, let's call her Hyde for short, go place the bets. That, of course, was the second big mistake.

Now, to me it is a simple matter to mark your program with the horses you want to bet on, walk up to the mutual window, tell the girl what you want to do, pay her, and go back to watch the race.

As least that's what I thought, because I didn't take into account that one-in-a-million person that immediately begins to "skate in a different arena" as soon as she walks into the race track. Heck, I never even knew there was such a thing. I don't think my mother even knew, because this was one thing she never warned me about.

Well, to make a short story long, I send her to the window for the first bet, about the fourth race. I knew I had this one nailed and wasn't worried.

I like to watch the odds and wait until the last couple of minutes before the race to place my bet. Don't do that when you send a woman to the window for you. Make your bets early so you will have enough time to check the tickets, that is if she will show them to you. Force her to show them to you, if you have to.

The race went off about the way I expected, and it was soon time to cash in, or so I thought. I'm not totally dumb. I always cash the tickets. Matter of principle.

I don't like to be laughed at by mutuel tellers, but I guess I deserved it. I should have looked at the tickets. I must have turned pale, because someone wanted to know if I was OK.

None of us will ever know where the idea came from to put a show bet on every horse in the race except the ones I told her to bet. There was also something about some guy named Cecil who supposedly knew all and told all.

Anyway, you can now see why this matter has left so heavily on my heart and I had to share it with you.

I guess the moral of all this is that the next time you want to go against the "Pony Player's Guide," don't. I wish I had put my rent check on the 90 to 1 shot instead. Then I wouldn't have had anyone but the landlord to deal with.

See you at the track.

Manor Downs to open next week, spokesman says

Manor Downs east of Austin will open for pari-mutuel horse racing Thursday, Oct. 11, after a one week delay as a result of an agreement with the Texas Racing Commission.

Manor Downs had planned to open Friday, Oct. 5, but after a first-hand inspection by officials from the racing commission Monday, Oct. 1, the track postponed its opening. "Manor Downs would have liked to opened Oct. 5, however in deference to the racing commission, we have agreed to postpone our opening one weekend until Oct. 11," said track director of marketing Bob Fox last week.

The track was seeking certain exemptions earlier at the meeting and the commission declined to inspect the track in-person, reported commission information specialist Angie Roberts.

"The racing commission feels they haven't had enough time to go through and test our system," said Fox.

The track will run four days a week on Thursdays, Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays through Sunday, Dec. 16, with 10 quarter horse races a day and a post time each day of 1 p.m., said Fox.

The delay will give Manor 41 days of racing in 1990.

The track can accommodate 7,500 people and has $3 reserved grandstand, $5 reserved seat grandstand and a limited number of box seats.

General admission entrance charge is $2. Parking will be $2 and preferred valet parking will be $5.

Manor Downs is located six miles east of Austin on State Highway 290.

James H. Fraser 535-6324

The first evening service Sunday will be preceded by a covered dish supper at 5 p.m. in the church fellowship hall on Eighth Street.

A nursery will be provided at the church each of the four nights of the revival beginning at 6:30 p.m. The revival will begin at 7 p.m. at the civic center on Park Road 37.

The speaker Sunday will be the Rev. Frederick "Rick" Waters of the Fredericksburg United Methodist Church. Monday will be the Rev. Jack Hooper from Alamo Heights United Methodist Church, Tuesday will be the Rev. David McNitzky from Boerne United Methodist Church, and Wednesday will be the Rev. William "Strick" Strickland of the Harlandale United Methodist Church.

For more information, call the church office at 751-2404.

Lakehills open house

Christmas is still several months away, but with the shopping season starting soon, the Lakehills EMS Support Team and the Lakehills EMTs would like people to consider buying a toy to donate to the Spirits of Christmas project and bring it to their open house Sunday, Dec. 2.

The annual open house at the Lakehills EMS barn from 11:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. will be a collection point for toys and an opportunity for the public to visit the facility.

"We had a great response from the public last year on the donations of toys," says Dot McCracken, one of the EMTs. "Elf Karen (Spirits of Christmas presents) and her group do a fantastic job helping families in the county that need assistance at Christmas time and we hope what we collect will give a little extra boost," she says.

Also at the open house, the Lakehills EMTs will videotape and fingerprint children for identification. "Pipe Creek (EMS) did a tremendous job with the idea and we feel this is a good time to do this for the parents," says McCracken.

Bulldog band group to organize

Bulldog band boosters will meet Tuesday, Oct. 9 at 7 p.m. at the high school band hall. The group meets regularly on the second Tuesday of the month.

Nedra Traweek has been elected president of the group for this school year.

parts of Alamo Beach Road and River Trail in Medina River Ranch. Several citizens donated money to supplement the county's funds to get more miles paved.

Raser paid $23,366 to a contractor to get roads in precinct 3 paved.

Road crew members from all the precincts have been involved in the learning process on the new equipment. "All of the commissioners have lent the necessary manpower and support very unselfishly, even though it has caused a delay in their own work schedules," says Barker. "All the men (road crew members) are in a learning process, but are working hard with a great spirit of cooperation," he says.

The county will continue to use combined road crews to accomplish the paving, because of the number of workers needed to operate all the equipment exceeds the number of road crew members of any one precinct. "We anticipate that by using our crews together in a cooperative and joint effort we will get a lot more paving done in each precinct each year at far less cost to our taxpayers," says Barker.

"We are trying to use the 'worst case first' formula and heaviest traffic areas have a priority, but we hope to improve (roads) in everyone's areas in the next few years," says Barker.

YOU ALWAYS HIT THE MARK WITH THE CLASSIFIEDS

Local trainer pads his lead

Toby Keeton has saddled 28 winners

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

Top money winning trainer Toby Keeton of Bandera continues to lead horses to the winner's circle at Bandera Downs, as witnessed by five victories last weekend.

And that success Keeton says he owes to his dad who taught him how to look at a horse.

Keeton's weekend highlight was Go Little Poggo, who won the ninth race Sunday after stumbling at the gate. Any other horse would have run fourth or fifth after such a bad start, but the classy filly came in first anyway.

Keeton-trained Dreamin High, ridden by Nicky Wilson, won Saturday's ninth race and Jerins Dream, ridden by Jerry Lee Yoakum and trained and owned by Keeton, won Saturday's fifth race.

He also had two wins Friday. Hardley Mann, owned by Mike Tuckness and ridden by Ricky Walker, tied the track record of 53.25 seconds for 1,000 yards, a mark set by Mr. Collier on Sept. 23.

Keeton trains 33 quarter horses and two thoroughbreds.

In Friday's featured race, one of his thoroughbreds, Street Tuff, shone in a six-furlong thoroughbred claiming race.

Justra Lark and View To A Win battled for the lead from the gate and down the back stretch while jockey Jerry Lee Yoakum let Street Tuff, owned by Gillis H. Ellis, bide his time.

Out of the turn, Justra Lark and View To A Win went wide and Rider and Street Tuff snuck in.

Toby Keeton

At the beginning of the final stretch, Street Tuff poured on the speed, gaining a length in the twinkle of an eye, and kept running all the way to the finish line.

This year at Bandera, Keeton's horses has won an impressive 28 times.

Keeton says he keeps 30 horses at his stable at Bandera Downs and the other horses and several yearlings at another site.

Keeton says he owes his success to his dad, Freddie, who owned and trained horses. "He had a good eye for a horse and he taught me a lot," says Keeton. And that's the key - he says it's hard to explain, but "balance" in a horse is the key. "Good runners come in all shapes and sizes," he says.

Keeton, 26, says he got his start from his father working around the stables doing "anything I was told" such as cleaning the stables. "That's how you get started," he says.

Keeton went out on his own as a trainer when he was 17 and while originally from Uvalde, he has resided in Bandera for the last 2½ years.

Keeton's claim to fame, besides having trained horses that have won $45,793.30 through Sept. 27 at Bandera Downs, the most of any trainer, is Squinch Eye.

The 2-year-old Texas-bred horse is the "best made quarter horse I've got in the barn," says Keeton.

"He's a perfect doer," Keeton told the Express-News in an interview earlier this year. "He even eats well and sleeps well."

In a May 13 allowance race at LaBahia Downs in Goliad, Squinch Eye set the track record of 16.64 seconds over 330 yards.

The colt had been erratic at Ruidoso Downs when it broke from the gate last and finished seventh in a field of 10 in the Rainbow Futurity trails June 14.

That bad break kept him away from the $2.5 million All-American Futurity Sept. 3.

Squinch Eye, one of the fastest two year olds at Bandera Downs, is set to run in the Bandera Downs Futurity Oct. 12 and the Fall Futurity at Sunland Park in New Mexico in November.

Campsites remodeled, handrails installed at Lost Maples park

Electrical hook-ups have been added to 30 campsites at Lost Maples State Natural Area and shade shelters over picnic areas have been completed.

"In addition to upgrading the campsites, steps, ramps and handrails have been installed at crucial points along the Maple Trail and improved parking area," said Bob C. Hauser, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's director of park operations. "Now, easily accessible picnic tables have been added to the day use area for improved service to the steep, rugged limestone canyons, springs, plateau grasslands, elderly and handicapped."

The area, a combination of wooded slopes and clear streams is known for its unusual stand of bigtooth or canyon maples.

Because the park is devoted to resource preservation, the buildings, roads and improved campsites, including the recent additions, are all located on the sites of old roads or in fields that had been cleared and cultivated before the park was established in 1973.

Backpackers can hike more than 10 miles of canyon trails, camping overnight at any of eight designated primitive camping areas, but all water must be packed in. Ground fires are not allowed so backpackers stoves are recommended. Ecologically sound, composting toilets are located along the trails for visitor convenience.

Lost Maples is located in Bandera County north of the intersection of FM 337 and FM 187. Take FM 187 to the park entrance.

Go Little Poggo,(5) noses out Shes Just Dancing, (1) in Sunday's ninth race. will be given away, including free general admission passes, concert tickets, compact discs and cash," says Rhine. "One lucky wallet will be filled with $1,000 cash," he says.

The track will continue the "Lucky 7" contest it announced last week. Each racing day the names of seven fans that are licensed drivers 21 years of age and older will be drawn during the day and they will be able to pick the top seven finishers in the seventh race of the day.

If anyone correctly picks seven horses, they will win a new GMC pickup. If there are no winners by closing day Dec. 9, a winner will be drawn from every "Lucky 7" person who had been drawn.

Bandera Downs will increase purses offered to horsemen by 10 percent effective Friday.

This will be the fourth time the track has increased purses since it opened for pari-mutuel wagering July 6. "With a total purse increase of 26 percent thus far, purses now stand at $1,300 for maiden claiming scaled upward to $3,100 for open handicap company," says Rhine.

Post time Friday is 2 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday's post time is 1 p.m. Gates open at noon Friday and at 11 a.m. on the weekend.

Bike event planned

Newest activity of the Floresville Peanut Festival is a bicycle tour sponsored by the San Antonio Wheelmen, a bicycle touring club, on Saturday, Oct. 13.

At the beginning of the final stretch, Street Tuff poured on the speed, gaining a length in the twinkle of an eye, and kept running all the way to the finish line.

This year at Bandera, Keeton's horses has won an impressive 28 times.

Keeton says he keeps 30 horses at his stable at Bandera Downs and the other horses and several yearlings at another site.

Keeton says he owes his success to his dad, Freddie, who owned and trained horses. "He had a good eye for a horse and he taught me a lot," says Keeton. And that's the key - he says it's hard to explain, but "balance" in a horse is the key. "Good runners come in all shapes and sizes," he says.

Keeton, 26, says he got his start from his father working around the stables doing "anything I was told" such as cleaning the stables. "That's how you get started," he says.

Keeton went out on his own as a trainer when he was 17 and while originally from Uvalde, he has resided in Bandera for the last 2½ years.

Keeton's claim to fame, besides having trained horses that have won $45,793.30 through Sept. 27 at Bandera Downs, the most of any trainer, is Squinch Eye.

The 2-year-old Texas-bred horse is the "best made quarter horse I've got in the barn," says Keeton. "He's a perfect doer," Keeton told the Express-News in an interview earlier this year. "He even eats well and sleeps well."

In a May 13 allowance race at LaBahia Downs in Goliad, Squinch Eye set the track record of 16.64 seconds over 330 yards.

The colt had been erratic at Ruidoso Downs when it broke from the gate last and finished seventh in a field of 10 in the Rainbow Futurity trails June 14.

That bad break kept him away from the $2.5 million All-American Futurity Sept. 3.

Squinch Eye, one of the fastest two year olds at Bandera Downs, is set to run in the Bandera Downs Futurity Oct. 12 and the Fall Futurity at Sunland Park in New Mexico in November.

The area, a combination of wooded slopes and clear streams is known for its unusual stand of bigtooth or canyon maples.

Because the park is devoted to resource preservation, the buildings, roads and improved campsites, including the recent additions, are all located on the sites of old ronds or in fields that had been cleared and cultivated before the park was established in 1973.

Backpackers can hike more than 10 miles of canyon trails, camping overnight at any of eight designated primitive camping areas, but all water must be packed in. Ground fires are not allowed so backpackers stoves are recommended. Ecologically sound, composting toilets are located along the trails for visitor convenience.

Lost Maples is located in Bandera County north of the intersection of FM 337 and FM 187. Take FM 187 to the park entrance.

The track will continue the "Lucky 7" contest it announced last week. Each racing day the names of seven fans that are licensed drivers 21 years of age and older will be drawn during the day and they will be able to pick the top seven finishers in the seventh race of the day.

If anyone correctly picks seven horses, they will win a new GMC pickup. If there are no winners by closing day Dec. 9, a winner will be drawn from every "Lucky 7" person who had been drawn.

Bandera Downs will increase purses offered to horsemen by 10 percent effective Friday.

This will be the fourth time the track has increased purses since it opened for pari-mutuel wagering July 6. "With a total purse increase of 26 percent thus far, purses now stand at $1,300 for maiden claiming scaled upward to $3,100 for open handicap company," says Rhine.

Post time Friday is 2 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday's post time is 1 p.m. Gates open at noon Friday and at 11 a.m. on the weekend.

Newest activity of the Floresville Peanut Festival is a bicycle tour sponsored by the San Antonio Wheelmen, a bicycle touring club, on Saturday, Oct. 13.

Group promises 'non-combative' anti-rollback drive

Nominating committee named to select leadership

By Janna Sandidge
Bulletin Staff Writer

Vowing to be a group with "positive tasks" and to come up with "non-combative" methods to inform voters in the Bandera Independent School District, some 45 citizens organized themselves Monday night to oppose the proposed rollback of school taxes.

Meeting at the Bandera Bank Community Room to discuss the possible consequences of a tax rollback election in the district, the group also agreed to move forward and "bury the bond issue."

The group did not elect a leader nor formally adopt a name, but a nominating committee including Dave Bishop, Diana Mazurek, Barbara McKay and Joe Cantu volunteered to begin the leadership selection process.

Several members of the group expressed concern that the group remain objective and not cater to any special interests.

"We need to ask people 'do you know and do you understand the facts?'" said Cliff Boren, who was serving as temporary spokesman for the group. He told the group that fighting voter apathy was important, and that citizens should have "more precise information, so that they can vote, one way or the other."

The meeting was called in the wake of an effort by another group to gather signatures to force an election to limit the amount of taxes the school board may levy next year. That group is concerned by a tax increase of more than 40 percent this year.

While it is popularly called a "rollback election," the voting would, actually be to limit the amount of taxes the school board may levy next year.

Boren suggested the group formed Monday be called "Citizens For Education," but no formal action was taken.

"(The school tax increase and rollback) issue effects everyone in the community," he said. "If our schools are cut, where will this community go, what will happen to us?

"I have a deep concern for where our community is heading," Boren said. "We need to get the bitterness behind us and move on, or our community as a whole will suffer."

One person suggested that if a district's state funding were based on per capita income instead of on property values, Bandera might not be considered a wealthy district and would probably be eligible for more state funding.

"Taxpayers all over the state are fighting the same problems," one woman said. "Perhaps people should redirect their efforts towards Austin.

"Perhaps we could even start our own lawsuit," she said, after another person mentioned the Edgewood Vs. Kirby suit that resulted in the present method of school funding. That method in turn has also been ruled unconstitutional, and the state legislature will have to come up with still another method in 1991.

Some people expressed concern for business revenues in Bandera if the school district is forced to roll back taxes. Some members of the group said they feared that people who have children will move somewhere else to put their children in a school where there are more advantages.

Study planned on water availability

Water management district to seek grant

By James Henry Frazar
Bulletin Staff Writer

The Springhills Water Management District will pursue a state grant to study water supply and water quality in Bandera County at the prompting of the Texas State Health Department.

The water availability/water supply study, for which the district has allocated $50,000 in its 1991 budget, may recommend an area water supply system for eastern part of Bandera County to alleviate water quality and water shortage problems.

Springhills will propose a study to the Texas Water Development Board in November and seek matching funds from the state to pay for the study, which will also include parts of Medina, Bexar, and Kendall Counties.

The state health department has told the Bandera County water district that if they don't get the study done, they'll find someone else to do it.

Water district director John Halliday says that doesn't constitute a mandate, and he voted against the district's budget that would pay for the study.

Steve Walden, chief of enforcement branch of the Texas Department of Health division of water hygiene in Austin, says Bandera County, particularly the eastern part of Bandera County, has water quality problems with sulfates and chlorides in the water supply.

The groundwater in the area is good from a health standpoint, but doesn't always taste good. "Much of the water that is available in the area has sulfates and totally dissolved solids and therefore doesn't meet the department's secondary water standards for drinking water quality," says Walden.

He explains that the secondary standard applies to water that does not have a health problem, but the aesthetics of the water, primarily the taste. The primary standard applies to water that is unhealthy. "There are no toxic heavy metals (in the water), so the water is not a health threat," says Walden.

But some of the water in the area does have iron and manganese, so the water may leave deposits on laundry and even in fixtures, he says. Those metals also contribute to the bad taste.

In addition, there are some pla-

(See WATER, Page 3.)

The Springhills Water Management District is seeking a grant to help pay for the study and has budgeted $50,000 of its own funds to pay its part. There's no health threat in Bandera County's water, health officials say, but sulfates and totally dissolved solids affect its taste.

Year-round school discussed 'in passing'

New rules facilitate 12-month school year.

Bandera school trustees have discussed "in passing" the option of operating schools here the year round to alleviate overcrowding, according to school superintendent Ted Dockery.

The State Board of Education recently approved rules that would give local districts the option of choosing a year-round program.

"The board is aware of (the state board's action), and have indicated they would consider it to offset the need for additional classrooms," Dockery explained. "It's more feasible for the elementary level than for secondary."

Voters in the district have twice rejected a $5.1 million bond issue to finance school improvements, including the construction of a new elementary school in the Lakehills-Pipe Creek area.

Year-round classes would effectively do away with traditional summer break, and although it would save money that might be spent building more classrooms, it would cost more for maintenance and operation of the school facility year-round, according to Dockery.

San Antonio's Harlandale School District is reportedly seriously considering a year-round school calendar.

"The interest (in a year-round system) is building," said Dr. William Kirby, commissioner of education.

Rules to implement the program are to be established by the Texas Education Agency by January.

Under a year-round format, a student would attend classes 180 days, as they do under the current system. Instead of the traditional three-month summer break, students would attend classes continuously, taking several short breaks throughout the year.

For example, some school districts allow students to go to classes in cycles of 45 days, separated by 15 day vacations throughout the school year to meet the 180-day requirement.

Another approach, the multi-track system, breaks students into different groups, with each groups taking breaks at different times of the year.

Kirby said the multi-track approach is one method that could alleviate over-crowding problems in some schools.

"It's silly to tell school districts when they have to begin school each year," said state board member John Shields. "It's an option to allow the local district to make decisions."

One obstacle that local school districts might encounter is school sports schedules, though state officials say that schools having a year-round schedule that meets standards set by the University Interscholastic League would still be allowed to participate in sports programs. Student athletes could participate in events during their break periods.

"We're talking about changing a 100-year-old system that is rooted in an agrarian society where you took off three months during the working season," said state official Julian Shaddix, who is assistant commissioner for school administration.

Burglary suspect caught in the act

A possible burglary of a home north of Medina was stopped Tuesday when lawmen found the alleged burglar in the home.

Roy Dale Wallace, 26, of Odessa was charged with criminal mischief and criminal trespass by Bandera County Sheriff's deputies after he was found in a bathtub in a Medina home near the county line.

The homeowner came to her residence Tuesday afternoon and saw a man she did not know lying on the floor, reports investigating deputy Sal Obiedo. The woman left her house and called the sheriff's department from a neighbor's house.

Obiedo, reserve Deputy Tom Christenson, Deputy Lynn Holt, a Kerr County Department of Public Safety trooper and a Kerr County deputy searched the house for the man and found him hiding in a bathtub.

The woman who owned house found the screen on the window cut and the glass window on the porch door broken, says Obiedo. "We got there and started to search the house and found him," he says.

Wallace is believed to have stolen a van in Kerr County and wrecked it Monday night on State Highway 16 near Wallace Creek. He left the scene by the time EMS and lawmen arrived, reports Obiedo.

Wallace is also facing an Odessa warrant charging with class A felony theft.

Ten recent burglaries were cleared up with the arrest of John
